Enemy Gains a Footing in British Trenches Only To Be Driven Out at Once—Second Attack Completely Repulsed With Heavy Losses.

(Canadian Press.)

London, Aug. 23 .- 3:02 p.m. Two heavy assaults on the positions newly won by the British south of Thiepval, on the Somme front, were made last night by the Germans. They gained a footing in the British trenches, but were driven out again, the war office announcement of today says.

The announcement follows:

"The enemy made two determined counter-attacks last night on our new trenches south of Thiep. val. By the first attack he gained a temporary footing in our trenches, but was driven out immediately. The second attack was repulsed completely. The enemy's losses in these two attempts were very heavy."

A Display of Fashion's Most Recent Creations

From Paris, rising above the clouds of war, to retain her supremacy in feminine dress creation, come the most wonderful designs of the courtiers' master minds. What can be more inspiring than the expression of the beautiful and artistic of these great men and women, in their success in the very midst of the sordid and depressing conflict?

American and Canadian courtiers have caught the inspiration and profited by their example, and have even outdone their former successes in giving us the most beautiful women's apparel.

To these two sources of all that is most beautiful and desirable in women's dress we are indebted for the comprehensive display that is prepared for you here tomorrow (Thursday) morning, at 9 o'clock, which will include—

Important Style Features For Autumn, 1916

SUITS—Tailored types; jackets have large collar and are nipped in at the waist. The skirts of the jacket are full and inclined to ripple. Pockets are prominent features. The skirts are still quite full and a mere trifle longer, with simple lines. Materials are gabardines, serges and mannish worsteds, velours, etc. Demi-tailored suits are rather elaborations of trimming of the tailored styles, with the style features accentuated.

DRESSES-Show a marked tendency to overskirt effects, generally caught up or open at the sides. Bodices of the old-fashioned tight variety. are popular in many dresses. Evening Dresses are more simple than ever, mostly snug-fitting waists and large and ample skirts. Materials in Street Dresses, serges and satins are favorites; in Reception Dresses, satins, crepe de chine and Georgette crepe; in Evening Dresses, taffeta and the softer silks.

COATS—Are remarkable for their variety of styles, the one ever-present feature being the high and voluminous collars. Large pockets, very like the pockets of the English soldier's uniform, give decoration and style. Dressy Coats also retain the great collars and fall low from the shoulders. Evening Coats are quite full and have cape-like collars in very many different interpretations.

COLORS—The new tones which will be among the leaders for fall and winter, 1916-17, are submarine grey, forest and Pacific green and blackberry blue. These and a variety of other popular autumn shades will be exploited in tomorrow's display of new and fashionable fabrics in the silk, dress goods and velvet sections. Broadcloth, gabardine and fine worsted serges promise to be the favorites, and we invite you to see the new ranges and to note also that prices are the same as last season in most cases.

Dressmaking and Ladies' Tailoring departments are now open for the autumn season.

were forced to labor for the Germans. Officers needed valets and so the old and young French were herded into great droves and hurried like cattle to perform the labor. Young women were sent into a new country, populated by thousands of German soldiers. The protests of priests and bishops were in vain. Germany regarded the civilians as chattels, and in violation of Hague declarations used them like slaves.

The following is reprinted by special equest. It was a song popular at the ime of the Crimean war:

Mother is the battle over, Thousands have been slain, they say my father coming, tell me? Have the English gained the day? ig he well or is he wounded? Mother, do you think he's slain? If won know. I pray you tell me, Will my father come again?

Mother dear, you're always sighing Since you last the paper read Tell me why you now are crying? Why that cap is on your head? see you cannot tell me, Father's one amongst the slain, Although he loved us very dearly, He will never come again.

Yes, my bey, your noble father, Is one numbered with the slain. Although be loved us very dearly He will never come again. He has died for England's glory,-Our day may not be far between; But I hope at the last moment That we all shall meet again.

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn. No letter can be answered privately.]

Dear Miss Grey.—Here I have dropped in again to tell you what I think of our khaki lads. I think they are to look after, besides outdoor work. That reminds me, I must quit, as worth their weight in gold when they are brave enough to go to the front to fight for us. You will hear some mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say," I wouldn't let my daught mother say, "I wouldn't let my daught mother say. "I wouldn't let my daughter be seen with a soldier." Now, Miss Grey, I have no brothers, therefore they cannot go to the front; but I have nineteen cousins and twelve uncles fighting in the trenches today, and I am proud of them. Between my grandma and me (she lives with me) we have knit 107 pairs of socks, and we are still "on the job," and proud to be doing our little bit. You may think I am an old maid, Miss Grey, but I am not 16 vet. Now for some questions:

A FARMER'S HELPMATE.

Ans.—You mustn't be offended, but honest, I could not print that part about the soldlers' wives—I just couldn't. I believe if you read (or even scan) some of the letters we are receiving from not 16 yet. Now for some questions:

I'm going,
When I get there I'll be glad.

When I get there I'll be glad.

Kingoing,
Women of the class you describe have been in the world since I'm going,
When I get there I'll be glad,
For I'm following in the footsteps
In the steps of dear old dad."

2. What about my writing? I know that you will say. I will sign myself as before.
