No Need for Alarm in Britain

LONDON, May 15.—Prompted by recent comparisons between trade conditions in Great Britain and the United States, in which the situation of the Old Country has been painted in dark colors, the Financial Times to-day declares editorially that there is nothing necessarily alarming for Great Britain, whose turn will come. "The business of this country is not to sit down and worry," says the Times "but to recognize that the country to which the greatest degree of success will fall in the long run is the one which can serve its customers better."

Just Folks.

By EDGAR GUEST.

THE clock strikes and another hour begins.
Time's army marches by in single file.
Seemingly heedless of our virtues,
The frown of man or woman's lovely smile,
And none so wise, so rich, or so distraught,
As this brief hour to lengthen or cut short.

'Tis ten o'clock, in sixty minutes more
Eleven will ring upon the morning air.
As calm and certain as the hour before,
Unchanged by laughter or annoyed by care;
Not one in all that endless line of hours
Will pause or hurry for some whim or ours.

Sunrise and sunset, generals of the day
Man cannot bribe or threaten or control;
Storm, nor disaster, nor despair, can stay
Or change one second of the mighty whole.
Time will press on though nations rise or fall,
The passing hour is master of us all.

assisted by Lela Lee, Louis Dresser and an all Star Caste.

STORY IS DELIGHTFUL—The story of "Woman-Proof" tells of a will which provides that the four heirs to as many millions shall marry within five years of the death of the testator, failing in which, the fortune will be devoted to charity. Mr. Meighan plays the role of one son who is deemed "woman-proof" and the efforts of his sisters and brother to choose a mate form the basis of the many humorous situations in the picture.

SEVENTY-FIVE INJURED IN PANIC.
NEW YORK, May 19. At least seventy-five persons were injured, two probably fatally, in a mad panic which swept a crowded East Side subway train as it was about to leave Grand Central Station to-day. A blown fuse, followed by a series of electric lamp bulb explosions was reported to have been the cause of the incident. The train, literally jammed with humanity, came to a sharp stop block from the terminal. Men, women and children, massed into every crevice of the cars, were swept from their feet in the confusion which grew to panic proportions when the cars began to fill with stifling smoke caused by the burning insulation.

ONLY SEVEN OF FLEET REMAIN.

NEW YORK, May 19. With Rum Row reported to be dwindling daily, prohibition enforcement officers are getting busier and busier on land, R. Q. Merrick, Divisional Prohibition Enforcement Chief, says the next move will be to cut off the runners' operations over the St. Lawrence River and Great Lakes. Coast guard officials in charge of the naval blockade report Rum Row has dwindled to seven closely guarded ships. When the blockade started on May 5, the fleet of 200 vessels was reduced to only seven.

The Battalion Band will broadcast their fortnightly concert programme next Monday evening through the courtesy of J. J. Collins, Station 83 J.

HERE it is—the companion picture to "Back Home and Broke."

Same star, author, and director. Same breezy fun, sharp satire and heart appeal. Same brand of wholesome entertainment.

Miss Belle Moore assisted by lady friends of the Mess, have organized a dance in the Armory for to-night, Wednesday, at 8 p.m. Lance Corporal Reginald Morgan is the promoter. The Battalion Band under Lieut. Vavasour will provide the music. The lads and ladies are donating the proceeds to the funds of A. Company. The dance is going to be a good success

The Athletic Association have set down June 24th to hold their annual field sports. The Old Comrades' Athletes at their meeting last week elected J. A. Hiscock as their football team manager and H. Churchill's Insurance Scheme
GRUDGING APPROVAL FROM SOCIALISTS.

A prominent trade union leader gave it as his opinion that the new insurance scheme would deal a heavy blow at trade unions. People who could subscribe to the State scheme, with benefits guaranteed by the Government, would not, he believed, subscribe to trade union funds which might be frittered away on strikes and so forth.

A leading industrialist was enthusiastically in his opinion the grant of immediate old-age pensions at 65 would encourage many persons over that age to retire from industry and thus make way for men now out of work.

The scheme was received enthusiastically by the Conservatives. It had a mixed reception from the Liberals and grudging approval from the Socialists. In its main lines it was first conceived by Mr. Baldwin when he was a member of Mr. Bonar Law's Government in 1922. The Government actuaries have been working on it at intervals during the past three years. It was further developed by Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Neville Chamberlain while in Opposition last year, and has been brought to completion by Mr. Neville Chamberlain and Mr. Winston Churchill, assisted by the actuaries of the Treasury and Ministry of Health.

ZEEBRUGGE OVER AGAIN—KING ALBERT UNVEILS MEMORIAL.

Daily Mail, April 24.

ZEEBRUGGE.—To-day 250 of the raiders of Zebrugge landed on the Mole amid the echoing salutes of cannon and marched in file amid cheers and waving handkerchiefs along the great sea wall upon which seven years ago they burst like a tempest and tied for good the hands of the German submarines.

Where the Mole joins the land rises a great granite pillar, crowned with the figure of St. George, which is to be the memorial of that exploit, and they had come for its unveiling by the King of the Belgians.

The tall King, who stood in driving rain, handed over the monument to the perpetual care of the City of Brussels as a token of gratitude to the British Navy.

As he spoke one's eyes lifted to the statue of St. George, on whose day great things had been done.

He holds one hand pressed out as if to say "Wait; be attentive!" and the other, which bears the sword piercing the dragon by his feet, he holds poised—seeming to indicate to the onlooker the figures of seamen and mariners and their officers who stood below.

"There are the true memorials of the day," that gesture said, "if ever gesture spoke."

And indeed it was so, for it is upon the men more than upon statue and ceremonial that one's thoughts linger now.

"There is My Gap."

There were two unforgettable moments to-day.

One was upon the decks of the Caledon, the cruiser which had left Dover in the early morning hours to bring the survivors to Zebrugge. It was as she drew in sight of the Mole, when a quiet, broad, pale-featured man, his blue serge suit covered with medals, looked hard at the approaching masonry, and with scarcely an inflection of his voice said "There is my gap!"

It was Petty Officer Cleaver, of Submarine C.S. who was of the party that set and fired the fuses of the dynamite-loaded submarine. From a dinghy shot-pierced and barely afloat, he saw the submarine from only 200 yards away separate in two "strangely, slowly, and deliberately," as the dynamite went off, and saw the viaduct to which the submarine had been backed break into twisted iron and the Germans enter their machine guns upon it disappear.

Then his frail body entered the smoke-cloud, and from that day to this the great hole he had blown in Zebrugge Mole was only a supposition for him until to-day he stretched out his hand and pipe and said, "There is my gap." It has never been completely repaired, though trains can pass over it.

"Tipperary."

The other scene one will scarcely forget was the sight of the dwindling backs of the little group of 200 or so—for on that morn they looked few, and more of a forlorn hope than ever in their dull civilian garments—marching along the sea wall, fading from the sight of us who watched them, to the old and new and glorious and melancholy strains of "Tipperary."

The bandmaster who played it then had a fine thought.

There were other sights and scenes of the day scarcely less moving and touching.

Most of the Zebrugge men had never set eyes upon each other for seven years until they met in the cruiser on the way to Zebrugge. There were strange talk on the forecastle decks of the Caledon of that distant Twenty-third of April.

Most of the speakers told one that they had done their duty as it came to them during the violent 65 minutes the attack lasted. But once it was over and their ships were disappearing back in the smoke-screen those old scenes came back to them so terribly that they entered into a sort of stupor and hardly knew what would happen.

So they looked to-day, with a strange interest many of them, at the bare ribs of the Theis and the remains of the other block ship in the sands of the channel.

The incident which most of them recalled most vividly was that of the runways splitting and breaking beneath them with the shell-fire, and the lift and crash of the uneven seas.

They showed each other old photographs, grim photographs of Marine companies or groups of sailors taken before the attack took place, taken in sold blood, because they knew so many of them were doomed and it was felt that they should have some memento for those who were destined to be left alive.

Four V.C.s.

They pointed out men who even among themselves were distinguished for their bravery. There were four V.C.s on board—Captain Carpenter and Lieut.-Commander Dean, Major Hamford, who led the landing party of Marines, who fought the fore-top of the vindictive when she was a clear target for the concentrated fire of German guns.

All these were later presented to King Albert, who said he was proud to meet them on this memorable day. They pointed out to you Commander the sick-bay attendant, who, wounded by a shell, went on attending to the wounded and bled them with his hands when bandages ran short.

They talked of dead comrades, of the stoker they called "Lamb" who was hit by a shell and died for the "Roses of Pinar By" and of the officer, sole survivor of the company, who, back to Dover doing navigation work, but crying silently much of the way.

One who was made a prisoner of war by the Germans on the Mole was congratulated him on the gallant attack. One asked him naively, "Do you think we could raid Dover" in the same way?"

A German Ship's Passes.

They laughed and called out merrily, "Good old square-head!" which the Caledon passed on her way to Zebrugge was a German one, called the "Furg." She came very close to the Caledon, and when she or not she knew of the British cruiser's errand, at any rate, she never slipped her anchor.

They looked happy when the Belgian crowd, which was in some numbers and quite overpowered the sailing ceremony owing to the loudness of ten named vindictive and the men limping on crutches past the monument.

They showed you their badge, the twisted dragon's tail. They how every vessel which took part in the raid was represented to-day except the Daffodil, none of whose survivors was able to come.

But others they said had come from Kirkwall, Cork, Dublin, and Southampton. They were quiet and listened intently when the saluting guns went off and said "I have seen them distinctly of 'old times on the Mole."

40 of Them Out of Work.

But there were scars and wounds in plenty among them that had no amount of jocularity effaced, and the secretary of their association, who had formed a little association, was the saddest tale of the day when he said that 40 of the Zebrugge heroes were in need and without employment.

And, indeed, there was not an air of good luck about many of those who to-day, and the heavy rain fell mercilessly on some well worn coats as they waited to return along the Mole from the unveiling to the sheds which they once took, but which to-day, as a final ceremony, they were to be taken down under the generous and kindly Colonel Aerts, and retained to luncheon before the Caledon sailed back to England.

King Albert's Tribute—"Without Compare."

In his speech at the unveiling of the Zebrugge Memorial, King Albert who was accompanied by the Queen after recalling Germany's intention of a submarine campaign, said, speaking in French:

In face of this danger the British Admiralty took in hand the task of destroying enemy submarines, especially that of reducing them to impotence by bottling them up in the bases.

History relates few cases in which attempts at blockading have been successful.

But there was at the head of the expedition a man who combined the dash and the foresight and method of an accomplished warrior.

Under his leadership the rash enterprise could be attempted. It was because he had the power to inspire confidence in all, the necessary condition of victory. This confidence Admiral Sir Roger Keyes had, too, in his sailors.

St. George, whose anniversary was, was propitious to British arms, which were served by heroes without compare.

Speaking in English, the King said in the name of Belgium that he paid solemn homage of gratitude to the heroes whose deeds of arms are commemorated by the monument which are inaugurating to-day.—Reuter.

Philosophy of Labor

Principal L. P. Jacks, in the Herbert Journal: It is only as a laborer that man is either capable of education or worthy of it. The men of science, the artists, the poets, the philosophers, the heroes, the saints, the captains of industry, and the captains of salvation—what are they, in the last analysis, but highly educated laborers found most frequently in communities where culture and labor are working in alliance, least frequently where they have drifted apart, as, alas! they are drifting in these days! The great task of our time, once more, is to reunite these separated elements. Without a Philosophy of Labor it cannot be accomplished.

New Wonders in Mira—Giant Star

Recent Measurements of Its Tremendous Proportions and Vast Distance from Us Stagger Our Imaginations.

(ARTHUR A. STUART.)
More than 300 years ago the German astronomer, Fabricius, peering at the heavens through his rude telescope, espied an amazing phenomenon. A great red star that he had discovered some time before in the constellation Cetus (the whale) was fading quite like this, and on succeeding nights he trained his telescope on the star, only to observe it grow fainter and fainter and at last disappear altogether.

For months Fabricius set his telescope nightly to search for the vanished star, and at last his efforts were rewarded. The star, which he had named Omicron (the Greek letter O), faded into view again, faintly, and because he realized that the star was fading brighter each time he viewed it after several months it had come back with all its former ruddy brilliancy. Then it began to vanish again. Fabricius told other astronomers about his discovery, and as no other star in the heavens was known to behave in such a strange way, Omicron was renamed Mira (the wonderful).

Even since then Mira has proved a source of interest and wonder to astronomers. With improved telescopes, scientists learned that the great star did not actually disappear, but merely became so faint that it was imperceptible except with powerful astronomical instruments. Moreover, alternate fading and brightening were found to take place in regular cycles of approximately 11 months.

The astronomers never rested in their efforts to learn the secrets of the great star—its size, its distance from earth, the cause of its odd variations. And it was only within the last few years that science was able to add measurably to the knowledge of Mira. Then, using the great Hooker 100-inch reflecting telescope of the Wilson observatory in California, and a 20-foot Michelson interferometer, F. G. Pease, astronomer of the Carnegie Institution, succeeded in measuring the diameter of Mira.

And these new facts about this great star supply new reasons for naming it call it "the Wonderstar." Mira was found to be the second largest star in all the heavens, extended in size only by the mighty stars. Beside it Betelgeuse, long regarded as the second mightiest star, appears now as a celestial dwarf.

Mira is 250,000,000 miles across—almost three times the distance between our sun and the earth. Its diameter is 100 times larger than the sun's, and 100 times larger than the earth's. The Los Angeles, travelling 60 miles an hour, would take a flight equal to the diameter of this star, the trip would consume about 600 years. If it were to be represented by the great circle that could be drawn on this page, the earth would be a dot so small that it could not be seen; the sun would be about the size of a period. If the earth, revolving once a year, were to spin about Mira, it would be back to the starting point for 100 years. The round-the-world flyer, proceeding at the same rate at which they encircled the globe, would require 15,000 years to fly around this great star.

Great though this size is, it is insignificant, nevertheless, compared with the tremendous depths of space stretching between us and the star. Mira is estimated to be 169 light years distant from the earth. That means that the light from the star, travelling 186,000 miles a second, takes 169 years to reach us. To state such a distance in miles would be futile for light travels six million miles in a single year. It may seem to convey a notion of how far Mira is when we consider that the light that carried the image of the star to the Mt. Wilson telescope left it about the year 1756, when America was still a British colony.

Other secrets besides its size have been wrung recently from Mira. Its temperature, for example, is known to be something under 4000° Centigrade. The spectroscopic shows titanium to be present in Mira, a compound that cannot exist in higher temperatures. Because of the red color of the star, astronomers knew long ago that Mira was a star of comparatively low temperature. All red stars are relatively cool. Yellow stars, are such as the sun, are warmer, about 6000°. White stars vary in temperature between 10,000° and 15,000°.

Mira is a huge red ball of glowing gases, of comparatively low density. Its volume is 27,000,000 times that of the sun, but its mass is less than 100 times that of the sun. Science has a tenable theory to explain its odd habit of changing its light. It is this: As the great star sends forth light and heat, it contracts, then cools and forms clouds, which prevent the radiation of heat and heat from escaping. This causes the lessening of illumination. Meanwhile the imprisoned energy accumulates until at last it bursts through the screen of clouds.

Tom Mix Hissed at Paris

CROWDS PREVENT STATION DISPLAY.

Tom Mix, the cowboy film actor, had a mixed reception when he arrived at Paris from London, cheers being mingled with hoots, cat calls and whistling—the French equivalent of hissing.

People in the crowd jostled each other and blows were exchanged. Women fainted.

Tom Mix's horse "Tony" had come by aeroplane, and was put in a van and taken to the Gare St. Lazare to await the arrival of its master from London.

It had been arranged that Tom Mix should ride the horse from the courtyard of the station through the streets of Paris. Sandwichmen had paraded the streets all day with boards announcing the time of the arrival.

It is estimated that there were 50,000 people gathered near the station, but not all of them had come to meet Tom Mix. Many thousands merely wanted to catch suburban home-going trains and were prevented by the other thousands met them to cheer the film actor.

Tom Mix, apparently unaware that all these people had not come to do him honour, forced his way through to the horse van, but the stationmaster forbade him to remove the horse and to ride it out of the station.

Finally Mix put his family in the van and himself climbed on the roof and so proceeded to his hotel.

U.S. Want France to Pay War Debt

PARIS, May 11.—(A.P.)—The first flutter at the Foreign Office and the United States Embassy over the reported prospect of the United States Government sending a note to France about her debts to the United States, has been quieted by a report from Washington that the State Department officials had denied that such a note has been sent. However, the conviction exists here that Finance Minister Caillaux intends himself to raise the question later in the year and it is believed that he has already discussed the matter with Gerrard B. Winston, Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury, during the latter's recent visit here.

M. Caillaux is described as having reached the determination to take up the question with the United States Government for two reasons: first, to tranquillize the French state of mind, and second, because of the necessity to advance French credits in New York and London by arriving at an arrangement of both the United States and British debts. The question of French debts to the United States is interlinked with that of her debts to Great Britain and the British debt cannot be considered apart from the negotiations for a general agreement regarding continental conditions.

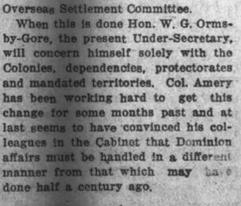

It is believed that M. Caillaux will probably give general expression of his views on the debt question in the financial proposals which he will make to parliament when it reassembles at the end of the month and possibly that he may allude to the subject before the finance commission of the Chamber of Deputies to-morrow.

Those who have some acquaintance with M. Caillaux's views indicate that he must in any event, make the debt question wholly subordinate to the balancing of the budget and that once this is done, he must find a surplus out of which something may be paid on the debts.

Radical Change to be Made IN FUNCTIONS OF COLONIAL OFFICE.

LONDON, May 15.—The Government has decided that the present constitution of the Colonial Office if not modified the name also must be changed. The Enabling Bill is being introduced in the House of Lords shortly and it will provide for an additional Under-Secretary of State, who will deal exclusively with Dominion affairs and take over the chairmanship of the Overseas Settlement Committee.

When this is done Hon. W. G. Ormsby-Gore, the present Under-Secretary, will concern himself solely with the Colonies, dependencies, protectorates and mandated territories. Col. Amery has been working hard to get this change for some months past and at last seems to have convinced his colleagues in the Cabinet that Dominion affairs must be handled in a different manner from that which may have done half a century ago.

British Empire Service League

The British Empire Service League was formed in Cape Town, South Africa, four years ago, when Field Marshal Earl Haig visited there. The Prince of Wales is Patron and Field Marshal Earl Haig, Grand President. There are members of the League throughout the Empire to-day. The first National Conference was held in London 1923 and the Newfoundland representatives were Lieut.-Col. Nangle, C.F., Capt. Fox and the late Capt. Whitty, Dominion Secretary of the G.W.A. of Newfoundland.

At that conference His Majesty the King stated in a message to the delegates: "I am glad to think of the efforts of the Association of ex-servicemen and women to maintain and strengthen the ties which bind together all parts of the Empire. The Prince of Wales said: "This organization inspires me with great hope for the future. It shows that the comradeship of service that we had in the war and that enabled us to win the war is still alive in our great Empire. Moreover, it is helping us to overcome the many difficulties and grave problems which we, and indeed the whole civilized world, have to face during the war. I trust that your efforts will further, and promote by all constitutional means, the aims of the League, which are so vital to the welfare of our great empire and of our old comrades." The Grand President, Field Marshal Earl Haig, epitomized the constitution of the British Empire Service League in three words, "Peace, Comradeship and Unity."

The Second Conference of the League will be held at Ottawa, Canada, on June 29th next. There will be representatives from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, India, Australia and Newfoundland, and from parts of the Empire as far distant as Rhodesia and Malaya.

It is likely that at the Conference representatives from the American Legion will attend and that the formation of an English-speaking Veterans' Alliance will be accomplished. Such an alliance could take measures to prevent future wars and so insure the peace of the world. Earl Haig in his formation of such an organization in view when he said at the last conference:—"That brings me to yet a wider aspect of the comradeship born of the Great War. We have here to-day representatives of the American Legion. If we, who speak in the name of the ex-servicemen's organization of the British Empire, can work hand in hand with the ex-servicemen's organizations of the United States, whose ideals we already share, I can see no limit to the influence we may together exert for the advantage of the ex-servicemen of all English-speaking communities and the good of the whole world. So the second practical item on our programme is to promote inter-communication, common action, and mutual advice and help between the representative bodies of ex-service men and women in all parts of the Empire, and to maintain friendship and good understanding with the ex-service organizations of allied peoples, but especially the United States of America. Such common action, such friendship and understanding, if accompanied, as indeed they must be if they are to last, by mutual respect, spell together the peace of the world."

Two other great problems to be discussed are: "Migration" and "Settlement within the Empire." It is realized that the unemployment problem in Great Britain is the ex-service man's. Of over a million unemployed 800,000 are ex-service men who fought for England in the Great War. The normal rate of emigration from the British Isles before the war was approximately 600,000 per year. The fact that there wasn't any during this period and the loss of her foreign markets are the chief reasons why there are so many unemployed there to-day. It is estimated that ten per cent. of her working population are unemployed. There is an urgent necessity for emigration within the Empire and the Dominions must realize that the unemployment problem in the Motherland is as much theirs as hers. It is only by co-ordination within the Empire can the great ideals for which we fought be maintained. The coming Conference will further help to bind the comradeship of the war and possibly an opportunity will be given the delegates of placing before the Conference the natural resources awaiting development within the Empire.

"Originals" Scored Big Hit

AT THE NICKEL THEATRE LAST NIGHT.

The Nickel Theatre was filled to its utmost capacity last night to witness the second appearance of the popular "Originals," presenting their latest revue, "Stepping Out." Never, perhaps, has a St. John's audience been so stirred up with enthusiasm, as from the rise of the curtain until the show terminates, there is nothing but amusement and thorough enjoyment for all. "Stepping Out" is a musical revue with splendid music, sung by very fine singers. In this regard, particularly the female impersonators in the Company, are perfect. Gene Pearson, as Madame Hejens, an opera singer, sang in a rich soprano voice and the audience quite forgot "she" was a man.

The chief fun provoker of the show is Bob Anderson, alias John Willie Shumpton, alias the Vet, alias Pianogent. One was ready to laugh whenever he bobbed up, and even then one was often caught unawares; and with the Originals singing numerous specialties "in between," there was no room for a dull moment. The evening opens with a veterans' re-union, with Bob Anderson, the versatile comedian, taking the house by storm in "song, 'Turned Up.' Alan Murray as 'Maisy Jay,' and Jerry Brayford as 'Shorty King,' then delight the audience with some clever dancing and amazing stunts, followed by the appearance of the Original Quartette, who are heard in splendid voice. Bertram Langley, as Sergt.-Major Pipp," featured in the singing of "Drinking." Mr. Langley has a very powerful bass voice and he has to be heard to be appreciated. "Music Land," in Act II, contains some of the finest vocal specialties of the entire performance, namely "Come Sing To Me," by the Pierrots; "In the Night Time," with which Lionel Broadway makes a hit; "I'm On The Staff," by Norman Blume, and last but not least, Bob Anderson brings down the house with "A Widow Gay."

Scene Two entitled "Heroes," is a striking contrast to the rest of the revue and contains a note of pathos which appeals to all. In Scene Three, Thomas Dunn's singing of the prologue to Pagliacci, is executed in a voice of pleasing range and volume, while Norman A. Blume, who follows in the Norman's Skit, is indeed a complete show in itself. In Scene 4, Leonard Young, as the "Duchess of Dishwater," assisted by Bob Anderson, the comedian, provided lots of amusement. The entire company presents a grand opera burlesque as a farewell number, "Yes, We Have No Bananas." Here the beautiful rich soprano voice of Gene Pearson is heard to advantage. His graceful lady-like movements on the stage took the fancy of the whole audience and were well deserving of a shower of bouquets.

"Stepping Out" is a wonderful show, and is a credit to the management of the Nickel Theatre. The Originals will repeat this splendid performance as a matinee this afternoon at 2.30 sharp at popular prices.

Resistance Amplifier Added to Three Circuit Sets

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

Several days ago we told the story work properly in one way and won't work at all in the opposite.

The plus A and minus A terminals on the resistance amplifier are merely bridged over by means of short pumping wires to the corresponding wires on the receive itself. Take care that the polarities are correct. As the whole B battery is connected in series it is merely necessary to run a wire from the plus 90 terminal to the plus end of the B battery. The complete battery will probably consist of four 22½ volt units in series.

Ninety volts is about the minimum amount which should be used on the amplifier. It takes almost twice as much voltage on a resistance-coupled amplifier to give the same results as would be obtained with half the plate voltage used in a transformer-coupled amplifier. As much as 120 volts can be used with 201-A tubes.

The Rev Eye Witness

To write about beauty, one must have plenty for at least 1000 miles travelled a reasonable distance and in the most mixed with the people.

The average Englishman is not fit to criticize. He is prejudiced and is not wholly unreciprocated aspirations of the one standard of beauty for the whole world cut and dried, and they cannot be hot tropical suns, which runs in the face of the matter. So he just lives in his and to everything except race, and avoids even, as he does the story of the summer sun.

The political life of the analytical mind is out of the picture, thought, an endless study.

The Revolution in Brazil

Eye Witness Describes Conditions in the Republic.

To write about Brazil with any authority, one must have lived in the country for at least 10 years, have travelled to a reasonable extent on the coast and in the interior, and have mixed with the people.

The average Englishman is quite apt to criticize Brazil. He is too prejudiced and isolated in his ideas, and wholly unresponsive to the thoughts and aspirations of the foreigner. He has one standard of rules and customs for the whole world, and these are cut and dried, and British to the core. They cannot be flavored with the hot, tropical skies, or modified in the least by the gossamer blood which runs in the Lada race.

So he just lives in the country, quite blind to everything except himself and his race, and avoids everything foreign, as he does the stone seat heated by the summer sun.

The political life of Brazil provides for the analytical mind, which can dig out of the cart-rut of common thought, an endless and diverting study.

THE SAO PAULO OUTBREAK.

The last great revolution, which broke out in the Sao Paulo on the 5th July, last, and the proclamation published by the Rebel General on his occupation of the City of Sao Paulo after five days' fighting, made oneself ask the question: "Is this the voice of Mussolini, heard for the first time in the wilderness of Brazilian political corruption?"

The surprise of the people when the first shots were fired was patent and obvious, yet, these shots found an echo in the hearts of 80 per cent. of the Brazilians in Sao Paulo. The atmosphere was clear and defined. It was pro-rebel whichever way you went.

But what was the motive of the revolt which broke out on the eventful Saturday morning, July 5th? I discussed the situation with groups of men I found at every street corner, who had taken up these positions, better to seek cover round the corner whichever way the bullets came up the street. But, each man had a different reason, and eventually it turned out that not one explanation of the revolt as given by the men in the street agreed with the reasons given by the Rebels in their Manifesto to the people of Sao Paulo.

After 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday it was dangerous to remain in the streets any longer—so everybody retired to their hotels or homes, and remained there until the Revolutionary Army had taken and occupied the city, which event took place on July 9th.

Early on Saturday morning, July 5th, the General commanding the district, the Colonel commanding the Infantry stationed in Sao Paulo, were arrested and imprisoned. The President of the State of Sao Paulo, several Delegates and a small force of military police, were surrounded in the Palace of the Campos Eliseos, where a perpetual attack with rifle and machine guns was kept up until the following Tuesday, when they effected their escape during the night and retired on Government House, situated in the city itself.

The most concentrated fire was around the Luz Railway Station, where trenches had been quickly thrown up. Later on the whole of the streets, right from the Luz Station to a line running parallel with the Esplanada Hotel, were entrenched, and intense firing took place with machine guns and rifle fire during the whole of each night, whilst desultory firing was kept up during the day.

The city was completely deserted. Not a tram, motor car, or a single wheeling thing, and not a person, was to be seen, excepting the military pickets, and soldiers lying down behind their improvised trenches. The Esplanada Hotel was girted with bullets at the back, many of which passed right through the bedrooms, crossed the corridor, and penetrated the walls of the front rooms.

At the corner of the Esplanada Hotel was a trench, made of bales of lucerna and with all the approaches barbed-wired. I interviewed the two officers I found there, and was very badly impressed with their appearance. One was an old, decrepit and retired Major, who only had a military overcoat to enable him to be called a soldier. The other was a young lieutenant, also with a scratch uniform, who looked quite out of control the whole time I saw him. On being questioned, both of them exhibited entire ignorance as to the progress of the revolution, and especially the decrepit Major, who told me out of his hopeful imagination that 2,000 sailors were now marching on Sao Paulo to their relief, with a reserve of the Naval Brigade, 7,000 strong, only two hours' march from the city.

One thing was patent and clear. The Revolutionary Army was far better equipped, far better armed and disciplined than the Government Army, and they seemed to have unlimited ammunition.

On the Tuesday morning, before the city fell into the hands of the rebels, some artillery placed on the Campo Santana opened fire with shell on the Government House, where the President, all the principal military officers, most of the Delegates, and and several hundred sailors and marines were gathered together. The firing was extremely accurate, and out of 5 shells, every one fell true; that is to say, either in the building or in the court yards and square surrounding them.

A precipitate retirement took place on to the outskirts of Ypiranga, while the dead and wounded amongst the sailors and marines were collected and sent in motor lorries, or Red Cross motor cars, which were rushing through the streets at all hours of the day and night, to the mortuaries and hospitals.

On Tuesday night an enormous fire broke out on the side of the railway line, where a large number of deposits and depots, and some factories, belonging to different companies and firms in Sao Paulo are situated. It turned out to be the Depot of one of the great oil companies. Amidst the dense black smoke the flames rose in huge tongues, licking the sky, and illuminating the whole of that part of the city.

On the Wednesday morning, strong pickets of the rebel army marched through the streets, and called upon the different groups of foot soldiers who occupied the trenches to surrender, which, in nearly every case, they did, and I shall deal later on with the apathy of the Government soldier and his want of individual interest in the revolt.

AN ESTIMATE OF THE CASUALTIES INFLICTED.

It is not the purpose of this article to give a detailed account of the Revolution, so that it will now be sufficient to say that the Rebel Army held the City of Sao Paulo for 19 days, and only retired from it on the representation and petition of the residents, who wished to save the city from the bombardment which the Government had decided to open with heavy artillery. The Rebel Army evacuated the city in good order and in 16 trains, carrying their artillery and ammunition with them, and retired on the Southern States, where they expected to receive reinforcements from their adherents in the South.

Fighting has continued ever since the retirement, now over four months ago, and whilst the Government forces have been replenished from neighboring States to the Capital, there is no doubt that the Rebel Army received considerable support from Rio Grande do Sul. It has also been officially stated that ammunition and arms were passed across from the Argentine side of the Parana River for use of the Rebel Army.

number of killed and wounded between military and civil casualties, but we have heard of 300 dead sent back to Santos, belonging to the reinforcements sent from Rio and landed at Santos from the dreadnought, Minas Geraes. These were casualties which took place during the first week of the Government attempt to retake the city. We have also heard of some 2,000 and 3,000 killed amongst the civilian population of Sao Paulo.

There are no means whatever of ascertaining the number of killed and wounded which have taken place during the 3 months or more in the wider theatre of operations to the south of Sao Paulo, and, in the Rio Grande do Sul, but, as there has been so much continuous fighting, a fairly big number on both sides can be safely assumed. There can be no doubt that the Rebel General, Isidoro Lopes, has had considerable success, and, that it is only recently that the tide has turned in favor of the Government Army.

THE CAUSE OF THE REVOLUTION.

The chief purposes of this article is to discuss and review the motive for this last revolution, and, in order to do that, we have to accept as a solid fact that these revolutions are generally between the reigning Government and the Army and Navy. The Civil Brazilian and the mass of the people, do not, as a rule, take the slightest interest in the revolts, so long as it does not take place in their respective locality or residence. Their apathy is so pronounced and evident, that, in the evening, journeying home in the trams, with the evening paper in their hands, they will be far more interested in the latest murder or suicide, with which these papers abound, than with the revolution which is practically at their door.

The reason for this apathy is not far to seek. A long succession of governments under different Presidents, have for many years pursued a course of disastrous finance, in which corrupt practices have been so rife, that by far the most paying profession in Brazil, is the "Profession of Politics."

The people, therefore, feel that whatever government is in power, they will still have to pay exorbitant taxes, which seem to increase with each succeeding government. Reckless expenditure, and middle-man bribery, and the inveterate and ingratiable habit of extending the ministerial palm in order to denote interest in any project, contract, or business proposition of any kind, has destroyed the people's patriotism. The people feel that the country is taken over by the government in power, to enrich themselves solely at the expense of the tax payers, and to involve in contracts, principally for the embellishment of the city. Not only are the cash coffers emptied, but the deficit has to be met by heavy taxation and the imposition of the most novel duties and taxes which the mind of the insolvent can devise.

Under these circumstances real patriotism cannot exist and hence the apathy of the people when a revolution breaks out, often without a word of warning. They feel that if this present government is thrown out, another Government will arise who will be equally bad.

ANOTHER MUSSOLINI!

In this present revolution a novelty was introduced by a manifesto from the pen of the Rebel general, which seemed to breathe the sentiments of a new Mussolini. One instinctively asks oneself the question "Which is the man?" One turned from one side to the other, and asked the pertinent question "who have you got to be your President? What strong man have you got to be the Mussolini of Brazil?" At the reply was always the same: "We have no strong man in Brazil!" There is not one man who is powerful enough to sweep away our national abuses, or who would wear the green shirt of a Brazilian Fascist.

We are, therefore, confronted with an extraordinary situation. We have a revolution, without a remedy. We have a revolt, without a Mussolini. In face of the apathy of the people, we witness an insurrection which has merged itself into military manoeuvres, with one tragic difference, that the "Umpire" is the leader bullet.

ADMINISTRATIVE METHODS CAUSE DISSATISFACTION.

We should now pass on and view the situation of the Government. We find a Government which is not popular with the people by 80 per cent. We see a Government which has either bought the Press, or holds the censorship over it. The Press is muzzled, and is fed with just the morsels which the Government wish to see. What is the result? Most of the people do not read the news about the rebellion, because they do not believe it. They feel the press is being used as an arm in favor of the Government. During the whole time of the Rebellion successes in the south, there was no news whatever about the revolution, only long lists of names of people who were supposed to be in support of the President, and telegrams and expressions of loyalty from individual people occupying the official positions in the different States, but, who did not echo the voice of the people. Reading between the lines one discovered an "agitated anxiety."

It was commonly known that the army in general was against the President, but that the Navy was, at present, being held in check, and could be relied on by the Government.

But, on the 4th November a portion of the Navy revolted, and the dreadnought, "Sao Paulo," sailed out of the bay, accompanied by a consort of cannon from the forts, which they did not reply to, as they were never hit. She took refuge in Montevideo (Uruguay), where the rebels gave themselves up, and those who declared themselves, in Montevideo, as loyal to the Government, returned with the ship to Rio and became in due course, heroes of the Government.

The news of the retirement of the Rebel forces from Sao Paulo was heard throughout the City of Rio with profound regret. The children in the schools, on being told that the President had declared a holiday for the rest of the day, had a wicked battle amongst themselves, and the children belonging to Rebel fathers dominated the scene in every case. Soldiers and Marines, returning from Sao Paulo, marched down the Avenida, in Rio, amid perfect silence. The crowd wore a disappointed look, which was communicated to the soldiers themselves. The officers carried flowers in their hands, and the men had sprigs stuck in the top of the barrel of their rifles, but their faces bore no semblance to the sentiment of laurel wreaths. The flowers had been given to them officially with certain instructions.

BRITISH FINANCIAL MISSION'S SUGGESTIONS.

It will not be out of place if reference is made at this point, of the Report of the British Financial Mission, which was read by the population of Rio and Sao Paulo only six days before the Revolution broke out. The Report laid bare very clearly the financial State of the Country. It made many sound suggestions for the reformation of the system and the correction of abuses in every Government Department. The Report provided for everything, except one thing: And that one essential thing was: "A Mussolini to carry them out." A certain Prefect remarked, on being questioned concerning the Mission's Report: "Oh, yes! but all this we knew before." Reforms do not always suit everybody's pocket.

It is just possible, therefore, that, however single-minded and sincere a President may be, he may find out that just those people ought to be his friends, become his enemies. Reform has a way of elbowing its way and "self-interest" only gives up its existence after a very long struggle.

The demon of self-interest is rampant in Brazil, to the exclusion of all patriotism, right down to the most insignificant individual connected with the Government Departments.

We will return again to the Report of the British Financial Mission and ask the direct question—was this present revolution the result of showing in bare plain colors to the world the bad state to which bad finance and indisciplined administration had brought the country? It is true that the President had promised no end of reforms and rigid economies in order to place the country in a sounder position. Has he really fulfilled his word, and can his apathy be traced to the loss which must inevitably be trodden on in effecting these reforms? If so, he naturally deserves every sort of encouragement and one wonders and marvels why 80 per cent. of the people in Brazil are against him.

A VAIN APPEAL AND WHY.

During the critical moments whilst the rebel occupation of Sao Paulo still held good, the Government in Rio arranged a procession, composed of some orators, a small number of civilians, who looked as if they had been paid for the job, and about 100 military police, with a band. This procession dragged itself up the Avenida, paraded in front of certain buildings where the band played a discordant melody, and an orator spoke, not to the public, but to the procession itself. It was the Government praying for support, but it appealed to the public in vain. The people passing along the pavement showed their apathy more than ever, and passed on their way without giving a look to the procession. It was a pathetic spectacle, which filled one with pity. No picture could exhibit with such brilliant colors the death of Patriotism as that unregarded and unnoticed group of men, dragging themselves along the street, bored to death with the unappreciated oratory to which nobody listened.

One cannot help feeling that the country does not belong to the people. It seems to belong just to the political group in power at the moment. Patriotism only lives in the newspaper, who blow the patriotic trumpet so that it should be heard abroad. But if you have not patriotism, you cannot have discipline, and that fact is the predominant reason of all the Revolutions in Brazil. There is real, strict discipline in the Army. They feel that they are not really serving the Country, but exist only for the benefit and assistance of the Political Group in power, with whom they are seldom in sympathy. The soldiers have had no real mind in this affair. They have fought just where circumstances have found them, and have fought for their own lives, in the place where their leaders have led them.

Out of a sound government, and clean swept government departments, and a system of administration and fiscalization which will make it impossible for the public funds to be squandered or illegally appropriated, patriotism will then raise its head and the clamour for Revolution will be no longer heard. The custom of creating official positions will be eradicated from the national character.

The Emperor Dom Pedro II. was visiting an exhibition in London, where he was shown by an engineer some machinery, and especially a wheel which the engineer claimed could make 1,000 revolutions a minute. "Dear me," said the Emperor, with considerable interest, "that beats Brazil."

"Be kind to your Stomach"

DOSING the stomach with digestive tablets and fluids can never do more than afford temporary relief from indigestion. The cause of chronic indigestion is found in the torpid condition of the liver and the consequent constipation of the bowels. Get rid of this condition and the indigestion disappears. The most effective corrective treatment is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is proof of this in the great majority of homes. If this medicine is not known to you ask your friends about it, or get a box from your druggist and put it to the test.

ONE WOMAN'S ACHIEVEMENT.

There is a woman among my friends for whom I have a great respect for this reason: She has been well-to-do and now is poor, yet I have never heard her complain, never heard her mourn for the good old days, and I know that she extracts just as much pleasure from small things, from little outings and enjoyments as anyone could who had never known luxury.

Don't you call that a tremendous character achievement? I do.

They Kept A Carriage.

This is her history. She married when she was quite young, a man somewhat older than herself who had made his way in the world. They had a big house, she kept two maids, they had what was then equivalent in style and luxury to an expensive car-to-day—their own horse and carriage.

She entertained her friends lavishly, she was Lady Bountiful to her relatives, she had all the comforts and luxuries and dignities and adulation that a large income brings.

And then came the hard times, ill health and business loss. Her husband failed in business and died. She was left with three children and very little money. The maids were dismissed, the big house sold, she moved to a small apartment, did her own work and presently when the financial pressure became even greater, she went to work in a shop and did her

THE MASTER.

"I am the master of my house, the captain of my boat; my children and my spouse all recognize this as a truth. My orders are the final law, my household must obey, and no one wags a futile jaw disputing what I say." Thus speaks my neighbour, Hiram Hence, his features stern and dour, when, leaning on the party fence, we gossip for an hour. Sometimes to borrow book or broom, I seek him in his lair, and everything's so wrapped in gloom you'd think a corpse was there. The children speak in whispered tones, afraid to dance or sing, the aunt's a sack of shakling bones, a scared and nervous thing. The wife's a pallid, washed-out crone, as silent as a ghost, afraid to call her soul her own lest she draw down a roast. The master of the household flares about him all the time, as though to catch them unawares in some forbidden crime. And when I leave my neighbor's home, and to my shack repair, it cheers my jaded heart and dome to hear the racket there. My merry nieces, one and all, are chasing Cute, the cat; my aunts are scrapping in the hall, debating this or that. They do not falter when they see my fat face at the door; they're all as happy as can be, and I don't make them sore. I am the master of my corp—at least, I pay the tax, and buy the squashes and the soup, and clothe our divers backs. But I like happy folk around, a cheery, noisy mob; I'd rather hear a laugh resound, than hear a stifled sob.

The Danger of Sport

(By "AMATEUR INTERNATIONAL").

He is just fourteen and good to look upon. On the football field, at the wicket, over the hurdles on the track, he struts the imagination. He and a ball make a poem.

The gods have given him also much intelligence. He is a born sportsman, and one day might be a hero of the people. But shall he be?

The decision rests largely, perhaps, with me. The grave question has arisen so often and always I waver.

He is capable of so much in a world so full of worth-while things. There are pictures to be painted, books to be written, bridges to be built, big businesses to control, wide dominions to administer. The preparation for these is long and arduous; youth is the time to begin.

And already he is being acclaimed: already he is tasting the sweets of hero-worship. And there is the danger of sport. You are in it at twelve, if you are not careful you are in it for life. When one game is beyond you, you take another, less strenuous. Always you are going to play your

Margot's Indiscretion

LADY OXFORD MAKES PUBLIC APOLOGY.

London, May 11.—An interesting political contretemps has come to light with the publication of a letter in the newspapers from Lady Oxford apologizing to David Lloyd George.

Lady Oxford, better known as Margot Asquith, a few days ago published her second book "Places and Persons," which, like her earlier book, is full of candid and incisive pen pictures of prominent personalities. In the majority of instances these pen pictures are extracts from her diary. One of them, "A Wasp in the Jam," refers to Lloyd George's "absence of political principle and pathetic ignorance in foreign affairs." There are other uncomplimentary references in the book to Lloyd George.

Lady Oxford's letter in the press today is a frank apology. She asserts that the passage in question about Lloyd George was written some years ago, and was not intended for publication. "Through a most blame-worthy inadvertence on my part," she says, "it escaped my notice and was not deleted from the proof. I wish to express publicly, as I already have done privately to Lloyd George, my sincere and extreme regret."

Says Reform Cause Setback BY DECLARING DRINKING SIN.

London, May 12.—The Government has announced its intention to conduct an enquiry into the effect upon general sobriety of state management of the liquor trade. This matter was discussed by convocation for the Province of York. The Dean of Durham, and several other dignitaries, voiced the opinion that prohibition for this country is impossible. The Dean, however, was emphatic that the liquor trade had hitherto been carried on with too much regard for the pecuniary interests bound up with it. On the other hand, he was very much afraid that many members for such bodies as the United Kingdom Alliance who argued that it was a sin to take strong drink at all were throwing back the cause of reform.

One result of the controlled system of liquor selling in Carlisle has been

Presence of Mind

Among the minor celebrities of Christ Church, Oxford, now about to celebrate its quatercentenary, was Dean Smith, known to his generation as "Presence-of-mind-Smith." The story goes that when an undergraduate he one day went boating with a companion, and returned alone. His companion, he explained, had fallen into the river and clung to the side of the boat, threatening to capsize it. "Neither of us could swim," said Smith, "and if I had not, with presence of mind, hit him on the head with the boat-hook both of us might have been drowned."

The dainty woman does not KEEP Corns

Almost every woman spends hours every week in the care of her face—cold-creaming it, cleansing it, massaging it, to guard against the tiniest blemish. . . . But that doesn't prove her daintiness. It may merely indicate pride and vanity. . . . The real proof of perfect daintiness is the care a woman takes of the things that are not seen. . . . A blemish on her foot is as objectionable to her as one on her face. The moment a corn appears, she applies a Blue-jay. At once the pain goes, in 48 hours the corn goes too.

Arle Marks Players in Masterpiece

"SIDEWALKS OF NEW YORK" WELL PLAYED AT CASINO.

Last night the popular Arle Marks and her players repeated another of the season's outstanding successes, namely, "The Sidewalks of New York." This play is rich in plot, correct in detail and a masterpiece of interpretation. It is a production in which the ability of each and every member of the cast is given the acid test, and the manner in which it is enacted leaves nothing to be desired. The play deals with the trials and tribulations of a little New York waif who is existing under adverse circumstances, but things happen in such a way that finally this little outcast is discovered to be a member of a prominent family and, as the old story has it, all's well that ends well.

A special feature of this play is the brilliant acting on the part of the cast as a whole, especially the role of April, the Queen of Queer Street as portrayed by Miss Arle Marks. In the opinion of the reviewer this is one of the strongest roles that Miss Marks has appeared in and she handles it with the usual skilful dexterity. Walter Deluna as Mario Vanni plays a remarkably good character. Paul Brady as Phillip Schuyler was never seen to better advantage. His is a difficult part which requires unusual dramatic skill, and particularly in the last act. Lindsay E. Perrin as Skidsey gives the piece excellent comedy relief. Ray Wassund does well as Bob Hillman. Another good role is that of Myrtle, which is in the capable hands of Miss Agnes Stutz. Micky Kane, W. L. Phillips, Nettie Davenport and Louise Adell all play their respective roles splendidly.

The vaudeville by Jas Daley, DeLuna and Adell, Clarence Kane, the Great Andrews, Magician, and the Arle Marks Revue are exceptional attractions and are features in themselves worth the admission price.

Lord Curzon's Bequest

Two Historic Castles for the Nation.

Two historic ruins have been bequeathed to the nation by the late Marquis Curzon of Kedleston. These are Tattershall Castle, Lincolnshire and Bodiam Castle, Sussex. Tattershall Castle, near Witham, is thought to have been erected about 1440. In September, 1911, it was feared that the famous fireplace would be sent to the United States. They were taken to London, but Lord Curzon, who bought the castle a little later "to save it from being knocked to pieces" recovered them. In June, 1912, they were returned to their home on decorated lorries which passed beneath triumphal arches. Lord Curzon was in the procession, and his carriage was drawn by ropes by the villagers. Bodiam Castle, near Hastings, built in 1264, has been described as one of the most beautiful and interesting ruins in England. It was bought by Lord Curzon in 1911. The ruins consist of round towers at the angles with five square ones between them, and the great gateway is flanked by two square towers.

Perils of Bird Migration

(By T. C. BRIDGES.)

The installation of the greatest air beacon in the world at Mont Afrique, in Central France, may be welcomed with joy by the airman yet will be looked upon with horror by bird-lovers. With its tremendous lamps of one thousand million candle-power, this lighthouse is bound to work terrible destruction among the great flights of migrant birds which at this time and again in autumn cross France on their way to summer and winter quarters. Already the death-roll from this cause is very serious. In a book on

PROTECTO SHINGLE PAINT

One coat of Protecto will ensure your shingles for several years against curling, bucking or rot and any one of its three rich colors will extend a cheery welcome to yourself and guests. Protecto is the greatest triumph in years. It is superior to shingle stain. It effectively seals up the open pores of the shingle with a thin coat of Protecto that sheds water like a duck's back—it preserves as well as beautifies.

One coat on old or new shingles in Red, Green or Brown will assure perfect satisfaction. For Shingle Roofs, Shingle Sidings, Composition Roofings of all kinds, Fences and Lattice Work.

Little Jack Rabbit

hello! Don't you want to go to the Pilot House," cried the little bunny. As soon as the good old boat was shunted to the dock, Captain Billygoat came ashore to say howdy to the old gentleman rabbit. They were good friends. Oh, yes indeed, Captain Billygoat placed all the Pumpkin Pennies he collected from passengers in Uncle Lucky's Bank in Rabbitville. "Want to take a trip over the river?" asked the goat captain, with a wink at the little bunny. "Might as well," answered nice Uncle Lucky, making believe he hadn't seen the smile on his bunny nephew's face. "Paddle wheels, working all right? Engine in good order?" "Running like a clock," replied the

Famous British Naval Feat Vividly Reproduced

The British naval raid on Zebruge, the glorious exploit of the British Navy on St. George's Day, 1918, and the success of which turned the tide on the western front, has been reproduced in moving pictures in a most wonderful way. The whole story is thrilling from start to finish, permeated with that British spirit that won the war. The story of Zebruge was reproduced under the guidance of the officers of the British Admiralty, surviving officers, and marines, who actually took part in the heroic raid, going through their acts again, but this time before the camera.

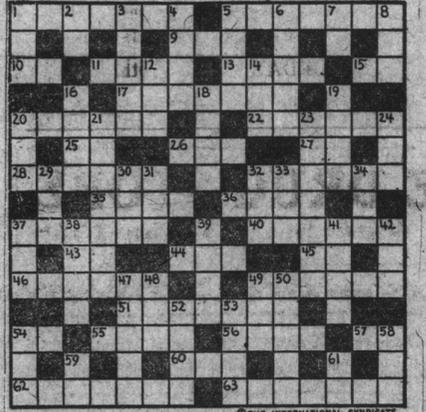

Some idea of the tremendous task undertaken to put "Zebruge" on the screen may be gained when it is known that it cost $2,500,000 to reproduce, and then the Admiralty loaned the ships, etc., so that the British people may get the historic value of the raid. The whole action at Zebruge is accurate in every detail, the soldiers on the deck being real soldiers, and the smoke screen being supplied by Alan Brock, of Brock's Fireworks, the brother of the wing commander who lost his life gloriously during the fighting on the Meuse.

A Compliment

It is generally understood that William Randolph Hearst, who controls more newspapers in America than anyone else, is violently anti-English, but he occasionally pays us a compliment. His New York American, pointing out that Count Karolyi, who was once one of the richest men in Hungary, worth thirty million dollars, has been refused permission to speak in public in America, adds:— "In a few days Count Karolyi leaves for England, where he will speak in public concerning the affairs of his own country and other countries. Great Britain, which is a democracy, will be amused to learn that while in the United States Karolyi was forbidden, by the Government, to make public speeches.

"Why was he forbidden? Heaven only knows. Somebody over here who still has forty millions probably didn't want him to talk. "In England, where they have brains and a democracy, they are not afraid of free speech."

Beef Brought Him Down!

Another roof-climber was a man called Tagney, who managed to reach the summit of Pentonville Prison. He could get no further, so sat on the coping and swung his legs. He had a pile of slates handy to drive off warders, and he flatly refused to listen to any suggestions that he should come down. Soon the "Caldonian Road" was blocked by a significant crowd, whose sympathies, regrettably enough, were entirely with Mr. Tagney.

"Pore dear, he must 'ave a 'orrible thirst!" said one. It froze that night, but Tagney struck it out, and in the end it was simply hunger that brought about his recapture. A plate of roast beef was offered him, and he surrendered.

Comic Escapes

There's Often a Funny Side—Even to a Convict's Wild Dash for Freedom.

Very few people associate humour with prison life, but even prison has its funny side. Sometimes, however, the humour is appreciated more by the general public than by the authorities.

Very early one morning in March, 1908, a small boy rang the bell of Duke Street Prison in Glasgow. "Yin o' yer prisoners has escaped, and is running" along to Chambermaid," he informed the gatekeeper. "Ara! hame ta' yer bed!" was all the thanks that he got for disturbing the porter at such an hour.

Another Budget Tip

TAX ON FAIRNESS.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Mr. Churchill in his Budget has overlooked a possible source of revenue which has just been proposed in America. Dr. Lulu Hunt Peters, a food expert, at Washington to-day advocated the imposition of a graduated Federal tax for fat people.

Addressing the League of American Penwomen, she declared that if legislative effect could be given to the watchword "Grow thin or pay taxes" the health of the nation would undergo an all-round improvement.

Millions of people, she argued, would immediately set to work on the scientific study of dieting rather than pay taxes on overweight.—Daily Mail.

WHY PAY 90c. to $1.00 Per Pound for PACKET TEAS?

The consumer must pay for the fancy lead or tin container, be it little or much, and the cost is usually about 5c. to 10c. per pound.

When you buy packet teas you get 5c. to 10c. less value per lb. than if you buy Standard well-known grades of loose tea from a reputable house. In addition there is the cost of special advertising to keep each brand before the public.

I recommend "ROSALIND" as a fine Sturdy AUTUMNAL FLAVORED LOOSE CEYLON TEA, to which NO fancy charges for packing, etc., are added.

This TEA is giving every satisfaction and the price is 75c. lb. Lower priced tea if required.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

PENSION BILL PASSES SECOND READING.

LONDON, May 19. The House of Commons to-night passed the second reading of the Government's Pensions Bill 401 to 125. The House first rejected the Labor amendment moved by J. Wheatley, the former Labor Minister of Health, declining to give second reading to a bill which exacts contributions from the wage earners and imposes an additional burden on industry. The bill, which embodies Winston Churchill's Budget Insurance plan for granting pensions to widows, will now be referred to the Committee of the Whole House. The principal feature of to-night's debate was the unexpected attack on the measure by Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the Coalition Government, whom it had been supposed Premier Baldwin might eventually invite to enter the Cabinet. It is recalled that the Prime Minister did invite Sir Robert Horne to join his Government as Labor Minister, but that Sir Robert, expecting to be appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer, declined what he considered a minor office. It is believed that his attack on the Government has spoiled any future chance Sir Robert might have had of joining the Government. He has important business interests, however, and may not be anxious to take a ministerial office.

FRENCH AWAIT ABD-EL-KRIM'S NEXT MOVE.

PARIS, May 20. French forces in four groups are now in the positions in Morocco assigned to them by General Count De Chamburn, and aside from such local actions as are necessary to prevent the Rifians from slipping through between them, they will await the next move of Abd-el-Krim, leader of the rebel tribesmen. This is the latest report received from Northern Africa. A new column of French, commanded by General Elie Billet, which arrived yesterday, has taken up a position where it can watch the movements of the Rifians concentrated near Sheshuan, known as the "Holy City of Xauen."

J. H. THOMAS DELIVERS A MESSAGE TO THE EMPIRE.

LONDON, May 19. The Overseas Settlement Department of the Colonial Office this evening issued a message written by J. H. Thomas, who was Secretary for the Colonies in the Ramsay MacDonald Cabinet, addressed to "my fellow citizens in the Dominions and Great Britain." Mr. Thomas opens by stating that he is aware there are many people who assume that the Labor leaders are against the development of the Empire. "It is because I am a Labor man that I believe with all my heart in that great brotherhood of free Democratic peoples, which is building up the British Empire." Dealing with the capabilities of the Dominions and the smallness of their populations, he expressed himself at length on the latter problem, and asks if the British people do not see that the existence of the Dominions as nations depends upon having them populated to a much greater extent. Canada, he said, must have more people and five or six millions of British could not hold Australia. The success of the white Australia policy depends upon having more inhabitants.

UNION MINES CEASE WORK.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 19. All of the Pittsburgh Coal Company's Union mines are now closed, the Company announced to-night. Forest Hill Mine, near West Newton, employing 400 men which closed to-day, was the last to go down. Two years ago the Company had fifty mines working employing 17,000 men. They produced 1,500,000 tons of coal monthly. A portion of the present difficulties of increased cost had been found, the Company said, by some of its Union miners of Pomeroy, Ohio, who three weeks ago agreed to work on the November, 1924 wage scale.
