Baptist Church Dedicated

An Important Event Takes Place at Deep Brook

Sunday, Oct 12th, was a great day for the Baptist of Deep Brook, marking as it did the dedication of their beautiful church to the worship of God. In spite of the high cost of material and the many difficulties naturally associated with building at this special time this courageous little band of workers was not deterred. They laid their plans and began work last May. The old hall, which had served them so long as a place of worship, has been made into an imposing church building, a credit to the Baptist denomination in Nova Scotia. An addition of 8 feet has been made to the rear, making a pastor's room possible. An unpretentious belfry adds much to the external appearance while the exterior decorations, done under the supervision of Mr. A. L. Bishop, of Bridgetown leave nothing to be desired in the way of neatness and artistic beauty. The builder in charge of work was H. E. Snell, of Bear River. The pastor, Rev. A. N. McNinch, the trustees of the church and L. E. Sherman composed the very efficient building committee.

The cost of the entire work was about $2,800.00. A most interesting feature to an onlooker is the splendid success attained financially by these people to date. The beautiful Memorial window in front containing the names of the boys who gave themselves for us in the great war, was a gift of the young people. The returned soldiers, the "Plus Ultra" and the "Golden Circle" classes were responsible for this gift at a cost of $325.00. These classes owe much of their success to the efficient labors of their teachers. The bell was the gift of the Senior deacon, Capt. W. W. Spurr and family in loving memory

PRINCE TO GIVE CALARGY LADY HUSBAND'S MEDAL

Late Capt Skene Won Military Cross To be Presented at Lethbridge

A Calgary lady, Mrs. S. D. Skene, will be presented by the Prince of Wales, at Lethbridge on Thursday, with the military cross won on the battlefield, by her husband the late Capt. Stanley Skene, who was killed in action last year. The investiture was to have taken place at Calgary, when other decorations were made by the prince but through a misunderstanding Mrs. Skene was not notified in time for the investiture and the military authorities have arranged that she shall receive the decoration at the investiture to take place at Lethbridge on Thursday when the prince will spend a few hours there on his way east.

The late Capt. Skene, who was a barrister in Calgary went overseas in February 1917, with the Queen's university battalion he having been a graduate of that university. On reaching the front lines he was attached to the 15th battalion. Capt. Skene was awarded the military cross for gallant work on September 27, 1918, when his unit became cut off in some of the severe fighting which characterized the last two months of the war. It was shortly after this that Capt Skene was killed, while leading his men in action. [The above is reprinted from a Calgary paper. The Mrs. Skene above mentioned is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Weatherspoon, of Granville Ferry. She visited her former home while her husband was overseas, returning west last April and has again taken up her oratory teaching as principal of that Department of Mount Royal College, Calgary.—Ed. MONITOR]

AWARDED THE MILITARY CROSS

An Annapolis correspondent sends the following: Mrs. Bernard Shipton, widow of Lieut Bernard Shipton, whose parents reside in Round Hill, unfortunately suffered severe injuries on the evening of Sept 23rd, being knocked down by a motor as she was crossing the street close to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Woodward where she was staying. Her little son also had his leg broken. Their injuries necessitated both of them being conveyed to the Royal Jubilee Hospital. As Mrs. B. Shipton was thus unable to be present on Parliament Square Victoria B. C., amongst other recipients of decorations from the hands of the Prince of Wales, the unfortunate accident was mentioned in his Royal Highness and he with characteristic kindness visited the Children's Ward of the hospital on Sunday afternoon Sept 29th, and pinned on Mrs. Bernard Shipton the Military Cross awarded to her husband for conspicuous gallantry at Paschaendale a few days before he was fatally wounded on Nov 1, 1917.

Death of Minard D. Bent

After a lingering illness of over seven years in which a heroic fight was fought for life, Minard D. Bent passed peacefully away early on the morning of Oct 2nd, at his home at Granville Ferry aged 58 years. Deceased was the second youngest son of the late Henry and Olive (Miller) Bent and was born at Granville Centre where he resided until two years ago, when ill health compelled him to leave the farm. Mr. Bent was a man of keen intellect and sagacious kind ness principles. He made farming a study and was most successful. He was an ardent member and loyal supporter of All Saints Church and when health permitted was always in his place and will be much missed by that body. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow formerly Miss Lucretia Langille, of Mahone Bay, who tenderly and faithfully cared for him during his long illness, one brother Rev. A. M. Bent rector of Kentville also one sister Mrs. Weston Harris, Bear River. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. R. A. Penny on Saturday afternoon. Interment was in the family lot in the churchyard of All Saints.

Cameron Eats Better, Sleeps Better and Works Better After Taking Tanlac

"Yes, sir, I can recommend Tanlac for it is set me right several months ago and I have been in the pink of health ever since." D. Cameron, who made this statement while discussing his experience with a Tanlac representative, recently living at 621 Cambia St., Vancouver and is fireman at the Northern Construction Company's Shipyards. Mr. Cameron has made Vancouver his home for the past thirty years and is known to hundreds of people throughout the city.

"It has been more than a year now explained Mr. Cameron, "that I lost my appetite and my stomach began troubling me. For eight months that is from the time my trouble first started until I got relief by taking Tanlac I suffered more than I can find words to tell. My stomach was so upset that at times I could not even bear the sight of food. Many a time I have had to get up and leave the table without eating anything on account of being nauseated. What little I did manage to eat at any time would sour and bloat me up so with gas that I would have to unbuckle my vest and let my belt out in order to get a good breath. And sometimes this gas would cause my heart to palpitate so hard and fast that I could almost hear it and I would get so dizzy that I would have to grab hold of something to keep from falling and hurting myself. I also had pains under my heart that almost cut off my breath and was so nervous that the last noise would startle me. I could never get a good night's sleep and would get up in the mornings so tired and worried that I felt absolutely unfit for work.

But my lucky day came around at last, when some of the boys down at the shipyards got to telling me how Tanlac had helped them and persuaded me to try it. So I did and the results have been nothing less than remarkable. After using three bottles and that was some time ago I was feeling as strong and well as I ever did and I am still feeling that way. I picked up eight pounds while taking it and am still holding on to that increase. My appetite is so big that meal time comes too slow for me and I don't believe anyone in Vancouver has a better stomach than I have. I am never troubled any more with gas palpitation of the heart or shortness of breath and I never have a pain or a dizzy spell. And sleep; why, I never wake a single time during the night and I always go up in the mornings feeling fine and I am ready at any time to account feeling any more. Tanlac has certainly done me a world of good and I am ready at any time to recommend it."

Lawrencetown Library Note

The meeting at Inglisville was slimly attended owing to the busy season, but nine members were secured. Here are the names: Mr. L. M. Beals, Mrs. L. M. Beals, Mr. Fred Bartheaux, Mrs. W. H. Merry, Mr. Lorne Banks, Mr. Hartley Banks, Miss Elva Gaul, Mr. Aubrey Gaul. Some body said twenty five members could not be secured in the community but it will do better than that. A few years ago Inglisville did not raise sufficient apples for home consumption. This year it will market in the neighborhood of 3,000 barrels. South Williamston and Clarence are already interested and the President has designs upon North Williamston, Brickton, Brooklyn, Paradise and Albany. Think of it? For the cost of two pounds of butter a whole family can have access to 500 books for a whole year. Who says nothing is cheap in these days? The drive for the one hundred new books will begin in about two weeks. Here is an opportunity for the investment of influence. Never kick a live wire when it is down.

Wintering Bees In Cellar vs Outside

(Experimental Farms Note)

In all parts of Canada it is necessary to provide some protection for the bees during the long cold winter months in order to obtain the best results from them. This protection can be given in two ways either by placing the whole apiary in a special repository or cellar, or by packing the bees in cases outside. In the colder parts of Canada such as the prairie provinces and the northern parts of Ontario and Quebec, while it may be possible to winter outside if sufficient packing is given, it would be safer to winter in the cellar. In the warmer regions outside wintering appears to be equally as good as cellar wintering.

The first essentials for successful wintering inside are that the cellar should be well insulated against the variations in outside temperatures, it should be dry and the temperature should be regulated so as to stand at 48 to 50 F. Very little ventilation is required. The bees should not be disturbed any more than is absolutely necessary during the entire winter. For outside wintering cases can be used that will hold one or more colonies, one holding four colonies appears to be the most desirable. The cases should be large enough to allow from 3 inches to 6 inches of packing on the bottom and four sides and 10 inches on top. For packing either planer shavings, forest leaves, or chaff can be used. There should also be a windbreak around the apiary. An evergreen hedge or an eight foot board fence are the best.

Before deciding which method to adopt, the beekeeper should study his conditions and what he has available. If he has a good cellar meeting the above requirements, it would be advisable for him to use it especially if he has only a few colonies. Under other conditions it may be easier and cheaper for him to build cases and winter outside. There is more labour attached to packing bees in the fall and unpacking in the spring than there is in carrying the bees into the cellar and out again. On the other hand bees in the cellar will need more attention during the winter. As a rule bees packed outside do not need attention from the time they are packed until they are unpacked in the spring, whereas the cellar will need cleaning up and temperature regulated throughout the winter.

Both methods of wintering have been tried for a number of years at the Experimental Farm Ottawa. The bees wintered inside are placed in the cellar beneath the Bee Building, and those wintered outside are placed in quadruple cases with planer shavings used as a packing and an eight foot board fence as a windbreak. The average loss of bees in the cellar is nil against 5.4% for outside while the consumption of stores does not show much difference; for the cellar it was 21.3 lbs. against 23.8 lbs for those in the cases. The average number of combs covered in the spring shows an advantage for those wintered outside, being 5.4 against 5.0 for the cellar. These figures are taken from October 11, when the bees were packed outside and April 15 when the bees were removed from the cellar. It has also been found that sealed covers have given better results at Ottawa than upward ventilation, also that 3 inches of packing gives as good results as 6 inches.

In comparing the above figures, it will be found that there is a greater risk of loss from outside wintering especially during a very cold winter as in 1917-18 when our loss occurred that the consumption of store differs but very little in the two methods. Also that the bees wintered outside were somewhat stronger in the spring.

PAINFUL NEURALGIA

Is Caused by Thin, Watery Blood and Cured by Enriching the Blood

Most people think of neuralgia as a pain in the head or in the face but neuralgia may affect any nerve in the body. Different names are given to it when it affects certain nerves. Thus neuralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the pain and the nature of the disease are the same. The cause being the same, the cure to be effective must be the same. The pain in neuralgia is caused by starved nerves. The blood which carries nourishment to the nerves has become thin and impure and no longer does so, and the pain you feel is the cry of the nerves for their natural food. You may ease the pains of neuralgia with hot applications, but you can only cure the trouble by enriching and purifying the blood. For this purpose we know of no medicine that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood and thus act as the most efficient of nerve tonics. If you are suffering from this most dreaded of troubles, or any form of nerve trouble, give these pills a fair trial and see how speedily you will be restored to good health. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fire at Digby

DIGBY, October 14—The residence of John VanTassell was totally destroyed by a fire which broke out about 3.30 this afternoon. The house was situated near the golf links. Mrs. VanTassell had put a baking of bread in the oven and then went to the orchard to gather apples. A few minutes afterwards she saw flames coming through the roof. The downstairs furniture was largely saved. There was $1000 insurance, but it would cost $2500 to $3000 to rebuild the house today.

VETERAN ACTOR VISITS US

H. Price Webber Managed Flora Myers Company Which Opened Farwell & Ames Hall

(From the Rockland, Maine Courier Gazette)

He breezed into The Courier Gazette office the other morning and inquired for the editor. It was press morning and he was told editor was quite too busy to see strangers. But he handed in his card at the business office and it straightway proved the open sesame to anything this news paper affords—press morning or no press morning. The card read:

H. PRICE WEBBER

Manager Boston Comedy Co. 1875-1918

It was 48 years ago that the veteran actor made his first visit to Rockland, then in the capacity of agent for the Flora Myers New York Theatre Co., whose prestige never suffered from the fact that it was selected to give the opening theatrical entertainment in Farwell & Ames hall. There are still in existence a few of the pink silk handbills which were used to distinguish that event. The company stayed six weeks, playing an extended repertoire which began with "East Lynne" and ended with—but never mind what it ended with, so long as East Lynne was there.

The historic opening date was Christmas Day, and local interest attached to this company's appearance for the reason that it bore the name of a Rockland woman. Flora Myers was formerly Flora Pillsbury, and her husband was A. W. Purcell, manager of the company. Their daughter, Pearl Purcell who is remembered by older theatre-goers as remarkably attractive in her girlhood, is now secretary to a department of the New York Board of Health.

Mr. Webber was with the Flora Myers Company two years, and then joined the Marietta Ravel Company which also came to Rockland, and played a week stand to more than $2000 business. The repertoire included "The French Spy," "The Angel of Midnight," "Flowers of the Forest," and "The Dumb Girl of Genoa."

In 1875 Mr. Webber succeeded to the management of the Boston Comedy Company, which was then in the sixth year of its existence. In this city he had already formed the acquaintance of John B. Porter of the Rockland Gazette, Oliver Otis of the Opinion and Edwin Sprague of the Free Press. With the establishment of the Rockland Courier there was added to Mr. Webber's list of journalistic acquaintances the present editor of The Courier-Gazette, W. O. Fuller. Mr. Fuller's partner A. H. Jones had known Mr. Webber from boyhood.

One day Mr. Webber was needing some programs in haste. This was also a press day, and the manager was informed that it couldn't be done.

"But if I set the type myself?" asked Mr. Webber.

"That's some more of your joking," as the only reply vouchsafed by Mr. Fuller.

But Mr. Webber wasn't joking a bit. He had been more or less of a printer in his day, and seizing a stick began to put his program in type. Needless to say he got what he wanted.

Many, many times since then Mr. Webber has gone into newspaper offices and helped set his programs. "I suppose I could take a hack at the case now," he told the reporter.

Theatrical history is full of tributes to Mr. Webber's skill as an actor. In 43 years he averaged 300 performances, matinee and evening, and was never out of the bill, although so sick on one occasion that he had to be carried to the theatre on a blanket. He knows what it means to be down to the depths of poverty, and to rise to the heights of affluence. In Madrid, N. Y., he played to an audience one night which consisted of one couple. In St. John, N. B., where he was always a great favorite, he played before an audience which netted the box office $735.40. He re-visited that city two years ago, and gave a monologue.

Mr. Webber speaks in highest terms of Mrs. Eula Whitman of this city, who was for four years a highly valued member of the Boston Comedy Company, and who was a close personal friend of Mrs. H. Price Webber, whose death has lately been announced. "I have always felt that Mrs. Whitman made a great mistake in leaving the stage," said Mr. Webber.

Since last October Mr. Webber has been manager, and a very successful one, of an opera house in Parrsboro, N. S. He also serves as press correspondent for a number of Provincial dailies, and scored a

"I Hope Every City and District Will Win My Flag"

When Edward, Prince of Wales—eager, bright-eyed, smiling and sincere—arrived in Canada in August, and when he voiced his great admiration of the wonderful achievements of Canadians, on the fields of battle and at home, once again we were thrilled with joyous pride.

He asked concerning Canada's reconstruction programme, and when he was told of the Victory Loan 1919, he graciously consented to the use of his Coat of Arms on a flag, which is to be the prize of honour for districts achieving their quota in the loan.

In dedicating "The Prince's Flag" at Ottawa on Labor Day, His Royal Highness said in part—

"It is a great joy to me to be associated with the loan, which is the bridge between war and peace, and which is finishing off the job."

"I hope every city and district will win my flag."

Striking, and beautiful in design, this flag will form not only a unique memento of Victory Year, but a lasting and outstanding souvenir of the visit of His Royal Highness—a visit which will remain as one of the most memorable events in Canada's history.

The reproduction above shows the design of the flag. The body is white, the edge red; in the upper left hand corner is the Union Jack, and in the lower right hand corner the Prince of Wales' Coat of Arms.

The flag is made in two sizes, 4 feet 6 inches by 9 feet for small cities, towns and villages, and 7 feet by 13 feet 6 inches for cities of over 10,000 population.

Canada has been divided into canvassing districts by the Victory Loan Organization. Each city forms one district. Other districts have been determined according to population.

Each of these canvassing districts has been allotted a certain amount in Victory Bonds to sell. To win the Prince's Flag, therefore, a district has to sell its allotment. That is the one and simple condition.

Anticipating that many districts will buy far beyond their allotment, the organization decided that for each twenty-five per cent. excess of the quota one Prince of Wales' Crest be awarded. Thus the workers in a district doubling its quota will be the proud winners of four small crests for their Honour Flag. These crests will be sewn to the flag. The Prince's Crest—the three ostrich plumes—is shown at the top of the coat of arms.

To every organization with fifty or more employees, where seventy-five per cent. of the enrollment invests a total of ten per cent. of the annual payroll in Victory Bonds, a supplementary Prince of Wales Flag in smaller form—48 inches by 34 inches—will be awarded.

The allotment for each district has been carefully considered, and is based on a conservative estimate of the purchasing power of the district.

Your district can sell its allotment and thus win the Prince's Flag, provided each person does his or her share.

You will gladly do your part and encourage your neighbour to do his.

Remember YOUR purchase may be the one that decides whether or not your district is to be the proud possessor of the Prince's Flag.

The Prince's Motto is "I Serve" Will You also Serve?

CANADA'S LARGEST ENGINEERING PROJECT
Hydro-Electric Power Commission Carrying on Wonderful Power Development Work at Niagara Falls—A Second Panama Canal

Operating the largest shovels in the world, and reversing the flow of a river, the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario is carrying on an enormous engineering project at Niagara Falls, practically without the use of steam.

There are many startling phases to this work, which is the largest engineering feat attempted in the Dominion of Canada, and the biggest engineering job at present being carried on in the North American continent.

In order to get water to the new power house which will be erected just above Queenston, the Commission will utilize four and a quarter miles of the Welland River, causing this sluggish stream to flow backward and to take water from the Niagara River instead of emptying into it above the Falls. Connecting with the Welland River is a power canal, stretching from Queenston and encircling the city of Niagara Falls, Ont., which will be eight and a quarter miles long when completed.

The original survey for the Niagara development was made in 1914, and the construction work began in May, 1917. The commission expects to have the new plant in working order in 1922. War conditions handicapped the engineers, but this year's operations were begun on a gigantic scale. A trip over the site of the way will impress the observer with the vast scope of the undertaking which, in its completed state, will cost approximately $27,000,000.

Two miles above the brink of Niagara Falls a steam dredge is gnawing away at the channel of the Welland River, removing in generous chunks the river bottom and the portion of the historic creek. The entrance to this historic creek, engaged on the entire Niagara development which are not owned by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. They, with six or seven switch engines, are the only apparatus in use on the development which require steam in their operation.

Even the drills employed on the rock deposits of the canal right of the canal operated by air, electrically compressed. A mile or two inland a huge clamshell swung from an aerial cableway, drops into the river and then emerges, bringing with it generous bites from the river bottom, which are deposited on the river bank at the foot of the tower from where the operator directs the activities of the clamshell. Deposits of earth and clay along the north bank of the river reveal the effectiveness of the clamshell in this particular portion of the development.

A short ride from Niagara Falls over new roadways built by the commission from crushed limestone removed from its right of way, brings one to the canal proper, where the activities of huge electric shovels, electric trains and gangs of

FAMOUS LIARS

(Aubrey Fullerton in the Bullman)

To walk for 15 days across virgin country and to set foot upon ground was such travelling as even the wonder books tell of but one. It was in the jungles of Peru where the woods were so dense that an unaided explorer who lost his way was able to move only along the tops of the trees. After two weeks of elevated transit he regained his comrades and came to earth; otherwise he would likely have continued on the tree-tops for weeks longer.

The story is according to Joseph Acosta, a Spaniard who in 1590 wrote a "Natural and Moral History" of the extravaganzas as found in the records of American travel.

Perhaps the first tall story in our own America was that one about the fountain of youth on Bimini Islands. It was told to Juan Ponce de Leon by the Indians in 1513, and their version of it was that old men who desired themselves of the infirmities of age, presumably including wrinkles, bald headedness and rheumatism had but to bathe in this wonderful fountain to renew their youth. Bimini was thought to be somewhere in the Bahamas, and Ponce de Leon sailed away in search of it. It is a pity he never found the island or the bath. He found Florida instead, and to 1,000 medicine makers of late times it was left to discover the elixir of life.

Another wonder tale, about Gougou a bad creature that lived near Chaleur Bay, was no less credulous for a man of his high rank, succeeded in only half shaking off the spell of this particular stretch which was vouched for to him by one M. Prevost. The story originated with the Indians, who were the masters liars of their day. Gougou, they said, was a monster in woman's shape that ate full sized men, and was big enough to swallow ships. The savages were all afraid of her and ran miles to get away from the sound of her hissing. "If I were to set down all they tell," says Champlain naively, "it would be thought fabulous."

Chief Donnacona when Jacques Cartier met at Quebec in 1535, had a merry time in describing to his visitors the wonders of the St. Lawrence country. It was a land of gold mines and rubies, rich beyond telling; but his greatest marvels were a race of one legged people, who lived somewhere up river and an even more remarkable people who never ate. Old Donnacona prize story teller of his day, paid for his genius however for his stories so entertained and impressed Cartier that he carried him off to France to repeat them at court.

Though the primitive Indians were the originators of American extravaganzas they were not always boosters. Many of their stories were of the alarmist kind, intended rather to discourage than to invite further travel.

Some credit must be given, for instance to the fakir Nikanape, an Illinois brave who made up a safety first yarn for LaSalle in 1680. LaSalle with his own ingenious scribe, Father Hennepin, was at Peoria Lake on the Illinois River, and was minded to go ca down the Mississippi. But Nikanape had other plans for the visitors and that he talk things over with them he invited them to dinner. At this feast he expressed the desire that his honorable guests would not continue their journey. It really wasn't safe. The "Meschisipi" was full of crocodiles, tritons and serpents and its bank were peopled by barbarous and bloody Nations whom they could not hope to resist. Nor was that all. "The river is so full of rocks and falls toward its mouth," Nikanape went on, "that the rapidity of the current cannot be mastered, which will carry your barque into a horrid whirlpool that swallows up everything that comes near it and even the river itself which appears no more rising itself in that hideous and bottomless gulf."

One of the Illinois men afterward told LaSalle that Nikanape's story was a down right forgery. But the chances are that LaSalle, who was a good sport appreciated none the less the liar's ingenuity and manner of execution.

To the same fictions family belongs the story that was told to Sir Alexander Mackenzie when in 1780 he went down the great lone river of the Far North. In the Great Slave country he was informed by native romancers that old age would come upon him before he could see to the mouth of the river and back that indescribably horrible monsters would beset him on the way and that even if he got by these, there were two waterfalls in the river that were quite impassable.

A little farther on Mackenzie was told that the extreme North was inhabited by people of gigantic stature, with wings who killed men and beasts by simply looking at them.

Nicholas De Vignau was a merry liar in Champlain's expedition. He had volunteered on the eve of his leader's return to France, to remain behind and winter with the Indians. In 1612 he was back in Paris, with a fine collection of wonder tales. He had traveled far he said and made great discoveries which he glibly recounted at court and out of court. The net result was that Champlain all too trustfully accepting what he heard set out upon another voyage of exploration to Canada taking Vignau with him.

It was not till he had reached the heart of the Ottawa country, and had undergone tremendous hardship of forest and river travel that the truth leaked out. There was trouble in the camp when the honest and confiding Champlain found that Vignau was an impostor and that his winter of supposed adventuring had in fact been spent quietly in an Ottawa Indian's cabin.

Hennepin, too was a master hand at romancing. As companion to LaSalle he shared in the glories of his chief's discoveries and in a most entertaining journal of the expedition told how it all was done. His original story, apart from some exaggerations and a tendency to magnify his own part in the enterprise has been pronounced fairly accurate.

But when LaSalle had died, another editor of the journal came out in which Hennepin claimed to have himself been the discoverer of the Mississippi instead of LaSalle having sailed it to its mouth. He had concealed the fact he said, out of defence to his leader who wished the glory of the discovery. To back up his claim he gave a record of the voyage and a description of the route so detailed and intimate as to appear quite beyond question.

It developed long afterward that Hennepin had borrowed his narrative in large pieces from the journal of a brother priest who really had accompanied LaSalle on his descent of the river in 1681, Hennepin having then gone upon a side expedition of his own in the Illinois country. The descriptions were, therefore reasonably true to fact and Hennepin had nothing to do but at fitting intervals to put in his own name as a hero. Sometimes he betrayed himself however, as in claiming a speed of 60 miles a day when 29 would have been exceptionally good. He was thus not only one of the first liars on the American travel book list but he was the thorough going plagiarist.
