NOT FULLY MANNED.

The ship of justice that sails in these provincial waters, is ill-manned.

The court of appeal with a hundred cases on the docket at for one week, when it had to be adjourned to allow of some of its members going on fall circuits.

As we said, the judges are too few in number, and some of them are not good for hard work.

It seems to us, further, that the disposition of the judges is not of the best.

The idea of a spring and a fall circuit, of terms and of fixed times, does not appear to be commensurate.

The convenience of the court is supposed to be consulted, but if one happened to hear the justices laying out and distributing the work among themselves more could be heard of their personal convenience than that of the litigious farmer.

But the farmers' cases are not numerous; and the best of the cases could be heard at one time as well as another, and therefore courts ought to be held when the business will warrant, and they ought to sit till the business is all heard, not for any fixed number of days.

There ought to be enough business to constitute a full court of appeal always available.

But just now there is any number of new and old cases, and not enough judges to form a court to hear them.

What we want are younger judges and more of them, and the chief of them the most active of the lot.

We want, further, a better disposition of the judges and of the times for holding courts and hearing cases.

And lastly, we want these requirements fulfilled at the earliest possible moment.

"Let justice be done though the heavens fall" applies as much to the means and the method as to the doing of it.

THE RELIQUOUS DEBATE.

One little indication of the great struggle now impending between christianity and its opponents is the controversy that has sprung up in our columns over the lecture delivered in this city the other day by a freethinker.

It is no use to say that in a comparative quiet surface, it is only a surface crust, there exists below a seething mass of doubt and unrest, which threatens to break out at any moment.

It has burst through in Germany, in England. Our ministers cannot turn a deaf ear to the questions the doubters put to them.

Neither can a public journal which strives to keep abreast of the times, and endeavors to be fair to all, refuse to publish the letters of agnostics or infidels. These questions must be answered, not ignored, and that is the duty of the defenders of the faith.

But it seems to us that one of the greatest stumbling blocks might be removed if it were borne in mind that it is the doctrine of the so-called orthodoxy that is attacked, not that christianity pure and undefiled.

What that purer christianity is we shall not attempt to define, but only say that what the atheist attacks, or the agnostic attacks, is not christianity at all.

Another weak point of those who attack religion is that though they are most of them upholders of the doctrine of evolution, they would deny a progressive movement to christianity. It is not the mysteries, not the myths, not the superstitions, that have in the course of centuries hung themselves about it that should be criticized, but the fundamentals on which christianity rests that must be overturned before the millions who find comfort therein will abandon their rest.

THE POSITION OF FRANCE IN EUROPE.

All the circumstances of the present trouble-between France and China favor the belief that the latter power is deliberately playing a waiting game, expecting to tire the former out by the annoyances of a little war carried on at an enormous expense from home.

With regard to France the most prevailing belief is that she has committed herself to a very losing enterprise; waiting on the other side of the globe the strength which is needed to sustain her position in Europe.

There is a just room for doubting, however, whether French statements are actually so phenomenally foolish in this matter as they appear to be.

What is to hinder them from any day coming to terms with China just as soon as they have formally vacated their country in the east?

This is what the London Times has of late been pressing upon them very strongly, and it would not be wonderful were the advice to be acted upon.

The Times says that with France out of her proper place in Europe a dangerous void is left, and calls upon France to take her place and keep it.

Not only so, but the leading journal in effect tells Germany that England will oppose any European policy aiming to keep France out of her proper place in Europe.

The change is made that the "Postal" is a put on job together, designed to be sold out, if possible, either to the Western Union or the American Government.

A heavy damage suit has been instituted against the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad company by Shoshell, Schaner & Teagle, coal oil refiners of Cleveland, O., on account of unjust discrimination in rates of freight.

The suit will be watched with much interest by both the mercantile and railway communities.

Hon. Samuel J. Randall was one of the jurors summoned to attend the Philadelphia court of quarter sessions Monday.

When the district attorney saw the ex-speaker of the house of representatives sitting outside of the railing he stopped forward and expressed the pleasure he felt that the cause of justice was to have the honor of his services.

"Honor!" exclaimed Mr. Randall, "you flatter me," and then added:

"We have good deals nowadays about reform. Why not reform the condition of things under which we are to live?"

"No man ought to be relieved from jury service who cannot present a satisfactory reason. For myself I have no such reason. I am not sick. Here I am; young, I am not too old. I am not sick. Here I am; here I am!"

Spoken like a true citizen. If there were more Randalls there would be no criticism of the abolition of the system of trial by jury.

The capture of Jefferson Davis will be fully treated by Mr. Burton M. Harrison in a paper to be published in an early number of the Century. It is a narrative of personal experience, describing the retreat of Mr. Davis and party from Richmond at the close of the rebellion, and is said to be of decisive historical importance with regard to the event of which there has been so much dispute.

Mary Anderson has refused to be presented to the Prince of Wales, intimating that she desires to keep her name free from scandal. Her action, according to the New York World, has given rise to two columns of his former favorite!

The other, who is managing Mary Anderson's advertising business!

A correspondent sends us a communication, too long for publication, which we will show that proper indignation and veneration will not alone secure freedom from disease, but that as long as people unreasonably dread through the most instead of the healthiest life will be subject to all the ills that flesh is heir to.

He contends that the nostrils are so constructed that all living organisms and deadly gases with which the atmosphere is charged are destroyed within the nostrils. All animals and men in the average state, he asserts, breathe through the nose.

Wm. S. Holman is nominated by the New York Sun as the democratic candidate for president. He is an Indiana politician, said to resemble a duck, and certainly on the firmness, astuteness, and patriotism of his character.

The Chicago police regard drunkenness as a thing to be treated scientifically. A man was picked up by the police in a hopeless state of intoxication, and taken to the morgue and cooled off on ice. When he was thoroughly cooled he came to, and was soon walking about as if nothing had happened. How does this plan strike our city authorities. Instead of fining a man $5 for being drunk, they could charge that amount for cooling him off.

It is almost time that the insane absurdity of printing ill-executed licenses of bank officials on our currency were abandoned. Buchanan on the bank of Montreal paper is a dismal illustration of profound woe.

S. Rowland affords a startling example of the fact that hair may grow vigorously on a man's chin after it has entirely deserted his forehead. M. H. Gault of the Exchange bank would do for a tailor's fashion plate.

Messrs. Strady and Alexander also are fairly dressed vignettes. But how on earth has such an idiotic consumption of pasook vanity and conceit become a custom in what are usually considered steady, solemn and solid money institutions?

Some few individuals have had the sense to escape the perpetration of such a folly. The stock of the banks that represent ought to be at a high premium, if common sense has anything to do with bank management.

Temperance work is having a boom in New Brunswick. The blue ribbon movement has been revived and a demand for a re-voile on the Scott act is being made in some parts of the province. By the way, what aggressive work are the temperance people of Ontario engaged in at present.

Every now and then the alarm is being raised that England is in serious danger from depending so largely on importing from abroad food for her people at home.

This time the London Echo has been drawing attention to the contingency of very short supplies should England become involved in war with any great maritime power. The alarm may pass away for the present, but it is sure to recur again, and to become more serious every time.

The policy of letting the country go to pasture and game preserves is favored by the large landowners, but public opinion will yet compel its abandonment.

The dangerous state of affairs existing at Canton will probably compel both England and the United States to try their hands at inducing France to hurry up with all possible dispatch the aid of her little war with the "black flag." Much of the trade formerly done at Canton has during some years past been slipping away to ports where European residents feel safer, and the process is likely to go on more rapidly after this.

Italy is fortifying its frontier in Piedmont at a cost of from 6,000,000 to 7,000,000 francs. The work will, it is believed, render the Alps impervious to any army, even though led by a Hannibal Napoleon.

RELIGIOUS DEBATE.

To the Editor of the World.

Sir: I don't think Mr. V. B. Hall need count on Charles Watts for a public debate.

Mr. Watts is a busy man and has earnest work on hand. I know him well and am sure there is too much of the practical common sense Englishman about him to waste time in the unprofitable task of advertising in public controversy any small man with cranky idiosyncrasies and flowing locks.

For the information of those who feel an interest in the matter, I may state that Mr. Watts will in a few weeks be in public debate by a well-known Toronto clergyman, who is, I think, well versed in modern critical thought, and what is better, is a gentleman. This discussion has arisen out of Mr. Watts' recent lecture, and because the reverend gentleman had no opportunity on that occasion of refuting the lecture.

I know more of the gentleman than I would be warranted in saying, and I am sure that the cause of justice would be well served by the hands of this gentleman than by the hands of any other representative man.

TEMPERANCE.

To the Editor of the World.

Sir: In reply to Liberal Christian I would say to him to read what is published with a little more care, he would be able to give a more correct account of what he does than he has given in his article of the 15th.

He said in your issue of the 15th, that I knew more of the secular society than most of its members. I am only too glad to say I am not.

QUESTIONS FOR J. F.

To the Editor of the World.

Sir: Your correspondent J. F. in "today's" World works all around the "trap" business but does not touch it at all.

Instead of giving us salvation army and camp meetings, why not indulge in a little meeting of the spirit of the times? Did I hear that they would fall 3d. If he did know they would fall, it was possible to know when he placed them in the market. He has fired the bounds of every man that he can not pass. Oh, is not every man, like Parson Knowlton, for some purpose, the slave of the Infinite mind?

Mr. J. F. will you please give us a little logic? Do not think that I am a freethinker, and do not notice the issue.

Toronto, Sept. 15, 1883. ST. CLAIR.

ADMISSION.

To the Editor of the World.

Sir: I dare not ask for the space I desire to reply to your trio of correspondents, V. B. Hall, Liberal Christian and J. F. The public would soon tire of your paper if it were even largely controversial.

Permit me to say, however, in reply to V. B. Hall, that I could not enter the arena of debate on so frivolous a question as the first one he proposes. Man, in my opinion, is not a fallen creature. If God did make him, I claim that like wine he has improved with age, and only needs such redeemers as the graceful forces of humanity can, and do, put forth.

On the second question, which goes to the effect that I will meet any man who will meet me in Toronto, put forth by the Y. M. C. A., who may consider me, on inquiry, worthy of his steel.

To Liberal Christian I allow me to say that at least a baker's dozen other and different religions are a "holier, a standard, and a more perfect religion than his own." His historical search must have been meagre in the extreme if he has not noticed this fact. On the third question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the fourth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the fifth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the sixth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the seventh question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the eighth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the ninth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the tenth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the eleventh question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the twelfth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" I answer, in the words of the Rev. Dr. Scott's own words, "I believe that there are five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion."

On the thirteenth question, which is, "What is the Rev. Dr. Scott's theory as to the five hundred different religions, each one claiming to be the only true religion?" will see that while the position of the noble precepts of Christ are more respected the world over than ever before, being the present and life of a godlike humanity, the empty forms and creeds of the fully and superstitious of the orthodox church are fast falling into disrepute and neglect.

A REPLY TO CHRISTIAN.

To the Editor of the World.

Sir: Christian's answer throws no light on this vexed question, but rather involves me in greater difficulties. His explanation says in plain words, that the christian's God is a tyrant who after he had created Adam with reasoning powers, in order to show that he was more powerful, by saying that he would follow, thus entailing on his descendants a mind suffering in this world and eternal agony on countless millions of them in the next.

The consistent descendant of Adam's way and gave a command, which he knew the man was going to break, to show that he was more powerful. According to the orthodox creeds Adam's sin was the cause of all the evil and suffering that ever entered the world, and that he was the author of it, but at what a cost to his creature.

Christian asks where is the trap that God set for the man who broke his command, and looks considerable worse since he has shown that the motive in setting it was to show man was more powerful, by saying that he would follow him on to higher and more glorious standing than before.

Does Christian mean that mankind ever since the fall have been in a higher standing than Adam was in Eden? Or if he means that in the next world man is to be a higher standing than Adam was in Eden, let me ask what proportion of the human race have lived and died nominally christian, and what proportion of them have been judged by the christian standard? I fear he will find the number pitifully small. In this I can see no proof of God's goodness, though I am of his power.

He says too that we fall into sin and error every day, but does he not believe that the result of Adam's transgression, and that had Adam not fallen the world had been one Eden?

I cannot understand Christian's God is love, nor the one, either, who according to J. F., sitting in the heavens should laugh at and deride the efforts of his creatures, by seeking for the light and truth.

Is Christian's only explanation that from the fall there has been a higher standing than Adam was in Eden? Or if he means that in the next world man is to be a higher standing than Adam was in Eden, let me ask what proportion of the human race have lived and died nominally christian, and what proportion of them have been judged by the christian standard? I fear he will find the number pitifully small. In this I can see no proof of God's goodness, though I am of his power.

MR. WATTS' QUESTION.

To the Editor of the World.

Sir: Being that I believe that Mr. Christian gives in your paper this morning to Mr. Watts' question may be of service, I submit the following: 1. The christian's God as omnipotent and omniscient of course knew that Adam would fall. 2. God did not set a trap for Adam that he might fall, but simply put him to a legitimate test and saw that he would fail.

3. Knowing he would fall, God provided a means of redemption, and a way of escape, which cost him his only son, his own son to die, more suffering than Adam experienced by his fall. 4. The nature of the redemption provided, from the fall, was that of a higher state of happiness, from the fall, was that of a higher state of happiness, from the fall, was that of a higher state of happiness.
