Residents of North End, especially those dwelling in Indiantown, will be pleased with the announcement made today by Commissioner Wigmore that the work on the new sewer in Main street between Douglas avenue and Adelaide street was already one-third completed.

It would be inadvisable, he thought, to have a night crew employed. As it was some of the men worked until nearly dark, but he did not think much would be gained by having a different crew engaged for night shifts, particularly in view of the difficulties being encountered in the replacing of the sewers because of the bad condition of the old one.

It would be a little inconvenient for the people of that section of the city for a few days, but considering that the work was most important and necessary it would have to be borne for a short time longer.

TOMORROW'S MOTOR RACE—Twenty-two entries have been received for the R. K. Y. C. long distance motor boat race tomorrow, and thirteen prizes have been donated for the contest.

THE BEST QUALITY AT A REASONABLE PRICE

Why By Far the Most Glasses are Bought at 'Sharpe's'

Complete, scientific equipment—the best in the Maritime Provinces—for testing eyes, grinding lenses and fitting glasses would not of itself cause the large majority of people to buy them here.

It is care in examination, care in making, care in fitting, personal interest of expert optometrists in each customer's eye-conditions, and continuous service, including free adjustment and inspection of glasses whenever desired, that have secured universal confidence for Sharpe's Optical Department.

People know their eyes get the best possible care here, and that the charge for service and goods is always fair and reasonable. That is why well-informed people buy their glasses at Sharpe's.

ST. JOHN, N. B., AUGUST 6, 1915.

THE WAR SITUATION.

What will be the next German move? Of last night's cables says:— "Since early in May, when they started their great counter-offensive in Western Galicia against the Russian army, the German powers have cleared the Russians out of Galicia, with the exception of a narrow strip of territory in the southwest, have re-captured Przemysl and Lemberg, taken Lublin, Cholm and Warsaw, and are in military occupation of virtually the whole of Poland."

Whether the Russian armies will be pursued, or Serbia attacked, or a tremendous drive made against the French and British lines is the question asked by the military critics. Why is it that after a year of war we are more apprehensive of what the Germans may do than we are confident of what the Allies can do? It would certainly be a relief to be told that the Allies were as successful somewhere else in the vast fighting area as the Germans are in Russia. But we must be better acquainted with the German make-up than we are. It is a matter of recurring and of organization, and Canada is asked to do her share.

Italy is slowly making progress against Austria, and the latest reports say that she may soon launch a quarter of a million men against Turkey. There is no late news of importance from the Dardanelles. In the French chamber of deputies yesterday the utmost enthusiasm was aroused by the declaration of speakers that all parties in France were as one in their determination to fight on and conquer. Russia has established a munitions bureau, with an able man at its head, to do the work in that country which Mr. Lloyd George is doing in Britain. The secrecy which surrounds British policy and movements keeps us guessing and wondering when and where Kitchener will strike. Perhaps we shall not have long to wait.

THE FALL OF WARSAW. It would be folly to attempt to minimize the importance of the fall of Warsaw, which will perhaps soon be followed by the fall of the other important city of Riga. While the Russian armies appear to be withdrawing in good order, and will rally and strike again, and a temporary victory for Germany gives her armies new life, and encourages the people to believe in ultimate victory over all their foes. Whether it will set free large German forces for another drive in the west remains to be seen, but the still unbeaten Russian armies will certainly call for large German and Austrian forces in the east, where they are now so much farther from their base. At this distance it would seem that the Allies would have to wait a long time for a more favorable opportunity to strike in the west than was afforded when such enormous forces of the enemy were attacking the Russians in the east; but we are not in the secret of the War Office, and can only wait the next move of Kitchener; for upon him depends the extent and success of the operations in the western theatre. It is certain that the Germans will be greatly heartened by their success at Warsaw, and they will not be content to rest on their laurels.

ONE-TYPE OF TRAITOR. Any man who robs the country at this crisis in its history is a traitor as well as a robber. Whether his graft be large or small, at a time when other people are making financial sacrifices, he is a traitor, and should be hunted down and punished with at least as much zeal as is displayed in the internment of alien enemies. They have some excuse for being dishonest, but he has absolutely none. Canada is borrowing money by the hundreds of millions to prosecute a war which involves her whole future existence. The great mass of her people are contributing millions for causes related to the war. Vast quantities of wealth are being swallowed up, and greater numbers of men are being crippled for life. The burden is a staggering one, and persons who add to it by graft and take-off and coarctant profits on materials sold to the government, for war purposes or any other, are public enemies and should be so treated. Fortunes made out of government contracts at such a time as this are as wholly as wealth stolen from a child. The country needs the devotion of contractors as well as of soldiers. Legitimate profits are not open to criticism, although the man who by government favor is able to make them, while others are idle, should at least be very generous in support of the patriotic funds. The war has perhaps given the people a saner point of view in relation to this matter. Even those disposed to be cynically indifferent to grafting operations in times of peace cannot fail to be impressed now with the iniquity of such conduct, when men are giving their lives for their country, and that country is in honor bound to provide funds to care for their families. It is impossible to separate even private business transactions from a general relationship to the war, since every business and the life of every individual is to be profoundly affected by the outcome of the war. If Germany should win, what would the property or liberty of any Canadian be worth to him? If the Allies win—as they must—Canada will still have to bear the burden of an enormous debt, care for thousands upon thousands of victims of the war, adjust herself to new conditions without the aid of hosts of her noblest sons, who will be dead or crippled for life, and every dollar will count for something, if it is not in the clutches of individuals whose sole aim will still be to fatten themselves upon the distress of their neighbors and the misfortunes of their country. Far too little emphasis is being placed upon the patriotism that applies to transactions with the government. People read tales of graft, shake their heads, and pass on to the next item of news. And yet, if simple honesty and real public spirit characterized every transaction that involves the expenditure of public money, the national burden would be enormously reduced and the national ability to face the storm enormously increased. Is there a lack of public conscience in Canada? Are we with our patronage committees and special agents becoming a nation of spies? The man who is known to have enriched himself by grafting methods does not lose social recognition, but is more likely to be hailed as a clever operator and something of a celebrity. And yet, such a man, if he has unduly profited at the expense of the country at such a time as this, is a traitor as well as a robber.

THE DEEPER ISSUES. Lloyd George, the man with a vision, who can look beyond the clouds of present conflict to the great new era in human history, has in a few illuminating sentences shown us what it is the German and Austrian soldiers are unwittingly doing in Poland. He says:—"I can see a ray of hope in the dark horizon—the regeneration of the great people of Russia. Our enemies do not understand what they are doing in the east. Their mighty cannon are shattering the rusty bars that fettered the soul of Russia. Look at Warsaw. What is happening behind that? The Russian people are shaking themselves free of stifling debris, their mighty limbs preparing, with new spirits and new hope, for a new land. Austria and Prussia are doing today for Russia what their military ancestors did for France. They are hammering a sword that will destroy them."

Who but Lloyd George could so graphically, and yet so tersely and in such felicitous phrase, present the deeper issues of this Titanic war—a war of regeneration, that will tamely widen the bounds of freedom and democracy in all the world. IS ST. JOHN ASLEEP? Right on the heels of the statement by Mr. Gutelius that the Valley Railway should come to St. John by the route on the western side of the river, we are told that the provincial government met to consider the question of the construction of the balance of the road. We are told that no decision was arrived at, but Premier Clarke has not as yet revised his recent public statement that the road would come into St. John by the Rothessay route. If Mr. Gutelius knows the mind of the minister of railways, the Dominion government will open that route. Who is right, and what is the exact situation in regard to the Valley Railway, the National Transcontinental and the port of St. John? The citizens not only do not know when the connection will be made and the terminals provided for the National Transcontinental, but they are kept in ignorance of the route and told conflicting stories concerning the whole affair. The board of trade appears to be somewhat apathetic. What is the cause? Are the members content to wait and accept whatever may be offered? Halifax knows what it wants—and is getting it.

Warsaw has fallen, but we'll beat them yet. One recruit was signed on in St. John yesterday. If Wednesday's speakers had taken it for granted that the people had been reading all about the war for a year past, and had begun with a statement of the present situation, and ended with a challenge to the young men to do their duty, would the result in recruiting have been more satisfactory? The shortest will, probably, ever filed in the Worcester Probate Court was that of Rose McGinley, of Blackstone, which contained only thirty-one words. It was not allowed by the court because it was witnessed by but one person, whereas the law requires three. Machinists and Brass Finishers can help their country by grinding in operations in times of peace cannot fail to be impressed now with the iniquity of such

For two hours the two girls had stood and chatted. It was nothing to them that they obstructed the pavement and that other anxious women wanted to get at the shop, the entrance to which they were blocking.

"Oh, my dear!" cried the girl in the panama skirt suddenly. "I hear you are going to marry young Mumpkin. I must congratulate you."

"Oh, no, I'm not!" she said, decidedly. "I'm so glad Allow me to congratulate you more still!"

France Fears Not Defeat; Remarkable Demonstration In Chamber of Deputies

Paris, Aug. 5.—The first meeting of the chamber of deputies after the anniversary of the beginning of the war and following the establishment of the union of all political parties in France to endure so long as the war lasts, was held today and the session was marked by an extraordinary demonstration of patriotism which was a strong indication of the unanimity of all Frenchmen of every faith and shade of political belief. Furthermore, today's meeting was the first since the formation of the present coalition cabinet in France.

Paul Deschanel, president of the chamber, opened the session with an eloquent speech which was apparently intended to be following the example of the address of M. Rodriano, president of the Italian Duma, at the recent session of that body, and a reply to the anniversary manifesto of the German emperor. To this Premier Viviani gave response in the name of the government.

M. Deschanel said a year had passed since the enemy of France, even before declaring war, had violated French territory.

"This year has been so full of glory so pure," he declared, "that it will forever illumine the human race. It has been a year in which France, the France of Joan of Arc and Valmy, has stood if possible to even greater heights."

Continuing, the president of the chamber recounted briefly "that breaking of the German military power," and "the forcing back of the enemy of France."

"Be the war of short or long duration, France accepts it," M. Deschanel declared. "The country is summing up its genius and changing its methods. Each French soldier, before the enemy, repeats the words of Joan of Arc: 'You can reduce me but you cannot enchain the fortunes of France.' These touches of human grandeur come from the depths of the maddening trenches."

M. Deschanel then reviewed in a few words the work of parliament, praising especially the activities of the several committees.

In an eloquent passage the president of the chamber then repeated the determination of France to continue the struggle to complete victory.

President Poincare's Message.

A message from President Poincare was read in the chamber by Premier Viviani and M. Brian, minister of justice. It was addressed to the French parliament, and reviewed the first year of the war.

"The President of the Republic," said M. Poincare, "has called this one of the conditions of victory. He declared this union was more firmly established today than ever before."

"If Germany is counting the possibility of dividing France at the present time she is deceived today as completely as she was a year ago," was one of his statements in M. Poincare's communication. "Time will not weaken the ties binding the great French family," he declared; "it will only draw them closer."

Referring to the army, the president said: "The army, composed of the very substance of the nation, and which understood the grandeur of its role. It knows it is fighting for the safety of our race, for our traditions, and for our liberty. It knows that upon the victory of France and her allies depends the future of our civilization and the fate of humanity."

M. Poincare brought his message to a close with this statement:

"A generous emulation inspired all lines of French activity to come to the aid of the national defence, and this is given utterly without selfishness. The country should encourage, not only harmony among political parties, but also private co-operation and good will. Individual energies, recognizing how to submit themselves to discipline, constitute a great force in the nation. In war time such energies never are too numerous or too powerful, nor is there ever a greater need to co-ordinate national action to produce a single effect."

"The merits of a people are luminously reflected in the army. Each man is completely devoted to his mother country, and those who fell die without fear, since by their death France lives and will live forever. France is determined to conquer; she will conquer. The only peace the republic can accept is one which will guarantee the security of Europe."

Protest Not Allowed.

Only one incident threatened the war anniversary celebration in the chamber of deputies. Immediately M. Deschanel called the deputies to order. Leon Acambay, member from the Alsace, who frequently of late has violently attacked the government in the evident attempt to discredit Minister of War Millerand, demanded the floor. Murmurs from all sides of the house grew in volume as M. Acambay mounted the tribune.

When he began to speak the protestations from his colleagues, exhibiting clearly their impatience and their temper, seemed to frighten the deputy from the Alsace, who, after hesitating for a moment, asked leave to print his remarks. He then left the tribune at once. Later, during M. Deschanel's address, M. Acambay sought to interrupt the president, but the long and unanimous applause of M. Deschanel's praise of the work of the chamber drowned out his voice.

The speech of M. Deschanel and the message of President Poincare were frequently interrupted with applause. At the close of each address there was an outburst of clapping from all the delegates, who rose to their feet.

National Defence Issue Increased.

Paris, Aug. 5.—In the course of a discussion in the French senate today on the bill to raise the limit of national defence issues, which was passed in the chamber of deputies July 29, Alexander Ribot, the minister of finance, took occasion to review the financial situation.

"On July 29," he said, "there were $1,891,600,000 of defence issues in circulation. In July alone, $165,000,000 net were placed in the market in bonds and $64,400,000 in the long term obligations."

"Our financial burdens are constantly growing. Arms and ammunition cost a great deal. We shall probably have recourse to a long term loan, whereby we can consolidate all our short term treasury issues. We still have a great military and financial effort to make to reach a victorious conclusion of the war."

"The public brings in its gold without pressure. It is conscious of the situation and feels that today no man can save himself by thinking solely of himself. It can be done only by the citizens giving the country their lives, if necessary, and their goods of this world, in any case."

"We must conceal nothing from the country. It is worthy to hear every-thing. Only in desamulating nothing can we fittingly respond to the country's financial conditions."

The bill increasing the limit of national defence issues was passed.

Conserving British Gold.

London, Aug. 5.—In order to strengthen the gold reserves for exchange purposes, the treasury has instructed the post office and all public departments, to conserve British gold, instead of giving, when making cash payments.

The public is requested to co-operate by paying in gold to the post office and banks, and by using the notes for the payment of wages and for cash disbursements generally.

There is a young man of this town who has found that by appealing to the sense of humor of a wealthy uncle he can obtain funds that otherwise would be secured only with great difficulty and after much delay. Accordingly, on the eve of uncle's last appearance in town, nephew wrote to him in these terms:

"I am greatly rejoiced, dear uncle, that I shall see you on Saturday, and I will be at the station to meet your train. As we have not seen each other for some time, hold a $100 note in your hand, so that I may easily recognize you. I myself will be holding the document which represents my most immediate necessity in the pecuniary line."

CAPTAIN TOWER HOME AFTER ENCOUNTER WITH A SUBMARINE

In Sackville Tells Story of Loss of His Schooner and of an Italian Bark

Capt. Leonard Tower, of the schooner L. C. Tower, which was torpedoed by a German submarine while on her way to Britain, has arrived in Sackville.

In an interview with a representative of the Tribune, Capt. Tower said that he left Fort Greville, N. S., on June 12, in the schooner L. C. Tower, which was accompanied by the Italian bark, the crew of which had been encountered throughout the entire trip and after being thirty days out and within thirty miles of land the German pirates were sighted. At first, said Captain Tower, he could not discern whether it was a submarine or not, but soon found it was all too true for the underwater craft soon commenced to show her form. The commander, when close enough, signalled him to abandon his vessel, which orders were given to the crew. He immediately launched his boat and was ordered to get on board of the submarine, which he did not do. He immediately signalled his papers and after looking them over said "you are a Canadian."

The German commander demanded his papers and the crew of the schooner, which was then told that he must have his vessel destroyed, and he replied that the destruction of his vessel would not be of any benefit to Germany. The commander of the submarine said that he was acting under orders and had to execute the work and he did so after the captain and the crew of the Tower had left in their motor boat for land. The destruction of the schooner was caused by fire started with oil which the submarine carried.

The captain said to the Tribune that he witnessed an Italian bark go down to the bottom after being torpedoed, only about an hour after they had left their vessel. The crew of the Italian vessel did not escape, for there were two killed and seven drowned. The remaining members of the crew of the L. C. Tower landed on British soil. They were held in Ireland for several days pending arrangement of transportation home.

Captain Tower and his crew sailed from Liverpool on the C. P. R. liner Metagama, and arrived in Quebec on Sunday, and in Sackville on Tuesday evening. Among the crew were Capt. L. C. Tower and son, Aaron, and Elmer Tower of Rockport.

The Yale freshman year was proving expensive to father, so father decided to have a "heart to heart" talk with Johnny, home for the week end.

"Now, my son," said he gravely but affectionately, "Your mother and I are spending as little as we possibly can. I get up in the morning at half past six and I work until after five. But, son, the money just won't go round at the rate that your expenses are running. Now I ask you, as one man to another, what do you think we had better do?"

"For a moment Johnny's head was buried in thought—and then he replied: "Well, father, I don't see any way out but for you to work nights."

The Fall of Warsaw

London, Aug. 5.—The Germans are in possession of Warsaw, capital of Poland, and the third largest city in the Russian empire. Bavarian troops entered the city this morning, having taken successfully the Blanka line and the outer and inner fortresses of the town itself, the Russians only fighting rear guard actions to allow their main army to make good its escape. While to the Bavarians commanded by Prince Leopold has fallen the honor of taking over Warsaw in the name of the German emperor and his consort, who are expected to make a stately entry within a few days, the fighting was done by the troops fighting under Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, along the Narw river to the northeast, the Austro-Germans who crossed the Vistula to the south of the city, and the armies of the Austrian Archduke Joseph Ferdinand and the German Field Marshal Von Mackensen, which are advancing northward between the Vistula and Bug rivers. The Russians are fighting desperately and stubbornly to check the progress of these four armies and have had several successes, inflicting heavy losses on their pursuers; but they are being steadily pressed back, which made the longer occupation of the Warsaw Polish salient a hazardous undertaking. Even now, although the steadiness of the Russian troops and their heroic counter-attacks have gained much valuable time for them, it is problematical whether the whole Russian army will succeed in reaching the new positions chosen for it or whether, if it should get there, it will not find those positions turned by the Austrians, who have crossed the Bug southeast of Cholon, and the Germans under General Von Scholtz and Von Gallwitz, who have crossed the Narw. At the northeastern end of the line the Russian communications are further threatened by General Von Buslow, who is advancing toward Drinsk on the Vilna, Petrograd railway. Indeed, the Austro-Germans have set three traps to catch and destroy the Russian army. None of them was sprung, but one was so near to closing that the Grand Duke Nicholas was forced to evacuate Warsaw, and now is fighting, with all his might, to prevent the others from cutting off his retreat. Thus far he seemingly has been successful, for although the Germans claim the capture of a large number of prisoners the aggregate is small, when compared with the immense forces engaged. In addition, the Russian guns apparently are well on their way to the rear. The Russians also are preparing to evacuate Riga, the port on the gulf of that name in the north. The arrival of the Germans ten miles south of that city already has been the cause of the civilian population departing. While expressing the fullest confidence in the future, the British military critics make no attempt to belittle the achievements of the Teutons, or the effect their success is likely to have in the near east and west. Since early in May, when they started their great counter-offensive in Western Galicia against the Russians, who were debouching through the Carpathians on the plains of Hungary, the troops of the Germanic powers have cleared the Russians out of Galicia, with the exception of a narrow strip of territory in the southwest, have re-occupied Przemyel and Lemberg, taken Lublin, Cholon and Warsaw, and are in military occupation of virtually the whole of Poland. What their next move will be is a matter of conjecture. Some military observers believe they will continue to attack the Russians, in the hope of finally crushing them, a task which it is considered is rendered difficult by the fact that the Russians, in their retreat, lay the country waste, making it necessary for the invaders to bring up every ounce of food required for their army. Others of the observers think Serbia will be attacked, so as to impress the Balkan States which remain neutral, while still others look for a big offensive against the Franco-British-Belgian line in the west. All of the observers are of the opinion that wherever the new operation is begun it will be on a big scale.

WRITES OF WORK IN THE AMBULANCE CORPS

A man with one leg blown off thanked me with a smile as I lowered him from my car," says Melvin F. Talbot of Portland, Me., a young Harvard man with the French Ambulance Corps, writing from the battlefields of Europe to a friend in Portland. "Of course these heroes die by the thousands," he says, "and are known only as casualties." Mr. Talbot with other young Harvard men joined the French Ambulance Corps under a three months contract, and sailed from Boston soon after the closing of the university and will spend the rest of the summer in the war zone. His letter follows: "Alas, July 30. I wish you could see the room I am writing from. This is a little town down in the valley of the Vosges mountains, there are about 80 men here and 200 Germans. Beyond the hill we can just make out the distant sound of French artillery. This is a little cafe, crowded with French soldiers, mostly of the service de transport, men of all military ages, dirty, hungry, tired, but always cheerful. In the corner a little stove is doing its best to take the chill off the mountain air and as you may picture, the place is clouded with tobacco smoke. Another fellow and myself are on duty here for 24 hours, after which we return to our base at a little town to the next valley. We have had very little work today. I carried four malades (sick) from here to a neighboring base hospital. We get them here and take them to the Red Cross trains at the base town or to the hospitals here in the valley. There are about 20 men here and 200 Germans. Of course the ambulance bus has other sections, one at Dunkirk, the summer resort section one at Fontaine Mison, a tent section near Nancy, (the sleepy section) and the lunch here known as the mountain cafe. I wish people could see the bravery and cheerfulness of these wounded men with a smile as I lowered him from my car. Of course these heroes die by the thousands and are known only as "casualties." It is a beautiful country here and very interesting. We see troops marching away to the front, long trains of motor trucks, convoys of artillery and then the men coming back, such worn out wrecks of men you can scarcely imagine. Of course there is much waiting around and then hard work days and nights. On the whole we are very comfortable, sleep in farmhouses and eat the army rations only occasionally horse meat. Around us the quiet peasant life goes on just as if there were no war. Our cars are parked beside an old Gothic church and while we change tires and brake bands the musical bells ring out for mass, the village goes to worship and the supply trains go rumbling through the town. AFIRE IN THE BAY. The auxiliary packet schooner Dora, Captain Leslie Canning, which left St. John yesterday morning for Paroboro, near Black River, burned to her water line. Her crew leaped overboard when an explosion of gasoline took place aboard of her, and swam ashore. The fire was seen by a party of fishermen from St. John. G. W. Slocum, G. M. Barker, Messrs. Higgard, Johnson and Price, and they went out in motor boats to try to catch up with her for she was sailing in a wide circle, with her motor going and her sail set. It was with difficulty that they were able to attach a line to her and tow her ashore, beaching her at Reed's Beach, assisted by John Harding of that place. The late Mrs. Nellie L. S. Ross of Los Angeles bequeathed $10,000, one-third of her estate, for the care of Tiger Ross, her pet cat. J. M. Ross, her husband, is contesting the will.

MORNING NOTES OF THE WAR

The St. Stephen, N. B., town council yesterday voted $1,000 to purchase a machine gun. Joseph Kehoe, of North Sydney, N. S., and Thomas Shaw, of Sydney Mines, N. S., serving with the 15th Battalion, are reported prisoners of war in Germany. The commissioned officers of the 53th Battalion have sent to Mrs. E. A. Smith of St. John, in behalf of the Daughters of the Empire, resolution of appreciation for their donation of instruments for a brass band for the regiment at Valenciennes, coupled with an invitation to present the instruments publicly at the camp. E. C. Whitney of Ottawa has given three machine guns to the 38th Battalion. Russia has appointed a special minister of munitions for "speeding up" purposes. General T. Lincoln, a former British M. P., is held in New York on a charge of forgery. He will be extradited. Lincoln is a self-confessed German spy. Wise housekeepers say Ingersoll Cheese goes farther than ordinary cheese. BRIDE-TO-BE KILLED ON WAY TO WEDDING

New Haven, Aug. 6.—Miss Ennice Louise Hoag, aged 24, of Longmeadow, Mass., died at a local hospital from injuries she received when an automobile driven by Gerald W. Worden of Springfield was overturned on a hill in Northford. The accident came as a tragic interruption to a romantic journey for the two young people were motoring to New York where they were to have been married at the home of Mr. Worden's parents. How the accident occurred is unknown for the last thing Mr. Worden remembers is that he was driving through a sandy road. When he regained consciousness he saw the roadster turned upside down several yards away and his bride to be pinned underneath with an iron bar across her throat. Suffering from two fractured ribs and other injuries, Mr. Worden staggered to a nearby house after efforts to release Miss Hoag had failed and summoned aid. Mr. Worden's parents are at his bedside. He will recover.

AMATEUR DETECTIVE WORK Woman Has Her Missing Brooch Restored Very Promptly
Detective work following faint clues, dark hints and the like, is not the only method by which robberies may be solved. The wife of a prominent officer in the marine corps, who resides in Baltimore, and has a country place in Virginia, is authority for the statement and offers the following little story: It seems that while she was at her Virginia place, she one day missed from her jewel box a valuable diamond brooch. She had the servants search high and low for the trinket, but it could not be found. All of her servants, except one had been with her for years, and were absolutely trusted by her. The exception, a mulatto girl, persistently urged upon her mistress the possibility of the brooch being at her Baltimore town house. "Taint no end head, Miss Alice," (not the real name of the mistress, of course) "I know dat it ain't no end head, but I know dat it is in de brooch house." Whatever suspicious the mistress may have had she kept to herself. After a time she returned to Baltimore, bringing her servants with her. "Is you found it, Miss Alice?" asked the mulatto girl after the search of the house had been concluded. Her mistress shook her head. "No," said she. "I haven't found it, Mary, but" lowering her voice and speaking impressively, "I have no cause to worry." "Ain't you?" inquired the girl. "No," continued her mistress. "You see I went to a fortune teller today. She told me that whoever had the diamond would die soon and that the brooch would be found among their effects. I only have to wait for their death to know who took my brooch." "Miah gracious! breathed the mulatto girl. "Did that voodoo woman say dat?" "She did," replied her mistress, solemnly. The mulatto girl precipitately departed, and, strangely enough, her mistress found the missing brooch that very night pinned to one of her gowns.—Washington Star. The finding of a horseshoe proved anything but lucky for John Morse of North Bath, Me. He was saving a tree and the teeth of his saw were ruined by running up against a horseshoe imbedded in the trunk.

IMPORTANT LETTER COMES FROM CAPT. HILL RELATIVE TO SEN. IN THINGS TO SOLDIERS

The following letter has been received by one of the members of the executive of the Soldiers' Comfort Association. It was written at East Sandling Camp, July 19, 1915, by Capt. H. R. Hill of the 26th Battalion:

Dear Madam:

You have no doubt been wondering why you have not heard from me regarding the matter of sending parcels over on this side of the Atlantic. My first trip to London I did not have an opportunity of seeing Mr. J. G. Colmer, so was not in a position to send you the desired information, however, I did secure the information two or three days ago and will endeavor to give you all the facts.

Any parcels addressed to certain men will be delivered as soon as a possibility without being opened. However, they should be securely wrapped and tied up or they will be obliged to re-wrap them. I made arrangements so that any parcels addressed in care of me will have special attention and be forwarded at once. Therefore, if anyone desires to send a parcel to any member of the 26th or 28th battalions they can address them in care of me and they will then be forwarded promptly to me and I in turn will see that they are handed promptly to the correct parties.

We also talked about sending the supplies to me and I would give them out with great care and see that they were not wasted and were put in the hands of those needing them most. In regard

DIVORCE COURT SESSION HERE FARMS SOLD
Several Transfers Are Reported—St. John Men to the Land

A session of the divorce court was held here this morning, Mr. Justice McKeown presiding.

The case of Maud Nancy Bugless vs. Clement Darlington Bugless was taken up. They belong to Albert county and were married in Pittsburg in 1908. The plaintiff and Dr. James E. M. Carvath of Hillsboro were examined this morning and evidence was given on Friday morning. The case was closed on Friday.

The divorce is sought on statutory grounds. The case is somewhat unusual in the seeking to prove the offence by presumption and by direct testimony, which is usually the case. Judgment was reserved. M. G. Reed, K.C., was the plaintiff's proctor, and the defendant put in no appearance.

NEIGHBORS' QUARREL IS AIRED IN POLICE COURT

A neighbors' quarrel was given a hearing in the police court this morning. Mrs. Mary L. Truscott of Baner street, was charged with assaulting Cyril Moore, by hitting him in the face with a water dipper and inflicting a cut over his left eye. The plaintiff testified that he arrived home on Monday morning and was informed that the defendant had thrown some hot water over her. The witness said that Cyril Moore, the witness said that Cyril Moore and his brother the policeman then forced open the door of their house and the policeman threw her mother on the stove. His brother, she said, struck her on the head, drawing blood, and threw her over a trunk. Although cross questioned by R. G. Murray, who appeared for the prosecution, she did not swerve from her story.

The defendant told a similar story and showed a discoloration on her left arm. She also showed a bandage saturated with blood which she said had covered the cut on her head.

Magistrate Ritchie said he considered that the weight of evidence was against the defendant. He was, however, not disposed to send her to jail as her husband was away to the war and she had two young girls to look after. He said the plaintiff and his brother would have to appear in court on next Tuesday morning when a thorough investigation will be held re the charges made by the defendant and her daughter against them. If it is proven that they forced an entrance and assaulted the woman, he said it might be a case for the higher court to deal with.

Fancy Work
In the leisure of vacation days a woman's hand naturally turns towards fancy work.
In August frequently being the girls she will bestow on friends in December.
Under her skilled fingers bits of linen and thread assume shapes most useful and attractive.
Just now the stores are showing a variety of attractive fancy work patterns.
Some suggestions concerning them will be found from time to time in the advertising columns of The Telegraph and Times.
