HIS MAJESTY RECOMMENDS REWARD TO EARL ROBERTS

Recognition of His Splendid Services in South Africa—An Army of Boer Prisoners—Peace Negotiation Rumor is Without Foundation.

London, July 29.—In the House of Lords to-day, Lord Salisbury, the Premier, read a message from King Edward to the effect that, in consideration of the eminent services of Field Marshal Lord Roberts in South Africa, His Majesty recommended that Parliament grant him the sum of £100,000 ($500,000).

WAR MEDALS.

King Edward distributed further medals this afternoon at Marlborough House. Winston Spencer Churchill, the war correspondent, former Boer officer and now a member of parliament for Oldham, was among the recipients.

BOER PRISONERS.

London, July 29.—Lord Stanley, Financial Secretary to the war office, replying to a question in the House of Commons to-day, said the numbers of Boers made prisoners, or who had surrendered since the declaration of war, totalled up to July 1st 33,000.

IN PORTUGUESE TERRITORY.

A despatch received at Lisbon from Lorenzo Marques, Portuguese East Africa, announced that a Boer commando, accompanied by women and children, had entered Portuguese territory in the neighborhood of Limpopo River. Reinforcements of troops have been sent to disarm the party of Boers.

REPORT UNTRUE.

London, July 29.—Enquiry made by the Associated Press shows there is no foundation for the rumor published here by the Daily Express that the United States Ambassador, Joseph H. Choate, had left London for Holland, not for a holiday, but at the invitation of Mr. Kruger, who desires him to act as a mediator in bringing about a peace settlement, with the exception of a week-end visit to Sussex, Mr. Choate has not left London. He returned here from Sussex to-day.

LIVING IN CAVES.

Pretoria, July 29.—Col. Garrett has had a successful skirmish near Vereeniging. His force captured 25 Boers and a number of cattle and wagons. From July 1 to July 22 the number of Boers captured, wounded or surrendering, was $1,068.

Caves that were occupied by Boers have been discovered in the Lydenburg district. They were hurriedly vacated by their occupants when the British approached. The caves were well furnished and stocked with provisions. A quantity of silks and satins were also found in them, and it is supposed that these were looted from stores.

A military census will be taken on July 31.

KITCHENER MAY RETIRE

Gen. Lyttleton may Succeed Him in British Command in South Africa.

London, July 29.—A despatch to the Tribune from London says: It is freely rumored that Gen. Lyttleton will succeed Kitchener as commander-in-chief of the British forces in South Africa. Kitchener, it may be assumed, will not be recalled until the end of the war is at least actually in sight.

Lyttleton's task will be more pacific and administrative than Kitchener's.

Lyttleton did good work under Buller in the early days of the war, but Forester-Walker and Methuen and both his seniors. Neither of these men is, however, likely to be appointed and it must be said in favor of the choice of Lyttleton that he has already distinguished himself in civil life. When private secretary to his uncle, Gladstone, he was regarded as a man with a future. He has expressed himself in public as sanguine of a satisfactory settlement of the South African question in the long run and he sees no reason why Britain and Boer should not live peacefully side by side.

But the man to whom is really confident of solving the problem is Milner, and he is well aware of the difficulty of the task that awaits him on his return to South Africa.

Irish nationalists have determined to oppose the royal declaration bill, the King's title bill and the money grant to Roberts. The amount of the grant is understood to be $500,000. In 1881 when Roberts received a baronetcy for services in Afghanistan, £12,500 was voted him and a pension of £100. Wolseley received £25,000 after the Ashantee campaign and $30,000 after the Egyptian war. To Kitchener was granted £30,000 after the Sudan campaign and another grant may be awarded him next session for work in South Africa.

London, July 30.—A despatch from Cape Town says: Boers are scattered throughout the upper districts of Cape Colony. Some are within a few miles of Indwe. Others are around Jamestown and between Molteno and Burgersdorp. Several parties are close to Cradock.

Rumor says Ambassador Choate, now in Holland, is there by invitation of Kruger, who desires him to act as a mediator in bringing about a settlement.

The Daily Mail makes the following statement: "In consequence of the Daily Mail's publication of the fact that the Boers killed British wounded at Vlakfontein all cables from the correspondent who made the charges have since been suppressed."

Pretoria, July 29.—Col. Garrett has had a successful skirmish near Vereeniging. His force captured 25 Boers and a number of cattle and wagons.

CONTENTS FOR CITY COFFERS

Several Substantial Fines Imposed by Judge Houston at Police Court.

Barriater Lewis Anxious to Ascertain Who is Really Running This Good Old Town.

The Police Court resumed yesterday afternoon at half-past 2 o'clock. After hearing the rest of the evidence in the case in hand, Mrs. Jenkins was fined $50, Annie Williams $25, Annie Shaw $25, and one of the men found in the house was also fined $25. Judgment was reserved on the other men found in the house.

Lorenda Kingsbury, charged Aaron Siddals with assault. Siddals is a brother of the escaped convict, who was included in the jail-breaking affair with Abram and Epperson. The case was dismissed. It was proved that she was more to blame than he was and had chased him with bricks.

"You had better keep away from her in future," said the Magistrate, as Siddals was leaving the court room.

"Yes, you bet I will," replied he. Bert Dungey, James Dungey and Mervin Poole were charged by Chas. Mount with being drunk and disorderly.

These young men had evidently been taking a little too much "oil of gladness" and at the time they were arrested they were feeling in a most joyful mood.

After Mr. Lewis appeared for Poole and maintained that although they were drunk they were not disorderly.

Police Officer Darr was put in the witness box and said that he had gone over to the hotel and had arrested the men.

"Why did you arrest them?" asked Mr. Lewis.

"Because they were drunk and disorderly,"

"How were they disorderly?"

"They wanted to fight."

"Did you see them wanting to fight?"

"No."

"Did you see them disorderly?"

"No."

"Then, what are your reasons for arresting them?"

"I took my orders from Mr. Mount."

"Oh," said Mr. Lewis, "I am glad to know that Mr. Mount is running the town."

The hearing of the evidence Mr. Lewis contended that there was no case.

The Magistrate, however, viewed it in a different light, and fined James Dungey and Mervin Poole $5.17 each and Bert Dungey $6.17.

Montreal, July 30.—J. Tees, President of the McGill University Athletic Association, has received final assurance of the coming of the Oxford-Cambridge athletes for a meeting with the Canadian university athletes in September. The communication is signed by Ernest A. Dawson, President of Oxford University, and says: "We are now in position to inform you that the proposed tour to Canada and the United States has been definitely arranged. We intend to leave England about the middle of August, and are looking forward with pleasure to our meeting with the universities of Toronto and McGill."

NOW RUSSIA AND JAPAN

Believed to be Drifting Towards War With Corea as the Storm Centre.

Japan May Eventually Have to Fight for Her Very Existence in Her Own Islands.

New York, July 30.—A special to the Tribune from Washington says:—The Government has come into possession of important views on the sweeping developments now occurring in the far east.

Corea is the storm centre. The Government of the Emperor is a greedy, cruel and rapacious personal despotism, and Russia is playing with the territory as a cat does with a mouse, and when ready will come down through the Korean peninsula and plant military and commercial establishments in the magnificent harbor of Masampo, whence she can descend on Japan.

Japan cannot stand the stress of her armaments, and the cabinet has gone to pieces on the financial issue. A feeble, stop-gap ministry can hardly be said to be in power, and the country is drifting possibly into war with Russia, like a rudderless junk. Whatever temporary success Japan may have if she goes to war with Russia, it will insure her having to fight for her very existence in her own islands, and that before many years.

Britain could not stop Russia if she would, and if she could she would not, for she does not care to accelerate the Russian advance to the head of the Persian Gulf, which already threatens India. An official was astonished to see armed Russian soldiers quietly allowed to overhaul the British steamer on board of which he was travelling. Now Chwang was a sign of a treaty port.

Germany is as powerless as Britain and, bearing in mind her eastern frontier open to Russia, and in fact her position between the French hammer and the Russian anvil, she takes no initiative at Pekin where Russia is concerned.

France's fear and hatred of Germany are strong motives for the solidarity of the Russian-French policy.

MY LADY NICOTINE

Devotes at Her Shrine and Scorners of Her Fascinations Will Meet in Deadly Duel.

A really unique contest will take place on the Tecumseh Park bowling lawn on Thursday afternoon, commencing at two o'clock.

Eight risks of local bowlers will participate. These risks will be classified as the Smokers and Non-Smokers. The devotees of my lady nicotine will present four teams while those who abhor the Havana will have another quartette on hand to demonstrate that abstinence makes the hand steady and the eye true.

The personnel of the risks has not yet been definitely announced, but it is understood that the championship quartette of the London tournament, skipped by John Sowerby, will wield the cue on behalf of the smokers.

The proposal to present a box of cigars to each of the winning risks was received with lack of enthusiasm by the white-ribboners and the prize are consequently not decided upon.

ENCOURAGEMENT TO MARKSMEN.

Canadian military men are seriously considering the advisability of giving up the Bisley, and, if possible, devoting the amount received from the Government for that purpose for some other urgent need, says the London News. The military men complain that the prizes at Bisley are small, and that few men who go can make it pay. The Imperial influence which the team exerted, according to these men, is since the South African war, no longer necessary, and the only good result is the incentive to the individual to become a scientific shot in the yearly competitions at Ottawa.

No two classes of people differ more completely than the soldier and the civilian. The man of war sees ruin, devastation and total annihilation unless a certain line of expenditure is not made. The civilian looks upon all expenditure on the military as questionable, and most of it as unnecessary.

But there have been wars, there are wars, and we fear, there will be wars for some time to come. That being the case we must be prepared and modern warfare means rifle shooting. If there must be a shifting about of the grants from the Government let them, be short on parade and all that kind of thing and long on rifle practice. It would be unwise to give up Bisley.

DRIFTING WITH THE TIDE.

That was a remarkable speech delivered in the House of Lords a few nights ago by Lord Salisbury, judging by the specimen sentences the cable has brought us.

"The tendency to extravagance," he said, "is increasing. We have had no choice. We have had to protect ourselves and must pay the cost. For years public opinion was in favor of a pacific policy, but now that state of opinion has passed away. The tide has turned, and who am I, and who are we, that we should attempt to stem the tide? If the tide has turned, we shall have to go with it. We are in the presence of forces far larger than we can wield." This speech recalls a passage in Justin McCarthy's history, "The Four Georges." "It is melancholy to have to make the statement," says the historian, "but the statement is nevertheless true, that in the England of Walpole's day, and in the England of our own day as well, the statesman who is known to love peace is sure to have it shrieked at him in some crisis that he does not love the honor of his country. A periodical outbreak of the craving or lust for war seems to be one of the passions and one of the afflictions of almost every great commonwealth of Europe. A wise and a just policy may have secured a peace that has lasted for years; but the mere fact that peace has lasted for years seems to many, unthinking people reason enough why the country should be favored with a taste of war. We are constantly declaring that England is not a military nation, and yet no statesman is ever so popular for the hour in England as the statesman who fires the people with the passion for war. Many a minister, weak and unpopular in its domestic policy, has suddenly made himself the hero and the darling of the moment by declaring that some foreign state has insulted England, and that the time has come when the sword must be drawn to defend the nation's honor."

The chapter from which these words are taken is instructive. Walpole was at the head of the government. He was a man of peace. War had no fascination for him. He saw it in all its horrible aspects. His policy was to go direct and manage the foreign affairs of the nation as to make war unnecessary. But the tide turned upon Walpole, as it has turned upon other statesmen before and since, and who was he that he should attempt to stem it? To use the words of the historian, "much as he loved peace, he loved his place as Prime Minister more." He yielded to the popular clamor, and the nation was plunged into a war with Spain. The war proved to be a miserable affair and brought honor to no one, and before it was over the purpose for which it was commenced was forgotten. But it settled the political career of Walpole. He was blamed for all the mistakes, and he got no credit for the successes when there were any. He was even blamed for having yielded to the popular clamor for war against his own better judgment, and blamed, too, by those who were most urgent in raising the clamor. The storm raised against him by the very people whose policy he had adopted as his own was greater than he could weather, and he went down, never to rise again.

The great blot on Walpole's career as a statesman, is that he had not the courage to stand out to the end for what he thought was right. He was opposed to war, but if the people wanted war he could give it to them as well as anybody else. The world has moved far in many respects since the days of Walpole; but the advance in statesmanship would not be hard to measure. The pessimistic plait of Lord Salisbury—"the people want war and extravagance and who am I to say nay?"—is but the policy of Walpole condensed into a few words. Theoretically, it is accepted that the highest duty of statesmanship may be at times to save the people from their passions and their follies; but practically the highest duty of statesmen is to keep themselves popular with the people, whatever the cost to the country.

PERSECUTION BY POLICE.

The Fesburg trial at Pittsfield, Mass., which has just been terminated by the acquittal of the brother of the murdered girl on the charge of killing her, gives a striking example of the almost autocratic powers which the police of the United States possess for the annoyance of citizens, comments the Toronto News. The police of that town were unable to find any clue to the real murderer, and feeling that their reputation was at stake they fell back on the theory that the girl had been shot down in a family quarrel, and they endeavored to fasten the crime on the brother as the most likely person to have committed it. The evidence did not disclose a single detail to throw suspicion on the young man, and the methods pursued by the police made it about as plain as it could be that in their anxiety to find a victim and save their own reputation they deliberately attempted to compass the death of a man whom they knew to be innocent. This case is by no means a solitary one. All over the United States the main point with the police is to have some one convicted of the crimes which occur. They may prefer to convict the guilty parties, but failing them they have no hesitation in fastening the guilt on innocent persons. The wonder is that the people, who are always proclaiming their freedom to the rest of the earth, should endure a form of tyranny which even the Russian police practice with great circumspection. In a British country a policeman who trumped up a charge against anyone in the man-ner in which the chief of police of Pittsfield trumped up the Fesburg charge would be indicted for conspiracy, and if not severely punished, would at least lose his position.

Admiral Dewey and the rest of that board of enquiry are in luck to go sailing in midsummer, murmurs sweltering Brantford Courier.

The Goderich Signal, Liberal, gives the government this able slap in the eye:

What has become of that good old policy, "The land for the settler and not for the speculator?"

If Rosebery continues to annoy a lot of people with his vivisection reports on the northern Liberal party we will have to change his name to Raspberry—Ottawa Citizen.

Quite so. But if he manages to awaken the Liberal party to her loyal duty and consecrates himself to the further development of imperialism he'll become her genuine "Huckleberry."

The pink lemonade they are understood to sometimes dispense at the Pan-Am. must have had a disastrous effect on the usually buoyant spirits of the Hamilton Spec. man. On Saturday's his editorial contributions were based upon "Bald Heads," "Victims of Hay Fever," "The Dark Side of Life" and "What are you going to do about it?" Brer. BLACKSMITHING ON A FARM

The Saving of Many a Dollar is Knowing Just How to do Things.

To sharpen harrow teeth get a good, clear heat, draw the point of the tooth down as sharp as you want it first and then make the slope as long as you want it. If you commence back and work toward the point the point will be too cold and will split easily, but by commencing at the point and working back the large part of the tooth will hold heat and you can finish each tooth with one heat.

To temper a cold chisel: After you have brought it to the shape to suit you heat it to a cherry red about two and a half inches, then plunge it in cool water, (not cold water) about half way up the red part after the point is chilled and before the red heat is all out of the steel above the water. Take it out and as the heat from the part above comes down you will notice a blue shade creeping down toward the point. Just as it reaches the point plunge it in the water all over. If the steel is good and you have been careful not to heat too high when working it you will have a tool as good as the best. When chilling steel always keep it moving in the water.

To make a spring for the binder or any other farm tool, take an old file or old rake tooth, work it into the proper shape, being very careful to work at as low a heat as possible. To heat just once a little too hot will spoil the spring for all time. Never heat more than a nice red and as few times as possible. After you have it in the shape you want it get a can that will hold oil enough so that in putting in the spring it will not even warm the oil. Heat the spring evenly all over to a cherry red then drop into the oil. After it is cold pass it back and forth through the fire with a pair of cold tongs until the oil is all blown off. Dip in the oil again and blow off as before, repeat three times and you are all right if you have been careful in the work.

Spring for bugles, harrows, etc., can be given a good temper by passing back and forth over the anvil and hammering lightly until cold, occasionally dipping the hammer in water.

To make butcher knives put of old files or any other tool steel work at as low heat as you can and as you near the proper size, water hammer considerably. That is by dipping the hammer in water and hammering lightly until cool, then heat hammer again, commencing the water hammering as soon as the steel is too cool to draw out. When you have it in the shape you want it and have done all the filing you want, then heat to a cherry red evenly over the blade and put it quickly in the water, being very careful to put it in the water straight up and down or the blade will warp. It is now hard as glass and must be handled with care. Now smear over with tallow and pass back and forth through the blaze until the steel is dry and looks as though the steel has absorbed the tallow, rub on more tallow and repeat the operation until it breaks into a blaze with a puff or snap, then shove into the forge dust to cool. There is nothing better. It will also make good revolver springs. —W. J. Carnahan.

The Orchard From Start to Finish.

The following paragraphs represent the best thoughts of many writers on this subject, a consensus of opinion regarding the establishing of a successful orchard.

There can be no successful tree planting without a successful man at the back of it.

You cannot make a thoroughbred out of a scrub, either in animals, plants or trees.

A tree should have plenty of life and vigor at the start in order to make a fair growth the first season.

A good body and a poor head answer about the same purpose on a tree as on a man.

There are more failures in tree planting from failure of the planter than from any other cause.

My advice to a man contemplating the planting of an orchard is not to begin unless he is confident he will do his part for the next ten years.

Don't select a spot that is good for nothing else, but arrange to have something for your trees to live on after they are planted.

The trees should be young and thrifty, better not over two years old.

The transplanting should be done in a careful manner and the soil well packed around the roots without injuring them.

A mulch around each tree will greatly help it the first season. A few forkfuls of old straw manure will answer.

After setting the tree should be annually trimmed, cultivated, fertilized and protected from insects.

Get your trees direct from some reliable nursery. You will thus save half the traveling tree agents price and will get what you order.

A mistake in varieties will be a great one because it will be a long time in finding it out and then cannot remedy it.

Ascertain what varieties are most successful in your locality and take the advice of those having such experience.

Keep grass and weeds away in the fall so there will be no chaffer for mice in winter.

A mixture of root, lime and sulphur made into a paste and rubbed on the tree will act as a preventive of mice, rabbits and borers.

To "him that overcometh" shall go the profits naturally belonging to him who neglects and fails.

A poor family in Boston overlooked a credit of $40 in a savings bank in 1830, and the matter was forgotten until 1857, when the accumulated amount was $432.61. It was allowed to remain on, and on May 16, 1901, was $1,820.10. The interest allowed has gradually been reduced from 7 to 4 per cent.

"DOES MOTHER WANT ME?"

The little fellow has blown with all his strength, and the downy tufts still cling to the dandelion stem. According to the oracle of childhood, mother does not want him. But mother would tell a different story. She has noticed the weakness of the lungs, and if she saw him now, flushed with his unusual effort and struggling to stifle the cough which followed it, she'd feel how much she wanted him, and wanted those "weak" lungs made strong, that she might not lose him.

For "weak" lungs, obstinate cough, hemorrhage, weakness and emaciation there is no medicine so strengthening as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is especially valuable for children, building up weak bodies with sound, healthy flesh. It is entirely free from alcohol and narcotics.

"Winter before this, my oldest boy (who is now nearly five years old), had a terrible cough; he had it the whole winter and all summer," writes J. M. Parr, Esq., of Cameron, Screven Co., Ga. "Physicians did him no good and nothing my wife and I could do did him any good. After your 'Discovery' had cured my cough so quickly, when everything else failed, I wrote my wife to bring him back from the country. She having carried him there to see if the change would do him good. We were living in Savannah, Ga., at the time. She brought him back and after giving him your great 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a time, he entirely recovered."

CERVERA SNEERS

Says Sampson Didn't Show as Much Bravery at Santiago as Schley Did.

New York, July 29. — Despatches from Salt Lake, Utah, report Schley's son, Capt. Thomas F. Schley, commander of Fort Douglas, in a very nettled mental state regarding his father's trouble with Sampson.

"When the court of enquiry meets," said Capt. Schley, "I would like to ask Sampson just one question; 'If the battle of Santiago had resulted in defeat, to whom would the blame be attached?' This, I think, tells the situation in a nutshell. If Schley had had lost the battle he would have been blamed. He won it, and he should have the credit."

CERVERA SNEERS AT SAMPSON.

Admiral Cervera, now in Vichy, France, is quoted as saying: "Schley impressed me as a gallant officer and a high-minded gentleman. I should say that a man of noble principles and generous impulses cannot be a coward. To such men I would look rather for Castilian bravery."

"The naval battle of Santiago was short and decisive—so short that there was no time for any exchange of compliments; so decisive that I can hardly believe that cowardice is thinkable. The fight was over in about three hours and three-quarters. Admiral Schley showed ability and thoroughness."

"I have never met Admiral Sampson. He was absent conferring with Shafter when the fight took place. What he might have done were he present I cannot say."

"It is a case of demonstrated valor against possible bravery. It is a case of difference between the act and possibility, or, as the old philosophers used to say, between the case and the thing. The philosophical axiom which I learned in my school days, namely, 'Apote ad actum non valet consequentia' (to be able to do a thing is not the same as doing it), probably applies to this case."

"Physical and Moral courage are two different qualities. There is no need of using a microscope to discover both in the action of Admiral Schley."

The pod is like a cigar in shape and color, but only an inch long, and when put into water is seen on the surface for several minutes, then explodes like a torpedo, hurling the seed in all directions. If allowed to ripen in a warm place the pod gradually splits lengthwise from point to base. If left to ripen on the plant it splits open more suddenly.

REWARD OFFERED.

The local police authorities have received a communication from Francis O'Neill, general superintendent of police at Chicago, dated July 20, offering a reward of $250 for the recovery of Frank E. A. Rogers, son of James C. Rogers, of that place. The boy is described as being 13 years old, five feet high, a very slender build, full face, light hair, and blue eyes. He disappeared with his aunt, Miss Florence Ely, on Saturday, 20th July.

A RUNAWAY.

A team belonging to David Thorpe, who lives about ten miles out in Dover, broke away from the tie-post in front of Geo. Stephens, Quinn & Douglas' hardware store this afternoon and raced down King street.

The frightened horses proceeded over Third street bridge out St. Clair street until they were stopped by J. F. Blonde at the corner of Brock and St. Clair streets.

The reach of the wagon was broken but neither the horses nor anyone was hurt.

Several gallant attempts were made along King street to stop the horses, but without success.

FROM THE OLD LAND

Captain and Mrs. Bell Have Returned From Their European Tour.

In a Brief Interview With The Planet, Mr. Bell Tells of His Trip.

Captain and Mrs. Edwin Bell, who have been visiting the continent for the past ten weeks, returned home this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell sailed from New York on the steamer Umbria, Cunard Line, and returned on the Etruria.

They were favored with excellent weather both going and coming and enjoyed their trip immensely.

Both are feeling much better in health, the result of their trip.

They spent the most of their time in Switzerland and Scotland, and in these places also they spent the most enjoyable time.

A Planet representative called upon Mr. Bell in his office this morning and found him again settled down to his practice.

He, however, was able to give a short description of his trip. He went first to London, where he spent a couple of weeks.

The first day he was in London he saw the opera "Faust" produced by some of the best players in England. He describes it as one of the most realistic stage effects he ever saw in his life.

He went next to Brussels, from there to Cologne, then to Heidelberg and the principal cities in Switzerland. Returning from Switzerland he visited Paris.

"In Paris," he said, "I saw some of the most beautiful scenery I ever saw." He describes it as being a most unique and artistic city and one that is well worth the trip to see.

He spent a week in Paris and then returned to London and thence to Edinburgh. After spending a short time at Edinburgh he made a trip through the Scottish lake district and then attended the Glasgow exhibition.

He describes the exhibition as being a very gorgeous affair, Canada being conspicuously represented. From Glasgow he returned home.

While in London he visited the courts and heard the celebrated trial of John Lovells, M. P., vs. his successful opponent, for libel, before the Lord Chief Justice of England and Jury.

The verdict gave Mr. Lovells 750 pounds damages. John Lovells was in Chatham with Sir Charles Tupper last year.

He saw the King and Queen of England upon the event of the presentation of medals to the South African soldiers. He also saw Lord Roberts, who is still the idol of the English people.

Mr. Bell feels highly delighted with the trip and hopes in some future time to be able to take it again.

LONDON'S BIG FAIR

The "great holiday outing of Western Ontario" is a phrase that some one once bestowed upon the Western Fair of London, and as the years go by the description seems to become more and more fitting.

But it is more than a mere holiday. It is educational in its nature. No man with his eyes and ears open can visit the Western Fair without seeing something to which he had heretofore been a stranger, while the improvements on old devices, the improved methods of agriculture and the higher grade of stock and cattle all combine to show the rapid advance being made in Western Ontario, and to demonstrate that we in this section are fully abreast with the rest of the world.

The entries for this year denote a large exhibit, and space should be secured without delay. The speeding in the ring, as usual, will be one of the most attractive pastimes, and this will be made doubly so by the engagement of the greatest acrobats and gymnasts and drunks bravia.

The fireworks display will be a combination of Canada, while novelty is added by the introduction of a full troupe of educated performing elephants. The fireworks display will be on a grander scale than ever, and will include a striking and novel representation of the "Fall of China."

"Talking of Pekin," together with the most brilliant illumination and electrical effects ever before seen on the grounds. Special train service is being arranged on all railroads to leave London after the fireworks.

None should miss this home exposition, which can be so easily visited and at little expense.

EXHAUSTED SOILS.

How Best to Utilize the Organic Wastes on the Farm.

The soil, after a few years' cultivation, needs a renewal of humus—that is, decomposed or decomposing vegetable matter. The original supply exhausted, the once moist, loose, friable soil of the prairie becomes dry, hard, lumpy and unresponsive to the tiller's art. Such soils are often pronounced worn out. And so they are so far as exhaustion of humus, vegetable matter, organic matter, is concerned, but not in the inorganic elements of vegetable growth which are the most expensive to procure and the most difficult to replace when once really exhausted. Many a field bearing the reputation of being exhausted needs only a new supply of humus to make it as productive as ever, and how best to utilize for this purpose the organic wastes of the farm is one of the most important problems, not of the near future but of the very present time. Slipshod methods, based upon the reputed inexhaustibility of the soil, has brought grief to many an energetic tiller of the soil who used brawnily or used it out of proportion, with brain. Every straw stack burned, every crop of cornstalks raked and burned, every fork-full of manure allowed to go to waste, is just so much on the wrong side of nature's ledger account against the improvidence, unthrifty and unwise tillers of the soil. The bookkeeper and the cashier may forget, may make mistakes, but nature never, and she never neglects to enter a debit nor fails to make a collection therefor, and what is just as true, she never forgets nor neglects to enter up a credit and to give the creditor the benefit thereof. It is the safest savings bank in the world and the only one that never defaults. How best to secure these credits at nature's bank—that is, how best to utilize these wastes in replacing essential elements of fertility that are being removed from the soil with every crop is a problem that the successful farmer of the future must solve.

Preserving Fence Posts.

The best preservative for posts is an antiseptic solution that will destroy the fungus germs that attack the dead sap wood. Sulphate of copper and salt are valuable in this respect. The rotting of posts at the surface is hastened much by alternate wetting and drying, which is highly favorable to the growth of bacteria decay. Charring the end of a post or the application of a coat of oil, will keep away moisture, and consequently decay, for a while. We advise soaking posts in a solution of sulphate of copper and salt in strong salt brine. Locust will outlast chestnut as posts.

In building wooden fences we follow these rules: Cut timber in August, second-growth chestnut if possible. Cut no small posts. Allow timber to season before building fence. Take off the bark. Tamp back in the post hole all the earth thrown out—Wm. A. Cassell.

Hot Don'ts.

There are thousands of otherwise well stocked farms scattered over the country on which little or no small fruit can be found growing. Not even a good size strawberry patch. The farmer will admit that he and his family all want them but he excuses himself by saying he can buy them cheaper than he can raise them. But we notice when the time comes not very much of it will be bought. Something will come up to prevent it and the family will do without. Raspberries, strawberries, blackberries and other small fruits are easily grown and there is little excuse for any one doing without them except the reuter who moves annually. Many of this latter class can get small fruit if they will try, by picking for some large fruit grower in the vicinity on shares. If there is no small fruit on the farm, better arrange to set some out.

Up-to-Date Clover Ideas.

A recent issue of the Practical Farmer was made a "cl-ver special" and filled with letters from clover converts from all parts of the country. Here is the cream of their writings:

In buying seeds avoid noxious weeds, the best seed is invariably cheapest in the end.

Carbonates and sulphate of lime encourage the growth of clover, but not to so great an extent as phosphoric acid and potash—nitrogen proved deleterious.

If sown together timothy will crowd out clover the second year.

Clover cut early makes excellent ensilage.

North of Philadelphia Crimson clover will seldom winter, and should not be sown later than July so it can make a good fall growth.

Alfalfa is of little value to the north or eastern States. Its sphere is in the deep dry irrigated lands of the southwest.

The most common causes of failure (in Indiana) 1st. Neglecting to thoroughly prepare the land. 2d. Sowing too late on grain crops. 3d. Sowing too early on bare ground. 4th. Allowing the weeds to smother the clover. 5th. Pasturing too closely. 6th. Sowing too little seed.

The nominal value of a ton of clover hay is $5, and its feeding value is 1 1/2 times that of timothy.

Clover is the "staff of life" to land. When man robs the soil of fertility, clover pays it.

The amount of plant-food found in a crop of clover, analyzed by the U. S. Experiment Stations for four years, was:

Nitrogen 158 lbs.
Phosphoric Acid 35 lbs.
Potash 155 lbs.
per acre each year. It is believed that one-half of this nitrogen is taken from the atmosphere.

Land plaster seems to be of particular benefit to clover sixty pounds per acre sown broadcast on young clover will bring a luxuriant crop where otherwise but a stunted growth would prevail.

DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS

(Formula of Zina Pitcher, M. D., Late Professor of Materia Medica and Genito Urinary Diseases, Michigan College of Medicine, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.)

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the quickest and surest relief for Backache and Kidney troubles, and can show more evidence to that effect than all other advertised remedies combined. Dr. Pitcher stakes his reputation on these tablets for Backache and Kidney troubles, and will not allow them to be advertised as a "jack of all trades" medicine. Mrs. Sarah Beman, of Port Hope, says: "Thirteen years ago I fell and injured my back, and since then have known very little comfort with Backache or Kidney troubles. I have tried all kinds of medicine and seen many physicians, but got no help until I began the bottle of Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets that I got from R. Deyell, druggist. They have done me a world of good. I feel stronger; the dizziness and pain are gone, and I cannot tell you how pleased I am, and everyone else says the same thing of them. They are just what everyone wanted. I hope others will use them and get well." Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are put up in wooden bottles, with green wrapper, bearing the portrait and signature of Z. Pitcher, M. D. Each bottle contains 50 tablets; price 50 cents per bottle. Manufactured by The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

Kipling's Views

London, July 29.—Rudyard Kipling has written for the Imperial South African Association what he calls a tract for the times on the science of rebellion. It is trenchant in style, and is directed mainly against the Bund, which is described as seeking to attack Britain through the pocket, and to keep Cape Colony on the see-saw, filling it with rumor and unrest, sympathizing here and suggesting there, just enough for the British government to grant amnesty to the rebels and recruit the Dutch party for further constitutional warfare. The logic of the pamphlet is that it is assumed in Cape Town that the Liberal opposition will save the Bund and South Africa for the Bund if only the commandos make the war expensive, and that the Boer marauders north and south, are working for a common cause, mainly, the manufacture of pro-Boers in England, by increasing the income tax and by throwing a delicate gloom over every aspect of the situation.

A Canadian is represented by Mr. Kipling as making these scrid remarks: "We needn't suspend the constitution for keeps, but we ought to have a family council, Canada, Australia and England, I mean, and hang these whole show up for two years, till our erring sister has got over her hysterics." A constitution for a country that don't know enough to cut its own hay, where I've had to lie out for years in the open, for fear the pious voter would blow up the railway bridge behind me—no, sir." Mr. Kipling scornfully concludes that the Bund prefers to keep an eye on the continent and court the favor of the Liberal opposition in England, rather than merit the approval of the two healthy young nationalities, Canada and Australia.

Murder of King
New York, July 29.—The anarchists of Paterson, N. J., to-day celebrated the anniversary of the murder of King Humbert of Italy. It is expected that members of the fraternity will be present in numbers from New York, Hoboken and Brooklyn. Mrs. Brocci, widow of the murderer of the king, may be in attendance. The anarchist newspaper, published in Paterson on Saturday, contained a picture of Brocci, surrounded with a laurel wreath. At one side of this picture justice was represented in the act of plunging a sword into the king.

GOOD ST CRE

In connection with the last visit to London of the late Shah of Persia, many stories are told which sound like satire upon the politics of the East. One of these tales, more amusing perhaps than true, is that he strongly advised the Prince of Wales to make away with a certain influential nobleman who had grown "too powerful to be quite safe."

Another story is vouched for on better evidence. The shah was taken to visit Newgate Prison, and after a somewhat extended examination, he suddenly requested to see an execution. With the utmost politeness, the warden of the prison explained that the Duke of Argyll was under sentence just at that time; but the shah swept away the objections with a wave of his hand.

"Take one of my suite," he said. "Any one will do."

Greatly to his disappointment, the officials declined to comply with his request.

Statesman, legislator, administrator, orator, scientist and philosopher, the late Duke of Argyll was a bright ornament of the noble sphere in which he was born, says the Youth's Companion.

Like many another man of rank, he found his exalted position a lonely one, and his isolation had been neatly described by an innkeeper on the duke's estate.

"His grace," remarked the Scotchman, "is in a verri deeficult position whatever. His pride of intellect will no' let him associate w' men of his ain birth, and his pride of birth will no' let him associate w' men of his ain intellect."

The recent visit of Queen Victoria to Ireland, brought out not a little wit, the example which follows bears the tang of its own soil:

The queen's farewell letter to the Irish people was dated from the Vice-Regal Lodge, Dublin. Said a prominent Irish Nationalist Member of Parliament:

"It was the Regal Lodge for the time being; and indeed, for many a day she has knocked the vice out of it."

FROM THE BEST THINKERS

There is a working class—strong and happy—among both rich and poor; there is an idle class—weak, wicked and miserable—among both rich and poor. And the worst of the misunderstandings arising between the two orders come of the unlucky fact that the wise of one class habitually contemplate the foolish of the other. When men are rightfully occupied, their amusement grows out of their work as the color petals out of a fruitful flower. He only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into living peace.—John Ruskin.

People are so ridiculous with their illusions, carrying their fool's caps unwares, thinking their own lies opaque, while everybody's else are transparent; making themselves exceptions to everything, as if when all the world looked yellow under a lamp, they alone were rosy.—George Eliot.

'Tis all men's office to speak patience To those that wring under the load of sorrow; But no man's virtue or sufficiency To be so mortal when he shall endure The like himself.—Shakespeare.

What though the sea be calm? Trust to the shore, Ships have been drowned, where late they danced before.—Herrick.

Every man should know something of law, if he knows enough to keep out of it, he is a pretty good lawyer.—H. W. Shaw.

The love of justice in most men is merely the fear of themselves suffering from injustice.—La Rochefoucauld.

Defer not till tomorrow to be wise; To-morrow's sun to thee may never rise.—Congreve.

In the eyes of a wise judge, proofs by reasoning are of more value than witnesses.—Cicero.

A mind is not to be changed by place or time.—Milton.

God Save the King.

The mystery that enshrouds "God Save the King" has come up for discussion recently a good deal, possibly because the fact that it is now once more the "King" and not the "Queen" has turned people's minds back across the years when it was the King before, and so on to a more completely historical mood. H. Sutherland Edwards, writing as follows in The London Daily Express, seems to exploit the subject pretty thoroughly:—

"It has been proposed to erect a monument to the author and composer of 'God Save the King.'"

"But he or they must first be discovered. Charles Boade, with that 'mania for certainty' which Boade declared himself unable to understand, believed that Henry Carey wrote both words and music of 'God Save the King'; and he was indignant with his fellow-countrymen for having allowed such a man to die by his own hand in abject poverty—forgetful of the fact that when Carey committed suicide 'God Save the King' had not even become generally known."

"He is said to have introduced it in 1740 at a dinner given in honor of the taking of Portobello, but without claiming it as his own; and he died in 1744, whereas it was not until after the suppression of the rebellion of 1745 that 'God Save the King' was adopted by the army and the nation as a hymn of national triumph."

"Other critics and commentators, in discussing the origin of 'God Save the King,' have divided the honors, attributing the music to Dr. John Bull (who wrote a bar or two of something resembling it) and the words to Ben Jonson—alas, poor Jonson! Purcell, too, has been named as the composer, and Dryden as the poet—alas, poor Dryden! The plan seems to be to attribute it at random to this or that eminent poet and to this or that eminent musician of each successive period."

"But out of the competition go at once Ben Jonson and Dr. John Bull, Dryden and Purcell, Lull, Henry Carey, Handel and Dr. Arne. If Carey is allowed to remain it can only be in the character of singer and introducer of the song in the very form which now belongs to it. If we bid Handel stay for a moment our only reason for detaining him is to consider how it happened that during his half-century in England, from 1712 until 1759, he never seems once to have conducted the performance of 'God Save the King' neither after Dettingen, in 1746, nor after Culloden, in 1746. Had 'God Save the King' possessed such importance, such significance as belongs to it now, Handel would have introduced it, or at least, would have made musical reference to it in his Dettingen 'Te Deum.'"

"It does not, in modern phrase, seem to have 'caught on' very quickly, for, first sung in 1746, it did not find its way into print until 1748. It was evidently not until after the suppression of the insurrection of 1745—a Scotch insurrection supported by France—that the song became associated with national and patriotic feeling in England. Before the end of the century it had acquired such fame that it was translated and adopted by the Governments of Denmark and Prussia; and the Russians made it, in like manner, their national anthem after the Emperor Alexander's visit to London in 1814."

"Now, leaving aside the disjointed history of 'God Save the King,' so difficult, so impossible, so profitless to follow, let us see what, judged by internal evidence, the song really is. It is beyond doubt a Jacobite song converted into a Georgian one by the simple process of changing in the first line 'Great James our King' into 'Great George our King.' Regard it in this light, look upon it as a play on the restoration of a King waiting his time beyond the water, and it is all perfectly intelligible. The meaning for the first time becomes clear to these previously incomprehensible lines:—

"Send him victorious, Happy and glorious, Long to reign over us,"

"They, however—that is to say—send the King from foreign parts to his own land, where, arriving with victory before him, he will long reign over his faithful subjects."

"Where," it may be asked, "did Henry Carey get the Jacobite song which he audaciously introduced as a Georgian song at a dinner given in honor of that insignificant event, the taking of Portobello?" The song was a thousand times too important for the occasion, and it was directed against the very Sovereign whose name was celebrated in the opening line. Henry Carey may have been a Jacobite himself. The world was not his friend, nor the world's laws. He was the natural son of a great nobleman, and probably, therefore, a revolutionist by birth."

"The 'God Save the King' introduced publicly by Henry Carey was an English version, with political variations, of a Latin hymn written throughout in the 'God Save the King' metre which used to be sung in the Chapel Royal of James II., when that Sovereign was still in occupation of the throne. Of the music to which the Latin hymn was sung, nothing is known except that it must of necessity have been in exact metrical correspondence with the words, and was probably identical in all respects with the music to which 'God Save the King' is sung now, as in the days of Henry Carey."

"Here, if anywhere, the story of Lull's having composed it comes in; for it was in 1685, the year of James II.'s accession, that Lull would have produced the hymn in praise of Louis XIV., which he is said to have composed for Mme. de Maintenon's Ecole de St. Cyr, opened in that year; the hymn from which the air of 'God Save the King' is alleged to have been taken. But the music of Lull's hymn has apparently not been preserved, and the personal origin of our national anthem, both as regards words and music, is still and will doubtless for ever remain an absolute mystery."

A SURGEON'S BLUNDER.

Artery Severed While Undergoing an Operation—No Longer Necessary to Use the Knife for Piles.

Saturday's paper contained the account of an accident whereby a young lady lost her life. While undergoing an operation the surgeon's knife slipped, an artery was severed, and before the surgeon knew the result of his error the patient was in a dying condition.

Every surgical operation is attended with great risk to life as well as being a severe strain on the nervous system and an expensive method of treatment. Doctors formerly recommended an operation as the only cure for piles, but that day is past, since Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven its absolute control over every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Physicians who are considerate of the well-being of their patients do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment, and only those having a mania for operations claim that cruel method as the only cure for piles. By promptly stopping the distressing itching and burning Dr. Chase's Ointment brings quick and lasting relief.

Rev. S. A. Dupran, Methodist minister, Concession, Prince Edward County, Ont., states:—"I was troubled with itching and bleeding piles for years, and they ultimately attained to a very violent form. Large lumps or abscesses formed so that it was with great difficulty and considerable pain that I was able to stoop. At this very severe crisis I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, but had little or no faith in it, as I had tried various remedies before and to no purpose."

"Now, imagine how great and joyous was my surprise to find that just the one box cured me, so that the lumps disappeared and also the external swelling. I feel like a different man to-day and have not the least doubt that Dr. Chase's Ointment saved me from a very dangerous and painful operation and many years of suffering. It is with the greatest pleasure and with a thankful heart that I give this testimonial, knowing that Dr. Chase's Ointment has done so much for me. You are at perfect liberty to use this testimonial as you see fit for the benefit of others similarly afflicted."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has been endorsed by more people, including doctors and professional men, than any similar preparation of the world has ever known. It is the standard ointment for the cure of hemorrhoids, and the only actual cure for piles. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

It is all nonsense to talk about "our first parents"; no man ever had more than one complete set.

What does it profit a woman if she gain the whole world of knowledge and lose her own health? Young women students, and school teachers, eager, ambitious, and full of energy, neglect their health in the struggle to gain education. They eat insufficient food, and at irregular hours, they allow irregularity of the womanly functions to be established, and the result is that their become chronic invalids with all their education practically worthless. There is a plain road back to health for thousands. It is the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for diseases of the stomach and digestive and nutritive organs, and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for diseases of the delicate organs of womanhood. Cure so certainly follows the use of these remedies that out of hundreds of thousands who have tried the treatment, ninety-eight in every hundred have been perfectly and permanently cured. Constipation, with its calamitous consequences, which is a common ailment of students, can be entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

When nature wishes to appear lively and beautiful, she takes a bath, and the example is good one for the human family to follow.

SLEEPLESSNESS.

You can't sleep in the calmest and stillest night, if your stomach is weak, circulation poor, and digestion bad. Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens the stomach, improves the circulation, perfects digestion, and brings about that condition in which sleep is regular and refreshing. It does not do this in a day, but it does it—has done it in thousands of cases.

A FOREST IDYLL.

A Canadian Poem of Merit Sent to a London Journal.

In the season of the year when primordial nature summons us all to the woods, Mr. L. S. Higgs sends this charming "Forest Idyll" from South Pender Island, B. C., to a London Journal.

I perched from out the canopy walls And saw the golden crescent rise From silent waters, heard the call Of rousing birds, the far replies; I saw the golden crescent pale, The gradual starlight fade away, And rays of morning pierce the veil That hides the earth from coming day.

I crept among the terraced hills, And hummed ridges, dropping sheer The gorges curved by babbling rills, And, silent, sought the blowing deer; My buckskin footsteps on the moss In falling gave no fearful sound; I trailed the mountain side across, And stole along the hunting ground.

Where random rocks bestrewn the wood, And velvet moss-flats lay between, A graceful doe alertly stood, Her fawn was crouching in the green; An early jay was screaming near, When suddenly there seemed to fall Upon the grass a feathered snare; A single mellow trumpet-call.

The carbine slipped my careful hand, With cedar sprays my face I screened, And craning over a boulder, scanned The open space that intervened— A scanty score of fawns appeared, Between me and the speckled fawn, And saw upon that lone resort The idyl of a forest-land.

The level sunlight on the dew, It red and velvet flamed played, And drooping hemlock branches threw Across the spot a fretted shade; In the midst, with modest mien, Upon a lichen-stone reclined, A willow-grouse surveyed the scene, Nor hidden watching eyes divined.

Her mate, his crested head on high, Deeming her mistress too demure, With pompous strut and strutted stride, A turkey-cock in miniature; The open fan, the trailing wings, He flaunted proudly while he made, Obdurate to the law of taming, His passionate and vain parade.

He passed a tip-toe, puffed with pride, Three times about the dais-set; His lady, coy, preoccupied, Refused him the ardent gaze to meet. Upon the lichen-stone he sat, Her eyes she hardly deigned to cast, Except when once and twice again He blew a liquid trumpet blast.

A morning seephy snatched the spell, It bore the scene of danger near, At once upon the silence fell The whistle of a startled deer; The drama faded at a glance, The heroine and her mate had flown With sudden whirling wings; askance I looked, and found myself alone.

Empty of hand, yet full at heart, Alone I rose and turned to go; Heard afar the brushwood part Before the panic-stricken deer, And following fawn, and looking back, He hoped to see the piece still; In vain; upon the homeward track I wended slowly down the hill.

The Bee as a Barometer. Such should be the title of these lines, for whoever observes these interesting insects finds it easy enough to foretell exactly the kind of weather to be expected. At least that is the opinion of many raisers of bees. Generally the bee stays at home when rain is in the air. When the sky is simply dark and cloudy these busy workers do not leave their dwelling all at once. A few go out first, as though the queen had sent out messengers to study the state of the atmosphere. The greater number in observation until the clouds begin to dissipate, and it is only for such that the hibernations entire rush out in search of their nectar. A bee never goes out in a fog, simply because it is well aware that dampness and cold are too fearsome, redoubtable enemies. We do not mean, however, that the bee is a meteorologist in the absolute sense of the word. Its cleverness consists in never being taken unawares, for it possesses untiring vigilance. Often one may observe the hidden entrance of bees into the hive when a dense cloud hides the sun, and even though the rain is not in evidence.

First Printing Press in Canada.

Nothing, except in barest outline, is known of the men who had the honor of setting up the first printing press in Canada. Their names are William Linn and Thomas Gilmour. In 1763 they came from Philadelphia to Quebec with the idea of starting a newspaper, but the difficulties in the way were so many and arduous that it was a full year before the attempt came to anything. All material—ink, paper, the press itself—had to be imported from England, and skilled labor did not exist. Overcoming all obstacles, however, the first number of the Quebec Gazette appeared on the 21st of June, 1763, with one hundred and fifty subscribers, and from that day Canada was never without a newspaper.

Zorra's Gift to Dr. Mackay. This incident of the late Rev. Dr. Mackay, of Formosa, is told by a correspondent of The London Advertiser:—"I had the pleasure of being acquainted with Dr. Mackay some years ago. He preached for us in St. Mary's Presbyterian Church about 30 years ago. He also spoke of his intention of going out as a missionary to the heathen in Formosa, where he soon after went. He was always a man of great earnestness and his heart was always in his work. On one occasion, when building a church he sent home to Zorra township for $5,000, and without apology demanded that it be sent at once. The amount was made up and sent by return mail."

Paper Wood. Paper wood is as hard as wood itself, is susceptible of brilliant treatment, is vastly lighter, perfectly adjustable and absolutely fireproof. The erection of skyscrapers necessitates a very serious study of fireproofing treatment of wood, and the result is that paper is coming very largely into use in all cases where woodwork has to be used. It is particularly adaptable for ceilings and is becoming popular for that purpose.

ASIA AND THE CHINESE EMPIRE.

It is a characteristic of American enterprise and thoroughness that an advertising pamphlet, issued by the passenger department of a railroad, treating of a country on the other side of the world should be strictly up to date as regards geographic, historical and political facts. No. 28 of the New York Central's "Four Track Series," treats of the Chinese Empire as it exists to-day. The large colored map is a new one corrected by information secured from the allied powers. The descriptive article embodies 20 years' experience in that country and the pamphlet is of interest to every one who is watching the growth of American commerce with the Orient. No. 28 will be sent post-paid for five cents to George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent, New York.—From The Wall Street Journal.

DISPOSE OF HER RELICS

How England Could Take Much Money Off Her War Bill.

The Americans Would Gladly Use Them for Commercial Purposes.

If England liked she could knock off a few noughts of her war bill by selling the relics of her great men to the United States. I know a man writes an American now "doing England" on the profits of the recent Wall Street boom, who would gladly head a syndicate for the disposal of Shakespeare's house, the Carlyle, Cowper and Wesley museums, the Chesham House and all the other homes and haunts of dead English celebrities, and rebuild them as a suitable site within a twenty minutes car ride of Madison square, New York.

At half a dollar admission we (I should be one of the syndicate) would run an exhibition which, with the help of a water chute, a roof garden and a few artistically disposed Chinese lanterns, would put the Pan-American show in the shade as far as promoters' profits go.

We Americans are dying to buy up some of these tumble-down buildings that once sheltered brainy Englishmen. You pass them every day without a side glance at them. They do not appeal to you, and yet you refuse good, honest dollars for them!

In doing the sights of London, where I have come to rest a while after the recent "bum" in Wall street, I came across a boarding house under whose roof there used to live one of England's greatest actresses. For $5 a week you can eat and sleep in rooms once occupied by a woman whose name is known in every corner of the civilized globe! If we had had this house in New York, I think we would fill it with "paying guests." No, sir; we would just hang laurel wreaths on it, and pay policemen to keep people from looking on it. That house is worth $10,000 to any go-ahead American who knows how to transpire it across the water.

Yesterday I lunched at the Chesham House, and I saw a woman sitting in Dr. Johnson's seat having a half-crown lunch. The fact that she was squatting on the exalted seat of the great Johnson did not interfere with her appetite in the least.

I have a standing order from a restaurant keeper in New York to buy the seat of Dr. Johnson's. I offered Charles Moore, but all he did was to smile and order a waiter to bring me some more potatoes.

I reckon that woman was having a cheap half-crown's worth. In New York we could get 500 people every day to take their turns sitting in that seat for one minute each at more money than she paid for that privilege and her lunch combined. I know as an absolute fact that the late Phineas T. Barnum paid $50,000 for the Chesham House as it stands. His idea was to take it to pieces and rebuild it in New York or Chicago. His check was refused. Then, again, could anything be more unbusinesslike than the way you ignore the money-making possibilities of Shakespeare's house? It is worth a cool two million dollars, if it is worth a cent.

And yet you leave it in a thinly populated place like Stratford-on-Avon! Why not transport it to Leicester square, where people could go in their scores of thousands and see their shillings to see the desk at which the great man learned his A B C, and the sword and ring he wore on the day he was crowned? It is such an out-of-the-way place, that a dime museum there would not give a reasonable return. You English are forgetting how good will of the residents will give you a better return than any other way.

I am prepared to give $2,000 for the sword alone. Hung over the bar of a certain Broadway saloon, it is calculated that the exhibit would increase the takings by 10 per cent. The sword would pay for itself in a little over a month. After that, of course, it would become a source of clear profit.

I figure it out that in ten years this ornament of the immortal William would have enhanced in value to something like $55,000—about as much as the House and good will of the restaurant is worth. Where it is now the sword is not producing more than 30 shillings a week. A stuffed maid would fetch more in New York than the sword. I discussed this side of England's commercial degeneracy with the minister of a leading Nonconformist chapel in Kansas. He told me that his deacons were willing to give $12,000 for Wesley's hymn book every first Sunday in the month, the congregation being expected to keep cool by HOT WEATHER WEAR at Weldon's.

Laces to make collars, also all styles made up. New style Bustles just in to suit any form. Girls' Corsets from 50c to $1.25. White wear for ladies and children; have all prices and sizes. Come in and see our novelties. No trouble to show goods.

pected to put only silver on the collection plate on those days. At the other services the hymn book would be loaned to the pew-holder who bid most for the use of it. When this scheme had been worked out, the hymn book would be raffled, or its separate leaves framed and sold for about $100 each. The minister was full of his idea, but I doubt if it will appeal to the trustees of the Wesley museum.

Carlyle would not prove so good an investment in the States as either Shakespeare or Wesley; but in the museum at Chesham is well worth $150,000. Transplanted to a suitable site in New York or Chicago, 1,000 persons could easily be got to visit the show every day. This would provide a 10 per cent. dividend after paying working expenses. Cowper's place at Olney is also wasted. I could not find Olney when I set out to look for it, but I dare say the man at the Cowper house pay-box does not gather in more than $50 a year. It is enough to make "the gentle poet" sorrow in his grave to think he is not worth more than that.—Tit-Bits.

SHE DENIES IT NOW

Mrs. French, Who Confessed to Poisoning Her Husband, Evidently Demented.

Some Very Strange Letters Addressed to a Neighbor Found on Her Person.

Leslie, Mich., July 27.—Mrs. John D. French last night confessed that she administered poison to her husband, who is now at the University hospital, undergoing treatment and is in a fair way to recover. Her reason for the act is that her husband abused her abominably, and she fed him poison that would produce paralysis, so that he would be unable to continue beating her. The case is a strange one and develops a peculiar mania on the part of the woman. Before her marriage she was charged with attempting to poison the members of a family near Springfield, where she was employed. She was tried and acquitted. Less than four months after her marriage her husband developed symptoms of partial paralysis. Four weeks ago the strange affliction again developed, and she said she was suffering from a dose of poison administered by a neighbor. This led to an investigation, resulting in her confession.

French denies ill-treating his wife and says she is after his property.

UPROAR IN HOUSE

Noisy Early Morning Scene in the British Commons—Members "Named."

London, July 30.—There was a wild uproar in the House of Commons between one and two o'clock this morning on the conclusion of the debate on the taxation of agricultural property. Conservatives interrupted Mr. Walton, Liberal, with cries of "Divide." William Redmond, on a point of order, called the attention of the Speaker to the interruption, but the Speaker ruled the point was not well taken. Mr. Walton resumed, but quite inaudibly, owing to the persistent cries of "Divide." Mr. Redmond shouted "Police! police!" The Speaker said this expression was disorderly. Mr. Redmond: "Why don't you keep order?" Speaker directed him to leave the House, and named him. Mr. Balfour, the government leader, moved Mr. Redmond's suspension, and this was carried by a vote of 303 to 71. Patrick O'Brien persisted in the same point of order, and was in turn named and suspended. The bill was adopted.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

ATTACKED BY TIBETANS.

London, July 30.—"The Russian government has been advised," says a despatch to the Daily Mail from St. Petersburg, "that 2,000 Tibetans on July 16, attacked Major Kosloff's expedition of 20 men, half of whom were shot down and the others severely wounded. The government will demand satisfaction."

THE BEST WORSTED SUITS

When we say "best" we mean something thoroughly high-class; something that shows the happiest union of quality and style.

The difference between best and other qualities of course begins at the mills. Fine suits must have fine cloth, and a big purchaser gets finer cloth for a given price than a small purchaser does. These great rolls of English worsteds that are labeled T. & D. at their very birth mean the plumpest value for your money, Mr. Retail Customer.

Then, having right material at a right price, the factory coins the suit and puts the guinea stamp on it. A clear cut, unmistakable stamp. "Fineness" it says, "fit, finish and long satisfying wear."

Three Prices by way of Example—

Here's a line of suits, in dark blue clay worsted, to realize the inner excellence of this suit you'll need a sample of the cloth, reveal it out and see how even, fine and tough the yarn is, made with double breasted vests, raised trouser seams and full equipment of side, hip and watch pockets, not a hint of ready-made anywhere about it. $12.00
Men's Suits, of fine, even worsted, in either blue or brown mixture, made with choice of single or double breasted vests, raised trouser seams and both side and hip pockets in trousers. $13.00
Men's Very Natty Suits, of fancy check worsted in black and gray with red hair line, This suit single breasted, step collar vest, side and hip pockets, raised trouser seams and a general air of expensive tailoring about it, the price is $15.00

BOAT OF FIRE

A New Yorker Proposes to Navigate Niagara Whirlpool and Rapids.

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 29.—Walter Johnston, of New York, announces that he proposes to navigate the whirl pool rapids and whirlpool in a boat of fire, and hopes to survive the ordeal to tell the tale of his voyage to a wondering world that is ever looking to Niagara for a new sensation. Captain Johnston arrived at the Falls last Friday and immediately set out the preliminary details of his astounding scheme. He has already interested the mayor and prominent citizens of both sides of the river, and there is no doubt but that the attempt will be made shortly. Captain Johnston is 45 years of age. His early life was spent in England, where he developed a taste for aquatic sports, and became acquainted with Capt. Webb, with whom he often enjoyed a sail on the Thames. One of Capt. Johnston's first was the swimming of the rapids of the St. Francis river, near Wexon, Quebec. For some years he was employed by the fire department of New York, as a specialist in explosives, from the knowledge of which he will rely to a great extent in carrying out his new exploit. The craft he proposes using will be sixty feet long, thirty feet beam, and will draw three or four feet of water. It will be schooner rigged, and in place of sails will have a network of asbestos which will be converted into a seething mass of flames. The first three trips will be made as far as the cantilever bridge, and the fourth and last one will be continued through the rapids and through the whirlpool.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

Paris, July 29.—M. Santos Dumont made another successful experiment this afternoon with a dirigible balloon, sailing it from St. Cloud to the Longchamps race course, around which he steered the balloon and ascended and descended, occupying 20 minutes of time. Though he was asked to make an attempt to go around the Eiffel Tower, the aeronaut declined, saying his motor was not yet working as well as he wanted. The weather was cloudy, which may have influenced his decision.

CANADA KEEPS THE CUE.

Montreal, July 29.—Canada keeps the Seawanhaka yacht cup. That was decided this afternoon, when the Canadian boat Senneville defeated the English boat, Grey Friar, in the final race of the races, making three straight races for the Canadian boat. To-day's race was a two-mile race to windward and return, sailed three times. The start was made at 2:30 o'clock. The Senneville got slightly the better of the start, by using the windward position. In the final heat to windward the Senneville made a big gain, making the mark 6 minutes 23 seconds before the Grey Friar. On the run to the Grey Friar knocked off a couple of minutes, but the Senneville had sufficient lead to give her the race, and she increased the lead until she was 6 minutes 50 seconds ahead. The Grey Friar reduced her lead a little on the last round, but the Senneville finished 4 minutes 55 seconds before the Grey Friar. Lorne Currie, owner of the Grey Friar, after the race to-day, signified his intention of going to St. Paul, Minn., for a match race with the White Bear Club.

Why Catarrhozone Cures Catarrh

Because it is carried by the air you breathe to diseased parts, because it destroys the germ life that maintains the diseased condition, because it powerfully stimulates the mucous membrane to its normal action, because through its oxidizing power it burns up rapidly the old tissue and stimulates the formation of new healthy tissue. Catarrhozone is an absolute specific for Catarrh of every form, and never fails to cure. Catarrhozone is the only remedy sold with a guarantee. At all dealers, 25c. and $1.00.
