The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Harold Campbell Vaughan Memorial Library
Acadia University.

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol  $\rightarrow$  (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol  $\nabla$  (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

Harold Campbell Vaughan Memorial Library
Acadia University.

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole  $\rightarrow$  signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole  $\nabla$  signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

Outline Sketch of Quebec's Winter Carnival

Quebec lends itself impressively to Carnival spectacles, but the absence of sufficient hotel accommodation has hitherto debarred it from holding a Winter Carnival. With the opening of the Hotel Frontenac, one of those magnificent creations of the C. P. R. officials, with its site of unsurpassed beauty—with its other two new hotels, the Florence and Royal Albion, with first-class accommodation for a thousand guests—with the old stand-by the St. Louis, remodelled and under new management, it was decided that the time had come for Quebec to show to the world that it, too, could evolve from its winter's ice and snow a series of fairy-like creations that would out-rival all previous efforts, and that the people, so far from hibernating in winter, were very keenly alive, and eager participants in all outdoor life, and amusements.

A winter Carnival is a wild revelry of fun in the cold crisp air of a Canadian winter, so charged with invigorating ozone that one is inspired to live out of doors, and to indulge in all sorts of invigorating exercise from the sheer necessity of letting off steam.

Tobogganing, that most exciting and exhilarating of sports, is indulged in by young and old of both sexes, and day and night the slides will be in constant use by gay parties of brightly dressed tobogganers. Snowshoeing has legions of devotees, and the snowshoe clubs of Quebec are one of its great social features. Caparisoned in the lively colors of tunique and uniform the clubs present a gorgeous spectacle in their "march out." Carolling in the low snug little sleighs peculiar to the city, wrapped in warm fur robes, behind a lively little Canadian pony, with a good natured cicerone of a driver, is a dream of comfort and pleasure as you are whisked along the well kept roads with a panorama of unparalleled beauty before you in whichever direction you turn.

Skating in a magnificent covered rink to the accompaniment of a good band is not to be among the least attractive features of the Carnival, and the fancy-dress ball to be given on skates will be a sight long to be remembered. Canadians are most expert dancers on skates, and a waltz in which hundreds of oddly costumed people take part is a most singular display of terpsichorean skill. We would advise all visitors to bring their skates with them, as the rinks will all be open to visitors during Carnival week upon the payment of a small entrance fee.

Hockey matches between all the important clubs will be played, and to those who have never seen the game a real treat is in store. It is fully as exciting as football. And by the way, what do you think of Lacrosse on skates. This, too, is a Canadian invention and is quite as lively as when otherwise played.

Curling, to which our worthy Scotch friends are so much addicted, will be given due prominence and some good bonspiels may be expected.

Snowshoe races, steeplechases, championship skating races and other winter games will be under the direction of the Q.A.A.A. and much fine sport will be looked for, as the prizes offered will be an attraction to all the champions of clubs from sister cities.

Instead of an ice palace, as in Montreal, Quebec will erect a vast ice fortress on the old walls that were so unsuccessfully assaulted by General Montgomery in 1775. And by the way a monument in ice to Gen. Montgomery in fine simile of the one on the front of St. Paul's Church in New York will be built on the spot where the General's remains lay for 40 years before removal to New York.

On one night of the week the ice fortress will be assaulted by the combined snowshoe clubs led by an experienced officer. The defence will in all probability be by troops now in garrison here. The illumination and pyrotechnic display following will be a grand one. General Herbert has signified his intention to co-operate with the Committee, and a grand military review on the Plains of Abraham, the troops on snowshoes, the artillery on traineaux is decided upon.

Toboggan and sled slides there are in numbers and all of them are to be open to visitors. Snowshoe races, hockey matches, curling bonspiels, skating, all have their place. The grand ball will be given in the Parliament House which will accommodate 1500 guests. A fancy carnival drive with many odd features of life in the North is among the list of attractions. There will be about half a dozen ice structures, and some very beautiful ice statues. A sugar camp, a lumbermen's shanty, and several Indian encampments are also on the list.

Other features there will be in plenty, but our space does not permit of an extended description, and we must refer the reader to the official programme in this little work.

We must, however, say a word for some of the beautiful arches to be erected in St. Roch's. The one in St. Joseph street will be a masterpiece of architectural skill in ice and evergreens.

The railroads are heartily co-operating with the Carnival Committee and very low rates are offered on all the lines entering Quebec.

Quebec in Winter.

At the first blast of winter's herald from the north, that prelude the coming cold and storm, Quebec awakens into a new life. Dull care is shaken off and the people abandon themselves to a season of out and in-door pleasure. Over the vast horizon of valley, islands and mountains, the arctic sun plays in dazzling brilliancy upon the snowy mantle that envelopes them. Sunsets, that rival in glory of color a Turner masterpiece, flood the heavens, and crown the spires and roofs with burnished gold, and the angelus ringing loud and clear into the frosty night ushers from out of the northern dome the arctic dancers, in panoply of heavenly light. In ever changing weirdness of form, and of matchless beauty, they dance the night away. Who that has ever witnessed these northern lights in all their glory but has been enraptured with the wonderful phenomena.

The river St. Lawrence becomes an embryotic sea of drifting ice-lobes and miniature bergs crushing and grinding their way to the gulf. Man's barriers against his neighbors have disappeared in the white plain, and nature has erected a more impassible one. The streets of the city take on a new appearance. Throngs of people clad in garments of fur and bearing strong resemblance to bipeds of extinct species go hurrying by. Carioles, bright as red paint can make them, with showy robes hanging over the back, horses bedecked with gay ribbons and silvery bells, dash along with their loads of handsome women, and rosy cheeked cherubs much done up in fur. Pretty girls in all the attractiveness of snowshoe costume, their dainty little feet encased in neatly fitting moccasins, snowshoes slung over their shoulders are off for a tramp across country. No wonder that the Americans want to annex Canada, and we do not object to this if done individually. Young Quebec, all bundled in fleecy wool, is rolling about in the snow with as much comfort as though in autumn leaves, and having a very jolly time of it from all indications. Carters in long fur coats that reach above their ears and down to their heels, with many a marche done, slip by with gay loads of furry humanity.

Long lines of those curious winter craft, the berline, much affected by the habitant, and in which he brings his produce to market, are winding their way to the market square, with loads curious to the eyes of a stranger; pigs dressed and frozen, but standing bolt upright and looking as natural as in life, but for the absence of hair, roosters that look ready to mount a fence and crow, though denuded of all save a few tail feathers, great cakes of milk which is sold by the pound like sugar, white hares that seem to want to jump out of their skins, but too stiff to move, flowers of gorgeous coloring, but made of paper, trout frozen stiff as they took their last leap on the ice. Such are the contents of many of these loads. When a hundred or more of these sleighs are lined up on the market place, and the owners are one and all engaged in shrill and noisy bargaining with prospective purchasers, the scene is one that has no parallel.

The winter dress of the habitant is the heavy gray homespun coat, very long with capuchon attached, which is drawn close around the head leaving only a bright pair of eyes and a very red nose exposed, around the waist a bright colored sash is wound several times, and into this is stuck the short

Montreal, Feb. 22, 1895.

Gentlemen, I, the undersigned, physician and surgeon of the Province of Quebec, practising in the city of Montreal, certify having employed with success for Catarrh, Coryza, Headache, &c, the "CATARRHINA" presented by Messrs. F. H. Garneau & Co. I am of opinion that it is an excellent remedy for the above sicknesses, and I am happy to recommend it highly. E. A. PORTEVIN, M. D., C. M., Professor of Descriptive Anatomy, Laval University, Mont.

157 State St., Ogdensburg, New York.

I have much pleasure in stating that I have used "CATARRHINA" with excellent result, having been a long sufferer of the unpleasant and troublesome disease, Catarrh for some years. I tried most everything that I could procure, for that purpose, until I finally discovered the only remedy "CATARRHINA," which had the desired effect. I would therefore by all means strongly recommend the afflicted to try it. H. E. LYONS.

Quebec, March 6, 1893.

It is with the greatest pleasure that I certify that your preparation "La CATARRHINA" has rendered me the greatest services in cases of Coryza, Influenza and other acute and chronic affections of the nostrils. The immediate relief which follows one application of this remedy amply proves its efficiency. It is now for me a favorite prescription in these cases.

stock whip and leather mits, on the feet the long beef moccasins. Before leaving town a nip or two is taken and the road home is enlivened with many a song and race.

From the Dufferin Terrace we look down upon an irregular line of gabled roofs, high chimneys, queer looking streets, the market place full of moving people, who appear more like ants from the height from which we survey them. We speculate upon the consequences should we start a great snowball rolling down among them. A curious looking craft from which great volumes of smoke are emitted is butting her nose against the ice-floes in a desperate struggle to force a passage to the Point Levis shore. Mountains piled in utmost confusion, a valley of surpassing beauty, complete a panorama on which, we are never tired of gazing.

At night under the brilliant glare of the electric lights the city looks like the enchanted play ground of elves and fairies. Processions of snowshoers singing club songs are wending their way to some club rendez-vous. The various hills are alive with active and jolly tobogganers. From the Citadel comes the clear call of the bugler of "lights out," and a solitary report from the big gun.

A great storm of drifting snow comes out of the East, and like a city of the dead all sounds are hushed, the streets are abandoned, and great drifts settle before the houses and pile up around the corners. If you have courage enough to face the whirling snow, to conquer the drifts, you will find many hospitable doors fly open to your magic "open sesame" and the scene will change with the same magic celerity. Friendly hands demand you of wraps, and you are ushered into a room full of warmth and good company, and right merrily do you enter into the harmless fun that prevails until all thought of the storm that rages without is forgotten in the comfort and cheer within. A hospitality of a warmth that forbids the entrance of cold is one of the characteristics of Quebec.

Quebec Historically and Descriptively.

There is no city on this continent so classic, so celebrated as Quebec. Its grass-scarped walls enclose an area whose history teems with the chivalric deeds of its early founder, its noble defenders, its brave conquerors, its unsuccessful assailants.

At every turn in its narrow streets curious evidences of an old fortified city meet the eye, lending to it an aroma of the mediævalism of Continental Europe. The stern ruggedness of Cape Diamond, crowned by the citadel, from whose massive walls peep forth innumerable guns, seems the very embodiment of impregnability and warlike preparation, and recalls the stirring scenes enacted under these frowning battlements in times long gone by; and, though the bugler's call still re-echoes through the casemates and town with the loud report of the evening gun, and noisy artillery yet rattle through the streets, its military glory belongs but to the past.

The pen of a gifted writer thus described the wondrous beauty of the panorama that environs the city:

"The majestic appearance of Cape Diamond and the fortifications, the cupolas and minarets blazing and sparkling in the sun, the noble basin like a sheet of purest silver, in which might ride with safety the navies of the world, the graceful meanderings of the river St. Charles, the numerous village spires on either side of the St. Lawrence, the fertile valley dotted with the picturesque habitant houses, the distant Falls of Montmorency, the park like scenery of Point Levis, theauteons Isle of Orleans, the grim purple mountains, the barriers to the north, form a picture which it is no exaggeration to say is unsurpassed in any part of the world."

Sir Charles Dilke has this to say:—"Leaving the citadel we are once more in the European middle ages. Gates and posterns, cranky steps that lead up to lofty gabled houses, with sharp French roofs of burnished tin like those of Liege; processions of the Host; altars decked with flowers; statues of the Virgin; sabots, blouses, and the scarlet of the troops—all these are seen in the narrow streets."

I cannot forbear another bit of description which is from the pen of the late Henry Ward Beecher:—

"It is a populated cliff. It is a mighty rock, scarped and graded and made to hold houses and castles, which by a natural law ought to slide off from its back like an ungirded load from a camel. But they stick..... Away we went climbing the streets at a canter with little horses hardly bigger than flies, with the same aptitude for climbing perpendicular walls. It was strange to enter a walled city through low and gloomy gates on this continent of America..... We rode about as in a picture book, turning over a new leaf at each street."

All this to the lovers of the quaint and picturesque, but to the student of the history of this continent there unfolds another page. Each rock, each name, each street, each ancient building recalls a romantic past, an epoch of heroic deeds, a period of wars and sieges, of the grandest efforts to Christianize the Indian, of the martyrdom of brave missionaries.

Founded in 1608 by Samuel de Champlain amidst great discouragement, its youthful years were full of trials and tribulations, yet even after nineteen years of vicissitudes it still had life in it, that even the peremptory demand of Capt. Kirke for its surrender could not subdue.

At last exhausted by famine and want the feeble garrison capitulated to the bold English captain, and for a short period the city passed into England's possession; to be restored to France by treaty. In 1720 it was threatened by a vast fleet under Sir Hovenden Walker, but a great storm destroyed most of his vessels in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and Quebec enjoyed another short respite from English invasion, though it enjoyed little peace owing to constant Indian alarms. In 1759 General Wolfe appeared before the city walls with a large force and a numerous fleet.

The gallant Montcalm made a desperate resistance, but was defeated on the Plains of Abraham, both generals receiving their death wounds on the field of battle. Canada was shortly after ceded to England and Quebec became the capital of a vast English possession on this continent.

The city was destined to undergo one more memorable siege. In 1775 there appeared before the city a gallant army of Americans led by Gen. Montgomery and Col. Arnold. On the night of December 31st the besiegers made a desperate attempt to storm the gates, but were repulsed with severe loss. Gen. Montgomery was killed in endeavoring to descend the cliff with the force under his command, and Col. Arnold was severely wounded. The siege was still continued however until early in the following spring, when the American forces were withdrawn from Canadian soil. Since then Quebec's battles have been chiefly of a constitutional nature with the Home Government.
