FIGURES DO LIE.

Prices are only Relative

REGAL ENGINES are the highest priced engines, yet they are the cheapest.

They are the highest priced engines because they cost more to build. They are the cheapest engines, because they will last twice as long as any other engine.

They are also the cheapest engines because they save your time, and "Time is money."

If you shut your eyes to this real bargain in engines, you will be the sorriest fisherman who ever signed an order.

You will lose more money than you can afford to lose, and your oil bills will be twice as large.

REGAL ENGINES use less oil, have more power, run with less trouble and give more genuine satisfaction than any other engine on the market.

We are, in the near future, going to ask all cash for REGAL ENGINES, so buy one before we make this change, as we intend to make them the "Hall Mark" engines of Newfoundland.

We ship REGAL ENGINES complete with full book of instructions, and when once installed in your boat, any child can run one.

REGAL ENGINES are higher priced than other engines, but are the cheapest in the long run, because they run the longest.

Within the next few weeks you are going to buy a new Spring Suit—that's certain. Perhaps to-day, perhaps to-morrow, perhaps in a month—but you're going to buy it.

We think you ought to know why it's wise to "Do it now." The best reason is that our stocks are complete—you're bound to get more style satisfaction out of a broad choice than a narrow one—you get the broad choice now—you may not get it later.

This is why we invite your inspection of the stylish patterns now on hand.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY. (By Harold McGrath.)

Cloth 60c; if mailed, 2c. more. At the foundation of the plot of this exciting mystery story, there is a secret organization in Russia. Then are given glimpses of country house society, the modern boarding-school, the fashionable restaurant, the enterprising twentieth century newspaper reporter, the romance and mystery that may be linked together by two halves of a bracelet, the love of a father for his daughter, the devotion of an old family servant, the intrigues of a band of thieves and blackmailers and plenty of the old love that is always new, not to mention the million dollars about which the whole thing revolves and which, in these times, has an especially pleasing ring. All these result in a story that keeps the reader with pulsing tingling.

CHAPTER XLV.

Ralph had staggered from the bench and into the magistrate's room. From Green's significant words, "We have found the name of the deceased's husband," Ralph knew that the desperate game he was playing was finished, and that he had lost. There was nothing for it now but flight. Behind him was the hangman with hot feet and trailing rope, before him only the faintest chance of escape.

With trembling hand he seized the jug of water from the table, and pouring some into his hands, dashed it across his forehead; for he felt sick and faint with terror; then he left the room by the private door. He was not a moment too soon, for, at a sign from the superintendent, a police officer in plain clothes had followed him; but the moment, short as it was, was of all importance to Ralph; for almost in that short space of time he found himself in the midst of a wild, excited crowd which surged against the court-house in an utterly futile attempt to enter and participate in the sensational incidents which were proceeding there.

Ralph, bending his head, skirted the howling mass and made for one of the small streets leading to the station.

As he went across the square, he heard the howls change to wild, tumultuous cheering, and guessed the cause. The prisoner was acquitted, the man he had instinctively hated was free, free to step in his—Ralph's—place. He was no longer a suspected criminal, and it was Ralph who was flying from justice.

He set his teeth hard and hurried on. At the end of the lane, which was absolutely deserted, he paused, and with his hand to his brow, strove to realize his well-nigh hopeless situation, and form some plan.

To go to the station would be madness, for the detective would have been certain to place a policeman waiting to arrest him. Besides, barring a few pounds, he had no money, and without money escape was impossible.

He must go back to the Hall. But there also he would doubtless find a detective waiting to pounce upon him. And yet, money he must have. There was about a couple of hundred pounds in the safe in his room, and his jewellery, which was worth a fairly large sum; for, like most vain men, Ralph had been liberal to himself in the matter of diamond pins and rings and similar gewgaws.

As he stood pondering, he heard the sound of horses' feet, and his heart leapt with swift terror; but, to his relief, one of his own grooms turned the corner with a couple of horses he was exercising. Ralph jumped at the chance offered him, and signing to the man to pull up, said:

"This is fortunate. I have to go to Roysdale Station. Give me your horse, and ride on the other to the court, and tell Lord Hatherley where I have gone. He will understand. Is—is anyone waiting for me at the Hall?" he asked, as he sprang into the saddle.

"No, my lord; not that I know of, and I've just come straight from home," replied the man.

Ralph nodded. "Remember, Roysdale Station. I have to meet someone there." The man touched his hat and rode off, and Ralph turned his horse homeward.

He entered the park by one of the side gates, tied up the horse, and keeping within the shadow of the trees as much as possible, gained the Hall by the window of his den. With frenzied haste he unlocked the safe and took out the bundle of notes; then he went, forcing himself to walk slowly, through the hall and up to his dressing-room.

There he met Parkins face to face. The man started at the sight of his master's pallid countenance, and exclaimed:

"Anything—anything the matter, my lord? Are you ill?"

"No, no," replied Ralph. "But I've had bad news. A near relative is—is ill—dying—and I must go to London at once. Pack a portmanteau. I'll help you."

"Yes, my lord. Shall I order the carriage?"

"No, no—I mean I have ordered it. Here, I'll help you. Get a box of cigars from my room; and, Parkins, you need not say anything to the other servants."

"No, my lord. Might I venture to ask the news from the court?"

"Committed for trial," said Ralph, hurriedly. "He's guilty, of course. Look sharp!"

Parkins ran down, and Ralph quickly collected the most valuable of his jewellery and put it into his pocket. Then he went down-stairs by the back way, so as not to meet Parkins, and waited in the passage behind the hall until he heard the man ascend again.

It would take Parkins half an hour to pack. By that time, Ralph, mounted on a good horse—and the one he had left tied up at the gate was one of the best—he would be well on his way to the junction.

He was passing through his den, when a bottle of brandy caught his attention. He paused, and not seeing a glass, drank a draught from the bottle itself. The spirits added fuel to his excitement, and he laughed with a kind of hysteria as he thought that, after all, he stood a chance. How many murderers had escaped arrest during the last twelve months? He would go to London and stay there—only fools ran their necks into a noose by attempting to leave one of the ports. In that human beehive he could hide until a chance of quitting the country presented itself.

He said this to himself as he slipped a revolver into his pocket and drank some more brandy; then he opened the window—and saw Workley running across the lawn, his face white and set—a human sleuth-hound on the warm track!

THE HEIR OF Lancewood

CHAPTER I.

She spoke to him with a kind of half-distant, half-reserved familiarity, that showed plainly enough that she did not consider him on an equality with herself. He seemed to feel and understand it, and his face flushed slightly as he replied—

"It is always a pleasure to obey you, Miss Neslie."

"Then pray let me have Browning at once. I have but an hour's leisure; I must not lose it in talking."

Again his face flushed. He waited until he could speak plainly, and then, producing a letter, he said—

"The post-bag was delayed this morning; I have only just opened it. Sir Arthur has written to me—and this is for you."

She fancied there was something strange in his manner—something of hesitation and uncertainty. Then she took from his hands the letter which was to change the whole course of her life.

"It is from Sir Arthur," she said, quickly—"a letter from my father! How cruel of the post to delay this morning, above all others!"

She opened the envelope with impatient fingers, wondering why the young secretary lingered there, looking at her with such strange eyes.

"What a long letter," she said, laughing. "This extends to over a page; Sir Arthur seldom writes more than four lines."

"Let me find you a seat," he proposed, "while you read it. You will be tired of standing."

Still with the same strange expression on his face, he brought one of the little garden-chairs to her, and she sat down.

"Why do you not go for my book?" she asked, with laughing impatience. "There may be a message for me in that letter, Miss Neslie," he replied. "Permit me to remain while you read it."

She sat down where the faint, sweet odor of the lilies floated round her, where the cooling of the white doves reached her, and read the words that darkened her whole life.

"My Dearest Vivien.—Writing, as you know, always fatigues me; I detest it. But I have something to tell you which will astonish you greatly—perhaps even anger you.

"It will be foolish of you, Vivien, to be angry, for I have perfect and undisputed right to please myself; no one else has any right to take umbrage or offense at what I do.

"I feel a certain degree of reluctance in making my announcement—why, I cannot tell. You would wish me to be happy, and I have sought happiness after my own fashion. Vivien, I have married again. My wife is a beautiful young French girl—her name was Valerie d'Este; she is very piquant, attractive, graceful. You will be sure to admire her. We were married in Paris, and intend returning home next Tuesday.

"Now, Vivien, remember that being angry and vexed about it is simply a waste of time; I had a right to please myself, and I have done so. If this wife were to die, it would be no one's affair should I marry a third. Tell Mr. Spenser to have the rooms in the western wing set in order and prepared for Lady Neslie. Tell all the household of the change, and see that my wife is received with due honor and respect.

"One word to yourself, Vivien. What is done is done. If you are wise, instead of battling with the tide of events, you will swim with it. From you, my daughter, I shall expect love, kindness, affection, attention and consideration for my wife. If you show all this, well and good; if you refuse it, you will see the result. Meet me with a smile, Vivien; let me hear no reproaches.

"I had a right to please myself. Your whole future will depend on your treatment of Lady Neslie.

"My fondly-loved daughter, adieu. We shall be with you on Tuesday, and hope to find all things well.

"ARTHUR NESLIE."

She read the letter slowly, and then turned back and read it again. The young secretary watched her intently. He saw the color fade from her face, the light die from her eyes; he saw her lips grow white, as they had never been before; he watched her curiously, keenly, for he would have given his life to save her from pain.

Suddenly, with an angry gesture, she rose from her seat, a crimson flush spreading over her face; she flung the letter on the ground at her feet.

"I will not believe it!" she cried. "It is a forgery! My father never wrote that."

He made no reply; his pity and his love were so great that they made him speechless.

"Read it!" she commanded. "Read it, Gerald Dorman, and tell me if I am mad or sane!"

He took up the letter.

"Do you really wish me to read this, Miss Neslie?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied, slowly. "I cannot believe it. My eyes, my senses must have deceived me; the words I have seen cannot possibly be written there. Read it, and tell me if the news be true."

He read the letter. She stood watching him with a bewildered, dazed look, with white parted lips and darkened eyes. Then he laid it down on the sun-dial, and turning to her, said—

"It is quite true, Miss Neslie. I knew it when I brought this letter to you."

"You knew it?" she cried. How?"

"Sir Arthur wrote to tell me. I received his letter this morning, and I felt sure that yours contained the same intelligence. It was for that reason I ventured to disobey you and remain here instead of looking for the book."

"Then it is true," she moaned; "my father has a wife—some one in my mother's place. I—I cannot believe it, Mr. Dorman. Why, only ten minutes since I was thinking of all I would persuade him to do—and now I find he has a wife. He has been all the world to me—as I have been to him; and now he has a wife. The love and the home that have been mine so long will be mine no more."

"Nay, Miss Neslie," said the calm, pitying voice, "it will not be so bad as that. You are, and always will be, heiress of Lancewood. The Abbey will always be your home, unless—"

Then he stopped and hesitated.

"Unless my father should have a son to succeed him, in which case Lancewood would never be mine," she said, slowly. "Half an hour since, Mr. Dorman, I thought myself as certainly heiress of Lancewood as that the sun shone in the sky."

NO MORE CORNS

SOLACE.
It little takes to heal the aches of people who are human; the songs of birds, at day-break heard, will cheer a weeping woman; a kindly act performed with tact will make some man less bitter; a friendly smile will quell the bile of some disgusted critter. Where'er I go I find that we are always up and doing, and careworn chumps have doleful dumps, their little griefs pursuing. This view they gain from years of strain and stress and long endeavour, they seem to think that on the blink all things will be forever. But when I come I make things hum, with joke and whiskered story; I always preach that life's a peach, the world all hunky-dory. And it beats all how gloom will fall, when anyone defies it; if you would scare away dull care, just show that you despise it. The things I say, though lame and gray, from alms-houses collected, make jaded men wear grins again, and brace up the dejected. So every gent who's worth a cent should preach the gospel sunny, and take men's minds from sordid grinds, and scratching after money.

AGENTS,
HARVEY & Co., Limited,

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:-

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, July 10.
 The Governor, Newfoundland: In Southwest Africa, the surrendered force comprises 204 officers, and 3,166 men; 37 field guns and 20 machine guns were also captured. General French reports the enemy counter-attacks on trenches recently captured, were successively stopped by French and English artillery. The night has been a steady rain along the Canal, thus extending our gains. The enemy losses were severe. The Russian Government report their offensive extended near Lublin, and the number of prisoners increased to over fifteen thousand. A Turkish force from Yemen has invaded the Aden hinterland. BONAR LAW.

GERMANS EVACUATE TRENCHES.
PETROGRAD, July 11.
 On the front of the Vistula, the Germans, on the night of July 9 evacuated the last trenches which they had from us, covering the evacuation with a hurricane of fire.

WAR OFFICE OFFICIAL.
PARIS, July 11.
 The following official statement was issued by the War Office last night: Belgian troops repulsed last night an attack on a point of support on the right bank of the Yser, an important strategic point. A sudden attack by us has made a master in Champagne of a German outlook post, the occupants of which were killed or dispersed. In the region of the Meuse the bombardment of the enemy was directed against Salpigny. An inventory of material taken by us at Fontenelle establishes the fact that the enemy kept in mind that any cannon, four machine guns, two bomb throwers, a great number of rifles, a large quantity of ammunition, oxygen apparatus, designed as a protection against gas, and a depot of grenades and cartridges of different type. There has been no activity by the enemy in the region of the Vosges.

NO MORE WAR NEWS.
HALIFAX, July 11.
 No other war news.

BOMBARDMENT OF ALEXANDRIA.
PARIS, July 11.
 The French Ministry of Marine has issued a statement announcing the bombardment of Alexandria (near Smyrna) by a French battleship. The statement says: The German Consul at Alexandria having taken no notice of our action on May 27th, the French battleship bombarded the Consulate, and having rehoisted the German flag, a French battleship again bombarded the Consulate carrying away the flag. Precautions had been taken in order that no other houses should be hit.

INDIAN PRISONERS OF WAR ESCAPE.
LONDON, July 11.
 The story of the remarkable escape of 100 Indian prisoners of war, who escaped from Constantinople and reached Afghanistan after a four months' march is told in a letter received here from the firm with whom the Pathans, formed part of the Indian army fighting in Flanders. They were captured by Germans and taken to Constantinople. In the letter says that being Mohammedans, they might be induced to join the Turks. With unwavering loyalty the Pathans finally succeeded in eluding their guards and in reaching Persia. They travelled along the northern route through Sumatra, country and arrived at the Afghanistan capital. They are now on their way to join their regimental depot in India.

COMMENT ON GERMAN REPLY.
BERLIN, July 11.
 Commenting on the German reply to the Morning Post says the answer is in every way worthy of Germany. It shows the calm of a good conscience, willingness to lessen the fearfulness of war as far as possible, an upright wish to live in peace with America, but it also expresses the firm wish not to abate one jot or tittle of Germany's rights. The answer clearly shows that the responsibility for the form of submarine warfare rests on Great Britain.

NINE BOMBS FOUND ON STEAMER.
NEW YORK, July 11.
 Nine bombs were found aboard the steamer Kirkoswald at Marselles when the vessel attempted to discharge its cargo of sugar from New York on her last outward voyage. None of the bombs exploded. The sugar was taken aboard, the officers said, at the Fabre Line Pier in Brooklyn.

SUBMARINE VICTIMS.
LONDON, July 11.
 The British steamer Ellersley was shelled, torpedoed and sunk to-day by a German submarine off the Cornish coast. Her crew of 21 with the exception of a Norwegian fireman who was killed by a shell, was saved. The Italian steamer Clio and the Norwegian steamer Nordals were torpedoed and sunk to-day by German submarines. The members of the crew were saved.

MINNEHAHA SAILS AGAIN.
HALIFAX, July 11.
 The Minnehaha sailed this afternoon. The fire is completely extinguished and the port wardens in examination found no bombs on board. Fifty tons of cargo was removed and left behind.

THE LONDON BUDGET.
LONDON, July 11.
 The check which the Russians have imposed in Southern Poland, and the additional strain which it has placed on General von Mackensen's army to the right has postponed, it is believed, in military circles here, the threatened German offensive on the west, and there is now a possibility of the Allies being the first to take the offensive. In support of this it is pointed out that the attacks by the German Crown Prince's army in Wewre, which the German press announced were the commencement of a general move forward have ceased. What fighting that is now going on along the western front consists of artillery engagements and a few isolated attacks and counter-attacks by infantry which make little or no difference in the positions of the opposing forces. The British, according to a French report, repulsed a German attack. German reports, however, referring to this British attack, says it was repulsed under Russian fire. Reports from neutral sources are to the effect that to make good their efforts against the Russians, the Germans are moving troops, which were intended for the western front, to the eastern front. To a certain extent this seems confirmed by a statement in a Russian official report that reinforcements have reached Archduke Joseph Ferdinand and that General von Mackensen has also commenced the offensive, which, however, broke down under Russian fire. While military critics are still undecided whether the Russians will make a stand on their present lines or fall back to the Bug-River, thus abandoning the fortresses of Inavogorod and Warsaw, they have agreed that counter-attack which they have hitherto had postponed, for a time at least, the necessity for any further retirement.

The Oporto Market.

The appended has just been received by the Board of Trade, sent by Messrs. Lind and Couto to Oporto: "The high prices recently obtained in this market have had the effect of attracting large quantities of codfish and the supplies are now sufficient. At the present values the demand is very limited and if any accumulation of stocks takes place the consumption will be encouraged by the lowering of prices. At this time of year, the heat prevents holding fish long in the stores. The new Norwegian cure has come into the market but the price asked is too high for the buyers. The Norwegian shippers have lately been getting such high prices for their fish that they seem to forget there is a limit beyond which the consumer cannot go. We look for a steady if reduced demand for Newfoundland fish during the coming season and if the market is not overloaded no doubt we shall be able to maintain good prices."

An Attractive Program.

The friends of Mount Cashel will have their annual opportunity to assist the fine work of the Institution by attending the Garden Party on Wednesday, 23rd inst. It is intended to have this year's programme of attractions surpass all others to date. The best of our long distance runners are in training for the road race, whilst the ball players of both our summer games are looking forward to an enjoyable day.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.
 "The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—who should also keep in mind that any trouble saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household. Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the instantaneous or Circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water upstairs, downstairs, and in my lady's chamber,—without any labour at all,—independently of the state of the kitchen fire. The cost is reasonable.

FOR THE BATHROOM.
 An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance. Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to set as stoker, but at what a cost! Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the after-labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather! Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no fires to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove. The master of the house has hot shaving water and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.
 When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force. But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irrefragable appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem. After-day domestic work is difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toil of carrying hot water or coal upstairs, the cleaning of grates and the removal of dirt and ashes. The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12.1f

Our Volunteers.

Stephen J. Rodgers, of St. John's, enlisted with the Reserve Force on Saturday last, which makes a total of 2,046 enrolled to-date. The men spent Saturday morning at extended drill, and in the afternoon a squad had rifle practice at the Southside Range. Before being dismissed the men received their fortnightly pay. Yesterday morning the regular church parade was held at the Methodist Church, St. Thomas's and Gower Street Church, respectively.

VICTIMIZING HIS MOTHER.

A 14-year-old lad was arrested Saturday night under warrant, charged with stealing a sum of money from his mother. The parent complained that her son had been frequently taking money from her, that she could get no good of him and she adopted this new course of trying to get him to mend his ways. Minard's Linctant Cures Diphtheria.

Amusements.

"THE DREAM GIRL."
 The two reel feature that the Crescent Picture Palace is showing to-day is a great Selig success, a photo play full of thrills and romance. Beautiful Bessie Eytan and Tom Santisch are the principals, supported by a strong company in this great drama. "The Mexican" is the story of a Mexican's courageous revenge. "A Study in Big Feet," the whole story is interpreted by the feet of the players. "Jones' Wedding Day" is a roaring Kalem Comedy featuring John E. Brennan. No one should miss seeing this great picture programme at the Crescent to-day.

"THE HEART BOWED DOWN" AT THE NICKEL TO-DAY.

"The Heart Bowed Down" is the great attraction at the Nickel Theatre this evening. Forbes Law Duguid will sing it, and every lover of good will sing it, and every lover of good it. This well known song is very popular in St. John's and when sung by such an artist as Mr. Duguid, will appeal to it. Everyone should make an effort to hear it. The pictures are high class. "Our Mutual Girl" will meet a celebrated artist at to-day's episode. Then there are two two-reel films. "The Floating Call" which is a melo-drama and "Whatsoever a Woman Soweth," a great social drama. There will also be a Keystone comedy entitled "The Anglers." The presentation of the colors to the Nfld. Regiment at St. John's Camp will be shown at the Nickel shortly.

BRITISH THEATRE.

Another splendid programme will be offered to patrons of the above popular house commencing with the afternoon performance to-day. The feature photo-play is a most powerful production in two parts by the renowned Lubin Co. "The Living Pearl." This is a society drama of surpassing merit. A remarkably pretty story: "The Green Rose" is interpreted by such favourites as Alice Joyce and Tom Moore and is sure to be greatly enjoyed by their many admirers. George Ade, the great humorist, will again be to the fore with another of his clever satires and "effects" will be added thus giving the photo-plays a more realistic touch. Miss Elsie Tanner and Arthur Brisbane and Cameron will also be there as usual.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

There is a very special programme provided for to-night at this popular little theatre. The pictures are of the very best and carefully selected. A charming Irish song in character costume by two sweet little singers. A good show to please all patrons and the price within the reach of all.

After passing down the boulevard people cannot cross at the head of the pond.

The War Loan.
Saturday last was the day on which the lists of subscriptions for the British War Loan were closed. Last week the estimates of what would be subscribed varied very considerably. These estimates went all the way from two thousand million dollars to three and a half thousand millions. It is difficult to realize the extent of the last estimate. It may help us to do so if we compare it with the National Debt of Britain before the great war began.
The total gross debt on 31st March, 1914, was £707,654,110. But there were a number of assets of a nature which could easily be converted into cash to set against this: £24,929,000 of Suez Canal shares; other assets, £3,350,578; credit balance of Exchequer £10,434,519, making a total of what are virtually best assets of £48,717,097, leaving the amount of the debt of £658,940,013. If the most sanguine of the estimates of the McKenna War Loan are realized, then the subscriptions will aggregate as much as the gross National Debt on March 31st, 1914 and, exceed the Net National Debt. This will help us to realize the extent of the calls which are being made on investors to finance this war.
One hundred years ago, at the close of the Napoleonic Wars, the National Debt was £900,000,000. The Crimean War added £33,000,000, and the South African War £162,000,000, making in all about £1,195,000,000. During the last hundred years about £476,000,000 was paid off, leaving the Net Debt before the present War at £659,000,000. This total amount of £1,195,000,000 was the aggregate National Debt brought about by the struggles of the Dutch Wars in the time of Charles II., the French Wars, from the time of William of Orange, the Duke of Marlborough, to the fall of Napoleon and the small wars of the Nineteenth Century.
The burden of this War is so great that the National Debt will be doubled, if the War last till next summer. In spite of the immense and unprecedented borrowing, money is cheaper than it was after the battle of Waterloo, showing the immense strain which the resources of Great Britain will stand without reaching the stress of the last days of the Napoleonic times.

Little Fish North.
The S.S. Can't Lose returned from the Northward, Saturday evening, having in tow a new motor boat which was recently constructed at Salvage, B.B., for the F. P. U. Mr. J. Stone, M.H.A., who came on the steamer reports that the shore fishery north thus far is virtually a failure. At a great many places there is not enough fish caught for the fishermen and their families to eat. This applies positively to Trinity Bay points which were visited. At a few places in Bonavista and Trinity Bays traps do a little occasionally but hook and liners are doing nothing.

Fishery Report.
King's Cove.—Traps 2 to 5 qtls.; hook and line blank; caplin plentiful.
Lawn.—Traps from 5 to 25 qtls.; dorries from 1 to 2 qtls. with nets; plenty caplin.

Hr. Grace.—Traps 1 to 3 qtls.; hook and line nil.

Topics of the Street.
The Sun Life has acquired the habit of doing things in a big way, of doing them at the logical moment and of dressing them up in the proper regalia to attract the attention they deserve.
The latest instance of this is in its $1,000,000 subscription to the British war loan. This combines good business with patriotism, and there are several other ways it is liable to redound to the benefit of the company. It is not hard to understand why the Macaulays have made the Sun Life one of the most conspicuous assurance concerns in the Empire.

RUSSIANS ON OFFENSIVE.
BERLIN, July 11.—A despatch from Vienna, the foremost strategic point along the Krassin line. The Austrians have brought forward strong reinforcements, probably from the front and are making repeated attacks. Archduke Joseph Ferdinand has the task of holding the Russians. Additional battles, says the despatch, are to be expected. The front is predicted between Vistula and Bug Rivers.

ARCHDUKE FERDINAND.
LONDON, July 11.—The defeat of Archduke Ferdinand undoubtedly alters the situation in the Balkans, says the Times' correspondent, a warning note in military circles against jubilation. It is pointed out, however, that the Russian army holds a thousand square miles can be regarded as fact of isolated importance. Archduke's defeat followed the cessation of his final retreat. He threw into the fray a number of Bystritzja, hoping thereby to paralyze the Russian advance. Urzendorf and north of Wisla to smash the Russians on both banks of the Bystritz. NO SURRENDER BY AMERICA.
WASHINGTON, July 11.—The formal study of the office of Germany's Reply to the American Note on submarine warfare, affects neutral rights, strengthens the conviction of high officials that the most critical point in the relations between the two countries has been reached. Not only do they feel that the United States must refuse to accept the German proposals for the high seas, but the failure of Germany to dissolve the submarine war, with the loss of more than 100 Americans in their boats, has brought on the outbreak which it is difficult to see how to foresee. There will be no week indicated. The official German reply was made yesterday. It differed only in unimportant words from the one published in the Press copy which came to Berlin on Friday night. In all the means of expressing the idiosyncrasies of the American Government will be doubtful, largely in the sense of the purposes of the United States not yet been decided. It was a failure to indicate that the German would be no surrender of its acceptance of the German proposal to guarantee immunity to American ships under the arrangements agreed upon by naval authorities of the two countries, concerning marking of neutral ships. There is no intention from indications of special quarters to force the situation whatever policy is followed. American endeavour will be to place full responsibility on Germany for any subsequent rupture in its relations.

Don't Bury the Hatchet.

By RUTH CAMERON.

To blaze out and demand an explanation when anyone hurts you or treats you unjustly may not be an ideal way to act. But it seems to me it is much better than to bury the hurt in your own heart and let it fester.

It's a fine thing if you don't bury it in soil where it will take root and raise a crop of silent dislike and resentment.

A Blind Abscess of the Mind.

In a medical article on bodily ills caused by mental and spiritual disturbances, I read the other day a most interesting story of a man who had come to the verge of insanity through what might well be called a blind abscess of the mind.

His wife had a habit of saying sharp things to him. He was one of those quiet men who hate recriminations and family brawls more than anything in the world. In order to avoid such scenes he held his peace. He never said anything, but he thought a great deal. All the sharp things that he didn't answer were buried in his heart and festered there. Finally he came almost to hate his wife, and the hidden hatred actually poisoned his whole life. He was on the verge of insanity when the doctor discovered the trouble, and advised him to make a clean breast of things to his wife.

Seems More Like a Woman.

It is difficult for me to imagine a man doing a thing like that. It seems much more like a woman than a man.

Man's natural instinct is to resent anything he doesn't like promptly and vigorously. It seems more what would happen to a woman, and I can't help wondering if the doctor may not have reversed the sexes to make his patient's incognito safer.

However, that's a side issue. The point I wanted to emphasize was the harm that can be done by thrusting grievances down inside one to fester.

Put It Out of Your Mind.

Of course if you can forgive an unkindness or injustice in silence, put it out of your mind and forget it, that's the finest and healthiest way to treat it. But you must be sure to thrust it out of your mind not down into it, and it takes a pretty big person to do that.

When the doctor has an abscess to treat he heats it if he can, operates on it if he must; but the one thing he doesn't do is to cover it up and leave it to poison the system. Heal your resentment if you can, operate on it by having it out with the offender if you must; but don't cover it up and leave it to poison your heart and mind.

Narrow Escape.

A stoker was leaning against the railing of his ship in the harbour Saturday evening when a parcel was being thrown to him by another man, who was in a boat alongside. In an effort to catch it, the stoker lost his balance and went overboard. He was unable to swim and after struggling for quite a while was rescued in an exhausted condition.

A Prophetic Poem.

Rupert Brooke Foreshadowed Death in Last Work.

A couple of years ago a romantic-looking young chap, with rye cheeks and a tremendous sombrero hat, drifted into a few Canadian cities and was introduced as one of the poets of the younger English school. Rupert Brooke was undoubtedly a real poet. Now and again he left an autograph volume of his verse among friends as he travelled about; then he went back to England to write his last poem. When the war broke out the young poet went aboard a warship in the naval brigade that went to the relief of Antwerp last fall. Afterwards he drifted on a warship down to the Dardanelles, where he died of sunstroke, just about the time that an almost prophetic and very colored poem of his appeared in New Numbers. This little poem is chockful of tender sentiment, and it well proves that in a struggle like this the highest emotions of a free patriot people are roused to action that leaves the pen and shoulders the rifle. This is the poem:

If I should die, think only this of me: That there's some corner of a foreign field That is forever England. There shall be In that rich earth a richer dust concealed; A dust whom England bore, shaped, made aware, Gave, once, her flowers to love, her ways to roam. A body of England's, breathing English air, Washed by the rivers, blest by suns of home.

And think, this heart, all evil shed away, A pulse in the eternal mind, no less Gives somewhere back the thoughts by England given; Her sights and sounds; dreams, happy as her day; And laughter, learnt of friends; and gentleness, In hearts at peace, under an English heaven.

One way of lessening housekeeping cares in summer is to do away with window curtains and use only shades. It saves both washing and trouble when sudden storms come and curtains are apt to be soaked.

Fight With Giant Turk.

Wounded Officer Holds Him by the Ear Till Lifeless.

Cairo, June 8.—In connection with the statement made by a Turkish officer to an Australian officer during the armistice at Gaba Tepe on May 23rd, that the Turks bore no ill feeling against the British, but that as soldiers they had to obey, the following incidents related to Reuter's correspondent by a senior staff officer are worthy of record:—

The Turkish losses on the peninsula up to May 22nd, were estimated by the military authorities at 55,000. Taking into account our own heavy losses in the Krichia fighting on June 3 and 4, the Turkish casualties must now amount to at least 70,000.

A stirring tale is told of an Australian lieutenant who volunteered to go out with a small party one night to blow up a Turkish trench. Having to beat a hasty retreat, the lieutenant took refuge in a Gurkha trench and amused himself for some time by returning hand grenades to the enemy. One, however, exploded as he picked it up, and blew off his right hand. He received a first field dressing, and was sitting up in the trench nursing the stump when the Turks made a rush. He suddenly perceived a huge Turk leaning over him with the bayonet. Quick as lightning he drew a kukri from the hand of a dead Turk, lying by him, and slashed at the Turk, wounding him in the neck. The Turk fell over him, bespattering him with blood, and the officer, grappling with the man with his left arm, embedded his teeth in the ear of his assailant, and thus held him for ten minutes till assistance arrived. By then, however, the Turk was lifeless.—Reuter's Special.

YACHT ZARA ARRIVES.—The American steam yacht Zara, with Mr. and Mrs. Levering and party of New York, arrived at Port aux Basques yesterday afternoon and left again this morning for St. George's. On the way from New York the yacht called at Gloucester, Bar Harbor, Shelburne N.S., and Halifax. We understand the party will spend a few weeks fishing in the rivers of the West Coast before returning to New York.

If you are so unfortunate as to be without fly screens, you can keep the flies out of the house by pulling the lower sash of the windows down to within two inches of the bottom and pulling the shade down even with the window. The flies do not like the dark and will creep out through the crack. This should be done as early in the morning as possible.

Outlook for War Hopeful, says Sir Thos.

President of C. P. R. Back From England, is interviewed in New York.

New York, July 2.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, returned to-day from England on the White Star Liner Lapland, after spending a month in London conferring with Lord Kitchener and members of the Cabinet on the question of war supplies from Canada.

"I hold no official position," Sir Thomas said, "and the purchase of war munitions and supplies is in the hands of David A. Thomas, who will arrive here soon."

"There was some dissatisfaction among the Canadian firms regarding the awarding of the contracts by the British Government, and I went over to see the chiefs of the War Department and talk things over. There will be no trouble from now on about Canada not getting her fair share."

"Was not the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company criticized in regard to the contracts?" he was asked.

"There could be no criticism of the manner in which Morgan and Company handled the war supplies contract," he replied, "because it was understood that they would award only those in the United States."

Sir Thomas went on to say that the Canadian Pacific would act in Canada for the British Government in a similar manner to what J. P. Morgan and Company were doing in the United States, being an intermediary in the accumulation of supplies.

"It is the intention of the road's officials," he said, "to construct the manufacturing equipment of the company so that it can make any sort of material that may be called for by the War Office. The staff of the Purchasing Department will be placed at the disposition of the Government and the officials will see to the shipment of all supplies and war munitions."

"At the present time all the vessels belonging to the steamship department have been taken over by the Admiralty for carrying troops and stores and I shall arrange to charter tonnage to handle the crops, which we expect to be 25 per cent. greater than they have ever been before."

Speaking of conditions in England, Sir Thomas said there had not been such a great shortage of ammunition as had been reported, and the outlook for the war was more hopeful than people had been led to expect. The English manufacturers move a little slowly in converting their plants, but now plenty of skilled labor was coming and there would be no further delay in making and shipping war munitions.

Rheumatism, A Sneaking Disease Has At Last Met Its Conqueror

Throbbing Muscles and Swollen Joints Made Well.
NERVINE ON NERVINE.
Old age knows no foe more subtle, more unrelenting than rheumatism. At first only a grumbling pain is felt. But, alas, it settles in the joints and muscles, and finally tortures its victims.
To-day the disease may be in the muscles of the back, thigh, shoulder or neck—to-morrow in the joints of the hand, toes, arms or legs it may work with redoubled fury.
Whether the pain is constant or occasional, makes no difference to "Nervine."
Because other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged. Nervine has cured the worst of cases. It has brought health to those in the deepest despair, and ended years of awful suffering for those who never hoped to be well again.
There is a marvellous healing power in Nervine which it derives from the extracts and juices of certain rare herbs and roots. It always almost magically the awful pain that only rheumatism can describe.
Congestion is drawn out of the muscles, stiffened joints are eased and limbered up, the old time feeling of depression is cast off, and once again Nervine brings the sufferer to buoyant vigorous lasting good health.
Every home needs good old Nervine, needs it for earache, toothache, headache, neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, stiff neck, chest colds and sore throat. Wherever there is pain, congestion or inflammation, Nervine will cure it.

L. O. A. Parade.

The members of the Loyal Orange Association, numbering about 400, attended Divine Service at St. Thomas's Church yesterday afternoon. The service was an inspiring one, and the address of the Rev. Edgar Jones, Ph.D. will long be remembered by the members of the L.O.A. The singing of the anthem, Mozart's Gloria by the choir and the offertory solo by Miss Job were very pleasing. The subject of the discourse was "An Orange-man's Ancestry," and the preacher divided his subject into three parts, and dealt with it under three heads, viz., (1) Spiritual, (2) Intellectual, (3) National Freedom. In eloquent language he spoke of the spiritual and moral freedom as the basis of true religion and good citizenship. Referring to intellectual freedom he dealt with our educational system, which he thought was unsuited to the requirements of the people. In dealing with national freedom the rev. speaker made a beautiful reference to British nationalism, and to the freedom that is to be found beneath the folds of the Union Jack. He spoke of the readiness and willingness of the Empire's sons of every class and creed to rally round the flag and give their life blood in defence of the principles of justice and right for which the nation is striving. The address was a masterly one and was listened to with rapt attention by the large gathering present. The route of the parade was from Victoria Hall via Gower Street and Cochrane Street to the Church, and after the service return to the hall was made by way of Military and Queen's Roads.

Our Adult Blind.

The lecture by Mr. John Weir, advertised for to-night, promises to be one of great interest. Mr. Weir represents the well known Institute for the Blind at Halifax, the President of which, Dr. Frazer, received Knighthood on the occasion of the King's Birthday and is now Sir Frederick Frazer. Only recently Mr. Weir brought to the notice of the Women of the Patriotic Association of this city the fact that there are over three hundred blind people in Newfoundland, who, while they are given food and shelter by their friends, cannot because of their affliction be of any great use to themselves or others. The Halifax Institute has an extension fund by which blind pupils are taught to read and write in their own homes, the teachers being sent from the Institute. This explains Mr. Weir's presence in St. John's. It has been decided by the committee to canvass the entire city during the week beginning July 19th asking every woman to give the small sum of twenty cents towards this fund for the purpose of educating our own blind. Only twenty cents! To-night Mr. Weir will show a large number of pictures which will prove what blind people can be taught to do in spite of their affliction. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Davidson have graciously consented to be present. It is hoped the lecture being held in a packed hall will greet Mr. Weir.

DAINTY FOOD

Turns Pale Checks to Pink.
Our best physicians of the present day seek to cure patients by the use of food and right living, rather than heavy drugs, and this is the true method, for only from food can the body be rebuilt.
Many people after living on poorly selected or badly cooked food for a long time, and when their ailments become chronic, expect the doctor, with some magic potency, to instantly rebuild them.
This is not possible. The only true method is to turn as quickly as can be, from poor food to good. A young lady says:
"I was variously treated for my nerves, stomach, lungs, etc., but none of the treatments gave me relief.
"About a year ago when my appetite failed completely and I began to have sinking spells similar to fainting, I took all manner of tonics and stimulants, but they were of no effect. I had been brought to quit drinking coffee and taking Postum in its place and gradually began to get a little better.
"Someone suggested that if I found Postum so beneficial I had better use Grape-Nuts food, as they were both the children of one brain. I commenced on Grape-Nuts food for breakfast, having Postum with it. I found the food so dainty, delicious, and appetizing that I always looked forward to breakfast with pleasure.
"Shortly after commencing this diet, the wretched pain in my side was greatly relieved, and now, a year later, it has gone entirely, also the sinking spells; in fact, my pale cheeks have changed to pink, I have gained back more than the twenty pounds I lost, and am thoroughly well in every way."
Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."
Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Sunday Services at George St Church.

Rev. Mr. Whitmarsh, M.A., B.D., gave a grand and truly eloquent discourse at George Street Church Sunday morning. It was a "word in season" to many persons in the congregation and there is no doubt that it will be a word of inspiration as well as one of hope and cheer to the many who are fighting life's battles under great difficulties and dangers. The cultured organist, Mr. G. Christian, was at his place and did good service with the choir, which is always highly appreciated. In the evening, Rev. Mr. Guy, M.A., struck a mine of rich and interesting thought in an able discourse on John the Baptist. It was the most interesting to many in the congregation because of its reference to the present great national struggle and its portrayal of what Germany had already lost through its arrogance and pride. There was a thread of optimism running through the discourse that was not only warranted but encouraging to many in the audience. During Mr. Guy's absence on a short much needed vacation, Mr. C. R. Steer, who seems to be at all calls, will attend to affairs of the church, if any person should require his services.—Com.

Missing Boy Found.

Yesterday morning, a man reported at the police station that his ten-year-old son was missing. He had left his home in the East End the previous day and had not been heard of in that locality afterwards. The parent said the boy was a good boy and his absence could not be accounted for. After hearing the father's story, the officer in charge produced the boy, who had been found by the police wandering about Water Street at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. The boy could not give an explanation for staying away from home.

Mt. Carmel Anniversary.

As announced at all the masses at the R. C. Churches of the city yesterday, on Sunday next at 10.30 a.m. the anniversary mass will be celebrated at Mount Carmel Cemetery in the Mortuary Chapel. The customary collection will be taken up, the amount realized to be devoted towards the upkeep of God's Acre, which is at present in good condition. Within the past few days many people have been decorating the graves of beloved ones, preparatory to the anniversary.
