CHAPTER XVIII A Strange Story.

"Any fool can be an earl, Jack," he went on, "but it isn't everybody who can write a good book or even paint a decent picture. There's my sentiments, and though I'm sorry I deceived you, I don't think you'll be hard upon me."

He stopped opposite his friend and held out his hand, looking down upon him with the frank smile that was full of a grateful tenderness.

Jack grinned, but took the hand. "Well, I suppose it's more your misfortune than your fault, your being a viscount," he said; "and I'll say I'll try to forgive you and get used to it; but the artist game's played out now, I imagine. You'll go down to the Earl What's-his-name, and, striking an attitude, exclaim, 'Behold your nephew, the viscount! I come to claim my cousin for my bride!'"

Cyril's face softened, and a rapt look came into his eyes, the look of a man when he hears the word "bride" and calls up the vision of his beloved but shook his head.

"No, Jack, not that. I didn't tell you that until the other day I had never seen the earl."

"No!"

"No. My father—his brother—and he quarreled years ago. I don't think it was my father's fault, because the earl somehow has managed to quarrel with all his relatives. Why, his own wife—" He stopped. "You should see him, Jack. He's like a Lord Chesterfield made out of steel, and beautifully burnished."

He drew himself up and fingered an imaginary eyeglass, and looked so like the earl that Jack, though he had not seen his lordship, smiled.

"How such a sweet, angelic creature as Norah can be his daughter—" Jack smiled again.

"But she must take after her mother, poor woman. Jack, her father had kept her from him until the other day. Isn't he an amiable, tender-hearted party?"

There was silence for a moment, then Jack Wesley asked:

"And what do you mean to do, my lord?"

"Punch your head if you call me 'my lord' again, for one thing," said

Child Was Nervous, Irritable, Tired Out.

She Had No Appetite, and Her Complexion Was Pale and Sallow.

How many parents realize the strain which going to school means to the child who is naturally nervous and of delicate health? You see them come from the schools daily with pale faces, many wearing glasses, and looking tired and worn. At home they are irritable, do not sleep well at nights, and are upset by a little extra excitement. If they are to grow to healthy manhood and womanhood their systems must have attention now. Such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders for children in this condition. We are constantly receiving letters from grateful parents telling what the Nerve Food has done for their children. This one is a fair sample:

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes: "My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was Cyril, promptly; then his face grew pale. "I mean to follow out my plan, Jack. I wooed my darling as plain Cyril Burne, the artist, and I mean to win her as such."

"That's rot!" remarked Jack, quietly.

"No," said Cyril, firmly. "If I went down and declared myself and asked for Norah—what music he made of the name!—my amiable uncle would show me the door with his most elegant smile, and shut my darling in her room. I know him! There is no love lost between us, and he'd take delight in kicking me out. No! I'll stick to my work, Jack. I'll paint this picture for Lord Newell, and if it makes a hit, I'll present myself at Santeleigh Court as Cyril Burne, and—"

"Get kicked a little harder," finished Jack, cynically, "and then—"

Cyril's face flushed.

"Why, then I will say to my darling, 'Norah, will you still forget the difference between us, and leave all this for a little cottage—'"

"And cold shoulder of mutton. And she'll say—"

"Yes!" exclaimed Cyril, his eyes glowing brightly with his trust and faith in the girl he loved.

Jack Wesley tilted his chair on its hind legs and smiled.

"It's pretty, very," he said, cynically. "It sounds like a popular poem, or the scene from a play; but mark my words, young 'un, you will come to grief. Something, or somebody will put a spoke in your wheel, and while you are fooling around, playing at being an artist and talking of your cottage by the stream, you will lose your beautiful Lady Norah."

Cyril laughed—actually laughed.

"Lose her!" he said; "ah, Jack, you don't know her. Wait until you've seen her, talked to her, listened to her, watched the smile on her face, the light in her dear eyes. You'll realize then how firm and true, how staunch she is, my angel!"

Jack Wesley shrugged his shoulders.

"Lord preserve me from this madness they call love!" he muttered.

"But I've said my say. The words of wisdom have been uttered, and, as usual, have been scoffed at. So, young man, you must go your own Colney Hatch way. Though"—he paused, and a kindly light shone in his earnest eyes—"I'm idiot enough to feel a little proud of you—"

"Jack!"

"Yes, I'm proud of you. I thought when you sprang your viscountship upon me that there was an end of work for you, an end of an honest, self-respecting career. Yes, Cyril; though you are a fool for not taking my advice, I think all the better of you for declining it; and to prove it, I'll agree to forget that you are a lord, and treat you as if you were a respectable man."

Cyril laughed and shook him to and fro.

"Good old Jack!" he exclaimed. "I'd no idea you disliked a lord so much."

"Oh, I like 'em well enough—at a distance," said Jack Wesley, grimly.

"But now to business. If you mean all you say, the sooner you see Lord Newell's man and arrange about this picture, the better."

"Yes," assented Cyril, promptly.

"I'll look him up at once, and then— and then I'll start for Brittany. But I must run down to Santeleigh first, old man; I've got to get my traps and—"

and, he blushed ingeniously.

Jack Wesley laughed.

Knocks Obstinate Coughs in a Hurry

A Simple Home-Made Remedy That Gets at the Cause.

Thousands of people normally healthy in every other respect, are annoyed with a persistent hacking-on bronchial cough year after year, disturbing their sleep and making life disagreeable. It's so needless—there's an old home-made remedy that will end such a cough easily and quickly.

Get from any druggist "2½ ounces of Pinex" (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Begin taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end perfectly.

A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma there is nothing better. It tastes pleasant and keeps perfectly.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with gaulther and is used by millions of people every year for throat and chest colds with splendid results.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

"Oh, I understand, and to say 'good-by.'"

"Oh, and I've promised to go to a flare-up at a great friend of Norah's," said Cyril, remembering Lady Ferndale's invitation for Wednesday week.

"All right," said Jack, "of with you now, then. I've wasted quite enough time upon you this morning."

Cyril laughingly made for the door, when a knock came, and Jack, already bending over his papers, called out, "Come in!"

Cyril stepped aside, the door opened, and a man entered. Cyril had never seen him before, and he looked at him with some curiosity. He was an elderly man, with a weather-beaten face and iron-gray hair, thick set and muscular; and his figure and the old and patched pea-jacket he wore gave him the appearance of a sea captain down on his luck, or a bargee, or perhaps a discharged coastguardman.

Cyril—artist like—thought he would make a capital model for a figure in a "ship piece," when the man, glancing at him from under a pair of shaggy brows, stopped short.

"Beg pardon," he said, in a rough voice. "Didn't know you weren't alone."

"All right, Furlong," said Jack. "A friend of mine, Mr. Cyril Burne. Wait a moment, Cyril, before you go," he added.

Cyril walked to the window and looked out at the quiet thoroughfare, and the elderly man in the pea-jacket took a roll of paper from his pocket and laid it on the table.

Jack opened it and looked it over.

"All right, Furlong," he said, with a nod, and he took out some silver coins and handed them to the man, who took them and gruffly growled his thanks.

"Any more?" he asked.

"Yes," said Jack, and he took some papers from his desk and gave them to him. "Get them done as soon as you can. Can you let me have them back to-morrow?"

Furlong examined the papers.

"The day after," he said, shortly. Jack nodded.

"Very well, the day after, then. Did you find anything very wrong in the last lot?"

"No. There are no leopards in that part of the world."

Cyril stared, and Jack laughed.

"Oh, I didn't know. I'll be more careful in my zoology another time."

"You can't know everything," remarked the man, curtly.

"I beg your pardon, Furlong," retorted Jack, gravely, "an author does know everything. He's bound to; once he admits he doesn't, he can throw up the sponge."

The man smiled, glanced round the room, and at Cyril, and with a nod, walked out.

"Who on earth was that, Jack?" asked Cyril.

"An old fellow I picked up the other day," replied Jack Wesley. "He says his name is Furlong, and that he has been a mate on board a trading ship, a planter's foreman in Ceylon, a fur trader in Hudson's Bay territory, and several other things of a like or unlike character; I found him sitting on the doorstep the other night, and as he seemed hard up, I hunted out some work for him. Poor beggar, he was regularly stranded; but," with a cynical smile, "he will probably turn out a duke in disguise."

Cyril laughed.

"That's one on me, old man, I suppose. Poor old chap. But what does he do for you? What were those papers he brought?"

"Well, it's strange—that is, if anything is strange in this rummyness of all rummy worlds—but Furlong, rough as he looks, appears to have been decently educated. Anyhow, he writes a goo enough hand for copying, and so I give him my awful scrawl to turn into legible calligraphy."

"But what was that about leopards?" said Cyril, with an amused smile.

Jack Wesley laughed.

"Oh, I make mistakes sometimes; put animals and flowers and all sorts of things in countries where they don't live or grow; and Furlong, who seems to have been in every quarter of the globe, spots the mistakes and sets me right."

"Well, of all the curious experiences," exclaimed Cyril, "Why, who would guess that that rough-looking codger could set the great and learned Mr. John Wesley right in anything?"

"Yes, curious, isn't it?" assented Jack, "but appearances are deceitful. Who, for instance, would suppose that Mr. Cyril Burne was—"

"Now, Jack, shut up! I say, your friend has a remarkably striking exterior. Do you think he'd mind sitting to me as a model?"

"I should say he wouldn't have the slightest objection," said Jack, "to earning money in that or any other way, honest or dishonest. Oh, yes, he'd sit for a model well. You might call him 'The Returned Convict.'"

"What," said Cyril, "do you think—"

"No, no," said Jack, quickly. "I don't know anything about him, and have no reason to suppose that he was ever in Botany Bay. As I say, he will probably turn out to be a duke instead of a ticket-of-leave man."

"The old fellow has a furtive way of looking about him," said Cyril, upon whom Mr. Furlong seemed to have made an impression.

"I dare say. So would you have if you had gone through half he says he has," remarked Jack. "But about Newell, you won't leave London until you have seen him and settled something definite? He is a slippery customer, and is worth sticking to."

"All right," assented Cyril, "I mean business, Jack, and will stick to his lordship like wax."

Jack grinned.

"How surprised he would look if you sent in your card—your proper one, I mean!" he said.

Cyril laughed and then frowned.

"That's a secret which I have only shared with you, Jack," he said, rather gravely.

"Confound you, yes, and I wish you'd kept it to yourself," growled Jack. "There, be off, now. 'What with you and that old ruffian, my morning's nearly gone.'"

Cyril went off laughing, and strode up the Strand with a light step and a lighter heart, thinking of his picture and of his sweetheart. What was she doing now? he wondered. Wandering in the park, and—thinking of him as he was thinking of her? Asking herself where he had gone, and why he had not sent her a message?

"You shall not wait long, my darling!" he murmured; "a few hours more!" and he strode on. But men propose, and Providence disposes, and the hours that stretched between Norah and him were many, instead of few.

What Shall I Send My Soldier Boy For Christmas?

Returned Officer Makes Suggestion on Suitable Gifts—"Candles" and "Candles" Two Things the Men in the Trenches Like—Avoid Sending Heavy Gifts—Matches and Smokers Always Welcome.

What shall I send to the brave boy who is representing me in the trenches in Northern France, fighting valiantly for Justice and liberty against the Hun?

This is a question that ought to be agitating the mind of every person in country to-day. Nearly every family has its representative on active service, and those who have not are friends, or perhaps chums of the lad whose name is now inscribed on the roll of honor.

What to send is a difficult question to answer satisfactorily, for conditions are so entirely different over there in the trenches to what they are at home. One at home cannot realize what it means to be on active service, away from all those comforts which go to make Christmas the one great feast of the year.

What is one thing most needed by the soldier? The question was put to an officer who has but recently come back from the front. And the answer he gave was "Candles." "Send them candles and yet more candles," he said. It was surprising and the questioner thought for a moment the officer was joking. But he wasn't. "You know the parody, 'In my hut I get home in the trench' he said. Well, just consider yourself there. You are in the front line trench or in the support trench, and when your spell of duty is done you crawl into a miserable little dug-out. What is it you want more than anything? Light. You haven't got electric switches to turn on, you want to write a letter home, or read the one that you have just received from your loved ones. Can't you imagine what a blessing a candle would be to you?"

And so candles was put down slowly on the list the reporter was compiling. The officer noticed the hesitation, so he discharged another breadwinner soldier can do with a candle. He cut it into three pieces, light them and boil his mess tin on the top of those. He can boil water and make his tea, coffee or cocoa, he can put a soup tureen or a vegetable tablet in his mess tin with his bully beef, and make a real thing fine stew, and a score of other

What Shall I Send My Soldier Boy For Christmas?

Returned Officer Makes Suggestion on Suitable Gifts—"Candles" and "Candies" Two Things the Men in the Trenches Like—Avoid Sending Heavy Gifts—Matches and Smokes Always Welcome.

What shall I send to the brave boy who is representing me in the trenches in Northern France, fighting valiantly for justice and liberty against the Hun?

This is a question that ought to be agitating the mind of every person in country to-day. Nearly every family has its representative on active service, and those who have not are friends, or perhaps chums of the lad whose name is now inscribed on the roll of honor.

What to send is a difficult question to answer satisfactorily, for conditions are so entirely different over there in the trenches to what they are at home. One at home cannot realize what it means to be on active service, away from all those comforts which go to make Christmas the one great feast of the year.

What is one thing most needed by the soldier? The question was put to an officer who has but recently come back from the front. And the answer he gave was "Candles." "Send them candles and yet more candles," he said. It was surprising and the questioner thought for a moment the officer was joking. But he wasn't. "You know the parady, 'In my little west home in the trench' he said. Well, just consider yourself there. You are in the front line trench or in the support trench, and when your spell of duty is done, you crawl into a miserable little dug-out. What is it you want more than anything? Light. You haven't got electric switches to turn on, you want to write a letter home, or read the one that you have just received from your loved ones. Can't you imagine what a blessing a candle would be to you?"

One interesting suggestion was that it was a good thing to send some pairs of light socks, which a man could put on first and then put on his army socks, and if a soldier has a tender have boots issued to them which will permit of their wearing two pairs of socks, and if a soldier has a tender skin he is liable to get blisters with the army socks. So send the boy half a dozen pairs of thin soft socks. They won't take up much room in his haversack, and will save him a lot of feetache.

Things all from the heat of three pieces of candles stuck on a stone or piece of board, the tin resting on an impromptu stand of stones." And so "candles" was written down twice on the list to impress the value of this gift in the Christmas parcel, for one cannot always get them at the base even, and when one does they cost money.

Candies Well Liked.
What was the next thing a soldier would like for a present? Send them some candies. A man will sell his soul for a piece of candy sometimes—butter, chocolate, nut bars, in fact any kind of candy. There is nothing that makes the men so cheerful as when they have something for their sweet tooth. And then send them some soap tablets, which they can put into their mess tin with their bully beef and to make the "dandy stew" the officer talked of.

"I have seen men take awful chances and run all sorts of risks just to get an old turnip or a potato to put in with their bully beef and make a stew," this officer continued. "And you can get these soups and vegetables in tablets now or get them dried in packages, and you may make a safe wager that anything the boys can eat in the way of luxuries is going to be very welcome through the winter. At home we think of these things as common, everyday necessities, but over there they are luxuries to the boys and they will appreciate them much more than any cumbersome gift."

Don't Send Heavy Gifts.
Don't send the soldier lads anything that is heavy or cumbersome. Remember that everything that a man owns has to be carried on his back. "In addition to his alliteration he has to carry his full equipment and tools, therefore don't send him heavy pots of jam. He can't eat it all at a sitting, even with the help of his friends, and if he has to move after a meal it will probably get upset or will get dirt in it, or sand, and be wasted. If you want to send him jam, send it to him in little pots, and don't let it be plum or apple, for the troops get tons of that in their rations."

One interesting suggestion was that it was a good thing to send some pairs of light socks, which a man could put on first and then put on his army socks, and if a soldier has a tender have boots issued to them which will permit of their wearing two pairs of socks, and if a soldier has a tender skin he is liable to get blisters with the army socks. So send the boy half a dozen pairs of thin soft socks. They won't take up much room in his haversack, and will save him a lot of feetache.

Send him safety matches; fill up all the odd corners of your parcel with boxes of matches in sealed tins and leather bootlaces. Put in some cigars and cigarettes of his favourite brand, include a nice briar pipe and some tobacco, and don't be stingy in the quantity, for he cannot get a new supply as easily as you can. Don't send him fruit cakes or pies, from here; it takes too long to reach the destination, and by the time it arrives it is either mouldy or broken all to pieces easily obtained. This is the advice of some firm in England, to send them over—they will get there in much better condition.

Send them over mufflers and mitts, either with all the fingers and thumb or the shortened kind. Woolen gloves are also useful in this time of winter. The soldiers are supplied with the Balachava or some other kind of woolen caps.

Gifts For Officers.

If your soldier friend is an officer or a non-commissioned officer make him a present of a flashlight or electric torch. They are indispensable to men holding any rank for inspection purposes. But be careful what you buy. Most of the flashlights bought over here are of a different size to the English flashlight, and the refill batteries that come from England to the battalions every week are no good for them. So you must either get an English made lamp here or send an order to an English firm to forward a lamp, and then the refills can be easily obtained. This is the advice of the officer who has had experience of flashlights in the trenches.

And send the boys some khaki handkerchiefs or colored bandanas. There is a famine in "wipes," as some of the Tommies call them. And soap and towels—for the British soldier likes to keep himself as clean as he can. Tooth powder and tooth paste, as well as a toothbrush, and a safety razor, come under the same category, together with the unbreakable mirrors. A corkscrew and a tin opener are also regarded by some returned soldiers as useful things to have. Do not send underwear, for the chances are that the soldier will not keep it very long if you do. When the troops come out of the trenches all the underclothing is pooled and sent to the military laundry and the soldier passes on and gets another set and probably never sees his own again. There is a plentiful issue of these goods; in fact the soldier is pretty warmly clothed, and the thing that he lives for when he gets out of the trenches, is a good meal, and any little luxuries you can send over to make his meal enjoyable will be as welcome as "flowers that bloom in the spring."

Select Medicine Carefully.
Purgatives are dangerous. They gripe, cause burning pains and make the constipated condition worse. Physicians say the most ideal laxative is Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut; they are exceedingly mild, composed only of health-giving vegetable extracts. Dr. Hamilton's Pills restore activity to the bowels, strengthen the stomach, and purify the blood. For constipation, sick headache, biliousness and disordered digestion no medicine on earth makes such remarkable cures as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Try a 25c. box yourself.

Keep Liver Active And Bowels Clean With "Cascarets"

Best when bilious, sick, headachy, constipated, or for bad breath or sour stomach.

Be cheerful. Clean up inside tonight and feel fine. Take Cascarets to live your liver and clean the bowels and stop headaches, a bad cold, biliousness, offensive breath, coated tongue, salivaceous, sour stomach and gases. Tonight take Cascarets and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Wake up feeling grand—Everybody's doing it. Cascarets best laxative for children also.

GO ON BEFORE.

When some old pickled critters, who've lapped up gin and rye, and every kind of bit-ers, get down with booze and die, we bend above their bodies, and say, quite laconically, "Poor victims of hot toddies! They were their own worst foes!" When any cheap old duffer, who's failed, from first to last, concludes no more to suffer the cheerless mundane blast, we sadly gather round him, where he is lying low, and spring that gas, "Confound him! He was his own worst foe!" But it's as sure as ginger—we know it passing well—that all the failures injure the world in which they dwell. Society's a loser when any one sinks low; no man can be a boozier, and be his own worst foe. Though we have pity ample for one immersed in gin, he sets a bad example, and that's a deadly sin. He shows the human being a sad thing and sad—a slight not fit for seeing by any growing lad. The world, for virtue yearning, must view him with alarm; at every bend and turning, he works some grievous harm. And when the whiskey gluttons at last turn up their toes, we sigh, "Doggone their buttons, they were their own worst foes!"

What to Send the Boys.

We print to-day an article from the Montreal Daily Star which deals with a problem of much present importance, what to send to the men at the front. For the first time many of our own men will be spending Christmas and probably the whole winter in the trenches, and all at home will be anxious as far as possible to alleviate the discomforts inseparable from such a life and to send them every luxury the conditions will permit them to enjoy. It is therefore most necessary to know just what those conditions are and to be advised both what is suitable and what is unsuitable to them. Our regiment has not been long enough in France for us to learn from the men what their needs are, and it is well to take the word of one who has been through the winter there and knows. Experts credit.

The article is a long one but will repay perusal, for it is replete with valuable suggestions. Who, for instance, would have thought that candles were such a desideratum and could be put to such a variety of uses? The insistence, too, upon the acceptability of all kinds of food, particularly candies and similar dainties, is to be noted, as also the useful hints that heavy and heavy gifts should not be sent. Note, too, the tips about clothing, this socks to wear beneath the heavy ones, Khaki handkerchiefs and so on, and the number of small and handy articles constantly in demand. Altogether the catalogue shows that hawking in the trenches has much in common, in these respects, with camping out, with which every Newfoundland soldier is familiar, and there should be little difficulty here in providing our boys with all that they require and that is not included in their regular supplies.

In this connection, we must confess to a keen feeling of disappointment over the progress of the Fish and Brewis Fund. A gratifying sum has already been subscribed, but it has come from a comparatively few donors, which is precisely the kind of thing the promoters of the scheme did not wish. Not that large donations are not acceptable, but a great number of small ones is much more so. It was hoped that the idea would prove a popular one and we are sure the boys at the front would like to know it was such. At the time of writing another $1,000 is required. Surely there are in the island a thousand persons with a dollar to spare for such a cause, two thousand with fifty cents, five thousand with twenty cents! No contribution is too small, and it is the small ones in particular that are desired. If everyone in the island would send at once to Mr. Ayre the few dollars or cents he can afford, our men at Ayre and in France would be able to enjoy such a treat of their favourite delicacy as they never hoped to enjoy outside the country they love.

Prince of Finance.

Cunliffe Gives the First Peccage In the War.

In the City of London he is known as "The Kitchener of Finance." Outside the city, Lord Cunliffe, who has been re-elected Governor of the Bank of England—the Old Lady of Thread-needle Street—for the fourth time, is practically unknown. Yet it was he who, in the first days of the war, was mainly instrumental in saving the country from financial chaos and was, in consequence, made a peer, being, in fact, the first man to have a peerage conferred upon him for service in the present war.

It will be remembered that in the first day of the war a financial panic threatened. It was essential that every bit of gold should be preserved, and equally essential that the national credit should not suffer, and that all great financial houses and firms should be able to tide over the money crisis, brought about by the entire dislocation of the world's markets.

Then it was that Mr. Walter Cunliffe, as he then was, and two or three great money experts, came to the assistance of the Government. The financial system of the country was re-organized under their direction. The money of the country was preserved, so that we were not only able to carry on our business as usual, but were able to be of financial help to our Allies.

He has, in fact, always been a very keen athlete and sportsman, his great passion of late years being for fishing and big game shooting. In pursuit of this sport he has travelled in the wilds of both India and China. "Work is the best of all hobbies," is one of his favorite maxims, however, and he is to be found at his office at the bank nearly every day of the week.
Lord Cunliffe is easily distinguished by reason of his stature. He is six feet high and very broad, with a fairish moustache and his inevitable frock coat and silk hat. For a man of sixty, he is remarkably active and young.

In Milady's Boudoir.

HATS AND COLDS.

"I often wonder how I manage to catch so many colds," complained Mrs. Up-to-date dresser. "I am always careful to wear my rubbers on those stormy days, and yet I am always sniffing, and blowing. I can't understand it."

"Maybe your feet are properly dressed but your head is not always cared for replied Mrs. Common Sense." For instance, I saw you yesterday with your fur hat on, and to-day you are wearing a mere covering of gold lace and wire. Surely it's colder to-day than yesterday.

And Mrs. Common Sense was right. So many of us are careful about our throats being protected, and our feet dry, but we carelessly change our hats without a thought. No two hats are very often alike in weight. A velvet hat that fits the head closely is warmer than a finer trimmed one of silk. A fur hat is warmer than lace and so it goes.

To-day we tuck our head into a fur toque, and spend most of our time in the hot stores, and to-morrow we go to a bridge party wearing the lace one. Donning the early straw hat after wearing the heavy velvet and fur one is indeed a dangerous feat, and is usually followed by a disagreeable head cold. Care should be taken in the choice of the hats to suit the weather as well as an article of our wardrobe.

SHOOTING ACCIDENT AT CATALINA.—Dr. Mackay, of Catalina, wired the Health Officer yesterday stating that a serious shooting accident had occurred at that place, and that the victim, a small boy who is severely wounded, was being sent to St. John's to enter the General Hospital. The unfortunate boy reached the city by to-day's express and was conveyed in the ambulance to the institution. Particulars of the occurrence have not yet been received.

Recruiting Campaign for the Outports

Sir Joseph Outbridge presided at a meeting of the different committees of the Patriotic Association held in the Board of Trade Rooms yesterday. It was the opinion of those present that a campaign for recruits for the Army and Navy should be commenced in the outports, starting with Conception Bay and making Hearts Content the depot for volunteers in that district. A number of returned Gallipoli and France veterans will assist in enlisting those that offer.

Naval Funeral.

Remains of the Late Royal Naval Seaman Gunner Cummings Buried Yesterday—Sailors, Soldiers, Frontiersmen and C. L. B. Band Form the Cortege.

Shortly after two o'clock yesterday afternoon a large number of citizens assembled outside the northwest gate leading to the entrance of the dry dock, through which the remains of Royal Naval Seaman Gunner Cummings, which rested on a gun carriage drawn by a squad of Naval Reservists, would pass on its way to its last resting place at the C. of E. Cemetery. The remains, which rested in a beautiful casket, were placed on board H. M. S. Briton the previous evening by Undertaker A. Carroll, and while they were being taken from the ship yesterday the C. L. B. Band which assembled on the main deck played the first verse of the hymn "Son of my soul." Six men of the Naval Reservists were selected as pall-bearers, and lifting the casket on their shoulders they brought it from the ship to the pier, when it was placed on the gun carriage and covered with a large British Ensign. Three floral wreaths from the officers of H. M. S. Briton, the ship's company or active service men, and the Mid. Naval Reservists now in training, adorned the casket. The order of the cortege was:

Firing Squad with arms reversed. C. L. B. Band. The Remains. Officers of H. M. S. Briton. Company Volunteers. Legion of Frontiersmen. Ship's Company. Citizen Mourners.

The procession passed via Water Street, Prescott Street, Duckworth Street and Forest Road to the C. of E. Cemetery, where interment took place. Along the line of march the C. L. B. band played the favorite hymns of the Navy, while the muffled drums beat the time for the long slow funeral step. As the cortege drew near the cemetery the band played the "Dead March in Saul." Rev. H. Uphill, Rector of St. Mary's, officiated at the mortuary chapel and read the concluding prayers for the burial of the dead at the graveside. The firing squad fired three volleys of blank cartridges and the bugle sounded the Last Post as the body was lowered to its resting place.

Disabled British Ship Reaches Port

HAD TEMPESTUOUS WEATHER. With steering gear rendered useless, bulwarks and stanchions carried away, steam pipes of the windless smashed and in fact everything movable swept from her decks, the s.s. Elswick Hall, Captain Meikle, limped into port last evening. The ship was eighteen days out from Norfolk, Va., bound to Liverpool, England, with a general cargo. Boisterous weather was met and the ship had a rough experience. Storm succeeded storm until Friday last, when a regular hurricane began and lasted three days. All that time the Elswick Hall was holed to and was served badly by the elements. The wind raged with awful violence, accompanied by mountainous seas which swept over the ship fore and aft and did considerable damage, as already stated. When the storm subsided in the early part of this week Capt. Meikle decided to try and make St. John's for repairs. Though his ship was disabled and virtually impossible to steer, she managed to come along slowly and reached this port safely. She is now anchored in the stream. Messrs. Bowring Bros. Ltd. are the agents, and are looking after the requirements of the ship. The Elswick Hall is 2453 tons and is owned by Weidner Hopkins of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The 1917 Sealing Fleet

The local sealing fleet for 1917 will consist of wooden ships only. Of course the Halifax steamers Seal and Sable I. will also prosecute the sealing voyage next spring. So far as is known at present the flotilla will continue running on the Red Cross route because of the sinking of the the Stephano. The sealing ships will prosecute out of St. John's will be Neptune, Theist, Erik, Diana, Terra Nova, Eagle, Bloodhound, Viking Ranger.

The last-named, the oldest of the fleet, has been rebuilt at a cost of over $20,000 and is now as staunch as when first launched.

RECOVERING FROM HIS WOUNDS.—Mrs. Wm. Stevenson, McNeilly, has received a letter from Mr. E. Morris, stating that he had visited her son, Private A. Stevenson, at the London General Hospital. The gallant soldier, who had been wounded in the right arm, was very cheerful, despite it all and hoped soon to be able again.

AT OLD PRICES.

She Went to the Movies.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A neighbour of mine flounced in to my kitchen the other day. I use the word "flounce" advisedly. No other could have done it in her manner of entering expressed. The reason for the flounce soon came out. She had met a certain woman from "down back" going to the movies. This woman is one of the charity cases, which means that she has given her old clothes, suit from her garden, and occasionally, money.

That's The Way Those People Take Advantage Of You.

"She tried not to let me see her, but I did," she said triumphantly. "I don't believe I'll waste any more time or money on her. The idea of her going to the movies when they can hardly get along and her husband is so sick! I should think they'd try to get some more nourishing food or save a little money, if they've any extra money. That's the way those people take advantage of what you do for them!"

An evening at the movies extravagant! I pictured that woman's life in my mind. She goes out scrubbing and washing and when she gets home does the work of the house and looks after her sick husband. She wears other people's cast off clothes; she never an spare time or money for even a day's outing. Her life is as drab as November day.

How dare anyone Grudge Her That Pleasure!

How dare anyone whose life is a bed of roses in comparison, grudge her the small pleasure of an evening at the movies?

Something to look forward to, something to make her forget the monotony of her existence for two hours, and then something new to think about as she crawls over soapy floors or toils over other people's soiled linen.

Perhaps it would be wiser to save that time or use it for more nourishing food.

But it would be an almost superhuman person who would always have that wisdom and strength of mind.

They Think They Buy The Right To Criticize.

I have often noticed this attitude in people who give charity (how is that beautiful word dishonored by them!) They think their gifts give them the right to pry and peer into the lives of the recipient, and criticize and condemn.

The demand of the poor a superhuman strength of will to be content to toil and mull and scrimp and save and pay their debts, and forego all pleasures.

Of course, one honors such strength of mind, but why should one expect to find it in every poor man or woman, any more than one would expect to find sublime heroism of any sort?

War News.

Messages Received Previous to 9 A. M.

SERBIAN SUCCESS CONTINUES.

SALONIKA, Nov. 22. An official from Serbian headquarters says: "Our troops yesterday successfully followed up their attacks on the whole front. The village of Budimera and the surrounding heights are in our hands. German bombers who recently arrived on this front, counter attacked north of Subodol, but were completely repulsed. Besides inflicting heavy losses we captured five German officers, 131 men and 300 Bulgarian, including the Colonel commanding the 90th regiment. The Serbian and Allied troops have occupied the villages of Paralovo and Dobronov northeast of Monastir."

BRITISH HOSPITAL SHIP SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 22. The British hospital ship Britannic has been sunk with a loss of about fifty lives, says a British official announcement to-day. The Britannic was sunk by a mine or torpedo yesterday morning in the Aegean Sea. There were 1,106 survivors, of whom about 23 were injured.

BOTH SIDES DETERMINED.

LONDON, Nov. 22. Any peace proposals from Germany will receive the consideration they deserve, said Earl Derby, Under Secretary of War, today to an Associated Press correspondent in response to an enquiry regarding the attitude of the Allies. The Allies, continued Lord Derby, cannot entertain any idea of peace which does not give them what they are fighting for, and the Allies have not modified their position in this respect. When asked his opinion as to the probable duration of the war, he said only a fool would prophesy. I believe anyone who understands the temper of the British people will agree with me that they have shown no signs of weakening, but on the contrary are growing determined to continue the war to a satisfactory end. On the whole the Germans appear equally determined.

ROMANIANS STILL RETIRING.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 22. The Rumanian forces in Jul Valley are still retiring under hostile pressure towards Oratova, the Russian war office announced to-day in its report of the campaign on the Rumanian front. Craiova, according to an official announcement from Berlin yesterday, was captured by the Teutonic troops.

illities on the western front reads: There has been activity on the part of patrols in the region to the north of the Ancre and in Lorraine to the east of Arras. Elsewhere the night passed in relative calm.

THE BRITANNIC.

LONDON, Nov. 22. The Britannic was nearing completion at the outbreak of the war when she was requisitioned by the government and converted into a hospital ship. In company with the Mauretania and Olympic she was engaged bringing thousands of wounded from Gallipoli soon after the evacuation of the Peninsula by the Allies. The Admiralty officials have little to add to the official announcement except that the ship was sunk in the day-time. Whether she was torpedoed or mined is not yet determined, but they are advised that many submarines were operating in the vicinity. At the time of the sinking at least 200 severely wounded men were on board the ship. The medical staffs and members of the crew numbered more than 600.

HOSTILE ARTILLERY ACTIVE.

LONDON, Nov. 22. A communication from British headquarters, France, issued to-night, reads: During the day hostile artillery was active in Beaumont-Hamel and Ypres areas. We bombarded the enemy lines near Ramsart, east of Arras and north of LaBassee Canal. Last night after trench mortar bombardment the enemy raided our front southwest of St. Eloi. Part of our front line trench was obliterated and 26 men are missing. During Monday night our aeroplanes attacked the enemy railway stations, billets and transports with bombs and machine guns. All our machines returned safely.

LEFT FOR KAVALA.

LONDON, Nov. 22. The Ministers representing the Central Powers in Athens, together with their staffs left to-day for Kavala on the Greek steamer Mykall, according to a despatch from Athens dated today. The steamer flew from her mainmast the national flag of the diplomats on board before her departure with the Ministers, adds the despatch.

REPORT DENIED.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. A statement credited to the British Consulate, was made to-day in this city that American nurses and surgeons were on board the British hospital ship Britannic, reported sunk to-day in the Aegean Sea, but was later denied by the ranking Consular official that there was any basis for the statement.

THE DEUTSCHLAND OFF.

NANTUCKET, Nov. 22. The German merchant submarine Deutschland is believed to-day to have left American waters in safety. Darkness which set in soon after she started from New London, prevented observation of the submarine's progress along the shore. There was no word from her since she passed Watchill, R.I., at sunset last night. She barely distinguishable object 10 miles off the shore. If she maintained a speed of 10 miles an hour, it is figured she should have passed Nantucket Sound Shoals Lightship by daylight this morning.

MACEDONIAN OFFICIAL.

LONDON, Nov. 22. (Official from the Macedonian front) — On the Struma front in the eastern end of the Macedonian line, we successfully raided Kujuria.

UNSUCCESSFUL HUN ATTACK.

LONDON, Nov. 22. An unsuccessful attack by a German column upon a small British post in German East Africa, is reported, following which the Germans were driven away with heavy loss by British relief forces.

MESSAGES OF CONDOLENCE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. Messages of condolence on the death of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary, were prepared by the State Department to-day in expectation of an immediate official announcement from the American Ambassador to Vienna of the Austrian Charge here. President Wilson will send messages both to the Royal Family and to the Austrian Charge here. Congratulations to the new monarch will not be sent.

Don't Neglect Your Cough.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if left alone, so the mighty giant oak that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a cough sticks there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications and fatal illness have had their start from a neglected cough or cold. "Don't neglect your cough!" Stafford's Phorastone Cough and Cold Cure is what you should take. For sale at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. Price 25c., postage 6c. extra. No trouble to take this cough remedy.

Miss M. Furlong, Hon. Sec. Daughters of Empire, Care Lady Outerbridge, Silverton, St. John's, Newfoundland, Newfoundland War Contingent Association.

Dear Madam,—I am desired by my Committee to express their most grateful thanks for the exceedingly generous contribution of £212.9/11 which had been raised by the St. John's Branch of the Daughters of the Empire and to assure you of our very hearty appreciation of this gift which is to be exclusively devoted towards the paying of the expenses of our soldiers on furlough or sick leave to Victoria League Hotel or any other approved place in Edinburgh, and to these thanks I would like to be permitted to add my own for your gift, encouraging us to proceed in our efforts for the benefit of the Newfoundland Contingent.

Yours faithfully, CHAS. A. HANSON, Hon. Treasurer.

58 Victoria Street, Westminster, November 2nd, 1916.

Dear Miss Furlong,—The generous contribution of the Daughters of the Empire of £212.9/11 is hereby duly acknowledged and will be devoted exclusively to the Service mentioned by Lady Davidson of subsidizing the Victoria League and other Associations that look after our men when on furlough or sick leave.

I am desired by the Chairman and Committee to tender their sincere thanks to the Daughters of the Empire for placing this sum at their disposal and to say that it arrives most opportunely as owing to the heavy casualties this summer there will be a great many men to care for on furlough for some weeks to come.

Yours very truly, HENRY REEVE, Hon. Secretary.

Rev. Jabez Hill Passes Away.

A message from William Ashbourne, Esq., J.P., this morning conveys the sad intimation of the death of Rev. Jabez Hill, at Twillingate. The deceased clergyman came from England to Newfoundland in 1873, when he entered the Methodist Ministry in this country, his first circuit being Bay of Islands and Bonne Bay. His subsequent appointments were Channel, Fortune, Catalina, Fogo, Old Perlican, Freshwater, Twillingate, Westville, Western Bay, Pouch Cove and Brigus. From Brigus he removed to Canada where he laboured on different circuits in connection with the Hamilton Conference, until failing eye-sight made his retirement necessary. In Newfoundland he occupied positions of honour and responsibility in connection with his Conference; such as Chairman of District, President of Conference, and Delegate to the General Conference. For more than a year he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. William Ashbourne, of Twillingate, his wife having died in Canada some years since. Many old friends will read of his death with sincere sorrow, to whom, as also to his bereaved relatives, we extend warmest sympathy.

Arrival of New Pastor.

Rev. Gordon Dickie and his Father, Dr. Dickie, to Arrive To-day.

By to-day's express there are due to reach the city Rev. Dr. A. B. Dickie and his son Rev. Gordon Dickie, the new pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. Dickie will preach at the morning and evening services on Sunday at St. Andrew's Church, when the congregation will be privileged to hear a talented and celebrated speaker. He has written the history of the Presbyterian Church in Canada and the products of his pen are well known and highly regarded in the Dominion. He will take part in the ceremony in which his son will be inducted into his sacred office on Friday, December 1st, at St. Andrew's Church. The Rev. Gordon Dickie, who will be remembered, comes from St. Stephen's, New Brunswick.

Reported Killed,

NOW MUCH ALIVE.

The report that was circulated about town some time ago that Mr. Theo Fitzgerald, who was well known in wrestling circles here about seven or eight years ago, was killed in action in France, is not correct, for an old friend of his received word from him a few days ago from Montreal stating that he was then very much alive and was leaving that city for England with his Regiment, the Fifth Overseas Pioneer Battalion, C. E. F., as was also Pte. 'Ned' Jackman, son of the late E. M. Jackman, Jack O'Reilly, son of Mr. P. J. O'Reilly, Water Street, and Geo. Jackman, brother of Ned, are attached to the Irish Rangers. The officer commanding Pte. Fitzgerald's Battalion is Capt. Noall, who is well known in Newfoundland, having spent several years here.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The K. E. Brigade will attend at the evening service at the Methodist Church on Sunday next.

Mrs. Mark Sellars, Miss Carrie McKay and Reservist George Sellars were among the passengers to St. John's by this morning's train.

The Supreme Court is having a rather busy session here this fall.

Corporal Holmes, of the Nfd. Regiment, is home on a few days visit to his parents, Rev. A. A. and Mrs. Holmes.

We offer our congratulations to Lance-Corporal Arthur Webber and to all his relatives as well, on the brave soldier receiving a medal for gallant conduct while in action. Arthur is the oldest son of the late Capt. Geo. Webber, and the very first to offer himself to his King in this town.

Rev. W. McKay who was supplying at St. Andrew's Church, St. John's, for some time arrived in town on Monday night on a visit to friends. He left on the early train yesterday for his home in Canada.

The schr. Glenwood, which was badly damaged at the wharf of R. D. McRae & Sons, and has undergone extensive repairs, sailed this a.m. for Sydney.

His Lordship Bishop March was a passenger on this morning's train.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA USE CHINESE LABOR.

WASHINGTON, To-day. France and Russia, the American Government has learned, are importing thousands of Chinese and Indo-Chinese to work in munition factories to free native workmen for military duty. The number already put to work in French plants is estimated at 20,000 with 30,000 more under contract by permission of the Chinese Government for four years' services. France and Russia contracted for 20,000 of whom 5,500 reached the country. Most of the Orientals are trained artisans, drawing wages in some instances as high as five dollars a day. Specially chartered ships are moving them to France, while Russia is transporting them by way of the Siberian railroad. Reports reaching Washington declare that if the trial prove satisfactory neither France nor Russia will stop at the 70,000 men contracted for. Labor conditions in Shanghai, Hong Kong, and Canton districts are said to be already badly disturbed by the Allied draft.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day.
Apart from Western Roumania, few changes of great importance have taken place on any of the battle fronts. In the Somme region in France, the armies of both sides are almost inactive, except for the artillery, which is bombarding intermittently, the various sectors. Skirmishes and artillery duels continue on both the Australian fronts. In the Wallachian region of Roumania the Austrians and Germans are everywhere keeping up their pressure against the Roumanians. There have been forthcoming no despatches either official or unofficial which would indicate that the perilous position of the Roumanians have been ameliorated. Petrograd reports that in the Jul Valley the Roumanians are still in retreat towards Craiova, but this report probably antedates the announcement of the Germans and Austrians of the capture of

RUSSIANS DEFEAT TURKS IN PERSIA.

PETROGRAD, To-day.
An attack by Turkish troops in the Persian town of Sultanabad, on Nov. 20th was repulsed by the Russians, who inflicted great losses, the war office announced to-day. The defeated army was pursued in the Ogbot region on the Caucasus front. Important Turkish forces attacked Russians; fighting is still in progress.

A GOOD CHOICE.

NEW YORK, To-day.
Theodore Roosevelt has accepted temporarily the Honorary Presidency of the League of Neutral Nations, it was announced here last night. The organization was formed soon after the German invasion of Belgium for the purpose, according to its members, of influencing public sentiment in favor of the rights of smaller countries against military oppression by the great Powers.

BURIAL OF THE EMPEROR.

LONDON, To-day.
Arrangements for the burial of the late Emperor have not yet been made, says a Vienna despatch to Reuters, but the body will be interred in the Capuchin Mausoleum next week, probably on Thursday. On Monday the body will be removed from Schoenbrunn Castle to Hofberg Chapel, where it will lie in state on Tuesday and Wednesday.

LONDON, To-day.

Editorials in the papers yesterday concur in the view that the death of Emperor Francis Joseph and the accession of the new Monarch will not materially affect the course of the war. The extent to which the dead Emperor willingly went into the present war is discussed, and while the consensus of opinion is that the war was deliberately engineered by Germany for her own ends, some of the writers take the view that Francis Joseph was Germany's willing accomplice. Others, however, express the belief that the dead ruler was merely the impotent tool of Count Von Tschirsky, late German Ambassador to Austria, and other controllers of German policy. It is contended by some writers that the death of Francis Joseph has removed the last obstacle to Germany's complete domination of the situation. The veteran Sovereign, it is declared, was a distinguished personality, to whom Germany was compelled to behave with certain deference. Austria could not, it is argued, treat Germany quite as a subject in his lifetime. The commentators maintain that now the alleged obstacles are removed, the chains thrown by Germany around the Dual Monarchy will be tightly riveted.

DETAILS OF THE BRITANNIC.

LONDON, To-day.
The Daily News Athens correspondent sends the following concerning the sinking of the Britannic: The Britannic was torpedoed at 8 o'clock a.m. and sank near the shore 55 minutes later. She was going to Saloniki but had no wounded on board. Her complement included 121 nurses, 350 of whom were men of the Army Medical Corps. Twenty-five injured from the steamer are now in a Russian hospital, while others are aboard the Allied warships. The Islanders of Zos saw the vessel sink and the victims struggling in the waves, and promptly responded to appeals for help. An Anglo-French squadron from Piræus comprised of destroyers and auxiliaries immediately went to the scene. The injuries of some of those aboard are very severe, especially the occupants of the boats which were caught by the propeller of the ship. The women of Zos tore their clothing to bandage the injured. The Britannic had 3,000 beds, which had been prepared for the reception of sick and wounded men prior to the torpedoing. The smallness of the loss of life aboard the Britannic is believed here to have been due to the steamer's magnificent life-saving equipment.

THE BRITANNIC OUTRAGE.

LONDON, To-day.
Some London morning papers commenting on the torpedoing of the Britannic denounce this act, and contend that the ship's marking would prevent the possibility of any mistake.

BRITANNIC DELIBERATELY TORPEDOED.

LONDON, To-day.
According to an Athens despatch to the Daily Chronicle the survivors of the Britannic believe that two German submarines were lying in wait for the ship in the narrow seas close to the island. The Britannic was attacked from both sides simultaneously, each sub sending a single torpedo. One of these missed the mark, but the other inflicted a square hit. Order on board the steamer was perfect; nurses, officers and men lined the deck and showed excellent discipline.

THE NEW EMPEROR'S MANIFESTO.

LONDON, To-day.
Emperor Charles of Austria has issued a proclamation to the Austrians and Hungarians declaring his inflexible determination to maintain the war until a peace assuring the existence and development of the monarchy, according to a Vienna despatch to Reuters by way of Amsterdam.

1.00 P.M.

PROGRAMME OF SPEECHES BY BRITISH MINISTERS.

LONDON, To-day.
The morning papers attach the greatest importance to the programme just announced of addresses in various cities in Great Britain by leading members of the Cabinet. The following schedule has already been arranged:—Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of War Trade, at Bristol; Harold J. Tennant, Secretary for Scotland, at Edinburgh; Thomas McKinnon Wood, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and Lord Curzon, Lord Privy Seal, at Liverpool; H. L. Samuel, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, Newcastle; Arthur Henderson, Minister Pensions, Northampton. It is stated that the addresses are intended to gain the support of the public for a more vigorous prosecution of the war and thus to combat the anti-war propaganda in industrial centres. It is believed that the Premier, Lloyd George, Bonar Law and Reginald McKenna will participate in a joint meeting of the Unionist and Liberal War Committees along the same line and that probably both parties will take official action in support of the campaign.

GREEK RESERVISTS ATTACK RUSSIAN MINISTER.

PARIS, To-day.
The train on which Prince Demotsof, Russian Minister to Athens, was going to Salonika was fired on by bands of reservists, according to an Athens despatch.

Sergeant Nugent and Capt. T. Fitzpatrick

AT MARYSTOWN—A SPLENDID MEETING.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Allow me space in your valuable paper to recount an instance unique in the history of Marystown, namely, a lecture by one of our Nid. soldiers returned from the war. On the 16th inst. at 7 p.m. the Star of the Sea Hall being ready for the occasion, there arrived on the scene Sergt. Nugent, accompanied by Capt. Thom. Fitzpatrick. Our respected J.P., Mr. Norman, was called to the chair and in a few well chosen words introduced both speakers to the large and appreciative audience present. Capt. Fitzpatrick was the first to take the floor, and in that bright and lucid manner, which is characteristic of the genial captain, explained the motive for which the campaign was inaugurated. Sergt. Nugent, on coming to the front was cheered to the echo and was looked upon by the multitude as a representative of that gallant band who went forward on the fatal 1st of July to death and glory in defending the Empire which is the salvation of the world. The writer has had the pleasure of listening to many clever speakers politically and otherwise, but a more brilliant, impressive and forcible speaker it has never been his lot to hear.

The speaker took his hearers literally through all the scenes of the war during his sojourn in the regiment, from its leaving St. John's to the landing on the Gallipoli Peninsula, from the time they joined that marvelous flotilla of warships, converted cruisers and transports conveying for the first time in the history of the world to any extent the valiant soldiers of the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland, those gallant children, so to speak, to assist the Mother Land in that noble cause which she and her allies have espoused, namely, the moral, social and religious liberty of their subjects, and to sink for ever into oblivion the despotic and military rule of Germany and her savage hordes. Sergt. Nugent, and others of that type should always live in the hearts of their countrymen. The deeds of such self-sacrificing and patriotic men will be handed down to future generations and long after they are laid in the dust their names shall live on the roll of fame as the heroes who helped to bring the British Empire forward to glory, and establish that democracy which shall have for its object peace and contentment throughout the world. We at home do not realize the sacrifice the Empire is making for this purpose and to which Newfoundland has contributed a proportional part, not only men and money but its noble women who tearlessly and heroically have been forced to sever the nearest tie of earthly affection so that their husband, son or brother may go forward to fight and die to uphold the purity and morality of the dear ones at home.

The lectures of Sergt. Nugent and other returned veterans must certainly have an effect on the young men of the country, as with the help of Divine Providence the day is not far distant when our boys will be returning to their native land covered with glory, and should we be at home at the present time not wish to participate in those demonstrations and joyous reunions which are sure to take place when the mantle of glory shall spread itself over the British Empire and her Allies, and we trust with God's help that peace will soon be proclaimed and that our noble soldiers may not have fought and bled in vain.

J. WALSH.

Congregational Ladies' Aid Society.

ANNUAL SALE OF WORK.
The congregational Ladies' Aid Society held their annual sale of work yesterday. The attendance during the afternoon and evening was very large. The stalls which were laden with many useful articles were prettily decorated and were in charge of the following ladies:—
Refreshments—Mrs. (Rev.) Thomas, Mrs. Geo. Whiteley.
Fancywork—Mrs. H. E. Cowan, Miss N. Barnes.
Candy—Misses Thomas, Hutchings and Barnes.
Jumble—Miss Garland.
Handkerchiefs—Misses Harris, Caldwell and Steele.
Toy—Misses B. Langmead and Hill.
Following supper a most enjoyable concert took place. Those taking part were:—
Misses P. Inkpen, G. Brookes, Trapnell, Hanlin, Daley, Hayward; Messrs. Courtenay, Thomas, Williams, Christian, King and Wheeler. Messrs. King and Christian acted as the accompanists.
The affair which proved such a splendid success was under the able management of Mrs. Langmead, President of the Society and those associated with her, who are to be congratulated on the success achieved.
