is too weak a name for that much dreaded and damning monster RUM and its enticing sisters Light Wines and Beer which we are going to put out of business in N. B. by our votes on Saturday. Don't let us pride ourselves and think that because we claim to be Christians that we are obligated to vote for prohibition, for it seems that the heathen of Sudan and South Africa would take their stand on Saturday for their homes and Country if they had the chance.

HARTLAND COVERS TOO MUCH GROUND

Is Opinion of Council and Board-
aries May Be Reduced—Street Names

The regular meeting of the Town Council was held on Monday evening the Mayor in the chair and all the aldermen present except Alderman Pritton.

The Marshall reported that the last month had been very quiet, that he had assisted three intoxicated men home, hauled two tramps out of the town, and collected a $34 tax from the proprietor of a local institution.

The Treasurer reported receipts of $49.95, $443 issue in checks, bank balance of $955, and that 645 feet of water pipe had been laid on the hill at a total cost of about $1350.

The delinquent taxes were about $646, and it was ordered that execution be issued at once.

Alderman Aiton for the committee of naming the streets submitted the following report which was adopted, and the names given will be the official names of the streets in future:

Main, Maple, and Hill Crest retain their present names. The street between Main street and the river will be known as Water street. The street on the east side of the railway will be known as Brighton street.

From Frank Hagerman's to the Reformed Baptist grave yard will be known as High street. On the west side of the Railway will be known as Carleton street. From Morgan's corner to the Cross Creek is Rockland Road. Depot street will be known as King street. Bradley street as Queen and Forester street is Prince street.

On motion of Alderman Aiton seconded by Alderman Morgan section 17 of by-law 13 was amended so as to permit invalids in wheel chairs to use the side walks.

Alderman McIntosh for the committee to interview the local government in reference to the Rockland Road reported that Mr. McCain informed him that the Minister of Public Works had intimated very plainly that it would be useless to approach the government and that the delegation would be wasting their money.

Guy O. McGinley and M. W. White were heard in reference to the condition of the road and protested against the circumstances under which incorporation had been brought about.

Alderman McIntosh suggested reducing the boundaries of the Town and committee was appointed to consider the matter, and to report at the next meeting, namely, the mayor, Alderman McIntosh and Aiton, and the clerk.

Culbertson-Palmer

A very pretty wedding was solemnized, Wednesday, June 23, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Palmer of Arundale, when their eldest daughter, Florence Viola was united in marriage to Geo. C. Culbertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Culbertson of Waterville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. N. Barton in the presence of a large circle of relatives and friends. The bride party entered the parlor to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March beautifully rendered by Miss Vida Hamilton. The bride looked very charming in a dress of white silk, crepe de chine with veil and carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Marguerite Palmer, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Donald Palmer, brother of the bride, supported the groom. Little Miss Edith Culbertson, sister of the groom, acted as flower girl. The house was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly gifts. The happy couple left that evening for their home in Waterville.

HOW TO MARK YOUR BALLOT ON JULY 10

Put the Crosses in the First And Last Spaces if You Want Real Prohibition in N. B.

A copy of the official ballot which will be used on Saturday, July 10, in the plebiscite on prohibition is given here in order that each voter may be familiar with its form and may determine how to mark it when he or she enters the polls. The voter who wants to cast a ballot for the retention of the present prohibitory act and against the sale of beer and wine, should place the crosses as shown herewith, thus:

FOR Prohibition Prohibition Act	X
AGAINST Prohibition Prohibition Act
FOR Sale of Light Wines and Beer under Government Control
AGAINST Sale of Light Wines and Beer	X

Conditions in New Brunswick cannot be improved by voting against prohibition or for beer and wine. If the present act is not entirely satisfactory it can be improved, but no good can be achieved by voting against it.

The sale of beer and wine would make drunkenness more prevalent and cause untold misery—and it would not stop the illegal sale of stronger drink, nor the use of lemon extract by those who want more potent drinks.

No one who votes for prohibition and against beer and wine need fear the reproach of conscience.

Death of Joseph B. Porter of Andover

Joseph B. Porter died at his home Sunday evening, July 4, after an illness of several weeks. The deceased had been in poor health for the past three or four years, but he suffered a stroke of paralysis a few weeks ago. Mr. Porter was a man well known and many friends regret to hear of his death. The past few years he acted as customs inspector for Andover, and by his fair and genial ways in dealing with the public won many friends. He leaves to mourn, his wife, one daughter, Grace, and one son, Howard E. Porter of St. John. Two brothers survive him, James E. of Andover, and Robert of Beirsville.

MANY BRIDES IN LAST JUNE DAYS

Cupid Was Busy in the Most Delightful Month of the Year

A very pretty wedding took place at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Joseph Estabrooks, Charleston, when Rev. A. C. Ackland assisted by Rev. C. N. Barton united in marriage Myrtle Idella, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Olmstead to Walter R. Estabrooks. The bride entering the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strain of the wedding march played by Miss Minnie Estabrooks, looked charming in a bridal veil and dress of ivory satin and georgette, carrying a bouquet of American beauty roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Dorothy Olmstead of Perth, dressed in pink georgette and picture hat to match, carrying pink chrysanthemums. Also assisted by two little flower girls, Addie and Anrille, sisters of the bride carrying baskets of pink roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Frank Estabrooks. The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreen and pink roses in the presence of a host of relatives and friends. After the ceremony a sumptuous repast was served to the guests. The many beautiful and costly gifts received testify to the esteem in which the young couple are held. Among the out of town guests were: Miss Peterson of Boston, Miss Willis of St. John, Murray McLeod, Hartland, Robert Olmstead, Grand Falls, Beecher Stewart and family, Mrs. William Olmstead, Rockland, Herbert Olmstead and family, Wicklow, Wallace Burlock and family, Judson Burlock and family, Mount Pleasant. The groom served over three years in His Majesty's Overseas Forces. The happy couple will reside in Charleston.

A wedding took place Wednesday night, June 16 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Taylor, Haverhill, Mass., where Mr. Taylor's sister, Miss Grace Maude Taylor, became the bride of Wendell Phillips Jones of Bath.

Rev. Thomas G. Langdale, pastor of the Riverside Memorial church, performed the ceremony.

The double ring service was read. The bride wore white georgette crepe and carried bride roses. The couple were unattended. An informal reception followed the ceremony, attended by relatives and intimate friends. The couple received many gifts. They left on the late evening train for their honeymoon and upon their return will make their home in Bath where the groom is employed. The going away gown of the bride was brown tricotlette with hat to match.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Presbyterian church Greenfield, on June 30, when Jennie Kilpatrick, one of Greenfield's most highly esteemed young ladies, was united in marriage to Charles R. Caldwell, son of Thomas Caldwell, M.P.

The church was tastefully decorated by the cousins of the bride and was a bower of roses, ferns, anilax and potted plants.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white duchess satin, veil and orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. After the ceremony a delicious lunch was served at the home of the bride to about thirty invited guests. The bride received many costly gifts besides a number of substantial checks. The bride's going away gown was an imported suit of tulle with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell left in the afternoon by auto for St. John, with the wishes for a long and happy life from their many friends.

HARD TO BELIEVE SHE'S SAME WOMAN

Mrs. McClanahan Brinful of New Life and Energy Since Taking Tanlac

"I have not only gotten rid of a severe stomach trouble of nine years standing since I started taking Tanlac, but have gained ten pounds in weight and am still gaining," said Mrs. D. McClanahan, Green Bay, B. C., recently.

"Before I started taking Tanlac," Mrs. McClanahan continued, "I was so weak I could hardly get about and my appetite was so poor I had no relish for any kind of food and just had to force down every mouthful. When I did manage to eat a little something it began to ferment almost at once, I would have intense cramping pains in the pit of my stomach and gas would form and press against my heart until it palpitated dreadfully. I suffered with such severe headaches nearly all the time they almost made me desperate, and at times I became so dizzy it was all I could do to stand on my feet. Then too, I was extremely nervous so that the least little noise would completely upset me. Why, I could not even stand the rustling of a newspaper and it was just impossible for me to get a good night's sleep, as I would toss about all night long and I always felt worse on getting up than when I went to bed. I was also troubled a great deal with constipation and had to always be taking some sort of laxative.

"But things are altogether different now, for since taking Tanlac I am completely rid of all my troubles. My appetite is simply wonderful and I can hardly eat enough to satisfy myself. I eat just anything I want without suffering any bad after effects whatever. I am never troubled with pains, gas or palpitation of the heart and have not had a headache or dizzy spell since I began taking Tanlac. My nerves are in such good condition I can sleep all night long as peacefully as a child and always get up feeling greatly refreshed. I am not troubled with constipation any more and have regained my strength to such an extent, and feel so good and am so full of life that I can hardly realize I am the same woman. My husband, whose stomach was in every bit as bad condition as mine was, has gotten the same results from Tanlac that I have, and we both recommend it every chance we have."

Tanlac is sold in Hartland by Estey & Curtis Company, and E. L. Field, Bloomfield, and by the leading druggists in every town.

MRS. EMERY MANUEL

Mrs. Emery Manuel of Knowlesville, who died on June 29 was before her marriage, Annie Kilpatrick of Greenfield, and was 65 years of age. Besides her sorrowing husband she is survived by eight children: Clarence, Hazen and Claude, of Knowlesville, Elmer in Toronto, Mrs. Charles Lawson, Belleisle Creek; Mrs. Harry Campbell, Arthurville; Mrs. Jack Bulmer, Commerce, Alta., and Grace, at home. The funeral was held on July 1, with sermon by Rev. C. S. Young, Baptist, and was largely attended. Mrs. Manuel was a woman who had a large circle of friends who loved and respected her. She was a true and loyal wife, mother and friend.

Finding Out

By MELVILLE TRAFTON

"It's young Ned who is troubling my mind," spoke Abner Mills, with something of an anxious sigh.

"Oh, Ned?" rejoined Moses Parr, crony and familiar of half a century's standing. "What's he up to, Abner?"

"He's in love," enlightened the other. "You know what marriage means—misery, if there's a misstatement."

"Why should there be that?" propounded Moses. "You and I have each a son and our lives have just about centered about them since we became lonely old widowers. Well, when my lad got moonstruck two years ago I just let him have his swing. But I watched and looked up the girl—oh, you bet I did! I hired an investigator and he made me a report. All through one month, there wasn't much that I didn't know about Miss Blake and her forbears. Bless her dear heart! It was almost cruel to think of looking her up, as if she was some common criminal, but I wanted to be sure everything was all right."

"H'm! you give me an idea," muttered old Abner, "only I'll be my own detective. Here's the facts: Ned was away for two months with a chum who lives down country. While there it seems he met a Miss Eva Dodson vacationing with an old aunt. From what I gather the girl is poor, modest, respectable. Ned hasn't said a word about it, but I ran across a letter he had written and it revealed the whole layout. I see what's coming—engagement, marriage. I can't try to hinder it, if they are likely to be happy, but I'm bound to be dead certain about just that."

So, unconscious of the fact that the cherished secret of his soul had been discovered, Ned Mills went on loving Eva Dodson and writing to her. She was surely his ideal! She wore no engagement ring, for she had insisted that Ned inform his family of his decision and try the test of a two months' separation. But Ned had procrastinated the making of a confidant of his father, for he knew his ways, and that his approval of the prospective match might be a slow-moving operation.

"I am going to spend a few days on business in the city, Ned," spoke his father one day. "You look after things around the store till I come back, will you?"

"Sure enough and glad enough," acquiesced Ned in his usual hearty, accommodating way, and Mr. Mills departed, proceeded, indeed, to the city, but began a mysterious series of actions which, and the same been followed by a stranger, would have puzzled and startled him. Always precise and careful as to his attire, Mr. Mills spent an hour in the shop of a second-hand clothing man. When he emerged there was little left of the prosperous, well-dressed merchant. A faultless suit had been exchanged for one coarse of fabric, shabby and threadbare.

It was to Peradale that Mr. Mills proceeded, and that was the place he had learned Miss Dodson was living temporarily. When he located the home of her aunt, old Abner approached it in a labored, limping way that at once excited the sympathy of the loveliest young lady that he had ever met. She came to the kitchen door attired in a neat enveloping apron, befringed to the elbows, as dainty and fresh looking as the pies and cookies she had just made.

The sad tale of the aged arch-schemer, posing as an indigent wanderer, won him a meal, then work, which he did manfully. All he was after was to have an opportunity to study a possible prospective daughter-in-law. Fortune favored him. He was in a room over the kitchen, he was engaged to do odd jobs about the place. He found Eva the idol of all the house ones in the neighborhood, and dutiful to her aged aunt, in fact a model girl in every way. He wrote in his memorandum book the sentiment one day: "Eva Dodson is poor and humble, but she is well worthy my son, and I shall tell Ned so!"

That memorandum book the old man lost one day, and it was returned to him by Eva. Then upon another day he was confronted by a starter. He was just outside the kitchen when the aunt entered bearing a small metal box.

"Eva," she spoke, "how careless you are, leaving all this money and bonbons on your bureau." In the $10,000 the lawyer brought you."

"Yes, aunt," responded Eva, "I suppose I had better send them to the bank for safe keeping," and Abner Mills picked up his ears mightily at this extraordinary revelation. The following morning he announced to his kind-hearted hostess that he must be on his way. Eva accompanied him to the gate.

"Good-by, Mr. Mills," she spoke, a gleam of mingled merriment and mischief in her eyes.

"H'm, how's that?" exclaimed the astonished Abner. "You knew all along?"

"No, Mr. Mills, not until the day you lost your memorandum book, and I ask forgiveness for my stray glance at it, and will you please tell Ned that his humble country girl has become a real heiress?"

"You have turned the tables on me pretty cleverly," admitted Abner Mills, "and if you are willing to take an old tramp for a father-in-law, I am most agreeable to the relationship."

Encouragement From Arrostook

The Presque Isle Star Herald says: "The Carleton Observer, one of the best of our Provincial exchanges, has just given new evidence of its enterprise by installing a linotype. Bro. Stevens in referring to it, says: 'Viewing all the marvelous complexities of the invention, he is uncertain whether his troubles have ended or just be, a.' For our brother's encouragement we will say that all the linotype asks for is thoroughly good care. The introduction of the linotype was the best step in improvement the Star-Herald ever took, and for years it has been doing the most for the business with the least hitches and annoyances of any piece of mechanical equipment we have ever installed."

SUFFERING OF YOUNG WOMEN

Interested.

Toronto, Ont.—"I have suffered since I was a school girl with pain in my left side and with cramps, growing worse each year until I was all run down. I am a children's nurse, and I was so bad at times that I was unfit for work. I tried several doctors and patent medicines, but was only relieved for a short time. Some of the doctors wanted to perform an operation, but my father objected. Finally I learned through my mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and how thankful I am that I tried it. I am relieved from pain and cramps, and feel as if it has saved my life. You may use my letter to help other women, as I am only too glad to recommend the medicine."—JEAN KENT, 42 Blamford Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Girls who are troubled as Miss Kent was should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Those who need special advice may write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. These letters will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Why Canadians Should Insure in a Canadian Company

- BECAUSE—Experience covering a period of forty-six years has proven that the death rate of insured lives is about 15 per cent greater in the United States than in Canada.
- BECAUSE—A Canadian does not need to assist in paying for this extra heavy death rate in a foreign country.
- BECAUSE—A Canadian insuring in a foreign Company is sending his money out of Canada. If retained in Canada he and Canadians generally will benefit by its circulation and investment.
- BECAUSE—In The Policy-Holders' Mutual Life (of Canada) he can secure his insurance at lower rates and on easier terms than in any other Company.
- BECAUSE—The Policy-Holders' Mutual Life (of Canada) was organized for the express purpose of eliminating all objectionable features in Life Insurance.
- BECAUSE—In The Policy-Holders' Mutual Life (of Canada) the Policyholder votes and participates in the management on equal terms with the Stockholders.
- BECAUSE—By its Act of Incorporation provision is made for the Policyholder voting at his own home if convenient to attend the general meetings.
- BECAUSE—By its Act of Incorporation the dividend to its Stockholders is limited and all profits above this limited dividend belong to the Policyholder.
- BECAUSE—By its Act of Incorporation no timeline, so called "Gold Bond" policies or anything of a false nature can be issued.
- BECAUSE—In Policy-Holders participate in the annual distribution of profits after the third of the life of each policy.
- BECAUSE—The low rates and annual distribution of profits leave the money in the Policyholder's pockets or return it to him each year instead of its being retained for speculative purposes as has been charged against some Companies.
- BECAUSE—Premiums may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually as best suits the convenience of the insured.
- BECAUSE—In the Policy-Holders Mutual Life (of Canada) he will be insured in a Canadian Company incorporated by special Act, especially safe-guarding his interests, thoroughly democratic in its principles and management, with every safe-guard and security to which the strongest Stock Company can lay claim or which government deposit reserve and inspection can secure.

Vote FOR Prohibition Saturday, -- July 10

ELECTION INFORMATION

The Act in Brief

The present Prohibition Act legislates against the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes, and only allows it for manufacturing, sacramental and medical purposes.

The Act also provides for enforcement of the law and penalties for violation.

This Act was a war-time measure and the Government now wish to know from the electors whether they want Prohibition continued or not.

We Know Its Faults

The Act is weak in that it allows too much latitude in the case of doctors, druggists and vendors who have practically the dispensing of liquors within their own hands.

Further Legislation Depends on You.

Application has already been made by the Temperance people to have the Act amended in regard to the recognized weaknesses and the Government is sympathetic—BUT NOTE THIS—the Government put off the granting of these improvements to make the Act more effective.

until the result of this election PROVES that the people want Prohibition, and by the majority of the vote the Government will know just how badly the Electors do want it.

Your Vote at this Election may have very important influence on the future action of the Government.

Are You Aware of This?

In 1919 an Act Passed the House, providing that the Government shall take over the entire liquor business within the Province, for the three purposes contained in the Act, and also giving them more stringent control over the sale of extracts, essences and tinctures—But Mark You, the Government has refused to take action on people has been heard at the coming this amendment, until the voice of the election.

Stop Importation Our Next Move

Authority to Prevent the Importation of liquor into the Province does not rest with the Provincial, but with our Dominion Government, which has already stated that a vote may be taken on the question in New Brunswick, on the recommendation of the Legislature. If the result at the coming election satisfies them that the people actually want Prohibition—we are sure to get it.

WHAT YOUR BALLOT CAN DO JULY 10th

FIRST—Provide the way for necessary Amendments to the Act that will make it really effective.

SECOND—Show the Government that the people demand Prohibition and want the laws enforced.

THIRD—Hasten the election that can shut out the importation of liquor into the Province.

REMEMBER You are Voting for Prohibition As Against a Return to the Bars.

A Foreign Ship

Homer L. Ferguson, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States has stirred up the patriots over the reproduction of a foreign ship being on our twenty-dollar bills. Making a speech recently, and seeking to impress his auditors with the fact that this country has entirely too few ships, he whipped out a twenty-dollar bill and declared:

"Why, even the ship reproduced on this bill is one that was taken over by this country during the war. It flies the American flag, all right, but it is a foreign-built ship."

Examination proved he was absolutely correct. The ship has four funnels, and there never has been a four-funnelled ship built in this country for our foreign trade.

HARD LUCK OF BANNISTER

By WALTER A. FROST

(Copyright)

My acquaintance with Mr. Bannister was short. It lasted only from Chicago to Port Huron, and yet in that time he told me not only his real name, his "alias," and his occupation, but also the very hard luck experience which I shall set before you.

The cause of our becoming acquainted was accidental—the dining-car was crowded and the steward put us at the same table. As I seated myself I noticed a little man at the other side of the table, but I paid no attention to him until he looked hard at me, and in a low voice asked:

"What line do you carry?"

"I beg your pardon?" I asked.

"What line do you carry?"

There was no escape. "Law books,"

I answered. "I am a lawyer."

He smiled and held out a fat hand.

"We are in about the same profession. I am a detective."

"Yes," I replied, for I felt a desire to know more of a man who could see any resemblance between a lawyer and a detective. "We are, it might be said, slightly related."

"Well, when you have practiced longer you will understand what I mean when I say that we are in about the same line."

He smiled, and between orders to the waiter told me his story.

"Yes, when you have practiced longer

you will understand what I mean. You lawyers have to use us at every step you take; you can't get on without us. A witness goes back on you and gets lost, and the first thing you do is to call one of us in to look up your man for you. Lawyers, doctors, business men and bankers, you all

give us a lot of work.

"Speaking of bankers, I'm down on all of 'em, for it was while doing some work for a banker that I had the hardest piece of luck I ever struck, and just when everything was going lovely, too.

"It was this way! The chief called me in one afternoon, and said he:

"Jim, I want you to go down to Ellerton and see Stevens, the banker.

There's been some work done down

there, and he's afraid some of it may come his way.

"He'll give you the facts, and then go to work. The gang that's suspected is something like the Fluke outfit

you gathered in at Oshkosh last fall."

"The next morning I was in Stevens'

private office, and it was a dandy.

But never mind that.

"The next morning, after seeing old

Stevens, I dropped into a saloon where I'd seen some young fellows go, and found six or eight boys having a quiet game. I had a beer, bought a cigar, and went out.

"Next morning I dropped in again.

The bar-keep recognized me and said,

"Good morning." "Good morning," says

I, and got my drink and cigar and went out without saying anything more. I kept on dropping in and some of the chaps began to notice me, but they held off, which made me think I might be somewhere on the right track, so I went in steady.

"After I'd been in town for about a week one of the young fellows asked me at the saloon one evening what I was selling.

"I'm buying," said I.

"Buying what?"

"Land." And then he introduced me to the rest of the bunch who were at the table playing. They asked me to come in, and I did. They couldn't play much, I saw, but I let them win a couple of dollars, and then I cleared out.

"A few days after that when I went in—it was one afternoon, about half-past four—I found some of the gang

there. Then I knew they wasn't working, for if they had been they couldn't have been there then.

"Well, I was pretty sure they was the boys I was looking for, and so,

wanting to see what they'd rise to, I managed to drop a set of skeleton keys on the floor when I was just going to pay for the drinks. I bent down quick and picked 'em up and shoved

'em into my pocket, but I saw they was 'on,' for in a few minutes one of the bunch came over to me and says:

"See here, Mr. Jenks' (I'd told 'em my name was Jenks), you might as well tell us a little more about yourself. We know you're not down here to look up land, and it's our opinion

you may be after something that begins with D."

"Dough was what he meant. But I was not going to be drawn out, at least, not yet, and so I said:

"It strikes me I don't know much about you boys yet. Don't you think you'd better show up first?"

"They held off a bit even then, but finally one of them, a tall, shaggy chap

he was, came close to me and says:

"Were you ever in Janesville?"

"I laughed and said: 'Why, yes, I guess so."

"Were you there two weeks ago?"

"I looked around for a moment, as if to see there wasn't any one could hear, and then I said:

"Yes, but I didn't do that job."

"He wasn't quite sure yet, for he tried me again:

"Who bought it of the man who

'found' it?"

"He was thinking of the big diamond robbery that had just come off in Janesville. It was a neat piece of work, and the chief had two of his best men on it.

"How can I tell?" I asked. "They saw the Jew got it, but he cleared before the 'Blues' got there."

"I thought they was going to talk up, but the tall man was suspicious, I saw, and so I went out, after setting them up again.

"That evening the tall man asked me to take a little ride with him. I wanted 'em to feel sure of me, and so

I put a 'Jimmy' under my coat, and when we got into the cutter I wrapped it up in the blanket and put it under the seat.

"We had a nice drive, for it was a dandy night, but the chap didn't say a thing about himself or the gang or me. He only talked about the fishing up North, and we didn't get anywhere.

Along about eleven we came to Rite's place, and he said we'd go in and have a drink. I jumped out and went to tie the horse, asking him to throw the blanket over her. He proceeded to do so, and of course the Jimmy fell out.

"He laughed and clapped me on the back.

"I guess we've got you located

now, old man," says he. "And now

we'll go back."

"We went to the rooms where the rest of the gang were waiting for us.

"I guess he'll do, boys," said he,

and then he says to me: "I have an idea that we can put a man like you in the way of making something pretty."

"They grinned, and then we talked things over."

"I had been traveling with them pretty steady for a month, when one night

they told me they were going to do a little piece of work on a bank in town

(Stevens' bank, of course), and they wanted me to 'fix' the safe."

"All right, boys," says I. "I'll have to send down to Chi for my 'kit,' though."

"Next morning I went over to Stevens' and put him 'on,' telling him to put some marked bills in the safe for that night. I got the combination from him, too, thinking I might have some trouble with the safe, and I had to get it open one way or another.

"Then I went over to the chief of police and fixed it up with him so that he'd surround the bank after we had gone in and nab us as we came out.

"The bank proposition was a little heavy for the boys, some of 'em being a little new at such work, and when

Tuesday night came they began to get a little nervous. But I filled 'em up with drinks, and told 'em how easy it was, gave out a long talk on my own experiences, and by Wednesday afternoon they were ready for anything.

"We had a good supper, with lots of drinks of all sorts, and some of the boys were pretty well jugged by the time we were through.

"We had set the job for midnight, met then at a barber shop, where the big chap had a job (he was slick), and then separated, meeting again at the bank as the clock struck twelve.

"The big fellow broke in the door with his shoulder—he was as strong as a bull-moose—and we all piled in after him. I remember I was the last man in, and I was thinking how fine they were going to look in the papers next morning, the five of them standing in a row, with me at their right as the man who had 'gathered them in.' I laughed to myself as I opened the safe, and then I heard the snap of a man's fingers, a voice cried 'now, men!' the lights were turned on, and each of us was looking into the barrel of a gun.

"I looked at the man who was covering me, and you can just about figure out how I felt when I saw that it was that young kid with the yellow hair. He smiled a bit, and then told us to throw up our hands.

"All of us did except the big chap,

and he got a bullet through his hip.

I tried to remonstrate with the kid,

who seemed to be running the thing,

but he told me to 'cut it out,' and I saw that it was no use.

"They took us down to the jail and got our faces by flashlight. I was standing with the rest of the bunch, and my name (my real one, too, for

I'd given it to old Stevens in the first place) was stuck underneath."

"I tried to drive it into the chief of police that I was out after the men,

but he said I'd given wrong information, and the light-haired kid was boss

there, anyhow."

"Then they threw us into cells that a dog couldn't have slept in, and sent us down to Chicago next morning handcuffed together, like St. James' twins.

They tried us, and I got off with a reprimand from the court for 'encouraging crime and, though a detective

by profession, leading young and weak

boys astray."

"Then the chief lawed me for an hour, and gave me a 'vacation' for incompetence and general stupidity."

And the papers made it hot for the chief for 'luring such men, and then,

of course, he chuckled me permanent.

"All because that kid with the yellow hair had started in, on his own hook, to run the same gang that the chief had set me on! If he'd waited three minutes I'd have landed the bunch, I'd have gathered 'em in the out-laws, as the papers said. But you see how it was. And what made it all the worse, the tall chap turned out to be Jim Cummings, wanted in St. Louis and Boston for forgery and robbing

the mails.

His Recompense

By PERCIVAL LEE

"It has been my own fault and I must bear the brunt of it." Thus said Gerald Thorne, glancing at a written paper. It was a note for five hundred dollars, signed by Alden Ross, bearing his own endorsement and Gerald had just paid it. Mentally he struggled with the conviction that he had been guilty of a serious error in judgment, leading up to the incident of the moment.

He had been secretary and adviser of Adam Wells until the latter died. They were related distantly, but the old man had learned to regard Gerald with almost fatherly consideration. There was another candidate for his favor—young Ross, the son of his oldest friend. Mr. Wells had practically adopted Ross. He had paid his way through college. He had started him in business. Alden had made a failure of both schooling and commercial life. The business he had invested in received little intelligent attention and he had proven a severe disappointment to his generous patron.

Now, thinking over all this, Gerald regretted that he had given way to an impulse born of sentiment and supposed duty. Upon his deathbed Mr. Wells had called him to his side.

"Gerald," he had said, "a will at my lawyer's office leaves you half of my estate. It is not large, and you deserve more. The will also names Alden as a beneficiary of the other half. I desire to rescind that will. Both of us have seen how incapable and irresponsible he is. He will squander the little I leave him. A part of his legacy is tied up in trust with yourself. The major part of the bequest, however, is for his free use. I wish you to make out a new will placing all of it in trust."

But Gerald Thorne did neglect it. He did it willfully by never attending to the proposed change of will. Mr. Wells weakened rapidly and forgot all about it. Gerald was glad. He liked Alden. He believed in his innate goodness of heart. He hoped to aid in steadying him down. Besides that, he did not wish it to be said that he had influenced Mr. Wells for his own benefit. Mr. Wells died and Alden Ross received a sum of several thousand dollars in liquid funds.

There was nothing bad about Alden except a heedless extravagance, and the frailty of being easily influenced by others. Within six months he had wasted all of his inheritance except the trust funds. He came to Gerald, penitent, avowing determined economy in the future and pleading for the advance of the interest on the trust fund.

"I can't do it," declared Gerald firmly. "for I am sacredly bound by my trust restrictions. I will loan you the money you need, however."

That was a bad start to make. Thenceforward Alden became an importunate debtor. On one occasion he got Gerald to endorse the five hundred dollar note for him. The outcome of this unwise action now confronted Gerald. He felt that he was in a measure an accessory in the idle uselessness of Alden and acted upon a sudden resolve. He left his office with the motive of seeking out Alden and having a thorough understanding with him. He made some inquiries and chanced upon a friend who had just seen Alden. "Hedger for the old picnic grounds," Gerald was advised. "The young people have set up their tents not there and Alden spends a lot of time in their company."

Gerald would have liked to do the same, had he the time to spare. Particularly would he have liked to have been enticing had been Deane been among those same "young people." Recently he had met Alden frequently at the Deane home and had come to wonder if Alden was particularly interested in that direction.

Gerald came upon Alden, alone, at the picnic grounds. He told of his payment of the note. Alden expressed penitence almost to the extent of tears. "I don't want to upbraid you, Alden," said Gerald, "but your present delinquency really embarrasses me in a financial way. It is not that, however, that most troubles me. It is your persistent extravagance. Only by settling down can you hope to make even enough to live on."

"I see it all," declared Alden contritely, "and honest Gerald, I am turning over a new leaf. I have had a talk with Edna. She has been a regular guardian angel to me and I have promised her to mend my ways." A misty cloud seemed to darken all of hope in Gerald's heart. The words implied that his own affection for her had been in vain.

"Alden," he spoke with an effort, "I freely gave up half of the Wells fortune for you. I have borne sacrifices for you since. I shall surrender the interest I have in Miss Deane, and hope you will make her happy."

"Yes, you've given me the best you had," interrupted Alden forcibly, "but you can't give me Edna Deane. I suppose you knew that her helpful ways in my behalf have been inspired because I expect some day to make her sister Nellie my wife. You noble old hero! I would, indeed, be an ingrate if I did not mend my ways and make a man of myself!"

And earth and sky seemed to blaze with a new glory, as Gerald Thorne comprehended that he was at still hope on and was the charming girl he loved so devotedly.

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—only an acid imitation. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over nineteen years and proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and Pain generally. Made in Canada.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sized "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores. Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada), of Bayer Manufacture of Monocetate of Salicylic Acid.
