Death of Francis Bain.

(Charlottetown Examiner, Nov. 20.)

Francis Bain passed away, at his residence, North River, at 8 o'clock this morning. The sad event has been anticipated ever since he was stricken down by paralysis, the result of a stroke of the brain, two months ago. Everyone in this province who is at all interested in science will deeply regret the early removal of this gifted man. He was from his youth an industrious, honest, careful and highly intelligent student of nature. He had not, unfortunately, the advantage of a collegiate training. He followed assiduously, year in and year out, the laborious occupation of a farmer. He was interested in the politics of the province and was a candidate in at least one election. He took an active and leading part in almost every movement of local importance to the district and action in which he resided. Yet, withal, his knowledge of geology and his ability as a geologist attracted the notice and commendation of such men as Sir William Dawson. Decidedly the best account of the birds of Prince Edward Island was written and published by him. He was a recognized authority among the botanists of this part of Canada, and his luminous botanical lectures will long be remembered by those who were so fortunate as to hear them. He was the author of the Natural History of Prince Edward Island, ordered for use in our public schools. He was appointed by the government of Canada to be the geologist for the P. E. Island tunnel survey, his special knowledge of the geology of this province enabling him to render important service. He was secretary for P. E. Island of the Royal Botanical Society of Canada. He was the contributor of numerous scientific articles which appeared in scientific magazines and in the Examiner. Above all, he was an honest and religious man, faithful to his friends and faithful to his duty and his God. Perhaps his most lasting memorial will be the small discovery by him, to which his name has been given.

Normal School Library.

The Provincial Normal school library, which has been obtained at an expense of $100,000, is now open to the public. The books themselves will have cost the school nothing. This very agreeable state of affairs was brought about in the following manner:

Dr. Inch, chief superintendent of education, was lately led to observe that in many instances the public school libraries owned by the several schools of the province, were of very little practical value to the students for whose use they had been provided. This was for the simple reason that the choosing of the necessary books to make up the different libraries, has been heretofore left entirely to the taste and discretion of the respective teachers having charge of the libraries in question. Very many teachers do not possess the literary taste or the power of discrimination between good and bad books, which is an essential requisite for those choosing for their pupils good mental food. The chief superintendent therefore set about preparing an exhaustive catalogue of books suitable for libraries of this kind—hoping thereby to correct the existing evil—or at any rate to prevent its recurrence by fixing some kind of a standard. As the work progressed Dr. Inch prepared a circular, which he forwarded to all the public-school libraries explaining to each firm the nature of the work he was undertaking, and stating to them that if they would forward to him the books included in the catalogue, they could be placed in the Normal School library, where they would be accessible to the large number of prospective teachers who attended the Normal School from year to year. The result has been that a large proportion of the publishers in question have already answered the circular, and have, without any exception, forwarded the books indicated in the catalogue, free of charge, excepting as aforesaid. As a consequence, the chief superintendent has to acknowledge the receipt of some hundred of dollars worth of valuable books which have been placed in the Normal School library and which will without doubt, be followed by a great many more as soon as the English publishers can be heard from. When completed the library will probably number some hundred volumes, all selected with very great care, and will be of inestimable value to the Normal School of the province.

It is a beautiful law in morals that if you give a beautiful liar, you will soon succeed in hanging himself. Colonel Lowell met in Chicago a man, who had an amazing amount to say about his travels in Europe. Mr. Lowell, in the course of the conversation, referred to the famous author George Sand. "Oh, yes," exclaimed the Chicago man, "I have spent many a happy hour with Sand." The Colonel was naturally greatly astonished, but he actually let the man on. "You know George Sand, then?" he asked. "Know him?" exclaimed the pork city individual. "Well, I should rather say I did, I roomed with him when I was in Paris."

GENERAL NEWS.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

Horses on Sable Island.

Sable Island is called the "grave yard of the Atlantic." It is covered with wrecks. These are the known ones, but the unknown are perhaps as many more. New wrecks are coming to light and old ones are disappearing continually. The island is about 22 miles long and one wide. It is a succession of sand hummocks. The entire substance of the island is loose grey sand. Its shape is a crescent and throughout the centre is a long narrow lake. The concave side of the island is toward the mainland of Nova Scotia. From Whitehead the island is distant about 85 miles. A Portuguese chart of 1505 had Sable Island marked upon it. The Portuguese placed upon it, and swine on the island. Then again in 1518 a French expedition with cattle on board experienced contrary winds and could not make its destination. Some of the cattle were ashore at Canoe and remained on Sable Island after which the expedition returned to France. In 1633 there were black foxes on the island. At what time after this the wild horse now found there succeeded the foxes cannot be told. In the first quarter of the eighteenth century a French clergyman named Le Mercier sent 100 cattle to Sable Island. His family were to follow and he asked for a grant of the island but refused to pay quit rent and did not carry out his idea of settlement. The cattle were forbidden by proclamation to be hunted or destroyed. Simon D. McDonald, L. C. S. Halifax, read papers on Sable Island before the Institute of National Science in 1883. In the course of his observations the writer remarked: In the immediate neighborhood of the ocean little else but sand is to be seen. Every variety of drift, or stranded on a crest of wind into bowl-like hollows, relieved only by the stark timbers of many an unfortunate ship, washed by the waves or thrown high upon the shore, and the unceasing headlong plunge of the breaker, as each in turn rears its green head and breaks in a crest of foam as it rushes up the sloping beach. As we mount the hummocks and descend into the lake valley the scene changes
