The Romance of a Marriage.

CHAPTER XXIII.

How dull and dreary the rooms looked, her grimy and commonplace old housekeeper, who came bobbing and curtsying to open the door, and assure him that she had "kept the place tidy, and swept it up and dusted it every morning."

"All right," said Sir Herrick. "No, I shan't want anything to eat. I'll go down to the club. Letters? Oh, all right, put them on the table."

And with a sigh, as the vision of the pretty parlour at Myrtle Cottage rose before him, he went and had a bath and dressed himself in something more suitable for Pall Mall and St. James's Street than the travelling-suit of tweeds, and put on his hat and gloves; but as he passed through the sitting-room he paused a moment to look over the envelopes.

There was a great many; some of the long business shape, having "bills, bills," plainly indicated in the style of writing; there were many of dainty paper and shape, and addressed in the round handwriting which the fair sex have adopted of late, and there were half a dozen amber-coloured ones with "F. H." in a monogram in crimson and gold.

He took them up. They breathed a subtle perfume that he knew as well as the paper, and the monogram, and the handwriting; but he did not open them, and after holding them for a moment, let them fall on the table amidst the others, and went out, the look of resolve on his face tempered with one of regret and troubled doubt.

Then he went down to the club, where he was met with a volley of welcome and enquiries, the latter of which he evaded by stating that he had been doing a little fishing in the west.

"And quite right, too," remarked someone at the table. "London seems played out. If it wasn't for the Frivolity and 'Old King Cole,' life wouldn't be worth living in the Great Dust Hole!" and he shook his head over his tall collar, and nodded sapiently. It was almost the first word he had heard since he reached London, and Sir Herrick winced as if someone had stuck a pin into him.

"You'll drop in to-night, I suppose?" enquired the same young gentleman. "Miss Hamilton is splendid! Nevah saw her in such trim, nevah! House crammed every night; no end of encores. Come with me, Powis."

"Not to-night; I'm engaged," said Sir Herrick, rather slowly; and the young gentleman sauntered away, to express his opinion in the smoking-room that "Powis had come back from the country with all his feathers ruffled the wrong way, by Jove!"

It was about three o'clock when Sir Herrick walked up Raglan Street and rang the bell of the little house which Flossie Hamilton had made famous in the fashionable world.

The footman who opened the door received him with a respectful smile, as if he were a welcome guest, and Weston, who happened to be passing up the tiny hall, that was like a bower of ferns and flowers, began a smile, too, but it died away under the gravity of his face. What had happened?

She had never seen him otherwise than with a smile in his eyes, and with a word of greeting on his lips. She opened the door, and Sir Herrick entered the drawing-room.

As he did so, a graceful little figure on the music-stool swung round, and with a low cry of delight came flying to him like a beautiful, tropical bird. "Rick!" she exclaimed, the colour, the brilliant spot of carmine rushing to her cheek, the bright blue eyes gleaming with delighted surprise.

"Rick! Is it really you?" and she drooped upon his breast. Then, in an instant, Sir Herrick saw that he had made a mistake, a great mistake; and with the pang of remorse which seized him at her greeting was the conviction that he should not have ventured on seeing her again.

Here was he come to say "good-bye," kindly and quietly, of course, and now she was on his breast, her eyes turned up to him with confiding affection, her clear-cut lips waiting for a kiss. What was he to do? Man is but man; and he would want to have a heart of stone to thrust this little bird-woman, with her brilliant plumage, away from him. Sir Herrick could not, notwithstanding all those resolutions which he manufactured wholesale on his way up to town.

You see, he expected a very different reception; he expected that Flossie would receive him with icy coldness, or with a burst of feminine passion, accusing him of neglect, and demanding to know, with flashing eyes and flaming cheeks, why he had not left his address or answered her letters. Then it would have been easy for him to say, "Flossie, you must write me no more letters. I am going away and shall not return. Let us part in peace."

And he would have had this reception and opportunity, but that the astute major had prepared and schooled Flossie; had, indeed, supplied her with a part which no one in London could play more perfectly.

What was he to do? He did what any other man, unless he were made of iron, would have done: he spoke to her pleasantly; and though he did not kiss her—which, be sure, Flossie noticed—he put his arm in hers and allowed her to remain in his embrace, as it were, for the space of a minute or two.

Let those blame him who will; he was weak, if you like, but not disloyal to the trusting heart that loved him so dearly down in Woldshire: for even as he looked down at the curly head and the blue eyes, the vision of Paula's beautiful, pure face crossed before his eyes, and made him feel remorseful and weak, and altogether base.

"Well, Flossie," he said, unloosening her arms and leading her to the sofa.

"Well, Rick," she retorted, mimicking his tone, but quite pleasantly; and with a smile in her eyes, though her heart was beating with suppressed passion and anxiety. "Is that all you have to say to me after being away so long? And where have you been?"

"Down in the country," he replied, looking at the carpet, and wondering that he had never noticed how artificial her voice was, and how forced her attitudes.

Poor Flossie! It was hard upon her, after all. Until his eyes had been opened by that mischief-maker, Love, he had thought her nearly perfect, and had been quite content to take her voice and her attitudes as they were.

"In the country! So I should think," she retorted. "You look awfully well; quite brown. Why, your hands are like a nigger's, sir!"

He looked at them for the sake of doing something and looking somewhere.

"Yes, it has been hot," he said. "And have you enjoyed yourself, Rick?" she enquired, pleasantly. "Had a good time of it, fishing and all that?"

"Yes," he said; and as the remembrance of the "good time" and all it meant for him came across him, his heart smote him.

"I wrote several times," she went on. "I wanted to see you awfully bad. I've had such a cold, Rick, though I don't suppose you care, as you haven't even asked me how I am!" with a little, plaintive laugh.

He looked at her and saw that she was paler than when he had left, and that round her brilliant eyes—soft enough now, though—there were slight rings, telling of that "little cough" which troubled her at times, and this didn't make him any the more comfortable.

"I am very sorry, Flossie," he said. "It is the east wind and coming out of the theatre." Then a sudden inspiration fell on him. "Flossie," he said. "I don't think you are at all well. You have had that cough some time now. How would it be if you went away for a trip to the south?"

She knew what he meant: he wanted to send her away; but though her heart gave a passionate throb of indignation, she still smiled.

"What, leave the work! Just as we are in full swing? What would Manders, the manager, say? It would stop the piece, and we've just started on a long run."

"Never mind the piece," he said. "Manders could get someone else."

She rose and dropped him a curtsy, laughing.

"Thank you for a very nice compliment. Get some one else! I would have you know that there is only one Flossie, Sir Herrick Powis! Get someone else!" and she sank down again, laughing.

He smiled, but rather gravely. "Of course they could not get anyone to fill your place adequately, I know that, Miss Vanity; but they could find someone to make shift with until you came back."

"Perhaps," she assented. "But you—could you come now, Rick?" she added, innocently.

He started and looked down at the carpet. It was cruel work! If he had only written!

"I" he said, quietly. "No, I don't think I could go, Flossie."

"Then don't think of it," she said, with tearful decision. "I shouldn't think of going without you; I should be miserable. Don't say any more about it. Besides, it is all nonsense. I shall get rid of this cough directly. It's the draughts, and we've spoken about them."

"You had better go," he said, and his voice sounded cold and harsh in his anxiety and earnestness.

But though every tone was noticed by her, she still strove with herself and acted her part, which was to be patient, and cheerful, and smiling, and to quite ignore that there was anything wrong.

ANOTHER JUMP IN WHEAT.

MONTREAL, Feb. 1. The Canadian wheat board has ordered changes in the price of wheat flour. The price of British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec wheat to mills in Canada is now raised to 25 cents per bushel and the board also increases the maximum wholesale price of government standard winter wheat flour one dollar per barrel. Basis F.O.B. Cars, Montreal.

MAINE HARBORS ICE BOUND.

PORTLAND, Maine, Feb. 1. Many harbors and islands along the Maine coast, particularly in the vicinity of Penobscot Bay, are icebound in consequence of the long succession of cold waves. Coast guard cutters have been ordered to the east coast to break up the ice in channels and harbors in response to telegraphed appeal from the Rockland chamber of commerce. The telegram said, "Harbors all frozen, no mails or freight received or sent, suffering for food stuffs, Island people isolated."

HUNGARIANS GIVEN UNTIL TODAY.

PARIS, Jan. 31. The Hungarian delegation was informed to-day by the Allied powers that the time given it to formulate observations regarding the peace terms had been extended to February 2nd.

To-day's Messages.
NO MORE LOANS IN U.S.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.
The positive assertion that the British Government does not plan to seek further loans in the United States, but on the contrary is desirous of reducing the obligations it already has incurred here, is included in a statement from London transmitted to Secretary of the Treasury Glass, through R. C. Lindsay, British Charge d'Affaires, and made public to-night. The statement also denies emphatically "repeated allegations in the press that the British Government desire to borrow large sums in the United States."

FLAMES DESTROY CHURCH.
HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 1.
Oxford Street Methodist Church was destroyed by fire at noon to-day, the congregation being worshipping at the time, but all escaped without injury. The loss is fifty thousand dollars with insurance at twelve thousand. Rev. Harold Roe is the pastor.

FIRE AT LOUISBURG.
The Sydney and Louisburg R.R. Co.'s roundhouse at Louisburg was completely destroyed by fire to-night. At the time there were four locomotives in the shop, but men who were working a night shift succeeded in getting them out. The loss is estimated at about $10,000.

ROUNDING UP SINN FEIN.
DUBLIN, Feb. 1.
Many Sinn Fein leaders were arrested in the course of a big round up at four o'clock yesterday morning. They were taken to an unrevealed destination.

DISLOYAL COUNCILS.
DUBLIN, Feb. 1.
When the Councils of Dublin, Cork and other places elected Sinn Fein Mayors, they refused to appoint Sheriffs, because this would have necessitated swearing allegiance to kings. The Cork corporation yesterday, by thirty votes to eleven, declared its loyalty to the Irish Republic.

GREY AND THE LEAGUE.
LONDON, Feb. 1.
Viscount Grey occupied two columns in the Times yesterday with a letter on the attitude of the United States on the League of Nations. He carefully explained that he is not writing as an ambassador, but as a private individual making an earnest attempt to foster the friendliness of two democracies by explaining to Englishmen certain aspects of the American attitude, which he believes they misconceived. He declares that American hesitation to accept the League is not due to any hostility to the principle. One particular reservation, Viscount Grey thinks must give rise to a difficulty, namely that respecting six British votes in the Assembly of the League, but neither the Dominions nor Great Britain, he says, can admit qualification here. It must not be supposed in the United States he concedes, that there is any tendency to grudge the fact that Canada and the other Dominions have votes, but it is easy to realize that a feeling has been created by the statement that the British Empire has 6 votes and the United States but one. Viscount Grey does not discuss an adjustment of this problem, which though a powerful factor in sentiment will be not important in practice.

IMPALED ON BAYONETS.
LONDON, Feb. 1.
Moscow wireless service yesterday transmitted an extract from an article on the official Bolshevik organ, Pravda, stating "only a few days ago, supreme ruler Kolchak was hoisted on his soldiers bayonets."

ASQUITH'S POLICY.
LONDON, Feb. 1.
Disraeli's advice to "keep your eye on Paisley" is being just now intensely followed, as an interesting election contest is expected. Ex-Premier Asquith, in his speaking campaign, is engaging both sexes for this week. Asquith has declared himself a complete convert to the rights of women, and his election address shows him to be an advocate of the revision by the League of Nations of the Peace Treaty's territorial provisions, an international economic conference on peace and trade with Russia, and an immediate granting of self-government to Ireland in the fullest sense.

ODESSA CAPTURED.
LONDON, Feb. 2.
A Vienna despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, under date of Friday, says that according to the Ukrainian press the capture of the town and port of Odessa was effected by Ukrainian regulars, reinforced by irregulars of the Kherson Government.

COMIC OPERA CONVENTION.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 2.
Eugene V. Debs, now serving twenty years' sentence in the Federal Prison at Atlanta, Ga., on a charge of sedition, was unanimously endorsed for President of the United States by the Socialists of Oklahoma in convention here Saturday night. Kate Richards O'Hare, at present confined in the Missouri State Penitentiary, was endorsed for Vice-President.

VON REUTER'S WELCOME.
WILHELMSHAVEN, Feb. 1.
Admiral von Reuter, chief of the German fleet at Scapa Flow, who gave the order for the scuttling of German warships there last June, arrived here yesterday aboard the steamship Lisboa. The Admiral, who had been set free by the British authorities, was greeted by thousands along the harbor front, which was brilliantly decorated. The chief of the Admiralty, Admiral von Trotha, in his speech of welcome said to von Reuter, "I have come here deeply moved to bid you the warmest welcome on behalf of the German navy, and our dear Fatherland. You stand before me as the last of our German High Seas Fleet, which once was so accustomed to victory. The ships you have not brought home. You at your lonely post gave the order to sink the fleet when you regarded resumption of war as a fact."

Fuel Shortage.
The residents of Trinity are suffering for want of fuel; flakes and staves have been chopped up for firewood and many families have moved in with neighbors in order to conserve.

In Bonavista conditions are nearly as bad, all the coal that was destined for there was lost last fall, and the residents have to draw from the limited stocks held at King's Cove.

LOST A MILCH COW.—Mr. Kelly of Middle Cove, lost a valuable milch cow on Saturday night. The animal having recently calved, in some unaccountable way since it broke its leg and had to be killed.

Three things to look for when you buy clothes this season: First, look for value—all wool quality fabrics—be sure you get them; then tailoring, then style.
Style you can get to a certain degree in most any kind of clothes, but the style won't stay unless quality fabrics and the best needlework go with it.
Good clothes are scarce—you'll find plenty of the other kind priced high enough to make you think they ought to be good—so stick to the good reliable make you know from past experience gives satisfaction plus. KUPPENHEIMER CLOTHES have the same old integrity of all wool fabrics and sound tailoring—plus styles that are the newest of the new. Double-breasted and single-breasted, beltless, half belt, or all around belt models for young fellows are here in liberal assortments. More conservative models, of course, high character clothes for business men. BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD.

A Foul Deed.
Discussing recently the question of agricultural training in connection with the "back to the land" movement for returned soldiers, Lord Lee, the Minister for Agriculture, told an amusing story, which, however, he probably did not mean to be taken too seriously.
An ex-soldier who had never in all his life been outside London before he enlisted (said Lord Lee), was placed on a small holding, and decided to go in for chicken raising amongst other things.
Accordingly he procured from a neighbouring farmer a hen and thirteen eggs for setting purposes.
About six weeks later he met the farmer, who inquired what luck he had had.
"Oh," was the reply, "both good and bad! There were twelve chicks hatched out, but they all died."
"Died!" exclaimed the farmer.
"Why, what on earth did you feed them on?"
"Feed 'em on!" cried the bewildered Cockney. "I didn't feed 'em on anything. What's the mother hen for? Don't she suckle 'em?"

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO THEY LIE?

Do a great many people who are otherwise reasonably honest, lie about the amount of money they are making?

A male friend of mine stoutly maintains that this is the case. I used to object as stoutly, but I am beginning to suspect that he was nearer right than I realized.

What Caused My Change of Heart.

There have been several things contributing to my change of heart. One of them was a survey of the wage scale paid by the Government shipyards. In a shipyard in which there were 11,000 men, the average wage was only $5.72 a day, and there were only 568 getting $7 to $8 and 15 getting over $8. And yet every man who knows any man working in the shipyards has some tale to tell of the fabulous wages that man makes. Now they can't all belong to the small percentage of men who really make large wages, can they? The deduction, it seems to me, is fairly obvious. Some of the men really make the money they claim to. Others take advantage of the general impression to pretend to be making big money.

They Deliberately Add A Ten Dollar Bill.

Again, a man who has worked in the paying-off department of a big concern, told me that he often saw men take a $10 bill out of their pockets, slip it into their pay envelopes, and then show their total to the other men with a triumphant, "See what I pulled down this week!" It is still my feeling about this matter that though there is a good deal of this out-and-out lying, there are more large, loose talk, not actually false, but meant to make a better impression than cold figures would. Here are two examples of that sort of thing:

A friend of mine once told me that her husband and just sold his first novel for a sum in four figures. That might have been anywhere between $1,000 and $10,000. Actually it was just $1,000.

A Graceful Way of Putting It.

Again, we were talking about government loans, and a friend of ours said that on one of them he had put in $2200, part his own and part some money given him to invest for a friend. Afterwards it came out that the part which had been given him to handle was $2100. That surely was a graceful way of putting his contribution, to say the least.

Myself, I hate these subterfuges, which ought to prove once more to the doubters that Ruth Cameron surely is a woman, and not a man masquerading under that name. For while women may sometimes employ them to help their husband (as in the case of the author's wife) it is not feminine nature to try to get a better financial rating, half so much as it is masculine. I suppose the reason is not far to seek. For centuries man's achievement has been reckoned largely by the dollar sign—woman's has not.

I wonder if women will be transformed by their new economic experiences?

Important!

Every man starting out in business will have to go over a hard road and find out its turnings for himself. But he need not go over his road in the dark if he can take with him the light of other men's experience.

Fruit Facts.

Currants are a smaller species of grape, dried in a similar way to raisins. They are said to get their name from Corinth, where they grow abundantly.

Raisins are dried grapes. The best are sun-dried, but some are dried in ovens. Spain, Turkey, and Italy produce most raisins. Muscatels are the very finest raisins—actually being the muscated grape dried.

Figs are the fruit of the Ficus Carica, which is a native of Asia. It was, however, imported into Europe very early, and in this country its fruit will ripen. The first fig trees introduced into this country were said to have been planted by Cardinal P'ole at Mambeth.

Pomegranates were originally used for wines by the ancients. They were brought to England from the West Indies.

Brazil nuts are the produce of the Juvia, a lofty, magnificent tree, which grows in the northern parts of Brazil. They are covered with a hard shell, which sometimes is as large as a child's head, and holds fifty or more small nuts.

Dates in many places form a staple food, and are as important a crop as our wheat. The fruit, when gathered, is pressed into a hard, solid cake called "Adjons," which is afterwards cut up and sold by the pound. The stones are soaked in water and given to cattle. The date comes mainly from Arabia and Persia, and is the fruit of a tall and graceful palm.

Shipping Notes.

S.S. Brighton arrived from Halifax yesterday with a general cargo to A. E. Hickman & Co.

S.S. Meigle left Port aux Basques at 5.30 yesterday morning for Louisburg where she will load freight for this port.

S.S. Cape Breton is now at the dock pier having some repairs made. She will likely get away by the end of the week.

S.S. Kyle left North Sydney early yesterday morning for this port, but had to return again owing to ice conditions. The Kyle has a large mail and the delay will inconvenience trade considerably.

PLUCK.

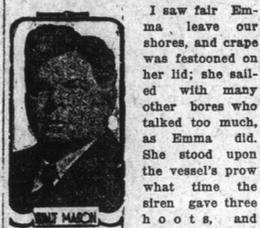

When things are running crosswise and the engine's out of gear, and the road is rough and rocky and the sky is far from clear, and you're plainly up against it and you're sure out of luck, That's the time to use your courage and to show your stock of pluck.

Most anyone can travel on a road that's smooth and clear, and anyone can get there if he only has to steer. But when the motor's balky and you're running in the muck. If you're ever going to get there you must call upon your pluck.

There's no thrill in easy sailing when the skies are clear and blue, and there's no joy in merely doing things which anyone can do, But there is some satisfaction that is mighty sweet to take When you reach a destination that you thought you'd never make.

So when everything's against you and your plans are going wrong, Just face the situation and keep moving right along— Don't sit down and wall and whimper, even though you may be stuck, You're not absolutely helpless if you still possess your pluck.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

EMMA GOLDMAN.

I saw fair Emma leave our shores, and crape was festooned on her lid; she sailed with many other bores who talked too much, as Emma did. She stood upon the vessel's prow what time the siren gave three hoots, and shrieked to us, "I leave you now, but I'll come back you bet your boots!" Alas, it was an idle threat, though hurled at us with force and vim; the ocean's deep and wide and wet, and poor old Emma cannot swim. Thus sailed away a brainy dame who might have ranked among the great, and figured in our Hall of Fame, had she but had her head on straight. She went around denouncing things and telling people they were slaves, the bondmen of the money kings and other plutocratic knaves. Her whole existence was a knock, she had the morals of a dip; and now, because she couldn't walk, she's crossed the ocean in a ship. We couldn't shoo her off the earth, but we did shoo her off this shore, which tribute to her sterling worth appeared to make old Emma sore. So fare thee well, O Emma dear, may you keep fat in other lands; we're tired of loosed ladies here, who talk of bombs and burning brands.

The Latest "Howler."

The lesson was from the "Prodigal Son," and the Sunday-school teacher was dwelling on the character of the elder brother.

"But amid all the rejoicing," he said, "there was one to whom the preparation of the feast brought no joy, to whom the Prodigal's return gave no pleasure, but only bitterness, one who did not approve of the feast they held, and who had no wish to attend. Now, can any one of you tell me who this was?"

There was a breathless silence. Then from a dozen sympathetic scholars came the chorus:

"Please, sir, it was the fatted calf."

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces, in writing to us states:

Trunk Line Service Disrupted

The decision of the railway company not to attempt full operation of the cross-country service, until spring, does not come to the public unexpectedly, for since early in January the system has been completely disorganized in consequence of the severe weather and almost unprecedented snow falls, against which all human, as well as mechanical, power was unavailing. So long as there was a possibility of keeping the line clear, so long were efforts made to effect the object desired, but with the succession of blizzards and abnormally low temperatures of last month, flesh and blood could not cope with any chance of ultimate success, and the work of clearing up had to be abandoned so far as the complete trans-insular service was concerned. Every means, however, at the disposal of the company will be available to keep the track clear from St. John's to Millertown and from Humbermouth to Port aux Basques. The section between Millertown and Humbermouth will not be attempted, this being practically the worst part of the road, situated as it is on top of the roof of Newfoundland. Whatever inhabitants occupy the settlements between these two points, will have to do the best they can with regard to supplies, which means that they must resort to the use of komatique teams, a hardship which is as unavoidable as it is necessary under the circumstances.

To people, who have been accustomed to at least weekly connections with their base of supplies, the closing down of the direct service will at first seem to be unnecessarily harsh and arbitrary, but even a cursory glance at conditions must convince them that nothing more could be done to give them the communications which exigencies demanded, but which ordinary, and in many cases extraordinary, means could not bring about. There is not the shadow of a doubt that all those dependent upon the railway for their daily supplies, did not for an instant dream that there would come such a complete tie-up. Hence it is not only the receivers of freight who are suffering because of the railway's failure to get through, but the suppliers of goods, who have filled orders for delivery but cannot get them off. In a case of this sort each one interested has to shoulder an equal share of the burden unintentionally imposed, though perhaps so long as the communications between the points named are kept open, and not allowed to become interrupted for any lengthy period, the people living in the section which has been deprived of its regular train service, may not suffer to an enlarged degree from deprivation or shortage of food. The whole system of transportation has broken down because of the severity of the weather, and it would be but petty to place blame upon those responsible for the operation of the railway because the elemental forces of nature vanquished them.

But it is not because the trunk line has had to give up the fight that the branch lines too should be left to themselves until softer breezes and warmer weather melts the accumulation of ice and snow which cover the rails. A supreme effort should be made to keep these open. Conception Bay, Trinity Bay, Bonavista Bay, not to speak of the Southern Shore, are solely dependent upon their rail connections with the various stations and the capital for the next three months at least. There is no schooner traffic now between St. John's and Bonavista town. There can be but very little steamship communication beyond Conception Bay—and not even there as things are. Coastal boats are frozen in father north, with little hope of being released, therefore the branch lines tapping the bottoms and chief towns of the three principal bays should be kept clear, with trains running as regularly as conditions will permit, no matter what the cost. On the other side of Carbonear people have been minus their train facilities for a considerable time, and the same applies to the settlements of the Trinity and Bonavista Bay peninsulas. To all these places the service should be maintained, otherwise a critical situation will develop because of present stringency and paucity of supplies held.

G. W. V. A. Club Open

On Tuesday and Wednesday, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., the Veterans, have decided to open their rooms for inspection by any who may desire to see them. The interesting collection of photographs of our Newfoundland Sailors and Soldiers will remain up in the main room until after Wednesday. Over one mantelpiece we find the photograph of the first Colonial Volunteers to leave their home-shores for the defence of the Empire, namely, the Royal Naval Reservists of Newfoundland, crowded on tugs passing down the harbour, August, 1914—the beginning of the war. Over the other mantelpiece we find a picture of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, under the command of the present President of the G. W. V. A., marching across the Rhine into Germany, as conquerors, December, 1918—the end of the war. This picture is surrounded by the photographs of many of those who won distinction on Active Service. One wall, draped with the Union Jack and the flag of France, carries the Roll of Honour of those who in our Empire's defence, fell in Gallipoli and France. The collection is anything but complete, but is full of interest. Borell coffee and tea will be sold throughout the two days to help towards the purchase of necessary furnishings for the Club. No children allowed unless with parents.

Educational Effort Pays.

KLIM is made in modern plants situated in the heart of Canada's finest dairy district. The farms producing the milk are chiefly large dairy farms where the breeding of high grade cows is studied and the production of the finest milk in large quantities is a speciality. The herds are always under the inspection of Dominion and Provincial inspectors, and there is maintained at each of the KLIM plants an expert who thoroughly understands the proper handling of milk. This expert visits all the farms which supply the KLIM plants with milk. He advises the farmers as to the best way of cooling the milk directly after milking, as well as seeing that sanitary conditions on the farm are correct. When the milk arrives at the KLIM plants, it is tested for cleanliness, purity and quality. Any milk which does not come up to the KLIM standard is rejected. Through years of educational effort, the KLIM manufacturers have convinced the milk producers that it pays to have only high grade herds. By purchasing the entire milk yield the year round, it is possible to buy in large quantities. The user of KLIM can therefore see that in every manner whatsoever they have absolute protection, and in addition it is wonderfully economical inasmuch as a one pound tin of KLIM which makes a full gallon of rich, delicious milk, costs only 55 cents at your grocer's. A further advantage is that you make only just the amount of milk you immediately require. Mothers should bear in mind that KLIM is not recommended for infant feeding owing to the fact that to prevent rancidity a percentage of the fat content has to be removed in the process of manufacture.

Fire This Morning.

An alarm of fire was sounded from Allandale Road this morning at 11.30. The Central firemen were quickly on the scene and found woodwork near the chimney in the house of Mr. John Warren in a blaze. The fire was caused by the over heating of a range catching the woodwork of the chimney. The fire burned up to the second flat but was kept under control by buckets of water until the arrival of the firemen. Not much damage was done.

Choosing the Stenographer.

The choice of a new stenographer for the Municipal Council has not yet been made, and an interesting turn in the matter is expected. Last week the various applicants were personally and individually examined by Councillors Ayre and Mullaly and as a result the choice was narrowed down to two young ladies, of whom one councillor favored one and the other another. They will later report to the Council, when the matter will be definitely decided.

Klim vs. Real Milk.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—I noticed in your issue for last Saturday night, a letter attacking Klim. There is one point in your correspondent's letter which I should like to bring out. He says that separated milk is only worth 30 cents per gallon. I presume he knows. Separated milk being the milk without the cream. Very well then the milk trust of which he is a member has put the price of milk to 96 cents per gallon. Now as the cream per centage in the best of milks is the very small one of 3%, it follows that you pay for 97% of your milk 30 cents, and for 3% 76 cents, and as 3% of a gallon of milk is only about a quarter of a pint, you are paying pretty high for the luxury of having cream in your milk. Me for Klim, and when I feel like extravagance, I will buy my cream separately.
The average person uses milk in either tea, coffee or in cooking—and does not know and cares less whether the tablespoonful or so of milk he puts in his tea has cream in it or not.

He gets his essential fats from butter, or substitutes bacon, pork or beef, and the idea that it makes any difference to his health is nonsense. Furthermore all the Klim circulars that I have seen, have stated that Klim is not for either infants or invalids. Their circular also says that Klim is a live milk, so the public can believe either Westerland or the Canadian Milk Products Co.
Is it a fact that a Grocery store in which Westerland has an interest has been selling Klim for about three years?
Yours truly,
EASTERLAND.

Had Hard Time.

Reuben Sparkes, mill-owner of St. Mary's Bay, had a bad time of it on Saturday, the 16th, when he lost his way while driving by himself from Whitbourne to Colinet. He had arrived at Whitbourne from Piacentia, and left the latter place at two o'clock in the afternoon. When about a mile from here, the horse left the road and in a short while he could not find it again. The night was a terrible one, the frost being intense and a blizzard raging. For several hours he was in the woods looking for the road, and by the time he did locate it he was thoroughly exhausted. He arrived at Colinet in a bad state and friends were not slow to look after him. He is now feeling well, despite his terrible experience.—Cor.

Pass the City Charter.

Editor Evening Telegram
Dear Sir,—Hundreds, and hundreds of our city people must have felt glad, and somewhat relieved, after reading the report of the last sitting of the Municipal Council wherein was mooted, "That the Government would be asked to pass the Charter" at the coming session of the Legislature." It is now, Sir, five or six years since that Charter was framed, the step was a wise and timely one, Mr. Gelling and his staff, saw its necessity and the amount of good it's becoming law would bring in general to the householders, and landholders throughout the city. No greater blessing, in my mind, could the men now empowered to rule this country, confer on its people, than passing in toto, that Charter which means so much to the poor man, and saves him from the iron grasp of the avaricious land sharks in the future.

I here call upon the hundreds in St. John's, who will benefit by the passing of this measure, to agitate; write it up; bring it under the notice of those men whom you have entrusted with the public affairs of this country. They have promised to do good and advance your interests. Ask them to pass the "Charter." 'Tis shelved too long and would have shown its value to our people had it been ratified in its infancy,—but, better late than never—householders and landholders, agitate through the press, and have the Charter passed.

George Walsh Play on Majestic Bill.

Now that they are making special facellette safety razor sets for women and that men pretty generally are shaving themselves, almost every one in town, except the babies, probably will be interested in George Walsh's close shave. Mr. Walsh's latest picture is a William Fox production entitled "Help! Help! Police!" and it will be shown for two days, beginning Monday at the Majestic Theatre. Strangely enough, too, it deals largely with razors, the star being the son of the head of a concern manufacturing these implements, and the leading woman playing the role of a daughter of a rival manufacturer. The efforts of this son and this daughter to merge their happiness in matrimony are repeatedly frustrated by the police, who have taken an aversion to George and who keep him busy employing his well known athletic proclivities in dodging them.

The picture, like most of those featuring George Walsh, is of the comedy drama type and is said to be humorous in theme and incident as well as in action. George, it appears, does not need hot water for his shaving—the police keep him constantly immersed in it. Most of his troubles, however, rightfully should rest on the shoulders of a Western sharper, and eventually, it appears, they get there, whereupon George is freed of suspicion in a whole catalogue of criminal offenses.

Obituary.

HUBERT WATSON.

The city was startled yesterday to learn that Mr. Ellis Watson had received a telegram announcing the death of his brother, Mr. Hubert Watson, who only a few weeks ago was here with his bride. They were on their way from New York to their home in Costa Rica and the telegram, which was sent from Colon, Isthmus of Panama, by Mrs. Watson, stated that her husband had died of pneumonia. No particulars were given, but it is surmised that Mr. Watson contracted influenza at New York, or on the steamer, and that pneumonia afterwards developed. Whether burial was at sea, or at Colon, or the body taken to Costa Rica, is not known.

Hubert Watson was the youngest son of the late Mr. James H. Watson, Inspector of Newfoundland Customs, and was born in St. John's in 1883. He was therefore in his 37th year. Educated at Bishop Field College, he entered upon a financial career, and decided upon a financial career, and transferred South and opened several branches of the bank in Cuba, Santo Domingo and Venezuela, and at the time of his death was manager at San Jose, Costa Rica. In September last he married Senorita Clemencia de Yglesias, and the honeymoon, from which they were returning home, was spent in New York, Montreal and St. John's. The young bride won all hearts here by her beauty and her charm, and there will be deep sympathy with her, and with Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Watson, in their very sad bereavement.

MR. PETER MURPHY.

The many friends of Mr. Peter Murphy were surprised by the sad news that he had been suddenly struck down by the hand of death on Sunday morning, at 3.30. He had been ailing only for a few days, suffering from weakness of the heart but no apprehension was felt that his end was so near. Sitting in a chair with his wife and son near by, he exclaimed, calling them by name,

"I am going!" and then, quietly breathed his last and fell asleep. The deceased gentleman possessed a quiet, amiable disposition, always endeavoring to add to the happiness of those around him and to perform acts of kindness. He leaves to mourn him a wife, 2 sons and 2 daughters; also 1 brother. May his soul rest in peace. Amen.

At St. Andrew's.

The service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last evening was most inspiring, and verily it was good to have been there. The larger portion of the service was musical, and the choir did splendidly, the anthems being rendered with telling effect, particularly Pfleger's "How long wilt Thou forget me." The soloists of the evening were Mrs. G. W. B. Ayre, Miss Isa Glendening, Miss Marguerite Mitchell, Capt. Campbell and Mr. W. L. Woods, and they were all in excellent voice, so that the vast congregation had a veritable musical feast. In harmony with the occasion, the Minister, Rev. Gordon Dickie, M.A., preached an able sermon on "The Divine Reality," in which he emphasized the need of deeper religious conviction, and exhorted his hearers to let the Master, who was waiting to do so, enter fully into their lives. His Excellency the Governor was a worshipper at the service.

Bodies Decently Interred

The good people of St. Shott's deeply resent the false reports which recently appeared in the press, alleging that the bodies of the ill-fated members of the crew of the wrecked steamer Anton Van Driel, had not been properly or decently buried. The corpses were laid side by side in a large grave, and were given Christian burial. Such sensational reports, circulated without basis, are a reflection upon the people of the settlement, and their resentment is most righteous.

Municipal Council.

Tenders for Houses.

TENDERS for the purchase of Twelve Houses, erected by the Municipal Council on Quidi Vidi Road will be received at the Office of the Secretary-Treasurer at the City Hall by February 4th, 1920.

Two houses are ready for immediate delivery; two more will be ready within two weeks, and the others during the following two months.

The Houses will be sold at the cost price, which cannot yet be accurately ascertained, but it is calculated will be approximately $2,000 each.

As it is the intention of the Council to continue to erect houses until the demand is satisfied, and to turn over the money used as rapidly as possible, the order of preference will be according to the offers made by intending purchasers:

- (1) As to the amount of cash to be paid against the purchase.
- (2) The length of time required in which to pay off the balance.

The ground rent of each lot will be $20.00 per annum, and the term of the lease will be for 99 years. As the land is Imperial property, it is impossible at present to sell the freehold, but the Council has applied for the full release of the land, and if obtained, will sell the freehold at any time during the term of the lease by the payment of twenty years' ground rent. Interest on the unpaid balance will be charged at the current rate.

As an instance: Presuming the cost of the House to be $2,000 and the purchaser desires to pay $1,000 in cash, and $1,000 in equal yearly payments, the amount to be paid annually, including interest at 5 1/2 p.c., for terms from 3 to 12 years, would be as follows:—

- To pay $1,000 in 3 years, $370.65 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 4 years, $285.30 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 5 years, $234.18 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 6 years, $200.17 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 7 years, $175.96 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 8 years, $157.86 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 9 years, $143.84 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 10 yrs., $132.67 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 11 yrs., $123.57 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 12 yrs., $116.03 yearly.

Applicants will please mark across envelope the words "Tender for Houses."

At St. Thomas's.

At last evening's service at St. Thomas's Church, the Rector preached the fifth of his series of sermons on the Ten Commandments, the fifth of the decalogue being his subject. The preacher showed how the legendary classification of the commandments into two equal numerical divisions, i.e., classing the fifth commandment with the preceding four was reasonable, when we consider that honor to parentage is involved in honor to God. He further stated how that the fifth commandment was the only commandment that hath a promise attached to it. Continuing, the preacher said: The fifth commandment is of domestic and of national importance, for as the home must be at the heart of national life so religion must be at the heart of home life. That home life is at the heart of national life is illustrated by the growth of the Hebrew nation, for from the patriarchal or family rule of Abraham sprang the tribal rule under the judges and then the national rule under a monarchy. Furthermore the effect of home life is seen, in that family traits are often the keynotes of national life; this is evidenced by the loyalty to traditions inculcated in childhood and so often courageously upheld on the battlefields. Home life effect is also clearly felt in that "licensed liberty" the characteristic of good citizenship, for even as the child learns to value and respect his liberty, so does the citizen value and respect the laws and liberties of citizenship. The emphasis laid on home life was demonstrated by the training given to the Spartans of old, while the deadly and destructive effects of neglected home life is borne eloquent witness to by the fall of ancient Greece and Rome.

Thus from the above the responsibility of the parents may be forcibly shown, and the shirking of such responsibility is a failure in duty, the consequences of which are often made worse by succeeding generations. But even as home life is the cornerstone of national importance, so is religion the heart of home life. This ought to be so, when we bear in mind that: (1) Example, (2) Fidelity to inherited ideals are the chief factors in childhood existence. Considering this the parent can see what an influence he is in the formation of his child's character. Here the preacher must have caused many a headache as he dwelt on the words spoken by parents, but remembered not by the children in after days. Probing the subject further, the Rector showed that the word Honour might be taken, improperly, in the narrow sense of refraining from insolence to parents, and in the broad sense, and correctly so, of meaning respect for the aged, but stated that Honour did not mean an exact belief in all a father's methods or beliefs, for true honor consisteth in living according to conviction, especially in religious matters, but living so that he may give his father all the reverence and honour compatible with his spiritual feelings, knowing that parents are worthy our honour, because have we not many instances of the heart-griefs of bereaved parents in Biblical history and elsewhere. Lastly, Christ should be the heart of religion, thereby making the home life the best possible, rooting out the ungodliness so often existent in family companionship and that carelessness so often witnessed in the first years of married life, and thereby making the home life a fitting symbol of that continued life hereafter.

C. E. A. A.

The annual meeting of the Superior Council of the C.E.A.A. was held at Brigus on Dec. 20th, and continued till shortly after the hour of noon, when it was decided, owing to the weather becoming so stormy and also on Saturday, to adjourn the meeting until some late date, so as to enable the delegates from different places to catch the train. The date appointed for continuing of the business of the Superior Council was therefore fixed for January 5th, and accordingly on that day delegates assembled again at Brigus from Carbonear, Spaniard's Bay, Salmon Cove, also from the place where the meeting was being held. Delegates from other branches for various reasons found it impossible to attend. Quite a number of items in connection with the welfare and progress of the association were dealt with; the aim of the C.E.A.A. being the strengthening and upbuilding of the church, and the spread of knowledge amongst its members, by means not strictly within its reach of the church. The association is now in its 34th year and has been productive of much good. The election of officers resulted as follows: S. Russell, Carbonear, Grand President, re-elected; F. Hussey, Salmon Cove, Grand Vice-President, re-elected; G. S. Pike, Carbonear, Grand Secy.-Treasurer, re-elected; Rev. F. Severn, Salmon Cove, Grand Chaplain, re-elected; H. Neil, Spaniard's Bay, and Curnew, Brigus, Tylers, elected; R. Hussey, Salmon Cove, E. Bishop, Brigus, Guards, elected.—Com.

Bell Chimes

for Memorial.

At the conclusion of the evening service in St. Thomas's Church yesterday a meeting of the congregation for the purpose of hearing the report of a committee appointed to consider the best means of perpetuating the memory of the men of the parish who fell in the war was held. That a chime of bells be hung in the tower was the recommendation, and a brass dedication tablet to be placed in a conspicuous place in the tower was further the committee's recommendation, and on it were to be inscribed the names of the dead and the words:

"These bells were placed in this tower to the glory of God and in honored memory of the men of this parish who gave their lives for King and Country, 1914-1918."

The report of the committee was adopted and an effort will be made to have every member of the parish contribute toward the undertaking.

"LET THERE BE LIGHT"

The Hon. Edward F. Waite, District Judge in charge of the Juvenile Court, Minneapolis, said the following in an address given before the North Dakota Purity Federation, June 1918, held at Grand Forks:—

"Last Thursday I paid a visit to one of my official charges, a rosy, blue-eyed girl who had spent all her life, but for a few days at Lymanhurst, the Children's Department of the Minneapolis City Hospital. Four years ago her young unmarried mother came out of darkness to seek timely help in the obstetrical ward of the Hospital; then she took her child, born without a welcome or a name, to the kindly refuge where she went for after-care. Soon she found that upon this innocent babe, there had been visited, the sins of the parents in the form of a loathsome and destructive disease. Then she returned the child to the hospital and sank away again into the shadows, whence she had emerged to desecrate the sanctity of motherhood.

False names and addresses given at the hospital and place of after-care, and lack of safe-guards which under our new Minnesota laws are now employed in every similar case, have made it impossible to find her or the partner of her guilt.

The little girl is the victim of congenital and probably incurable typhlis. For more than three years the disease has not disclosed itself in any active form. Quite possibly, the doctors say, it never will again. But the tests still show it in the blood. Four years of expert and faithful effort have not driven it out.

Last fall the Children's Protective Society, the guardian angel of helpless childhood in Minneapolis, brought little Mary to my Court as a dependent child. She was dependent surely, and it became my official duty to provide for her future as best I might. I tried to send her to our State Public School for indigent children at Owatonna, but the school would not receive a syphilitic child. While the danger of contagion is remote, there may be some danger, and therefore it would be hopeless to try to place her in a privately conducted Children's Home; adoption is out of the question. The hospital is no longer a fit place for her; to all appearance she is a healthy child, and no treatment it can give avails against her secret taint. There is a chance that as she grows older, the poison in her blood, now discoverable only upon scientific tests, may show itself in some serious defect of mind or body. Even though it do not, and yet persists, she should not be permitted to live a woman's normal life, lest the virus resting quiescent in her veins, work havoc upon her children.

Poor little Mary. Even the Angel of Death unkindly passes her by. What shall I do for her?"

A TRAGEDY.

The account given by Mr. Waite is the account of only one tragedy. In criminal lore it is not called a tragedy, it is just called social sin. But it is a tragedy, one of the worst blots on the fair face of our civilization. And it is a tragedy which is being duplicated, over and over again, in the lives of men and women in this world. Newfoundland is not without her tragedies of this kind. Innocent as she herself is, Mary stands vicariously for sex impurity and its ruinous results—for the unchaste woman, the incontinent man, the illegitimate child, the diseases of vice. Far from pleasant to look upon are these cancers on the body social. But not to study them, to leave them to their own cure, is to leave them helpless and hopeless of cure. It will be a step in advance if we venture to make an enquiry into the cause. The surest way to offset any disease is to find its cause. Here is an odious disease, a foul crime, a dreadful tragedy. Shall society ignore it. Not long ago the police saw a light in a field in the East End of St. John's, and noticing the light steadily burn went to see the cause. Lo, it was a tent in which men and women were carrying on a shameful and illicit business in human bodies. There are children born in St. John's and in the outports with the marks of the beast upon them. And there are children that are not born, that ought to be. The line of life cut off ere yet the sightless eyes had had a chance to see the light. Murder, of the first degree. An awful tragedy.

On the pity of it! Maidenhood robbed of the bloom that can never be restored; the rot of sensuality eating at the heart of character and corrupting the very sources of life; parenthood with none of the joys and pride that are its due; out of the shipwreck of human life, a waif cast upon a bleak and desolate shore. Not very long ago a woman opened the front door of the house in which she lived, early in the morning, and found on the doorstep a bundle. On opening the bundle she unwrapped a babe, a little waif, her mother, a sixteen-year-old girl, who left her burden there after being mercifully treated at the Rescue Home. We have heard New Gower Street at a time when they ought to have been in bed, at least at home: when the devil has been pulling at their hearts and some wretches (well dressed at that), have been luring them on; we have overheard girls say: "Never mind, come on, there is the Rescue Home for us, come on." Who is the father of the little waif? Some married man may be, whose wife living in ignorance of her husband's real self, has tried and succeeded in making herself believe that all is well. Some man we have stated. Some apology for a man would be a better word. More, much more, could be written about it. What a tale could the doctors unfold. Why are not doctors given the right and duty to make known to authority the perpetrators of these dastardly crimes? Oh the crime of it! Oh the shame of it! Oh the tragedy of it! Newfoundland this is going on in thy gospel hardened bounds. Dozens of outports in "Ye Ancient Colony" being demoralized by professional harlots that dwell there. Sweet innocent maids that are brought up under the influence of prayer, go to the city, "to get a place," and to learn on New Gower Street and in Bannerman Park, and in Bowring Park, and elsewhere, the art that robs the soul of its purity, and makes them mothers, unwedded and unclaimed and ruined. The tragedy of it!

THE CURE.

Thank God the day is gone when those who call themselves Christians, can with easy conscience and self righteous scorn gather up their robes as though to escape pollution, and pass Mary's mother coldly by. We used to speak, (and we do yet), of "fallen girls." Have we not all fallen? Is there any man or woman who has retained the innocence of childhood? "No not one." Let us not call them "fallen girls," but "erring girls," girls who have gone astray. We think of them as having missed the way, and wandered from right paths, rather than as sunk below the level of community life. The phrase: "The Underworld," does not help to reduce the strain upon the possible redemption of those who have strayed. We must uphold the needful conventions of society and safeguard its interests. While the condition of the erring raises an awful barrier against them being given a free access to society, yet we find no warrant in scripture, reason or experience for extreme condemnation of the erring girl. The hardest things which the Son of Man had to say, were said against the Scribes and Pharisees, the spiritually blind leaders of the blind, and not those who had fallen or erred through sins of the flesh. If we must save the so called "fallen woman," we must not ill treat her, we must not make reformation impossible by driving her where those who enter, must abandon hope. We would not make excuses for the erring, nor condone their acts in any way, shape or form; look at the causes which led to their undoing. Live and fight to remove the causes, then hope to bring the erring back to right and truth, and good living. Our first cure is hopeful consideration of the case at issue. Our next is

SOCIETY SHARING THE RESPONSIBILITY.

We who are trained in christian homes and may be, have not had the temptation to sin and stray as poor Mary's mother did; we whose reputation is of the best, who belong to the churches; are not we our sisters' keepers, our brothers' keepers? Can we sit back with calm complacency and say that we have nothing to do with these conditions. Not by any means. We are units in the society in which we live and for the wrongdoing of that society we must take our share of the blame. For every girl who goes astray, there is at least one boy or man who shares her sin, who leads and lures her on, sometimes with devilish persistence and ingenuity. We must for ever abandon our miserable double standard of morals. Every time a girl strays, two persons are involved and sometimes more and the law should be as severe on one as on the other. We too often wink at the complicity of the male offender. A little while ago, in one of our outports, a "half-saved" girl of 15 years of age, fifteen years of age only, had to seek the protection of law. A certain young man was named. The sad tragedy took place at such a time that the said young man was not held responsible for the child, the poor girl then admitted that she did not know which of the three young men who was responsible. The child was born, suffered a few weeks, died and was buried. A happy release. That girl is a menace to that community. The girl had no protection. The young men continued to hold up their heads as if nothing had happened. The Magistrate is helpless, for there is no law on the Statute Book which would permit punishment being inflicted on those young men. In St. John's today there are bad houses, many of them; here, there, everywhere. Husbands and fathers and brothers from city to outport, shamelessly carrying on lives of shame. The police pass the houses, know them, but cannot take action. Why? Things are loose. Why? Girls go astray. Why? Because there is no public sentiment. Society has not yet begun to share the responsibility. Just one more thing to mention:—

TEAM WORK.

Obedience to a superior; giving up of one's will, yielding to the will and judgment of another. A regiment; a gang; a company.

"It ain't the individuals, Nor the army as a whole; But the everlasting team work, Of every blooming soul."

There is a part for fathers and mothers; a big part; perhaps the big

Wilson Can Eat Anything Now and Feels Fine

Ten Years' Trouble Are At End Since He Took Tanlac.

"Do you know, sometimes I can hardly believe I am the same person I was before I started taking Tanlac. I was the first time in ten years I can eat a hearty meal without being in misery afterward," said Harry Wilson, Sunny Brae, a suburb of Moncton, N.B., recently. Continuing, Mr. Wilson said: "All these years I think I suffered about as bad as anybody ever did from indigestion, and if I ever ate a single thing and didn't suffer from it afterward I don't know when it was. I had no appetite to speak of, and at times the very sight of anything to eat would make me sick. After every meal I had a heavy feeling in my stomach, just as though there was a lump of lead inside of me. I bloated up terribly with gas sometimes, and could get but little sleep, as I would just lie awake for hour after hour hardly able to get my breath.

"I had been reading so much in the newspapers about the good Tanlac was doing others who said they had been suffering just like I was. I decided to try it myself. Well, sir, to my surprise, for I had taken so many medicines without getting any benefit, I had just about lost faith in all of them, I began to get better almost at once after I started taking Tanlac. My appetite commenced to improve and to-day I can eat anything I want without a sign of indigestion. I am never troubled with gas, bloating or shortness of breath or any other bad after effects. I am a great deal stronger and have gained several pounds in weight; in fact, I am in the best of health in every way, and I also know that Tanlac will stop it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Buffett, by Thomas Wakely & Sons; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son, and in Topsail by J. K. Bursell.—adv.

Parents contribute to the nation's wealth and happiness by placing their children in possession of these virtues without which an honorable and worthy life cannot be lived. Children will not rise much higher, morally, than the level of their parents. When parents are obedient to law, whether it be of the land, or of physical life, or of any life, children inherit and by imitation, develop the same traits. And law abiding means self respecting. No self-respecting girl will quietly allow the approach of a man of lust.

What is the cure?—Team Work; society sharing the responsibility; consideration hopefully and kindly, of the case; the single standard of morals. Yes and more. We must return to this subject again some day, for there are many Marys and Mary's mothers, and we must try to save them, and save society.

The Rise of California.

In February, 1848, gold was discovered in California by men who were digging to make a backwoods mill-race. People were sceptical at first as to the importance of the discovery, but in May several gold diggers arrived in San Francisco, bringing bottles, tin cans, and buckskin bags filled with the precious metal. One of them passed along the street swinging his hat and shouting, "Gold! Gold! Gold from the American River!" Then San Francisco believed, and was thrown into a fever of excitement. Men hastened to sell their possessions that they might obtain means to journey to the gold-diggings. Row-boats, worth fifty dollars, were sold for five hundred to those wishing to sail up the bay into Sacramento. The price of shovels jumped from one dollar to ten dollars. Stores were rummaged for pick-axes and hoes to dig out gold, and for bottles, vials and brass tubes to hold it. By June, San Francisco was as if it had been swept by an epidemic; three-fourths of the male

Mainly About People.

Bishop Ropp, who was recently released by Lenin in exchange for Bolsheviks through the intercession of the Pope, has had a stormy 63 years of life. The Bolshevik held him a prisoner in Moscow for two years lodged for most of the time with desperate criminals. Bishop Ropp is now in Warsaw.

Young John D. Rockefeller, Jr. has upset family traditions by going into society. He gives swaggar dinners, introduces debutantes, entertains big people and is hoping to become a social leader. Old John D. doesn't give a rap for social activities and doesn't believe in them.

Pope Benedict has become so much interested in the movies that he has requested Monsignor Grassi, the abbot at Marino, with a committee of Cardinals to present films with a healthy story fitted for young people, as well as stories of a purely religious character, to spread Catholic propaganda throughout the world. The Catholic bishops of America will be asked to support this movement.

James H. Rawlinson, author of that stimulating little book, "Through St. Dunstan's to Light," who was himself blinded in the war, has taken up typewriting, and is now able to write as accurately and as speedily as some of the best experts. He speaks in glowing terms of the work done at St. Dunstan's. He made a somewhat surprising statement that there were less than two thousand soldiers of the entire British force who had lost their eyesight during the entire war. Canada's number was considerably under two hundred.

Daisy Ashford started it in England. Now London is overrun with youthful prodigies. There is one with a genius for art. The artist is aged 9, and her pictures of wiggly-legged men were shown at a big West End picture gallery. In Fulkham there is a collection of about 40 youngsters who run their own orchestra. Their ages run from 4 to 12, and they are all "talented violinists." At the Scala Theatre a play recently was produced in which about 50 juvenile actors and actresses took part. And last, but not least, we learn that when Daisy Ashcroft, then aged 8, was struggling with "Two Young Visitors," her younger sister, aged 5, was struggling with a masterpiece entitled "The Julius Governess." The story certainly is amusing, but it will not be published for fear of overdoing a good thing. All the same, "The Julius Governess" is getting a good show. It is being read to many audiences for the promotion of certain charities.

Ice-Boating.

It is difficult to picture anything more exhilarating than skimming over vast plains of ice at sixty miles an hour; but this is an intoxicating delight in which the Englishman, unless he has a long purse, must be content to indulge only in imagination.

The great lakes of America are the scenes of yacht-races compared with which the race for the "America Cup" is as tame and unexciting as a race between tortoises. Instead of bustling through the water at ten or a dozen miles an hour, with vexatious intervals of being becalmed, the American ice-yachts skim over the frozen lakes, swift as the swallow!

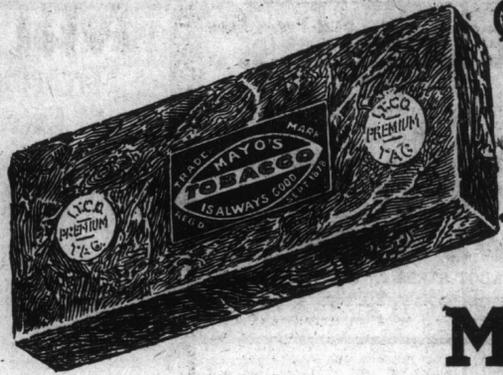

The champion ice-yacht, which belongs to a member of the Minnetonka Ice-Yacht Club, has a sail-area of nearly sixty square yards, a length of 33 feet, and a beam of 17½ feet. Under favorable conditions it has reached a speed of eighty miles an hour, and has covered ten miles on a triangular track in the space of 12½ minutes!

On the fjords of Norway, a favorite pastime is skate-sailing, which is no mean substitute for the less laborious ice-yachting. The skater, who is mounted on skates more than a yard long, holds in his right hand a bamboo pole, to which is attached a sail twice as high as himself.

In his left hand he holds a steering cord, with which he inclines the sail to a proper angle; and his bamboo rod is shod with steel, which he digs into the ice when he wishes to reduce his speed.

The Winter of '75.

During the hard winter of 1875, the thermometer, at times, registered a low temperature. On the night of February 18th it reached twenty-three below zero at Signal Hill. Four days later, February 20th, it recorded twenty below in the city. The latter, however, was said to be one of the coldest days ever experienced in St. John's.

Rough Luck!

"James, my lad," said the grocer to his new assistant, "who bought that mondy cheese to-day?"
"Mrs. Brown, sir," was the youth's reply.
"And the stale loaf we could not sell last night?"
"Mrs. Brown, sir."
"Where's that lump of rancid butter that the baker refused?"
"Mrs. Brown bought it cheap, sir," was the answer.
"And the six eggs that we could not sell a week since?"
"Mrs. Brown. Are you ill, sir?" asked James, as the grocer turned green and groaned.
"No, no; only I'm going to tea at Brown's to-night," replied the unhappy man, as he wiped the perspiration from his face and sank into a chair.
