The bishop's address today dwelt feelingly on the passing of the century, the death of Queen Victoria, and pointed out the universal unrest, of wars and the rumors of wars, and the struggle between capital and labor. He said that moral tone was relaxing and the standard of purity and honesty was being lowered. Although the census figures were not published, he believed that in the island the increase in population since 1891 was very slight. Only in Nanaimo and Victoria was the church self-supporting. present educational system of British columbia was wisely introduced in the first instance, and evidently then came to stay, as it has in a way kept nace with other developments. So, as a matter of fact, the question is not how it may be curtailed by voting down a requisite improvement, and thus really retroceding, but how it can be judiciously expanded and perfected, in order to meet the increasing wants of the province, and best fulfil its mission as one of the established and permanent institutions of the country—of vital necessity to its growth and prosperity, with which, indeed, it is inseparably connected as a chief factor. Up to a certain point, the large majority of people believe in free education, but many aver that a line should be drawn at the High school, and the taxpayers should not be called upon to provide for better qualifications that may be found in the different grade schools. I would, however, go further than even the High school, and one object of my communication is to invoke attention to the great want we have in this province of a much higher system than we have, and to Sir.—Can you kindly inform one out in the cold, what has become of our census collector that we were led to expect this way some time this year, 1901? Or were we misinformed as usual! Or is it as some up here will have it, that he has had grace given him to show up with his figures any time before 1911? One report has it that he met with an accident, was run over by a snail and was badly crippled thereby, and what gives color to this is that the snails have been very numerous this season, and from the fact that we have had nary a squint at Dennis, nor yet at his unstantiation columns of figures as yet. And as it is now 24th of June, we think that there will have to be some tall hustling done somewhere to be able to post Ottawa from this quarter of the Dominion.

Sitting Because of Heated Words.

Rome, June 29.—The debate in the Chamber of Deputies today on the conflict at Ferrara June 27, between agricultural strikers and soldiers, when some of the former were killed, became so superheated that the president was obliged to suspend the sitting.

Signor Giolitti, the minister of the Interior, replying to an intermaliation of Signor Giolitti, the minister of the Interior, replying to an interpollation on the subject, said he regretted the incident which was due to the introduction of foreign labor for harvesting. The government advised against foreign labor, but when the advice was not heeded it was obliged to safe-guard the liberty of the works. The strikers attacked the troops, and the latter fired and killed three men, and wounded a score.

MAINE HOSPITAL SHIP.

London, July 1.—The Earl of Selborne first Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the House of Lords today that he had great privilege to be associated in any way with so human and worthy an enterprise as that which engages the attention of your organization. It is a great pleasure to me to learn that your society has had another prospectory of the fact indicates not only that sufferers have been relieved, but also that many of our citizens have cheerfully contributed to that end. You, of course, appreciate the fact that besides contributing to the comfort of the sick, your efforts also incite and develop the generous impulses of the strong, and afford a convenient channel through which those impulses may find effective expression.

The latter is not less important than the former. It is very desirable that there should not be any unnecessary suffering but it is not less desirable that the fortunate should be awakened to their obligations to improve the condi-fering but it is not less desirable that the fortunate should be awakened to their obligations to improve the conditions of their less fortunate fellows.

The greatest moral calamity that could befall the race would be the recognition of selfish individualism as the legitimate pivot of human action, and perhaps there is no form of moral degradation which the conditions of modern life are more likely to produce. And it seems to me that of all the agencies likely to present such a calamity, none are better adapted to the purpose than those which call attention to the needs of suffering ones and thus awaken human sympathy in their behalf. For unless the lowest in their behalf. For until the lowest man hearts will respond to the eloquent appeal of physical suffering.

TIABOR TROUBLES.

It is a strange commentary upon the civilization of the Twentieth Century that industry may be paralyzed, in almost all its branches, at the bidding of a few irresponsible men, for such the persons who engineer strikes usually are. We do not claim that strikes are never to be justified. Our objection is to the and less expensive way of settling disputes between employers and employed. We do not use the expression Capital no antagonism between Capital and Labor. The troubles which arise are very frequently due to the narrow views of the mistaken agents of capital, and the equally parrow views of the leaders of organizations of working men. The interests of capital and labor are identical in the long run, and perhaps nothing has contributed more to the fostering of labor troubles than the theorectical antagonism between them, which designing men preach for objects which cannot be defended to any set of capitalists or any gathering of workingmen.

It must be obvious to the casual observer that an end must come to existing conditions. Common sense must prevail and discover some way whereby the weljeopardized by mistaken zeal or unreasoning stubbornness. We have no cutsoning stubbornness. We have no cutand-dried solution to propose; but it is

THE BRITISH CENSUS.

The population of the United Kingdom on March 31st was 41,454,578, which is an increase of 9.9 per cent. during the preceding decade. The details are as Excluding Ireland the increase would be about 12 per cent., which is very satisfactory, and in point of fact is somewhat remarkable. The decrease in Ireland is less than in the previous decade, as her own. The people are getting very Canadian or United States system, soldders and others temporarily absent beyond sea, would have been enumerated. and if this had been the case in the United Kingdom, the population would have reached probably 42,000,000.

The taking of censuses is a compara tively modern proceeding, and we are therefore at a loss for data for comparison with periods more than a century ago, and have not a very accurate supply of statistics even for the last hundred years. In June, 1837, the population of the United Kingdom was estimated at 15,103,778. The best authorities put the annual rate of increase in the United Kingdom since 1800 at .92 of one per cent. We have, however, the following data, which are official:

England and Wales had in 1831 a gain of 18,678,888 in seventy years. Scotland had 2,888,742 people in 1851, and has thus gained 1,582,209 in fifty years. Treland in 1812 had 6.801.827; the fig-

For the same reasons, in countries like Sweden and Norway, to which there has been substantially no immigration in historical times, if we go back a few centuries or possibly might seek to set up a republic. This would be the signal for the reason why the Scandinavian type of race is so pronounced. This Union Club, the object of which was to remove all customs barriers between the United States and the Dominion. The attempt fell through. It received some support in Canada, although no political party espoused the cause. In the United States it was given very short shrift. The people of that country would not believe which a rich region like the republic could possibly want. It was in vain that writers pointed out that Canada was the best customer of the United States. It was in vain that the immense supply of the raw materials of manufactures to be found in the Dominion was enlarged upon. Our neighbors persisted in looking upon us as a sort of poor relation clamoring to be recognized, and anxious to bask in the sunlight of their favors.

The state of the parties of the parties from the parties of the parties from the parties of the metric system is taught, and in Utah such instruction is compulsory. Since the United States has entered into an expansive commercial era, the necessity for having some generally recognized standard of weights and measures has become more apparent. A bill introduced in congress provides that oh January 1, 1903, the metric system of weights and measures shall be the legal standard throughout the country. This is one of several attempts which have been made to replace the complicated system now in general use in the United States by a more simple decimal system, and is favored by the officials of the treasury department. In one sense the United States was first in adopting the system, when, in 1785, congress declared the dollar of 100 cents to be the unit expressing the value of subsidiary coins in tenth, hundredth and thousandth parts thereof. If at that time all other units had been so regulated, the people would have been spared a great deal of confusion and the loss of time in making computations.

As early as 1817 the subject of adopting the metric system was agitated, and the agitation was renewed in 1830. In

The Colonist news room chapel had a Dominion Day celebration all to themselves. They hatched the plot with admirable cunning, chartered a naphtha alaunch, stole away in the dead hour of the night, and by unfrequented paths of travel reached their destination, a secluded grove in the vicinity of Esquimalt. Here, amid scenes of sylvan beauty, they abandoned themselves to wild revelry. They bearded the armored crab and dragged him from his ozy fast-nesses, the toothsome, but elusive, clam was artfully trapped by snares and gins devised by the devil, and other denizens of the deep were captured and immolated to appease their ravenous appetites, sharpened by the trip over the briny in the clear, cool hour of dawn. Nor did those festive typos depend entirely upon what the country afforded. In sundry baskets, packages, sacks, boxes, bottles, kegs and demijons, they brought various

The necessity for a reformatory is keenly felt at Vancouver. There have been at least twenty or twenty-five boys up in the police court during the months of this year alone for stealing and the like, who were fit subjects for a reformatory. Many of the less guilty were let go by the magistrate merely because he did not like to send them to herd with more hardened criminals in the provincial jail. Others he was forced to sentence. A reformatory will enable these boys to be properly punished without be ing further educated in crime.

THE COPPER KING.

From Kamloops Standard.

All arrangements have now been made to meet the second payment on the Copper King bond, payable on the 10th of July next, and part of the final payment in October is already assured. Mr. Percy W. Charleson, private banker and broker of Vancouver, Messrs. A. W. More & Co., will sell stock in Victoria, and arrangements are in progress for the appointment of agents in London, Rossland, Toronto and Montreal. Later on agents will be appointed in New York, San Francisco, Seattle, Tacoma and Spokane. The board of directors have at the present time under their consideration a most favorable proposition, which concerns the largest mining corporations operating in British Columbia. If this materializes, it would ensure development of the property on a very large scale. From Kamloops Standard.

SPOILED HER

Lady of The United States Who Went to Worship Flag and Lost Sealskin.

PATRIOTISM

Among the passengers who arrived by the steamer Islander a few days ago was an American woman with a one-time ardent love for the stars and stripes—a love which got an awful jar on her way out from Dawson. As most people are his adopted city and travel with an entraction of the stars and stripes—a love with a star word different with him. He had found London a "stony-hearted stepmother," and was about to abandon his art and his adopted city and travel with an entraction of the star word of the star wor aware, there is a strip of land at the head of Lynn canal where Uncle Sam has squatted and until the boundary question is settled, he is presumed to has squatted and until the boundary question is settled, he is presumed to own. The residents of this strip, who are loaded to the Plimsoll mark with "spread eagle," have many United States flags flying to the breeze.

At the extreme limit of this strip of land where the present boundary line is located, on the summit is a large copy of Old Glory at the top of a huge flagstaff, close by where the Union Jack marks the British side of the line. And here is where the American lady's patriotism was hurt.

She had left the river steamer at White Horse and embarked on the train. Arrived at the boundary the train stopped for the customary customs in spection, and the lady taking advantage of the stop, dropped her seal skin sacque on the seat of the railway carriage and rushed out to unload her surplus patriotic fervor beneath Old Glory.

She had caught sight of the flag from the train window as she sat beside her husband and her enthusiasm knew no bounds. "Oh, how glad I am to be in God's country again!" she exclaimed as she clapped her hands with ecstacy. "I must go out and stand upder the dear old flag"—and, with a little run to the car door she hurried to the flagstaff. She kodaked it, hugged it, and then, the excitement waning, she went back to join

The room he found crowded with men of all sorts and con-ditions; but as soon as he was recognized knives were drawn, and his last hour appeared to have arrived. By a heaven-sent inspiration, however, he made a certain sign, whereupon three or four men at once left the crowd and placed themselves on his side, and they not only got him safely away, but induced enough men to return with him to work his ship home again. were drawn, and his last hour ap-

Even during the present war the tie of brotherhood has been recognized both by Boers and Englishmen. A colonel of a Canadian regiment at Modder river, on a Sunday morning stroll, strayed too far from his camp, when he suddenly found himself covered by the rifle of a found himself covered by the rine of a Boer. By a fortunate impulse he made the customary sign, and cried out, "don't shoot,—." The Boer immediately threw down his gun and huried to the colonel, informing him that he belonged to "De Broederband" in Pretoria, and was a member of General Cronje's staff. to "De Broederband" in Pretoria, and was a member of General Cronje's staff. He begged him to return to his camp at once, and made him accept a valuable coin as a souvenir of his escape. The English "Rising Sun" lodge was allowed to meet at Bloemfontein throughout the war, and this as a special exception to the rule that no civilians were allowed to be out after 8 p. m. Of all the members of the Dutch lodge "Vryheid." it is said that not one remains, all having fallen in action. The same fate befell all the officers of the Ermolo lodge. We are told that, although four lodges in Natal was taken possession of by the Boers, no damage was done to any of the buildings. The following interesting extract from the American Tyler gives a further proof of this statement; "The masons of Dundee, one of the Natal towns in possession of the Boers, recentfurther proof of this statement; "The masons of Dundee, one of the Natal towns in possession of the Boers, recent-ly erected a very handsome masonic temly erected a very handsome masonic temple, and the structure was religiously respected by the Boers, though at one time some rebels attempted to loot the furniture. The only Englishman left in Dundee (allowed to remain with his wife, who was nursing a sick person) learned of the attempted looting, and, being a mason, notified a Boer whom he knew to be a mason. The Boer communicated at once with the commandant, and a guard was placed over the building which has remained intact ever since. Shortly after the town of Dundee was taken possession of by the Boers a grand court. $2. Several dogs, it seems. Shortly after the town of Dundee was taken possession of by the Boers a grand lodge certificate was discovered lying outside an Englishman's house, in the mud—the exodus having been so sudden that every one left with what they stood in. This fact came to the knowledge of a Boer commandant, who happened to be a mason, and this building, too, had a guard placed over it and was one of the few houses whose sanctity was respected."

THE LAST PICTURE. Strange Story About Hubert Herkome the Artist.

In a London despatch to the Montreal Witness appears the following story:
A peculiar story is attached to a picture already painted and in the possession of the King. This is Mr. Hubert Herkomer's water-color sketch of Queen Victoria, taken in the death chamber at Windsor the day after the Queen's death. Mr. Herkomer, or Von Herkomer, as he styled himself for the first time last year, is now one of the most successful artists in England. A good many years ago, however, affairs were old fag"—and, with a little run to the car door she hurried to the flagstaff. She kodaked it, hugged it, and then, the excitement waning, she went back to join hubby in the car.

Then came the trouble. While she had been making her obeisance to the flag as would a fetich to his idol, the cruel customs inspector of Uncle Sam had seized her seal skin sacque, for there is a customs regulation of the United States that no seal skins, whether raw or manufactured, are to be taken into the United States. She thought then that the United States government was the meanest one on earth, the customs officer was all kinds of mean things, and her one-time fervid patriotism had passed. She would rather be a native of Timbuctoo or any other old place than the United States. In that two or three days that followed ere she managed to coax,

"too sacred for publication." In spite of this, Mr. Herkomer had painted the picture and taken measures to secure its being widely seen and noticed. Before leaving Windsor he saw the King and asked him to accept the drawing, as it was too sacred and pathetic, he thought, for publication. Not thinking that he was abetting the artist in an act of ingratitude towards his employers, the King accepted the picture, and at the same time consented to its being exhibition is opened in May, one of the pictures which must, if only on account of its subject, attract universal attention, will be a striking example of "man's ingratitude to man," whatever may be its value as a work of art.

SIBERIAN RAILWAY.

Building the Road.

The working summer season in Siberia rarely exceeds 120 days, so that a great deal of the construction of the railway had to be done during the winter. The population is very scattered, as there are only about two inhabitants to the square verst (0.88 to the square mile): their avocations are exclusively pastoral and agricultural, so that the country contributes but little labor to the works. Roads, means of transport and materials of construction were practically wanting, and one of the most serious obstacles in the way of successful operations lay in the procuring and delivery of such materials at the site of the work. Timber was very scarce, and for the most part had to be brought enormous distances. The chief sources of supply were the district of Oufa, beyond Tcheliabiusk, and that of Tarsk, in the government of Tobolsk. The timber them at most of the men fell before the fire with which they were received. The others were met by a body of Russians. the guns placed in a recess of the Redan, and most of the men fell before the fire with which they were received. The others were met by a body of Russians, and the English officer was about to be quite of persone of mind enough to give him a masonic grip. The Russian. The Russian in a moment struck up the bayonets of his soldiers led his newly found brother to the rear, and treated him with the kindness of a mason."

The thinder of the third they dear the there of the Lirtych, and dealt with there at the sawmills; it was then transported by barges to the yard at Omsk, and delivered thence by cart on the works. A third source of supply was the Obi, whence timber was transported on the line by carting and rafting. All manufactured materials—bridge iron, plates, bars, rods, rails, rolling stock, cement, etc., were produced in the manufacturing centres of Europeau Russia, and were collected at three principal depots—at the terminal station at kindness of a mason."

An old clerical friend of mine vouches for the following: During the gold fever in California an acquaintance of his found himself in the harbor of San Francisco with his ship laden for return, but every seaman had deserted. The captain made enquiries in every direction, and at last ascertained that some of his men were hidden in a crimp's house in the dreaded Chinese quarter. The case was desperate, and so he took his life in his hand and went to the house in question, hoping to get some of them to return to the ship. The room he found crowded with men of all sorts and conditions; but as soon as he was recognized by any and his lest hour and the rower directed at three principal depots—at the terminal station at Tcheliabinsk by rail, and those of Omsk and Krivostchokovo (left bank of Obil, through Tumene and the navigable system of the Obi. The scarcity of ballast pits and their distance from the line were also serious obstacles, involving lengthy and difficult transport. Some of these pits lay at a distance of 26½ miles from the railway. Another difficulty was the scarcity of sub-contractors for the work and for transport, so that, with the exception of the bulk of the earthwork, the erection of the large bridges, and the laying and ballasting of the track, which were done by contract, all the other works and transport had to be undertaken departmentally. Want all the other works and transport had to be undertaken departmentally. Want of water, says engineering, was another serious difficulty, notwithstanding the abundance of lakes along the route. Most of these contained brackish water, unfit for drinking or steam purposes, and where the water was fresh it was usually frozen. Recourse was had to artesian borings in the case of seven stations, and at one crossing place; in no case, however, did the water reach the surface without pumping, and, al though superior in quality to the surface supply, it was so hard that in six cases chemical treatment had to be resorted to.

COLONIAL RESOURCES.

Where Canada Is a Source of Greatness to the Empire.

From Cassiar's Magazine.

The resources of Great Britain's colonies are her future strength. In the resources of Canada alone the British Empire possesses a guarantee of a continuance of commercial greatness. In all discussions on the present industrial crisis the importance of the colonies as a basis of supplies and as future fields of ent industrial vast industries has hardly been touched upon. It is the duty of a Canadian writer to call attention to the inestimable natural riches of the great Canadian Dominion. One reason why the Canadians have been so enthusiastic in favor of Imperial federation is because they realize that the hope of the British dian Dominion. One reason why the Canadians have been so enthusiastic in favor of Imperial federation is because they realize that the hope of the British Empire lies in the development of the colonies. It is to be regretted that the people of Great Britain and her public men have failed to awaken to the fact that a country as large, and in many respects as full of resources, as the United States, is theirs to develop. If the Brition is densely ignorant respecting the resources of Canada and other of the colonies, the American is not; he is cast. onies, the American is not; he is casting covetous eyes upon the vast country to the north of him, and already some of the most important industrial enter-prises in the development of the natural prises in the development of the natural wealth of Canada are due to Yankee "push" and alertness. It is most humiliating to every Canadian that their country is being exploited by American capitalists, while British money lies idle at home or is being sent to the United States to build up the power of the commercial enemy. There is plenty of room in Canada for all efforts that can be put into operation by British capital. commercial enemy. There is plenty of room in Canada for all efforts that can be put into operation by British capital during the present century, and the resources are simply illimitable. No one can deny that there is plenty of gold in the Atlin section, and it can best be secured through the hydraulic process. I have been two years in the district, and of its exceptional richness I am entirely sarisfied.

"The yield this year should be larger than ever before. And in time a good gold return will come through the operation of quartz mines in the Atlin section. Of those I have in mind now the Engineer and Gleaner are particularly promising. Both are situated on Taku Arm, and each, it has been demonstrated by development, is rich in native treasure."

J. Francis Lee, ge reral traffic manager of the White Pass & Yukon route, returned after a month's trip to Skagway, White Horse and other Upper Yukon points. He said:

white the said:

"While travel is not particularly heavy between Skagway and Dawson as yet, there has been an immense amount of freight traffic. At White Horse, where shipments are transferred from the railroad to the steamers, there was approximately 3,500 tons of freight for Dawson when I left a few days ago. This large volume of freight was being moved rapidly by the steamers and there is no blockade. In a general way, shipments to Dawson this season have been very heavy.

"Just before I left the steamer Daw-"Just before I left the steamer Dawson broke all records for the trip upstream from Dawson to White Horse, making the voyage in two days and nineteen hours. Last year the average time required for the up-river trip was about four days. Not a great many people are coming out, which is a good sign for Dawson. The camp is in a very prosperous condition, and the outlook is that the annual clean-up will be heavier than ever before in the history of the country."

Haines mission passengers of the Victorian report that the Chilkat river steamer H. D. Gardner was totally destroyed by fire Sunday a week ago near Jones Point, Chilkat inlet. It is claimed that the fire was of incendiary origin, having been started by the Chilkat Indians, whose attitude has ever been against the opening up and development of that section of Alaska.

The grounds for accusing the Indians

The grounds for accusing the Indians were that as this boat was destined to run on the Chilkat it would take away the freighting and passenger business which the Indians with their canoes have enjoyed since the Dalton trail was open-ed. Would Like to Stay .- William T. Gib-Would Like to Stay.—William T. Gibbins, a Winnipeg grain broker and Canadian agent for that wonderful curative invention, the Oxodonor, is in the city on a business and pleasure trip. Mr. Gibbins is delighted with the Coast and declares he would make his home here did not his business interests compel him to remain in Winnipeg. He had intended remaining a month in British Columbia but is obliged to shorten his stay in order to meet a brother, whom he has not seen for years, who is now en route from England to visit him at Winnipeg.

Will be Tried.—In the police court this morning Mrs. E. R. Patterson, who as stated in the Colonist on Sunday, was brought from Seattle by a private detective, will be charged with theft. Mrs. Patterson says she came against her will, while the detective told the police that she was desirous of coming over. The manager of the Westside did not know what the coat which she admits having stolen from that store on May 25 was missing until the woman was taken into the store by the detective. The only reward the detective could look for for bringing her back would come from the parties from whom the coat had been stolen, and it hardly seems likely that they would take chances on this, especially as they had only the word of a known shop-litter for the fact that the coat was in the Victoria pawn shop. It might be that the authorities saw a good opportunity of getting rid of a troublesome customer and shipped her to Victoria.

Broke Camp.—The Fifth Regiment broke camp on Sunday morning after two weeks of practical work as soldiers, that is as practical as it can be provided without real war. The men seemed to enjoy their two weeks under canvas, although many of them found it difficult to creep out before 5 o'clock in the morning after a late evening. Within the past year or two the people of Michigan have had their attention most emphatically called to the existing commercial relations between the commercial relations and commercial relations between the commercial relations and commercial relations between the commercial relations and commercial relations between the commercial relations between the commercial relations and the commercial relations between the commercial relations and the commercial relations between the commercial relations and the commercial relation by Senator Burrows, with the consequent retaliatory measures adopted at Toronto, resulting in the closing of the east shore mills and a most disappointing showing for Saginaw, Bay City and other Michigan cities in the recent federal census. Next the industrial developments at the Soo, which, in the space of a few months should greatly increase the population of the American town, but tariffs compelled the location of the larger and more important plants on the Canadian side. This served to renew discussion, and to compel recognition of the fact that our present customs system has outlived its usesupplies of the raw materials for many of our principal lines of productive industry are practically unlimited. We want these raw materials, and we want them delivered at our mills and factories on terms which will make their profitable working possible. So long as our own resources were sufficient, for our industrial activities, it was profitable, perhaps, to maintain tariffs which would keep our northern neighbors out of our markets. If so that time has passed, and now we must consider a fresh aspect of the case.

Hon. John Charlton, member of the Canadian parliament, and of the joint high commission, which has in charge the consideration of future commercial relations between the two countries, made a speech recently at Boston that seems to have attracted less attention than it deserves. While there was nothing in it which can be distorted into a threat, he pointed out clearly that the

SAVED BABY'S LIFE.

Mrs. Sadie Nichols, Brockville, Ont., says:—When my baby was six weeks old she was very sick. We had the doctor, but she did get any better. All day Christmas we watched for her to die. Acting on a friend's advice I got some BABY'S OWN TABLETS and gave them to poor sick baby, and they relieved her wonderfully. They saved my baby's life. All the time she was teething I gave the Tablets whenever necessary, and they kept her just right. She is now a big, healthy child, thanks to the Tablets, and she gets them whenever out of sorts.

Men who lack the vigor and snap of youth, who have 'grown old" too soon; who have been debilitated and weakened by mental overwork, worry, youthful errors of later excesses, who would care for an honest opinion as to the possibility of having such power returned-to these I am pleased to offer my advice and consultation free. During my 30 years' experience as a specialist I have tested all medicines known to science for such disorders, and I pledge my word that not one case out of every hundred can be cured by drugs. The reason is that stimulants must be used, and after treatment is left off the trouble returns. The best and surest remedy I have found to be the pure galvanic current of Electricity PROPERLY applied. I would have no reason for saying this were it not true, for I can give medicines if the patient desires. I pin my faith to Electricity because it is a NATURAL cure, and does not STIMULATE, but STRENGTHENS; hence the results are permanent. Every one has heard more or less of the Dr. Sanden Electric Belt, but I now offer in my 1901 Dr. Sanden
