United States Will Get After Standard Oil Co.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—In an interview here on his arrival from Oyster Bay, where he had conferred with President Roosevelt, Attorney General Bonaparte, said: "I do not wish to make any secret of the fact that the talk between the president and myself today was in reference to the fine imposed by Judge Landis against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. We discussed that and also what steps would be taken as a result of investigation of the interstate commerce commission in Harriman railroad system."

These questions, I cannot tell at the present time."

Mr. Bonaparte was asked that in case it was found the court of appeals upon Roosevelt, Attorney General Bonaparte, and Roosevelt would be prosecuted. He was asked if his department would prosecute Mr. Harriman as an individual. To these questions he answered: "That is a pretty strong way of putting it. I will say, however, that if the department were to prosecute, it would be in the interest of the public good cases, those higher up will come in for their share of the investigations. The cases will be pushed to the limit. So far as the smaller fry are concerned, I do not think there is any use going after them. I refer to the men who are at

"Will the Standard Oil Company of Indiana be forced to pay the fine if its president fails?" he was asked.

"That is a question the answer to which can only be found in the future," said Mrs. Bonaparte smiling. "The president and I talked over the amount of the fine imposed by the courts and we both sympathized very much with the company," added the lady. "But the fine will be broadened." "But, how can the Standard Co. of Indiana pay a fine of over $29,000,000 on a capitalization of only $10,000,000?" he was asked, "that is unless the parent companies are also added to the list and collection made through them?"

by the court of appeals, then we will go after our money and get it in some way," answered Mr. Bonaparte.

In speaking about the Harriman report which he had discussed with the president, the attorney general said, there was nothing to be said at this time, but that developments may be expected within the next few weeks.

Author of "THE GREATEST OF THESE," "THEIR HEARTS' DESIRE, ETC."

"I do I ever do anything just now, but try to take it all in," laughed the girl with a little swing of her hand round. But the laugh was nervous, the gesture lacked spontaneity, and perhaps it was the touch of constraint, but now Conyers noted the little change of her voice. Till now he had been too absorbed in himself, in what she said, to heed very much how she said it. The old distinction of voice and tone were still there, but they seemed slightly overlaid by a certain stirring commensurate of accent. After all, it was only a trifle, and was accentuated, no doubt, by her lack of ease with Sir David, for father and daughter had evidently not yet drawn together as the mother and daughter had done.

"I think I heard your mother asking for you," said Sir David, and the girl turned and with a shy smile to the two men, went away down the terrace.
Both involuntarily watched the white figure till it disappeared, and the angle of the house. Her slight, rapid movements had always been looked on as graceful, and now there was a hesitancy in the poise and carriage which Basil's eyes caught. A slight, pensive drop of the chin and shoulders. To him the girl seemed to vanish with her.

"Will you come to the library," broke in Sir David's voice; "I have word with you."

CHAPTER VII. Basil's Lips Are Closed.

Whatever communication Sir David might have to make he seemed in no hurry to begin, when the two men had reached the library, the counterpart of the tapestry room in size and proportion, though the sober dignity of the book-lined walls gave it a more sombre air. In spite of the sunlight without, a wood fire crackled and sang in the wide hearth, and Sir David stood for a moment leaning against the carved chimney-piece and absently pushing the billets of wood further into the blaze, while Conyers's eyes, wandering idly round, rested on the paper-covered writing table. Surely it was in some other existence he had sat there with Sir David, hopelessly turning over these futile letters. A whole lifetime of new experience, of throbbing passion, of eager hope seemed already to separate him from these dark days, but a chill fell on his mood as he glanced at his old friend's drooping attitude and clouded face.

"What a change since last time we were in this room together!" he said aloud, giving vent to his feelings as far as respect permitted. "Only to know that my cousin was alive would have seemed everything then, but now not only to see her safe and well, but so—so changed—oh, I haven't any words for it—but you know what I mean—it's like a sort of new heaven and a new earth all at once," he wound up in shame-faced fashion, becoming, like his close and kind, particulate when he tried to put any strong feelings into words.

Daily Fashion Hint for Times Readers.

A MAGPIE CREATION OF TAFFETAS AND LACE.

Numbers of well-dressed women are wearing costumes this season in the ever fashionable magpie combination. Plain black unrelieved by white or some light color is very trying to the majority of women, but set it off with delicate white lace, net or chiffon and it is rarely unbecoming to any woman. Especially is this true if the costume be one of the fashionable jumper models wherein the white is confined to the bodice and worn next the skin. The picture is a striking model of black taffetas, handsome black lace appliques and fine white lace. The design is really very simple, but the materials are such that the finished effect is one of abandon and elegance. The skirt, slightly gathered into the crushed pleats which joins it to the jumper waist, is inset with the black lace in deep Vandyke points to the knees, these points coming on the sides, the space between being banded with stitched folds of the taffetas. The simple jumper is made of the taffetas and lace with a guimpé of white reppose lace over white chiffon and trimmed with tiny buttons of silver soutache braid. The Japanese or sling sleeve of the taffetas is edged with lace and lined with white chiffon on which are mounted numerous little white lace ruffles. The waistline is lifted several inches in the back, to give the fashionable empire effect and the skirt is quite long all around.

mind—not that I believe it could have harmed her any more than the mud at the bottom of Loch Van can stain the whiteness of the lilies floating above. God knows, I'd put her peace and happiness before all else, and if it were to harm or distress her I would not speak; but don't put further hindrance between us, don't urge indefinite delay. I couldn't bear it—now—for since I looked in her face today I can't explain it, but the world is changed for me."

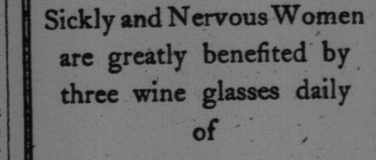

"Wait a while at least," he said, in a changed voice, "till Christmas; that is not much to ask. Promise me."
"Till Christmas!" echoed Conyers. "Oh, impossible! This is only September. Why we should have been married before Christmas, and now you ask me to wait till then even to speak to her. It is too much. I can't!" bluntly.

"But you must!—with the sudden violence of an immediate nature pushed to extremes. You don't know—you don't understand; it's for your own sake. You may thank me yet though God forbid!" "I certainly don't understand," broke in Conyers; "above all, why it should be for my sake. Have I not said already—then something in the old man's face made him pause—something in the eyes, wild and yet shy. 'Well, be it so'—drawing a long breath—"till Christmas; but you are setting me a hard task—a task that may be too hard for me yet!"

"At least I have done what seems to me the right," said Sir David, as if he had not heard the last words, and, sitting down in his writing chair with a heavy sigh, whether of relief or regret it would have been hard to say. He seemed to speak to himself rather than to Basil, and after lingering a moment the young man left the room, feeling perplexed and doubtful. What was wrong? Was his old friend's mind in some way affected by the terrible strain? Why should he be the only face at Stormont without a smile?

Left alone, Sir David sat staring before him for a while, his tall figure slumped together, his head bowed. Then he raised a flap in the table before him, revealing a nest of tiny drawers. His restless fingers worked busily for a moment, then opening the lowest drawer, he slipped his hand to the back and apparently touched a spring, for another drawer, cunningly contrived, slid out from beneath. He averted his eyes for a moment and then looked, as if against his will, into the little box. There were merely some letters and the little Testament.

ROPE BROKEN, WHITE RAT SPRINGS PULLEY OF FLAG POLE AT BOY'S COMMAND

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The hazardous but lucrative trade of "steeples Jack" has been usurped in Jersey by a small white rat.

Edmund P. Condit, a wealthy resident of Verona, gave a birthday party to a dozen young friends of his nine-year-old son, yesterday. When he attempted to celebrate the occasion by raising an American flag to the top of the thirty-foot staff that has stood by the house for years, the pulley rope broke. The pole was too frail to permit of even the slightest climbing up to pass another halyard through the pulley at the top.

"Me and Jimmy'll fix it for you, Mr. Condit," piped up Abie Wolff, a neighbor's son, and he scooted off to his father's barn, returning with a little white rat clinging to his shoulder.

Abie uncoiled a ball of twine, put the loose end in "Jimmy's" mouth and sent the little animal climbing up the pole; but when he reached the pulley he didn't know what to do next.

Abie found another pulley, called the white rat down and spent ten minutes teaching him to run back and forth through the contrivance with the twine between his teeth.

Then he sent "Jimmy" up the pole again, and this time the rat, without a moment's hesitation, tried to get through the pulley. The hole was too small, but "Jimmy" deliberately took the string in his mouth, passed it through the small opening, caught it with the other paw and scrambled to the ground with it.

A rope was swung through the pulley with the aid of the twine halyard and "Jimmy" munched happily of the biggest piece of cheese he had ever seen at once.

CANDY CURE FOR LIQUOR HABIT

Health Chief Feeds Children Sweets to Avoid Future Whiskey Drinking.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—According to Dr. A. C. Abbott, chief of the bureau of health, appetite for candy and for alcohol are kindred, and the taste for sweets precludes a craving for liquor. In pursuit of his theory he makes a daily regular allowance of candies to his children to fortify them against the dangers of the other craving later on.

In a dissertation upon Dr. Abbott's belief Dr. J. Shalmers De Costa, the surgeon, advances the theory that twin appetites are a matter of temperament. The blonde will hanker for candy and the brunette for alcohol. This, he says, is because the brunette is more vital.

It is also asserted that with increasing freedom women are buying less candy and more liquor, and that men are using more candy.

"It is only my personal theory," said Dr. Abbott, "not indorsed by any medical authority, that the appetite for candy and the appetite for alcohol are fundamentally the same, the choice of one or the other being determined by the temperamental qualities of the individual. Both sugar and alcohol are carbohydrates, with the same organic molecules, differing only in arrangement, and it is to my mind probable that they both administer to the same organic craving."

"The appetite for sweets, developed, therefore, will take the place of the appetite for rum."

readily supplied by such a readily oxidized carbohydrate as sugar or alcohol. For that reason I consider the child's appetite for sweets thoroughly normal. All young animals like sweet things."

Shine the leather, not the polish.

Old style paste polishes, fill up the pores of the leather of your shoes and form a false surface. It is this caked-on blacking that you shine, not the leather, so it stands to reason that the shine won't last long.

In the meantime the leather underneath this false surface is rotting and cracking—the blacking is ruining your shoes before you get their legitimate wear out of them.

Packard's Special Combination Shoe Dressing is a leather food—it feeds the pores of the leather with the oil that keeps it soft and pliable, and prevents it from cracking. Packard's Combination is a liquid and paste—the liquid dyes your shoes a dead black, the paste gives the leather a brilliant shine.

Rubbing the dressing off your shoe gives the leather a lasting polish, and leaves the pores open so your foot can breathe.

Packard's Special Combination Shoe Dressing doubles the wear of a pair of shoes. We've proved this by actual test. Why don't you prove it for yourself. For black and tan shoes.

Price 25 cents for liquid and paste.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—Maria Palumbo, twelve years old, of No. 4443 Trenton avenue, finally obtained a license to wed at the Marriage License Bureau today. For two days the girl had been a persistent applicant for a permit, but was refused on account of her age. Judge Ashman, of Common Pleas Court, gave his consent to wed.

The wedding will not take place for two weeks. The girl, it is claimed, will be the youngest bride ever married in this city. She is but a child in both appearance and her ways. Dolls, however, she eschews.

She will wed Michael Moffo, ten years her senior. The bridegroom has $200 saved up for a rainy day, and the girl's parents regard him as an excellent husband for Maria.

A WESTERN DRAWBACK

The fuel situation in western Canada is causing much concern. Another winter of scarcity is predicted and the prediction appears to be well founded. The conditions south of the line are no better, and one paper says:

What the people of Montana, Wyoming, the Dakotas, Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Arizona, Nevada and California are going to do for coal the coming winter is a serious question. Long ago the authorities were warned that the coming winter would show a 40 per cent. shortage of coal, but it looks as if the country will be spared such a fate. The Winnipeg Free Press has gone carefully into the case in western Canada and secured reports from various sections. Commenting on these it says:

It is evident from the facts presented hereunder that the country as a whole is face to face with a situation, the seriousness of which will be apparent upon careful perusal. There is little probability of a fuel famine so acute as that which afflicted western Canada, and indeed the entire continent last winter, but it is evident that a scarcity may be anticipated unless prompt action be taken to guard against it. There is still time to protect even the most isolated sections of the country against the possibility of suffering if those responsible will only endeavor to secure ample stocks before the transportation facilities become congested with the movement of the crops. But it is evident from reports received by the Free Press that the severe lessons taught during the winter of 1907 have not caused preparations to be made to guard against similar situation.

People who live in the eastern provinces and have always an abundance of coal or wood—or both—can scarcely realize the terrible suffering of people in the intense cold of a western winter without a good fuel supply. The Free Press intimates that enough fuel might be provided if the people would take advantage of the transportation facilities in time, but expresses a fear that this will not be done. After all, the eastern folk have some things to be thankful for, even if they lack some of the splendid optimism of the west.

SAYS PREMIER MCBRIDE WON

The Toronto Mail and Empire takes the ground that Premier McBride of British Columbia did not fail after all in his mission to London. It says that what happened to the bill to amend the British North American Act was that in the house of lords there was attached as a schedule the address of the dominion parliament. The Mail and Empire adds:—"In this address occur the words 'final and unalterable.'" With this postscript the bill was passed by the House of Lords, sent back to the House of Commons and there readopted. The change may be pleasing to the Canadian government and it cannot make any difference to the Imperial government, for it is the latter and not the former that has carried its point. The schedule is there for anyone who cares to read it, but the intent of parliament is contained in the body of the act, wherein can be found not a word to discourage any Canadian province from petitioning for a rearrangement of the Dominion grants nor to restrain any Canadian province from acting on such petition. The schedule is Sir Wilfrid Laurier's part of the Act, and the body of the measure is Mr. McBride's.

POLITICAL NOTES

(From the Telegraph.)

Two subjects of political importance are now under discussion in the press throughout Canada.

That which excites most interest is the coming cabinet reconstruction. No journal, even on the government side, expresses an opinion whether it is to be Dr. Pugsley or Mr. Carvell who will be selected from this province. One Ottawa despatch states that the office of minister of railways will not be filled until Earl Grey returns to Ottawa toward the end of this month. Mr. R. L. Borden said in Toronto this week that he would not be surprised if the bye-elections in St. John and London were held quite early in September.

The Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Witness, noting the fact that Mr. Carvell was in Ottawa this week, declares that at the close of the last session of parliament that gentleman had the port of every Liberal member from New Brunswick, but since then Dr. Pugsley had made considerable headway, and the choice lay between the two. This correspondent gravely makes the following assertion: "So far as the results in New Brunswick at the next general elections are concerned it really does not make the least difference which of the two is taken into the government. Mr. Pugsley is assured of election in St. John and can probably carry the two seats in St. John for the government at the next election. Mr. Carvell, on the other hand, could have strength enough, it is said, to carry York as well as his own constituency of Carleton." The Witness correspondent makes this further statement about New Brunswick, doubtless on opinion expressed by the New Brunswick members then at the capital: "The Liberals have a fair chance at the next election of turning Queens-Sunbury to their side, whilst Kings and Charlotte are almost certain to stand by their present members, Mr. Ganong, Conservative, and Mr. Fowler, Conservative, respectively."

With regard to the portfolio formerly held by Mr. Hyman, one Ottawa correspondent expresses the opinion that Mr. Speaker Sutherland is the favorite, while Mr. Archie Campbell and Mr. P. F. Pardee have aspirations. Mr. Sutherland appears to be more frequently spoken of than any other Ontario man for cabinet honors.

The second subject of interested discussion is the coming tour of Mr. R. L. Borden. The press universally expects the tour to the high character of the leader of the opposition, and journals on his own side speak in terms of enthusiasm. It is stated that among those who will speak with him at various points in the maritime provinces will be Mr. J. C. H. Bergeron, Dr. R. C. Weldon and Hon. Mr. Foster. The Toronto World, which had an interview with Mr. Borden this week, states that he will speak in St. John, Fredericton and Newcastle, and that the tour will begin at Halifax on Aug. 20th and last ten weeks.

The supervised playgrounds which close on Monday, with interesting exercises and brief speeches by one or more citizens who appreciate the value of the work done. For weeks past hundreds of children have been very happy every week day on these grounds, and it is with great reluctance that they have come to the time of closing. It is hoped that the plea for flowers for Monday's closing exercises will meet with a generous response, and that many parents will take occasion to attend the Winter street school grounds in the morning and the Centennial grounds in the afternoon.

Next week in St. John will be marked by the visit of Earl Grey. It goes with out saying that the distinguished representative of the king in Canada will be welcomed for his own sake as an able and far-sighted statesman, as well as in his official capacity as governor-general.

HE WAS IN HARD LUCK

Joseph Simard, Crippled by Rheumatism Debarred from Entering United States.

Joseph Simard, a cripple, was refused admittance to the United States last evening by the immigration authorities. Simard is a French-Canadian, hailing from Quebec, but has recently been playing his trade as a shoemaker near Campbellton. His wife is working in a shoe factory in Holyoke and he was on his way to join her with his two sons, aged 8 and 10 years. The unfortunate man lost the use of his legs when he was seven years old as a result of an attack of rheumatism and he now gets along with the aid of his hands, his legs being doubled under him and useless. He says he has worked in the United States about 21 years, in Salem, Boston and Lynn and he could not understand why he should be prevented from going to join his wife when he was perfectly able to earn his own living. Simard was greatly disappointed last night as he had only a limited amount of money to buy his ticket and could not well afford to stay here and pay hotel rates. Some arrangement may be made today to allow him to proceed.

THINKS CROPS WILL BE UP TO AVERAGE

This is the Opinion Expressed by Senator F. A. Frost, of Smith's Falls, Ont.

Sen. F. A. Frost and wife of Smith's Falls Ont., arrived in the city yesterday and are stopping at the Royal. Senator Frost expressed his opinion that the weather conditions of the present season in Canada have not been paralleled for nearly forty years. He believes, however, that in spite of this the crop will be up to the average. Fears had been entertained for the wheat crop of the west for a time last frost should interfere, even now some little apprehension is felt. Reports from all parts of the west, however, were favorable. Hay would be a short crop, Senator Frost says, though farmers will be compensated by the good price. The Ontario root crop of all kinds and fruit will yield a larger crop than for many years.

Senator and Mrs. Frost will remain here until Monday, when they will leave for Halifax. They are on a vacation trip.

Mrs. Mary Gilchrist of Pittsburg (Pa.), is visiting her sister, Mrs. Joseph Mason at the Head of Millstream. This is Mrs. Gilchrist's first visit to her old home in twenty years.

ON THE BAY

Out in the moonlight, out for a sail,
Watching the glittering silvery trail
Flowing away far back in the wake,
Like the rippling foam the sea waves make.
Only the sky and the stars to see,
Only the waters, love, and thee.

We'll rest and listen, hand in hand,
To the mournful, sobbing song sung bland,
Of the swirling waters, as they rush along,
Bearing away in a careless song.
On, ever on, on to the sea,
Leaving a sigh of love and thee.

All is now silent, still as the dead,
Close to my breast, love, lay your head,
Just let me breathe a heart's love tale,
A picture of faith and truth unveil.
Rapid and strong as the waters speed,
Give me the love that my heart-cries need.

Give me your life, love! Ever to hold,
I will protect it strongly and bold,
Making it sunshine, bright as the day,
Wandering onwards as we may.
Onwards together, just like the sea,
We'll flow through love—Hugh May.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

AN IMPRESSION.

"Ah, I have an impression!" exclaimed Dr. McCoah, the president of Princeton College, to the mental philosophy class. "Young gentlemen," continued the doctor, as he touched his head with his forefinger, "can you tell me what an impression is?"

No answer.

"What, no one knows? No one can tell me what an impression is?" exclaimed the doctor, looking up and down the class.

"I know," said Mr. Arthur. "An impression is a dent in a soft place."

"Young gentlemen," said the doctor, removing his hand from his forehead and growing red in the face, "you are excused for the day."

HIS SYMPATHY.

(New York Tribune.)

This story is well in keeping with the spirit of the age. A Bronx man tells it about his little boy. The neighbor's young other youngsters in the block had been asked not to make any noise in the streets. The neighbor's door bell rang one day, and he opened it to find Willie standing bashfully on her front steps.

"How is he today?" he enquired in a shy whisper.

"He's better, thank you dear, and what a thoughtful child you are to come and ask."

Willie stood a moment on one foot and then burst forth again. "I'm awful sorry Jimmy's sick."

The mother was profoundly touched. She could find no further words to say, but simply kissed him. Made still bolder by the caress, Willie began to back down the steps, repeating at intervals his sorrow for his playmate's illness. At the bottom step he halted, and looked up. "If Jimmy should die," he asked, "kin I have his drum?"

VOLUNTEER DISCIPLINE.

(Charleston News and Courier.)

"To illustrate," said Capt. Timberlake, "the first day the troops came I issued post orders to the guard. The Alabama soldiers were to furnish the main guard. Saturday morning the sergeant-major told the first sergeant of the Alabama troops how many men he would be expected to furnish. The first sergeant hunted up one of the other sergeants, and the following dialogue took place:

"First Sergeant: Hello, Jim. You must get twenty men and report for guard duty this mornin'."

"Jim: Who said I must?"

"First Sergeant: 'I do.'"

"Jim: Well, I ain't going to do it."

"First Sergeant: 'Oh, well, if you feel that way about it, I'll get somebody else to do it.'"

GEORGE AND OTHERS.

(Spare Moments.)

Once a Scotchman was visiting New York, and, coming across a statue of Washington, stood gazing at it.

"Just then a Yankee came up and said to Sandy:

"There's a good man. A lie never passed his lips."

"No," said the Scotchman. "I suppose he talked through his nose, like the rest of you."

THE OTTAWA STATION

WILL COST $1,000,000

Grand Trunk Drops Hotel Project and Will Build Splendid Terminal Instead.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Ottawa is to have a new central station, equal to anything in the Dominion and costing more than $1,000,000. That was the project laid before Sir Wilfrid Laurier this afternoon by William Wainwright, assistant to the general manager of the Grand Trunk railway, and Alexander Gilbert, one of the foremost architects of New York.

The Grand Trunk company has decided to change its previous plans for a $1,000,000 hotel, and a new central station, to cost about $2,000,000, and today new plans for a splendid terminal station, to be erected on the site of the present station, were presented to the government.

These plans provide for a large building of striking architecture, with a central elevation of ten stories, for offices, etc. The structure is planned with a view to the future growth of the capital, and will be adequate for the traffic of many years to come.

The hotel project of the company may possibly be dropped and left for a private enterprise to undertake.

M. J. Butler, deputy minister of railways, will leave on Monday for Montreal, where he will begin his annual inspection trip over the Intercolonial railway. He will be absent several weeks.

E. O. PARSONS,

West End.

Delightful weather prevailed at the golf links all day Thursday when the August matches which have proved so interesting, were continued. There was a very large attendance of the club members and their friends and the golf tea was more than ever delightful, the hostesses being Mrs. DeForest, Mrs. H. H. McLean, Miss Shadobit, and Miss Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Schofield entertained a few friends at tea at the links on Friday of last week.

The Artillery banquet given at the Union Club last Friday evening, in honor of the officers accompanying the visiting British team who are to shoot at Petewick, was a brilliant success and the function was one of the most enjoyable of the kind given here for some time. The long table with its circular-shaped center and beautifully decorated with flowers and foliage, a feature entirely new and original being a centerpiece in the form of a miniature marcello tower, composed of yellow flowers and foliage, and surrounded by six tiny cannons, mounted on gun carriages and made entirely of varicolored sweet peas; cut flowers were artistically arranged in tall, graceful vases.

The formal decorations were composed of roses, carnations, lilies-of-the-valley, asparagus and a profusion of sweet peas.

The miniature floral tower was most appropriate to the occasion, and was much admired by the visitors.

The excellent menu prepared under the supervision of Henry T. Bailey, Esq., of the Union Club, was as follows:

Consomme, aux quenelles.
Fillet of Chicken Halibut.
Hollandaise sauce.
Veal croquettes Tomato sauce.
Kidney mushroom patties.
Joint.
Roast capon.
Bread sauce.
Boiled saddle Southdown mutton.
Caper sauce. Cauliflower.
Riced potatoes.
Green peas.
Dominion punch.
Romaine salad. Charlotte Russe.
Celery cream. Coffee. Ice cream.

WIVES AND MOTHERS SUFFER WITH BACKACHE

Unfortunately They Fail to Recognize the Dangerous Cause of the Trouble.

Constantly on their feet, attending to the wants of a large and exacting family, women often break down with nervous exhaustion.

In the stores, factories, and on a farm are weak ailing women, dragged down with torturing backache and bearing down pain.

Such suffering isn't natural but it's dangerous, because due to diseased kidneys.

The dizziness, insomnia, deranged menes and other symptoms of Kidney complaint can't cure themselves, they require the assistance of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which go direct to the seat of the trouble.

To give vitality and power to the kidneys, to lend aid to the bladder and liver, to free the blood of poisons, probably there is no remedy so successful as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. For all womanly irregularities their merit is well known.

Because of their mild, soothing, and healing effect, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are safe, and are recommended for girls and women of all ages. 25 cents per box at all dealers. No other substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter-nut.

CHARGED WITH ATTEMPT TO MURDER HER BABY

St. John Girl Arrested at Nahant Mass—Says She is Ida Bursey.

Nahant, Mass., Aug. 9.—Ida Bursey, aged nineteen, of St. John (N. B.), is under arrest here charged with attempting the murder of her three months' old babe here and is held without bail for the September term of the grand jury.

The child was found on Nahant beach yesterday wedged in between two rocks, where it had been borne on the tide. It showed signs of having been washed about in the surf, its body being chafed and bruised.

Otherwise it was in good condition and is apparently suffering no ill effects from its long immersion. Miss Bursey admitted

EARL GREY AT CHESTER

His Excellency Spent Yesterday Down by the Ocean.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 9.—Earl Grey spent yesterday in the city. His excellency went down by the government steamer Lady Laurier, which had a party of about 100 on board. He returned to Halifax early in the evening by the Halifax & Southwestern Railway, which placed a handsome new combination parlor and dining car at his disposal.

Earl Grey spoke in complimentary terms of the train and beauty of the country through which it passed. In the evening he witnessed a magnificent illumination on the North West Arm.

Tomorrow his excellency will go to Canim, where he will spend the day with Sir Frederick Borden. On Monday afternoon he will embark on the fishery cruiser Curlew at Digby and will proceed to St. John.

Parnell B. McCafferty, who resigned last week from the Globe writing staff, left last evening by C. P. R. for Saskatoon to continue there, for a time at least, in newspaper work. There was a large gathering at the train to say good bye and wish good luck to the popular young man. He takes with him the best wishes of all who knew him and among a number of tangible expressions of this good will is a fine dress suit case from a number of warm friends.

The following Orange lodges will meet at Lorneville on August 12th: Mount Purple, No. 2; Coronation, No. 1201, and the Prentice Boys from several lodges. They will have a march through Lorneville, accompanied by the Carleton Place Band, St. Mary's Band and Lorneville file and drum. After resting on the grounds of R. W. Dean they will march back to the picnic grounds, where amusements in shape of games, etc., will be enjoyed.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Henry C. Frick

Henry Clay Frick, the Pittsburgh steel magnate and one of the great powers in the huge Pennsylvania Railroad interests, was born at W. Overton, Penn., on December 19th, 1849. He began life as a clerk for his grandfather in the distillery trade but later he entered the coke business where he first showed his marvelous power of management and business determination. Mr. Frick married Miss Adelaide Howard in 1887 at Pittsburgh. Since 1897 he has been the active head of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, which produces more coke than any other single corporation in the world. It was in 1892 that Mr. Frick gained international prominence in connection with his fight against labor during the famous Homestead strike. He was wounded and nearly blown up with a dynamite bomb. Since that time Mr. Frick has been more secluded. He is noted for charitable works and has given big sums to worthy objects.

MOTHER'S ANXIETY

The summer months are a time of anxiety for mothers because they are the most dangerous months in the year for babies and young children. Stomach and bowel troubles come quickly during the hot weather and almost before the mother realizes that there is danger the little one may be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets will prevent such complaints if given occasionally because they keep the stomach and bowels free from offending matter. And the Tablets will cure these troubles if they come suddenly. The wise mother should keep these Tablets always at hand and give them occasionally to her children. The Tablets can be given with equal success to the new born babe or the well grown child. They are good to good—they cannot possibly do harm, and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or harmful drug. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Andrew L. Scott, a native of St. John, died on Wednesday last in his home in Minneapolis. Mr. Scott had moved to that city many years ago, where he held a prominent position with the Chicago, Minneapolis & St. Paul Railway Company. His wife, who was a daughter of the late Thomas Davidson, of Red Head, with three children survive. Mr. Scott was a frequent visitor to his old home, coming here nearly every year to spend his vacation.

The invitations are out for the marriage of William T. Robb, secretary of the New Glasgow Y. M. C. A., and son of the late William Robb, St. John (N. B.), to a daughter of Rev. Alex. T. Robb, missionary in Wonsan, Korea, to Miss Nina H. Harley, only daughter of F. V. Harley and granddaughter of the late Rev. Honeyman, of Halifax. The ceremony will take place on Wednesday, August 14, at the residence of the bride's father, Fairview.—Eastern Chronicle.

A Minister Who Knows

Rev. Mr. Blanchard, of Charlottetown, knows what he says in stating the only sure cure for Hay Fever is Catarrhoxone. "For two months of the year for ten years I suffered. Catarrhoxone has cured me so perfectly that the disease has not returned. Others in my parish I know have been permanently cured by Catarrhoxone, which I strongly recommend for Hay Fever, Asthma and Bronchitis. $1.00 at druggists.

Alphonse Verreille, M. P., of Montreal, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, will arrive in St. John next Tuesday evening, and on Wednesday evening in Berryman's Hall will meet all interested in labor matters. Mr. Verreille is now in Halifax.

METHOD OF SECURING A PATENT

Despite the efforts of the United States government, by widely distributed public notices, to make all patent office matters clear, there is a certain amount of mystery that surrounds the taking out of a patent. A large proportion of our population—as would seem from the records on the subject—are taking out patents or thinking about doing so, and so the rehashing of rules on the subject may not be unprofitable.

A patent may be obtained by any person who has discovered or invented any new or useful art, machine, manufacture, composition or any new or useful improvement thereof, not known or used in the United States before his invention or discovery thereof, and not patented or described in any printed publication here or in a foreign country before his invention or discovery thereof, or more than two years prior to his application, and not in public use more than two years prior to his application.

Applications for letters patent must be made to the commission of Patents in Washington and be signed by the inventor. A complete application comprises the first fee of $15, a petition, a specification and, as oath, together with drawings, model or specimen if they are necessary to the subject. Completed applications are numbered in the order of their receipt, and the inventor is informed of his series number. Two inventions cannot be put forth in the same application, unless they are absolutely dependent on each other.

In this application must be the following components, as described.

Petition, which states name, address, title of the invention and a reference to the specifications. It must be signed by applicant. The specification which is a written description of the invention or discovery, and the manner of its use, so that anyone skilled in science or industry can grasp the novelty and practical value of the same. If an improvement, its distinct novelty must be emphasized.

Following the specification comes the oath. The inventor must make formal affirmation that he believes himself to be the original discoverer or inventor of the art, machine, manufacture or improvement. This, of course, must be made in the form of an affidavit under an official seal.

Drawings are the next requisite. The applicant is required by law to furnish them when the nature of the invention admits of it. Three editions of patent drawings are printed and published, one for the patent office, about 6x9 inches; one about half that size for volumes distributed to courts, and one for the Official Gazette. It is advisable that the original drawings be made by a skilled draftsman.

Size of drawing should be 8x13 inches in India ink on smooth paper just 2 inches wider and longer than the illustration. Simplicity and strength is everything. Signatures of inventor and witnesses should be on each sheet. Incidentally, the Patent office will furnish these drawings if desired, at cost.

Models are the next desideratum, and are not required nearly so often as inventions are lead to believe. A model will only be required or admitted when the primary examiner of the applicant believes it necessary or useful. Models, if possible, should be constructed of metal, without glue in the composition, and be not more than one foot in height, width or length. If of wood, it must be varnished.

When the discovery or invention is some sort of composition, a specimen with analysis must be furnished instead.

Army Investment in Men

Patriotism aside, if Uncle Sam wishes to recruit a higher class of men and more of them into his army, he will have to pay the "troopers" better wages—for in time of peace the army to the enlisted man is nothing more or less, on the last analysis, than a commercial proposition. As nations now stand, our army is being filled by conscription just like the armies of Europe.

It matters not that European laws compel compulsory service. With our army, the conscription comes either from trouble at home, lack of ambition, loss of a job or wanderlust.

"It is surprising and gratifying," said Congressman R. Wayne Parker to a representative of this page, "the high caliber of the wearers of the army uniform, but that is small thanks to the niggardly policy of the government."

"I have investigated the matter and find that the pay account of the United States army is not nearly one quarter of the total appropriation. As the matter stands, the cheapest thing in the country is men—and they are still the winning factors in battle. The pay of the enlisted men should be brought to its proper level."

Investing Your Savings

The Problem of Safety

Even as every man or woman who is possessed of surplus money—they are not few at the present time, as any stock fakir can tell you blithely—is confronted with the problem how to make it work, so he is simultaneously confronted with the equally great problem of how to keep it in reasonable safety. And this is no small problem, yet one by no means impossible to solve by the small investor.

No matter how far one delves into the world of finance, it will be found that there are only two commonplace points to remember. They are security and income. Very often the higher one is, the lower the other, and it is accordingly the aim of the careful investor to keep his see-saw horizontal.

Would you buy a plot of real estate without examining the title thereof—and simply on the plausible arguments of the owner who wants to sell? Why, therefore, should the expert investor rush where angels fear to tread, but lands do not hesitate to gamble (or gamble).

It is a mistaken idea that one has to be an expert to gather and digest data on this subject. In fact, the best that can be taught is how little one really knows outside of the primary points. Take your conditions to a reputable broker or banker, and you will be furnished details and data without charge.

Real Opportunity

They do me wrong who say I come no more.

When once I knock and fail to find you in;

For every day I stand outside the door

And bid you wake, and go to fight and win.

Though deep in mire, wing not your hands and weep;

I lend my arm to all who say "I can";

No shamefaced outcry 'tween sank so deep

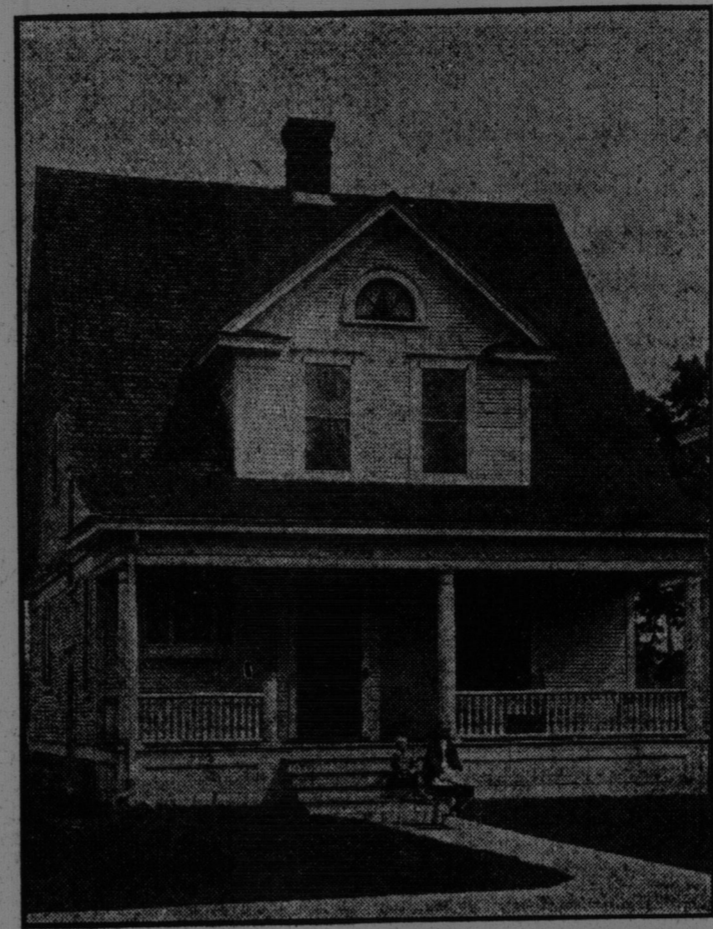

But yet may rise and be again a man!

Weep not for precious chances passed away;

Weep not for golden ages on the wane;

Each night I burn the records of the past

At sunrise every soul is born again.

OPPORTUNITIES ABROAD.

It is strange that the city of Santiago de Cuba, a thriving city of over 50,000 with American naval and mercantile ships making frequent calls has absolutely no up-to-date American steam laundry. Naturally this is an opportunity for some of the wider awake young men who are fighting laundry competition in every city—more especially as the case is duplicated not only in Cuban cities, but practically in all the colonies. The labor of native women, of course, is cheap, but not up to modern methods.

The splendid contract for printing the new issue of Brazilian paper money was last simply because there was no American representative on the ground. On the matter of merit, there was absolutely no drawback, for American work in this line was the only sort free from possible counterfeiting. This is mentioned to emphasize that any American salesman who has the gumption to learn Spanish can be a prosperous grandee down there from the financial standpoint.

An American merchant writing to this page from Shanghai, declares that the American boycott is now a thing of the past and that the great families have put no financial repression on the people. Accordingly the American salesman—he particularly instances the type who can withstand the inertia and immorality of Oriental life—who goes to the Orient with good lines will find a welcome not at all diminished.

A LOW ROOFED COTTAGE HOME.

Designed by Chas. S. Sedgwick, Architect, Minneapolis, Minn.

The low roofed cottage appearance with full height rooms in the second story, is much to be desired in a small economical home but is not always easy to accomplish. The attempt to design a convenient house often results in absolute failure or at best, very poor success by trying to do too much. Houses, like dresses, are generally best when most simple in plan and outline. Such a design as our illustration is very simple to build and by carrying the main roof down, over the front porch, you can save both material and labor, and make a very strong frame, at the same time you secure the cottage appearance. This plan, with various modifications is a common mode of constructing a small cottage and it is a good one. The first floor of house is wide and nearly square but the upper portion of roof, covering second story chambers, being narrow with gables on each side and front, the attic space is necessarily small. The roof at each side of front gable carries down over the front porch. This seven room house with four rooms in the first story and three rooms in the second story is 24 feet wide by 32 feet deep including the front porch. The entrance is through a small vestibule, located nearly central, opening into a large reception room that extends across the sitting room portion on the right hand opening by sliding doors into the dining room.

The first story is 8 ft. 6 in. high and the second story is 8 ft. There is a good basement under the entire house. The first story is finished in Southern yellow pine floors. The second story is finished in pine and painted, with pine floor. This house can be built for $2,200, exclusive of heating and plumbing. The plan does not show a fire place, but the same can be added for $100 extra. This house painted white with green roof makes a very attractive home.

LINGERIE BLOUSES FOR MIDSUMMER.

By DOROTHY DALE.

The lingerie blouse is in great favor this season, and the materials of which it is made are in such demand that there hardly seems enough to go around. There is no denying that these blouses possess a great deal of charm, and that they are plainer and infinitely more feminine than the old time shirt waist. While the cut of these blouses ready made is not large compared to that of the fine hand-made sort, it is quite enough to make the possession of a liberal supply of such garments out of the question for a woman of small allowance.

There is, of course, one way in which the desired blouse results may be obtained if one has the time and skill in needlework. They may be made at home. Naturally, the making of an elaborately trimmed blouse entails a great deal of work, but a certain type of blouse can be accomplished without much work, and is rather more attractive than the much trimmed sort. The best quality of batiste, handkerchief linen or mull, made with a yoke, cuffs and collar of fine pin tucks, and devoid of trimming except perhaps for a bit of narrow lace at wrist and throat is one of the simplest and prettiest blouses of the easily made type.

A thing which the woman who makes her blouses at home will appreciate is the possibilities in the front frill which appeared with the so-called Marie Antoinette blouse. This plaited frill is very charming, though it offers difficulties for the laundress, and in the late season frills similar to this but shirred instead of plaited, are coming in.

Very attractive frills of this sort can easily be made by hand if one will pick up short lengths of narrow embroidery or lace suitable for the purpose, and this adjustable trimming will add distinction to the most simple of the sheer tucked blouses, and make a front opening possible as well. Embroidered linen collars and ties are usually worn with these frill blouses.

Valenciennes and Chantilly laces are much used in combination on the handsome lingerie blouses, as are also valenciennes and baby Irish lace, and sometimes all three will appear in one blouse, the Irish lace taking the form of little medallions or motifs set in with hand stitching or finer lace.

Hand embroidery on fine white batiste is much used for French blouses and the blouses from Paris are also often made of white, embroidered in many different shades—the palest blues, pinks, yellows, lavenders, etc. There are as well French blouses of sheer white batiste or mull, inset with designs of tinted mull which are hand embroidered in white and outlined with narrow lace at wrist and throat.

Some rather odd-looking blouses from Paris are made of striped linen, percale, batiste, etc. The stripes are of the hair-line variety or a trifle heavier and are far apart; so the blouse has the effect of a white rather than a colored garment. These stripes are vertical and at the top of the blouse, where the yoke is simulated by vertical tucks, the stripes converge in much a way as to produce quite a color effect. Many of these blouses are made in the ordinary skirt waist style, decorated only with the plaited frill before mentioned. Sometimes these striped waists have the fronts, cuffs and collar embroidered with linen thread to match the color of the stripe. Of course this embroidery must be simple to accord with the simplicity of the striped design. The little bow tie so popular now gives a touch of color to the striped waist.

A new idea which is very successful for these thin blouses is to have the yoke and sleeves cut in one. The tucked yoke extends into elbow sleeves, being fastened over a lace band extending in a straight line from the little narrow ruffles.

The two drawings show charming designs which do not require much work in the making. Rather wide flat lace bands and val lace edging were used as trimming on one of the blouses—this one being of white mull. The other design was sketched from a model wearing a white blouse, trimmed with bands of white embroidered in pale pink, blue, and faint green in a dainty flower pattern.

Summer Vegetable Dishes

RICE CROQUETTES—To make these procure half a cupful of rice, one cupful of stock, two cupfuls of tomatoes, a slice of onion, a sprig of parsley, two cloves, a piece of red pepper, one egg, half a cupful of grated cheese, one tablespoonful of butter and one-quarter teaspoonful each of paprika and salt. Cover the rice with cold water and bring quickly to the boiling point; let boil for five minutes, then drain, rinse in cold water and drain again. Cook the tomatoes with the onion, parsley, cloves and red pepper fifteen minutes and then pass through a sieve; add the rice with the stock, paprika and salt and cook over hot water, until the rice is tender, and the liquid absorbed, then add the cheese, butter, and beaten egg. Spread on a dish to cool, taking care not to let it become too cold, then shape and finish as croquettes.

SULFUR TOMATOES—Select a dozen good tomatoes of the same size. Cut out a round piece about an inch across from the stem end of each. Remove the seeds and pulp, to leave a shell, and chop the pulp fine. Put four tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan, and saute in this half an onion chopped fine, then add a pint of chopped mushrooms; now add the tomato pulp, half a cupful of lean ham, cooked and chopped fine, half a cupful

Effective Draperies for Dining Room

Perhaps no one feature in the furnishing of a room is so important as the draperies. These more than anything else give character to their surroundings, and make an otherwise commonplace room look individual and comfortable. The success of draperies depends largely on the way in which they are hung, but this is a matter of which the average housewife thinks but little.

Often expensive lace curtains are seen hung with rings on a heavy brass rod, and placed outside from the window casing, taking the place of the heavy over-drapes.

New Window Draperies.

draperies. These thin lace curtains should be used as sash curtains only, and should be hung within the casing close to the window. The heavy poles and rings are suitable only for over-drapes.

These over-drapes are a very desirable addition to a room, and they should be of some heavy material to fit into the color scheme of the room. Usually they are hung outside the casing, though sometimes, if the woodwork is particularly good, they are hung within. If the window reaches to the floor, the draperies should do the same.

The illustration shows a simple treatment especially suitable for a dining room. Either linen, wool or cotton material may be used for these hangings, of a color suitable for the room in which they are used. Drapery of this style is especially appropriate with white woodwork and Colonial furniture.

The curtains are edged with white or cream molair braid, one inch wide and finished at the corners with a simple design. The formal valance is stretched on a valance board or cornice lath along the top of the window casing, and braided in the same way as the hangings. Buckram or butcher's linen should be used to interline the valance, in order to get the stiff effect. Unbleached muslin sash curtains are appropriate when cotton or linen over-drapes are used. If the furnishing of the room is elaborate, the curtains may be of silk or pongee. A two-inch hem couched down with heavy silk floss serves to give them a finish.

of stale breadcrumbs, a few leaves of sweet herbs, tie in a parsley stalk, salt and pepper and broth or thickened sauce to moisten, stir and cook until thoroughly heated, then take out the parsley stalk and fill the tomatoes. The mixture should not be too moist. Set the tomatoes in a baking-pan, and sprinkle with grated cheese and buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven for half an hour.

They sat in the old parlour watching the blue flames curl through the open grate. "Sometimes," he said, rather bitterly, "I think I have made a mistake in life. I wish I had another head on my shoulders."

SOME HINTS ABOUT HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

By BEATRICE CAREY

To wash bed ticking rinse it well in cold water, to which some permanganate of potash has been added. Chloride of lime will remove the stains, but the ticking should be rinsed afterward. The inside should be carefully washed before the stuffing is replaced; this prevents it from coming through.

After using a part of a bowl of starch do not throw away what remains, but leave it to settle. After that pour off the clear water and dry the residue in the oven. The starch will cake, and may be used again.

Put a mixture of flour and plaster of paris in places infected with cockroaches. The plaster sets after they have eaten it, and the insects "are no more."

To protect hardwood floors from scratches sit corrugated rubber to the bottom of chair and table legs and fasten it with strong glue. The tips are not noticeable.

Turpentine and ammonia in equal quantities will take the paint out of clothes, however hard and dry it may be. Wet the spot several times, then wash it out in soapwater. A little bit of oxalic acid dissolved in a pint of hot water will remove the paint stains from windows. Put a little in a cup and apply with a wash, being careful not to let the acid touch the hands. Brasses as well may be cleaned with it, but the bottle must be carefully labelled and put out of the reach of children, as it is deadly poison. It is quite inexpensive and plenty can be had for ten cents.

If richer chairs painted white become yellow after being washed with soap and water, wiped well and dried in the sun, they can be bleached with a sulphur candle. Light the candle near the chair, and cover with a large box. When the woodwork of a room is white, plenty of sunlight should be let in, as an absence of sunlight will turn the paint yellow.

A very attractive table cover for a simple bedroom table is a denim square with a white fringe edging. Any solid color material left from sewing can be utilized by cutting it into conventional leaves and couching them on as a border.

When dishes are washed in the sink, cut two pieces of white rubber tubing, a little more than two inches in length, and stretch them over the end of the faucets, letting them extend about two inches below. This will prevent the breaking and minding of the china and glass caused by knocking them against the spigot.

Pongee curtains are used very effectively with oak bookshelves. The curtains should be shirred on two rods, one at the top and one at the bottom, and they will afford as much protection as glass doors.

The curtains should run easily, as otherwise access to the books is difficult. Soft cheese cloth wrapped rather loosely around a broom, passed over the wall paper now and then, will serve to remove all dust. Thick stale bread crumbs rubbed downward will also remove soil.

To remove grease stains from wall paper spread on the spots powdered pipe clay mixed with water, and let it remain over night. In the morning it can be readily brushed or scraped off. It should be of the consistency of cream.

Brooms which have become round-cornered from long use will look better and do better work if they are cut off across the bottom until they are square as when new.

Very few housekeepers take proper care of bedding. It is considered too expensive to send the mattresses to the shops, so they remain in the same condition for years, sometimes, and one gets so used to lumpy beds that they have come to be considered a sort of necessary evil.

As soon as a mattress is made it should be enclosed in a cover of unbleached sheeting. This will protect it from dust and soil, and it may be taken off and washed every now and then. When a room is not likely to be used for some time, the mattress should be lifted from the bedstead, so that it may receive plenty of air. Every mattress in regular use should be turned once a week.

Blouse With Pompadour Embroidery.

Blouse of Mull and Lace.

It is not possible for the medium of figures to form anything like an adequate idea of the stupendous task involved in the government of the vast Indian Empire of Great Britain. The problems and difficulties are not due to the mere fact that the area under control is 1,000,000 square miles in extent nor that the population is 200,000,000 but that this area embraces the most diversified climates and physical conditions and that this population is composed of nearly thirty different languages. It is not practicable to apply one code of laws to the whole country, nor is it practicable to administer the same. Oudh is entirely different from what it is in Gujarat or Mysore, and different again in the two latter provinces. The same system of law practised in the Punjab would not be adapted to Kashmir or Hyderabad. Nevertheless, it is a common thing to hear a British official in India say, "I am not a Hindu, but I am a Hinduist." This is a conception of conditions in Hindustan discussing fanciful theories which they are pleased to label "Hinduism." The men who have to contend with the situation out there will tell you that there are a thousand and "Hindu" things to be considered. At the same time and that they are as changeable as the quick-sands in the Ganges. The problems that confront the British in India are very different from those with which Lord Curzon wrestled. India has slumbered through the centuries but now she is being awakened and she is being compared with the other nations of the Orient and exhibiting a restlessness and a desire for progress which has caused her rulers sleepless nights and has cost her at large expense and much pain to educate the people of Hindustan. The ultimate result will be that the present product of the schools is a crop of babu agitators, of gold-brood, mendacious and entirely selfish men, who are being encouraged to employ to overreach their poorer and more ignorant countrymen. From this class come the ghouls who corrupt the police and the army, fatten on the life blood of their fellows.

Let us take a cursory view of the country preparatory to considering the factors that influence the food supply. Along the north stretch the eternal ramparts of the Himalayas dividing India from the central plateau of Asia. The higher elevations of the huge range are perpetually snow-clad and from them run never failing streams that go to feed the large rivers which water the Great North Indian rain. This is extensively cultivated and is capable of dependable irrigation but even in this region is the Thar Desert—a large unproductive area. The soil, if properly composed mainly of the table-land of the Deccan. This is the region most liable to famine. It depends on the monsoon rains which at the close of the hot season bore rain across the Western Ghats to the interior. The value of the monsoon is sufficient to the Marathas—never lack a sufficient supply of moisture but it frequently happens that the amount carried over from the previous season in such case famine more or less severe and more or less wide-spread, ensues.

India is a country where statistics will show that it contains no large lake, and very few of any size. This fact places a severe limitation on irrigation. The people are not so much dependent on rivers but they are extremely difficult to handle. An Indian river is at one time a huge dry stream bed and at another time it is being worked with incredible suddenness—a raging torrent overflowing its banks. And floods—though not so frequent as in the West—do occur among the causes of famine. In the south of India are many large "tanks," as they are called. These are artificial reservoirs, some of them a square miles in area. They are memorials of the benevolence of one or another ruler or wealthy citizen, and are connected with a temple and dedicated to one of the numerous gods in the Hindoo Pantheon. The association of the tanks with the gods is the destruction and the presence of the temple ensues a fund for the care and preservation of the tanks. The tanks and the wells can generally be dug up with success, but there are many parts of the country—as Bikanir for instance—where there is no water to a depth of 200—yes and by no means all ways at that.

Waterworks that would extend into the interior of the whole country are beyond the bounds of financial feasibility and even physical possibility.

There are a few regions in which nothing short of the full monsoon fall with yearly regularity will suffice to stave off periodical famines. But in the rest of the country no man should live in reliance upon the soil for the sole means of subsistence but hundreds of thousands of acres should be under government control and not forcibly devoted them.

To reach a just conception of what the British have done towards the reduction and alleviation of famine one must go back through a few centuries in the history of the country. We will learn that the famines of latter days ghastly as they were, are nothing compared with the terrible havoc wrought by the failure of crops in older times. Then thousands died here ten dead today. It was no more than a passing misfortune. The wrongings of their subjects but that the means of relief were so much less than those upon internal supplies. There were no steamer-borne cargoes from the rest of the world known to them. They had nothing about it. Hundreds of thousands disappeared from the face of the earth. Large sections of the population were depopulated and their former inhabitants perished. The famine payment—secure relief from his neighbor if they failed—it failed it might.

The straggle was wide-spread only to the edges of the stricken area might have rescue from death. It does not seem to be generally understood that under British rule the state of affairs has been enormously improved. Very few famines have occurred since the famine map and placed in one of the "safe zones" where at least a sufficient crop of grain could be depended upon for a year. The effects of crop shortage or failure in the "famine zones" have been greatly lessened. The famine of 1942, though smaller percentage of life is lost in a famine and the afflicted district is enabled to recuperate more speedily, the conditions of, say a century ago. The death and birth statistics proclaim these facts very positively.

The worst famine in the recorded history of the country occurred in 1770. It was a famine of the "famine zone" type, was keenly in the lower valley of the Ganges. One third of the teeming population of Bengal died. The famine in the Madras provinces was doubtfully as great as the fearful famine of 1877-78. There as had been severe drought in 1768 and in 1878, the latter year, when floods overwashed the land and obliterated the last trace of growing grain. The situation was very appalling and the people were said to have been paralysed by the horror of it.

At any rate there is no record of any such famine having been adopted or even proposed. In 1780-83 the Karnatak suffered from a famine which was not helped by the British and the British army. On this occasion a public subscription was organised by the Madras Government and the British Government. The Government of the present ("Monegar Choultri"), a permanent institution for the relief of the native poor, was founded in 1783. It was first set up in the Madras Province, and it is especially notable as being the first occasion on which the Government of India took any part in relieving the population of famine districts on public works as a means of relief.

The Buckingham Canal was constructed

It may be said that since 1869 or thereabout the efforts of the government to combat famine have been successful. The success achieved has been due to the fact that the chief factors in the success achieved have been the rail-road and irrigation works. In 1873-74 there was a famine in the Punjab. The government spent $35,000,000 besides importing one million tons of rice. The disastrous period was thus averted. In 1876-77 there was a famine in the Punjab. The government established a record which still stands to-day by carrying out relief work. But Bahar had a railroad running through it, and the famine was not so severe. In few famine districts are so fortunate. In most cases there are tens of thousands of sufferers who can only be helped by the government. The government and though the government should exhaust the treasury, it could do no more for the poor wretched creatures.

Carrying out a conception of Lord Beaconsfield, Queen Victoria was proclaimed Empress of India at the fourth meeting of the Conference probably the most gorgeous gathering the world has ever seen—on the first day of January, 1877. The remembrance of the famine of 1876-77 and the terrible pictures of starvation and disease which were to be seen all over the world, and the following year, 1878, was a year of famine. What is generally known as the Great Famine of 1877-78 really extended over the years 1876-77, 1877-78, and 1878-79. The widespread that India has ever known. The drought commenced in Mysore with a failure of the monsoon in 1876, and in the Punjab in 1877. The normal conditions did not return until 1879. The greatest distress was felt in Southern India. In 1877-78 the rainfall failed and the harvest of the latter year was not worth the gathering. Then the entire country fell into the grip of famine. The government made every effort possible to minimize the effects of the story of the famine. It was a story of epidemic disease. White men were not a few of them—sacred health officers or gave their lives in the cause. The government did not give those who were in the grip of famine, not to mention the loss of revenue due to the remission of taxes and other government dues. Nearly a million died from starvation and resultant disease.

It must not be supposed that the Indian government is not trying to relieve the present famine. As a matter of fact it is constantly engaged in the conflict against the dread enemy. Millions of people are being helped by the relief work. The magnificent irrigation system is in course of extension all the time and runs all day long. The government is doing every effort to alleviate the effects of drought as each meeting with greater success. There has been no famine in thirty years. The present distress is the worst that has occurred since 1878. The mortality was not so great as in 1876-77. It is true, but it is safe to say that the government will soon have the situation completely in hand and stop the fearful loss of life.

CUSTOMS OF THE PEOPLE

Whilst the physical conditions are important factors in the location of scarcity of land, it is also the customs and habits of the people of India has large features and no manufacturing towns to attract the population. Whilst in England more than 90 per cent live in the 225 towns in centres of 20,000 or over, in India less than five per cent live in the 225 towns of that size. Therefore rural and dependent upon agriculture. But it is not a rural population such as we are accustomed to see in the farming districts of this country. The people are densely settled upon the land and in very many districts the struggle for existence is intense. But whilst numerous areas contain more people than the land can support, there are vast tracts of fertile soil lying uncultivated. Here or almost anywhere else such a condition could not produce the crowded districts which in the advanced districts would move to more favorable localities. Not so in India however. It is almost impossible to leave the hereditary homestead. He will rather starve in the over-crowded fields of his ancestors than migrate to another is virtually unknown in India. The returns of the last census showed that ninety per cent of the population lived in the district or state in which they were born and six per cent of the population were farther than 100 miles from the adjacent territories.

[illegible]

habituated to sorgum. They will not know what to do with it and it would not agree with them in any case. The necessity of providing starving men with precisely the kind of food to which they have been accustomed of course creates great difficulties sometimes and at others renders effective relief wellnigh impossible. Then again there are babies—hosts of babies and half grown children to deal with.

and here they place their mill-wheels flat and contrive that the water shall strike the horizontal paddles with great force. On the plains a natural system of irrigation by overflow affects large areas in the same manner as in the Nile Valley. To the higher levels the water is led through canals. The four main canals from the Ganges and the Jumna supply nearly three millions of acres.

If a milk and cream famine arises in any part of the country, there are abundance of other food, but our little ones would die by the hundreds of thousands. The mother would rather see her child die than see her child go to the workhouse to death. She feeds her suckling to the last and denies herself to feed other children. She will give up her own life in parting her from her baby, but the famine workers always find this a difficult task.

Religion and caste are also factors obstructive to relief measures. It could not be expected that the Hindu would extend aid to a Brahmin for whom he entertains a contemptuous hatred; nor would the Hindu give aid to a Moslem in distress. But this is only a small part of the matter. The Hindu caste system is so rigidly fixed that the members of which will have no intercourse with one another. The poorest section of the community is under the heaviest hand, are careless parasites for whom their fellows have no regard whatever. They are a great drain on the wealth of their countrymen. Such waste as concerns themselves at all about a famine is only for the sake of the aid and subsidies offered by it for speculation in food.

The irrigation system established by the Government of India is the finest in the world. No public work of equal economy exists anywhere. The value of a single year's crop over that which would have been raised by the rains is estimated at a question more than equals the entire cost of the system. The works have been estimated at $10,000,000, and the value of the products of the land they water is estimated at $200,000,000. They are estimated to save 100,000,000 bushels of grain for service and over and above all expense of maintenance yield five per cent.

In the winter and spring before the Ganges has begun to rise, the water of the Ganges and the Himalayas the entire stratum is intercepted at Haridwar, where it emerges from the mountain in the form of a single channel. In the first 20 miles of its course the works on this canal are right in the heart of the mountain range of the Lower Himalayas and has to be carried across rivers which at times break through the mountain range. The works have been overcome by wonderful engineering devices. In one place the torrent flows over a dam of stone and masonry, in

During the past years the government has dealt drastically with these traffickers in human life. Their stores are seized unceremoniously and the goods are sold at a price below the statutory rights and the compensation allowed is not based upon famine prices. Of course the enterprising manipulators of the market suffer, but they have derived one benefit. In a few years the speculators have generally contented themselves with working corner markets and have not troubled the government. Of course these speculators are restricted to small areas—usually the city and its immediate vicinity. The crop presages a famine in case it is followed by another shortage in the near future. The government has been able to get together and buy up all the grain they want. Then they wait for the time when the stuff becomes worth its weight in gold. Then they sell it at a profit. But if it is so in these—that was commonly the legal equivalent. Silver bangles are sold for a trifle and put into one sack and grain into the other.

The method of tillage in India is of the most primitive character, but it is probably the best adapted to the conditions that prevail. There are no extensive cultivators and labor is so cheap that even large tracts could be worked as economically as small ones. The only implement, in some parts a hoe is the only instrument applied to the earth, but generally tillage is done by the use of the ox-drawn such as was used two thousand years ago. It is drawn by bullocks or by the water buffalo, and is a simple affair. The ditch is usually laborious and slow. Little ditches are run over the patch from a water tank which is dug up at one end. The structure on the sea-side is run from end of the cross-piece depends a rope. The end of one of these is a man; at the other end is a second man. The ditch is lowered, filled and raised, the ditched over into a ditch by a second man. The ditch is then filled and the farmer to even conceivably of the Irrigation in various forms has been practised by the natives since time immemorial but it remained for the British to establish a system of irrigation in the country. They ingeniously lay the slopes out to the fields and divert the streams to great distances by successive parallel channels along the mountain side, the water being carried by a series of mill purposes. The use of the cog-wheel for converting the vertical movement of the water-wheel into the horizontal movement required in the grindstone is unknown in many districts.

Deafness is usually caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When the tube is closed, deafness is the result, and it remains so until the inflammation has been removed from the mucous membrane. The Eustachian Tube may become permanently closed, and the deafness will continue until restored to its normal condition; or it may be destroyed forever; neither of these conditions can be remedied by local applications, and the hearing will be lost unless an inflamed condition is not removed from the surface.

GLORIA AND PHOEBON W.

In an Exciting Race at Woonsocket—Gloria Beaten by Ben Coma After Taking Two Heats.

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 9.—Great excitement marked the closing day of the week's racing on the Woonsocket mile track today. In the free-for-all race, six heats of which were run Thursday, Ben Coma, the favorite, and Gloria came under the wire so near each other in the seventh heat that the crowd was in doubt as to the winner until the judges gave the heat and the race to Ben Coma.

A crowd of 300 or more surged on the track in front of the judges' stand and with cheers and cries of "robber" refused to leave until the pools had been declared off. The management went to the judge's stand and asked that the pools be declared off, which was done.

Races of Brooklyn, owner and driver of Ben Coma, asked the judges if what right the pools were declared off and that further the judges should not be aware pools were being sold. He decided to let the matter drop. The 2.25 pace was won by Morrow, the favorite, in straight heats. C. O. D. captured the 2.20 trot, being the favorite, in five heats. The 2.17 trot went to Dromas Grace Sharon, the favorite, getting four money.

The Grand Circuit.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 9.—The grand circuit meeting closed this afternoon with two hotly contested races. Big fields faced the starter in both events and it took four heats to decide the winners. Lotta (formerly Lady Thistle) won the first heat of the 2.17 trot, but was beaten by the second, but took the next two heats.

In scoring for the second heat in this race George Adams, driven by Ed. Giers, broke a small bone in one of her fore legs and was withdrawn. Tommy K., which sold favorite in the pools, lost the first heat in the 2.12 race, but won the second and fourth heats and race. Tommy paced the second mile in 2.07.

Scratches reduced the field in the 2.00 trot to three horses. Jillian R. was made the favorite and won in straight heats.

BALL TALK.

All deals for minor league players must be made by Aug. 25. Deals contracted after that time will not stand.

The major leagues pay $250 for each player they draft from the New England league.

Charles Keith, who has qualified as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford from Arkansas, has been sold by Little Rock's Southern league club to the St. Louis Americans for 1908.

The splendid work of the Boston American player for Providence makes John F. Taylor feel as though he had farmed his boys out to the right club.

The Tecumseh, Mich., team has been depleted by a raid of Dan Bruthers, scout for the Giants. Dan has signed up second baseman Wagner, left fielder Preston, third baseman Wolfe, pitcher Richardson and first baseman Fred Merkle.

The quintet will report in New York Sept. 2 at the end of the Southern Michigan league season.

The New York Americans are negotiating for Bell, center field of the Butte, Mont., team. In two games at Seattle on one day he got eight clean hits out of nine times at bat. Among the lost were two home runs. In seven games last week he made 17 hits.

O'Neill Gets a Place.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 9.—Spirited races marked every one of the six events decided in the preliminary to the thirty-fifth annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Garmen held over the Schuylkill River.

The American amateurs will have two weeks in which to become acquainted with the course over which the races against the German boats, the Wansee, the Tilly X and the Wittelsbach II, will be decided. The German sailors are determined to do better than they did at Marblehead last year, where, although they made a gallant bid for victory, they were not equal to the task.

The Wansee, which will probably be steered by Otto Protzen, who participated in the Marblehead races last year, is a new club yacht of the Berlin Verein Segel-

UNCLE SOLD FOR $30,000

Madden Sells to Hildreth—Orby Said to Be All Right, and Suffered Only Slightly from Chills.

The sale of the two-year-old chestnut colt, Uncle, by Star Shot—The Nice, for $30,000 and half the amount of the Saratoga Special, or about $9,000 additional, providing he wins, by J. J. Madden, to C. C. Hildreth, was announced at Saratoga Thursday. Uncle has run some fast races and his former owner has insisted that he may be beat.

Star Shot, sire of Uncle, was trained by a two-year-old in the English turf, by John Huggins, who at the same time trained Volodyovski, and it is said that until he went amiss Star Shot was as good a colt as was the subsequent Derby winner.

Additional interest is felt in the sale of Uncle because of the report that Colin may not be as good in the Saratoga Special, on Saturday, as he was in the Brighton Junior. Colin is, however, in good shape, as his work of six furlongs in 1:12.10 today would indicate.

KINGSTON, Ireland, Aug. 9.—The report in circulation yesterday as to the condition of Richard Croker's colt, Orby would appear to have been exaggerated. His wind is all right. He suffered from a chill, but the veterinary surgeon who has charge of him believes he will be in shape for the St. Leger on September 11.

King Bruno, who won the feature event at the Parkway meeting Tuesday, is owned by a Montrealer. He is the property of Alphonse Labelle.

BIG ENTRY LIST FOR MONTREAL JOCKEY CLUB.

The entry list of the autumn meeting of the Montreal Jockey Club, which commences on Saturday, Aug. 31st, sets a new Canadian record for fall meetings and is the largest in the history of the club.

Owners both in the east and west have responded liberally and the club of horses nominated is in keeping with the large size of the field.

The Primrose Stakes for two-year-olds has no less than 34 nominations including some of the best youngsters. The Canadian Grand National Steeplechase, which has 36 nominations and brings together such owners as G. R. Tomkins, J. W. Colt and A. Henry Higgins, whose horses have been uniformly engaged on the New York tracks.

Temecco, the heavily-played favorite, won the Mohawk selling stakes, the feature event of the racing week at Saratoga Tuesday. The wrestler led the field to the stretch, where Temecco came strong under a drive and won by three lengths. Ingham also beat out the West-ler by two lengths. Four favorites won.

Miller rode four winners. The annual meeting of the Parkway driving club of Brooklyn opened Tuesday afternoon, in spite of a heavy track and threatening weather. The attendance was large and speculation brisk. For the 2.27 pace Black Patch sold at seven money against the field, but was beaten by the second choice, King Brino. Nine met in the 2.30 trot, for which Lake Elect was the choice, but he was never prominent. Crown Prince won easily.

NERVES IN ORDER

NERVES UNSTRUNG

This is a nerve racking age—not a man in an office or behind the counter, striving hard to get on in the world, that does not feel the strain.

If nerves are in order a man is strong, eats and sleeps well. Unstrung nerves mean weakness, worry, sleeplessness and a general decay of bodily strength, inability to do good work or to do it long.

Most men are careless of their health, trust to luck that that sort of thing, instead of taking Ferrerozine for a few weeks when they feel dull in the morning, sleep poorly or lose appetite.

Ferrerozine quickly brightens up the mind. It creates an appetite and improves digestion. Ferrerozine makes blood, quiets the nerves, makes muscle like steel and induces refreshing sleep.

UNCLE SOLD FOR $30,000

Madden Sells to Hildreth—Orby Said to Be All Right, and Suffered Only Slightly from Chills.

The sale of the two-year-old chestnut colt, Uncle, by Star Shot—The Nice, for $30,000 and half the amount of the Saratoga Special, or about $9,000 additional, providing he wins, by J. J. Madden, to C. C. Hildreth, was announced at Saratoga Thursday. Uncle has run some fast races and his former owner has insisted that he may be beat.

Star Shot, sire of Uncle, was trained by a two-year-old in the English turf, by John Huggins, who at the same time trained Volodyovski, and it is said that until he went amiss Star Shot was as good a colt as was the subsequent Derby winner.

Additional interest is felt in the sale of Uncle because of the report that Colin may not be as good in the Saratoga Special, on Saturday, as he was in the Brighton Junior. Colin is, however, in good shape, as his work of six furlongs in 1:12.10 today would indicate.

KINGSTON, Ireland, Aug. 9.—The report in circulation yesterday as to the condition of Richard Croker's colt, Orby would appear to have been exaggerated. His wind is all right. He suffered from a chill, but the veterinary surgeon who has charge of him believes he will be in shape for the St. Leger on September 11.

King Bruno, who won the feature event at the Parkway meeting Tuesday, is owned by

As to Style

The style of the "Dorothy Dodd" shoe is proverbial. The time was when woman's feet were sacrificed to style. A stylish shoe was expected to be uncomfortable. But then came the "Dorothy Dodd" idea, that style should be one of the chief comforts in a woman's shoe. Simply by following Nature's lines of the feet, the "Dorothy Dodd" was made at once the most stylish as well as the most comfortable of shoes.

THE I. C. R. MOTOR CAR

Yesterday's Trial Trip Was Not an Unqualified Success.

The new I. C. R. motor car was given another trial trip yesterday with a trailer but as on the previous day, the load proved too much for the engine or the coal was not good as the trailer had to be dropped off at Rothery. At one o'clock today another attempt will be made and the trials will be continued all day until the desired result is attained.

WANTS MR. TURGEON

Editor Times:—Now that the editor of the Transcript has volunteered to support Dr. Pugsley for minister of railways, I think it time, as an old Liberal, to say that that class of Liberals, such as our present editor, who are not good as the trailer had to be dropped off at Rothery. At one o'clock today another attempt will be made and the trials will be continued all day until the desired result is attained.

I admire the position the St. John Times and Telegraph are taking, and hope that results will follow their undertaking as independent journals. Thanking you for the space for these few remarks, I will subscribe myself, OLD ACADIAN LIBERAL.

A FAMILY QUARREL

That possession is nine-tenths of the law was practically illustrated last night when David Corkery made a determined effort to gain admittance to his sister's house at 140 Paradise Row. After kicking at the door for several minutes he went away, vowing he would return with an axe. The women within became alarmed and sought the protection of the police and in five minutes, as many patrolmen had assembled to guard the door but David did not return. The ownership of the house is the subject of litigation.

A "TUNNEL" POST CARD

The people of Prince Edward Island are taking every means of keeping the "Tunnel Scheme" before the public. The latest is the "Tunnel Post Card." On it is shown a view of the Strait, with Cape Formative, the proposed New Brunswick landing point, at one side, and Cape Traverse, the "Island" point, at the other, while the mouth of the tunnel at either end is also shown. By holding the card to the light, the completed tunnel with a train passing through is also seen. Below the picture are a couple of verses expressing the discouragements of the present, and the hopes of the future.

DEATH OF A LADY WELL KNOWN HERE

Mrs. Wm. McLeod Passed Away Recently in Montana.

The following is taken from the Daily Missoula of Missoula, Montana:—In view of the fact that the condition of Mrs. William McLeod had been reported as much improved Friday night, there was a shock in the news of her death, which reached this city soon after noon yesterday. The hopes of the friends of the family had been raised, and the sad intelligence of yesterday was doubly affecting on that account.

Yesterday morning the news that came from the McLeod ranch at Victor was less encouraging than the word that had been received before. It was followed by another message that the patient was sinking, and in the early afternoon word was received that the end had come at 10 o'clock.

While Mrs. McLeod's residence in this state had been comparatively brief, she had many warm friends, and was much admired and respected by all who learned to know her. She had been a resident of Montana more than 17 months. Her husband was the managing partner of the McLeod ranch near Victor, for a year before Mrs. McLeod came from her former home in New Brunswick to join him.

Mrs. McLeod received a warm welcome from the relatives whose home had been in Montana for many years, and it was not long before she had added many new ones to the list of old friends. There is a sincere sorrow in Missoula and in the Bitter Root country over the death of this estimable woman.

Another paper says:—The body of Mrs. William McLeod will be brought from Victor this morning on the Copper City local and will be taken from the train to the Methodist church where it will lie until two o'clock in the afternoon, when the funeral will be held at the church, with Rev. J. W. Tait officiating.

While the body lies in the church it will have a guard of a delegation from the local Odd Fellows. The pallbearers will be George Briggs, Fred T. Sterling, Walter Wilson, James H. Price, Charles F. Dorman and Kenneth Ross.

There have been many expressions of sympathy for the family and relatives of Mrs. McLeod. She was a woman who was highly esteemed and she was beloved by all those who knew her well. Her death is deeply deplored in her home neighborhood and in this city, where she had made many friends during her residence in Montana.

Funeral will be in the Valley cemetery. There will be a large attendance of friends from the city and there will be many of the friends of the family who will come down the valley for the funeral.

The Mrs. McLeod mentioned in the above was the wife of Wm. McLeod, formerly of Millstream, Kings County, a brother of S. A. McLeod, of Sussex, formerly of this city.

Rev. Mr. Tait, who performed the funeral ceremony is a native of St. John, N. B., and was ordained at St. John. The pallbearers for the most part are former New Brunswickers, Charles F. Dorman being a son of Fred Dorman of this city.
