YEAR BOOK MESSAGE

On behalf of the faculty of Regina College I want to wish each student success as he goes on to the next phase of his education. We hope that this year has opened up new corridors of the mind that will lure you on from room to exciting room of the House of Intellect. Whether you go on to University or to Teachers' College, into a classroom to teach or into the world of business cherish the enquiring mind and strive to develop those critical faculties that are essential for evaluating the subtle statements of propaganda that we encounter everywhere in this age.

In a few years you will be the people to whom the University will turn for support as it faces the intellectual, spiritual and financial aspects of providing higher education for the students of this province. Your appreciation of the part that the University can play in helping a student to become wise will be of inestimable value in interpreting the University to others.

W. A. RIDDELL Dean

President's Message

Greetings! I welcome this opportunity to bring you a message in this year's edition of the College Yearbook.

This year Regina College celebrates its Golden Jubilee. We look back with pride on the past fifty years of its progress, and we anticipate the future with high hopes and unbounded optimism. We are indeed proud to be students in this institution in such an exciting and fascinating period of its history.

On behalf of the students, I take this opportunity of extending our sincerest thanks and appreciation to all members of the staff for their guidance, interest and inspiration, both in and out of the classroom. I want to say thanks to each member of the SRC for their co-operation and cheerfulness as we worked together in the best interests of the college. I want to express my appreciation to each and everyone who contributed in one way or the other to make this school year as interesting and as successful as it has been

And now as Regina College enters a new stage in its growth towards University status, we want to wish her the best of everything. May she continue to be a blessing to society; may she continue to be a center of learning, and may the men and women who pass through her doors be always worthy of the high ideals of this noble institution.

Sincerely yours,
DONALD H. AMICHAND

EDITORIAL

Our term at Regina College is almost finished. The staff of this yearbook gives you this edition in the hope that it will bring back many fond memories.

In this, the Jubilee Year of Regina College, we realize that it is a turning point. Next year begins the offering of second year courses. In just a few years, Regina College will become a degree-granting university. The college will be moving to its new site near the present Experimental Farm. Regina College has a truly great future!

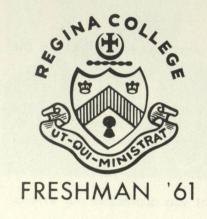

Many hours of work are represented in this yearbook and it is our hope that you appreciate our efforts.

We wish to thank all those who helped in any way, especially: Cathy Moore and her advertising staff; Bev Lambert, artist and S.R.C. yearbook representative; and George Dobranski who designed the cover.

May you all have success in your future endeavors.

REGINA COLLEGE

Regina College was begun in 1911 as a residential high school by the Methodist Church in Canada. It began giving first year University work in Arts and Science in 1926 and in 1934 was taken over by the University of Saskatchewan. Since that time Regina College has carried on a Junior College program and now offers first year work for all Colleges of the University as well as Arts and Science classes. It should be noted that the entrance to University is senior matriculation from the high schools or collegiates of the province or equivalent standing from elsewhere. The pass course for the B.A. is three years beyond the matriculation level.

While it is definitely established that there shall be only one university in Saskatchewan it is anticipated that the work on the Regina campus will develop in its own manner and there will be considerable individuality in the programs. There will be one President, one Senate (the senior educational body) and one Board of Governors. However there will be a Council, the members of the faculty, on each campus and each one will have considerable autonomy. Similarly in the administrative area the head of this campus, who will be known as the Principal, will have considerable freedom of action.

It was announced a few weeks ago that the new institution will be built on a new site since the present location of the College is too cramped. Planning will begin immediately and it is hoped that at least the laboratory accommodation will be ready by the fall of 1962 and a general Arts Building by 1963. This would include in addition to the laboratories, the classrooms and offices and of course the library.

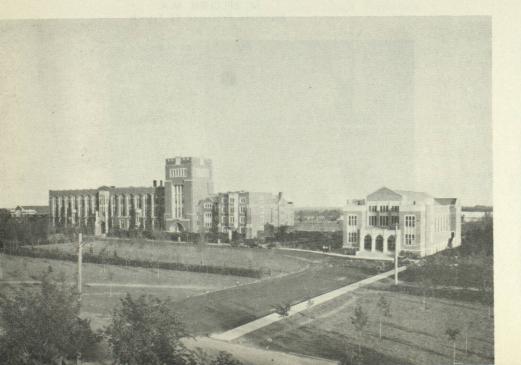

The second year of Arts and Science will be introduced this year (September 1961) and it is expected that the full three year program will be in effect by 1964-65 and the first graduates will receive their degrees in 1965. The enrolment this year is about 400 and next year we expect about 500 with an additional 80 taking second year work. It is estimated that by 1967 there will be 1700 students registered here and if some scheme is worked out for integrating the Teachers' College with the University as has been predicted by the Government, the enrolment would be increased by about 600 to 700. The long range expectation is that there will be about 5000 - 6000 students on this campus in 25 to 30 years.

The stairway of the School of Art, Regina College, is the location for a wall sculpture, executed by Wolfram Niessen, instructor in sculpture and drawing at the School of Art. The title is "EMBRACE", and it was done as a school project, with technical assistance from John Nugent, of Lumsden. Students of Mr. Niessen were engaged in the finishing of the brass work. From its inception, the sculpture required a total of one and a half years for completion. In the words of the artist: "The work has been created out of a deep love for the forces in nature which manifest their harmony and interlocking relationship by regenerating into new life."

Oh woman with your make-up and your jewels Your high-heeled shoes and lovely finery Why must you try to make men into fools? Why must you try to be the death of me?

Oh woman with your sweet, seductive charms Your eyes, your lips, Your lovely turned-up nose Surely your kind cannot but come to harm, Your life should be as short as the red rose.

If I could be a woman for a day Perhaps a good solution I could find To make this life more work and much less play And bring about salvation of mankind Woman, a topic I can't figure out Will be my downfall, also, I've no doubt.

ACTIVITIES

The year 1961 is a memorable one in the history of Regina College. It was the aim of each directorate to make the S.R.C. an active and efficient one, as we directed the affairs of the student body. In this regard, the Activities Directorate was no exception.

The cheer-leaders were organized early in October. They accompanied the Cougars and Cougettes on their highlight trips-Moose Jaw, Saskatoon-and at various centres in Regina.

Although it was an arduous task to organize debates this year, the student body was extremely interested when we debated such controversial topics as "The Abolishment of the Canadian Senate" and "Unilateral Disarmament". The debate for the Mackenzie Cup has long been an object of attention and discourse. This year the debating com-

MUSIC DIRECTORATE

This year Music and Dramas each had their own separate Directorates. In the Music a successful singing group was formed, directed by Mrs. Kobrynski. Although the group has remained fairly small, it sounds very convincing in its noon-hour practices on Mondays and Wednesdays.

As well as performing in recitals in the tower room and Darke Hall (Conservatory productions), the music students do some accompanying, perform at special college functions and take part in orchestral and ensemble works.

Student Christian Movement

The S.C.M. experienced a fairly successful year on the Regina College campus. Our year's program was varied with an attempt to cover many aspects of practical Christianity in life. This attempt was found in the activities of worship, Bible study, and lectures, which were all thought-provoking and informative. It is unique that in the S.C.M., all denominations are represented.

The years' activities began with a "get-acquainted supper" at Knox-Metropolitan United Church. Don Amichand gave the assembled group an informative talk on the work of the S.C.M. on the Regina College campus and its participation in the World Student Christian Movement. The new cabinet was elected: President—Don Amichand; Vice-President—Steve Rambally; Secretary-Barbara Yuill; Treasurer — Bob Duthie; General Programming — Marj. Clark; Bible Study—Gil Naze; Worship—Jess Jesperson; Publicity—Delores Dicken; Social—Ruth Cass-Beggs. Rev. Val Anderson, minister of Knox-Metropolitan church, was our appointed secretary and guide through our activities.

The worship series were conducted by various ministers and students during the chapel periods on Tuesday and Friday of each week. Under the able leadership of Marg Clark, a weekly noon-hour lecture series proved to be an important and interesting part of the S.C.M. program. Among the speakers for the lecture series were Premier T. C. Douglas and Dean Riddell. Rev. J. T. Horricks led the Tuesday noon Bible Study group.

College Sunday was held on February 26. The service was entirely planned by the students with the guidance of the faculty.

We wish to thank: God for His guidance and blessing; Rev. Val Anderson for his capable leadership; Dean Riddell, Dr. Thomas, the staff, the advisory board for their guidance and interest; Rev. Jack Horricks for his assistance; and the many people who worked and participated in the S.C.M. activities.

SOCIAL REPORT

The first event on the Regina College social calendar was a dance which was held on Saturday, October 15 in the Cafeteria. Music was supplied by records.

The Christmas formal was held on December 22. Music was supplied by Gord Hammond and his orchestra.

A sock dance was held in the gym following a basketball game early in January.

On February 25, the Campus Queen and Ozark's Ball were combined and it proved to be a very successful affair.

The Graduation Dance in the Hotel Saskatchewan ended the college year.

To the sweet sounds of the Modernaires, the Sadie-Hawkins — Campus Queen Dance got under way on February 25.

Candidates for Campus Queen were:

Arts and Science: Ruth Huber
Pre-Dental: Cathy Moore
Pre-Medicine: Nancy Nicol
Engineers: Peggy Petrescu
Commerce: Marj Smith
Education: Lana Whitmore

Agriculture: Joan Walker Lab Techs: Judy Charles

There were plenty of wild costumes present, with people in them! and it was an evening that will probably recall many memories. Just a few of these . . . Remember

- —The tribe of eggheads singing the same old song (We are, we are, we are, etc.)?
- —Our dashing S.R.C. President in his pyjamas?
- —Those silly people who dared to come formal?
- -All those lovely young queens?
- -When Marj Smith was chosen Campus Queen?
- —The big, bouncing, blue-eyed, one hundred and seventy pound baby boy with the drooping diapers?
- —The good time you had?
- —And all the unmentionable little items that went on behind the scenes?

Everything taken into consideration, a good time was had by all who were there!

DRAMA COMMITTEE

In the eyes of one-half of the audience, "An Evening of Controversy" was a 'stimulating' success; to the other half it was money wasted on 'modern theatre' that they were not prepared for and refused to try to understand. For this reason it created interest, criticism, and praise. To an actor, reaction is his "raison d'etre".

I would like to express my thanks to: Alexander Skeaping for suggesting that we try a complete evening of drama; to Dr. Crossman for his moral support and advice; to my advisory board (that never did do much); to the stage and make-up crews; to Mr. Chadwick for his time and ability; to the casts; and finally to the students that supported this experiment that set a city standard for school drama.

RON WILLIAMS

The Editor: One has the feeling that the citizens of Regina are particularly apathetic to locally-sponsored and locally-performed theatre. We refer, in particular, to the evening of one-act plays recently presented by Regina College.

Not only was the evening stimulating (although hardly controversial) but also the plays were well-acted and well-directed. Ron Williams and his cast and crew deserve far more congratulation than has been evidenced so far.

The review of the evening, which appeared in the Saturday last edition of the Leader-Post, was not written as a criticism (which it probably pretended to be) and could not have been said to spark much enthusiasm in the general public to go and find out what sort of theatre was being performed.

It is too bad, also, that members of The Little Theatre organization, or at least their executive members, did not attend. It certainly would have provided some food for thought in choosing plays for their own productions.

At any rate, we hope the college drama group will not be disappointed by this most recent lack of enthusiasm, and try again soon.

FLOOR-SHOW

The floor-show was put on in the cafeteria before about a thousand people. Coffee and desserts were served.

Don Whyte, an accomplished violinist, executed his solos superbly. He later teamed up with Blaine Morrison to do impressions of Liberace and George. Blaine's virtuosity pleased the audience and his realistic interpretation of Liberace left the people rolling with laughter.

Dianne Liebel, gifted with a strong, yet sensitive voice, thrilled her audience with inspirational singing.

Arliss Dellow, a poker-faced monologue artist, had his audience "eating out of his hand". His discourse on marriage was done in a professional manner and the laughs and applause he drew from the audience proved this.

Orest Warneyea, the M.C. for the Great Levitation Act, teamed up with Courtney Vaudner, the hypnotist, to turn in a stunning performance. Mr. Vaudner amazed the onlookers as he hypnotized a volunteer from the audience and then enigmatically floated him high into the air from a bench. (It was unfortunate that the subject drifted away near the conclusion of the act.)

In between acts, a five-piece combo supplied a variety of music. Bruce Tomlinson, a talented guitarist, sparkled on his interpretation of Blue Moon and Frank Bunn sent shivers down jazz lovers' spines as he blew out sub-tone strains of Harlem Nocturne from his tenor sax.

The highlight of the evening was the South-Seas Dancing. When staged in front of an island backdrop, and given added atmosphere by lighting director Glenn Towill, who did a creditable job of stage-lighting under such difficult conditions, John Cupid's magnificently produced show enraptured everyone in the cafeteria. Each colourful, exotic dance, ranging from the Hula to the Limbo, left the audience applauding for more.

The students put a lot of work into University Night and its success and value made all of the effort worth while. This was truly a total student activity and it greatly contributed to developing college spirit. A special thanks must go to the college faculty and to the office, kitchen, and maintenance staff for all of their assistance.

UNIVERSITY NIGHT

On February 3-4, Regina College presented its third annual University Night. The estimated attendance for the two nights was 3500, which showed a marked increase over the thousand who came the year before. This is the Golden Jubilee Year of the College and University Night was one of many successful programmes planned to recognize this event. The open-house was divided into two parts—displays and a floorshow.

DISPLAYS

There were thirteen displays. The History Department set up a special Golden Jubilee Year display which traced the history and development of Regina College. This was a difficult project well done.

The French Department entered a display for the first time. In an effectively decorated room with samples of French art, sculpture, music, science, literature and so on, the significance of French Heritage in today's culture was exemplified.

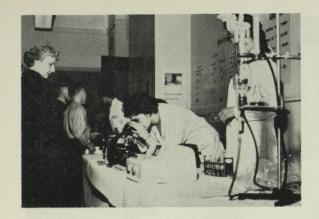

The Chemistry, Physics and Biology Departments presented their displays in form of demonstration experiments and various lab. layouts. The labs. were constantly packed with an intrigued public. The Physical Sciences 100 class set up an interesting display in Astronomy, complete with students who explained charts, telescopes, and scale models of planets.

The Lab. Techs. staged an impressive display and all the young men thrilled in having their blood tested by these pert young misses in white lab. coats.

The Math. Department presented a double-barrelled programme. Films were shown on the history of mathematics and in between shows, student lecturers explained various mathematical concepts using informative charts and diagrams.

Political Economy, Political Science, and Economics displays were placed in one room. The county system, basic economics concepts, and Canadas natural resources led to many interesting discussions. Ingenious explanatory visual aids outlined these topics concisely.

The S.C.M., an integral part of university life and the C.U.C.N.D. group also presented informative displays.

TREASURE VAN

The World University Services Treasure Van, a display-sale of International handicrafts, stopped for three days in late November at the Norman Mackenzie Art Gallery.

The "Market Place" was filled with interested citizens who viewed the varied and fascinating objects. There was fine filigree jewellery from India, carvings from Japan and Kenya, silks from the Orient, ponchos from South America, linens, chess-sets, rings, statuettes, baskets, china and exquisite brass work—everything was there from spears to waterpipes!!!

More than a dozen countries were represented in the exhibition. Though most of the objects had obviously been made for the tourist trade, they are sufficiently "foreign" to be enticing. The entire effort was presumably a financial success.

The Treasure Van is operated for the purpose of helping students in less fortunate countries with their education.

Dear Diary

Sept. 17:—Today was my first real day of College. The Dean gave us an orientation lecture. At night, I went to the Get-Acquainted dance. Boy, did I feel dumb because I hardly new anybody.

Nov. 19:—The residences went "beat" and had a really fabulous time. I wish I could have gone.

Nov. 21, 22, 23:—The Treasure Van came to Regina College. Egbert took me to it and bought me a real genuine shrunken head which is just what I've always wanted.

Dec. 20:—Exams are all over! Now I can have a rest and get back to normal!

Dec. 22:—I went to the Christmas formal with Horace because Egbert bores me now. Everybody looked so different—the boys in their suits and the girls in their lovely formals!

Jan. 5:—Classes started again; so it's back to the old grind!

Jan. 14:—We had a sock dance. It was really terrific! I got a hole in my sock and so did Horace!

Feb. 1:—Regina College talent, hit TV tonight with their floor show for University Night.

Feb. 3, 4:—Regina College was open to the public for University Nights. A real smashing success!!

Feb. 10, 11:—Drama Nights at Regina College. The kids did a really fabulous job!

Feb. 26:—Horace and I went to the College Sunday Church Service. Horace is such a gentleman!

March 4:—Miss Belcher and Dr. Murray had a tea for all the 'women' in the college. I had a lovely time!

March 11:—The Residence kids went West Indian. From all reports, those Cupids can really cook up quite a dish!

March 17, 18:—The College banquet. I went with Sylvester (Horace and I had a fight). Sylvester got an award. Was I ever proud of him. The food was delicious—I can't see why those Residence kids complain about the food.

April 25:—Sylvester took me to the graduation dance in the Hotel Saskatchewan. I don't think it will ever be quite the same. And so ends my year in good old Regina College. I think I'm a bit sad!

COUGETTES

Under the able coaching of Mr. Arnie Lowenberger, the Cougettes improved steadily throughout the season. Members of the team are: Merle Blore, Dianne Donnelly (Captain), Leah Yunker, Judy Claire Jones, Nancy Nicol, Pat Lines, Pal Currie, Carol Nant, Francie Anderson and Colleen Michalicz. Janet Koenig and Elizabeth Hilts played for part of the season.

The Cougettes played in the Ladies' League for the first time this year. They won two of their league games. The girls played a number of exhibition games including one against Cougette Alumni. The highlights of the year were the road trips; one to Moose Jaw and the other to Saskatoon. The victories were split. The Cougettes won against the Moose Jaw Tech Boggy Bouncers and lost to U. of S. Junior Huskiettes. Top scorers for the year are Leah Yunker and Dianne Donnelly.

Dave Gass	Lorne Dillabaugh
Gordie McLeod	Verne Simonson
Chris Marshall	Gary Grudnitski

HOCKEY

The college hockey team experienced a very outstanding season as they won 9 out of 12 games. The fun and exercise was worth while for everyone associated with the team.

Getting off to a late start, the hockey team was not able to partake in an established league; therefore, resorted to a series of exhibition games. These were played chiefly in the city of Regina with several out-of-town games.

The hockey team was not able to receive any financial assistance from the college as the team wasn't budgeted for in the 1960-61 term. However, this did not hamper its activities as the players supplied their own equipment and sticks and paid for any additional expenses which were incurred.

It is the general consent of the players and others interested in hockey, that in the future, a college hockey team should be sponosored and financed by the college. There is a great deal of interest and talent in hockey and with some college assistance, it can be a great asset to the players and college alike.

Congratulations for a job well done to playing coach Alex Young, playing manager Orest Warnyca, and assistant manager and goalie, Lorne Muir.

CHEERLEADERS

There were six girls who participated in cheerleading at Regina College during the year. They were: Kathy Hird, Pat Hoag, Cathy Riddell, Carole Lokken, Cathy Moore and Ruth Huber.

The cheerleaders took two trips this year—one to Moose Jaw with the Cubs and Cougettes and the second to Saskatoon with the Cougettes and Cougars. It was a successful year for the teams and cheerleaders alike.

CURLING

Sixteen rinks, including three staff rinks, took part in what must be regarded as a successful bonspiel. What was lacking in skill was certainly made up for in enthusiasm. Every Friday afternoon the rafters of the Civil Service Curling Rink, where all games were played, echoed with the shouts of energetic curlers attempting to follow the directions of their respective skips.

The season was brought to a close on March 11, 1961 when the winning rink of the 'A' Division skipped by Don Geeson, won over the winners of the 'B' Division skipped by Ron Dionne, 11-5. The other members of the winning rink were Ron Craddock throwing lead, Stan Beveridge second, del Pletch lead, Colin Tremblay second, and Harvey Langard Gerald Blender third. Curling with Ron Dionne were Meridel Pletch lead, Colin Tremblay second, and Harvey Langlois third.

BOWLING

The Regina College Bowling League this year was very successful. Close to fifty bowlers turned out every Saturday at the Vic Alleys to try their luck. I am sure that everyone enjoyed themselves immensely.

The team of George Dobranski edged out John Lipp's team for top honors. Top male bowler was O. Holmes with an average of 212. Top female bowler was Mrs. J. Holmes. N. Brill was the top student bowler, edging out R. Greenshields by a very close margin. June MacDonald was the top female student bowler ahead of Lois Larson.

John Lipp Bowling Director

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Volleyball:

Eighteen teams participated in intramural volleyball. The refereeing left something to be desired, but on the whole everyone seemed to enjoy themselves. Thanks are extended to the questionable referees who, however, did offer their services free of charge and did the job to the best of their ability.

Commerce 1 was the victorious team. The members of this team were: Rodger Tourigny, John Lipp, Bob Mirwald, Pat Lawson, Walt Weimer, George Fink and Gord McLeod.

Basketball:

Nine teams participated in this league. Thanks are due to Tom Wood who was the Intramural Basketball Manager and also to those who helped during the noon hours as timekeepers and scorers.

In the final game, the Engineers defeated the Commerce team to win the league. Members of the Engineers are: Stan Beveridge, Elmar Goldsmith, Don Geesen, Murray Balbar and Gerald Blender.

A DAY IN MEN'S RESIDENCE

The day begins early. The cafteria terminates the breakfast interval at 8:15 and about 8:14, the traffic jam occurs in the same area as the daily rush begins. The arrival of Ma Milton to give the rooms her motherly touch ends the last chance to sleep in. The period until the supper hour is a busy one as the workers go back and forth gathering the day's store (of knowledge?).

After the supper hour, the residence begins to settle into its nightly routine of wheels grinding as the studiers study, guitars twanging as twangers twang, and bells ringing as the Don Ameche invention begins its nightly plotting of secret trysts. Once in a while the dull thud of knives, targeting into the pretty wallpaper of room 302 can be heard above th usual noises and then everyone knows the dart game is in progress. But there is a feeling of tension in the air as all are unconsciously waiting for the surprise occurence of the evening.

What will it be tonight? A head through the window? A toilet plunger? A lecture from the good Warden? Or will it be tonight that Alex will accidentally drop the key for the door between the two residences? What a dull night this one turned out to be. The insignificant happening of the night was only the raid by the women's residence.

Then the food starts arriving from Gene's and as the men are feeding, the fires of devilment die down and the process of bedding down begins. About midnight the parade of multi-coloured shorts begins, back and forth between bed and throne room. This last flurry is the "Taps" that announces the one and only quiet period. Quiet creeps in except for the occasional buzzing of the night bell which itself eventually dies out. Yes, this was a typical, uneventful day.

TRINIDAD AND ITS DANCE

Trinidad is a small island — 1980 square miles of tropical land, tropical paradise if you are poetic. The sea, sky, hills, rivers, swamps, flaura and fauna create a profusion of colour and variety. It lies about ten degrees north of the equator and fifteen miles off Venezuela. It is a link in the necklace of Carribbean islands around the neck of the Americas. The rainfall ranges from 124 inches on the east coast to fifty inches on the west. From a daytime high of eighty-four degrees fahrenheit, the temperature drops in the night to a low of seventy-four. Ice in drinks only. This is enough of cold statistics, now to something warmer—the dances.

First, one should know something of the people. When Columbus landed there in 1498 and the native Indians—Caribs and Arawaks—discovered him and came to be aware of his civilization, they paid dearly for the discovery. The Spaniards all but exterminated them. The Arawaks died peacefully. The Caribs were warlike and fought for survival. There is still a Carib Queen at Arima, northeast of Trinidad, but few full-blooded Caribs, and thereby—the mixture of bloods—hangs a tale, a tale of the evolution of a people who are today's 800,000 Trinidadians.

The British took over the island by conquest in 1797. The French fled down from Haiti, in the north, when that island had its civil war in 1798. The slave trade provided Negroes. Indentured labour, which replaced slave labour after abolition, brought East Indians, Portuguese and Chinese into the melting pot. The outpouring has been as cosmopolitan a country as one could hope to find anywhere—even in Venus. For nearly two centuries, the language has been English; the manners, the clothes, the education system, the games, the system of government, all English. But whereas what was put on was English, what has come out—the mode and form of expression—was something quite different, excitingly different. Very rarely indeed does a society allow its people to live together and so develop with inhibitions at a minimum.

Of the mediums of expression, it is in the dance that this mixture has exploded in its amazing best. The Spaniards, Indians, Negroes and Portuguese are all well known for expressing themselves and their feelings powerfully in music and dance. In the old slavery days ordinary conversation was impossible because of the actions of the masters and the difference in language between tribes. Even the talking drums were banned. The slaves created the calypso, which allowed them to communicate in song without the masters being able to understand. The singing moved into dancing, and each person danced as the music moved him or her, instructed by the cultures from which they came or were uprooted. Out of all this evolved dances of form and variety which would dazzle the eye and defy the imagination. After emancipation, the drums came out of hiding to supply the driving beat. Today one can dance Shango, Bongo, Bele, Samba, Rumba, Jig, Limbo, Waltzes -English and Castilian-Jive, Foxtrot, Calenda, Hosein, May Pole and dozens of others. No part of the body escapes — from the head and neck to the ten toes, a rhythmic movement of the whole. The expression is complete.

It is an individual expression as well as a group expression. In the many villages when singers, drummers and dancers get together, time is forgotten, nine nights sometimes pass before the occasion is properly celebrated. Be it sacrifice, a birth or death, a saint day or just plain, ordinary Saturday night, there is dance for it. Work? Work goes on as usual. The sick, the lame, the old, the young, all dance. At dance festivals, groups from all over the island meet in competition. The Oueen of the Bele, which is a dance for women only—the men drum and sing and eat the food—is a woman in her sixties. The festival champion's leading dancer of Bele and Calenda is over eighty. No age limit. The new half-a-million dollar concert hall could scarce contain the audience or their applause, as they watched the near-miraculous transformation of this old woman into the most charming and graceful artiste, when the drumming and singing found expression in her dancing. The point is that Trinidadians' dancing is theirs, so they keep it come hell or high water until death do them part. If death does not come until ninety, so what? Still dance.

Another interesting evolution is the steel band, a by-product if you wish, but more than that, it demonstrates the characteristic feature of the people, the music and the dance—they are not static. When the war ended in 1945 (the people are materially poor, although surprisingly rich in the best free things in life) the occasion had to be celebrated as never before, since, perhaps, emancipation. Pots, pans, dust-bins, oildrums, brake drums, in fact any element with a metallic lustre, capable of producing or being made to produce any kind of sound, was pressed into service. The total result was compelling. If you did not even know that a war was fought and won, you could not resist the celebration. In a decade, the steel band has come to be capable of capturing the most delicate mood and tonal quality. When adjudicators come down from England and Edinburgh at Music Festival time, they are amazed. While Calypso and Latin-American rhythm remain their speciality, no classic piece is avoided. Chopin, Brahms, Schubert and Tschaikovsky must jump and chip in their graves when they hear their immortal melodies being played with such a haunting, pulsating beat.

The steel band has come to be the principal music of the Carnival, but this Trinidad Carnival is another fascinating story which would take a book. Sufficient to say that Carnival is the culmination, no, this would suggest an end, better a climax; and each year's Carnival is a climax higher than the one before. It has all the features of the people and dance that the passing of the centuries has produced. Everybody, from babes-in-arms up, is in the act. The streets are closed to traffic and dancing goes on for two days. If you suffer from arthritis or any such ailment, the suffering is suspended. No emotions are held, you dance as the music dances you, or jump as the sky limits! The anthropologists and cultural directors come out on days like these to see the dances as they are created.

Small wonder then, that when in early February something of the Trinidad spirit through its music and dance was captured in the Cafeteria of Regina College; patrons had to be turned away, and furniture was wrecked as audiences sought vantage points. In short, the space was too limited. But this is no new reaction to Trinidad dances. Stratford Ontario Festival was tested. Even in Trinidad tents and buildings have collapsed under such strain. The dance refuses to be contained; it is for under the sky.

And so the evolution goes on and on.

HAPPY THO' MARRIED

The subject of my discourse is: Do married men make the best husbands?—I feel that I am in a position to speak freely on this subject as I am a married man myself — unfortunately! Of course I am not bragging about it and I don't want to say anything against marriage —I don't use that kind of language!

Furthermore we are very, very happy my wife and I. Why we have been married—why it's almost four years and we are so happy that it doesn't seem like any more than twelve. And I'll tell you why, it's because we get along so beautifully together, my wife and I. Why only two nights ago we were sitting in the parlor and I held her hand for three hours.—If I had let go, she would have killed me.

It's a funny thing how I came to meet my wife. It was one of those Regina Beach romances. I was introduced to her by a scoundrel to whom I owed three dollars. He knew I would never pay him back while I was conscious, so in order to get even with me he introduced me to this female dreadnought.

We got to be very friendly and every day we would go in bathing together. Ah! here's where the romance comes in; this is what started the whole thing. One day she got out a little too far. Of course, I don't want to pose as a hero; but, If I hadn't been there at the critical moment to rescue her, she would have perished miserably. It's a funny thing, my father saved my mother from drowning and I think I know now why he never wanted me to take swimming lessons.

Of course, don't think I didn't love this girl. I did love her! I loved every hair on her bureau! I loved her because she came from a very aristocrooked family!—Her uncle, being a retired bank manager—the judge retired him for ten years.

And she loved me! She loved me because I was so good to her! Why, I remember taking her out one evening and spending a dollar and a half on her freely. I would have spent more than that, but that's all she had.

So I said to myself, "Arliss, why not propose to this girl and get married." I was out of work anyway.

When I rang the bell she met me at the door with a smile spread all over her beautiful map. I had a bouquet of heliotripe in my hand and I gave her this bouquet and with my voice quivering with love, emotion—and beer, I says, "Kitten, will you marry me?" I called her kitten until we were married nine days and then she got her eyes open. I said, "Kitten will you marry me?" and she said, "Yes, I don't care what becomes of me."

So, I marched her off to the minister's and we were united in the holy bunk of matrimony. Then my wife, being a very sensitive woman didn't want anyone to know we had just been married, so I let her carry the suitcase!

THE W.C.

A young couple about to get married were looking for a home in the country. During the return journey, the young lady was deep in meditation and when asked the reason for her silence replied that she had not noticed any W.C.—meaning the water-closet. The groom recalled that he had not seen it and wrote to the landlord enquiring where the W.C. was located.

The landlord did not know what the W.C. meant, but came to the conclusion that the prospective tenant was enquiring the way to the Wesleyan Church. He replied accordingly:

Dear Sir:

I regret very much the delay in answering your letter. But, I have the pleasure to inform you that the W.C. is located 9 miles from the house, on good paved road and is capable of seating 240 people. This is unfortunate for you if you are in the habit of going regularly. But you will be glad to know some people take their lunch and make a day of it. Others who can spare the time go by auto. But, generally they are in such a hurry they cannot wait. The last time my wife and I went was six years ago and we had to stand all the time. It may interest you to know that a bazaar is to be given soon to raise funds to furnish plush seats. As many of the members feel this is a long felt want. I may mention too, that it pains me greatly not to be able to go more often.

Ode to a College Stew

Under the crust of the old college stew
There is something for me and for you;
It may be a hair the cook has left there,
Or it may be a juicy fat fly.
It may be an old rusty nail,
Or a piece of an alley cat's tail.
But whatever it be,
It's for you and for me—
'Neath the crust of the old college stew.

On Practising Violin

Bernstein! thou shouldst be here at this hour;
Dianne hath need of thee; she is a thing
Of jumbled discords: rosin, bow, and string
Deskside, the heroic wealth of Brahms and Liszt,
Have forfeited their beauty, golden, missed
The inward harmony. We need soothing.
Oh, come to us! bring back our silence;
And give us the quiet and peace that we crave.
Thy music like heaven, with stars all aglow:
Thou hast a voice which soarest like a bird:
Free as the waving oceans, welcomely heard.
So does it infuse in life's common day
In cheerful godliness. And yet we know
The same type of music yourself once did play.

-DONNA PEEL

THE TIDE - Essarjay

One silver-capped wave of a delicate hue Almost lost in the vast panorama of blue; Almost drowned by the sea's loud, tumultuous roar, Soulfully searching for sight of the shore.

One silver capped wave in the calm of the night, His silverness luminous with the moon's light, Wistfully wondering what fate holds in store As he rolls on and on, ever nearer the shore.

One silver-capped wave as the night rushes on, The moon draws its shade, introduces the dawn; He leaps; he surveys the horizon and sees A glimpse of white sand and an island of trees.

One silver-capped wave grows excitedly bright As he sees that the shore is now nearer in sight, He hears in the distance a seagull's wild song And he knows that the journey to shore won't be long.

The silver-capped wave hurls its life to the shore, Contentedly lapping one brief moment more: The sea now is still; there's a wonderful lull And a beautiful requiem sung by a gull.

One silver-capped wave of a delicate hue, Once lost in the vast panorama of blue, Once drowned in the sea's loud tumultuous roar, Once lived; and then died for its love of the shore.
