"Stella Maris."
 Sentiment, one of the characters says, is everything in life. Without it no heroic action would ever be performed, no self-sacrifice shown; everything would be just miserable. Mr. Locke can certainly not be accused of losing sight of this most pleasing human attribute. Stella Maris, with her delicate thoughts and fancies, is thoroughly charming. Risca and Herrold are both quite captivating. The story as a whole is well worthy to rank with Locke's best and most successful novels. Special Colonial Editions—paper, 50c.; cloth, 75c.

CHAPTER IV.

"Two days," she replied, as she smoothed the pillow and sheets of rough linen, and laid her cool hand on his brow. "Yes, you are better now; the fever has left you; you will be well soon."

"Oh, yes," he said. "I'll get up and cease bothering you. I must have been a terrible nuisance! Two days! I didn't think I was so much knocked about as that!"

"Some—most—men would have been killed," she said, in a low voice; "but you are one of the strong ones, sir. I think you could take some broth now, Mr. Tempest."

"Thank you," he said; "you know my name—oh, I forgot, I told your niece."

She nodded. "And if you hadn't I should have known it. You have mentioned it often and often in your delirium. You are the nephew of Squire Vale, sir?"

"Yes," said Vane; "I was going there, as I told you. I hope you haven't taken the trouble to send word to him, for he did not expect me."

"No," she said; "I did not." She paused a moment. "You wonder at that? I had my reasons for not doing so."

"Reasons?" said Vane. She nodded, her eyes fixed on him.

"Yes; you are here by accident, Mr. Tempest; but for your fall and injury you would not have found this cottage. No one, no traveller or tourist, comes this way, for it is right off the beaten track, and the road to it leads to no other place. We live in seclusion and quite out of the world, even the little world of this wild coast, and we live thus by choice and necessity. We have no desire to mix with other people. If I had sent to the Hall some one would have come from there, and the place—we would get known and talked about—"

She paused, still looking fixedly at him. Vane nodded. "I understand," he said. "Of course, I can see—he hesitated—"that you are not what you seem to be."

Her lips closed tightly. "We are just a plain fisher folk, sir," she said.

Vane did not press the point. "Very well," he said, earnestly. "At any rate, I know what you mean—what you want me to do."

She looked at him inquiringly, waiting. "And when I leave here, which I will do the first moment I can, I will forget that I have ever been here, or seen the place or you. I will tell no one."

An expression of satisfaction came into her eyes. "Yes," she said, as if accepting his promise with perfect confidence. "That will be better. I can trust you. You are a gentleman."

"I hope so," said Vane, with a faint smile. "I am as much a gentleman as you are a lady."

"I am a plain fisherwoman," she said, gravely. "But you must not talk any more. I will bring you some broth directly. I am afraid you are not so very comfortable."

Vane made haste to assure her

Quality, flavour, and perfect cooking, combined. The maximum of nourishment and palatability. Just heat—then serve minimum trouble and cost.

that he had never been more comfortable in his life, but she looked round the small room and shook her head as she left him.

She brought him some broth in a little while, and Vane felt decidedly better after it, and fell into a sleep that lasted some hours. When he awoke he knew that he was on the road to complete recovery, and enjoyed a second cup of broth with a thick slice of home-made bread which his nurse brought him.

"I think I could get up," he said. "To-morrow," she responded, with a faint smile at his impatience. "Is there anything you would wish me to do—any message you would like sent?"

"No," said Vane, thanking her. "As I said, my uncle does not expect me, and it doesn't matter if I arrive at the Hall a day or two later than I thought to do."

Then he remembered to ask after the young girl.

"I hope your niece is none the worse for the storm and the excitement," he said.

She smiled and shook her head. "She is used to storms and not apt to get excited," she replied. "We who live on this rough coast are accustomed to dangers both by sea and land."

"I can easily believe that," remarked Vane. "I had no idea such wild places existed in England. My adventures would not read badly in an old-fashioned novel of the wreck and smugger type."

She said nothing in response to this, but left him, and Vane turned over on his side and gave himself up to speculating on the identity and history of these two strange women.

She had called herself a plain fisherwoman, but Vane knew that no fisher-folk spoke as she spoke, or possessed her manners. What was their reason for living in this wild secluded spot, and why did they keep the door of their cottage barred and locked, as if it were a fortress or a prison?

"I should like to see them," he mused, with a smile. "What a picture he would make of the girl with her deep, flashing eyes and black hair. However, he never will see them, for I've promised to hold my tongue about them and the place."

He fell asleep and dreamed all kinds of absurd dreams, in which the cottage, the bridge, and the two solitary women figured grotesquely.

When he woke in the morning the sun was streaming through the narrow window of his tiny bedroom, and he was delighted to find that he was able to get out of bed. He dressed himself, but slowly, for he still felt weak, and, as he would have put it, "wobbly;" and while he was doing so, he saw that there was a second door to his room. It was a low one, made of thick planks, and fastened with a big padlock. At the same time he noticed, not for the first time, a peculiar smell which was like a mixture of tobacco and spirits.

Having dressed himself, he knocked at the door of the adjoining room, and getting no answer, passed in.

There was no one in the room. A kettle was simmering on the fire, and a basin of milk, set to "cream," stood beside it. The cloth was laid for breakfast, and the whole had a pleasant look of rough comfort. The door was locked, so that he was virtually a prisoner. This amused him, and he sat down to wait for the appearance of one of the women. After a minute or two he heard the key turn, and the elder woman entered. She had some fish in her hand, and smiled at him gravely.

One in a Thousand, BUT TRUE TO THE LAST

CHAPTER XXVIII.

"Oh, Adrian!" I say, reproachfully as I comprehend his meaning; then I draw myself away, and try to push him from me, for I am terribly hurt.

It is a different sort of pain from that which has been consuming me so long; but the sting is sharper and infinitely more bitter. Although I have felt the same pang once before, that time when Adrian said, jokingly—no, not jokingly, but in real earnest—that Col. Cardyion would be so very disappointed to find me out when he called, the keen agony strikes deep into the very lowest recesses of my heart.

I think he sees how cruelly hurt I am; for he accepts my push meekly, and sits on the edge of the bed, looking thoughtfully into the fire, one hand pulling at his mustache, the other lying just as I dropped it. I lie watching him, with sad eyes, my sting, my one love. I cannot let him go again, no matter how he has wronged me, no matter how he has pained me. And there is another thing—I am not going to let her grace the duchess of Ideminstre who is to be think any longer that he is her slave, separated from me because of his passion for her, so I put my hand softly, almost timidly, into his half-closed one, and draw it back to me.

"Never mind," I say, bravely; "we will not say any more about it, and we will not think any more about it, which is infinitely more to the purpose."

But Adrian does not answer for ever so long—he only keeps his face hidden against my arm. I have a kind of feeling that he is crying, and I am sure I hope he is not; I shall be so horribly inclined to laugh; and I want all these heroes over and done with, for I am not very strong, and I am so tired.

"Adrian," I say, gently. "Don't scold me, baby," he says humbly.

"But I want to tell you something," I answer; "and I wish you would sit up, for you are very heavy." Whereupon, reluctantly, and with a vexed sigh, he does my bidding. "Do you know that you have never once looked at my baby?" I remark.

"Your baby!" he laughs. I am glad he is his old, laughing self once more; it pains me so to see him humiliated and generally at a disadvantage. "Well, of all the cool audacity I ever heard of, that's about the greatest!"

"Oh, well, your baby," I say; "our baby, if you like it better!" "Infinitely," he answers.

"Well, you haven't taken any notice of him."

"Haven't I? Well, no, poor, little beggar; you see, his mother's of so much more importance and value."

"Won't you look at him?" I say, fretfully.

"Yes, my darling, of course." Then, after a long pause: "Isn't he uncommonly small?"

Ladies of Culture and Refinement Use Salvia Hair Tonic. It Makes the Hair Beautiful.

At last a remedy has been discovered that will positively destroy the pest Dandruff. That Dandruff is caused by germs is accepted by every sensible person. Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. SALVIA will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in ten days, or money back.

The manufacturer guarantees it. It will grow hair, stop itching scalp, falling hair, and make the hair thick and abundant. It prevents hair from turning gray, and adds life and lustre.

SALVIA is a hair dressing that has become the favorite with women of taste and culture, who know the social value of beautiful hair. A large, generous bottle costs only 50c. at leading druggists everywhere. The word "SALVIA," is on every bottle. McMURDO & CO., Wholesale Agents.

"Nurse says he is the finest child she ever saw!" I cry, indignantly. "But what can one expect you to know about babies?"

"Exactly," he says, easily; "I should think just about as much as you do."

At this moment "daddy" comes in quietly.

"Nurse is raving like a lunatic at the foot of the stairs, and Lane is keeping, guard half way up, like a dragon, so you'd better come down with me, young man!"

"Good girl!" says Adrian, coolly. "She knew what a battle I was likely to have up here."

I am amused to see that he is not in the smallest degree abashed by the awkwardness of having just terminated a five months' separation.

"Seriously, though," says my father, "it is time for you to be turned out; so come along."

When my father has left the room, and Adrian has reached the door, I call him back.

"Well, what do you want?" he says, nothing loath to remain. I draw his head down to mine and kiss him.

"Darling," I say, softly, "we will never have any row again."

"No; I think you've done pretty well in that way; not but what it perhaps isn't such a bad plan to condense them all into one lump, and not spread them over a long course of years in the shape of nagging."

"Are you coming back to-night?" I say, wistfully; for, though I have kept him at bay so long, I am terribly greedy of his society now.

"Of course, if that old goddess downstairs doesn't barricade the door, which is not at all improbable."

I laugh at the idea, and at last he sees away. Now, surely, I am quite happy!

The Home Dressmaker should keep a Catalogue Scrap Book of our Pattern Cuts. These will be found very useful to refer to from time to time.

9672-9671.—A NEAT AND BECOMING HOME OR AFTERNOON DRESS.

Ladies' Dress with or without Chemise, with Long or Shorter Sleeve, and with Raised or Normal Waistline.

White linen, with blue ratine for trimming and buttons and loops for decoration is here shown. The design is unique in its shaping, and will lend itself equally well for development in gingham, chambray, linene, eponge, serge, voile, or silk. The Chemise may be omitted. The skirt has a slightly raised waistline, but may be finished at normal waistline if preferred. Ladies' Waist Pattern, 9672, and Ladies' Skirt Pattern, 9671, supply the models. The waist is cut in 5 sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches bust measure. The Skirt in 5 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches waist measure. It requires 6 3/8 yards of 44 inch material for a 26-inch size.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

9664-9665.—A MOST ATTRACTIVE GOWN FOR HOME OR CALLING.

Ladies' Waist Pattern, 9664, and Ladies' Skirt Pattern, 9665, combine to make this pretty effect. The left side of waist and skirt are draped beneath deep hemmed portions. The sleeve may be in "bell" shape or in wrist length. The Waist Pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches bust measure. The Skirt in 5 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, and 30 inches waist measure. It requires 6 yards of 44 inch material for a Medium size. An Operation For Appendicitis

Was Ordered by His Doctor, But Complete Cure Was Effected by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Almost anyone who has suffered from appendicitis will assure you that this trouble developed only after months or years of derangements of the liver and bowels. Appendicitis can almost invariably be prevented, and very frequently cured, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In the case described in this letter the doctors had ordered an operation, but a thorough cure was brought about by this great medicine. Mrs. J. A. Ballantyne, Sturgeon Falls, Ont., writes: "My husband was treated for appendicitis, and the doctors ordered an operation. But he would not consent to an operation and began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Since doing so, he has had no need of an operation, or even of a doctor, as the trouble has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

How Are We Illogical.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

The facility with which the average mortal blames others for his own mistakes and failures is very wonderful to contemplate.

But not any more wonderful than the avidity with which the same mortal accepts credit and praise for his own successes and triumphs, no matter how large a share other people and fate may have had in bringing them about.

I have a friend who is an inveterate match-maker.

Not long ago one of the matches at which she assisted resulted in a miserable divorce suit and we all wondered if she blamed herself for the unhappy outcome. Not at all. "I can't tell you how sorry I am for poor Margaret and for Roger, too," she assured me. "I wish I had never thrown them together, but of course I don't blame myself to make such a mess of it. Margaret has been very cool to me ever since they began to have trouble with each other, but I'm sure I don't see why she should be. If she didn't know that Roger wasn't the right man for her, she certainly couldn't expect me to."

Perhaps you will agree with the unfortunate match-maker and think she could not be blamed for her failure. So should I if it were not for this—she won't take blame for the failure of her efforts but she will take credit for their success. Another couple whom she pushes into matrimony have been conspicuously happy, and instead of admitting it was just a happy chance she is always congratulating herself on her foresight in selecting these two for each other, or complaining because the wife has not shown sufficient gratitude.

"It's a pleasure to see anyone as happy as Eva and her husband," she says. "I must say I'm proud of that match. I said from the very first day I saw them together that they were just the ones for each other, and I can't tell you all I did to bring it about. Eva admitted at the time that she would never have married him if it hadn't been for me, but she seems to have forgotten all about that now."

Again you may say that you think the match-maker deserves gratitude for bringing about a happy match, and again I admit she does, if only she will accept blame for the unhappy ones.

But if she will not accept blame for guessing wrong the first time, she ought to ask praise for guessing right the second time.

If we are going to set up an abstract fate on which we can blame all our mistakes, logic forces us to give it the credit when we guess right.

But the human race is notoriously illogical and, as I said before, the facility with which we shift the blame for our mistakes is only equaled by the avidity with which we demand the credit for our successes.

Fashions and Fads.

Very popular is the normal waist line, with the broad sash, which suggests the upper line of a high attachment.

To outline the natural lines of the head, special attention is paid to bangs. They are jeweled and beaded.

The vest effect must be a feature of the new neckwear. It has been accepted by fashion as a touch worth while.

For the somewhat stout figure a fashionable and becoming trimming is the long line of little bows from waist to hem.

Gowns of white voile and lace are noticeable among the pretty new costumes. They frequently have tunics of embroidered voiles in colored flower effects.

The women of small income would do well to remember that white dresses are usually a good investment. They will stand numerous cleanings, and are not conspicuous.

Maline is more used than ever, and there is scarcely a gown without the pleated frills or ruffles of this sort material.

The dividing line between tunic and skirt drapery is so dim that one can scarce distinguish the one from the other.

Sashes finished with large looped bows of black tulle are worn. They give a very smart finish to a coatless costume.

Fashionable lines aim to preserve the natural figure, and many women will abandon the corset for the unboned giraffe.

The trotter-hat holds a place of great importance in the wardrobe of the Parisienne. It should be close fitting and chic.

A craze of the moment is the little coat made of figured chiffon or chiffon brocade, lined with the thinnest Jap silk.

The jabot is never worn by smartly gowned women. The frill worn with the coat has effectively supplanted the jabot.

The Medici effect will be found on evening wraps this winter. This is produced by a simple upstanding ruche of net or lace.

Sleeves of the newest wraps may be the magyar shape, or else mere silts in the side, through which the arms may be pushed.

Slippers which finish most completely, the dainty negligé outfit are made of brocade ribbon and trimmed with three small roses.

Coats of lightest and most transparent materials have collars and bands of fur—shunk, broadtail and ermine being mostly used.

Your Duty.

Nothing to do with the Custom House, good friend. Its only reference just now is to yourself. Let us suppose that you are a man of family with sufficient of the world's goods to keep them in comfort. Very well, you did not reach this satisfactory state of affairs without care and labour—few men do. Suppose you are awakened some night with shouts of alarm ringing in your ears. Too late to talk of prodigies; too late then to say, "If I had only, etc., etc." "That 'if' means too much to many forgetful people. Is it not always the duty of a self-respecting citizen to protect his home and thus provide for those within it. Is it any more than his duty to those depending on him to protect them as far as possible? Can you sell your property your own when it is not insured? The answer to this argument is to carry insurance with Percie Johnson's agency, the the most popular office in Newfoundland and the least expensive.

He Finally Got Warm.

A Writer's Indoor Experience on a Cold Night in Bordeaux.

What beautiful sunshine we had at Bordeaux, and how nice and warm it was in the daytime! As long as the sun kept out it was lovely; but, oh, when the sun went down!

They gave me a beautiful, large, lofty room at the hotel with doors and windows all over it. After dinner I went up to try to write, and then I found that Siberia had come again. I put great logs of wood upon the fire and blew them with the bellows till the flames roared up the chimney, but still I shivered in the icy blast that blew through every crack. I put on my slippers, I dragged the blankets from the bed, I ran races around the room and practised the Indian clubs with a heavy portmanteau in each hand, but still I felt my blood congealing, and the horrors of the early morning came back again.

In this dilemma my companion's Sudan experiences stood us in good stead. He was with Gordon in the expedition of 1874. He took our walking sticks and umbrellas, and with these and the blankets and the rugs he rigged up a nice, comfortable tent in front of the hotel. And George R. Sims in 'Dagueret Abroad'.

Minimize The Loss.

Practically farmers may easily minimize the loss due to backward and cold seasons, by the judicious use of Sulphate of Ammonia as a fertilizer.

Sulphate of Ammonia contains over 20 per cent of nitrogen, as against 15 per cent in Nitrate of Soda, and is therefore more than 35 per cent better than nitrate of soda, as a means of quickening and increasing the growth of crops.

The use of Sulphate of Ammonia has increased enormously of late years and it is recognized to be the most valuable fertilizer obtainable. By its judicious use the production of root crops, etc., may be doubled, and the growth of late crops stimulated.

We invite the attention of Farmers to our special pamphlet on the best methods of using Sulphate, copies of which will be forwarded free to any address on application.

The price of Sulphate is moderate, and our terms are accommodating.

The Love of God.

God's boundless love and arching sky Above us when we awake or sleep Above us when we smile or weep Above us when we live or die.

God's tireless love! Beside the cot Of her sick child the mother sleeps; The heavenly Father ever keeps Ur-weary watch—He slumbers not.

God's patient love! Misunderstood By hearts that suffer in the night, Doubtful—yet waiting till heaven's light Shall show how all things work for good.

God's mighty love! On Cavalry's height, Suffering to save us from sin, To bring the heavenly kingdom in, And fill our lives with joy and light.

God's changeless love! The wandering one Forsakes, forgets, dishonors; yet Repenting, going home is met With no reproach—"Welcome, my son!"

God's endless love! What will it be When earthly shadows flee away, For all eternity's bright day, The unfolding of that love to see.

The Fly on the Pane.

It Will Crawl to the Top, But Will Fly Back to the Bottom.

A fly on a window pane will crawl to the top, fly back to the bottom and crawl up again. This order is seldom reversed—why no one knows. It is on record that a fly crawled up a window pane thirty-two times, returning each time a-wing.

Hens scratch for food with the sun behind them, the reason being that the rays reflect on the minute particles. A blind hen will pick grain and not miss a kernel.

Cats seldom lie with their feet to the fire. Usually they lie on the left side. Dogs lie with their fore paws to the fire.

A promise will ignore a food supply sufficient for a meal and run great risks to nibble at a wholesale supply. It will hide at the source of food supply and not depart therefrom until actually disturbed. It isn't true that a mouse runs to its hole at the first alarm.

Find a harmless little snake the length of a lead pencil and provide a box for it in the house, visit it daily and at the end of three months it will crawl to you for food.

Goldfish usually swim around a globe to the right. They can be taught to take a fly out of the hand in six weeks' time. The presence of other fish in the globe is generally ignored by goldfish. Drop a piece of chip on the surface of the water and it will frighten a fish.

Sheep spend more time grazing than do cattle and horses. Sheep will eat for twelve hours out of twenty-four.—New York World.

Swallowing the Vomit.

We publish to-day a letter, signed More Anon. The writer takes up the subject on the issues raised in the Daily News and Evening Herald, and handles the matter without gloves. The most significant feature of the discussion is that it began in the Daily News by the publication in a letter of a false report of what had been said by Mr. Coaker at Change Islands, the substance which contained the false statement that Sir Robert Bond and Mr. Coaker had agreed to the establishment of non-sectarian schools. That any such agreement either existed or even that any discussion had taken place on such a matter with a view to the overturning of our present denominational system is absolutely untrue. It is a statement fabricated out of wholesale falsehoods. There is no such agreement, nor has there even been any negotiations with the object of effecting such an agreement.

Our correspondent takes up the taunt of "swallowing vomit" and turns it most effectively. He takes up the notorious doings of the Hon. Donald Morrison and applies the taunt to him. The Morris-Morrison combination will be sorry before the discussion is over that they ever ventured to raise a sectarian cry against the Opposition.

This morning the Daily News announces that Mr. R. A. Squires left for his district by yesterday's express. This will be taken to mean that Mr. Squires has left on a political canvass. About this time of the year Mr. Squires usually takes a motor cycle trip through his district, and has been for the past few summers accompanied by Mr. S. Churchill, an official of the Board of Works, who has been given holidays and thus enabled to accompany Mr. Squires on these district visits. We would like to know if Mr. Samuel Churchill is to be given another holiday this summer, and whether he is to accompany Mr. Squires through his district this election year. It must have been of great advantage to Mr. Squires to have an official of the board of Works to con-

JAMES WATT died 1819, aged 82. Scottish engineer and generally reputed inventor of the steam engine. He was also an ardent chemist and it was long maintained that he discovered the composition of water.

MICHAEL PARADAY died 1867, aged 76. English chemist, electrician and natural philosopher. After his famous discovery of magneto-electric induction in 1831, almost every year for 15 years saw some discovery in connection with magnetism and electricity.

BRET HARTE born 1823. American novelist and humorist who owed his success to his command of humor and quiet pathos and his power of vivid description of the rough and picturesque life of the settler and the miner.

DAVID HUME died 1776, aged 65. Scottish philosopher and historian. Wrote the important "Treatise of Human Nature" and many essays, Moral, Political and Literary. He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more excellent who can suit his temper to any circumstances. —HUME.

Courageous Duellist.

M. Colombey, in his history of duelling, tells an anecdote of a certain noted duellist of his time. One day this man, M. B., was at Desenne's shooting gallery watching the pistol practice. There was one man who was shooting very well, and Desenne was threatened with the loss of all his glass balls and swinging dolls.

Every shot was greeted by the spectators with exclamations of admiration. B. looked on for a while, and finally, in a calm voice, made the remark: "He could not do as well on the field."

The object of the slighting remark turned around, and, in a loud and angry tone, cried: "Who are you to say that? Would you like to test the truth of your remark?"

"Willingly," replied the unrecognized duellist, as he led the way out to a secluded place.

After taking their respective positions, they drew lots, and it fell to B. to shoot last. He waited in silence for his adversary's shot. The man fired—and missed. B. lowered his pistol.

"What did I tell you?" he said, with a smile.

Then, putting his pistol in his pocket, he walked away whistling.

Strange Malady.

Miss Alice Geiser, of Liberty Place, Weehawken, N.J., is the victim of a strange malady said to be without parallel in medical annals. She cannot keep awake unless she stands up. Sitting or lying down she becomes unconscious. It is not the so-called sleeping sickness of Africa, which lasts less than two weeks. Miss Geiser has been afflicted for two years. Although she has been under constant medical treatment for two years, no headway has been made towards a cure. Miss Geiser, in all other respects, is a normal, healthy young woman.

The Potato.

Whoever may have introduced the potato into England, according to Dr. Doran's "Table Traits," it was not known in North America in 1696, when Raleigh's colonists there are said to have sent it over to us. But the Spanish "batata," or sweet potato, from which the vegetable derives its name, was brought to Ireland many years before by Captain Hawkins from Santa Fe, in South America. This is probably the potato of Shakespeare's time. "Let the sky rain potatoes. I will remain here!" cries Sir John Falstaff, embracing Mrs. Ford—London Telegraph.

Poultry Made to Grow

With Astonishing Rapidity by Electric Stimulus.—Reports of Remarkable Experiments in England.

London August 20.—A long succession of ingenious experiments have been privately made in the effect of electricity upon the growth, both of plants and animals, and, according to the London Daily Mail, yesterday, it is now possible to say with some approach of confidence that startling results have been reached in one direction. Beyond all question young poultry respond to electric stimulus applied in a particular way with astounding rapidity. They surpass the best on record in the speed of growth at this time of year and they keep their health in crowded conditions.

In the South of England on the biggest poultry farm in the world an experiment of the nature has just been completed. Of eight hundred chickens in two equal groups, 400 were matured on the intensive system, that is, in flats almost trays, one above the other. One group of 400 was treated by the electric system, and so charged were the chickens with electricity that the shock could be distinctly felt if the finger was put to the back of the chicken. The chickens in this group grew to a remarkable size, that is as petits poussins in five weeks, and of the 400 only six, and of those weaklings in the beginning, died off.

Of the other 400, nearly one half died, it being late in the year for healthy growth and the survivors took three months to reach a marketable size. This experiment was followed by other experiments in which similar, though not so striking, results were obtained. Trials on a yet larger scale are being prepared and there is at any rate reasonable hopes that an instrument of real value in the intensive production of food has been found.

New York Pastor Weds in Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 12.—One of the bridegrooms at a double wedding at Trinity Methodist Church this morning was Rev. William Sinclair, B.A., B.D., pastor of the Gould Memorial Church, Roxbury, N.Y.

Mr. Sinclair's marriage is of special interest and significance. He is the first American citizen to marry in Ontario under the new law which ordains that Americans coming to Ontario with matrimonial intentions must publish an announcement of marriage in Ontario papers three weeks before the ceremony takes place. As soon as the announcement of his marriage appeared Mr. Sinclair said he was pestered by Toronto marriage license vendors.

The Silent With a Story.

"Old John Bates, an upholsterer," so the story began, "was renowned for his silence. People who had been his customers for a generation had, many of them, never heard a word from him except 'Good morning. Five dollars. Thank you. Good day.' Old John, in fact, cultivated silence as a genius cultivates his art.

"A patron one day said to John: "What's the best kind of mattress?"

"Hair," was the reply.

"The patron some twenty years later, had occasion to buy another mattress, and again he asked:—"What's the best kind, John?"

"Cotton,"

"Cotton!" the patron cried. "Why, you told me twenty years ago that hair was the best!"

"The old man gave a quaint sigh. "Talking has always been my ruin," he said."

Visitation of the Bishop of Newfoundland. Diary of the Rev. H. Leggo, the Bishop's Chaplain.

FIFTH INSTALLMENT.
(Concluded.)

We left Harbor Grace by the early train on the morning of the 20th for Broad Cove, the nearest approach to New Harbor. Two carriages were awaiting our arrival, so we immediately drove to the Parsonage at New Harbor. We met the Rev. T. W. and Mrs. Upward, who were expecting us, flags were flying and this pretty little harbor looked very gay. We saw for the first time the new line of railway which is to connect with Heart's Content. The New Harbor station will do duty for the above named place and Dildo as well, the Broad Cove branch will then probably be done away with. It has served its day, and like many more things in this world must give way to more modern and up-to-date contrivances. But to get back to the main line, we had dinner at the Parsonage and shortly afterwards the Bishop, Rev. T. W. Upward and the Chaplain drove to Green's Harbor. We all enjoyed the drive although the road is by no means "good." The Confirmation service was witnessed by a large congregation and the people from the adjoining places helped to fill the church. Service over we drove back to New Harbor, and had tea with Mr. Fred Woodman and family. In the evening the Confirmation service was held in the church at headquarters, concluding the work for to-day. As Old Shop and Norman's Cove are some distance from New Harbor, Mr. Fred Woodman placed his motor boat and two men at the service of the Bishop and accordingly we started for the above places. The graveyard at Old Shop was consecrated after a short service had been held in the small school-chapel, which has done duty for many years as school and church, but it is worn out and soon will be replaced by a larger and more up-to-date building. As soon as the service was over the Bishop, Rev. T. W. Upward and Chaplain started for Norman's Cove, the distance is short and the sea was smooth, so we soon were there. Mr. Robert Smith provided dinner and we were all quite ready for it. The service of Confirmation was held in the afternoon, at the conclusion of which we returned by schooner to New Harbor, Mr. Robt. Smith had recently returned from the Labrador with a very fair catch. This had been landed and the schooner anchored in the cove. A crew consisting mostly of his own sons got the vessel under way, and with a fair wind we very soon found ourselves in Dildo Cove. Mr. Smith returned to Norman's Cove with a fair wind, while we walked to New Harbor, and remained for the night at the Parsonage. The following morning we all started, some on foot and others by carriage for Blake town, the last place to be visited. Here in the school-chapel the Bishop held the Confirmation service. In his address he urged the people to start at once to do what they could to erect a small church more suitable for service than the present school-chapel. We wished the people good-bye and drove to Whitbourne, went to the Parsonage had tea with Mr. and Mrs. Cragg who were surrounded by many laughing joyous grandchildren, and then left by train for St. John's. Canon Bolt joined the Bishop at Kelligrews, and we arrived at St. John's on time, thus bringing to a successful conclusion the Visitation Voyage of 1913.

Before we finish our story, it is only right to say that along the whole shore, and in every place visited not only church people but many others gave the Bishop a hearty welcome for the time-being, at least, were non-apparent, and a genuine hearty welcome such as our outpost people can give, was unanimously extended to the Bishop. For the services of many of our fishermen who acted as pilots, for the very many gifts of vegetables, eggs, fish, milk, cream and butter which we received from time to time and were deeply appreciated as well as greatly enjoyed, the Bishop thanks his people. The voyage is over, and for many blessings spiritual and temporal we have thankful hearts, and in conclusion we thank the Evening Telegram for finding space from time to time to publish the story of the cruise of the Church Ship "Amazon."

H. LEGGO, Chaplain.

Death of Mr. W. H. Thompson.

The Oldest Telegrapher in Newfoundland.

Yesterday morning a message from Harbor Grace was received by R. C. Smith, Esq., Supt. Anglo-American Tel. Co., announcing the death of W. H. Thompson, J.P., the oldest telegrapher in Newfoundland, and probably in America. Mr. Thompson was the son of Dr. Thompson, and was born in Old Perlican about eighty years ago. At an early age he went to Carbonear with his family, and for some time took up a sea-faring life and upon one occasion was mate of a vessel in our mercantile marine, out of the above port. He then took up the profession of telegraph operator, and in 1858 succeeded Mr. Jacob Drysdale, an operator in Harbor Grace. In that year Mr. Thompson started a drug store, which was in the same house as the office, and during the long period between that date and to the time of his death, conducted an extensive and prosperous business. Probably no man in British North America sent forth so many operators, who were trained under his tuition, and who have held prominent positions, not alone in this country but in the United States, Canada and elsewhere. Amongst his pupils we may mention Geo. A. Nichol, Theo. Wats, W. R. Roger, G. M. Gaden, Reuben Parsons, E. P. Howell, H. F. Shortis, Jas. J. Thomey, A. A. Thompson, Jas. G. Scanlon, and a host of others. Mr. Thompson was also Vice Consul for Brazil for many years, and was agent for several Insurance Companies. Few men were held in greater confidence and higher esteem by the late A. M. Mackay, General Superintendent Anglo-American Tel. Co., than was Mr. Thompson, and justly so, because he was ever at the call of duty and thought nothing too much to perform in the interests of the Company—very often during the winter months going of himself over the road during a great snow storm to repair the wires, put out of order during the storm and sleet. Mr. Thompson was also one of the oldest members of the Masonic Order, and for several years held the honored position of D.G.M., which position is now held by his son E. B. Thompson, who was elected a short time ago. Mr. Thompson was twice married, his first wife being a Miss Davis, a descendant of the famous Davis, who with the heroic and patriotic Justice Garland, defended Carbonear Island, and sent seventy of his men over to St. John's in 1762, to assist in resisting the French in the last battle fought on Signal Hill, which resulted in the defeat of the invaders—and from that day to this no enemy has dared to invade our shores. His second wife is a daughter of the late Robt. Scott, J.P., of Fogo. Mr. Thompson has left four sons, Eugene, conducting the business at Hr. Grace, Dr. W. E., in British Columbia, Dr. Ainsley, in London, Ontario, and Master Ian, who is now at school at Musselborough, England, and one daughter Mrs. Blackwood, in the United States. Dr. E. Thompson, for half a century medical practitioner at Hermitage Cove, is a brother, and Mrs. (Rev.) Atkinson a sister of deceased. To the family, numerous relatives and friends the Telegram extends its sincere sympathy.

365 Windows in House.

The late Lord Northampton owned one of the show places of England in Compton, Wyngates, in Warwickshire, one of the finest examples of a half timbered house to be found in England. It is a splendid specimen of Tudor architecture, with battlemented towers and millioned windows, and has been preserved intact from the days of Henry VIII., whose arms appear over the gateway. No two of its chimneys are alike and there are 365 windows.

The 'Duchess' a Total Wreck.

On Saturday the Reid Co. received a message that the s.s. Duchess of Marlborough was ashore on Haasey's Rock, in the mouth of the Belle Isle Straits, and was expected to become a total wreck; the Kyle was standing by and that the passengers and crew were safe. A later message said that the ship was a total wreck and that the Kyle was returning south. The Duchess was owned by the Reid Company and was uninsured. She was in charge of Capt. S. Parsons, late chief officer of the s.s. Glencoe, and was engaged in the Lewisporte-Battle Hr. service.

C. L. B. CAMP.
The Church Lad's Brigade have come and gone again.

They were favoured with very fine weather, during nearly the whole of the time they were in camp.

The behaviour of the lads was every thing that could be desired, both when in camp and out on leave. The relationship between officers and lads were of the most kindly nature. All seemed thoroughly to enjoy the outing.

Review day passed off successfully. Lt.-Col. Rendell and Commander Atlay, of H.M.S. Calypso were present; several St. John's visitors were also on the field. The lads of the Brigade acquitted themselves splendidly in the various military exercises through which they were put.

On Thursday were the Sports. A stimulus was given to the various contestants by the prizes offered to the successful ones.

At the request of Camp Commander Winter, about 9.15 p.m., the prizes were given to the winners by Rev. T. G. Netten (acting) Battalion Camp Chaplain, the other officers being also present. An open air concert was held after this, for the entertainment of the lads, the bright moon looking down approvingly upon the pleasant scene. The singing of the National Anthem brought a very enjoyable time to close.

The camp broke up yesterday, the Brigade accompanied by their officers leaving for the city about 3 p.m., taking with them the good-will of many well-wishers in Topsail.

Surgical Oderation On Trees.

There is hardly a wood of any size which does not have several of its trees mere shells of bark, the heart of the trunk having been eaten away by the spread of dry rot. Outwardly they appear to be perfectly sound, but sooner or later a higher wind than usual will bring them crashing down, perhaps endangering human life, and almost certainly seriously damaging the sound trees by which they are surrounded. Now, however, a method has been discovered of preventing the spread of the dry rot fungi, and by its use affected trees may be rendered once more sound and healthy. The procedure is almost exactly similar to that followed by dentists in the case of a decaying tooth.

First the decayed wood is carefully removed, and the resulting cavity entirely cleared of all foreign substances. The holes which have to be gouged out are bacteriologically cleaned by corrosive sublimate, and the walls of the cavity water-proofed to protect the wood. If necessary, the cavity is braced with steel ribs or truss rods. The hole is now ready for filling in, and it is plastered up with cement, care being taken that the filling is kept under the edge of the bark at every point, so as to allow the bark to heal over the cement. When this last stage has been accomplished the tree is as sound and healthy as ever, and shows no sign of the treatment to which it has been subjected.

Bayonets For Fire Rangers.

Army bayonets now form part of the emergency telephone outfit of forest rangers, used chiefly in fighting fires. This emergency line consists of small instruments and a coil of fine copper wire. The wire is attached to the nearest telephone line, the bayonet is thrust into moist ground at the other end, and with the circuit thus completed, the ranger can talk with headquarters, report his position and summon fire fighters if necessary.

The Fellow That Makes Us Laugh.

We crown the great artists with laurels.
And sing to them psalms of praise;
We banquet the makers of cities,
And lift them to fame in our lays.
But I want to pay one little tribute—
Less gaudy than earnest by half—
And I want to send my wreath of roses
To the fellow that makes us laugh!

You know how it is who have labored.
And worried and fretted, all day.
To meet with, in person or paper,
The fellow who laughs it away.
Who takes us when least we expect it
And turns us from sorrow to cheer,
With a twist of his thoughts that's so funny,
Our troubles at once disappear.

I tell you, he's worth all the ages
Can give him of praise and of love
Who has helped us to look out of trouble
To the peace of the blue skies above,
And to feel that no matter what happens
We'll do all we can to go on
With our hope and our faith on the promise
Of a better day surely to dawn.

He may not put pence in our purses,
Nor help us grow wealthy and grand,
But he teaches us all our reverses
Are lessons to help us to stand
In the face of the blight and the battle
And go forth again to the fray
With a spirit of sunshine and laughter
That will chase every trouble away

Oh, here's to the king and the captain,
And here's to the soldier in line;
And here's to the man in the paper—
I think I can see his eyes shine—
The actor, the artist, the genius,
Whoever he is, with his chaff—
I want to send my wreath of roses
To the fellow that makes us laugh!

Turf Records Go.

Drawing a coach and load weighing four thousand pounds, four horses trotted a mile in 3 minutes 11½ seconds at Empire City Park, New York, recently, breaking the record of 3 minutes 14½ seconds made three years ago. The performance took place at the horse show held in connection with the Greater New York Fair.

Two teams started in the four-hand race, but the one entered by B.
F. S. Gregory and driven by "Jack"
Kehee, left Emil Seelie's bay team far in the rear. The four horses composing the winning team were Tom Mountain and Volunteer, in the wheel, and Billy McGregor and Bobby Burns in the lead. All are docked trotters of the heavy harness type.
They lost a little ground on two occasions when Volunteer and then Tom Mountain broke. The gray horse threw a shoe and the bay struck his quarters. It is said that they will be taken to England and pitted against the fastest teams there.

His Interesting Epitaph.

In a cemetery at Waterford, Erie County, Pa., is a stone with an interesting epitaph. The stone has lain flat on the ground and was broken in pieces, but the D. A. R. had it patched up and placed on a concrete base, where it is now an object of great interest to visitors. The inscription reads: "Michael Hare,
Born in Armagh County, Ireland,
June 10th, 1772. Was in the French
War and at Braddock's defeat. Served through the Revolutionary War.
Was with St. Clair and was scalped at his defeat by the Indians. Died
May 3, 1843, aged 115 years, 8 months and 22 days. Elizabeth, his wife, died April 10, 1843, aged 90 years."

New Use For Marbles.

A clever woman has solved the problem of how to prevent her boy from leaving marbles on the floor for the unwary to step on. She confiscates them and for some time has used marbles to keep her fruit from burning during the canning season, and she says the plan works admirably. She washes half a dozen large marbles and drops them into the kettle when the fruit begins to boil.
The bubbles rising at the bottom of the kettle keep the marbles moving over the surface in such a manner that the fruit does not touch the bottom long enough to be burned.

VANCOUVER, To-day.

Two of the largest mine owners in Vancouver Island have decided to close down their mines for an indefinite period as a result of the coal strike. The threat has now been put into effect. The pumps have been set at work. Originally the intention was to extinguish the fire, but now it is found that the water will not reach the flames. It will, however, have the effect of rendering the mine air tight, acting thus as a preventive against any further tampering with mine property. The Western Fuel Company Provincial Mine Inspector Graham states it will be two years before the mine can be started again. The trial of the prisoners arrested during the strike opens to-day.

LOS ANGELES, To-day.

John J. Bull, a young cowboy heavyweight pugilist, died in hospital here from injuries received in Vernon arena on Saturday night when he was knocked out by Jess Willard. Immediately after his death, warrants charging manslaughter were issued against Willard and eleven others connected with fight. While clergy-men, legislators and club women revived the demand for an anti prize fight bill in California.

SHERBROOKE, To-day.

Harry K. Thaw is reconciled with Canadian lawyers as to procedure to be followed. On Wednesday he will be arraigned in the Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus. He spent a restless Sunday in Sherbrooke. He announced last night no matter if William Travers Jerome did take charge of the New York State case, he, Thaw, was not fearful of the outcome. I faced death in the chair twice, said Thaw, why should I worry about going back to Martineau? Thaw's lawyers headed by J. N. Greenfields, K.C., brought about a truce in the breach that for a time threatened by agreeing to let Thaw manage the publicity end of his case. To Thaw this end will become predominant. He has been told that he is likely to be deported to Vermont after the immigration authorities take him into custody and he made requests for a list of leading newspapers of that State. The Morris Benefit

At Rossley's Theatre, on Tuesday night, August 26th, there will be a splendid programme arranged for the benefit of Mr. Morris, who for a long time has not been able to work, and there will be a good show given. Jack Rossley will do several kinds of clog dancing, etc., and Mr. Baird, Mr. W. D. Watson and several others will take part. Mrs. Rossley has had her pantomime pupils in training for some time and they will present a new song and dance which will come as a surprise to the public and will speak louder than words of the time and patience bestowed on the tiny tots. They will also appear in the beautiful Fairy Dance that was the talk of the town round Christmas time. The McDonald sisters whose name was overlooked will also appear, and as this benefit is for a sick fellow citizen, it is to be hoped it will be as successful as the others.

CAPE RACE, To-day.

Much has been written on the relations between weather and disease, and in medical literature there is no lack of carefully-drawn curves showing the varying prevalence of particular diseases; the rise and fall of mortality, etc., side by side with others indicating the march of one or more of the meteorological elements. There is, however, one phase of this subject that has been strikingly neglected. Many human beings are notoriously sensitive not merely to the weather of to-day, but also to the weather of to-morrow. Asthmatic, rheumatic, and neurgetic patients need no barometer or weather map to tell them when bad weather is approaching. Old wounds give trouble at such a time, and members long since amputated reassert their power to cause pain. These phenomena are so well known that it would be sheer fatuity in any scientific man to deny them, merely because he cannot understand them; yet strangely enough, they have been the subject of very little systematic investigation. A special case under this general head is the extreme sensitiveness of some persons to the approach of thunder storms. The meteorological condition experienced by such persons before a thunder storm must not be confused with ordinary dread of thunder and lightning. In fact, this condition often begins on before there are any ordinary indications of the storm's approach, and the symptoms commonly subside before the storm is over.

Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 17.—Chas. McDonald and Jack Arnold began a mile swimming race in the Saskatchewan this afternoon. Arnold, 31, gave McDonald two minutes handicap and had scarcely started in when McDonald, two hundred yards away, sank and was drowned less than 20 yards from the shore, which was lined by a big crowd. Beyond attempting to catch a lurch in midstream, no effort was made to save the man, whose difficulty was apparent. No boat followed the swimmers and the tauter from which the man dived was stalled. Victim Drowns in View of Yacht Crowd

Prince Albert, Sask., Aug. 17.—Chas. McDonald and Jack Arnold began a mile swimming race in the Saskatchewan this afternoon. Arnold, 31, gave McDonald two minutes handicap and had scarcely started in when McDonald, two hundred yards away, sank and was drowned less than 20 yards from the shore, which was lined by a big crowd. Beyond attempting to catch a lurch in midstream, no effort was made to save the man, whose difficulty was apparent. No boat followed the swimmers and the tauter from which the man dived was stalled. The victim was 24 years of age, and is believed to have come from Redfern, Ontario.

The Regular Monthly Meeting of the International Boot & Shoe Workers' Union, Local 482, will be held in the Mechanic's Hall on Tuesday evening, Aug. 26th, at 8 o'clock. F. W. KAVANAGH, Recorder.—ad.11

CAPE RACE, To-day.

Policeman Buffed By Prisoner.

A drunken man who was being arrested by Constable Day Saturday night on Adelaide Street, bit the officer severely in the arm. Constable Keefe, who came to give assistance, was set upon by friends of the prisoner and received a bad drubbing. Soon after "Haad" Peet, accompanied by Constables Stamp and Forsey, appeared on the scene and succeeded in rescuing three of the disturbers.

Big Ben

Don't set your mind—set Big Ben

Don't bother your head about getting up. Leave it to Big Ben. You ought to go to sleep at night with a clear brain—untroubled and free from getting up worries. You men, if you are up to date farmers, work with your brains as well as with your hands. Such a little thing as "deciding to get up at a certain time in the morning" and keeping it on your mind often spoils a needed night's rest and makes a bad "next day." Try Big Ben on your dresser for one week. He makes getting up so easy that the whole day is better. Big Ben is not the usual alarm.

He's a timekeeper; a good, all-purpose clock for every day, and all day use and for years of service.

He stands seven inches tall. He wears a coat of triple-nickel plated steel. He rings with one long loud ring for 5 minutes straight, or for 10 minutes at intervals of 30 seconds unless you shut him off.

His big, bold figures and hands are easy to read in the dim morning light, his large strong keys are easy to use. His price, $3.00, is easy to pay because his advantages are so easy to see. Big Ben is sold in St. John's by the following jewelers:

Evergreen Castro.

Old Castro bobs up merrily, and says, "I'm back, you verily! to raise old hob a g a i n! My country needs a shaking up, and here's your Castro, taking up a squad of merry men! I'll be the country's head again, I'll paint the landscape red again and make the welkin shout; I'll be the boss, as once I was, until—ah, what a dunce I was!—I let them run me out!" The nations sit up wondering, and sigh, "We have been blundering, to let this Castro loose; he should be rotting, mouldering in donjon keep, not shouldering his gun to raise the deuce!" The nations mutter "concordantly," "Now all will go discordantly; the fat is in the flame; his country jugged on cheerily," the nations mutter, droarily, "I'll Castro upon his game! Now he will knock things galley west, and every hill and valley west of any given point, and every erstwhile merry land, and every grove and prairie land, he will with blood anoint. We'll have to can this warrior or Zuela will be gorier than any butcher shop; we'll have to put the lid on him, as once his people did on him, or grief will never stop!" But jings! the world is merrier since this blamed sawed-off terror has come to life again; his gall is braced, coppery, he gives us comic opery, he and his merry men!

Cricket Worth Watching.

Mr. Gilbert Jessop, the popular Gloucestershire cricketer, is well known, of course, for his remarkable batting powers, but perhaps his greatest achievement was the score of 191 which he made when playing for the Gentlemen of the South against the Players of the South at Hastings in 1907. Mr. Jessop compiled this score in ninety minutes, and during his innings he actually scored 26 runs off one over sent down by A. E. Reil.

At Brighton, however, in 1911, Alletson, while playing for Nottingham against the home county, closely rivaled this performance. In fact, he made 189 runs in exactly the same time which Mr. Jessop took to make 191—and this despite the fact that Alletson was at the wickets for an hour before he had scored fifty runs. But for sheer hitting Mr. Hyman's achievement in 1902 is likely to remain long unbroken. Playing for Bath Association against Thornbury, Mr. Hyman actually made 359 out of the 400 runs which were scored during the hundred minutes he spent at the wickets. And at the end of that time Mr. Hyman was still not out! But this, of course, was not a first-class match.—Answers.

An Underground Vegetable Garden.

In Springfield, America, is a wonderful cave garden where mushrooms, rhubarb, and other vegetables are grown at a depth of 75 feet under by boat. For this purpose a ground. The cave can only be reached by a special boat has been built, and at the mouth of the river is a wharf where the boat can be moored when not in use.

No one believed that rhubarb, an outdoor vegetable, could be grown in the dark so many feet underground, but the rapidity of the plant's growth is remarkable. The rhubarb is in the first instance planted outside, being transplanted to the cave when the roots have had a fair start. Mushrooms are produced in the proportions of 2 lb. to a square foot in each crop, and there are three crops every year. The cave is also utilized as a storage place for all kinds of vegetables; the farmers for twenty miles around bringing their potatoes for storage there. Celery is also bleached in large quantities.

One advantage of this underground garden lies in the fact that throughout the year an even temperature is preserved, the extremes of heat and cold prevailing above ground not being felt that distance below the surface.

New Hammer Record.

New York, August 18.—By throwing the 16 pound hammer a distance of 188 feet 10 1/2 inches at Cettie Park yesterday, Patrick Ryan, of the Irish-American A.C., established a new world's record for this event. The former record, 187 feet 4 inches, was made by the Olympic champion, Matt McGrath, on the same grounds. Finnuus Kolehmainen made a new American record of 142 3/4 in winning the mile handicap run from scratch.

S. A. Citadel.

Very large congregations attended the different services at the S. A. Citadel yesterday. Major Desbrisay, Lt. Toronto, was the speaker at the 11 o'clock service, taking for her lesson the 32nd chapter of Genesis. She made a running comment on the life of Jacob; the address was one carefully thought out and exceptionally well delivered and the speaker held the undivided attention of her audience throughout.

At the 7 o'clock service Mrs. Staff Capt. Payne who is in charge of the Grace Hospital in Wintipeg, an institution which is doing a most Christian work in that great metropolis of the West, addressed the meeting.

On Thursday night in the Citadel two officers of the Army, Capt. Hillier and Stratford, are to be married. Brigadier Morehen will tie the knot.

Young Men Leaving.

Constable Miller is resigning from the police force and will be leaving here in company with Constable Butler, who has also seen in his resignation. That most of our young men are leaving home and going abroad to look for employment is a well known fact. Banker Meets it Rough.

The Belleoram banking schooner Trixie E. Nickerson came to port yesterday from Grand Banks for repairs. Last week the vessel experienced a heavy gale and as a result lost her anchor and cables, sustaining damage to her canvas and about decks as well. She has 150 quintals of codfish on board.

Seized With Fits.

A little girl named Morrissey was seized with an attack of fits, which she is subject to, on Saturday afternoon, collapsed near the East End Fire Hall. She fell in a drain and her head was badly bruised. After being attended by people who ran to her assistance the patient came around alright and was able to walk home.

Wrestling-in Tons.

Wrestling is probably the most strenuous sport on earth for it brings into play practically every muscle in the body.

During a wrestling match an enormous amount of force is exerted. Take the recent match between Zybco, the Polish giant and Raymond Cazeaux, the champion wrestler of Italy, for example. After a terrific struggle the Pole won the first bout in four minutes, thirty-three seconds.

In that time he lifted Cazeaux on the mat fourteen times. As the Italian weighed 210 pounds this means that Zybco lifted no less than 2,940 pounds. Actually, he lifted more than twice that weight, owing to the resistance of his opponent. In turn Cazeaux succeeded in lifting the Polish giant off the mat five times. The latter weighs 255 pounds, so in that short, four minutes odd the two wrestlers raised 4,215 pounds between them.

During the remainder of the match Zybco lifted Cazeaux twenty-five times, equivalent to 5,250 pounds. Altogether the Pole, who won the match, actually raised a weight of 8,190 pounds, or getting on for four tons.

That doesn't take account of the strain of the pulling and struggling and getting out of various holds during the match. It has been calculated that altogether the victor must have exerted strength equal to about 40 tons before he won!

It Certainly Was a Leg

A great sensation was created the other day at a certain station just previous to the starting of the morning express for London. The guard was about to give the right-away signal when a fat and fussy old gentleman trotted up to him and said: "Wait a minute, will you please, while I—"

"Impossible, sir!" said the guard, putting the whistle to his lips.

"But you must wait!" cried the old gentleman excitedly. "There's a man's leg under the wheel!"

"Good gracious! Where is he?" inquired the horror-stricken guard.

He hurried after the old gentleman, while a couple of porters jumped down on the line amid great excitement. After a search, one of the porters handed up a small basket containing a large leg of mutton.

"Thank you," said the old gentleman.

"What do you mean, sir?" roared the guard. You said—"

"I said a man's leg was under the wheel, and so it was. I paid for this leg, and if it isn't mine I should like to know whose it is."

Then the train moved on.

This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S Liniment in my family for years, and consider it the best liniment on the market. I have found it excellent for horse flesh.

"Raise the Blinds, Dear!"

Mrs. Jones was just getting ready to go out when her patient husband waited in the doorway, watching her complete her toilet. By the extraordinary contortions of her neck he concluded that she was trying to get a glimpse of the back of her new blouse, and by the tense lines about her lips he concluded that her mouth was full of pins.

"Umph—guff—wuff—sh—spogp!" she asked.

"Yes, dear," he agreed. "It looks all right."

"Ouf—yoo—so—ss—ph—mf—digh—light" was her next remark.

"Perhaps it won't look rather if you did that," he added, "but it fits very nicely, as it is."

She gasped and emptied the pins into her hands.

"I've asked you twice to raise the blinds so that I can get more light, Harry!" she exclaimed. "Can't you understand plain English?"

A Few Pertinent Questions for Morrison.

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—I noticed in last night's Evening Herald a letter signed "Watchman" and headed "Coaker's Utterances a year ago and his views now." I don't think I am mistaken in attributing that letter to Mr. Donald Morrison. It is the kind of warfare that Donald has indulged in for some years, and "swallow his vomit" is one of the stock phrases that this cultured Minister oft indulges in.

Will you allow me through the columns of your paper to put a few questions to Mr. Donald Morrison? Now, Mr. Morrison in the Orange Hall, in Carbonear, on the 21st August 1888, you made the statement: "The Roman Catholic portion of the Government asking for a bill in all cases where the agrarianism of themselves and their co-religionists was concerned, ruled supreme in the Councils of the Country."

Did you "swallow your vomit," when in 1909 you joined with the men you thus attacked?

You also said: "It is sufficient for us to know that a political alliance has been entered into between the Government and the Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John's, and from our knowledge and experience of former alliances of similar nature, we can not justify in anticipating that the Protestants of the Colony will pay dearly for it."

Did you "swallow your vomit" when in 1909 you entered into an alliance with Morris, or did Morris "swallow your vomit," when he coalesced with you?

I have a circular address, "To the Orangemen of Newfoundland," which bears your signature and in which the following appears:—"The principles of the Reformation and of the old Reformation are these same principles for which we ask you to contend in the coming struggle, and these principles can only be vindicated and victorious by the United action of all our Brethren in favour of the new Reformation and the new reformers. We look for more than a mere victory because we look for the final conquest of the usurping power of Roman Catholicism in our political concerns, and the permanent triumph of the Protestant majority of this country in the control of its public affairs."

Did you stir the "New Reformation" when you joined Morris in 1909, and have you carried out the "principles of the Reformation and of the old Reformers" during the past four years, or have you been "swallowing your vomit," day by day, while you scooped in interests in land grants and thousands of dollars in fees?

Perhaps you forgot the "New Reformation" that you then advocated as you forgot the law about timber rights.

The old passion for sectarian strife was not forgotten by your paper, the Daily News, when Mr. Coaker was untruthfully accused in respect of educational matters, and when such accusations are made both in the Daily News and the Evening Herald, and when they accuse Mr. Coaker of swallowing his vomit in carrying out the requests of the Fishermen's Union Councils, they suggest the raising of the question where your own "swallowing of vomit" ends.

If the Morrison organ and the McGrath journal want to raise "sectarianism," and to discuss the question of "swallowing vomit," I will enter the lists with them.

Reid Employees Outing

The employees of the Reid Nfld. Co. held their first annual outing on Saturday. It was enjoyed by everyone. Upwards of 500 persons left the city by special train for Irvine station thence to the Octagon grounds which were profusely decorated with hunting. A programme of sports, including dory racing, football, flat races, throwing the hammer and tug of war, contests were then gone through and the different events run off amidst much interest and pleasure to all concerned. After the sports a good dinner was served in the Octagon, by Mr. Poole. The principals of the firm Messrs. W. D. Reid, R. G. Reid, and F. Rioux were present as well as Mr. M. W. Furlong, K.C., Director, who made an address which lasted nearly an hour. In the evening the prizes won at the sports, donated by President W. D. Reid, were presented by Mrs. E. G. Reid. About one-third of the party returned to town by special train; the others remained to take part in the dance, which proved so enjoyable because of the excellent music discoursed by the C. L. B. band. The dance was discontinued at midnight when return to the city was made.

Rev. Job Moore.

Rev. Job Moore, of North Dakota, preached to a large congregation at Wesley Church last evening, taking as his text, "Come, thou with us, and we will do thee good." This discourse was practical and instructive, and the tenor of it was man's duty to affiliate himself with some church, and devote his talents and abilities to its service.

Rev. Mr. Moore is a fluent speaker, is a son of Mr. John Moore, of Carbonear, and made good while abroad. The chief purpose of Mr. Moore's visit is to take away with him one of Newfoundland's fair daughters. The wedding ceremony will take place this week.

OTTAWA, To-day.

The action of the officer, commanding the 95th (Punjab) Saskatoon, in dismissing Hunter Hill for resenting the flogging of the American flag by a woman in face of the regiment July 21st, has not been sustained by the Minister of Militia and Defence, who, notwithstanding the evidence asked for and submitted, does not warrant his dismissal on that account.

LONDON, To-day.

The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Mail declares the Powers have been unable to agree to any plan to coerce Turkey. France opposes any financial pressure, while Germany objects to moral pressure. Neither Austria nor Russia appears inclined to assist Bulgaria. There is little doubt, according to this correspondent, that Turkey will retain Adrianople.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

Besides Britain, France and Japan, practically all Central and South American countries are lending support to the efforts of the States to bring about a peaceful settlement of the Mexican revolution. Unless satisfactory overtures are made by the Huerta Government before Tuesday, President Wilson will proclaim in person his message to both Houses of Congress, that the principle of constitutional Government alone can be recognized in Mexico.

NEW YORK, To-day.

Tammany leaders have decided not to re-nominate Mayor Gainer, he will be nominated by the Gainer League with a complete independent city ticket of its own. Her A. Metz is unanimously designated for comptroller, Metz held this office during McClellan's second term. Congressman Gould is unanimously selected for President if the Board of Aldermen.

MEXICO City, To-day.

The keenest anxiety is manifested in the capital to-day as to what will be the development of the action of the States Government in Mexico's internal affairs. Mexico's attitude is one of waiting while people resented here, both native and foreign are displaying deep apprehension. Rumors continue that Huerta is still considering resigning, possibly in favor of Gen. Trevino, but there is no sound basis for this assertion. Those close to the Executive insist, he will not alter the stand he has taken, and will await Washington's next move. Public opinion is expressed here that there will be swift condemnation of all peaceable relations and Congress will be given an opportunity for a full debate on President Wilson's statement of facts in the case.

That Ulster is to be dragged out of accepting Home Rule, probably under martial law, is asserted by the Unionist Standard. The recent London-daily riots have furnished the Unionist newspapers during the last few days with texts for many articles, predicting gruesome doing if Home Rule is enforced. Antagonism among political and religious circles is exceptionally acute now. Ulster, as was shown by an outbreak at an inquest yesterday, is a Unionist named Armstrong, who witnesses affirm and Unionists believe was deliberately shot by policemen without provocation. Even if the situation is exaggerated by the party press, it still undoubtedly holds out the ugliest possibilities. This has been shown during the last few days by the amount of insurance of property in Ulster against riot. Lloyd's are said to have covered £500,000 in Belfast and elsewhere. Rates are steadily rising, and a shilling's rent will be doubled in many. Underwriters do not see a profitable for any more business, and prohibitive rate is talked of. Some Quick Marriages.

Records in Lightning Matrimonial Ventures.

Mr. Leslie Fraser Duncan, the tallest Scotsman in London—his measurements six feet six inches in his stockings—can lay claim to be the King of matrimonial gamblers.

Four times in the course of his long life—he is ninety-two years old—he has married girls whose acquaintance he made by chance only a few hours previously, and what is even more remarkable, each of his marriages has turned out triumph.

His first wife, who was a native of Bath, he got into communication with through a matrimonial advertisement, travelled down to interview her with the license in his pocket, and married her the next day. They lived an ideally happy life until her death twelve years afterwards.

Wife No. 3 a Widow.

He met his second wife in a west-bound city omnibus, proposed after four or five minutes' conversation, was accepted by the time the vehicle had reached the Marble Arch, and next day was married. She made him happy for another twelve years.

Wife number three was a widow when he met her by chance one morning in Oxford Street, but she was his wife by the afternoon of the day following. They never had a lift or a cross word. His fourth wife, who only died last October, was courted and wed at similar express speed, and with like happy results.

The late George Gissing, the novelist, tired of his lonely life in his "digs" in Islington, strolled out into the Marlborough Road, having previously made up his mind to propose to the first passable-looking woman he met. He carried out his resolution, and was accepted, but the resultant union was far from being a happy one. Better luck attended a somewhat similar venture on the part of a well-known author and journalist now living. Disgusted with a spilt breakfast served one morning by a stately landlady, he sallied forth into the London streets in search of a girl who would marry him and "do" for him.

First of all he made a trip right round the underground railway, stepping off at every station, and silently appraising the physical charms of the young ladies who dispensed cigars and cigarettes at the little kiosks on the various platforms. He proposed to two of them, one at Charing Cross, the other at Earl's Court. Both of them laughingly declined. Probably they thought he was joking.

Nearly a Nursemaid.

Next he tried a nursemaid whom he scraped acquaintance with in Hyde Park. She seemed inclined to accept, but her mistress appeared unexpectedly upon the scene and the interview had to terminate prematurely. Eventually he proposed to a barmaid whom he found disengaged during the slack hours of the afternoon behind the saloon bar of a well known city tavern. She accepted him after some slight demur.

They were married two days later, and it is satisfactory to be able to add that their joint venture has turned out an unqualified success. In fact, although more than seven years have elapsed since then, their friends, and they are many, unite in agreeing that they are as happy and as well-matched, a couple as any in England.

Quite recently a man who was temporarily deprived of his eyesight through an accident proposed to the nurse who was engaged to look after him. He had not seen her at the time for the bandages had not been removed, but what he admired about her, he explained, was not her face or her figure, but the sweet, gentle tones of voice. He was accepted, and the wedding took place as soon as he was sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital.

FOOTBALL MATCH.

A football match will take place on St. George's Field this evening between a team from the Daily News office and a representative eleven from Knowling's.

Speculation.

Speculation is a simple, precise and rapid method of letting go of memory that belongs to somebody else.

Some of the greatest speculators in the get-rich-quick field were those who did not have any money of their own to let go of.

but who borrowed 2,000 bushels of May corn from the till and jollied their margins along with the aid of the Sunday School treasury. Hundreds of people have convinced everybody of the righteousness of his pursuit except the United States marshal, who is a cold-blooded and unimaginative individual with the romantic temperament of an artificial leg.

Speculation is most attractive to the man who objects to working for what he gets. It is highly irritating to a blue-blooded employe of a tinsorial parlor to see the local agent for a Mexican rubber plantation living a luxurious life on deferred dividends and pork tenderloins, simply by selling stock to people who don't know whether rubber grows on bushes or is a product of coal oil. This makes the employe envious and he immediately begins to speculate with the nearest paddle wheel, which sends him home a ruined man.

The prime object of speculation is to get in on the ground floor and get away before the October meeting of the grand jury. Some forms of speculation yield large, swollen fortunes which are later dissipated by court costs of alimony. It is getting so that a man can't sell the serum from the domesticated jack rabbit as a positive cure for the hay fever without having some low-browed, flush-jowled post office inspector raid his laboratory and drag him into court in a ruffled Prince Albert. A man can get up a patent car trumpet with which the wearer can hear a whispered conversation at a distance of three miles, but the minute he advertises it, on its merits and begins to lay up a stock of $1 bills for his declining years he will have to lay off and break rock for the general public.

Speculation is all right when it is backed by a certificate of deposit calling for 4 per cent. interest, compounded semi-annually. Even then, it is a good thing to watch the quarterly statement.

Foo At The Stock Exchange.

There were high links in the Stock Exchange recently. A jobber who enjoys the nickname of the "Burglar" was suddenly handcuffed and accused of being a party to the sensational jewel robbery now exciting general interest. Circumstantial evidence of his guilt was duly forthcoming by the extraction of strings of imitation pearls from his pockets, and then the cry went up for the police. This was promptly responded to by another dealer, who had gone to the trouble of hiring a constable's uniform, and the delinquent was hustled out of the House by the scruff of the neck, followed by an excited mob, a large percentage of which was gullied into the idea that a genuine arrest had been made. Eventually the joke recoiled on the owner of the handcuffs, who, when demonstrating how they worked, had to suffer the mortification of having the key stolen for about an hour.

Melba Talks To Boy Scouts.

Madam Melba has been evincing the keenest interest in the boy scouts since her return to London, and recently attended an entertainment given by the First British-Australian Troop of Boy Scouts ("Madame Melba's Own") formed last year in connection with her troop in Australia. They demanded a speech. "My dear boys," she replied. "I never have made a speech; I never can make a speech, and I am afraid I never shall make a speech; but I can give you a little advice, and that in a simple phrase is: 'Be good.' You scouts must never forget that England expects each man and each boy to do his duty, and every one of you must live up to the scouts' motto, 'Be prepared.'"

The Common Law!

By Robert W. Chambers.

A great love story of society and studio life in New York. It has all the interest and fascination of the best society novels, and there is the added charm of the gay artist's life with its frank camaraderie, its witty small talk, its undisciplined disregard of convention. The story concerns itself with the love affairs of Louis Neville, an artist of aristocratic and snobbish ancestry, and Valerie West, a gently bred girl who comes to his studio seeking employment as a model. Her unusual beauty wins her an audience and she is promptly engaged. The association thus begun rapidly progresses into pure friendship and then love. Love triumphant over tradition is the concluding note of the story.
