LIFE THOUGHTS.

THE mother's heart is the child's school

God pardons like a mother, who kis the offence into everlasting forgetfulness.

Great powers and natural gifts do not bring privileges to their possessor, so as they bring duties.

We go to the grave of a friend, saying,—
"A man is dead;" but angels throng about him, saying,—"A man is born." No experience will ever reveal to us what chances are yet to come to us, or what new growth or prunning we shall have.

A man in the right, with God on his side is in the majority, though he be alone, for God is multitudinous above all populations of the earth. Many men carry their conscience like a drawn sword, cutting this way and that, in the world, but sheathe it, and keep it very soft and quiet, when it is turned within, thinking that a sword should not be allowed to cut its own scabbard.

No man can go down into the dangeon of his experience, and hold the torch of God's word to all its dark chambers, and hidden cavities, and slimy recesses, and not come up with a shudder and a chill, and an earnest cry to God for divine mercy and cleansing.

When your mind and heart are in such a when your mind and heart are in such a state that praying is pushing a prayer through —like driving a wedge into a log, do you call it religion? It is as when your child, red-faced, and choking with passion, is held up by the servant to kiss you. He comes because he is pushed,—and do you call that the sunlight has forgotten to find its way through, of what use can it be..... Now, the the church is God's window; and if it is so obscured by errors that its light is darkness, how great is that darkness!

God designed men to grow as trees grow, in open pastures, full-boughed all around; but men in society grow like trees in forests, tall and spindling, the lower ones overshadowed by the higher, with only a little branching, and that at the top. They borrow of each other the power to stand; and if the forest be cleared, and one be left alone, the first wind which comes uproots it.

Men think religion bears the same rela-Men think religion bears the same relation to life that flowers do to trees. The trees must grow through a long period before the blossoming time; so they think religion is to be a blossom just before death to secure heaven.....But the Bible represents religion, not as the latest fruit of life, but as the whole of it—beginning, middle, and end. It

The clearest window that ever was fashioned, if it is barred with spider's webs, and hung over with eareasses of insects, so that Shipowners, must be reaping a rich harvest this fall, the quantities of grain on the move being immensely in excess of previous years, while at the same time freights are high.

At half past one on Saturday afternoon two poor men who had been paid a debt in bills of the Bank of Upper Canada which they found refused at the market, and other places where they tried to make purchases, tendered them at the Bank here for specie or other bills, when the demand was refused on the ground that the Bank was closed for the day, and they must return on Manday, in a rather impertinent manner by "a little fat chunk of a man behind the counter." It was in vain for the men to point out the hardship to themselves and families, the Bank officers were inexorable.

Although the Banks have agreed to alose on Saturdays they are not on that account relieved from their obligation to redeem their issue within the usual banking hours of other days; and the refusal to do so in this instance, the door being actually open, was a silegal as it was unwise in the delicate circumstances in which the Bank of Upper Canada stands.—Montreal Advertiser.

THE SWING AS A CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.—Dr. Long of Holyoke, in a letter to the Springfield Republican, recommends the gymnastic swing as a preventative and cure of pulmonary disease. He says:—"In the suspending of the body by the hands by the means of a strong rope or chain, fastened to a beam at one end, and at the other a stick three feet long, convenient to grasp with the hands. The rope should be fastened to the centre of the stick, which should hang six or eight inches above the head. Let a person grasp this stick, with the hands two or three feet apart, and swing very moderately at—perhaps only bear the weight, if very weak, and gradually increases as the muscles gain strength from the exercise, until it may be freely used from three to six times daily. The connection of the arms with the body (with the exception of the clavicle with the stenum or breastbone) being a muscular attachment to the ribs, the effect of this exercise is to elevate the ribs and enlarge the chest; and as nature allows no vacuum, the lungs expand to fill the cavity, increasing the volumn of air—the natural purifier of blood and preventing congestion or the deposit of tuberculeus matter. I have prescribed the above for all eases of hemorhage of the lungs and threatened consumption, for 35 years, and have been able to increase the measure of the chest from two to four inches within a few months, and always with good THE SWING AS A CURE FOR CONSUMP within a few months, and always with good results. My Reverend Brethren and Brethren:

Your resolution requesting me to lay before the Diocese the proofs upon which I have formed the opinion which I expressed, concerning the teaching of Trinity College, Toronto, has been placed in my hands. In compliance with your request, I now proceed to redeem the pledge which I gave in my pastoral, or making known to the clergy and laity of my Diocese, the grounds of my opinion, whence called upon to do so.

Some time after my return from England, in 1858, some gradentes in Trinity College applied to me for ordination, and it became my duty to examine them. I perceived that the views of some of these gentlemen, more particularly concerning the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome, were not making the character and doctrines of the Church of Rome the catechism on one or two occasions, and his notes on the catechism on one or two occasions, and his notes on the catechism on one or two occasions, and his notes on the catechism on one or two occasions, and his notes on the catechism on one or two occasions, and his notes on the catechism.

the cause of this, and after a good deal of examination and enquiry, I was led to the conclusion that the views held by these gentlemen, were traceable to the teaching to which they had been subjected, during their University course. The mode of teaching, as described to me, appeared to be highly objectionable, and the matter taught was in my

As each student enters the lecture room, he brings his own or another's copy of the manuscript, which he places on the table before him, in the presence of the Provost, leaving it closed until the questions dictated on the last lecture day are answered or disposed of. Then he opens his manuscript, and follows the Provost as far as he goes, marking, at the same time, if he notices any error or mistake. Apart from this he writes neither questions nor answers, nor does he take notes, which must be quite apparent to the Provost.

I have stated fully my objections to this mode of teaching in my pastoral; I need not here repeat them.

This manuscript known as 'The Provost's Catechism,' with the questions copied or corrected from his own manuscript, lent for that purpose, and the answers taken down from his own lips, and corrected from time to time, has been handed down from class to class, and has even been bought and sold by the students. I have not given the names of those gentlemen from whom I have received the above answers to my questions.

He was connected with the Association as Director and Chairman since its commencement, was ever most attentive to its interests, and succeeded in gaining the respect of all the members of the Board. The Directors were fortunate in securing the consent of Sir Archibald Hope of Craighall, Bart., to fill the Chair in his room, and nominated him temporarily, until the appointment could be confirmed at this Meeting. They cordially recommend him as in every way well qualified, and likely to be most acceptable to the Association and the Public.

Convinced that Liberality in their dealings with the Public is the best policy, the Directors have from time to time adopted many improvements and given unusual tacilities to the Policy-holders. Accordingly the Policies issued by the Association for many years past have been free from not a few of the ordinary restrictions and conditions, and they seem fully to meet the wants of the majority of Assurers. Of late, however, a desire has, in some quarters, been manifested for a system of Life Assurance still more simple, and the Directors have arranged a scheme of "Unconditional Assurers" which Assurers will in future have the option of joining. This scheme is based on sound principles and precise calcultions, and will, no doubt, contribute to the success and reputation of the Institution.

GINAL SCHEME of the Association, and of the NEW SCHEME above, may be obtained on application at any of the Office from a clergyman who some years since graduated at Trinity College:—"I will now endeavor to state, as well as I can remember, things which struck me as particularly strange in the Provost's doctrinal teaching I cannot remember his exact words. I can only give the impression they left on my mind at the time. In lecturing on the communion of saints, he certainly gave us to understand, while discoursing on the interest the saints took in our spiritual welfare, that he thought they pleaded with God for us. He did on one occasion make use of these words, or words very like them, "This is one of the losses which we sustained," or "Things which we lost at the Reformation," and I have a very strong impression upon my mind that it was when asking for prayers for the dead. He always spoke of baptismal regeneration as if all divines received the doctrine in its strongest sense, without gelical view of it taken by many eminent divines in our Church. When young men are thus taught, in the creed we profess to believe, that the saints departed take an in-terest in our spiritual welfare, and probably easy to "Holy St. Dominick pray for us." Can we regard that man as a sound-hearted member of the Church of England, as she now is, who has learned that the same Church, at the Reformation, lost several val uable practices, which, of course, it would be our duty, if possible, to have restored?" Moreover, in this catechism our Lord's words are recorded in the 6th Chapter of St. John's Gospel, are repeatedly quoted, as spoken cencerning the Sacrament of the Lord's supper, as in the following answers:

In these questions and answers, taken from different parts of the catechism, the student is unhesitatingly taught to interpret the words of our Lord, in the sixth of John, as spoken concerning the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Commentators of the church of England since the Reformation, and some Roman Catholic divines have interpreted the sixth chapter of St. John's Gospel as having no reference whatsoever to the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and one of the latter has asserted that "the Universal Church has understood this passage ever since its promulgation, to mean spiritual eating and drinking by a living faith."

In reply to the Bishop's objection I lave to state that the great writers of our Church in controversy with Rome, have always carefully distinguished between the prayers of saints departed for us and our praying to them. The latter they justly denounce as a presumptuous and superstitious practice, and as an invasion of the prerogative of almighty God; the formar they allow to be a probable and reasonable belief. They distinguish also between general and particular intercession, showing that the former implies no present knowledge of our condition on the part of saints departed but merely a recollection of earthly friends.
