CHAPTER IX.

BESSIE'S CONFIDENCES.

(Concluded.)

You never thought of falling in love with Alphonse, I suppose, Bessie?"

"Alphonse has been in love with a very nice girl for a long time. Some way I knew he was engaged as soon as I met him. The girl is poor and he cannot marry her, and I think it an awful pity for they would be so happy. If I were you, father, I should make Alphonse and his beautiful Margaret happy."

"That is your idea, Bessie?"

"All my own. If there is any real merit in it give me the credit. Did you know there was another son, called Jack? I saw his likeness. I think I could have fallen in love with Jack Madison."

"I have heard of him. He ran away from home many years ago. His father said in his letter to me that he had not heard of him since. It is supposed he died in Mexico or California."

"I do not believe he is dead. Suppose we try to find Jack Madison. I think I could feel a great interest in Jack. I got Alphonse to give me a copy of his photo of the runaway."

"And she took it from a little case, and handed it to her father."

"I have seen a face that is a little like this in expression; and yet it is not a common face."

"It is a very uncommon face. It is a very uncommon face. Would it not be a good thing to find Jack and send the prodical kick to his father? He would be welcomed home, I am sure. Uncle Sam wants him, but he is too stiff necked a Philistine to be so."

"How did you like your cousin Louisa?"

"There is nothing to disapprove of in Louisa - perhaps she would be nicer if there was. I was always forced to admire Louisa's extreme propriety; and yet sometimes I wished to get away from it. She is a sister to every person and to every duty, their due, and she goes to church regularly on Sunday. Also she is beautiful; she has large, soft, black eyes and warm, white skin and long, black hair and a very tall, elegant figure. All her words are low and musical; all her ways are slow and graceful. She makes you wish to be quiet and sleepy, and I should think a New Yorker would enjoy the simplicity of her presence. Now, father, I am going to amaze you. And she put down her cup and looked with a smile into his expectant face. I cannot love you any more when you have already all my heart. You see I have been loving you for nearly fifteen years. Poor John has only been with me about ten days."

"Poor John got a long way in ten days?"

"Love wears the seven-leagued boots. You look weary, father. Surely you have not been trying to catch love?"

"I have had lots of other things to think about. I have been alone for nearly three weeks again. I cannot tell what has come over my manager. He has taken more holidays this year than I like. His absence leaves too much on my shoulders."

"Perhaps he is in love."

"Do not judge the whole world by yourself, Bessie. But I have promised him a share in the business, and I must keep my word with him. That will satisfy his desire and make him stick to the office. It will indeed be necessary, as I intend to spend this summer travelling with you."

"Oh, dear! Am I to go away again? Let us travel in New York. I am sure there are many queer places here as in London or any other foreign city."

"But I want to see foreign titles. And if I take you to Europe, I may have you all to myself for a little while before you get married. I think I have a right to that."

"I would not be selfish, father. Selfishness is not a bit like you. Besides, you know John might go to Europe also."

"Then he must take a different route. I saw Doctor Carter as I came home, and he says Amber is not very well. His brother Will was with him. You never saw Will, did you?"

"No. Amber kindly thought I might possibly be good enough for Will's wife. I should not think of aspiring so high. Will Carter's goodness is quite proverbial."

"Then she turned the conversation upon the improvements she wished made in the house, and after dinner Mr. Madison went through every room with her."

"It shall be as perfect as possible before next winter," he said. "You will not really make your debut before then. In two months we shall be ready for you."

"You can tell him to come to my office; I will see him there."

"They were his parting words, and he spoke them more sternly than usually. But Bessie was not troubled. She congratulated herself upon getting the confession over so well."

"Some girls would have put it off and off," she thought, "and had a worry and a headache, and perhaps made a mess of the whole affair. Father will get use to the idea before he sees John, and then John will slip into his place quite naturally."

Evidently Bessie was not far wrong in her supposition. Mr. Madison thought of the confidence his daughter had given him all day, and his first words in the evening referred to it.

"I dare say my little girl loves this strange man better than her father, already!"

"Tears were in his eyes as he clasped her cheeks between his hands and waited for a reply."

"I can love John more and more every day and never love you one bit less, dear father," she answered. "Can you not love me more and more every day?"

"No! I love you perfectly now. I cannot love you any more when you have already all my heart. You see I have been loving you for nearly fifteen years. Poor John has only been with me about ten days."

"Poor John got a long way in ten days?"

"Love wears the seven-leagued boots. You look weary, father. Surely you have not been trying to catch love?"

"I have had lots of other things to think about. I have been alone for nearly three weeks again. I cannot tell what has come over my manager. He has taken more holidays this year than I like. His absence leaves too much on my shoulders."

The Growth of CHILDREN

depends upon proper nourishment - a balanced ration. The most frequent lack is bone-forming material, causing soft, weak, diseased, crooked bones.

days. I said I would send a letter to him, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, at the right time. I want the house in order, and I want some new dresses. I think he is a very fine gentleman, indeed."

"You can tell him to come to my office; I will see him there."

"They were his parting words, and he spoke them more sternly than usually. But Bessie was not troubled. She congratulated herself upon getting the confession over so well."

away, and the workmen can take possession. Have you seen Doctor Carter's house? Would you like your drawing-rooms like Amber's?"

"Nothing at all like them. I want mine to be unique and rather startling. I shall go to Astor Library and look through all their big books of interior decorations. Mrs. Start got her queer, splendid ideas there - or rather, her decorator did. I have sense enough to make my own selections. When I have done so, you can come and look at them. What kind of an idea is that, father?"

"A very good one."

"Then to-morrow I will begin to carry it out - that is, if Amber calls early."

"I hope you will have a pleasant visit. Some one was saying that Amber was a little difficult since her marriage."

"We shall get along. New Yorkers never quarrel; they only say disagreeable things in the most agreeable manner. It comes natural to us. Only English women tell truths to each other. Then they never forgive the things said, but have a nice, comfortable, steady quarrel that lasts them as long as they live. New Yorkers have no time for that kind of amusement. We forgive each other our trespasses each night. Amber and I start fairly to-morrow, unless I should have an unpleasant dream about her. Father, suppose I write to John and ask him to take dinner with us to-morrow night?"

"I thought you said ten days?"

"Is there any use in putting off a pleasure? John will come whenever I ask him, and then you can talk with him about me. It will be so much nicer to have the thing settled and done with."

"I will see him in the office."

"I do not like to be talked about in the office, as if I were 'business.' I think he had better come to dinner to-morrow, eh, father?" and she emphasized the request with a caress, that the dotting father could not refuse.

"You get your own way with me always, Bessie. Do you expect this John to be as complacent to you?"

"I have begun in the right way. That is something. I will write for John, and you will see how readily he will obey me."

Automatic Pistols. The New Weapon.

(By F. A. McKenzie.)

From the events of last week one important fact emerges—the deadly efficiency of the automatic pistol. To many it has been shown for the first time by the Houndsditch conflicts that the coming of the automatic pistol has brought about a revolution in modern weapons.

The Houndsditch murderers had automatic pistols. The police had revolvers. The man armed to-day with a revolver has as much chance against an opponent with a self-loading pistol as had the armies of the Dervish, with their spears and swords, against Lord Kitchener on the field of Omudman. This is no exaggeration. The revolver has an effective range of from twenty-five to thirty yards. The most powerful automatic pistols are sighted to a thousand yards and even very small pistols can kill at fifty yards. The revolver is a difficult weapon. Avoiding technical terms, let me say that when fired it shows a decided tendency for the line of fire to rise. To allow for this deflection in the passage of the bullet requires both skill and practice. In the automatic pistol the rise is far less, thus making the aim much more direct and certain. With the automatic pistol the rate of fire is many times greater. When loading a revolver you slip each cartridge into its own chamber, after ejecting the old cartridge cases. With the automatic pistol you slip in a clip of bullets, ranging in number from three to twenty, by what is practically one movement of the hand, and they subsequently eject themselves. At an emergency a man has seldom time to reload his revolver when the last cartridge is fired. With the automatic the skilled shot can fire seven aimed shots a second, or seventy a minute, including reloading.

Points of Comparison.

That the revolver has good points no one would deny. For dealing with one or two men at a distance of a few yards there is much to be said in its favour. The low velocity with which the bullet travels makes it valuable in stopping an opponent. The more powerful automatic pistols have a way of sending their bullets clean through their object, making a small hole, and leaving him perhaps unaware for some seconds that he has been struck. The force with which the bullets of the automatic pistol travel can be judged from the fact

The Webley-Scotts are manufactured by the gun house of Webley. The Webley-Scott and Colt have one undoubted advantage over the Mauser, that of portability. Herr Mauser refuses to make a small weapon, declaring that he has all he can do to meet the demand, although they make larger types also. The miniatures of these two firms are practically weapons for the waistcoat pocket, less than five inches long, and yet able to send their charges home as heavy revolvers could not. The price of an automatic pistol varies roughly from two to six guineas.

The Automatic Principle.

In the revolver the central principle is the revolving chamber, in which the cartridges are placed one by one, and where each barrel is brought in turn into position by the cocking of the trigger or the recoil from the explosion. In the automatic pistol, when the clip of cartridges is pressed into the magazine and the clip itself is pulled out the breach bolt springs forward. The weapon is then ready. With the firing of the first shot the empty cartridge is automatically ejected and the second forced up in readiness. This process repeats itself until the whole of the cartridges are used. There is no trouble with reloading; no hammer to pull back into place. You simply press lightly with the finger on the trigger for each shot. The statement made at one of the Houndsditch inquiries that when the trigger is once pulled the pistol continues to fire until all the cartridges are used, like a machine gun, is wrong. The trigger has to be pressed for each shot.

It is obvious even to one unfamiliar with arms that a weapon four times as rapid and with from six to forty times greater range, far more certain, and far more sure in its aim than the revolver must eventually replace it. This has already been discovered on the Continent. When I was in Warsaw in 1904 the police complained bitterly that they were powerless against rioters and revolutionists. "Our policemen draw their revolvers," said one of the heads of the police to me—a man who a few weeks afterwards was blown to pieces by a bomb—before they can cock them they are shot down by Brownings. Men stand away at a distance which the revolvers cannot reach and pick the police out. This has been altered in many parts of Russia and in other Continental countries. The police there have their automatic pistols to-day. Apart from the question of regularly arming London police, an issue which stands on a wholly different plane, common sense demands that when weapons are wanted our police should have the best. The best small firearm without question to-day is the automatic pistol.

The usual size of a Mauser takes a clip of six bullets. This, it will be remembered, was the kind used by the Sidney Street Terrorists. One of the newer patterns will take no fewer than twenty cartridges in its magazine. It is distributed in this country by the well known gun-house of Wesley Richards, and during the past twelve years they have sold no fewer than six thousand. Every one of these is numbered and a record is kept of their destination. When news came that the Sidney Street Terrorists had left two Mausers in the ruins, Mr. A. H. Gale, the director in London, offered to trace their records and find who bought them. When I visited the New Bond Street shop on Saturday the police had not even replied to the offer. A strange commentary on modern detective methods!

The Browning Pistol.

The Browning pistol is the type that was largely used by the Russian revolutionists during the uprising against the Czar's Government. I will remember on one occasion when travelling through Poland in those days some peasants came up to me and inquired if I were the English agent who had brought them their promised Brownings. They were much disgusted when they found that I had nothing for them. The Browning patents are controlled in this country by the old American revolver house of Colt, and the pistols are known as Automatic Colts.

Summers Knocked Out.

London, Jan. 25.—Harry Lewis, the American welterweight, who won the championship of England a year ago from Young Joseph, knocked out Johnny Summers, the English aspirant for the title, in four rounds to-night. A big crowd witnessed the so-called "every seat in the Olympia." It was a savage fight while it lasted, and honours were even in the first two rounds. The men insisted upon clinching at every possible chance. The third round was the hottest of the go, both men trying desperately for a knockout. In the fourth round, Lewis rushed Summers to the ropes and knocked him out with a straight right. After Summers had taken the count Lewis picked him up and carried him to his corner, amid great cheering. The men were matched at 144 lbs. When they weighed in at 3 o'clock in the afternoon it was found that the Americans tipped the scale at 143½ pounds. Summers weighed 140½ lbs. As a result of his overweight Lewis said a forfeit of $500.

Relics of Stone Age.

Arthur Dioso, F. R. G. S., has recently completed a series of explorations in Yucatan which bring to light many new facts about the stupendous ruins which stretch through the country in a chain 300 miles long. The most amazing thing about these ruins, according to Mr. Dioso, is that the people who possessed such high architectural skill and the knowledge of rich and graceful decorative arts, belonged to the stone age and had no knowledge of metals. These wonders in stone were carved with flint implements and a civilization which has been compared to that of Egypt grew up without even the use of bronze and iron. —From the Chicago Tribune.

Fell into Vat of Lye.

Foreman of a Soap Factory Slips on a Plank. New York, Jan. 22.—John Bethon, foreman of a soap factory on Staten Island, slipped on a plank and plunged into a vat of lye up to his neck to-day. When dragged out the flesh was nearly eaten from his bones and the sight of both eyes are gone. He was still alive to-night, but in a critical condition.

A few minutes after Zam-Buk is applied to a cut, a burn, a scratch, or any sore place, the pain is stopped. Mothers should never forget this, because it is one reason why Zam-Buk is the best thing for children's injuries. It stops their crying and gives them ease. Right from the instant of application healing begins, and Zam-Buk heals quickly. Note these statements from reliable persons, some of whom you may know.

Baby's Sore Healed.
"My baby girl had a bad sore on her chin, which was very painful, and caused her to be very restless. We put on some ZAM-BUK, and in a wonderfully short time it gave her ease. In a few days the sore was completely healed."
MRS. E. COCKER, Yorkton, Sask.

Rusty Nail Pierced Finger.
"I ran a rusty nail under my thumb nail while at work. The pain was terrible and I feared blood-poisoning from the dirty, rusty nail! I melted some ZAM-BUK and ran it into the wound, and it stopped the pain almost instantly. It kept away inflammation and in a few days the wound was quite healed."
MR. A. H. ORTH, Shipley, Ont.

A Bad Burn.
"In moving some wood in the stove, I burned my thumb very badly. In a few minutes it was covered with a big white blister, and the pain was very bad. ZAM-BUK was applied, and in quick time it gave me ease!"
H. E. JENNER, Organist, Carman, Man.

Take this advice!
If you have some sore place, some skin disease, some cut, or burn or ulcer, why continue to suffer pain? Every hour you suffer is an hour wasted. You cannot do your best work in pain; you cannot enjoy your leisure. ZAM-BUK saves far more than it costs, by saving you time in this way.
ZAM-BUK has "short cut" to skin healing. There is nothing which acts so quickly and so surely. Use it for all skin injuries and diseases, Eczema, Ulcers, Blood Poison, etc., and for Piles. All druggists and stores, 50 cents a box, or post free from ZAM-BUK Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Ruth Cameron

There is a certain astonishingly common little social sin which has three roots—one in impatience, one in egotism and one in selfishness. I wonder if you can name it from that description. I mean the habit of interrupting. It is really astonishing to me to notice how many people, otherwise well-bred, are guilty of this offence against tact. I know a dear little hostess, with charming manners for the most part, who continually embarrasses her guests at the table by breaking in on what someone is saying to ask if they do not wish to be helped to this or that. Of course she only does this because she is anxious for the well being of her guests, but surely they would not be in danger of suffering the pangs of hunger if she waited for a lull in the conversation to offer to replenish their plates. Blatant and open interrupting of what another is saying by some remark of one's own is, of course, a fault easily recognized and promptly condemned, but there are some less obvious forms of interrupting that I consider quite as bad offences. For instance to interrupt a general conversation on a subject which does not happen to interest one by abruptly turning the trend onto some subject which one does like, seems to me quite as bad as to break in when another is speaking. And then it seems to me that the blank stare of those people, who always think of what they are going to say next while you are talking, deserves to be classed as an interruption. It is a silent one to be sure, but none the less irritating, as all who have suffered it can testify. Another brand of interrupter is the person who breaks in with a pun or joke, or something he has been rehearsed of, right in the middle of our narrative and shunts you so completely off the track that it is impossible, or at least most awkward to attempt to get back again. If I had begun with my favorite card, a question, and asked, "Do you ever interrupt?" you would doubtless have mentally answered "Of course not." But now that I have explained all I mean by interrupting perhaps you won't be quite so positive. How about it?

Reciprocity in Fish.

As the remarks of the Hon. Mr. Fielding, the Dominion Minister of Finance, on the Reciprocity proposals in regard to fish, are of great interest to Newfoundland, we append the following extracts from our Canadian exchanges.

It will be seen that Canada does not give to American fishermen the right of fishing in her waters. Since 1858 she has permitted American fishermen to exercise the commercial rights of buying bait, ice, and other supplies, and shipping crews, under a license system which of course she will continue if the Reciprocity Agreement is ratified.

"In respect to reciprocity in fish, Mr. Fielding said in his speech in the House of Commons:—

"Canada has never enjoyed the advantage of free fish into the United States except upon the condition that she grant the United States not only similar privileges but the right to fish in the national waters of Canada. That was the condition of the old reciprocity treaty, and under that condition very satisfactory progress in our fisheries was made.

"There are some people in our country to-day who attach too much importance to the item of free fish that they would be willing in order to obtain it to give to our American friends the right to fish in our waters. We do not think that this represents the national sentiment. We said to our American friends that we were willing to meet them in the exchange of commodities, that we wanted to show our good will, but that we could not discuss this question at all of giving them free fishing, and practically at an early stage in the negotiations that feature was eliminated.

"Fishing Privileges.
"One thing further we have done. We have secured, I may say, unconditionally, for the first time, what is regarded as a very substantial of the free admission of fish of all kinds into the United States market. In what is commonly called the Chamberlain-Bayard treaty, made between Mr. Chamberlain and Sir Charles Tupper on the one side, and Mr. Bayard of the United States on the other, in the year 1888, provision was made for free fish being admitted into the United States, and the conditions set forth in that treaty were that Canada should give to the fishermen of the United States certain commercial privileges, such as the right to come into our ports and obtain bait, ice and supplies and to ship crews and to transfer their fish. These commercial privileges were to be granted free of all charge and cost to the United States in exchange for the privilege of free fish.

"It was admitted at that time that the treaty would probably be ratified, but as there might be some delay in its ratification, and with the view of avoiding the friction which was unhappily existing in relation to our fisheries, there was put into the form of a protocol what was commonly known as the modus vivendi, in which it was declared that for the period of two years, that being the period within which it was thought the treaty would be ratified, the United States would be allowed to enjoy these commercial privileges by the license to be issued to their fishermen at the cost of $1.50 per ton.

"That arrangement which was contemplated for two years has existed down to the present time. We got a few thousand dollars from the licenses which are issued to our American friends. We are not concerned in the question of the few thousand dollars we get from these licenses, but we insist upon issuing these licenses as an indication of our national right, and once we have gained recognition, as we now have, of our right to these fisheries, we do not care about the trumpery sum of one dollar which we get from each of the licenses. But the license must be issued as a vindication of Canada's national right."

"So it will be seen that that which we failed to accomplish under the Chamberlain-Bayard treaty, that which was to be given free to the United States in return for free fish, we are accomplishing to-day exactly what we sought to accomplish in the Chamberlain-Bayard treaty, but which, unfortunately, was never accomplished because that treaty never went into operation."

"Warrant and Non-Coms. Sociable in aid of the funds for the 'Guards' will take place in the College Hall, Wednesday evening, Feb. 8th.—Feb. 11

Express Meets it Rough

The Bruce express arrived here yesterday at 3 p.m. after having a stormy experience coming across country. After the Bruce arrived over Port aux Basques a violent storm raged and the express could not leave owing to the fact that a hurricane of wind blew. A blizzard raged and it would have been dangerous for the train to start on the journey until the storm abated. It was very cold also, but after the train had started it became more civil until Monday night, when the train was again beset by another storm of sleet and rain. The track, however, is clear and there was no necessity to get the assistance of the rotaries.

Boy Had Fits For 6 Years

Druggist advised DR. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD—Cure complete and lasting.
Mrs. J. D. Palmer, 33 Park St., Amsterdam, N. Y., writes: "When six years of age my boy began to have fits. They came on in the night. He would make strange noises, stiffen out, froth at mouth, face would twitch and sometimes turned purple. After the fit he could not talk."
"The family physician said all he could do was to keep them down somewhat. The second physician pronounced trouble Jeffersonian epilepsy, but could not cure him. He suffered for six years and before beginning the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food had three fits in about five days. Our druggist recommended Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. He has taken seven boxes and has not had the symptom of a fit since. His color has greatly improved; he is not nervous and irritable like he used to be, and we consider his cure complete."
"Such results are only obtained by the use of the genuine Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food—not from imitations or substitutes. 50 cents a box, all dealers or Edman, Bates & Co., Toronto.

PROSPECTS FOR RECIPROCITY.

Special to Evening Telegram.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.
Even with the calling of an extra session the reciprocity proposals appear doomed to defeat. The Republicans in Congress are hopelessly split on the question. While the Democrats would now vote for the agreement they could not pass it at the present session with so few Republicans in favor of it. If an extra session is called, it is believed that a great change of sentiment, on the part of the Democrats toward the Treaty, would be shown.

Papers That Preach Murder.

It is not often that in England a newspaper is seized and its editor arrested on a criminal charge, as was the case the other day in connection with the Liberator.

Still, such things have happened before, one of the most notorious cases in point being the prosecution which was instituted by the Government against the Commonwealth, at the time of the trial and conviction of the Walsall Anarchists.

In this revolutionary print an article had appeared inciting to the murder of the then Home Secretary, Mr. Henry Matthews. Mr. Justice Hawkins, Inspector Melville, and others.

Whereupon the police, acting on a warrant, raided the offices of the paper in the City Road, London, seized all the copies they could find, and arrested the editor. He was afterwards sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment with hard labor.

Another instance that created considerable sensation was that in connection with the Freihelt (Freedom), a German anarchist journal published in London by a notorious revolution-

Annual "At Home" of the C. C. C.

The Catholic Cadet Corps held their annual "At Home" in the British Hall last night. The ball room was beautifully decorated for the occasion, conspicuous amongst the mural decorations being the Cadet colors. An excellent programme of music was rendered by the band, the hearty applause of the audience being the best proof of the pleasure that was afforded. Tea was then served by the lady friends of the Corps, after which dancing was indulged in till an early hour in the morning. Amongst the guests were representatives from the Highlanders and Methodist Guards. Mrs. Greene and Mrs. Sullivan acted as chaperons. The number present was about 400. The officers of the Corps acted as floor managers, and the social was as successful and as enjoyable as any of those held previously by the C. C. C.

The concert given by the band included the following pieces:—
1. Band—Heart's Flowers.
2. Chorus—Oberon. Encore—Blue Danube.
3. O Lovely Night. Encore, May Morning—Miss Strang.
4. O Dry Those Tears. Encore.
"Could I"—Mr. L. Woods.
5. Mary of Argyll. Encore, Merry May—Miss Bates.
6. For Months and Months, and Months. Encore, The Pale Young Curate—Mr. G. Shea.
7. Arts from Faust. Encore, Speedwell—Miss D'Albert.
8. Marching Along. Encore, The Old Black Mare—Mr. C. Hutton.
9. Band selection, The Chimes of Normandy.

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its forms can be cured. It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything, I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty to breathe. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden. Now it seems a shame and a pity for persons like to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a Bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at

Direct Fish Trade With Spain

WILL BE REVIVED. We learn from an influential business man of the city that a new Spanish firm has been organized to carry on a large fish business in this country. One of them is the father of the captain of the Spanish barque Guadalhorre, who is a very wealthy man, and the others are business men of standing in Spain. Two large stations have already, we learn, been purchased in northern outports and the principal establishment will be located at Harbor Grace, where it is believed that Munn & Co's. extensive premises will be secured. This place is practically new, having been thoroughly repaired about 10 years ago. The firm will buy largely, and it is thought will also supply for the fishery, and two or three vessels with the Guadalhorre will likely run here to take cargoes of fish to Spain. The new departure will be a good thing for the country and will, it is hoped, eventually mean the revival of the old time Spanish trade with Newfoundland.

Renews Notes.

Recently Miss Conway, of Renews, was the winner of a very handsome prize presented by Rev. Fr. Walsh for a very meritorious composition written in connection with a speech delivered by Mr. V. P. Burke, Inspector of R. C. Schools.

A convention of teachers on the Southern Shore will be held at Renews during the present week.

A new addition is being made to the church at Fermeuse, as at present it is not large enough to contain the congregation attending it.

Professor Jas. Power, of St. John's, will visit Renews during the present month to coach the brass band of that place.

Holyrood Notes.

Messrs. J. F. Kennedy and Capt. Walter Joy are storing large quantities of ice in anticipation of an influx of bankers following the reciprocal trade relations completed or in prospect. As a bait centre Holyrood stands unrivalled.

Capt. J. F. Lewis arrived from Holyrood on Thursday last after a successful banking voyage. Capt. Lewis freighted a load of green fish to Gloucester and is now awaiting orders to freight a load of frozen herring there.

Capt. Walter Kennedy will sail for the Gulf the first week in February to commence his fishing operations. May the fullest measure of success await him.

Rev. James W. Donnelly is about to establish a band in connection with the Star of the Sea Association of Holyrood. Negotiations are now in progress for a band instructor and instruments with a city gentleman. A reading room and a debating club will also be established in connection with the Society, which is now about to enter upon a new course of progress and advancement.

High Mass and Office of Requiem was offered up for the repose of the soul of Father Gregory Batecock on Thursday at Holyrood. The Mass was an offering from the Star of the Sea Society and was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop March, assisted by Revs. Father Donnelly, deacon, Fr. Sheehan, sub-deacon, and Doctor Whelan, master of ceremonies. A large congregation assisted at the Mass and many were the prayers that soared to heaven for the repose of the soul of our dear departed parish priest.

The wedding ceremony of Mr. Cornelius Kennedy and Miss Annie Lewis was duly celebrated at the hospitable home of the gallant Capt. Kennedy on Sunday last. Rev. Fr. Donnelly performed the ceremony in the presence of a company of select guests. The reception was then held, after which the guests assembled in the banquet room and partook of an excellent wedding feast. Father Donnelly toasted the health of the bride and groom in suitable terms. Other addresses from the gentlemen present were complimentary and expressive of the pleasure and delight they were filled with. The banquet was excellent, the catering faultless and the amusements various. It was a well timed and was kept up for two days, eclipsing all similar events in magnitude and grandeur. Congratulations to bride and groom.

The wedding of Mr. James Crowley and Miss Annie Morrissey came off on Thursday evening at the Holy Cross Chapel. Rev. Fr. Donnelly officiated at the solemn and sacred ceremony. Mr. John Hanson, Fr. Mann, supported the groom, and Miss Dora Salmonier, attended the bride. After the ceremony the wedding party were driven in four sleighs to the home of the groom where a reception was held and luncheon served. Immediately after the bride and groom boarded the train for Brigus, where the honeymoon is being spent.

Poachers' Snares.

How the Game Preserves of England Are Protected.

Though its private game preserves in the United States are rapidly increasing in number and game brings a high price in the markets, it will probably be some time before poachers become such a serious problem as they are in England, where poaching is a very ancient, if not honorable occupation, and where a constant warfare, more or less serious in results, is maintained between these gamekeepers and the poachers.

The signs sometimes seen on the fringe of English woods, "Beware of man traps and spring guns" may frighten the harmless cockney out on a Sunday, but the professional poacher knows that man traps and spring guns are prohibited by law. He has to be on watch, however, for traps which at least give him a bad fall or a ducking. A fence which he is climbing and has climbed many times before may give way with a crash, or a plank laid conveniently across a ditch or stream may have been sawed almost through. A fine but strong wire stretched across a path about charge the gun, and put the keepers on the alert.

When a keeper finds a number of snares set he will put a dead hare or rabbit in one, scratch up the ground and leaves to make it appear that the animal had struggled in a natural manner, conceal himself nearby, and take the prowler 'in the act' when he next comes to the snares.

The usual way of collecting pheasants is for the poacher to provide himself with a light gun, using a very small charge, so that the report will be slight, with which he kills the birds in the trees in which they roost. Keepers therefore make wooden decoys and place them in trees located from the poacher's point of view, most conveniently, and conceal themselves nearby. When the night prowler begins to breeze away at the decoys, the keepers rush out and make a capture. The stealing of pheasants' eggs is regarded in England as the most heinous form of poaching, and eggers are sometimes caught by means of a decoy nest in which eggs have been placed. When all else has failed, poachers are occasionally bagged by means of marked hares or rabbits. When such a marked animal is found in a game shop it is

The Hobby Riders.

Columbus rode a hobby from court to court until he found two Jews, Louis De Santangel and Gabriel Sanchez, who supplied the funds needed to fit out his caravan.

Morse, when riding his hobby, the telegraph, a congressman in Washington laughed at him as "an old fool who wanted him to help him get a bill through congress, so as to stretch a wire from Baltimore to Washington, so that one fool over in Baltimore could talk to some other fool in Washington."

When, a little more than a hundred years ago, Oliver Evans predicted that the time would soon come when the high pressure locomotive would enable people breakfasting in Washington to take supper in New York, two hundred miles away, nearly everybody regarded that prediction as evidence of the intellectual breakdown of a brilliant mind.

George Stephenson, father of the railway system, was badgered before a meeting of the House of Commons in 1825. It was hinted that he was mad. One of the most eminent scientists of the time declared that "it was preposterous in the extreme to hold out a prospect that the locomotive could travel twice as fast as a stage coach." People declared that Stephenson would set the wheat fields on fire with his steam engine, and would put the coach-makers out of business.

Corpenicus was called crazy when he said that the earth moved round the sun, and his book on the revolution of the heavenly bodies was prohibited. Galileo, compelled to abjure his hobby, still muttered under his breath, "The earth moves all the same."

Franklin rode his hobby, electricity, and when people sneered, "Of what use is it?" he replied, "What's the use of a boy? He may become a man."

The greatest hobby rider of the age is Edison. Among his many hobbies is the phonograph. When he first began to ride that hobby it refused to say "speca." It dropped the "S" and said "peca." To produce that single sound he needed something delicate enough to receive impressions not more than a millionth part of an inch in depth, and yet rigid enough to carry the needle up and down, exactly reproducing the vibrations which had made the impressions. The scientists told him there was no such substance in existence. "Then we must produce it," insisted Edison. They declared that it could not be done, because the qualities which he demanded were inconsistent and exclusive of each other. He declared it could be done, because it must be done, and he did it—but Edison worked 14 hours a day for seven months to secure that single sound.

When Major McKinlay entered congress, President Hayes advised him to become a specialist and take up the tariff. McKinlay made a hobby of the tariff, became the foremost authority on the subject, and the McKinlay tariff bill made William McKinlay President of the United States.

Pullman got a sleeping car hobby, and when he began to ride it by turning an abandoned car into sleeping apartments, everybody laughed at "Pullman's folly."

When Westinghouse went to Vanderbilt with his air brake, the railroad magnate informed him that he "didn't have time to talk to fools."

"The successful worker to-day is he who singles out from the vast number of possible employments a hobby and rides it. The specialist does not have to look for a job—the job is looking for him. Young's phrase, "time elaborately thrown away," applies to the man who attempts to know or do everything. Have a hobby. Stand for something. Be somebody. Dare to be singular. Dare to be laughed at.—Madison C. Peters.

Zybszko Falls.

New York, Jan. 27.—Zybszko, the Polish wrestler, undertook to throw three men in an hour at the Grand Central Palace last night but failed. He easily disposed of Evan Padowski, the Russian giant, in 4 mins. 40 secs., but Yankee Rogers, of Buffalo, proved harder, and it was not until 49 mins. and 20 secs. that the Pole floored him with a crotch hold and arm lock. In the remaining six minutes he was unable to win over "America." The later had some idea he would floor the Pole after his two bouts to-night, but at the end of the hour both were on their feet.

A telegram was received from Hackenschmidt to-night saying he would throw Zybszko in an hour and a half. An effort will be made to arrange the match.

Mr. Derby had been ill for two days and early this morning intended to take some epsom salts. Mr. Derby was an accomplished musician.

Drowned in Pond.

Yarmouth, N.S., Jan. 26.—A most distressing accident occurred in Milton Pond this morning at 6 o'clock whereby J. David Rose, of Cheggogin, was drowned. He had been cutting ice yesterday and early this morning started with his team and little boy where he quit last night. It was dark, and in crossing over the gap cut yesterday which was covered with thin ice, he fell through. His son gave the alarm, but he could not be rescued. The body was found two hours later. He was about 46 years of age. Deceased leaves a widow and seven children. He was a most industrious and honest citizen.

The Oldest Weapon of Naval War.

Since man first began to war with his brother his energies have been directed towards increasing the distance between himself and the object of his attack. His first weapon was, without doubt, his bare fist; then he put a club in it, and later a spear, his intelligence ultimately evolving the dart, arrow and sling. To-day we give our soldiers firearms that can kill at a mile and guns that are effective at five; but even modern artillery has not altogether banished hand-to-hand fighting, and we still give them the bayonet for the final rush and the moment of actual contact, says The Graphic.

In naval warfare the tendency towards distance has been even more strongly marked. For thousands of years the effectiveness of the craft in which men fought for the supremacy of the little bit of sea they knew depended wholly upon actual contact. There were no weapons by which a ship could be sunk at a distance, and naval architects in the beginnings of history found little difficulty in countering the attack of slings and darts by giving their galleys high wooden sides, over which, in many cases, the shields of the warriors were slung as an additional protection. It comes about, therefore, that the missiles of naval war in the days of the Phoenicians, the Greeks, the Romans and the Venetians were far heavier than anything to be found in the naval armories of the world to-day. To-day we build a ship, equip it with guns, and with the guns fire a shell that weighs less than 1-40,000th part of the weight of the ship. In those days the ship itself was the projectile, with the galley-slaves as the propellant, and the helmsman as the marksman. Naval actions were decided by the ram, and the ram, supported in the Middle Ages by the gun remained supreme until the substitution of sails for oars as the motive power robbed the warship of that swiftness, mobility and certitude of direction without which it could never effectively be used.

The Ram Among the Ancients. In the war galleys of Greece and Rome the ram was, of course, developed to perfection. It is unfortunate that after all these years of study and research we have not yet been able to arrive at a satisfactory idea of what the redoubtable triremes of these ancient days were like. That some of them were enormous ships we know, for ancient writers have described their marbled apartments, their bronze baths, elegant statuary and mosaics, their libraries and gorgeous apartments, and even their covered "promenade decks," lined with vines and fruit trees. Pictorial artists, however, have not been so lavish; and no one glancing at the reproductions from a Dutch history of shipbuilding, published in 1671, will be able to bring himself to believe that ships with such an appearance could have existed.

One thing, however, is clear, and that is that the ram lost none of its importance between 800 B.C. and the heyday of Greece and Rome. Rams of all imaginable designs are shown in these old engravings. Some galleys had only one, and in that case it was usually a spur somewhere near the water-line. On the other hand, the larger ships had two, three, four, or even as many as seven rams, and it is hard to imagine that any smaller ship, receiving a blow from this combination—the ship's pointed bow and a number of iron-tipped spear-heads of great proportions—could have stood very much chance. Julius Caesar, however, bemoaned their inefficacy on one noteworthy occasion. On his way to Britain he met, at the mouth of the Loire, a combined fleet of the Veneti and the Britons; and although the British vessels were beneath his notice, he complained of the ships of the Veneti that they were so strong and solid and lofty that "neither could our ships injure them with their prows, nor could we easily throw in our darts."

By the time the Crusades were embarked upon, the ram had become a settled feature in English warships, and in 1191 it scored a great success.

The Publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces in writing to us states: "I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an unfailing remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

Richard, on his way to Acre, fell in with a great Turkish "dromon," a ship than which," according to a chronicler of the time, "except Noah's Ark, none greater was ever read of." A fierce conflict ensued, in which the Turk more than held her own; but then Richard drew off his ships, formed them in line, and charged down full tilt against the broadside of the Turk. She quickly foundered, and of her crew of 1,500 only 25 were saved.

8844. A New Waist Model.

Ladies' Waist With Yoke Facing. A pretty tucked waist that is equally well adapted for separate development, or for combination with any smart skirt of the same material. The yoke facing is a distinctive feature of the model, which is very attractive and becoming to most women. Broadcloth, serge, poplin or rep could be combined with net or satin of the same shade. The sleeve may be made in full length or cut off for three-quarter length. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes—32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 inches bust measure. It requires 2 5/8 yards of 36 inch material for the 36 inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

8858. A Dainty and Effective Neglige.

Ladies' Dressing or House Sack. Striped Scotch flannel was used for this model with the stripes in plink on a cream ground. The shawl collar, trimming, cuff and belt was of cream flannel with pink satin piping, and stitching for a finish. The design shows deep tucks over the shoulders that are stitched to yoke depth. At the waistline the fulness is held by the belt. The sleeve may be finished in full length or in 3/4 length. Lawn, batiste, nainsook, silk, elderdown or flannellets may also be used for this design. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes—32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 inches bust measure. It requires 2 yards of 44 inch material for the 38 inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

Wherever soothing syrups fail to cure that persisting cough which exhausts you.

The merits of Mathieu's Syrup are highly recognized and endorsed. Here are a few proofs:—

LOUIS A. MELANSON, CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., July 27, 1908. Blacking & Mercantile Co., Ltd.

Dear Sirs.—Yours of the 22nd inst. received re Mathieu's Syrup. I have been using the article in my home for the last seven or eight years, and know of nothing better to use when one is subject to cough or cold. In fact, we would not be without it for twice its value. I have very much pleasure in recommending this article, and in selling it over the Island I have the same report from our customers. CARVELL BROS., C. M. RITCHIE.

SYDNEY, C.B., July 20, 1908. Dear Sirs.—Yours of the 22nd to hand asking for testimonial for Mathieu's Syrup. I have handled Mathieu's Syrup for one year, and find it one of the best sellers in a cough medicine that I have ever handled. I am ordering one Gross from your traveler to-day, as I sold the last bottle in stock yesterday. DON. J. BUCKLEY, Froggitt.

eighteen inches from the ground is a serious danger for the poacher, as he may stumble over it and get a bad fall, or worse still his dog may encounter it when running at full speed, and be cut almost in two. Without his dog the poacher is practically harmless, and the most effective way of putting an end to poaching is to kill or injure the intelligent beast.

Sometimes a trap is set for the dog which is not intended to injure him, but which will give an alarm. A loaded gun is put in a field where hares feed, and a number of strings fastened to the trigger are led in various directions and secured to pegs. In driving the hares the dog is almost certain to encounter one of the strings, disan easy matter to trace it back to the man who originally offered it for sale. On more than one occasion it has been proved that London game dealers were operating as the confederates of the professional poachers, who operated boldly in gangs so large as to make the efforts of the keepers futile. —From Harper's Weekly.)

Forty-five people were killed in Toronto in the last three months, while three died suddenly on the city streets. This appalling death list for the same period has not been equalled in the history of the city for the last three years. The street cars claimed eleven victims. There were eight suicides.

Notwithstanding the expectations of England, her hens have failed to do their duty, and therefore, she is face to face with an egg famine. Prices very soon are expected to reach the figures hitherto unparalleled. The English hen, however, is not entirely to blame for this state of affairs, for it appears, according to a report by Edward Brown, secretary of the National Poultry Association, that the imports of eggs have largely decreased.

LADIES!

What about the possibility of lost hair?

When the hair has fallen out, the follicle is not necessarily destroyed, and prompt attention, such as that of the below, will tone the scalp, cleanse the vessels and tissues, and stimulate the growth of new hair.

Hair health depends upon a clean, sound scalp, the nerves of which are open, the blood active and the blood circulation in correct condition. It is to reason that if the scalp (which contains the follicles producing machinery) is in order, the hair will be good.
