A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XV.

Their hands dropped apart, then stole together again, to drop apart reluctantly and for good as they went up the Towers drive.

Carrie and Ricky were on the terrace, and Ricky waved his hand and shouted to Maida, then checked himself as he saw Heroncourt, and raised his hat.

"Who's that swell with her? Why, it's Lord Heroncourt!"

Carrie ran down the steps to meet them.

"Ricky's come, Maida—our friend has come, Lord Heroncourt. Why—she broke out and looked from one to the other and caught Maida by the arm—"why—what has happened? Why are you looking like that?"

At the sound of her voice, Mr. Carrington, who was hovering about the hall, came out and stood on the top step. Carrie took Maida in her arms and laid her face on the loving bosom.

"Carrie!" she breathed.

But Heroncourt took her hand and quietly led her forward to Mr. Carrington.

"Maida—Miss Carrington—has promised to be my wife—if you will consent, sir," he said.

CHAPTER XVI.

It was rather a dramatic announcement; but Heroncourt had obeyed the impulse of the moment, and to Carrie, at least, his way of doing it seemed simply splendid. She pounced on Maida and threw her arms round her, murmuring inarticulate endearments. Ricky stood gazing from one to the other. Mr. Carrington stared open-mouthed at Heroncourt, his round face red with astonishment and pleasure.

"You—you don't say so! You take me by surprise, Lord Heroncourt," he gasped. "Better come with me into the library."

With a look of infinite love and pride at Maida, Heroncourt followed him.

"I'm afraid I've been guilty of a breach of etiquette, and have seemed rather disrespectful, Mr. Carrington. I ought to have spoken to you first, but—"

"That's all right, my lord," said Mr. Carrington, waving him to a seat and sinking into an arm-chair, and his eyes wandered round the room—far too brilliant in color for a library, and with all the books gaudily bound in many-colored calf and morocco. "I'm surprised, as I said—not that any man mightn't fall in love with my girl; she's one of the best, Lord Heroncourt—a perfect treasure—she's never—neither of 'em has ever given me half an hour's uneasiness; and Maida—well, you know what she is!"

"Indeed I do!" said Heroncourt, in a low voice, and with a tender light in his dark eyes. "She is the sweetest, noblest, most perfect type of womanhood; but I love her, sir, and you will know how precious she is to me. That she should return my love—ah, well, it is one of those mysteries which one cannot hope to solve."

Mr. Carrington wagged his head. He was slowly realising that this man who had won Maida was a peer of the realm; that he—Carrington—would probably be the grandfather of a peer.

Oh, how right he had been to secure the Roaring Jane! How wisely he had used the wealth which might have fallen into the useless hands of Josiah Parley!

"Of course I give my consent, Lord Heroncourt. I shouldn't stand in the way of my girl's happiness in any event, whoever she had chosen; but it gives me very great pleasure that she should have chosen as she has done. I couldn't have picked out a man more after my own heart than yourself, Lord Heroncourt."

Heroncourt bowed.

"And yet I am afraid you don't know very much about me, Mr. Carrington," he said, gravely; "and I am still more afraid that your approval will be qualified when I tell you that I—I am not a very eligible suitor."

Carrington smiled to himself. Fan-

Black as Dirt About the Eyes

Liver Was All Upset and There Was Pain Under the Shoulder-blade—Two Interesting Letters.

Toronto, Ont., July 2nd.—So many people suffer from derangements of the liver that we feel sure these two reports, just recently received, will prove interesting reading and valuable information to many readers of this paper.

Mrs. F. L. Harris, Keatley P. O., Sask., writes: "I was suffering from liver trouble—had a heavy pain under one shoulder blade all the time, and was nearly as black as dirt around the eyes, so I concluded to try some of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and before I had taken one 25c. box the pain had left me and I commenced to gain in flesh, and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and felt like a new person. My trouble was caused by heavy work out-of-doors, and, of course, heavy eating and constipation. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney or liver trouble to give Dr. Chase's Pills a trial."

Mrs. Charles Terry, Tweed, Ont., writes: "Before I was married I was troubled with enlargement of the liver. My liver became so enlarged that you could detect the swellings on either side, and it was only with difficulty that I could get my clothes on. A friend advised me to get Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and take them. I commenced this treatment, and used nine boxes, which cured me at that time. Then, about two or three years afterward I was troubled again with the swelling, but only on my right side. I secured some more Kidney-Liver Pills, and took them, which finally cured me. I have not been troubled in this way since. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone having kidney or liver trouble."

"We have also found Dr. Chase's Linnæus and Turpentine excellent for coughs and cold. In fact, any of Dr. Chase's medicines which we have used have been good." Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c. a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

cy an earl of such an old family, with a place like the Court, talking of being ineligible! But it was very nice and modest of him.

"I ought to have told you, before I asked Maida—Miss Carrington—to be my wife, that I am anything but a desirable son-in-law."

"Nothing wrong against you. You haven't got a 'past,' as they call it, I hope?" said Carrington.

Heroncourt shook his head.

"I've not much to confess in the way you mean," he said. "Maida is the only woman I have ever cared for, and I have no—entanglements." Carrington's face cleared.

"Well, then, that's all right," he said.

"No; my past has been a useless and foolish one enough. Heaven knows! But there is nothing—no other woman—"

Mr. Carrington nodded with evident satisfaction.

"But I am terribly poor, Mr. Carrington. Everything that can be mortgaged is mortgaged, and I am heavily in debt. I had intended remaining a bachelor and letting the title and estate go to a young cousin who is still a kid—"

Carrington shook his head with decided disapproval.

"Oh, that wouldn't do at all!" he said, as if he were a man of an old family himself and realized the responsibilities of a man of Heroncourt's position. "Of course it's your duty to marry. Lord Heroncourt, you must keep the title and the estates, you know."

"Well, I propose to do my duty, with your consent," said Heroncourt, with a grave smile. "But it is only right that you should know my position exactly. I have only an income of a few hundred. We should not be able to live at the Court; indeed, it is probable that we might have to live on the Continent."

Mr. Carrington leant back and smiled with a kind of genial self-satisfaction and pomposity.

"I don't know about that," he said. "Look here, Lord Heroncourt, I happen to be a rich man. You may or may not know how rich I am."

"I have never given the matter a thought. It would have made no difference to me if you had been quite poor," said Heroncourt. And he spoke the truth. "When I told Maida that I loved her—had loved her the first time I saw her—I should have asked you to give her to me if you had been as poor as I am myself."

"Very noble and—staunch—quite English and manly," said Mr. Carrington approvingly. "Well, Lord Heroncourt, I happen to be the owner—or very nearly the sole owner—of one of the richest mines in Klondike. It's worth a million—millions; in fact, I don't know and I can't quite make out what it's worth. Anyway, there's enough money to make your poverty of no consequence whatever—"

Heroncourt winced, but managed to conceal the fact from the self-satisfied parent.

"In short, there's enough money for all of us, to go all round. I've no son—worse luck!—and my girls will inherit it all. Now, I might keep it till I'd gone off the hooks; but I'm not going to do that. I thoroughly approve of you; in fact, I'm proud of having you for a son-in-law. I'm not a snob, I hope, but I've an Englishman's respect for a title and an old family, and I'm going to make it easy for you and Maida. Yes, that's what I'm going to do. Made up my mind when you announced it out there on the terrace—and very nicely and manly you did it. I said, 'Here's a gentleman, a nobleman, who wants to marry my daughter, and he will want money to do it on. It's no fault of his that he's poor, and it's a bit of good luck that you're rich.' So look here, Lord Heroncourt, let your lawyers state what they think would be a proper settlement for me to make on my daughter, and I'll settle it. What's more, I'll take over the mortgages and leave 'em to you when I die. And that isn't all; I'll pay your debts—yes, every one of them, even to the tailors' and boot-makers'—oh, I know that you gentlemen of birth and rank have to live up to it—and I'll hand you a lump sum on your wedding-day, say—say forty thousand pounds."

Heroncourt, still inwardly wincing,

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get my medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

coloured as if he were overwhelmed, as indeed he was, by this lavish liberality.

"You—you are treating me with extraordinary generosity, sir," he said in a low voice.

"Well, perhaps I am," admitted Mr. Carrington. "But I'm doing it of my own free will; and—I like doing it. You let me know how the sum figures out, and I'll pay it into your bank. There's no cause for gratitude. I've no son, as I said, and I regard you from this moment as standing in the place of one. Not live at the Court! Why, it's the proper place for you. And, of course, you'll want a house in town—"

"There is one—it is let," said Heroncourt.

"Oh, well, it will fall vacant. And there isn't going to be any more lettings, Lord Heroncourt. Are there any other places?"

"There is the castle in Scotland and a villa in Florence. They're all let, thank goodness!"

"Oh, we'll soon have 'em empty," said Mr. Carrington. "Perhaps you think I'm talking rather big, Lord Heroncourt; but I don't think I am. I'm not one of the city mushrooms, springing up to-day and cut down to-morrow. No, my lord. You or your lawyers are welcome to see my bank-book and go over my investments—"

Heroncourt rose, horror at the suggestion fighting with his sense of the man's liberality.

"Good Lord, Mr. Carrington!" he could not help ejaculating. "I've not the least desire of taking such a liberty. I am very grateful to you for your generosity; but I'm still more grateful to you for giving Maida to me, and I should have been just as grateful if you had given her to me without a penny, now or to come—"

Mr. Carrington rose and held out his hand.

"Spoken like a man and a nobleman, Lord Heroncourt," he cried. "You're a man after my own heart, and I trust my daughter to you with every confidence. I like you, my lord, I like you!"

"What is the correct length of time one should wear mourning after the death of one's brother?" inquired Mary.

"One usually wears mourning for one year for a brother. Deep mourning at first and lighter mourning afterward. This is just a matter that one may adjust to one's own satisfaction, since deep mourning is not worn now as much as formerly," said her friend.

Closing the

(By J. Edward Walker in the Scientific American.)

It would be the height of folly to conclude that the reduction in the losses of ships during the past two or three weeks indicates that the German submarine warfare is on the wane, and that the curve of losses will drop steadily from now on until the vanishing point is reached. As we go to press, indeed, the present week shows a rise of over 100 per cent above the week preceding. Of all the leading powers concerned in this tremendous problem—Great Britain, France, Italy, ourselves and Germany—the last-named power only can explain these fluctuations, and for obvious reasons Germany keeps the truth to herself.

What is the meaning of this reaction in losses? Have the Allies themselves included, devised some together new and very effective means which are sinking the U-boats faster than Germany can build them? Is it a fact that the multiplication of hostile surface craft has so completely dominated the infested waters that the submarines must stay below and hesitate even to show their periscopes when they hear the throbbing propellers of an approaching ship? Is it that Germany has been working her submarine fleet and the crews which man it with such furious persistence that the submarines are being run down and the crews are exhausted?

Or is it that Germany is seeking to develop a sense of false security, so that she may gain the moral effect of another sudden and portentous outburst of activity which will make the Allies hopeless of ever successfully meeting the problem? As to the truth of these surmises we are utterly in the dark.

This much, however, we do know. That every dictate of military, political and economic prudence demands that we prosecute the anti-submarine war, not with relaxed but with redoubled energy, and leaving no stone unturned to meet it.

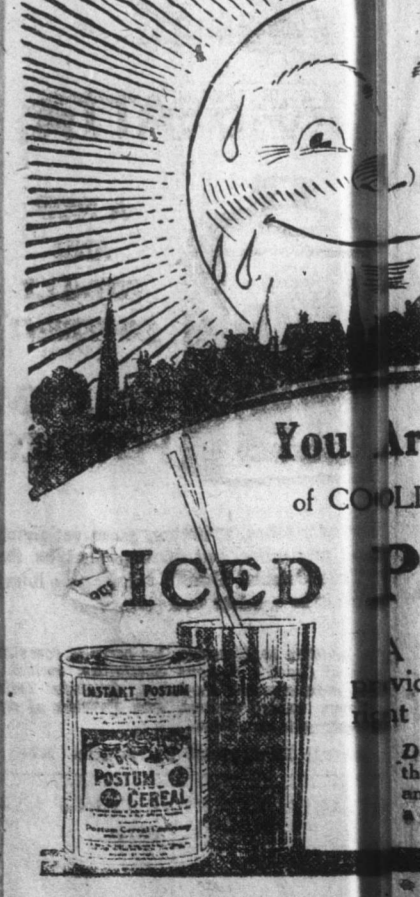

Losses Are Still Very Serious.

The goal at which the Allies should aim and short of which they should not cease their efforts, is the absolute defeat and wiping out of German submarine activity. There is a danger lest we be that terrible wreck over which ships were lost, as our thinking point, and fall into the habit of thinking that a weekly record of losses something less than that is cause for satisfaction and good reason for easing up in the submarine fight. We must realize that the recent 100,000-ton water mark of a loss of fifteen ships of over 1,600 tons is in itself a really appalling and irreparable disaster—a rate of loss, which, if continued, must place the Allies' cause at a most serious disadvantage.

If we assume an average displacement for these ships of 3,500 tons, we reach a total loss for the week of 52,500 tons, and if this rate were continued, and the ships under 1,600 tons were included this would mean a loss of not less than 3,000,000 tons per annum.

Existing Methods Are Inadequate.

Now, if the Germans go on sinking 3,000,000 tons of shipping a year it will be because the recent defensive and offensive methods against the U-boats are a failure. Only a foolish optimism can lead us to any other conclusion. The Germans are getting too many ships; altogether too many; and there is something wrong either with the means and instruments employed against them or in the general principles upon which the warfare is being conducted. Now, there is nothing wrong with the instruments. They are ingenious and multifarious.

Closing the North Sea.

(By J. Howard Walker in the Scientific American.)

It would be the height of folly to conclude that the reduction in the losses of ships during the past two or three weeks indicates that the German submarine warfare is on the wane, and that the curve of losses will drop steadily from now on until the vanishing point is reached. As we go to press, indeed, the present week shows a rise of over 100 per cent above the week preceding. Of all the leading powers concerned in this tremendous problem—Great Britain, France, Italy, ourselves and Germany—the last-named power only can explain these fluctuations, and for obvious reasons Germany keeps the truth to herself.

What is the meaning of this reduction in losses? Have the Allies, ourselves included, devised some altogether new and very effective means which are sinking the U-boats faster than Germany can build them? Is it a fact that the multiplication of hostile surface craft has so completely dominated the infested waters, that the submarines must stay below and hesitate even to show their periscopes when they hear the throbbing propellers of an approaching ship? Is it that Germany has been working her submarine fleet and the crews which man it with such furious persistence that the submarines are badly run down and the crews are exhausted? Or is it that Germany is seeking to develop a sense of false security, so that she may gain the moral effect of another sudden and portentous outburst of activity which will make the Allies hopeless of ever successfully meeting the problem? As to the truth of these surmises we are utterly in the dark.

This much, however, we do know: That every dictate of military, political and economic prudence demands that we prosecute the anti-submarine war, not with relaxed but with redoubled energy, and leaving no stone unturned to meet it.

Losses are still very serious. The goal at which the Allies should aim and short of which they should not cease their efforts, is the absolute defeat and wiping out of German submarine activity. There is a danger lest the week that terrible week when over 700 ships were lost, as our starting point, and fall into the habit of thinking that a weekly record of losses something less than that is cause for satisfaction and good reason for easing up in the submarine fight. For we must realize that the recent low-water mark of a loss of fifteen ships of over 1,600 tons is in itself a truly appalling and irreparable disaster—a rate of loss, which, if continued, must place the Allies' cause at a most serious disadvantage.

If we assume an average displacement for these ships of 3,500 tons, we reach a total loss for the week of 52,500 tons, and if this rate were continued, and the ships under 1,600 tons were included this would mean a loss of not less than 3,000,000 tons per annum.

Existing Methods Are Inadequate. Now, if the Germans go on sinking 3,000,000 tons of shipping a year it will be because the recent defensive and offensive methods against deep-sea depredations are a failure. Only a foolish optimism can lead us to any other conclusion. The Germans are getting too many ships; altogether too many; and there is something wrong either with the means and instruments employed against them or in the general principles upon which the warfare is being conducted. Now, there is nothing wrong with the instruments. They are ingenious and multi-form and are being most energetically employed on a truly enormous scale. It is our belief that in this game of submarine "swatting" ingenuity has been taxed to the limit, and we see little reason to hope that any single device, or combination of devices, or any of the tactics of submarine hunting as at present carried out on the high seas are going to prove effective in preventing this annual loss of 3,000,000 or more tons of shipping. It begins to look as though we would have to change radically our whole plan of campaign.

At the Source. It is pretty well understood that there are two broad policies by which the submarine can be fought. Either we may let the submarine fleet pass out on to the high seas, and then commence a still hunt for its individual units, or we may go to the source and shut up the U-boats within certain prescribed areas. Hitherto we have been following the former plan, and a rate of losses of 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 tons of shipping a year, proves, if it proves anything, that the plan is a failure. The fact cannot be questioned; and if this murderous piracy is to be wiped out we must adopt the opposite and obvious policy of blocking the submarine fleets at their point of exit and fighting them within their own waters. This may be done in two ways. We may institute a coast blockade by building continuous nets across the entrances to Zebrugee, Wilhelmshaven, the Elbe and the Baltic, or we may surrender the North Sea entirely to the German submarines and shut them within it by a wall of obstruction across the English Channel at Dover and across the North Sea from Scotland to Norway.

Closing the North Sea.

An estimate of the total length of netting and the total number of patrol boats necessary for closing these various submarine bases shows that a more satisfactory and more effective result can be obtained by sealing the Straits of Dover and building a huge net from the coast of Scotland to the coast of Norway. It is stated that the Germans have equipped their submarines with various types of net-cutting devices, which they claim are effective and will carry the larger submarines through any net that can be built. How true this is we do not know. Rumor has it that two kinds of cutters are used, namely, revolving knives, carried well beyond the nose of the submarine, and long keen knife blades extending from the bow aft, which, it is claimed, will cut through the heaviest wire work. This may be true; though we doubt it. Anyone who has tried to cut a piece of plough-steel wire knows that it requires a sharp chisel, an unyielding anvil, and no little muscular strength to do the trick, and we very much doubt if any revolving knife or razor-like edge would cut through the thick but flexible wire of a heavy net.

Be that as it may, we are strongly of the opinion that the most effective barrier would be a combination of the net and the mine, in which the net performs the function of a carrier to sustain a continuous wall of mines, so spaced that any submarine which touched the curtain would be breached and open to the sea in one or more places.

APPEAL TO PRODUCERS.

Oh, hens, get busy laying eggs, keep things in steady motion; we want to ship a million kegs to allies o'er the ocean. In times of peace one egg a day we a 11 considered plenty, but in these times of stress and fray you ought to turn out twenty. The hen that will not do her best, can't have me as a backer; no loyalty is in her breast, she is a tinhorn slacker. So, Brahma, Leghorn, Plymouth Rock, Minorca, Scrub and Dorking, lay eggs, lay eggs, all round the clock, and make a record corking! You should be, in the country's plight, its staunchest friends and boosters. Lay eggs, lay eggs, by day and night! Quit flirting with the roosters! Oh, crows! "The grass is fine as silk," I hear you glibly mutter, and you should turn out tubs of milk and fifty kinds of butter. In times of peace we didn't care if you went dry or balky, but now that shrapnel fills the air, such conduct is too rocky. We've kept your stomachs, bovine band, with most expensive grub full, and now that milk is in demand, you ought to give a tubful. Speed up, speed up, if you would save the land from ruin utter! Don't like a bunch of steers behave, but turn out milk and butter.

War Veterans Welcomed.

PRIVATE BROWN SUFFERING FROM SHELL SHOCK.

By the express which reached the city at 5.30 p.m. on Saturday the following war veterans under command of Capt. H. A. Ross returned on furlough: Lieuts. S. James, E. Ellis, H. Peckham; Sergts. F. Brien, Gushue, Warren, R. Spencer, Vaughan; Ptes. Brown, Lambert, Gillingham, Rendell, Hogan, Bastow, Harvey, Moore, Ronayne and Ploughman. At the station the returned heroes were welcomed by the Premier, the Ladies' Reception Committee, a squad of volunteers, relatives and friends and a large gathering of citizens. The Premier extended a hearty welcome home to the men who so nobly defended the Empire in its great struggle for the freedom of the world. At the conclusion of the Premier's address cheers were given for the returned heroes, after which they were included in cabs and driven to their homes.

Included in the number was Pte. Brown of Hr. Grace, who is in a critical state of health from the effects of shell shock, being so sick that it was necessary to remove him from the sleeping coach to the hospital in the ambulance. Pte. Brown enlisted early last year but did not go to France till about the end of the year. On Jan. 28th, while in the advance trenches, he was stricken with shell shock and shortly after was removed to Wandsworth Hospital. Despite the best medical treatment that could be obtained in England he has not improved in health, and finally, after passing through the hands of five expert medical men, he was sent home with the hope that his native air would help to restore him to his former health.

The ship reached as far north as Quirpon. On her return south the Prospero took on board a man named Stephen Maddick, at St. Anthony, where he had been under treatment for some time for a serious ailment and was being brought home incurable. Early yesterday morning a change in the patient's condition occurred and he passed away. The body was taken to the morgue for examination on arrival of the ship here and will be sent to Carbonear, the home of the deceased, who was 35 years of age and is survived by a mother.

The fishery north is good on the whole, particularly south of Twillingate. At Foggo there is a splendid voyage ashore already.

THE RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE.

It is not inappropriate, and it may have been of design, that the anniversary of the opening of the great Anglo-French offensive in France should mark the first return of Russia to her task on the battlefield.

But it is spread over a far more considerable area. Berlin despatches speak of artillery duels all the way north to the Stokhod, suggesting that the all-important Kovel may soon be in danger again.

Thus the situation daily improves. The net draws closer about Lenz; the Germans are viciously attacking the French at Verdun and before Laon.

Commemoration Services Yesterday.

AT THE R. C. CATHEDRAL.

At the eleven o'clock Mass in the R. C. Cathedral yesterday His Grace the Archbishop occupied the pulpit and preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion. He recalled to the minds of the congregation the fact that it was just twelve months ago that day since the dread realities of war had been brought home to our people in a sense in which they had not realized them before.

We recall to-day, His Grace said, how cheerfully and willingly they went forth, impelled by a sense of duty when the call for voluntary service was heard throughout the Empire.

His Grace concluded by quoting to them the words of the Epistle of the day which, he said, would seem to be addressed particularly to them.

"The eyes of the Lord are upon the just, and his ears unto their prayers; but the countenance of the Lord up on them that do evil things.

count that had come from the other side had spoken in terms of the highest praise of the splendid spirit of our Newfoundland soldiers and sailors, of their coolness in the face of danger, their discipline, their resource and their absolute fearlessness.

A United Sunday School service was held in the afternoon, when the Rev. H. Hull and J. H. Arnup spoke.

In the morning Rev. James Pincock, who leaves shortly for Canada, conducted a Love Feast.

At 10 a.m. Rev. S. Bennett conducted a Love Feast. At the morning service Rev. W. H. Dotchen preached an able sermon on the text "Because of the people."

At St. Thomas's.

At St. Thomas's Church yesterday morning a special service authorized by the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland in commemoration of those who had fallen at the battle of Beaumont Hamel, July 1st, 1916, was held.

The service was conducted by the Rev. C. A. Moulton. An impressive and eloquent sermon was preached by the Rev. A. Clayton, C.F. (who wore on this occasion his Chaplain's scarf).

At St. Andrew's.

The congregation of St. Andrew's Church were treated yesterday to an able and eloquent sermon delivered by Professor Line, who spoke on the words: "The Christian Will Power," taking as his text "Quit you like men, be strong."

At the evening service the speaker was the Rev. H. Hull, a Canadian minister, who delivered a powerful address. His subject was the moral law, through obedience to which and through it alone man obtains perfect freedom.

A special service bearing on the Deaconess movement was held in the morning. The President of the Conference presided. The Rev. H. Hull, who is Superintendent of the Methodist Deaconess work, spoke at length on the subject, paying a tribute to the tender services of women, which he said had been much enlarged by the war.

HELP THE RED CROSS.

To-morrow night's clash between the B.I.S. and Cubs promises to furnish an exciting hour-and-a-half to local fandom.

Gerald St. John is on the express to-day, and will be just in time for to-morrow night's game.

Great hopes are placed by the team's supporters in the Irish battery this year, and Manager McGrath is quite confident of success.

Said Dick McGrath to Ernie C.—"I think your club is on the B—." "Don't crow! YOUR gang looks pretty raw."

The lineups of both teams will be in to-morrow's papers.

Fred Roberts, the new Cubs' rookie, has the reputation of being able to lam for two bags or more anything that comes across the plate.

Going down to second with the "two and three," with a slow runner on first and your worst pitcher at the plate.

Rushing home from third on a sort of grounder after one man out, irrespective of your chance score or gallop to sure death.

The pitch-out trick-wasting after ball with a grinning runner till you have to send one runner for the batter to slaughter.

Taking out a pitcher who has been hurling scoreless ball and having a pitch hitter strike out for him—both the other side beats the stuff out of your relief pitcher.

"He says to me, he says, says he, That the B. I. S. team should win I thought at first that I should boss it to hear him handing out that chin I never saw this here McGrath or And say, them bunch ain't going cap."

"He says to me, he says, says he, That he was smooth and I was raw Or else I'd know we had a show when no one knew more than me."

"I says, says I, to this wise guy That he's a daffy kind of hoid If he could dream the Irish team Would end the season even though"

Fallen Heroes

Beating into a double play instead of sacrificing, with men on first and second and nobody out.

The pitch-out trick-wasting after ball with a grinning runner till you have to send one runner for the batter to slaughter.

Taking out a pitcher who has been hurling scoreless ball and having a pitch hitter strike out for him—both the other side beats the stuff out of your relief pitcher.

AND OTHERS

I am for two bags or more anything that comes across the plate. I have Joe Murphy's word for that. Fans will surely appreciate a close-up artist of this calibre.

THE ASININITIES OF BASEBALL "Waiting 'em out" on a pitcher can stick 'em as straight and true though he were laying a tapeline do the groove.

Going down to second with the "two and three," with a slow-foot runner on first and your worst ter at the plate.

Rushing home from third on a sort of a grounder after one man out, irrespective of your chance score or gallop-to-sure death.

Banging into a double play instead of sacrificing, with men on first and second and nobody out.

The pitch-out, trick-wasting before after ball with a grinning runner, first, till you have to send one right over for the batter to slaughter.

With runners on first and third, a two out, delaying the steal of second till two strikes have been called on feeble batsman.

"Taking out a pitcher who has been hurling scorpions and having pinch hitter strike out for him—a small thing, but the other side beats the stuffing out of your relief pitcher.

HOW IT STANDS. "He says to me, he says, says he, "That he was smooth and I was rough, I thought at first that I should bring out his course will be a show I never saw this here McGraw."

And say, them bunch ain't going cop. He kept on shooting off his jaw and gee! I couldn't make him stop.

"He says to me, he says, says he, "That he was smooth and I was rough, I thought at first that I should bring out his course will be a show I never saw this here McGraw."

When no one knew more than McGraw. I says, says I, to this wise guy "That he was smooth and I was rough, I thought at first that I should bring out his course will be a show I never saw this here McGraw."

Would end the season even though he was smooth and I was rough, I thought at first that I should bring out his course will be a show I never saw this here McGraw."

Fallen Heroes of Beaumont Hamel Honored Yesterday.

Their Memory Cherished by Thousands of Citizens—Giant Naval and Military Parade—Premier and Leader of Opposition Deliver Impressive Addresses.

Citizens of St. John's turned out in thousands yesterday afternoon to pay tribute to the memory of our fallen heroes who sacrificed their young lives at the Battle of Beaumont Hamel on July 1st, 1916. Never in the history of this most loyal colony was there a more impressive scene than the one which was witnessed at the Colonial Building yesterday. The beautiful building, with its great pillars of white granite and large open spaces in front, was handsomely decorated with the flags of the Allied nations, while placed between the pillars on the top of the stone steps were the German machine guns captured by the Nfld. Regiment on Oct. 13th, 1914. At 3.30 o'clock the different units assembled at the C. L. B. Armory and proceeded to the Colonial Building in the following order: Wounded Soldiers with Nurses in automobiles.

C. L. B. Band. Royal Naval Reservists, with muskets and cutlasses. Returned Volunteers. Regimental Drum and Bugle Band. The Men of the Regiment. C. C. C. Bugle Band. Forestry Companies. C. L. B. Band. Church Lads' Brigade. Catholic Cadet Corps. Newfoundland Highlanders.

Along the route of march the C.L.B. and C.C.C. bands discoursed patriotic airs, while the bugle and drum bands of the Regiment and brigades sounded marching steps for the boys.

At four o'clock the mammoth parade, accompanied by thousands of citizens, arrived at the Parliament grounds and on passing through the gates lined up in close formation in front of the steps, preference being given the returned veterans while the brigades and regiments brought up the rear. Staff of Police Grimes, with a squad of policemen, kept the grounds free till the arrival of the parade.

On the steps were: Rt. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, K.C.M.G., P.C., Premier, Dr. W. F. Lloyd, Leader of the Opposition, both of whom gave eloquent and impressive addresses, the account of which we give below; the Chief Justice Sir W. H. Horwood, Justices Johnson and Kent of the Supreme Court, Hon. P. T. McGrath, Members of the Legislative Council, Members of the Legislative Council and of the House of Assembly, Clergymen of the different denominations, Mayor Gosling and the members of the Parliament of the friendly nations. Commandant MacDermott and officers of H.M.S. Briton, Major Montgomerie and officers of the Newfoundland Regiment, Commanding Officers of the City Brigades, a number of ladies prominent in patriotic work, representatives of the press and other prominent citizens.

Outside the grounds and in Bannerman Park was the largest gathering of citizens ever seen to assemble at the Colonial Building. Immediately on the parade being called to attention, the whole assembly was addressed by the Premier. He said that this celebration was for the purpose of insulating an anniversary to be cherished by future generations in Newfoundland. He read the following messages from His Excellency the Governor who was then attending a memorial service at Burgeo: To Rt. Hon. Sir Edward Morris, P.C., St. John's.

I deeply regret that I cannot attend in person the Commemorative Services at St. John's on July 1st. I shall be present at the service at Burgeo on that day. It has been my ardent hope that July 1st might be adopted as the National Holiday of Newfoundland to commemorate that morning when the soldier heroes of the Ancient Colony laid down their lives and won imperishable glory for their native land. For most of us July 1st is a day of mourning in our homes, but to every stout-hearted Newfoundland the pride of race will transcend the personal sorrow. Newfoundlanders have had the right to be proud of their sturdy forbears. Now they have greater right to be proud of themselves because of the valiant lads who fell this day last year. There are other dates and other battles not one whit less honourable, but July 1st, 1916, is the day when we entered the brotherhood of Fame. W. E. DAVIDSON, Governor.

To the officers commanding the 1st and 2nd Battalions in France and Ayr:— To the Officers Commanding the 1st and 2nd Battalions in Ayr:— In commemorating the first anniversary of July 1st, 1916, when the Regiment achieved everlasting fame and glory, the people of Newfoundland send greetings and good wishes to all ranks overseas, confident that

ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONISTS WORSTED AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Man., To-day. Police intervention averted a riot scene at an anti-conscription meeting to-day. Four arrests by the city police followed a free for all fight in which the anti-conscriptionists were quickly driven from the neighborhood of Market Square, where speeches were to have been delivered. At least fifty per cent. of the crowd were alien enemies, according to Lieut. Campbell of the Intelligence Dept. Clubs were freely used during the fight. Hammers and rotten eggs also played a destructive part. One foreigner was caught in the act of stabbing with a clasp knife a well known returned soldier, Alderman Queen, who attempted to speak, made a successful get-away, although not without being mauled. All of the arrested men were anti-conscriptionists. They were released on bail, no charges being preferred. The crowd's attendance was estimated at 9,000.

GERMANS UNDER-DOGS AT LENS.

LONDON, To-day. Reuter's special correspondent with the British Army in France, describing the operations around Lens, says: Down to Thursday evening we have been systematically pushing the Germans in a northeasterly direction, by which time our line roughly ran from the fringe of Cote-De-Moulin across the Souchez River and the Lens-Arras Road through an old trench system front of Elu-Du-Lavitte, bending round so as to follow the trend of the Meneourt-Avon switch. Double operations which developed on Thursday evening, although distinct in their phases, were part of the same tactical scheme. The enemy's withdrawal from the outer defences of Lens had tended to weaken the resisting powers of the Oppy line between that place and Souchez, and so occasion was taken to strike a blow here with quite satisfactory results. As a consequence of the activity of the last few days around the Lens salient and south thereof we made a substantial gain of territory and have taken something like 400 prisoners and about 20 machine guns and killed or wounded a large number of the enemy. Our own casualties in these operations have been slight relative to the number engaged and the success achieved. On the whole the enemy have not been fighting well, although there have been instances to the contrary. He knows he is going backwards and whether he is told this is according to the plan on whether he has the perception to realize he is being beaten back, the result must equally be to produce an underdog feeling. More than once the occupants of trenches and posts have bolted on the advance of our men and even the order of the higher command to reorganize man-power to the utmost can scarcely justify such tactics. The spirit of our troops is indomitable and beyond praise. Here is a little episode which suffices to prove that these are not words of extravagant eulogy: A little advanced post south of the Cojeul River, held by fifteen of our men, was the object of a surprise attack during the darkest hour of Wednesday night. Following upon a sudden shower of bombs which wounded ten of the little garrison, twenty German stormtroops (storming troops) rushed the post. The remaining five, standing back to back, made a stand that recalls Rorke's Drift. The noise of bombing and firing brought up reinforcements, and the Germans took to their heels, leaving two prisoners in the hands of the five defenders. The Germans took back with them none but their own wounded.

FRENCH STEAMER SUNK.

PARIS, To-day. The French steamer Himalaya, of the Messageries Maritimes, with 204 passengers and crew was sunk as the result of an explosion in the Mediterranean; 176 persons were saved. The steamer Himalaya (correct) was 5,620 tons gross and was last reported at Marseilles.

MAY MEAN SOMETHING.

AMSTERDAM, To-day. Emperor Charles, of Austria-Hungary, and Empress Zita have arrived at Munich. They were received by the King and Queen of Bavaria.

COURAGEOUS FOOD CONTROLLER.

LONDON, To-day. Lord Rhondda, Food Controller, speaking at Cardiff last night, said he had a suspicion that Premier Lloyd George, who had conscripted him for his new post very much against his will, chose him for an almost impossible job after so many better men had refused because he knew that he had the hide of a rhinoceros. "I am going there," he added, "and let there be no mistake about it, as the guardian and trustee of the consumer, and particularly of the poor consumer." Lord Rhondda said he was not satisfied with the powers he had and was going to take more powers. He is determined to put a stop to profiteering and speculation in food, but he warned his hearers that it was impracticable to bring down prices to anything like standard before the war.

PUNITIVE EXPEDITION INTO AFGHANISTAN.

LONDON, To-day. The return of a Punitive expedition from the district of Waziristan in the northwest frontier province on the border between India and Afghanistan is reported in an official statement. The expedition encountered was negligible. Our planes raided Makin and Marabi with considerable effect. The Mohammedan tribesmen who lived in northwest India gave the British Government much trouble early in 1915 and in November, 1915, by breaking through the hills on raids into the northwest frontier province. On each occasion British dispersed the hostile forces.

AUSTRIANS ON THE DEFENSIVE.

LONDON, To-day. Austrian troops in Eastern Galicia are on the defensive against Russian attacks, says an official statement issued to-day from Austro-Hungarian General Headquarters. Russian attacks south and southeast of Brez and near Konitsch and west of Zalooz, the statement adds, were repulsed.

CHINESE UNREST.

LONDON, To-day. General Chng Hsun, says a despatch from Peking, has informed President Li Yuan Hung that he must retire, as the Manchu Emperor Hsin Tung has been restored to the throne. Another Reuter despatch from Peking says that Tsun Tang issued a mandate on Saturday morning announcing his succession to the throne of China.

A STEP FORWARD IN GREECE.

ATHENS, To-day. Premier Venizelos has invited the chiefs of the Greek Army Corps at Peloponnese to come to Athens. Most of the officers have accepted the invitation and are arriving in the Capital. The Premier will discuss with them the question of sending forces to Macedonia.

RETURN GREEK WARSHIPS.

ATHENS, To-day. An agreement has been reached whereby the French will return to Greece the vessels of the Greek light fleet stationed at Salamis, ten miles west of Athens.

 opponent made it no trumps and won the game. My partner glared at me through his tortoise rimmed glasses. "We would have set them," he said. "If you had signalled me by discarding from your strongest suit the first time you had to discard. That's the rule, you know."
 I didn't know, and I felt like a small child who has been stood on the floor in school.
 So you can imagine what healing it was to my spirit when the peacemaker said so pleasantly that not even he of the accusing tortoise rimmed eyes could take offense. "Well, you know some people think it weakens your strongest suit to discard from it."
 Not a Showy Talent But A Lovable One.
 "She's always like that," one of her old friends told me when I mentioned the incident.
 And I have found it true.
 It's not a showy talent, this "fair" for making things go more smoothly, but it's certainly an awfully lovable and livable one.
 We need more people like that.
 I used to wonder a bit why the Peacemakers in the Beatitudes were to receive one of the highest rewards. I begin to understand.

THE BRIDEGROOM.

The bridegroom is a humble cog in the marriage ceremony which is overlooked by everybody except the officiating clergyman, who never knows whether he will mesh with the ring service or get both feet caught in the wrong response. One reason why clergymen are prematurely gray is because they have to face so many heavy-hearted bridegrooms who never come in on time without being punched in the ribs by the bride's father or the best man, or both.
 Whenever there is going to be a wedding the bridegroom is invited to come to the church and he taught how to assemble his legs and hands so that he will know what to do with them during the ceremony. One of the greatest trials an eager, conscientious bride can have is a hollow-headed bridegroom, who is liable to mar the most solemn part of the execution by standing with his legs crossed and both hands folded peacefully across his stomach. If it were not for the bridegrooms who have no sense of location are apt to walk into the furnace room on the way to the altar, there would be no necessity of heating a large, stained-glass church for dress rehearsals, at heavy expense to some broken-hearted parent.
 If urged to use a patent medicine, the mother should always examine the label very carefully for the federal food and drugs act requires the manufacturers of patent medicines to print on the label of the bottle the amount or proportion of certain dangerous drugs that may be present in the so-called "remedy."

Bridegrooms have no sense of location and are apt to walk into the furnace room on the way to the altar.

The bridegroom is not consulted about anything until the honeymoon is over, when the law gives him the right to assert his authority with a ball bat, if necessary. Every once in a while some rash and untried bridegroom will object to cutting the word "obey" out of the ritual service, but he is stopped at once by the voice of conscience and a sledgehammer look from the bride's mother. There is no case on record of a bridegroom being allowed to have any more voice in the pre-nuptial arrangements than a deaf mute at a spelling match. This is no doubt one reason why so many bridegrooms rebel after marriage and run things with a high hand when they are down at the club.
 The bridegroom is always permitted to pick out his own costume and have it charged to his father. The only stipulation is that it shall be of a dark shade of black and composed of some durable material that will meet every social requirement twenty years hence. Some bridegrooms may retain their sacrificial garments in a good state of preservation until the golden state of preservation until the golden wedding, and find that the styles have whirled around until the flare-skirted Prince Albert is correct up to the minute.

Your Boys and Girls.

Attention has often been called to the danger of giving medicines to babies and children, save under competent advice, but it is well to emphasize this prohibition, particularly in regard to proprietary preparations. Numerous widely advertised nostrums frequently sold as "soothing" syrups, and preparations claiming to cure the ills of teething, diarrhoea, coughs, colds, and the like, often contain dangerous drugs and many children have lost their lives by being given such medicines.
 There is evidence to show that children who are repeatedly dosed, but who survive dosing, sometimes learn to crave these quieting drugs. They are restless and irritable after the effect of the drug wears off and remain so until it is repeated, the drug habit thus formed in the same way as with grown people.
 If urged to use a patent medicine, the mother should always examine the label very carefully for the federal food and drugs act requires the manufacturers of patent medicines to print on the label of the bottle the amount or proportion of certain dangerous drugs that may be present in the so-called "remedy."

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife, shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.
 Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. RUSSIANS OPEN HEAVY ATTACK.

BERLIN, July 1. The Russian troops in the Eastern theatre have opened a heavy attack on the Germans along the Stryva front and stormed German positions along an 18½ mile front. According to the official German report they met with heavy losses, and were forced to retire. This was the most extensive attack delivered by the Russians since the revolution.

BRITISH TROOPS CONTINUE TO MAKE PROGRESS.

LONDON, July 1. British troops continue to make progress in their encirclement of the French mining town of Lens. Today's official statement from the British headquarters reports the capture of a German defence on a half-mile front along the north bank of the Sûchez river, southwest and west of Lens.

FRENCH AND GERMAN ENGAGE IN LIVELY FIGHTING.

PARIS, July 1. French and German troops were engaged in lively fighting last night west of Deadman's Hill in the Verdun sector. The position changed hands five times and was finally abandoned by both sides. German infantry attacks on the French fort of Aricourt failed. Surprise attacks on the Aisne and Champagne fronts also were repulsed by the French.

GERMAN SHIPS FORMALLY TAKEN.

WASHINGTON, July 1. Eighty-seven German merchantmen, seized in American ports at the outbreak of war, were turned over by the President to the Shipping Board yesterday afternoon for their operation. The other fourteen already are in possession of the Navy Department.

ARMISTICE OFFERED RUSSIA.

COPENHAGEN, July 1. It is reported from a German source that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, Chief of the General Staff, in a wireless message, has again offered an armistice to Russia. This time his wish was to suspend hostilities during the election of delegates to the Russian Constitutional Convention. The report is not confirmed officially, but is in accordance with preliminary intimations last week that Von Hindenburg's new offer was contemplated.

GREECE HAS LEGAL GOVERNMENT.

SALONIKA, July 1. The Provisional Government which was established here nine months ago by Premier Venizelos and his followers, was merged on Saturday into the legal Government of United Greece. Officials of the Provisional Government have left Salonika for Athens, and steps are being taken to repatriate refugees. Salonika thus resumes normal conditions. Greek steamship companies announce the resumption of service between Salonika, and other Greek ports.

AUSTRIANS ENTER ITALIAN TRENCHES.

ROME, July 1. In a surprise attack last night the Austrian troops entered Italian advanced trenches southeast of Verdona southeast of Gorizia, but the Austrians were driven out later by Italian reinforcements, says the official statement from the war office to-day.

AMERICAN LINER ENCOUNTER SUBS.

LONDON, July 1. A gun crew of an American liner fired upon two German submarines during the voyage from the United States to England. Both targets were at a considerable range, but the report to Washington by the Commanding Officer will express the belief that one periscope was shattered. A third submarine was sighted, but at a great distance, and it submerged immediately. Passengers expressed the greatest admiration for the marksmanship of the American gunners.

BRITAIN'S ARTILLERY.

British Headquarters in France, July 1.—American officers who have been studying conditions on this front for some time past, says that they are wonderfully impressed with the British artillery, which made them more than ever conscious of the immense efforts the United States will have to make in that direction. Artillery has solved most of the problems of modern warfare. It was artillery that blew the Germans from their grim grip on Vimy Ridge. It was artillery that shook them loose from their nearly three years' hold on the high ground about Messines. It was artillery that shattered and crumpled the concrete defences of the Hindenburg line from Arras nearly all the way to Queant. It is artillery to-day that is harassing the Germans until they are fairly dazed when infantry attacks begin.

REVENUE INCREASE.

LONDON, July 1. The total revenue of the United Kingdom during the quarter ending June 30th, shows an increase of more than £43,000,000 sterling over the same period of 1916. The most striking increase is excess profits, amounting to nearly £35,000,000. Customs duties show a total of nearly £18,000,000 as compared with £16,000,000 in 1916.

FRENCH CORRESPONDENT KILLED.

British Army Headquarters in France, July 1 (Associated Press).—Serge Basset, a distinguished French War Correspondent attached to the British Armies, was killed yesterday by rifle fire while watching the fighting about Lens salient. Although several correspondents have been wounded, Serge Basset is the first journalist killed on the field during the war. He had been awarded the Legion of Honor for literary and dramatic work. He will be buried to-morrow with military honors.

RAILWAY TRAGEDY.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 1. A trolley car of the Gorge route, carrying 60 people, jumped the track and ran into Niagara River this afternoon. Early this evening the police reported 45 persons missing. Several are in hospital, seriously hurt. The car turned bottom up in the rushing current.

A bulletin forty-eight hours after the accident occurred, said officials of the Gorge route and International railway—which it connects, and were unable to determine the number dead. It was definitely known, however, that the car with a capacity of about 60 persons, was well filled, and that only a few of those aboard escaped. The cause of the accident is said to have been a washout.

NEWSPAPERS' CRITICISM.

LONDON, June 30. The speech yesterday of Lloyd George, in which he said the war will come to an end when the allied armies have reached the aims which they set up to obtain when they accepted the challenge thrown down by Germany, although mainly approved by the morning newspapers, does not escape criticism. The moderate papers' comment consists of little more than an accordant paragraph of the Premier's statement, but the more extreme press of the opposite camps, Radical and Tory, question his verdict. This some Conservative papers strongly dissent from his assumption that any difference of opinion exists between the German Governments and German people, and declared the German people are faithful to their Governments, because it accurately mirrors the spirit of Germanism. The Post says the Germans are all in this war up to their neck, and if the Premier thinks any change in the system of Government would alter their spirit, he knows nothing of the German people.

DEFENSIVE SYSTEMS CAPTURED.

LONDON, June 30. A series of strongly organized defensive systems on both banks of the Souchez, covering Lens, have been captured by the British. It is officially announced. In their recent operations the British have advanced more than a mile on a front of four miles about Lens.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, June 30. The Germans resumed their violent attack on the Verdun front west of Deadman Hill last night. Picked German troops were annihilated by the French. The Germans penetrated the first French line over the entire front attacked, but were driven out except on the western slope of Deadman's Hill. The French made a counter attack west of Hill 304 and took back most of the trenches lost on Thursday. On the Aisne front the Germans attacked northeast of Cerny, employing burning liquid. They occupied a salient after the defence had been levelled by shell fire, but were repulsed elsewhere.

FAREWELL WEEK AT ROSSLEYS.

This week at Rossley's is going to be a busy one. To-night there is a splendid selection of pictures and vaudeville. Tuesday night, last country store and all those lovely things have got to go. Wednesday, the big benefit of the Rossley Girls, and such a big show is being prepared. Every girl will give her specialty that first made her a hit and there are some big surprises in store. Thursday the Beauty Baby Competition, the names are coming in and it promises to be even bigger and better than the last one; this time there is another of those handsome cots fully and beautifully equipped, 1st prize; 2nd prize, baby's lovely silver gold lined cup; 3rd prize, baby's new high chair; 4th prize, or consolation prize, baby's beautiful new rocking chair. Don't miss any of those nights.

Fads and Fashions.

The simplest weaves are preferred among woollens. Knitted motifs are among the new hat ornaments. Gray and beige shades continue to be very fashionable. Pastel blue is much seen among wool stockinet dresses. Large novelty collars are made of gingham and pique. Long loose wraps are made of net heavily embroidered. Black satin lined with gray serge makes a charming frock. Old red and faded blue are among the favorite colors. Cotton Georgetown crepe is a new fabric coming into favor abroad. Turbans are being made of pasted goose or chicken feathers. Stocks for wear with spots suits are admirably made of pique.

Lattice stitching is lavishly used on tailored suits. Spotted foulards used for afternoon gowns are trimmed with lace. A bead motif is the most desirable trimming for automobile hats. New street gowns are showing perfectly plain panels front and back. Coin-dotted foulard is used as lining and trimming for pongee suits. Soft white Shetland veils will be a good deal seen for this summer. High princess skirts are promised for some of the new two-piece suits. Soft wide ties of surah silk are frequently used with high turnover collars.

TRAIN MOVEMENTS.—Yesterday's outgoing express left Quarry at 8.20 a.m. to-day. The incoming express is due at 6 p.m. to-day.
