NOTE AND COMMENT

There is to be erected in Kettering, England, a church as a memorial to Will'am Carey. The Baptist Union donatea $2,500 for this purpose.

By an a t of the State Legislature the Illinois jubile schools are to have a course of study in the humane treatment of animals. If the order is disregarded the penalty is a withholding of five per cent, of the teacher's monthly salary.

The death is announced, at the age of 82, of Mrs. Robinson, Kingston, widow of the late Wm. Robinson, ex-M.P.P. She was the only surviving member Cooke's Presbyterian church, who was at its first communion service in 1844.

The feet of Christian Science, said Mr. Stephen Paget, F.R.C.S., at the Congregational Union Congress at Sheffield, England, were red with the blood of those whom she killed by sheer deliberate ignorance and wilful blindness.

"Socialism from the standpoint of Christianity," was the subject of a very interesting discussion at the recent church congress. The Bishop of Truro replied to Lord Roseberry, who defined Socialism as the "end of all things," and declared himself a Christian Socialist."

The Moody Bible Institute, of Chlcago, announces that its annual midwinter convention of Christian workers will be held earlier than usual this year, to coincide with the return of Messrs. Chapman and Alexander and their party of evangelists and teachers from Australia, who are to take part in the convention. The dates now contemplated are December 2 to 5.

More than nine-tenths of the inhabliants of Persia, Afghanistan, Morocco and Expyt are Mohammedans in faith. In Turkey the majority are Mohammedans; there are sixty-two and a haif millions of them in British India and twenty-five millions in Dutch India. Germany rules eight and a haif millions in Africa; France, sixteen and a haif millions; and Great Britain, nearly eight millions. Of the 223,000,000 Mohammedans in the world, 160,000,000 are under nominally Christian governments.

It is not given many men to preach from one pulpit for thirty-three years, remarks the Toronto News. It is the accomplishment of a third of a century of service which the pastor of old St. Andrew's and his people this week celebrate. It was in September. 1876, that Rev. Dr. Milligan received a call to the struggling congregation on Adelaide street east. The crowded edifice of Jarvis and Carlon streets is a standing tribute to the power and influence of a long and acceptable pastorate-the ehd of which is not yet.

There remain unclaimed, it is estimated, $2,000,000 in coin, $6,000,000, 000 worth of the securities and $1,000,-000 worth of jeweis recovered from the ruins of Messina. Besides this there is a further deposit of 100 strong boxes and 4,000 sealed packages, known to contain valuables, which have not been opened, representing at least $4,000,000. The total of $13,000,000 does not include the treasures from the cathedral, churches and vaults of banks. The valuables were excavated and were in some instances found clutched in the dead hands of unidentified men and women.

AWATTO

--Gipsy Smith, the evangelist who was so heartily welcomed 'n Toronto last May, began an evangelistic campaign in Chicago on Sunday. October 3rd. The Interest aroused in the meeting has been intense, and it is anticipated that splendid results will ensue. The Interior says: "The frie _s which Gipsy Smith made in his last campaign in Chicago seen absolutely united in a desire for his return."

At the recent meeting of the American Veterinary Medical Association, in Chicago, Dr. L. Enco Day, of the Chicago meat inspection staff, in an address on infectious diseases, pointed out "the widespread menace of septicaenia from infected meat." Medical practice has given the name of "meat poisoning" to this infection to distinguish it from ptomaine poisoning, the effects of which are similar. A victim of this infection may die of the lilness or may only be affected to the degree of a partly poisoned system. Next to tuberculosis, Dr. Day said, he considered sopticaemia the most dangerous disease the meat inspector had so guard against.

The New York Christian Advocate recently told of Mr. Fred Moore's connection for seventy-four years with one choir at Stafford, Eagland. It now comes with the information that Mr. George Arnold has been a member of the Holy Trinity Church. Boston, Sussex, England, for more than eighty years; he joined the choir in 1829 and still sings in the chancel behind his grandson, who is also a member of the choir. But the London Mail insists that the Advocate has not yet reached the longest career for it has found the name of John Siddons who in 1814 Joined the parish church choir at Snarestown and was still in active service there as a chorister in 1886, when he celebrated his ninetieth birthday.

Some who have seen us Westerners in our own haunts and studied us at work and play, remarks the West-Land, say that we are boosters and given to vaurting our achievements. The criticism is not, it must be said, entirely unmerited. The self-apparent gratness and goodness of the land we live in have begotten in almost all of us a spirit of provid satisfaction that within limits is good and commendable but that frequently goes to excess. Examples of a public or personal kind will not be lacking if one gives it a thought. Let us be warned. Hoasting is neither good advertising nor good ethics. It never makes a sound foundation for either personal or national success. It creates a superficial, not a reliable and rational, patriotism. It is unnecessary in such a country as this. And is ist't good manners.

The London Daily News gives an account of the practical reforms already carried out by the Young Turks. Several thousand officials of the Hamidian period have been dismissed or pensioned. New Governors have been appointed to maity provinces. The reorganization of the Ministry of Finance, and the appointment of a Finance and the appointment of a Finance Commission, including a number of the European officers formerly engaged in Macedonia, promise the best results. The army has been boidly overhauled, old Hamidian officers being sent down, even so notable a commander as Mukhtar Pasha being reduced to the rank of colonel. The throwing open of the army to non-Mussulmans and the appointment of several Provinces are other courageous steps that go to justify the Young Turks rise to power.

Frau Anna Abend, a well-known German spiritualist, has been arrested in Berlin. Frau Abend, it is said, found herself ilterally in the embraces of the law just as she had emerged from behind the curtains in the guise of a filmy-veiled spirit. She fought desperately, and in anger essayed to disrobe to prove nothing was concealed about her which would incriminate her as a fraud. She betrayed herself, however, by attempting to pass a bunch of white vells to a supposed friend who turned out to be a woman detective. A list of the woman's customers include names of people in the highest circles in Gorman, Austrian. Swedish, Russian and Belgian society. The belief in spirits hes attained recently, it is said, an altogether incredible hold on the German people, and the authorities are overjoyed at the opportunity now given them of showing up the swindle in the courts.

The annual prize day of St. Andrew's college, Toronto, was held Oct. 15. The following speakers were present: His Hon. the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir Mortimer Clark, President Falconer, J. K. MacDonald, Canon Cody, Professor Kilpatrick, and rrovost Macklem. Lady Clark presented the prizes to the lower school boys. Mrs. Ramsay Wright presented the Ross rifle, an annual gift to the college cadet corps for competition by the St. George Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. The principal in his speech referred to the fast that the St. Andrew's had completed its tenth year's work, and was now thoroughly established. There are now 700 Old Boys on the list and all are doing well. Last year there ware 302 boys on the roll, 142 boarders and 100 day boys. The principal also referred to the highly satisfactory condition of the college generally.

An epoch-making event occurred in China on Oct. 14 when in the capitals of the twenty-one provinces of that great empire there met, for the first time in all her long history, provincial assemblies composed of representatives of certain classes of people, thus introducing the element of popular participation into the, government of this most ancient nation. The members of these assemblies consist wholly of the gentry and student classes and no ofthese assemblies consist wholly of the gentry and student classes and no ofthese assemblies consist wholly of the gentry and student classes and no ofthese assemblies onsist wholly of the gentry and student classes and no ofthese assemblies on the weak of the second to the explicit of the second propertory to the exercise of greater powers, each succeeding year, until, with the inauguration of a national parliament eight years hence, they will become real provincial legislatures. The influence of this step and its progress in the direction of a constitutional government for China cannot be overestimated, says the N. Y. Christian Intelligencer. If not retarded by unforeseen events, it will soon put this great nation in line with the other world powers and at no distant time give her a position and an influence whose effect upon the world of commerce, military power and International relationships cannot now be adequately conceived. China, as it has long been foretoid that she would do, is coming to her own and the time is ripe for influencing her toward those ideals of Christian clitzenship, failing which she will become a "yellow perli" to the whole world. The salvation of China not only for her own sake, but for the sake of the other nations, is a problem which calls for great and immediate effort on the part of every, Chistian church and people. Neglected now this golden opportunity will soon be gore—surely as far as we of this generation are concerned and perhaps

THE BIBLE AND LAW.

By Rev. R. G. MacBeth, M.A.

There are some people in the world who minimize the importance of law as a guiding influence in life. They claim that moral suasion from without, helped by the presence of principle within should be all that is necessary to secure rightness in life and conduct. But these people, forgetting that this world is not yet ideal, are living in a fool's imagined paradise Some of them come down from the clouds of dreamland to the commonwhen they are earth place driven by circumstances to call the aid of authority to their counsels. #### WHO IS GIPSY SMITH?

By G. A. Campbell Morgan.

My first acquaintance with Gypsy My first acquaintance with Gynav Smith was made in 1856, when I entered upon work in Hull, which he had or-iginated. Going at the invitation of the committee then in oversight of the work at Wilberforce Hall to confluct services for fourteen days. I remained thirteen months, and thus had oppor-tunity to observe the results of his labors. I found very many wholehearted followers of Jesus Christ in dead earnest about the conversion of others. These, most of them, had been brought to God under the preaching of this man. Many of them remain in the churches of the town unto this day, and retain their first love to Christ and devotion for His cause. During this time I often met Gypsy, and from the first my heart was joined to his as a brother beloved, and I count him still as my close personal friend and a highly valued fellow-laborer in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ. of Jesus Christ.

During these years I have hoted with great joy his remarkable dev-elopment, until today he stands at the very front of those who are doing the work of the evangelist. His early life consisted of certain facts which were against the chances of his success, and yet, taking a higher viewpoint of consideration, they were in his favor. favor.

favor. His lack of educational advantages would have seemed likely to bar his progress. He recognized this, and set himself from the first with a devotion and earnestness which were magnificent to remedy the defect. He has been a hard worker and a hard reader and this has found its reward a style and delivery that is full of force and beauty. One of our great London dailies said of him recently that he is one of the finest exponents of the possibilities of Anglo-Saxon speech since the days of John Bright. It is possible to hear him again and

When that Spirit who breatheth where He listeth brought him into living contact with Christ the gain of this early environ-ment was manifest. To know him today is to eatch the sweet, healthy freshness of the wools and flowers and dear old mother earth, and to breathe the fragrance of the sife lived far from the stifling atmos-

His most remarkable growth has been spiritual. in tone and temper, and those fine qualities of spirit which are the fairest productions of Christian life, he has steacily advanced, and today more than ever is a child of God in out-ward conduct and inward character.

Though thus a child of the country, Though thus a child of the country, his mission has been pre-eminently that of a messenger of the Gospel to reat cities. It is one of the most hear-stirring and spirit-reviving sights I know to watch a dense mass of city folk, tollers in the factories, clerks

Gypsy Smith is an evangelist by right of a "gift." bestowed by the Spirit of God as certainly as there ever was such in the history of the Church. In his case, moreover we have a con-spicuous example of the fact that the Spirit bestows such gifts on those by natural endowment fitted to receive and use them. There is no conflict between a man as God made him and the work of grace in him when he is utterly abandoned to the will of God.

NOTES FROM ILLINOIS. By Rev. W. H. Jordan.

Illinois Synod's committee on Christian Education has undertaken a great work at Champaign, Ill., in establishing a Presbyterian pastor at the State University. More than seven hundred and sixty young men and women come from Presbyterian nomes in the central west, and have been without the ministrations of a Presbyterian pastor until about five years ago, when the committee set a man at work there, and depended upon the contributions of the people to sustain the work. And even to this time the current expenses, amounting to $3,000, has to be raised by apportioning two or three cents to each member in the synod. But while this is being done, the committee, led by that strong, level-headed man, Rev. W. S. Plumer Bryan, of the Church of the Coven-Bryan, of the Church of the Coven-ant, Chicago, is making very much larger plans. It has already purchased a finely located Presbyterian Home, corner of John and Sth St., in Cham-paign, near the University, and right in the midst of the Praternity and Sorority houses, where the 'newly-chosen student pastor, Rev. M. E. Anderson, of the last class of Mc-Cornick Seminary, can meet the stud-ents. Sabbath morning services are held in one of the University halls, but it is the purpose later to erect a Presbyterian house of worship on this lot costing about $30,000. But before that is done an endowment of 60,000 dollars must be raised, so that the in-terest at 5 per cent. will yield an in-come sufficient to maintain the work. Already $27,000 of this endowment nas been pledged, and much of it paid in. One or two large gifts are con-ditioned upon the whole amount being raised by March 1. The student pastor, Rev. M. E. An-derson, is the right man in the right place, proven by the immense amount of work he has accomplished the past few months. _Other churches also are attempting ant, Chicago, is making very much growing state institution, with a stud-ent body of over 4,000, is increasingly oright. The committee at its recent meeting had other great problems before it. Union Academy, the only Presbyterian institution in "Egypt," the southern third of Illinois, has lost its annual appropriation from the Board of Aid for Colleges. The committee hopes the board will yet sustain the academy, but the board's policy has been to dis-continue academies as fast as good high schools are established in com-munities, as it is impossible to com-pete with well equipped high schools, and the few academy students are so often drawn from the immediate locality. The Carnegie fund for pensioning aged teachers is proving attractive to some of our denominational schools, and they are here and there seeking release from church supefvision. Jerseyville, Ill.

Mrs. Pankhurst opened her address in New York by saying she was near there to tell why they wanted the vote in England, but how they are going to get it. "You have heard," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "much of methods, Mrs. Pankhurst, "much of methods, and you have condemned them; but whether they are right or wrong, ob-jectionable or not, they have certainly accomplished our object of bringing the question before the British public as a practical political question. Our methods may be violent, but where did men get anything but by violence? Where would this republic be if your fathers had not thrown the tea into Boston Harbor?

POSSIBILITIES IN CONGREGA-TIONAL SINGING.

By Rev. Henry M. Simpson.

For the pulpit occasionally to occupy the pew is an advantage to both. Upon a Sunday morning in church recently, the singing of a devout member of the congregation across the alsie was quite noticeable. The devotion of the singer seemed equaled only by the lack of consciousness of the attention attracted. As an object lesson it might easily have been a means of grace excelled by nothing which occurred during the hour. The event led to the reflection as to possible consequences if all the occupants of the pews had done likewise. It can scarcely be doubted that upon the preacher and people, as well as upon non-church-goers. informed of the fact, the effect would be most remarkable.

able. Two facts are called to mind. It is said of certain well-known preachers that they have, upon occasion, called for an immediate repetition of a hymn, when the performance had been conspicuously defective, and also whether as a result of this or not, that they preached to the largest congregations in the metropolis. While the number of the congregation is not the chief concern in preaching, yet the facts are suggestive. I recently heard a preacher, after a life-long and very comprerensive experience, say that were he to be his alm-next to the conversion of such a complete reform in the matter of congregational singing as would resuit in such a volume of praise from all the people present, whether technically ac urate or devotionally spiritual, as would be in marked contrast to the present church habit. Phennic and audible use of the hymnal in church is the exception rather than the rule, notwithstanding the facts that at no time has so much attention jeet of music, and at no time has the outhay to provide musical leadership and facility for the accommodation of all and facility for the accommodation of all worshippers. The question might arise as to what extent the service of song is optional for the church frequenter? The Book of the Paalms seems the resource of header; it cannot therefore fail of notice that its great theme is the individual song of praise to God. Listening to the volce of God. Much of religion is set to music. Extract the hymn of praise, and what is left of reflectual expression to the mass of service as a religious testimony inerceases in value in proportion as other presumed that the regular attendants at church service anticipate heaven at some future time. None can fail to remark that a large part of heaven. Bor of the the song of the redeemed. Opportunity measures responsibility.

Opportunity measures responsibility. The habitual is not always the ideal. Our utmost pleases God. Only the dead cannot bralse Him, according to the Divine Word.

Two scenes are brought to mind. One is the Easter service in a city church, dedicated to the worship of deaf mutes. The surpliced choir, necessarily in view of the congregation, render an anthem of praise without a syllable uttered. The swift and perfectly rhythmical motion of the fingers and hands expressed all that the hymn contained. Amid absolute silence the entire service was completed. Upon the face of each worshipper was depicted a perfect peace. It was their utmost. Instinctively the Revelator's words were recalled, "There was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour." The other picture is that of a city

The other picture is that of a city church crowded to its utmost capacity three times a day. I attended its services once, as a boy, under the ministry of the Rev. S. Y. Monroe, D.D. There was no choir. The rear gallery was occupied by an orchestra of some dozen pieces. To me it seemed to include all but the drum, the place of which was filled by a bass viol of great power. And yet, when the volume of vocal music was uttered by that congregation, the instrumental music was out of hearing. It is not to be wondered at that such great results of a spiritual character are recorded of that church.

to be wondered at that such great recorded of that church. Just at a time when the thought of the Church is turned to extraordinary evangelistic effort, who can tell the possible result of such a method of hymn service? Some things a church cannot have, however they may be regarded as an additional source of power, but the whole-hearted and unanimous singing of the hymns of the church is within the reach of all who desire it.

Tourists who have entered the church of Mr. Spurgeon in London were accustomed to comment upon the never-to-be-forgotten singing habit of that immene assembly. Without choir and without instrumental music, it was secured through the appeal of the preacher and conspicuous time-beating of a shender, frail man, who loved the volce of praise.

vote of praise. Is it becoming that the possible and proper use of the hymnal should be of so exceptional a character as to lead to comments such as might follow the hearing a soloist or soprano so famous and so exclusive as to make the occasion one of a life time? —  $\mathbb{N}$ . #### PURITY BORNE OF KNOWLEDGE.

By Katharine A. Hamilton.

I want to urge upon every mother the sacred duty of early imparting to her children pure, reverent, scientific knowledge of the simple laws of God concerning their physical nature, its necessities, purposes and glorious possibilities. We early teach them "God is love," and point them to the cross of Christ as the highest manifestation of that love; let us not omit to tell them too that "God is light," and then, seeking for heaven-granted wisdom, unfold to their growing intelligence the marvellous story of the Creator's ways, holy and beautiful in nature as in grace.

While still of tender years, the active little brain begins to busy itself with wondering questions as to how it found its way into this strange world, and these imaginings find expression in anxious questions. At first the simple, truthful, answer—"From God, my darling." will suffice, but soon will follow other questions, and endless wonderings as to the mysterious origin of every living thing about them.

Now, dear mothers, this is your God-given upportunity. So soon as the child is of sufficient intelligence to ask such questions, so soon it is capable of receiving the pure instruction to which it has a right.

ask such questions, so soon it is capable of receiving the pure instruction to which it has a right. Do not seek to silence "awkward questions" by evasive answers. Be not deceived. By such a course you repel your child's confidence and open the door to two unspeakable evils. First, you lead the child to suppose that some unholy mystery must be connected with that of which you are so unwilling to speak; and secondly, it will almost certainly carry its questions to others, probably not possessed of your reticence who will teach it, impurely, the knowledge you refuse to impart.

Impart. As one who has suffered much, mentally, through just such a mistaken method, I beseech you, for the sake of the little ones so dear to your heart and to the heart of the Saviour who died for them, leave them not to be so schooled. Forestall the evil teachers who will assuredly take advantage of your laxity. Your neglect in this matter will be Satan's opportunity and he will make the most of it.

A LAWFUL CRIME.

R. S. H. in Philadelphia Westminster. Drunkenness is a crime. Against the man himself who is list victim, against the family which is dependent upon him, against the society which his example contaminates, against the State to which he should be an ornament and a fa-tor contributing to its weath and pc.et. This is a rather sharp indictment, but every count of it will hold. And yet this crime is a lawful thing. The State says it is. Drunkenness is made by the use of alcoholic drink. No one who does not drink alcohol ever becomes a drunkard. We never heard of a man or woman the victim of this fearful vice who had never tasted alcohol. There are no potato drunkards, no beefsteak drunkards, no cold water drunkards. Alcohol is back of and responsible for the whole iniquity. And the State says alcohol may be sold, shall be sold. The State regulates the method by which it shall be sold. If a required number of freeholders will sign a peliton certifying as to the good moral character of the man who is used to engage in his nefarious product, the judge of the court is expected to, and ordinarily does, issue the license which hermits this good man to debauch his fellow-men, and turn them into criminals against every institution which mans the steadfastness of society. So drunkennes is a lawful crime.

drunkenness is a lawful crime. It is pitiful that such a condition of things should exist in this good country of ours. It is lamentable that men laugh at the performances of intokcated men, apologize for the evil, excuse it in various ways, and themselves play from time to time their own littie game with this "liquid fire." It is unfortunate that so many men are what are commonly called "cranks," men who are honest in their opposition of this evil, who want to see its power broken, and common humanity saved from the wreck which it inflicts wherever it has opportunity. It is strange that men cannot see eye to eye and work hand to hand, in some same, safe way to curb the power of the drink demon.

Drunkenness is a crime. Liquor is a curse. Liquor makes drunkenness. The State makes the sale of liquor possible. The State, therefore, makes drunkenness lawful. And the work of ruin goes on unchecked. What a position for a nation that calls itself Christian to hold before the world. We do not wonder that the South, realizing how dangerous the negro may be under the influence of alcoholic drink, rushes almost unanimously along the highway which bears the name "Local Option."

I have not a shadow of doubt that if all our eyes could be opened today, we should see our homes, and our places of business, and the streets we traverse, fille." with the "chariots of God." There 's no need for any one of us to wa for lack of chariots. That cross in the of your household who has hitherto made life a burden to you, and who has been the Juggernaut car 'o crush your soul into the dust, may henceforth be a glorious chariot to carry you to the heights of heavenly patience and long-suffering. That misunderstanding, that mortification, that unkindness, that disappointment, that loss, that defeat -all these are charlots waiting to carry you to the very heights of victory you have so longed to reach. Mount into them, then, with thankful hearts and lose sight of all second causes in the shrining of his love who will carry you in his arms and triumphantly over it al.--H. W. Smith.

Purity and integrity command the respect even of a mob. "Listen, citizens! It is sixty years of  $\alpha$  pure life that is about to address you." was the way Lamartine introduced De la Eure to a French mob. The attention given by the crowd was its tribute to worth.

COMING INTO THE CHRISTIAN LIFE.

In studying different types of experi In studying different types of experi-ence the various temperaments of people must be taken into the ac-count as well as ther training and hab-its; for all these play important parts in determining what they will do and how they will proceed in seeking God, and coming into the Christian life, as well as in advancing to the higher states of grace. 'Many men of many minds.'' and men of extremely dif-ferent environments, are to be met and rescued and transformed-cleans-ed and built up in the likeness of God. and rescued and transformed-cleans-ed and built up in the likeness of God. The gospel, if divine, must have pro-visions and be sufficiently flexible to meet every condition, and to fit the peculiarities and idiosyncrasies of meet every condition, and to fit the peculiarities and idiogenerasies of every individual. It is therefore un-wise to expect that all will receive the grace of God in the same way, while there is great folly in suppos-ling that by any possible constraint every one can be brought to measure up to one given type of Christian experience, either in its earlier or later stages. Diversity marks the work of God from Incipiency to con-summation. summation.

From all this the fact is readily de-ducible that it is improper to make any man's experience a standard or a model for the experience of other peo-ple. There is no model experience. Christ is the model man. His active life as a man was perfect, and to be imitated; but he never experienced the cleansing or washing from sin which our sanctification implies. He was not regenerated or sanctified, as sin-ners must be; and therefore he never libustrated in anything: he did or suf-fered the process of passing from sin to holines. He decared and lived up to the standard of moral purity pecessary for our complete union with himself, and made the way possible, so that every one, each with his per-sonal characteristics and his individ-ual environments, may come up to the full measure of duty and privilege without in the least censing to be himself. The quiet man of phiegmatic temperament can reach the high standard, and continue quiet; while the man of inputsive nature will rise, per-haps more rapidly, to the same stand-ard, but with almost superhuman emo-tions and marvelous demonstrations.— From "Sanctification."

Large stones, called sleepers, were used in-stead, and even later, bags of sand and baskets of stones were used in cases of necessity. We know from pictures of anchors on coins of the time of Paul, that they were of iron, and very similar in shape to those used to-day. The figures of ships show the hole in the prov through which the cable at-tached to the anchor passed. When vessels were at reat the land, the anchor was cast into the deep water and the ship turned with her stern toward the shore. When she was driving before the wind and was in danger of running ashore, unchors when the ship was drifting, the anchor was placed in a boat and rowed out to the full length of the cable before being dropped to check the ship with-in a shorter distance. The largest and stars read anchor was called sacred, and was read anchor was ca expression used of persons employing a last resort.

Carefully thought out plans and earnessity made resolves are valuable only as they bring into years are an another than the solution be doing. They are worse than uscless when we let them take the place of duty-doing, as we so often do. A man will, on his way from his house to his office at the beginning of the day, make such good plans and resolves for that day that by the time he reaches his office he has uncon-sciously let himself think that the hardest part of the work is already done; and then the real doing of it evaporates in the glow of the plan-making. It is better for most people to spend more of their tim on what unplanned duty done is better than a duty that always remains planned for.—S. S. Times.

So may His heavenly teaching hear sweat full in our conduct and ledge of us that we have been with Jesus. So may His heavenly teaching bear sweet fruit in our conduct and characters, and so may the Kingdom which He came to establish grow apace in the world. In His name. Amen.

PERFECT TRUST.

Peace of heart lies in perfect resig-nation to the will of God. Whit you need is true simplicity, a certain calmneed is true simplicity, a certain calm-ness of spirit which comes from entire surrender to all that God wills, pa-tience and toleration to your neigh-bor's faults, and a certain candor and child-like docility in acknawledging your own faults. The trouble you feel your own hards. The brokes you zees about so many things comes from your not accepting everything vhich may happen to you with sufficient resigna-tion to God. Suppose a vitness brought court to testify in a case should speed most of his time talking of other things. Would the court allow it?

things. Would the court allow it? And would the one whose witness he was be pleased and satisfied? If we are true Christians we me sent of Christ to tell the world of its teachings, and His past, present and future work. In apostocic days that is what the Christians did, in the homes, streets, lanes and fields. Paul taught ard warned the people by the river side, from house to house, in the courts evanogenues und pricens "days" and warned the people by the river side, from house to house, in the courts, synagogues and prisons, "day and night, with tears," and the per-secuted, scattered church "went every where preaching the Word." The peo-ple of modern denominations in their early history were filed with the Word and the Spirit, and "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth" Word and the spirit, and "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth" spoke, "both of the goodness and se-verity of God"; of his past present and future dealings with men, and there were acceptable witnesses, whose tes-timony was blessed of God to their our medicing and the calculator of rejoicing and the salvation of own multitudes.

But now of what are Christ's witnesses speaking? The world sits in judgment on Christ and his work. What does the world learn from our lips, pens, presses and lives? Can he for whom we witness be pleased when for whom we witness be pleased when we occupy precious time and space re-peating the claims and teachings of false leaders, to the exclusion of im-portant testimony for him? Is the world convinced of Christ's power, authority, purity wisdom and love by our disputings over our own beliefs and our criticism of the beliefs of others?

Why, Christ and the apostles might have occupied all their time in repeat-ing, contradicting and "showing up" the false religion of their day, but they were so full of truth they seldon had time to mention those errors. Le but ldom nad time to mention those errors. Let us use our opportunities to testify to a perishing world what God has done, is doing, and will do, so save those who hear and obey his word, and pun-ish the disobedient and rebeilious. On, that we might help men to see their lowit condition, and how to be saved, sud the bilss and glory salvation brings!-Selected.

LIFE LESSONS FROM THE BOOK OF HEBREWS.*

OF HEBREWS.* The great lesson of Hebrews is that the things which God gives are always better than the things which he gave, and that what he gives will be surpassed by what he will give. The Old Dispensation served its end. It did not accomplish what God had de-sired, for the great majority of those trained under it rejected the Messiah for which it had been designed to pre-pare them. But it had made some ready for the Messiah, and it had prepared the words and the ideas in which the Messiah could bring his truth home to human hearts. But it trus never intended to be final, and when its end had been served God gave the better things. Why do we not learn from such les-sons to true Code

Why do we not learn from such les-sons to trust God? We persist in looksons to trust God? We persist in look-ing back for golden ages or in repining over what we once had but have lost. But nothing that God can give is in-ferior. It is an improvement on all that he has given, and the best is yet to be, the end for which all the beginning shave prepared. We need fear nothing. fear nothing. "And so beside the silent sea I wait the muffled oar: No harm from him can come to me

On ocean or on shore.

"I know not where his islands lift

t know not where his islands in air; Their fronded palms in air; I only know I cannot drift Beyond his love and care." The Epistie to the Hebrews shows us the Hebrew Christians The Epistle to the Hebrew shows us how some of the Hebrew Christians tried to win their fellow-Hebrews to the Saviour. They loved them and longed for their acceptance of Jesus. They recognized what was good and true in their common inheritance, but they were clear and fearless in point-ing out what was inadequate and transitory and even vain. The blood of bulls and goats could never take away sin. Christ could. All that was true in what had been was only the foreshadowing of him, and he was its frue in what had been was only the foreshadowing of him, and he was its fulfilment. How foolish and wrong then for man to reject the complete for the sake of the partial, the truth for the sake of that which was true but in parts.

for the sake of the partial, the truth for the sake of that which was true but in part. Each Bible book can teach us some new thought of God, and each book in the New Testament some new thought of Christ. This book shows us his di-vine glory; but in ways which reveal also the full beauty of his humanity and bring him near to us, even into our very struggles. He was tempted as we are. He prayed with strong cry-ing and was heard, just as we pray and are heard. Christ knew it all. He went from us with "eyelds that had known the touch of tears." We learn in a vivid way from this Epistle the true secret of the great tharacters of the old time. The cen-tral principle of their being was faith in God. They went out on untried er-ands seeing him. We learn that they are witness our lives, and are witnessing to learn that they are witnessing lives.

In the midst of all that changes, one In the midsi of all that changes, one order giving way to another and the thing that is good to the better, we learn from the Epistle that Jesus Christ does not change. He is the same yesterday, today, and forever! That is a great comfort and stay. We learn to know him better and to love him more. The change is in us, not in him. That is a blessed consolation. We need never cease changing. There will always be room for change for the better. Christ will never change. He is always perfect love and go

Since 1800 there have been 578 expeditions to find the North Pole, and 61 to the South Pole. If the money spent in these spectacular efforts to reach an imaginary spot, from which the practical benefits are illusory, had been expended in benefitting humanity what a world of good might have been accomplished

For a man to ask to be deposed from the ministry is an unusual circumstance. But Rev. G. W. H. Troop, son of Rev. G. Osborne Troop, of Montreal, has been deposed from the ministry of the Episcopal church by Bishop Harding, of Washington, at his own request, and has become a Unitarian. He is now occupying the pulpit of the latter church at Ottawa.

Mr. W. S. Calvert, M.P., and chief Liberal whip for Ontario, has been appointed to the place on the National Transcontinental Commission made vacant by the death of Mr. Robert Reid. Mr. Culvert's business ability and long experience in public life well fit him for the efficient discharge of the duties develving upon him as a member of the Commission.

The Lord's Day Alliance has lost a test case that it brought against A. B. Charron, of Alymer, Que., for keeping a moving picture show open on Sunday. Magistrate Rainville, of Hull, dismissed the case with costs, declaring that he could not find anything in the statutes which would justify conviction as a moving picture exhibition could not be classified as a labor, a busines or a theatrical performance. An appeal will be tatket by the Lord's Day Alliance.

ABOUT PREACHING.

The greatest preachers are those who have sought hardest to make the simplest understand. The strong temptation to the man in the pulpit is to attract the attention and win the applause of the learned, or please the proud and wealthy with plous platitudes. Some plain truth relating to man's salvation, told in the simplest, tenderest manner, will take deep hold, be long remembered, and do more good than the sententious, dogmatic discoursing on high subjects of metaphysics which may be controverted and so engender strife and passion.

Says an ancient doctor, who used to preach before princes: "Cursed are preachers that in the church aim at high and hard things, and neglecting the saving health of the poor, unlearned people, seek their own honor and praise, and therewith to please one or two ambitious persons. When I preach I sink myself deep down. I regard neither doctors nor magistrates of whom are here in this church above forty; but I have an eye to the multitude of young people, children and servants, of whon are more thon two thousand. I preach to those, directing myself to them that have need thereof. Will not the rest hear me? The doors stand open unto them; they may be gone. I see that the ambition of preachers grows and increases: this will do the utmost mischief in the Church, and produce great disguistness and discord; for they will need teach high things touching matters of state. thereby aiming at praise and honor; they will please the worldly wise, and meantime neglect the simple and common multitude."

It is not meant that people are never to be taught of the doctrines of the Church, and that each preacher should invariably confine himself to subjects strictly practical. But this should be the rule and in most cases, when doctrines are to be discussed, it ought to be done in the simplest langauge, and after a direct though considerate style. High-sounding phrases and lurid disputation and fire-eating declarations are not suited to the pulpit.

The Gospel tells of salvation. Let the preacher so shape his life and utterances as to put the "good spell' around those who see and hear him, and his best rejoicing at length will be because his name is written in Heaven.

The Government is to be congratulated on the appointment of Hon. R. F. Sutherland, M.P. for North Essex, ex-speaker of the House of Commons, to be a judge of the Exchequer division of the Hugh Court of Justice of Ontario. Mr. Sutherland's career as a public man has been such as to earn for him a very high place in the esteem and confidence of his fellow citizens; and there is no question as to his absolute fitness for the eminent position to which he has been called.

At a meeting of the Lanark United Free Presbytery in Lanark, Rev. Alexander P. Davidson, of Stirling, Scotland, registered his charge because his congregation only numbered thirtyeight, and he considered he had too little work to do.

STUDYING CHRIST.

The ancient philosopher who started on its travels down the centuries the pregnant maxim, "Know thyself," did the world a great and abiding service. Nothing would surprise many people more than to be made acquainted with themselves as they actually are, and to recognize, with the unerring glance of a'solute truth, the proportions of the evil within them as compared with the good. Probably there is not a living man or woman who could not be enlightened thus, and who would not be surprised. The duty of honest patient study of one's self is not performed, or even admitted, by many of the very people upo whom it rests most weightilv.

This side of the truth should not be overlooked for a moment. Yet there is another side which is even more important. The study of self is necessary in order to learn one's temperament, inclinations, and powers, and also one's weaknesses and faults. But the study of self as a model is ruinous, and there is a degree of self-study which is almost as dangerous when we are comparing ourselves with an external pattern, even the highest and best. Here is specially to those who are trying to live Christian lives.

It is better to study Christ than ourselves. It is wiser to fix atténtion upon what we desire and strive to be, than upon our failures. Absolutely we need to study ourselves. To study Him, in His character and life, with reverent, loving thoroughness, is also to gain light, clear and full, upon our own shortcomings, yet in such a manner as to keep before our minds the hopeful aspects of the case, and to prevent the morbidness which constantly overshadows some belleving, yet desponding spirits-

Studying Christ works in both ways. It teaches the careless, who never have taken pains to become familiar with their real natures, to attend to this duty, because it is impossible to cinsider His perfect holiness without being made sensitive to one's own lack thereof, both generally and in detail. Yet, on the other hand, it encourages the depressed who have dwelt too exclusively upon their own sinfulness by reminding hem of his victory over evil, and of his constant sympathy and helpfulness for his children in striving for the same. It is the wise, safe, right course to pursue in any and eevery phase of Christian experience. It is our highest wisdom here; probably it will be our most exalted joy hereafter.

A movement has been started in London that promises to be influential. It is called the Church and Medical Union, an organization of medical men and ministers of various religious denominations. The object of the association is to fight the dangers of Christian Science, and to fight it "with its own weapons"; whatever that may mean.

The name of the Rev. Dr. M'Adam Muir, of the Cathedral, Glasgow, is mentioned in connection with the forthcoming nomination of a Moderator for the next General Assembly of the Church of Scotland.

DO NOT PASS THEM BY.

A valued correspondent sends the following bit of experience, which was related to him by an old minister. It may serve as a useful 'int to young ministers in their pastoral labors:

My first charge was in a rural neighborhood. It was my practice to go round among the families of the congregation and pay them pastoral visits. When I was leaving one house I had visited, I asked whether I ought to call at the next house on my way homeward. I was told, however, that it would not be of any use, for the master of the house was very intemperate and rude in his manners. Being thus warned, I passed the gate of the prohibited dwelling, but I said to myself, "Why not call at any rate? It can do no harm." I turned back and entered the gate, encountering the owner of the place, who was unhar-He spoke quite nessing his team. civilly, and asked me to go into the house and wait till he should dispose of the horses.

On entering the humble dwelling, I saw a number of children seated near the stove, while the mother was busy in a corner hatcheling flax. She looked up for a moment, but did not rise, nor ask me to be seated. I sat down near the children, and began to con-verse with them. I found that they were quite intelligent and 1 proceeded to ask them some questions from the Shorter Catechism, which they answered readily and correctly. As soon as the first question was asked, the woman left her work and came and sat beside me. To my great surprise J found that the little ones were thoroughly drilled in the catchism, and were well acquainted with the Scriptures. The fact was that the woman mistook me for the sheriff, and supposed that I had came to levy an execution. The husband was a worthless fellow, who did little for the family, but the mother had been well brought up herself, and she carefully trained her little ones. I had a most interesting visit with the family, but the husbard took care not to make his appearance. The family thus excavated, were attended to by the members of my congregation, and they began to attend Sabbath school and public worship. The girls grew up intelligent and attractive, and in due time were well married. The father improved somewhat in his conduct, but never became a church member. For myself, I learned a lesson of experience which proved highly useful. My motto afterwards was to pass no house in my pastoral visits without attempting to find an entrance.

Is not the womanly and maternal feeling itself decilining' asks Bystander in Weskly Sun. Are not women growing less proud of what were the glories of their sex, and more ambitious of taking the place of men? Has not the admission of women to male universities had its effect, not only on their intellectual acquirements, but on their intellectual acquirements, but on their intellectual acquirements, but on their set work or members the women of England two generations ago must see that there has been a change. Two generations ago suffragetism would have been absolutely impossible. It is hard to imagine a suffragete playing the part of a mother and the mistrees of a home.

HELP THE ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS FIGHT.

The Ontario Government has been called to account by some of the speakers at the Charities and Corrections Conference in Toronto for having done so little for the anti-tuberculosis movement. The province of Ontario is wealthy, and has a large revenue, which is being dispensed with liberal hand, therefore it might do more to aid in the fight against the white plague. The government can well ask parliament to vote a larger amount of money for this purpose.

In this connection it is gratifying to know that the Ottawa hospital for consumptices will soon be ready for occupation. Dr. Hodgetts, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, who inspected it not long since, pronounces it one of the best equipped institutions he has seen. Private munificence has already provided for the furnishing of some of the rooms, and the public is being appealed to for what is necessary to complete the furnishings. Such a worthy cause should not appeal in valn.

LITERARY NOTES.

A subject which is much discussed in England of late, and which has attracted considerable attention also in the United States,-""Slave Labor upon Cocca Plantations," is the topic of an article which The Living Age for November 13 reprints from the Contemporary Review.

"The Attitude of Canada." by Professor George M. Wrong, of the University of Toronto, with which The Living Age for November 13 opens, is an Intelligent and highly interesting presentation of Canadian opinion touching imperial questions and incidentally with reference to the United States.

The opening article in The Living Age for October 30, is "An Hour with the Pope," by Rene Lara, who recently enjoyed an interview with the Pope under the most favorable circumstances, and who gives, in this article. Intimate glimpses of the Pope's personality and his attitude toward public questions.

The Fruit Magazine is a new condidate for public favor, the initial number of which has just reached our desk from Vancouver, that growing city on the Pacific coast. It is a handsome looking publication and will be "malled to any address in the world" for $1.00 a year. We wish the editor and publisher abundant success.

and publisher abundant success. The November Current Literature well sustains the high reputation of this periodical. In the various departments-such as A Review of the World, Persons in the Foreground, Literature and Art, Religion and Ethics. Music and the Drama, Recent Poetry-will be found much to interest and instruct. The moderate price of this magazine places it within the reach of everybody. Address 41-43 West 25th street, New York.

We have on our table a budget of the well-known publications of Cassell and Company, London and Toronto. The Quiver, Cassells', The Girl's Realm and Little Folks appeal to the varying tastes in a cultured home. We are glad to notice the large increase in the number of British publications coming to Canada; and certainly if merit counts for anything the above named magazines should have thousands of readers throughout this Dominion.

SPARKS FROM OTHER ANVILS.

United Presbyterian: America owes more to the cabin than the palace; to the man with a callous palm than to the man with a diamond stick pin.

Cumberland Presbyterian: No workinan can do good work without sufficlent tools. Books are the minister's tools. He must have them, if he is to serve his people well. Yet many a minister's salary is so small that he is unable to provide the commonest necessities for his family and have enough left to supply himself with needto usk. The church that makes it far, osible for its pastor to buy books harms itself even more than it harms the minister.

United Presbyterian: The conquests of the lowly for Jesus, the victories of the unconsidered men and women will be among the marvels of redeeming grace when "the things that shall be hereafter" are disclosed. Only when the "books are opened," and the "small," as well as the "great," stand before God, will we know what the unconsclous influence, the untrumpeted fives of unknown men and women have wrought for Christ and for humanity!

Presbyterian Witness: We must see to it that the young generation growing up in this highly favored land of ours have stamped indeilbly upon their minds that character is our greatest asset,—worth more than all our mines and forests, wide-stretching prairies and far-flung coast line; and that without the endowments of mind and heart which make men, all our great and God-given resources will be turned into blighting curses and weights to sink us lower among the nations of the world.

Morning Star: The history of too many churches and young people's socletles shows example after example of most disastrous failure in the end. "Booms" may seem to build up; they do, after a fashion and for a time, but sooner or later they cease to boom, reaction follows, to suffer from the unsanctified zeal and fleshly energy of his predecessor. In a society which has sought to boom, new officers have to spend too much time in disentanglements. Mr. Vain Glory can not bring success to any church in any of its departments.

Presbyterian Standard: When a Christian moves into a new community it is neither kind nor Christ-like to hold aloof from the church in that place, and put the members of that church on trial to see whether or not they are a cordial set. Most likely they are unaware of your unkind scrujiny of them. It is probable that you will know more quickly the location of the church of your faith than the Christian way is to attend the church at once, make yourself known pastor and officers, and arrange for the transfer of your church membership without delay. Such action on your part will invite and stimulate cordiality even if it were lacking before. The West-Land: The labor problem

The West-Land: The labor problem is again to the front. The Grand Trunk Pacific is hampered by lack of men and the British Columbia canneries have for the same reason been unable to take full profit from a good run of salimon in the Fraser River. It has been rumored that the Government was about to be asked to permit the G.T.P. to employ Oriental labor, and the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council sent a vigorous protest to Ottawa. There are two sides to this question, as usual; if the G.T.P. builders cannot secure sufficient white men because the wages offered are not adequate, it is their own fault; but if the exclusion of Oriental labor is retarding the interests of the nation the embargo should be lifted. It is a fit matter for investigation.

The Inglenook

ALL IS VANITY. By Annie S. Swan.

"Why, whatever is going on 4m Took ?" asked Cresswell, 471 the camp, Jack?" asked Cresswell, straining his neck to look down the gully to the bed of the stream, where the the wooden shacks of the miners dotted the slope, variegated by an occasional gleam of tent canvas. It was a wild and chemical states of the s dotted the stope, Variegated by an occasional gleam of tent canvas. It was a wild and glorious perion remote from the confines of the world, but not remote from the fret and fever of life. Nay, there, all the baser passions of frail humanity surged and swayed: avarice, envy, hatred, lust of gold and lust of blood; these were the dominating powers in the valley of Buena Vista. Cresswell was a traveling Englishman of the typical sort, who in the course of his wanderings had looked up an old college friend, ranching in the neighborhood, and he had found the life so good, and the companion-ship of Jack Enderby so delightful, that he had lingered far beyond his original intention. True, Phylis was on the ranch too, where she had that he had lingered far beyond his original intention. True, Phyllis was on the ranch too, where she had come to spend a long summer with her brother, and Cresswell was astonished that in England he had not noticed how charming she was. "Seems like they were having a service; hear the hymn! By Jove.

service; hear the hymn! By Jove, it's a good old tune-brings the old country back. Let's clamber down here. Bob; we may get in at the death." said Enderby interestedly. They scrambled down between the rocks and the tree scrub, and pre-sently arrived on the outskirts of the circle, just as the preacher was about to give out his text. The scene was a striking one. The camp dwellers had squatted in a semicircle round a rude table that had been fetched from one of the shacks, and was covered with an old blanket, upon which a very ragged dible was reverently laid, likewise a tin pannikin of water, for the even-ing was breathlessly hot, and right down in the hollow not a flicker of air was stirring. Cresswell was all interest and curiosity, pleased to add one more to his repertoire of unusual experiences; but Enderby wore an air of profound astonishment.

It was the preacher who ished him; he had never before aston him, and he was as unlike the or-dinary "sky pilot" of the Far West as could possibly be imagined. He was a slim, hovigh leader. dinary "sky pilot" of the Far Weat as could possibly be imagined. He was a slim, boyish-looking person, with a pale, somewhat ascetic face, and wore a suit of black English serge, and the ordinary clerical collar. He was so obviously a fresh importation that Enderby puzzled himself for quite five minutes as to how he had not heard of his arrival in Buena Vista. His was the guest-house of the neighborhood: sub-stantial prospectors, Government officials, mining experts, all came under his roof from time' to time, and he had entertained all the sky pilots. Where had this one come from? Where had the got the flery eye and the piercing, pathetic voice, and the power to wring and probe the hearts of men? After five minutes Enderby had to quench his worderings, because he was ab-sorbed heart and soul in what the man was saying. He was preach-ing from the old ot try "Vanty" ing from the old, old text, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity."

more masterly, ore "live" in ever Anything Anything more masterly, more searching, more "live" in every sense of the word, the two friends had never heard. Perhaps the hour and the place made them more suscep-tible. They exchanged glances cnl, once, then Enderby bent his chin en his knees and gave himself up to the grip of the sermon. He knew the life of the camp, the loneliness, the fever, the sin of it, and this man seemed more to know it too. He played upon the elemental passions in front of him like a harp of ten strings; he carried them to know it too. a harp of ien strings; he carried them back in waves of tenderness to earlier and purer days; he drew pictures of home; and the rough men surrepti-tionsly snifted and whed their eyes, and once a stifted sob came as an in-terlude. Finally, he touched upon the vanity and futility of this feverish search for gold; and here his volce and words were so poignant that En-derly felt a strange thrill in his spine. The words were hitting him too; he was not free from the lust of gold, in its pursuit he had forgotten nearly everything else. everything else.

When the service was over, and the oarse volume of sound had spent it-elf brokenly on the last lines of hoarse noarse volume of sound had spent it-self brokenly on the last lines of "Rock of Ages," the miners crowded about the preacher and offered their rude thanks. Watching his opportun-ity, Enderby stepped forward and spoke courtice say. His fine, clean, honest Engl. : face wore its most winning look

"My name is Enderby, and my ouse is only a mile distant. May l offer you its hospitality? I had nat heard of your coming, though it is, as you can see, an event in Buena Vista. This is my friend, Cresswell, visiting from England, and my sister is with me too; we shall all bid you welcome."

The preacher returned the honest grip and spoke a word of brief thanks: "I am sorry it is not possible. I am leaving the camp at daybreak to-

"But why?" persisted Enderby kindbit why: persisted Enderby kin-t-ly. "Surely such haste can't be ne-cessary. We can show you a nice bit of Western life here, typical in many respects. Do be persuaded." The preacher again shook his Iy. head.

"I can't. I must leave to-morrow. "I can't. I must reave to-morrow. I am not my own master. I came on a quest. It is ended, and I go to-mor-row. My name? Oh, it is Greybrook -Frederick Greybrook. I am from Wessex, In England." Enderby felt himself dismissed, ex-

HINDU AND CHINESE CIVILIZA-TION.

Never did opposing qualities and defects establish a wider gulf be-tween two races. During the 4,000 or 5,000 years which make up her his-tory, China offers us the unique spec-tacle, as it seems to me, of a society founded upon a purely human basiswithout Prophet, without Messiah, without Revealer, without mythology, without of a society calculated for temporal well being and the good organization of this world, and for nothing else. of of this world, and for nothing else. India, on the other hand, shows us a not less surprising spectacle of a race exclusively speculative, living by the ideal, building its religion and its literature in the clouds without any intermingling elements drawn from history or reality. The characteris-tic feature of the Chinese mind is a negation of the supernatural; what it cannot understand does not exist for negation of the supernatural; what it cannot understand does not exist for it. India, on the contrary, absorbed in the contemplation of the infinite, has exhaused her activity in the crea-tion of an exuberant mythology, and of meto-burden burden burden burden burden burden for meto-burden burden burde of metaphysics. Nor has the study of nature, of man, or of history, ever seemed to her worthy to check her thought for an instant.

China is indisputably, of all coun-China is indisputably, of all coun-tries, that which possesses the best ordered and the most abundant ar-chives. Since the twelfth century be-fore the Christian era she has stored up dynasty by dynasty, and almost year by year, the official documents of her history, the decrees of her sovereigns, the rules of her adminis-tration. India, so prodigiously fruit-ful in everything else, has not a line ful in everything else, has not a line of history. She has reached modern of history. She has reached modern times without believing that the "real is ever worth writing down. This pre-sent life is for the Chinese the only sent inte is for the Chinese the only aim human of activity. For the Indian is is but an episode in a series of ex-istences, a passage between two eter-nities. On one side you have a bour-geois and reasonable race, narrow as common sense is narrow; on the other a race devoted to the infinite—dreamy, absorbed, and lost in its own imagination

Nor are the physical characteristics of both less strikingly contrasted. The bright oblique eye, the flat nose, the short neck, the cunning look of the chinese indicate the man of common sense, well trained in the affairs of this world; the noble outline of the In-broad brow, his deep tranquil eye, show us a race made for meditation, and destined even by its very errors, to provide us with a measure of the speculative power of humanity.-Mac-milian's Magazine. The simple life, which blandly ig-nores all care and conflict, soon be-comes flabby and invertebrate, senti-mental and gelatinous. The strenu-ous life, which does everything with set jaws and clenched flats and flerce effort, soon becomes strained and vio-lent, a prolonged nervous upgam.

HOW GEORGIE WENT TO THE MOON.

By Susan Wilbur Dwight.

Georgie was a little boy who want-ed to know about "things." One summer evening he was sitting beside his mamma on a comfortable wicker sofa on their plazza. The house was very large, and stood on a hill facing the west.

The big, red sun had set, and all the The big, red sun had set, and all the sky was bright with beautiful shades of gay pink, and soft red, and little streaks of green, and the blue above the sunset colors was very clear and fair, and was showing one first little star peeping down at Georgie. There was a shining young moon up there, too. It was all very interesting.

"Mamma, if the moon should sud-"why, I don't know, dear, I'm sure, said mamma, hesitating a little. "I is not likely to fall down, Georgie." "It

"Why not, mamma?" "Because it is held in its place by great force—the influence and at-traction of this earth, and the sun."

Georgie did not seem satisfied by her answer, so he added: "It is just as if there were strong ropes which tied the moon in its path, long ropes from the big sun, and long ropes fro earth-only we can't see them. from this

"But, mamma, couldn't God cut those ropes?" "Yes, dear, but I do not think He will."

Georgie was silent a minute or two and sat leaning against mamma's arm, blinking at the twinkling, friend-ly little star, which was being joined by others, coming out of the blue. The moon smiled cheerfully at Georgie

"Mamma, wouldn't it be funny if there were people and churches in the moon, and some little moon-man should come and ask papa to preach there to them? Then you and could go with him, and see all things, and maybe see this house from up there." Mamma

Mamma smiled. She was used the fanciful ideas of her small 1 A few minutes afterwards Geo to boy. Georgie heard a little sound, and turning his head he saw a beautiful, golden-col-ored balloon, with pink and red streamers attached to it. They talked a few minutes, and then his papa said to Georgie and his mamma, very quietly, as if it were nothing unusual at all:

"I am going in this car, with this gentleman, to make an address at the Moon Church, so if you would like to so with us, get ready at once."

Georgie scarcely dared look at his mamma; he felt so sure she would shake her head. She would snake ner head. Sne was a dear mamma, but so afraid of everything that was any fun, and he did want to go so much. He was quite sure, too, papa would not take him alone. Then the polite little man "cast off." and up they want. Oh, how pretty it was! He had often watched the Fourth of July fire balloons float up to the sky, and wondered what it would be ike, and now he was really on a big balloon himself on his way to the shining moon. His kind papa saw his happy little face and pointed out some of the things in the town they had left just as Georgie had always thought he would if they ever took such a trip. "There's the top of our house, Georgie, and there's the church and the water-tower and the reservoir. See how the water shines! Just like a piece of silver in the moonlight!" Georgie thought his trip was nicer, ev-en than Christmas or the Fourth of July.

"Why, papa," he said. "what is this shining all around us' said the

"Oh, it's not far," said the man. "Why, we are thinking of running ex-cursion ballo.s this summer. This balloon, though," he said, proudly, balloon, though," he sild, proudly, "has run a thousand miles a second, only you did not realize it any more than you do the motion of the earth when you are on it." They had come to a large landing place and carefully stepped out of the car, when it came to rest.

"Everything shines so!" said Georgle. They turned to go to the street, when suddenly Georgia remembered he had left his kitten which had followed him into the car on board, and he was afraid she might be lost or fall So he turned back to the car and out. out. So he turned back to the car and leaned over the side to sedze the prec-dout "Muffy." She had crept under the seat, so he leaned way over and reached her-and over, and over-she must have hidden under something, he thought Suddenh to foll himself thought Suddenly he felt himself lifted back, and mamma's voice said

"You were just leaning over the seat, dear, and I was afraid you would fall."

"I am trying to get Muffy, mamma: she is under the car seat, and I can't reach her," he said, sleepily. "The car seat!" said mamma, laugh-

CHURCH OPENING, ELVA, MAN.

Though Presbyterianism in Elva and the parts adjacent is about 25 years old, dating from the student days of Rev. W. M. Rochester, now of the L.D.A., who labored here in 1883, yet strange to say, the congregation never had a church till this year. They worshipped at first in private houses, rented the Methodist Cnurch here for some years, moved from there to a school house and from there to a hall. On October 20th, 1908, Rev. J. M. Kellock was settled here, and on October 20th, 1909, the contractors were paid in full for the church which with furniture cost nearly $6,000, and carries a debt on all of not more than $700. The church is laid out on the rectan-gular Gothic plan, with buttressed tower and belfry. There is a full-sized basement for Sunday school work, heating chamber and church kitchen. The main entrance is made to the auditorium of the church by the large door in the tower. The church proper auditorium of the church by the large door in the tower. The church proper is 53 feet by 33, with sloping floor and circular scating, of quartered oak to match the floor plan. The windows are pointed Gothic, and there is re-cessed scating for the choir stalls. The pulpit for the speaker is brought well into the church by making accoustics well-nigh perfect. The building in-cluding ceiling is finished throughout in natural wood. The main part of the basein natural wood. The main part of a church is of brick veneer. The base-ment solid concrete. #### DR. MYERS AND "THE PRO-FESSOR."

Myers, the new pastor at Rev. Dr. fremont Temple, seems to have no use for 'the new religion' of which ex-Pres. Ellot is the alleged author. In his first sermon at the Temple Dr. Myers said:

Myers said: "Men talk about the new religion. There never will be again in this world such a thing as a new religion. The new roligion is as old as infidelity and its author is the father of lies. It would drive the supernatural out of the world. It would take your Bible supercontent out without eaven a shudand cast it into the fire. It bows Jesus Christ out without even a shud-der, and with just as much howling and blaspheming as the mob had at the foot of His cross. It even puts an interrogation mark after the name of God Almighty himself.

TO FRESHEN BREAD.

When a large quantity of home-made bread has been baked at one time, some of it, if kept long, is sure to become hard and unappetizing. This can be made as good as new by a very simple method. Dip the loaf in cold water, put it in a pan in the oven, and bake until it is heated through. After it has been taken out, wrap it in a damp cloth, and when cold it will be quite as good as when first baked. first baked.

If hot bread is desired for breakfast, the above method may be used for re-heating. Bread muffins, and rolls reheated in this way are just as appetizing and are said to be more healthful than freshly-baked hot breads. Certainly, less time and trouble are neces-sary to serve hot bread by this me-thod than to mix and bake it fresh.— Farm and Fireside.

The man hardest to convince of sin is the one who never doubted it.

"The keynote of the convention was loyalty to God and the Church. Its most noticeable feature was not size, though it was larger than the General Assembly; nor was it eloquence, though the speeches, both prepared and extempore, were fine. It was the spirit of earnest determination to do, and find out how to do better the work of the Church." Herald and Preputer.
