"VOICES OF SORROW."

Low drop the clouds towards the deep
With dark-fringed jagged edges;
White billowy waves with ceaseless sweep
Beat 'gainst the gaunt rock ledges;
And through the long night watches, as I weep,
The moaning sea dirge wails amid the sedges;

"O sad, sad, sad, for me to rend
My sea-weed locks in sorrow;
O sad, sad, sad, that I must bend
O'er corpses pale to-morrow;
The happy souls that now their fair ways wind
In joy, must soon their shrouds of sea-damp borrow."

Low sink the clouds on mountain peak
Flashed round with forked lightning;
The muttering storm-fiends loudly shriek,
The crouching wild goats frightening;
While deep in caves the strong wind, growing meek,
Thus sadly moans ament the morning's brightening:

"O grief, grief, grief, for me to find
To-morrow's sunlight breaking;
O grief, grief, grief, that I must wind
O'er blue eyes never waking,
O'er hunter's brow in bloody flowers twined,
O'er traveller 'neath the cliff his long rest taking."

Low hang the clouds above my roof
Their great drops never falling;
Bent willows weave their tangled woe
Of weeping hair well trailing;
And through the midnight, with its long reproof,
My heart keeps moan, its sad plaint ever wailing:

"O pain, pain, pain, for me to live
With dead hopes round me lying;
O pain, pain, pain, that I must give My dear ones up to dying;
To lonely watch, and watch but ne'er receive Love's healing balm for which my life goes sighing."

"O sad, sad, sad, is life to bear,
With spirit inward groaning,
Through sweetest songs there steals an air
The whole with sadness toning;
The sea, the hills, the spring-looks ever wear
To me, the same pained look of sad ones moaning."

MY LOVE STORY.

BY EVELYN SOMERS.

You asked me to tell you my love-story, Celeste, last night, when you had told me your own, hiding your blushes on my bosom, and thrilling through all your being with that richest wine of life—"Love's young dream." It is nectar that can be drunk but once, darling—drain the elixir slowly. It is sometimes Heaven's own sacrament. Thank God for it.

My parents were of the strictest sect of Orthodox Christians, and held cold and somewhat puritanic views of life. They instructed me early of the deceit and wickedness of mankind. I think I embraced too readily the lessons of distrust and suspicion. At fifteen I was sent to my aunt's to attend school at the B— Seminary.

They lived quite out of the village, in a bright sunny place, in a pale yellow cottage house with a little garden in front. Below was a stretch of meadow, with a thread of silver streamlet that wooed wild flowers, and murmured under a little rustic bridge. Opposite was a white cottage with a garden of miniature magnificence, whose odors of spicy pinks, waving lilacs, and sweet June roses, seem to breathe their perfume over me still.

My aunt had been a wild gay creature when a girl; ardent and impetuous, easily swayed, and narrowly escaping the temptations and pitfalls of a too Southern temperament, flirting away all worthy and honest lovers. Finding herself suddenly stranded upon the sands of thirty, she repented of her gayety, joined the church, married a Methodist, and became as ardent a saint as she had been a sinner. Her own experience led her to assume a peculiar sphere of duty, which she pursued with all the zeal of a Lather. It was to watch over the ways of all young maidens that came within her care, to keep them out of the paths wherein she had well nigh slipped—never thinking that the fault was in her own feet, rather than in the roseate paths of girlhood. My parents had great confidence in her judgment, and confided me to her care, with a sense of security that I would be guarded from the wolves and hyenas of life. I have often thought since of wolves in sheep's clothing. Yet I loved my Aunt Jane, and had an earnest desire to be as good and saintly as she.

I would sit in the garden at twilight, and sing songs to my guitar, though I knew she would shake her head and sigh, and ask me how I could expect to be a Christian as long as I indulged in such vanities. There was better music in the hymn-book than "Allan Water," and "Coming thro' the Rye." So in penance I had to bring my guitar and sing with her "Hark from the Tombs," and "St. Martin's." In vain I urged that such tunes were too slow for the guitar. But she assured me it sounded far better than quick music. And she hunted up some verses that I could sing to the tune of "Robin Adair." "When shall I see the day that ends my woes?" mentally I said, "Soon I hope."

At the seminary, I had a seat next to a thoughtful-looking young man, whose only claims to beauty were a well-built frame, a pure healthy complexion and expression of open truth and honor; and indeed, there can be no type of manly beauty without these, Celeste. One day I was in disgrace about my algebra, and he kindly passed his slate with the problem; solved in the neatest and most elegant figures I ever saw, and on the margin of the slate was printed in old English letters the name "Grenville Deane." This will seem very simple to you, Celeste, if you never had a schoolgirl romance, but to me it is full of delicious fragrance that mingles with the breath of pinks and roses in the garden opposite.

That evening I sat on the doorstep playing and singing "My Heart and Lute," when the garden gate opposite unclosed, and Grenville Deane came across the street to the garden gate where I was sitting, and with a shy smile of greeting offered me two or three sprays of lilies of the valley.

"Do you live there?" I asked, blushing vividly, at the thought of his thinking I was singing on purpose for him to hear.

"Yes; and now will you not sing for me?"

"I don't sing well enough."

"But I think you do. Sing 'Midnight Hour.'"

"With you?"

"Well—"

So we sang together in the twilight, and so quietly and sweetly began my heart to dream the lotus dream of love. Presently Aunt Jane opened the door and said:

"Good-evening, Grenville," in a sharp wry tone, that seemed to say, "What are you here for?" and bade me come in.

I felt that I had done something very wrong, though I could not tell what.

Aunt Jane wrote to my mother:

"Mary does very well, but is too fond of attracting the attention of young men—a propensity I do not like to see. I shall try to do my duty by her."

I will do my parents justice to say they were too pure and noble to suspect guile in every innocent demonstration of a young maiden. Such degrading suspicions could only come from a depraved heart. They did not know what I had done. They only knew that I had committed some indiscretion which had grieved my aunt and called for her censure. Consequently, I received a letter of fourteen pages full of sorrow and disappointment at my conduct, and rehearsing the careful admonitions I had received. I was dumb with amazement, and carried the letter to Aunt Jane.

"What does all this mean? What have I done?"

"Do you think any modest girl would sit on the doorstep night after night singing, to attract the notice of young men, and call them to see her?"

My aunt was shocked.

"I didn't know anybody could hear me. I didn't know he lived there."

But the look of pious incredulity on her face showed me that she only thought I was adding falsehood to my indiscretions. I felt like a bird in a net—helpless and fluttering. I was convinced that I was bold and very naughty, and so I avoided my neighbor in every possible manner, while he sought every opportunity to be near me, and would lie in wait for me coming from school. Then I knew the Argus eyes of Aunt Jane were upon me, and I felt that I had committed unpardonable sins.

I did not know I loved him then. I did not even dream he cared for me. If I thought him attentive, I instantly thought of the deceit and wiles of mankind, as my parents had taught me. Yet I missed him when he was not in the schoolroom; the moment I entered, but I missed no other; and if he were absent half a day, the house seemed dark and desolate and lonely, and only brightened when he appeared.

The last day of the term arrived. It vaguely seemed like the last day of my life. Our class had presented the teacher with a gold watch, and had received an invitation to spend an hour at his house in the evening. Grenville insisted upon accompanying me home. It was the first time my hand had touched him, as it lay on his arm, the first time I ever felt his breath upon my brow.

Ah Celeste, young as I was, I had all the perfect nature of a true, constant and loving woman. The round-noon was coming up out of the east. We paused at the gate. He pressed my arm a little closer, and said:

"Let us go down to the brook, May. It's the last time I shall see you—perhaps forever."

"Perhaps forever." The words lay like ice on my heart.

"Are you sorry?" he urged, as I did not speak, but suffered him to lead me on.

"It has been very pleasant." I said it in a careless way, wondering if he could feel my heart's throbbing.

We sat down by the stream, and cowslips and violets opened their eyes to smile on us. The stars looked down sweetly through the blue. The stream sang on, the song that was in our hearts. All nature seemed to bless us.

"Let us stay here always, May," he said, playing with my passive fingers, but not frightening me by clasping them too tightly.

I laughed and answered:

"What would Aunt Jane say?"

Looking up into his eyes, as I replied, I saw that his thoughts were not on his lips. There was no resisting that magnetic gaze, that took from me all power to repulse the fond movement with which his arms gathered me, and he pressed his beardless lip to my cheek, in the innocent and earnest fervor of first young love. The scalding crimson went over my brow. I could hear my own heart beat. I was angry with myself that I had given him the opportunity to take such freedom—for I remembered the early lessons of man's perfidy—but I forgot to withdraw my hand from the caressing clasp with which he held it between both his own, tenderly and softly as he might have held a nestling robin. I was the first to rise to return, and we went back in silence. He went through the gate, under the shadow of the doorway, clasped my hand and said:

"Good-by, May. Shall I write to you?"

"Well—yes—I suppose so—if you wish."

Then he broke out in a little impatient passion!

"Don't go, May. I can't bear to have you go."

I smiled back at his boyish speech, and suggested that I had nothing to stay for. But that strong magnetic look caught my heart again in its power, and I could no more resist it than with my puny arm stay the Alpine avalanche. He clasped me closely to his heart, kissed my lips, and with a hasty good-by left me in a moment.

I stamped my feet in rage and passion—not at him, but at myself, that I could be duped and insulted. I did not know it was the omnipotent hand of Love that grasped me like a Fate. I said to my heart, "I will not love him. I am not old enough to love any one." So I strove to crush it out, root it up, tear it out of my being. I felt the wretchedness that unrequited love must bring, and shrank from it. I saw how easy it was for me to make him my idol, and yet he might forget me to-morrow, while I could never, never forget that he had kissed me.

I went home, and he wrote to me—letters my father and mother insisted upon seeing. There was nothing they might not see, might not see—he was careful not to say—he was careful not to commit himself.

"May," "My Friend," "Sister May," were the fondest terms with which he addressed me. I boldly declared to myself each day I did not love him; but at night one of the daintily written letters always slept under my cheek.

The correspondence waned. Few and far between the letters. I did not care—not I. I never cared for him. Once I saw him. I was very gay. So was he. I snatched a letter out of his pocket—with a delicate girlish superscription. He seemed alarmed, and took it rudely from me.

"You can't read that, May."

I was very rude. But O the blow to me. I never had a letter he might not have seen. It was all true, then, the fumblers of his flirtation with Louise. Well, I never cared for him. O Celeste, Celeste. Love is omnipotent. No one knew how my pillow was nightly drenched with tears of the bitter anguish.

I was foolish enough to think he might say I was too dear to him. But he did not. He sent them all back to me, the foolish little notes, struggling between all my girlish affection and reserve, that told so plainly how inexpressively dear he was to me. My eyes were heavy in the mornings, after that.

I went to B—, to the exhibition the next spring, two years from the time we went to the little brook together. He was there, stouter, handsomer—admired by all.

He wrote once more, a short letter beginning "Friend May." I resolved to bring this cruel uncertainty to an end. I had suffered him to kiss my lips. No woman, pure and guileless, ever yields the treasure of her lips, where she would not gladly give her hand, her life itself. You know this, Celeste. So I wrote him an equivocal letter, asking if the correspondent had not become irksome; if we were not getting too old to be childish, and left it with him to do as he liked about, sending back my letters.

Did I ever tell you of Sara, Celeste? She has been my bosom friend. Full of rich vitality, I loved her strength, and admired her common sense. I visited her instead of my aunt. She only guessed the constancy of my love, and folding me in her arms, in her own bed, she told me how unworthy he was of the true unswerving devotion I had given him; how he had wooed the fragile Louise—taking her on all the excursions, to "Lover's Leap," "Cozy Nook," "The Fort"—holding her in his arms for hours by the brookside.

"Every one knew of it," she said. "I do not think he is engaged to her. It's only a summer flirtation. But, Mamie, you do not have summer flirtations. If he ever kissed you, your lips have kept his kisses sacred. No other ever dared to kiss you."

"Never, Sara."

"Is he worthy of you? Even if you could win him back?"

"I do not wish to."

I wept on her kind motherly heart, and buried my love deep in the ashes of the past.

On the next evening we were at a reunion of old schoolmates. It was a merry affair. Louise was there, but had another admirer, and Grenville was devoted to me. They asked me to sing. I took up my guitar and sang:

"The last link is broken."

I saw a dark shadow as of pain on his brow. I was kind to him, exactly as to others. He had no power over me again, forever. He could never suffer the long day and nights of grief and pain that I had suffered. He would never know of them until the gates of eternity unfolded to our view.

I was not romantic enough not to love again, Celeste, as you well know, and the full perfect love that sought me made my heart glad again. Not with the tender blushing shame of early girlhood, but the maturer womanly joy of wedded happiness—a dear friend to be always near, and sweet prattling lips call me mother.

Richard is all the world to me, all that he could ever have been, had he been true. I am happier than I ever thought I could be, for I love and am beloved—and who shall say that Heaven has higher joys?

Ten years have passed since then, Celeste. I am growing old. I met Grenville Deane, the other day. He was never so cordial, so frank and friendly before. He told me then that he had loved me. No other face came out of the past half so sweet to him as mine. No other memories so dear and tender as the shy sweet meetings of the long ago. I remembered that he never told me before that he loved me. I wondered if men ever can love as women do; but I thought of Richard. It seemed to me that the strong abiding love of manhood only comes with maturer years, while woman's love is faithful forever.

I told Richard all about it, and said:

"I hope you'll not be jealous, dear."

He kissed me.

Yet the lilies of the valley have a power to set me dreaming; and my old worn guitar seems sentient with those olden melodies. But I love my Richard, and because he loves me I am glad it all happened so. One never marries her first love you know. Heigh-ho. Good night, dear. Richard is at the gate, calling to me.

MIGHTY BAF.—How touching is this, from a city friend, who tells of a poor woman who went to her clergyman, asking him to come and perform the funeral service of her fourth husband, he having officiated for three who had previously disappeared from public view.

"Why, Bridget, how is this," asked the reverend gentleman.

"Ah, it's mighty bad," she replied. "There never was poor woman worn down with such a lot of lying men men as I've been."

STEEP.—An old Highlander, rather fond of his toddy, was ordered by his physician during a temporary illness, not to exceed one ounce of spirits daily. The old gentleman was dubious about the amount, and asked his son, a schoolboy, how much an ounce was.

"Sixteen drams," was the reply.

"Sixteen drams! An excellent doctor!" replied the delighted Highlander. "Run and tell Donald McTavish and big John to come down the night."

A Brave Girl.

There is a brave girl in Astor, Pennsylvania, whose name is Kate Larkin, and she is daughter of Mr. Salkold Larkin, jun. She had been left alone in the house, and was preparing breakfast, when her attention was attracted by the sound of footsteps in the dining-room. Hastening thither she saw a tall, rough-looking man standing in the centre of the apartment. The stranger at once locked the door behind him, and Miss Larkin, without exhibiting the least terror at his singular proceeding, stepped into the kitchen, and having armed herself with a shot gun, returned and took her position at another door. The man advanced toward the place where she stood, and as he approached she said to him, "Don't come any nearer, or I will shoot you." "You shoot?" he replied, in derision, "I'd like to see you shoot." He then drew a knife, and on his coming nearer to her the brave girl fired, the shot taking effect in his feet and ankles. By this time the stranger was very close to Miss Larkin, who sprang behind him, and pushed him through the doorway where she had stood, into the room, and locked the door. Apparently apprehensive that the report of the gun might summon assistance the injured man hurriedly limped away, cursing his sore legs, and "gals who shoot fellers for nothing."

"Ish dere some ladder here for me?" inquired a German, at the general delivery window of the post office.

"No—none here," was the reply.

"Vell, dot is queer," he continued, getting his head into the window; "my neighbor gets sometimes three ladders in one day, and I get none. I buys more daxes as he does, and I haf never got one ladder yet. How comes dose dings?"

Josh Billings gives the following advice: "When you hear a man say, 'Life is but a dream,' tread on his toes and wake him up. 'Life is real, life is earnest.' If he is a poet, subscribe to get rid of him, and have him deposited in the far West with a gun and ammunition, and a blanket for sole covering; he will know very soon whether life is a dream or not."

Mr. Bivens, an old bachelor of Rochester, who is much absorbed in politics, visited the widow Graham the other day, just after reading Richard's letter, and asked her what she thought of a third term. Now, the widow has been twice married, and in response to the question she made a rustle for the astounded Mr. Bivens and taking him tightly in her arms exclaimed, "O, you dear, dear man! What a happy woman I am!" At last accounts Mr. B. had locked himself in his wood house, and was endeavoring to explain matters to the widow through the keyhole.

A very tall and shabby-looking man, a fellow that reminded you of a vagrant letter from a font of forty-line paragon extra condensed, stepped up to one of our bars last week, and, after heaving a glass of liquor into his long throat, blandly asked the bar-tender if he could change a $20 bill. The gentleman informed him that he could. "Well," said the tall one, with a sigh of satisfaction, "I'll go out and see if I can find one," and he plunged out into the cold world on his mission.

"What are you dancing around for?" inquired a bootblack yesterday of a boy acquaintance whose face was covered with smiles, and who was executing a double shuffle. "Glory 'buff for one day!" replied the lad, jumping still higher. "Cov got into the garden this morning and tramped every bed fast as yer hat, and I won't have to priff a weed this summer?"

Blifkins was down in Chicago the other day, when he received a letter from his young wife, saying to him that "on this lovely spring morning a bird is singing in my heart," and old Blif, just looked wild a minute, and then took a freight train for home, muttering to himself, "Them's sure Beecher's sentiments, old man; keep yer eye peeled!"

A good double pun has been made by a clergyman. He had just united in marriage a couple whose christian names were respectively Benjamin and Ann. "How did they appear during the ceremony?" inquired a friend. "They appeared both Annie-mated and Bennie-fied," was the reply.

A lazy fellow falling a distance of fifty feet, and escaping with a few scratches, a bystander remarked that he was "too slow to fall fast enough to hurt himself."

A western editor insists that he wrote the word "trousseau" as plain as a pikestaff in connection with certain bridal presents. "The printer," however, vulgarly put it "trousers."

Why is a church bell more audible than a church organ? Because one will go when it is tolled, but the other will be 'blowed' first.

Hospitality to the Premier.

The Edinburgh Courier noticing the reception the Hon. Alex. Mackenzie met with at Dundee, says:

"Such hospitality as was shown to the Canadian Premier at Dundee, and which will be cordially repeated in other Scotch burghs, strikes a note of fraternity destined to vibrate from the banks of the St. Lawrence to the Antipodes. It is an act of which not only Mr. Mackenzie's Scotch countrymen will be proud, but which Scotch colonists in all quarters of the globe will accept as a compliment. The prospect of one day being themselves honoured with a kindred welcome to the land of their birth and the country of their pride will stir the souls of men whose names, though a proverb in some distant territory of the Crown are here hardly known beyond their native parish. There are Logieraitis all over Scotland which can claim Mackenzie's of their own—men who have gone forth from the old parish school to seek for fame at the ends of the earth, and to win new honours for the hardy race. The greatest success they can attain in the land of their adoption never slackens the current of Scotch blood in their veins. Whatever they may become as colonists—whether daring explorers, or shepherd kings, or millionaire merchants, or prominent politicians—their hearts ever look backward to the brown heath and shaggy woods of boyish days. The peregrination Scotorum is infectious among their surroundings; it is invariably hereditary in their offspring. Descendants of Scotchmen may be met with on the Red River, or among the Blue Mountains, who, though they never been within thousands of miles of the Grampians, have the Caledonian type ingrained in them, and their minds imbued with the patriotism of Scots who have."

In another column we have published an article from the Edinburgh Courier, upon the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's visit to his native land. The Hon. gentleman was presented with an address from the working men of his native parish of Logierait, Perth, to which he made an eloquent and affectionate reply, in the course of which he said many things we would like to publish had we space; we give, however, the following noble passage, which shows that Mr. Mackenzie is eminently entitled to all the honours the people can bestow on him. Power and position has not led him to put on airs, and treat his fellow man superciliously; nor to forget that he was once a working lad; and may we not add one of Nature's Noblemen. All the decorations which Royalty could place upon him, would not raise him higher in the estimation of the people.

"The rank is but the guinea stamp, The man's the gold for a' that."

During his reply the Canadian Premier said: "For my own part I never allude to the fact that I am or have been a working man as reason why I should be rejected or why I should be accepted. (Applause.) I base my entire claim for public confidence upon the expression of opinion which I believe command it, and upon the result of those principles of which I have been an humble advocate for many years. (Applause.) I do not of course presume for a moment to speak here on political subjects. So far as British politics are concerned I am an alien amongst you. I desire to say nothing which will reflect on one political party in this community or in this country. It would be unpardonable of me to do so, receiving as I have done kindness which I shall never forget from people of all parties. But at the same time I may be permitted to say I have always held those political opinions which point to the universal brotherhood of man, no matter in what rank of life he may have taken his origin. (Loud applause.) I have believed, sir, and I still believe, in the extinction of all class legislation, and of all legislation that tends to promote one body of men or one class of men from the mere fact of their belonging to a class of a higher position politically than any other class in the community. (Applause.) But, sir, in our great colonies—while we find no fault with the political organization in the Mother Country—or with the political organizations in any other country—we take the ground simply and completely that every man stands equal in the eye of the law, and that he should have equal opportunity for the exercise of the talent with which God has blessed him to rise in the world and in the confidence of his fellow-citizens." (Applause.)

The St. Croix Courier thinks the Court House should be removed from the Shiretown to St. Stephen, simply because the causes tried last term were from St. Stephen. No doubt the religious disposition of the people there forms a contrast to the peace-loving and law-abiding inhabitants of St. Andrews, who mind their own business. Build a Court House for yourselves at St. Stephen and a Jail too, as they appear to be required. When the division of the County advocated takes place, then indeed the present howl of taxation will be heard far and near.

A Japanese Marksman.

One or two anecdotes about the wonderful Japanese marksman at Wimbledon may be selected from the vast number which are going the round. At Hythe, Major Muretta was pitted against one of the most celebrated musketry instructors in the camp, an officer who can, to use a familiar phrase, "face the target," that is, can say where he is going to place his shot, and then do it. The Japanese major saw everything that the English lieutenant was able to perform, and immediately proceeded to cut him out in a manner that amazed all beholders. At Ash, near Aldershot, he was purposely misinformed as to the distance of a range, the number of yards as given him being 500, whereas in reality it was 1,000. Major Muretta said nothing but calmly sighted his rifle, and firing, hit the bull's-eye. This he did again and again, and when he was told that he had been deceived in the distance, his reply was that he had not been deceived at all.

The Public Schools.

The PUBLIC SCHOOLS were opened on Monday last, after the summer holidays, with a large attendance. The teachers and pupils appear somewhat refreshed after their short vacation. The law, however, might be amended to give eight instead of five weeks vacation, teachers and scholars would be the better prepared for their work. August weather is by no means the best for study, and confinement in any room during "dog days," does not contribute to the health of pupils nor promote their studies.

Hon. Mr. GILMORE visited his constituents in this section last week, and inspected the new lighthouse in the outer harbour. Mr. Gilmore is giving satisfaction and carrying out the wishes of his constituents—a difficult task, particularly where there is a division of sentiment. We believe there are several applications for Light-house keeper for the new light, but report says that Capt. James Clark, the oldest Pilot in this district, has the inside track, and will probably be appointed.

We are sorry to state that Hon. B. R. Stevenson is again confined to his house from another severe attack of Quinsy. This is the third time this year he has been laid up from this annoying disease. We trust he will soon be able to resume his daily active duties.

ST. ANDREWS FOUNDRY.—We saw some very fine castings from this foundry, which for durability and finish could not be surpassed in the Province. Mr. OAKLEY thoroughly understands moulding, and Mr. LAW is not surpassed as a finisher; in the forge department he has no superior. The foundry is fitted with all the modern improvements, and well adapted to supply all work required in the County. It is an industry which is entitled to extensive patronage.

SABBATH SCHOOL PICNIC.—The annual Pic Nic of pupils of the Presbyterian Sabbath School, was held in Mowat's grove on Friday last, the previous day having been wet. The teachers provided a bountiful repast for the scholars, and with amusements the day passed off agreeably.

The Montreal Star is a marvel of success in newspaperdom. Its early issues were on small sheets, with meagre advertising, and its light was dim. How changed the present aspect; it shines brilliantly, has increased in size, with large advertising patronage, well filled columns and the latest intelligence, vigorous editorials, and issues three editions daily, from its new and rapid "Web-perfecting Press," which has attained the enormous speed of 9,500 sheets per hour.

MECHANIC RAILWAY.—The President and other gentlemen connected with this Railway, including the Hon. Mr. Pope, are expected here this week. They will also visit St. John; their object it is said is to select an open Winter Port for the Railway.

TORSORIAL.—Mr. Rooney has fitted up his shop in good style, and is reaping a reward; he is something of a gardener, for during the time he is not cutting hair or shaving, he attends to his garden, in which he has some of the largest cabbages, beets, &c. in the town.

The heavy rain on Saturday night and early on Sunday morning, with the following days fog has injured somewhat the grass cut. Several were fortunate in getting their hay in week, but many had a large quantity in swarth. Tuesday the haymakers were busy turning over and drying the hay.

THE ARMY WORMS have attacked the trees in some parts of the town, and completely denuded them of leaves. They appear to travel northwards, and the ground in several places is literally covered by them.

MR. J. S. CARPENTER, Presbyterian Catechist, who was staying here for the past seven months, left here last week for Halifax, where he is now engaged in Missionary work.

THE TOWN PIC NICK takes place to-day at Mowat's grove. The Pic Nic Club have made every arrangement for a pleasant time, and whatever they undertake is well done. They have a fine day, and we hope will be well patronized.

Among the visitors here during the present week, are Dr. and Mrs. Roberts, from Fredericton. We are happy to notice that the Doctor appears to enjoy a fair share of health.

THE GRAND BAZAAR, to be held on the 25th inst., on Judge Wilnot's grounds, in Fredericton, promises to be really a great affair. Preparations on a large scale have been made. A visit to the celestial City and Bazaar, will amply repay the trifling outlay. Excursion tickets can be obtained at reduced rates.

QUICKEST PASSAGE ON RECORD.—The steamship Germanic, of the "White Star Line," Capt. Kennedy, arrived at New York on Saturday morning, making the run from Queenstown to Sandy Hook in 7 days 23 hours 9 minutes, mean time. This passage is said to be the quickest on record. The same steamship made the run to England in 8 days and 20 hours.

NO SMALL POX.—There is not a shadow of truth in the report "of a case of small pox near Joe's Point;" nor is there any in this Parish, nor indeed the County. Such reports are infamous, and are the emanation of diseased minds.

The friends of the Rev. Mr. Wallace, of St. George, will notice by reference to another column, that his recent visit to Scotland has led to a happy event. The Rev. gentleman and his bride are expected in St. George in a short time.

VOLUNTEERS' PAY STOPPED.—It is reported that the men of the Northumberland volunteers who had run in debt to the canteen keeper for liquor, had the amount stopped from their pay; many of the men had consequently but a few cents coming to them when the camp broke up. A question arises as to the legality of such an exercise of power.

The literary latitude of Sackville, does not appear from the following paragraph to be exempt from "roughs." Nothing approaching such dastardly conduct is indulged in on the "border." It is to be hoped the scamp will meet with condign punishment!

Two Miscreants named Rufus Doan and Eliza Darragh indulged in the pastime of throwing eggs at two respectable ladies who were walking through one of the principal streets of Sackville on last Sabbath evening. One of the ladies belongs to St. John. The dress of the other lady was badly besmeared. Yesterday Justice Best issued warrants for the arrest of Doan and Darragh, who deserve to be severely punished.—Sackville Borderer.

RETAINING PROPERTY FOR BOARD.—A cause tried in the St. John County Court, establishes the fact that a boarding-house keeper cannot retain the trunks or property of a boarder, for debt due for board and lodging; in other words he cannot hold the property of a boarder for board, but sue in the ordinary way to receive the amount due. The most summary method is best in such cases.

SLAUGHTER OF HENS.—The Calais Advertiser says that Wm. E. Slayton had twenty-five fine Brahma hens destroyed by a racoon last week. And Mr. Rounds had seven, and Mr. Wm. Todd six destroyed by the same customer.

Israel McLaughlin, twice tried in the St. John County Court for alleged criminal assault, has been justly found guilty, and sentenced to seven years hard labor in the Penitentiary.

COST OF DEAD GRASSHOPPERS.—According to the Nevada Enterprise, the grasshopper bids fair to be the cause of greater loss dead than alive. The editor says:—

In the midst of calamity men often act with an indiscretion bordering on insanity. Having eaten their way through a strip of Kansas and Western Missouri, a northern division of the locusts now ravaging the Great West, started in the hope of destroying the pests, at once offered bounties of from $1 to $1.50 per bushel for captured grasshoppers. The result was astounding. Every man, woman and child in Blue Earth, Le Sueur, Brown and Nicolet counties became grasshopper-catchers, and the counties named are now bankrupt. There is scarcely currency enough in the United States to pay for the captured grasshoppers at the prices stipulated. Into the country seat of a single county in one day poured an aggregate of 15,000 bushels of grasshoppers. Women brought them in their aprons, boys in their caps, and men by the wagon-load, and steam machinery is about to be put in operation in Nicolet county by an ingenious Yankee, by which it is claimed that he will be able to capture grasshoppers at the rate of 10,000 bushels per day for the next sixty days.

Instead of attempting to divert the course of the grasshoppers, farmers are now employing strategy to impel them to settle upon their lands, and men are staking off their grasshopper claims in Minnesota, including all their dips, spurs and angles, with as accurate a regard to boundary as is recognized along the line of the Comstock, where land is selling at the rate of $5,000 per inch. The fortunate farmer whose fields have been destroyed by the grasshoppers allows no trespass upon his domain. The devouring pests within his boundaries are his property, worth three times more to him than the crops destroyed, and he will allow no one to gather his grasshoppers without paying a royalty.

These bounties will doubtless destroy the grasshoppers, but the counties offering them will never be able to pay a percentage on the amount agreed upon per bushel, of more than one grasshopper to the wagon-load. In some of the counties favored by a visitation of the locusts, grasshopper scrip to the amount of hundreds of thousands of dollars has already been issued in lieu of current funds, and the indications are that, so great is its bulk, it can never be redeemed, except by the General Government. No more relief for the Minnesota sufferers will be asked, for the most prosperous among them next month will be those whose lands have been covered deepest with grasshoppers. But it may be that these grasshopper obligations will be repudiated. If so—but we will not give aid and comfort to the grasshoppers by intimating a doubt that their captured carcasses will be paid for at the rate of $1.00 per bushel—the very highest price paid for them in Western Minnesota.

SUMMARY.

Mr. J. J. Morrison, who was connected with the St. Stephen Branch of the British North America Bank for a couple of years, has been removed to Toronto, and went a few days ago. A farewell supper was given him, which passed off pleasantly.

ATTACKED BY A MACKREEL.—An enormous horse mackerel in causing consternation to some of the Prince Edward Island fishermen. Recently he emerged from the water, flying completely over the boat, striking the fishermen a severe blow on the shoulder, and in its passage over also struck the opposite gunwale of the boat, carrying the whole side with him as he again took the water, leaving scales behind him about the size of a ten cent piece. The mackerel must have weighed several hundred pounds, but the suddenness of the attack rendered it impossible to obtain anything like an accurate description.

The Calais Times has the following:—"The Upper Falls, St. George, has been the scene of a religious revival lately. A few days ago, seven persons were publicly baptised by the Rev. Mr. Crawley, Baptist Minister of St. Andrews. This has mainly been the result of the efforts of Mr. W. Stuart, a student of Acadia College, who is training for the ministry, and who has been visiting his home at Upper Falls for a short time.

The annual picnic of the employees of the Bay of Fundy (Red Granite Company), was held on the "Cameron grounds" on the shore of Passamaquoddy Bay. A string and Cornet Band were present, and the usual athletic games formed part of the amusements.

A POST DOG.—Little Falls, N. Y. has a wonderful dog—not "mino dog Schmeddy" but one owned by Henry Snyder. His principal occupation is to carry his master's mail to and from the post office. He appears regularly at six o'clock daily, and, like all other post dogs, is politely waited on by postmaster Stafford, or one of his clerks, after which he immediately returns to his master. The businesslike manner in which this is done, is really wonderful. The dog never stops to read the postal cards.

SHIPBUILDING.—A Yarmouth paper says, "There is not so large an amount of building going on as usual, but the erection of new buildings has not wholly ceased, and some fine houses have been put up within the last three months. Our shipbuilders are not this year vying with each other as to who shall put about the biggest ship or the greatest number of vessels, but enough is being done in this line to keep our ship building establishments in working trim, and within the last fortnight we have had the pleasure of chronicling the addition of three noble ships to the roll of our merchant marine. Such of our smaller vessels as are engaged in the fisheries are returning with excellent fares, which there is every prospect will find a remunerative market."

The river steamer Wm. Stroud has returned from St. John, and is again on the route to Grand Manan.

LYNCH LAW IN CANADA.—A Toronto mob tried to lynch Dr. Davis and wife, the abortionists when they were taken from court to jail to await a formal trial, but were prevented by the police.

Cardinal McCloskey sailed from New York for Europe on Saturday.

SHEEP STEALING.—The farmers of Welsford, St. John, have been subjected recently to having their sheep stolen.

The O'Connell centenary was celebrated on this continent and Europe with great eclat.

MAILED.—On the 29th July, at 27 Granville Place, Glasgow, by the Rev. John R. Scouler, M. A., Milton Parish Church, the Rev. JOHN WALLACE, B. A., of St. George, N. B., to ELIZABETH CRUIK, eldest daughter of JOHN GREEN, Esq., formerly of Manchester, England.

DIED.—At Bocaboo, on the 7th instant, George aged 2 years and 7 months, third son of Mr. James Macgregor.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, OTTAWA.

Friday, 7th day of May, 1875.
PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GEN-ERAL IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS it is provided by the 56th section of the Act 31 Victoria, Chapter 6, intituled:
"An Act respecting the Customs," that the importer of any cattle or swine may slaughter and cure and pack the same in bond, under such Regulations and restrictions as the Governor in Council may from time to time make for this purpose.
And whereas it has been found expedient to give effect to the said Section 56, in so far as regards the importation of swine, and to alter the terms of the Regulations for this purpose, adopted by Order in Council of 22nd of May, 1868:
His Excellency, on the recommendation of the Honorable the Minister of Customs and under the provisions of the said Act has been pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the said Order in Council of 22nd of May, 1868, and the Regulations thereby established be and the same are hereby repealed, and that the following Regulations be and are hereby adopted and established in lieu thereof—that is to say:

1. Upon the importation of swine for the purpose of slaughter, the importer shall enter the same for Warehouse, upon the usual form of such entries, stating upon its face, the number and value of the herd, and also the quantity of pork, bacon, hams and lard, which the number stated will produce when slaughtered and dressed at 113 pounds weight for each live hog so imported, and the amount of duty to which such produce is as may be liable under the rate prescribed by the tariff in force at the time being as the proper duty on meat of that kind. Such importer shall then execute a bond to the Queen, in double the amount of such duty, the condition of which bond shall be, that upon the due exportation within one year of the said products of the swine so imported and converted into pork, bacon, hams and lard, or payment of the duty secured by the said bond, then the said bond shall be and become null and void, otherwise shall remain in full force and virtue.

2. Upon the reception into the Bonding Warehouse, the swine shall be regarded only as meat, and it shall not be lawful to remove any of them from such Warehouse alive; nor shall any part of the produce of such swine be removed therefrom, for any purpose, without a permit from the Collector, or proper Officer of Customs, as in the case of all other bonded goods.
3. Swine imported in the carcasses to be cured and packed in bond, may be entered in the usual way for Warehouse, and be placed in the premises established as a Warehouse for the special purpose of curing and packing. The weight of such carcasses to be duly ascertained by the proper Officer of Customs, and the importer shall give bonds to the Queen in double the amount of the duties accruing thereupon under the tariff then in force, conditioned for the due exportation of the same, or payment of duty within two years from the date of first entry.
4. The killing pen, curing and packing houses and all cellars, stores or other apartments included in such Warehouse, shall be accessible at all times between sunrise and sunset to the inspection and survey of the Collector or Inspector of Customs, or any officer of Customs to whom the duty of such inspection may be assigned by them or either of them.
5. The produce of swine imported alive and warehoused for slaughter at the said rate of 113 pounds for each hog, and the meat of the swine, imported in carcasses for curing and packing, at the actual ascertained weight at first entry, shall be subject while in bond to all changes in the tariff rate of duty, such with a consented set of bonds for home consumption, shall pay the rate of duty in force at the date of such entry.

Clerk, Privy Council.

Representative and Champion of American Art Taste.
THE ALDINE,
 THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA, ISSUED MONTHLY.
 MAGNIFICENT CONCEPTION, WONDERFULLY CARRIED OUT.

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably allowed each attempt in this country to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

The ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timorously characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be more appreciated after it is bought at the end of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume can not duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for the same cost; and then, there is the chrome, besides!

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while placing before the patrons of THE ALDINE, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with THE ALDINE, is an important feature, and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875
 Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in all colors, of the same or a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interposition of landscape, marine, figure, and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of THE ALDINE is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Walker's Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Walker's Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use VINEGAR BITTERS as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in any form.
 S. H. McDONALD & CO.,
 Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and cor. Washington and Charlton Sts., New York.
 Sold by all Druggists and Dealers.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs weakened beyond repair.
Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.
Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters, which will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.
Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.
Mechanical Diseases—Persons engaged in Painful and Menial, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blisters, Spots, Pimples, Pus-tules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurvy, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors, and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.
Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.
Jandice—In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work. The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use VINEGAR BITTERS.
 Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find it impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
