FRAUD ALLEGED AGAINST INSURANCE COMPANY

Ex-Governor Angers Sues Mutual Reserve Fund Association for Money Paid Them.

Ottawa, April 28--(Special)—The Supreme Court of Canada today closed the business of the February session today and adjourned sine die. The rest will be adjourned as the May session opens on Tuesday next.

The last case heard was an interesting one, Angers vs. Mutual Reserve Fund Ltd. Association. The appellant, Hon. Mr. Angers, former lieutenant-governor of Quebec, insured in the association in 1860.

It was represented to him that the association at which he protested but continued to pay until 1885, when a further advance of over 100 per cent caused him to drop his policy and bring an action for cancelling the contract and return of moneys paid the association.

The appellant claimed that when he insured it was represented to him that the assessment might fluctuate between a minimum and maximum amount but would never exceed the latter and that his certificate would probably be self-supporting in fifteen years; that when the advance was made in 1885 he was given to understand that it would be merely temporary and returned to the members in cash or reserve fund and that there was misrepresentation, if not fraud, in the statements made to him in view of the heavy increase in cost of the policy in 1885.

The company claimed that the increase was authorized by its by-laws and made under direction of the superintendent of insurance of New York. That the representations complained of were those made by every company to attract the public and while exaggerated were not fraudulent. And that appellant could recover no damages as he was insured at the date he agreed to pay 1860 and practically to 1885.

The appellant relies on a case of Foster vs. the same company decided against the latter by the court of appeal in England and now pending in the house of lords. At the trial appellant succeeded but failed in the court of review and king's bench.

T. Chasse Casgrain, K. O. M. P., and Lafleur, K. C., appeared for the appellant; Beaudin, K. C., and Aime Godfrin, K. C., for the association. Judgment was reserved.

The only New Brunswick case to be heard in May are Connolly vs. St. John and Levin vs. Lewin. The maritime law will not be heard first as is the usual course in February and May but will follow the Quebec cases.

BRITISH COTTON WORKERS FLOCKING TO CANADA.

Depression in the Business the Cause--Many Will Take Up Farming Life in the Northwest--Others Will Pursue Their Trade in the United States.

Montreal, April 28--(Special)—The Star's Montreal correspondent cables: "Owing to a short time now being worked in the cotton industry, and the consequent unemployment, a great emigration movement is now commencing of cotton workers to Canada and the United States, and a great number are flocking to the United States since the disastrous effects of the American civil war. Many of these emigrants are seeking fresh work in the cotton mills of the United States, on account of the higher wages and shorter hours prevailing there; but a large proportion of them are flocking to the United States to take up farming in the northwest."

"The extent of the movement can be judged from the fact that the Allan Line, a large steamship line, is now being chartered to take up to 1,000 passengers for Canada, nearly all of whom are British, while the Dominion Line is also being chartered to take up to 1,000 passengers for Canada, nearly all of whom are British."

Other Witnesses. Bennie Gee was followed by Capt. W. W. Melville, Peter Gee, Willie Gee, Handford Gee, George W. Fink, Maria Demerchant, Sally Kinney and Mary Gee.

BRITAIN WILL FOSTER COTTON GROWING IN HER COLONIES.

London, April 27.—In the house of commons tonight John Rutherford, member for the Darwen division of Lancashire, moved that "in the opinion of this house it is incumbent upon the government to encourage the growing of cotton in Africa and elsewhere in the British possessions, and also to co-operate with the commercial associations working in that direction."

Mr. Rutherford emphasized the danger of Great Britain being dependent on one source of supply, and said that there was a great future for the cotton industry in Egypt, the Lagos Territory and Nigeria. He said he hoped the government would help the cotton growers' association by constructing railways and in transportation generally.

Alfred Lyttelton, secretary of the colonies, said he recognized that there was danger in the dependence of Lancashire solely on the United States for its supply of cotton. He said extensive experiments had been made in the British possessions with every prospect of success. An arrangement had just been concluded between the colonial office and the Cotton Growers' Association, whereby the latter agreed to provide $150,000 for the development of the industry in Lagos, Southern Nigeria and Sierra Leone, which dependencies had contributed an annual sum of $25,000.

Ottawa, April 27.—(Special)—There was an interesting discussion in the house to-day which touched upon the relations between Canada and Newfoundland and also brought out an important statement from Mr. Fielding that nothing should be done that would in any way retard the union of the ancient colony with the United States.

Mr. Borden went on to say that the Canadian fishermen would be shut out from getting bait. He suggested representations being made to the government of Newfoundland so as to get the same rights to Canadian fishermen to obtain bait in Newfoundland waters as were given to Americans.

GLoucester Fishermen Are Against New Move.

Whether, under such circumstances, fish could be exported to the United States free of duty seems to be altogether a matter of domestic concern to the United States government, as to which we cannot have a voice as any action we might take would be absolutely without effect.

WHAT TEA DOES FOR RHEUMATICS.

When you next take tea, think of this. Tea contains 175 grains of Uric Acid in every pound.

Most contains only five to seven grains. And this Uric Acid in the blood accumulates from food when the digestive apparatus cannot create enough Alkaline elements (like soda) to neutralize it.

This acid collects areas, or worn-out waste matter, from the system. The Uric Acid has not previously dissolved it. By and by the waste matter reaches the joints and muscles, through circulation of the blood.

For the season just closing it is shown that since last November to date there have been shipped 27,255 head of cattle, 21,643 sheep, and twenty-nine horses. This includes the stock on board the Kasalia, which is to sail today, and 500 head which will arrive in a few days for the steamer Montrose.

There was placed on board ships leaving here for the west coast of the Atlantic, 29,929 head of cattle, 1,818 sheep, and sixteen horses. In all the stock carried on the stead of the steamer numbered 30,175 head of cattle, 22,641 sheep and forty-five horses. The season is looked upon as a most successful one. The stock yards are under lease to A. C. Smith & Co. and G. B. Lockhart, of that firm, has taken charge of the stock and handled it with great success, the animals having received the best of attention.

John Storm, who represents the shippers, has spent the season here superintending the handling of the stock, and his duties have been arduous. Doctor F. Frink, the local examiner, and Thomas Buckley, the inspector, have also had a busy season.

The cattle steamers furnish a good deal of work for carpenters at Sand Point.

ONE THING DONE WELL. The True Secret of a Remarkable Success. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People do only one thing—but they do that one thing well. That is the secret of their success. They actually make new blood; just that and no more. But good blood is the best cure for almost all diseases.

Mr. M. C. W. Brown, of Caribou, Me., writes: "I suffered for two years from kidney trouble. I tried many medicines but got nothing to help me until I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using them about a month every bit of the trouble was gone."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for these people—and for thousands of others—they will do for you, if you will give them a reasonable trial. Sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

About the middle of October I called at Silent Square. I had written the day before to make the appointment, and had stated that my business was important. It was only my fourth visit to the house John Silver having made it clear to both me and Captain Thorslesen that he did not wish to be consulted about any arrangements or expenses, and that he could grant no personal interviews whatever. I had been much irritated by this arrangement. I told myself that I was annoyed by such unbusinesslike methods, but I think in my innermost heart I realized that the true cause of my irritation was my inability to see Thora de Brie.

On this occasion I was shown once more into the lumber room, where John Silver was seated in a heavy oak chair, with a large square sheet of brown parchment spread out on a table before him. The apartment denuded of its books, seemed in a greater chaos than ever. It was a dusty treasure house, but a mere utility rubbish heap.

"Well, Dr. Silex," he said, holding out his hand, "I hope you have come with better news than you had the last time I saw you."

"Everything is progressing well," I answered. "Thorslesen is a splendid worker, and it is impossible for the men to be idle when he is in touch with them."

"I can believe in his powers," he said. "When I hear of Dr. Silex, the great bibliophile, superintending the delivery of tinned meats, and even unpacking the cases with his own hands."

"Physical labor is good for man," I replied. "It is rest and recreation to a student."

"I believe you will be quite sorry when the expedition leaves and you return to your groove. But your news, Dr. Silex? You know my wishes in this matter. They are not meant to be discourteous, but I do not wish any voice in the arrangements. This is the Silex Expedition."

"So it is called in the newspapers," I said. "One of them devoted two columns the other day to my biography and various domestic details. It concluded by saying that if every millionaire would devote his wealth to the cause of science, the millennium would soon come, or words to that effect. I blushed when I read it, May I smoke?"

John Silver took two cigars from his pocket, and handing me one, lit the other and laughed.

"Yes," I continued, "I blushed, not with modesty, but with shame. I have nothing to do with this expedition. I do not even know its ultimate purpose."

"The discovery of the North Pole," he said quietly.

"Obviously, yes; but a fifteen-pounder is useless for that purpose, and fifteen ships are as good as twenty—Mr. Silver will you not trust me in this matter? Believe me, I have your interests at heart, and the interests of the Lady Thora de Brie."

Silver, "Dr. Silex insists on defraying the whole of the expenses of this expedition. He will provide twenty ships and return us the sum of $200,000."

"He will be our master," Silver continued, "and no longer our servant."

"I have advised him not to go," I said. "You must not go, Dr. Silex," she said. "You must not go, Dr. Silex," she said.

"Every Arctic explorer must face the chance of death," I replied. "I do not set up to be brave, but surely I may dare to follow where a noble man has led."

"I have guessed that," I replied, "but at any rate it is my expedition, and will do as I direct."

"There is grave danger," she continued. "It is probable that not a man of all this expedition will ever return."

"I am sending them to their death," I answered, "the least I can do is to go with them."

"I tell you," she cried, "that if you go, you will not return."

"I will go," I said. "I am going to the North Pole."

"On the 23rd of March twenty whalers, reconstructed and strengthened for the spring months of the Arctic seas, were waiting the signal to start. They were manned by a thousand men, captained by the most experienced and adventurous navigators of the Arctic seas, amply provisioned for five years, and carried everything that could possibly add to the comfort and safety of their crews. The equipment represented the sum total of all Arctic science and experience. As it was the largest, so it was also the most perfect outfit that had ever been sent to the North Pole."

But though everything had been ready for the start for nearly a fortnight, the fleet was still waiting in London. For John Silver, in whose brain lay the deep and ultimate purpose of his mission, was seriously ill, and the doctors said that any attempt to move him in his present condition would mean certain death.

"I have had the invalid pleaded with me. He had told them that the air of the sea was doing him good. He had told them that the expedition must start at once, and that as it would not go without him, that a million pounds would be wanted, and more than one thousand men thrown out of employment. He had told them that if he was to die, he would rather die in the open sea with the waves splashing past his head, than be shut up in that wilderness of brick and stone of London. But it was all in vain. They replied that if he remained in his bed, he would probably recover. They were not, they said, prepared to risk a man's life, even for the sum of a million pounds."

But they told me and Captain Thorslesen that unless the invalid's mind could be directed to the expedition, they would have to give up. On the evening of March 23rd I sat alone in my library after dinner. It was a wild night. A bitter east wind whistled round the house, and even seemed to find an entrance into my warm and comfortable apartment. I drew my chair close to the fire and gave up my thoughts to the glowing coals. The stress of seven months' unworked toil and exertion was over. My things were packed and put on board the Aurora, the same ship that was to carry John Silver and the Princess, and to be commanded by Captain Thorslesen.

All diseases that begin with fever— inflammation— all catarrhs— contagious diseases— all the results of impure or poisonous blood. In nervous debility Ligozone acts as a vitality, accomplishing what no drugs can do.

"Quick, sit," she gasped, "you are wanted at once. He is dying." The doctors say there is no hope. He has asked to see you. My lady desires you to come at once. A cab is waiting outside."

I followed her on into the hall without a word. I was too dazed at the news to ask any questions. The whole fabric of the last few months seemed to be shaking to its foundations. John Silver had planned and built it up to its completion. He alone knew its ultimate purpose. In his brain were all the future plans; in his hands the innumerable strings of his great undertakings. And John Silver was dying.

I entered the cab with the maid, offering a sovereign to the driver if he would do the journey in less than twenty minutes, and leaned back on the cushions with my mind in a whirl of thought and conjecture. The driver struck straight into the opposite corner and was silent. I had asked nothing, and she had proffered no information. It was enough that John Silver had died. That was the central fact, and no inquiries could have elicited anything else of consequence.

The driver carried his sovereign, and we made our way down through Peables Terrace to Silent Square. I was shown into this room from a door, and I could hear voices through the panels.

I waited there alone for ten minutes. Then the Princess came out with the two doctors. Her face was white and strained with tears, and there was an expression in her eyes I could not fathom—a strange look of horror, as though she had been confronted with something new and terrible in her life. She held out her hand, and I kissed it. Neither of us spoke. The doctors passed into another room. For half an hour we sat thus in silence. There was no sound but the ticking of the clock on the mantle-piece, and through the closed door the murmur of voices. Then the door opened and a priest came out. He had been administering the last sacrament and hearing the last confessions. He laid his hands upon the head of the Princess.

"The voice of my child," he said, "and so your consecrated daughter, a copy of the voice of God may speak through my lips. May His blessing be upon you. And with these words he moved forward, and I saw that he was carrying a man who had been dead some time, and whose face was as white as paper. He was dressed in a man's suit, and he had a look of a man who had seen death and heard many deathbed confessions, but the look of a man who had seen death and heard many deathbed confessions, but the look of a man who had seen death and heard many deathbed confessions.

"I will see you now," said the Princess in a low voice. "If his strength fails, he will die. I am sorry to hear that. I will see you now."

"I will see you now," said the Princess in a low voice. "If his strength fails, he will die. I am sorry to hear that. I will see you now."

MORE DISCUSSION ON G. T. PACIFIC BILL

Ottawa, April 28.—(Special)—During the discussion of the national transcontinental railway in committee today Dr. Roche, of Marquette, objected to the extension of the time for the completion of the line of the western division, he urged that the location of the road across the prairies should be determined before a general election.

Mr. Fitzpatrick said that the facilities which existed now for getting supplies into the country as compared with the time when the C. P. R. was built would permit the road being built well within the specified time, in the first instance, but as the company was putting up $5,000,000 deposit, it was not unreasonable to ask for an extension. In regard to location of the line that would be done in the usual way. He deprecated the idea to deal with transcontinental line on sections, holding that the whole line from Winnipeg to the Pacific should be regarded as one.

Mr. Boyd, of Macdonald, spoke of the importance of the completion of the prairie section.

Mr. Borden did not think any extension of time was necessary for an prairie section.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier congratulated Mr. Borden upon his conversion to the doctrine of the necessity for expedition in pushing forward the work of construction. He said that in getting sufficient labor, which had been the difficulty when the C. P. R. was built, did not exist when the C. P. R. was built, and that the G. T. R. could employ Mongolian labor was one reason for the extension of time.

GEE MUST DIE FOR MURDER.

Frank Sweeney said on Saturday, March 32, prisoner's countenance looked strange. Some of the prisoner's relatives were present, and insanity ran in the Gee family.

Before the addressing of the jury began, Mr. Pugsley referred to the criminal code of Canada as regards insanity to offset the argument of the defence.

Mr. Hartley addressed the jury, claiming that Goo was insane. Intoxicating liquors would increase his insanity. Jealousy will likely produce insanity, as well as disappointment. It has been shown that the prisoner has of late greatly changed. May not this deed of which he is charged be the culmination of his insanity?

Attorney General Scores Prisoner.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley, for the crown, began by referring to the unfortunate position of the prisoner. The jurors must not let sentiment influence their verdict. There was not a shadow of defence for George Goo. He had deliberately taken the life of his cousin. As to the claim of insanity, the learned counsel quoted the law showing the burden of such proof to

While the jury was out the prisoner was allowed to leave the dock.

Prisoner GUILTY OF MURDER.

The judge requested the large crowd to keep quiet as jurors came back to court. The jury was out for 45 minutes and amid a craning of necks and general movement on the part of the crowd, by their foreman, Albert Simmonson, announced a verdict of "guilty."

With flushed face the prisoner heard the verdict, while much pity was expressed by the people present. The nerve of the prisoner was indeed wonderful as he listened to the verdict.

Moved by the attorney-general that the prisoner be remanded, the chief justice said he must first see the prisoner. He was taken to the judge by Chief of Police Kelly and deputy sheriff. In reply to something said to him, the prisoner smiled rolling the quid of tobacco from one side of his mouth to the other.

Sentence This Morning.

The chief justice will sentence the prisoner at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The foreman of the jury, Albert Simmonson, stated to his honor that the jury's verdict was "guilty." The prisoner, Geo. Goo, plainly heard the verdict as did everyone present, but did not display any great amount of excitement. Save for a SENSATIONAL STORY OF WHY A P. E. MINISTER WAS LEFT HALF MILLION.

Mr. McDonald, the Story is, Would Not Expel Wealthy Woman from Congregation Because She Sold Liqueur in Her Hotel.

American papers last week noted the fact that Rev. Angus M. McDonald, of the Congregational church at Bar Harbor, had been left half a million dollars by Mrs. Abbie R. Dodge of Jacksonville (Fla.). Rev. Mr. McDonald is thirty-six years old. He was born on P. E. Island. His first pastorates was at the Union Congregational church in Jacksonville. Mrs. Dodge, a widow, was a prominent member of the church, and generously contributed to its support. She was a daughter of a prominent family and had married Miss Annie McLeod, of Boston. Mrs. Dodge became a warm friend of the Rev. Mr. McDonald. Less than two years ago Mr. McDonald removed to Bar Harbor. Last month he was notified of the serious illness of Mrs. Dodge and he immediately returned to Jacksonville. He reached there a few days before her death on March 26 and officiated at her funeral. It is not until the week ended did he know of his wealth. He is made sole executor in the will. His friends are said to be friends and relatives to some $30,000, and the residue reverts to him.

The following rather sensational story of the case was published in the New York Herald. "Mrs. Abbie R. Dodge was a member of the firm of Dodge & Collins, owners of the Windsor Hotel. It was generally believed that Mrs. Dodge would leave the bulk of her property to Mr. Collins and that gentleman himself was of the same opinion. Mr. Collins, however, will receive a pair of diamond earrings and a solitary diamond ring. "Mrs. McDonald was formerly pastor of the Union Congregational church of Jacksonville, of which Mrs. Dodge was a member. The temperance people last summer protested against Mrs. Dodge's church services and especially on Sundays. Church meetings were held on Wednesday evenings and on the church authorities that he could not compel Mrs. Dodge to discontinue the sale of liquor in her hotel. It is understood that she refused to comply with the wish of the church. "The fight between the temperance people and the preacher over the Dodge case grew more and more bitter. Finally in a request for Mr. McDonald to resign unless he would remove the bar from the hotel, she refused to do so. She would not stop selling liquor. Mr. McDonald resigned at that time that Mrs. Dodge told him she would see that he lost nothing in the matter. She advanced him money to educate his children in the University of Toronto. She was very generous. In her will she made numerous bequests of small amounts to relatives in Maine.

Alex. Christie.

One of the oldest and best known residents of St. John, Alexander Christie, died last night at his residence, 45 Water street, aged seventy-eight years. Up to about nine months ago he was engaged in active business, when his health compelled him to retire. Since that time he had been falling gradually. The immediate cause of death was heart trouble. Deceased was born at Nerepis, Kings county, and was the son of William Christie, who came from Aberdeen, Scotland, with his wife and settled in Kings county with many years ago. At the age of nine, Alex. Christie moved into St. John and has been a resident of this city ever since. He founded the woodworking firm of A. Christie & Co. in Water street in 1857. Here the firm continued to do business until 1888, when they were burned out, after which they moved to City road, and later became incorporated as the A. Christie Woodworking Company, under which style they have carried on business since. Alexander Christie also engaged in the building trade, and among the buildings he erected may be mentioned the old Victoria hotel, German street, and the old Academy of Music, which were both built during his lifetime. Besides these the Masonic hall and the Odd-fellows' hall are specimens of his handiwork. He was a member of Union Lodge of Portland, A. P. and A. M., of New Brunswick Royal Arch Chapter. He also belonged to Union Lodge Preceptory, K. T.

Deceased is survived by three sons, W. A. Christie, James and Charles S., both of the A. Christie Woodworking Company; also one daughter, Mrs. J. H. Roberts, of New York. Three brothers and two sisters also survive. Dr. James Christie and Ald. William Christie, of this city, are brothers, and Mrs. Thomas Hoyle, of New York, is a sister. The third brother is Edward, who after an absence of about forty years, revisited this city last summer. He served through the American civil war. His home is in Minnesota. Mr. Christie's funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

At a recent meeting of the Sumnerdale town council it was decided to submit a list of questions to different towns in the maritime provinces where water works and sewers are installed. The questions are: (1) Whether a water works, including pumps, etc., is installed; (2) Whether a sewer system, including pumps, etc., is installed; (3) Whether a water works and sewer system, including pumps, etc., is installed.

be upon the defence. The prisoner knew he had done wrong and gave himself up willingly. Insanity cannot be made out by conjecture. The prisoner had boasted of his intention to shoot deceased. Here the events leading up to the tragedy were outlined by counsel. Mr. Pugsley said it is plain that the murder was premeditated.

Judge Tuck's Charge.

Chief Justice Tuck addressed the jury as follows: "Gentlemen of the jury: If the prisoner at the bar is guilty it is your duty to convict him. Of course it is said to be some sympathy should be felt for the murdered girl. Geo. Goo is charged with murdering Millie Goo. The defence has been particularly well handled. Deceased was taken for dinner. After dinner the court was thronged with spectators, including many ladies. The prisoner said to the Telegraph reporter that he was feeling well but had no appetite.

Chemical Engine.

The question of providing a chemical engine for the fire department in Moncton is now under consideration. When seen by a Transcript reporter, Mayor Magoo said that personally he was in favor of providing a chemical engine. While in Vancouver he made inquiries regarding the use of the apparatus there. He found that about ninety per cent of the fires in that city were extinguished by the chemical extinguisher. "It is much more convenient to handle," said his worship, "and can be got to a fire more quickly than an ordinary steam engine. Another thing in favor of the chemical extinguisher is that goods at fires are often not damaged to such an extent as they are with the use of water in putting out the fire. It is estimated that fully eighty per cent of the fires in the city of Halifax are extinguished by this apparatus.

Lipton Sends Best Wishes.

St. Louis, April 28.—President David R. Francis, of the world's fair, has received a cablegram from Sir Thomas Lipton, conveying his congratulations and best wishes for the success of the Louisiana purchase exposition.

slight flash of his eyes and a gradual rising of color to his face the prisoner appeared as though he were listening to a statement which might be regarded as of no interest to him whatever. In fact when the prisoner was being led from the court room by Chief of Police Kelly and Deputy Sheriff Foster (the judge had reached this point) he was seen to be smiling to himself. He was seen to be marking about the verdict, "It is as much as I could expect." The prisoner was then taken to the jail and was afterwards interviewed by a reporter of the Telegraph.

A Dramatic Scene.

George began addressing Bennie Gee: "I am to be hanged for the murder of Millie Gee. I did not murder Millie Gee, although I had the rifle in my hands. You, Bennie, was the cause of the murder. When I went to your house and found you I drove me crazy. I would have murdered you, too, if I could not do with any hardness in my heart against anyone so I sent for you. I could not do without seeing you but you are the murderer, not me. Now, after seeing you, I will die for the murder I am charged with and I have no bad feelings now for you or any one." After this dramatic speech Geo's nerve completely collapsed and he sobbed like a child. Bennie Gee actually rolled on the floor and cried hysterically, while Mr. and Mrs. Gee, the prisoner's parents, cried softly. It was a hard sight. Bennie Gee casually remarked afterwards on the street that he was sorry for poor George.

WONDERFUL KINGS COUNTY TRIPPLETS

Two Brothers and Sister Celebrated Their 30th Birthday in the Place They Were Born and Have Lived Ever Since.

Moncton, April 25.—The village of Hillside, Kings county (N. B.), has a remarkable case of triplets. On April 7, 1874, three children were born to the late William DeWolfe and wife, two boys and one girl. They were named Richard, James and Deborah, and unlike most triplets all were strong and healthy. In course of time they grew to manhood and womanhood. Richard married Elizabeth Faber, and one child was born to them. James never married. Deborah married Henry McDonald, and one child and grand children are legitimate. The triplets are still living, and on the 7th of the present month celebrated their eightieth birthday, on which auspicious occasion their friends and neighbors gathered and presented them with a handsome purse of money. All are in the best of health at present, and as far as appearances go are good for twenty years yet. A case of triplets eighty years of age, all living in the place of their birth can have few parallels.

In airing a room there are two things to be remembered—first, that the air must be allowed to circulate, and that fresh air must be admitted. To do this a room is almost always warm, therefore rain towards the ceiling will escape if the window be open. To avoid this, fresh air will be let in from the lower part of the window.
