Dramatic Scenes at the Trial of the Noted Prisoner.

Rioting at Londonderry-Several Persons Injured, Including Eight Constables.

Rennes, Aug. 14.-Two men ambush ed Maitre Labori, counsel for Dreyfus and one shot was fired, hitting Labori in the back. M. Labori fell in the roadway. He is still alive.

Maitre Labori left his house alone for the court at about 6 o'clock this morning. His residence is situated in the suburbs of the town, about a quarter of an hour's walk from the Lycee, the route being along a solitary road beside the River Vilaine. He had reached a point half-way on his journey, when two men, who had evidently been lying in wait for him, rushed out of a narrow lane, and one of 200 Dundas St. Phone 863 them fired a single shot from a revol-

The murderers were only a couple of yards behind their victim, and the bullet struck Maitre Labori in the back. The wounded man uttered an agonized cry and fell flat on his face. The mur-derers immediately fled through the lane from which they had emerged, and both escaped. At 7:30 o'clock it was announced that the bullet had entered the stomach; that there was no outward bleeding, and that the physicians believe that M. Labori will die from the wound.

A later story has it that M. Labori was shot in the temple by a man who fired a revolver at him outside the court, and that the miscreant was ar-

DREYFUS FACES MERCIER. Dreyfus listened to Gen. Mercier's pitiless arraignment on Saturday morning until he approached the end of his deposition, with sphinx-like rigdity of features, but watching Mercier like a cat watching a mouse. And when at last his feeling obtained the mastery and he spring to his feet, faced his accuser, man to man, one ap-preciated the depth of his previously suppressed emotions, and Mercler, who started, had jumped to his feet at the ringing sound of Dreyfus' voice, from the chair in which he was seated while giving his evidence, recoiled from the terrible look Dreyfus threw at him, and stood aghast, wondering whether the prisoner was going to spring upon him. Col. Jouaust and the other members of the court-martial had in the meantime risen and seized the two men, while the court rang with the cheers of the spectators.

Though the general was cheered by the crowd outside the court, none of them had witnessed the scene in court or listened to Mercier's weak brief. Moreover, the inhabitants of Rennes have always been anti-Dreyfusards. Counter-shouts of "Vive Republique!"

and "Vice la Justice!" were raised by those leaving the court room, but the gendarmes quickly cleared the streets on both sides and dispersed the crowd

MERCIER'S LITTLE GAME. At the outset of Gen. Mercler's testimony he prepared the court for a war scare, by declaring that the Emperor of Germany personally took an active part in organizing espionage, and then later, when he defended his action in communicating the secret dossier to the court-martial of 1894, he said: "I no longer had reason to keep silent, and am going to accomplish what I considered my duty. In 1894 the diplomatic situation was perilous. M. Hanotaux (then minister of foreign affairs) has indicated this. M. Casimir-Perier has spoken before the criminal chamber about the unusual steps taken by Count Von Munster. He also exposed the somewhat unusual way that he could double himself into an official personage and a private personage, later giving Count Von Munster information, which was at first refused him But M. Casimir-Perier amended his deposition, saying he had not said that the same day he, M. Dupuy and myself remained from 8 in the evening to 11:30 in his private office at the Elysee. awaiting the result of telegraphic communications between the emperor of Germany and Count Von Munster. REVULSION OF FEELING. Until now the chances were 10 to 1 against Capt. Dreyfus' acquittal. Today the insanity of Gen. Mercler's evi-dence has reversed the odds, For the first time the president of the court returned Dreyfus' salute. Dreyfus' final outburst against Mercier converted half of those persons in the courtroom, who still believed in the prisoner's culpability. Ex-Premier Perier's fixed purpose appeared to be to clear the prisoner. There is great excitement in Rennes. A Nationalist meeting was to have been held, but owing to the grave events in Paris-the arrest of Paul Deroulede, Marcel-Habert and Georges Thiebaud-it was postponed. RIOTING IN PARIS. A crowd rushed through the streets and hooted at all well-known Dryfusards, whom they recognized. Over 50 persons have been arrested here. Free fighting has been indulged in, and numerous persons have been injured. M. Casimir-Perier was hissed on passing through the principal square of the town. As a result of the noisy incidents at the sitting of the court today, three duels are to be fought tomorrow between journalists. One man who shouted "Vive la Armee" afternoon was so badly beaten that he is expected to die. A Russian Jew, who insulted Gen. Mercier in open court to-day, had a standing fight with a

RIOTING AT LONDONDERRY. Londonderry, Aug. 14.-The Protestant celebration of the anniversary of Derry, besieged by James the Second's army in 1689, led to riotous scenes here yesterday. An excursion party com-posed of 400 members of a 98 club ar-rived from Belfast, but the police refused to allow the excursionists to enter the city. The appearance of a Nationalist band to meet the party caused disorders and excited stone throwing. The mob attacked the police. Finally the riot act was read and the mayor of Londonderry called out the garrison. Eight constables were seriously injured. The rioting was renewed this evening on the departure of the excursionists, in the vicinity of the railway station. The police made repeated baton charges, and several persons were injured.

TOO TEDIOUS. The London Times, in an editorial on the Venezuela boundary arbitration, complains that the proceedings are unnecessarily protracted, and expresses fear that the example thus set will "operate to prejudice the arbitral mode of settling difficulties." It says: "Unfortunately, there is a too common drawback to international references. Witness also the Delagoa and Rering Sea cases. If the system is not to break down, tribunals must exercise a free hand in discouraging the prodigies of physical energy in which modern advocates are too prone to indulge."

WITNESSES OF THE DEED. Rennes, Aug. 14.-Only two or three laborers going to work saw the crime committed. The spot was well chosen as the murderers could not be seen by

M. Labori until they rushed out upon their victim. One of the laborers, named Paloux, who witnessed the shooting, said: "As I was passing along the road I saw a tall man walking quickly in the direcmen emerged from a rural path enter-M. LABORI'S PRESENCE OF MIND. M. Labori, on falling, retained presence of mind enough to arrange his dark morocco wallet, in which he carried his papers, under his head for a pillow until his wife arrived, when he half raised himself and dropped his head in her lap. A number of laborers who were unloading a barge of stone beside the river, heard the shouts of "Murder!" "Stop him!" raised by the pursuers, and one of them placed himself in the way of the murderer, who, covering him with a revolver, shouted, "Let me pass. I have shot Dreyfus!" The man drew aside, and allowed the assassin to proceed. ESCAPE OF THE ASSASSIN. After shooting the lawver, the murderer ran across the fields until he reached the railroad. He crossed the embankment and followed the track until he arrived at the level crossing. A train was just arriving at full speed, and the murderer dashed across the line in front of the train, and ward the woods in the direction of the village of Chantepie, where he was lost

Col. Picquart and his brother-in-law, M. Gast, who, it appeared, from later reports, accompanied M. Labori on his way to the Lycee, pursued the murderer for some distance. But as they were both heavy men they were unable to continue the pursuit, and so returned to the side of the wounded man, leaving the chase for the murderer to a number of laborers and peasants.

LABORI'S WIFE AT HIS SIDE. Madame Labori, wife of the wounded lawyer, was promptly notified of the crime, and rushed to her husband's side. She found him with his head on the sidewalk and his body on the roadway. She threw herself by his side, and took his head in her lap, and fanned it with a paper fan, which she had evidently snatched up as she left the house.

M. Labori was perfectly still. Not a groan came from his lips, as his head rested in the lap of his wife, who, by the way, is an American. She fanned him with her right hand, she caressed him with her left, and gazed lovingly on his upturned face. He tried to smile back the tears which glistened in his wife's eyes, and she, mastering feelings, heroically did everything possible to ease her husband's agony. It is reported that the famous lawyer said, as he lay wounded on the ground: "I may die from this, but Dreyfus is LABORI IN GREAT SUFFERING. Rennes, Aug. 14.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon M. Labori was suffering great agony, and the doctors, who had left the house, were hurrledly summoned to attend the patient. Col. Jouaust called after the close of the session of the court-martial, and asked to see M. Labori. He expressed his deep regret at the occurrence.

A Thief Gets in His Work at the Seven Day Adventist Camp on the Old Chapter House Grounds.

On Saturday night a thief visited the bleeping tent of Prof. and Mrs. Simpon, who are among the leaders of the Seventh-Day Adventists, encamped on the old Chapter House grounds. The thief apparently knew the arrangements of the tent, as he put his hand through an opening, and took a skirt from its peg, hanging from the roof of the tent. He then went through the pocket of the garment, and extracted $33 in cash and left the skirt on the ground and decamped. The police have the matter in hand, but there is no clew as yet.

Locomotives Being Adapted for the Burning of Coke-The Matter of Beautifying Railway Stations.

The big railroads keep close watch on the results of advertising, and many have reached the conclusion that the daily newspaper is the best advertising medium. A rate war, involving the east-bound roads from St. Louis and those from the Missouri River is in progress. Flour rates are being cut.

A radical change is being made in the appearance of the baggage, mail and express cars on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The platform and hoods are being removed to increase the element of safety and save weight. The favorite riding place of tramps is also eliminated when the platforms are removed.

Detroit ticket sellers were very busy during the last days of the week selling excursion tickets to Boston-bound wheelmen The Grand Trunk had very heavy excursions to Niagara Falls, Toronto, Alexandria Bay and Montreal.

It is reported that the new name for the Consolidated Chicago and West Michigan, Flint and Pere Marquette, and Detroit Grand Rapids and Western will be the Detroit and Pere Marquette. Chicago railroad men criticise the new name because it does not include Chicago.

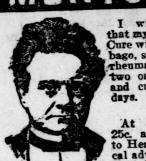

Western roads have established a new rate of one fare for the round trip for state fairs throughout western territory. For other exhibitions, such as the Milwaukee Industrial Exposition, the St. Louis Exposition, the Kansas City horse show, and the St. Louis farcy horses how, a rate of one fare and a third has been agreed

The object of the Boston and Maine Road is not only, or primarily, to save what it pays for fires set by sparks, but to attract the traveling public. "Through the oiling of our roadbed and the burning of coke we will be able to give a passenger service as clean as electric roads." In an article on the beautifying of railroad stations by the use of flowers, the Chicago Post says: "In the matter of planting elaborate floral pieces and in the distribution of flowers on trains the Michigan Central Railroad is not only the pioneer, but also the leader at the present day. Its four green-houses at Niles, Mich., are perhaps the most extensive of any maintained by a railroad in the United About ten acres are devoted to landscape gardening. The earliest of these houses was in operation at the close of the '70's. The fact that many blooms went to waste resulted in a pleasant custom, which has brought this line no little fame. As the stock of plants in this greenhouse developed the crop of wasted blossoms increased, and in 1883 the surplus became so great that the thrifty old Scotch gardener, who could not endure seeing the flowers waste their fragrance in the beds of the house, suggested that bouquets be distributed among the women and children on the trains stopping at that station. This is now done both at Niles and Ypsilanti, and at the former point the little daughter of the gardener frequently makes the distribution. was suggested that little girls in uniform be employed to discharge this pleasant task, but the fear that some mishap might befall one of them in performing this service has prevented the management of the road from following this plan. Each bouquet bears a card of compliment, and 70,000 of these were used one year. Hundreds of letters are annually written to the management expressing enthusiastic appreciation of this free distribution of floral compliments. One of these letters recently came from Governor Roosevelt. The general tenor of the communications may be gathered from the following selection from a letter: 'When we reached the station at Niles we were worn out and tired by our long journey, and as the flower-bearer passed I scented the sweetness and reached out to buy a bouquet. To my utmost surprise I read on the card the word "Compliments." My own pleasure was duplicated in every face; We all forgot we were tired, and the odor of the flowers seemed like a breezy whift from far-away California, and it clung about me all the day."

Billings, Mont., Aug. 14.-Five hundred horses belonging to Powell Bros., of Cooley City, Wash., consigned to South Omaha, were unloaded for transfer to the Burlington and Missouri line. At 5 o'clock mext day they began dy-ing by wholesale, and at 8 o'clock at night 257 had succumbed. The rest were following as fast as they could keel over. There were many fine animals among the number and the loss will reach many thousand dollars.

The cause of death is a mystery. Many believe the horses were poisoned before leaving this point, while others say that they drank too much water on being unloaded.

Rev. Dr. McCartney is medical superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, West China medical mission, at Chung King, and Mrs. McCartney is matron of the hospital. The doctor went to China to engage in the work went to China to engage in the work some nine years ago, and this is the first time that he has left his work during that time. He was for a considerable period surgeon to the Imperial Government of China. The journey from Chung King to London, Ont., is about 10,700 miles, 600 of which is traveled in native tow-hears, pulled by eled in native tow-boats, pulled by mules driven by coolies. The doctor has with him a large assortment of Chinese articles of various descriptions, which were shown and explained to the visitors. Among these articles were chop-sticks, tiger and leopard skins, beauti-ful silk draperies, door drapes, ladies' shoes and slippers, chinaware, Chinese views, carved spectacle cases, silks of all colors, and many other things. The ladies' shoes attracted much attention, being only about two inches in length. The old china, mostly terra-cotta ware, was very costly and beautiful. Keys and padiocks of a curious shape were also part of the collection. A Chinese razor is a most curious affair, but quite effective. It only costs 3 cents, and the barbers in China shave a man for 1 cent. Dr. McCartney, who has been shaved three times a week by a Chinese barber, says they are in every respect as good as the American bar-

The rick silk draperies, of which the doctor he about 700 yards, are nearly all made by the men.
Chung King is a place of 350,000 inhabitants. Its chief exports are silk, opium and medicines. Shark fin and birds' nest soup are the most costly delicacies in China. The chief amuse-ment of the people is to fly kites. Men, women and boys employ their spare hours at this pastime.

The continuous rioting in China has considerably disturbed the work at the mission; but in spite of this it has gone on increasing year by year, and a women's hospital is now about to be started. Chung King will then be as well-equipped with hospitals and dispensaries as any city in China. The West China medical mission is now almost entirely self-supporting. The doctor told a graphic story of how the medical mission got a footing in Kiang Peh. It is as follows:

"The eastern part of Szechwan was in a continuous state of riot from March, 1898, until the beginning of 1899. The trouble commenced in Kiang Peh, and was brought on by our persistent efforts to rent a place for dispensary and street chapel. "We had made weekly visits over there for over six years, and as we never entered any difficulty, espenever en cially during the past five years, we thought the time had come when we might think about renting, and more fully establish our work in that city. In November, 1897, we entered into negotiations for the rent of a small shop front, but no sooner did the gentry find out that we had rented than they caused the house to be torn down. We were thus foiled in our efforts until March, 1899, when a Kiang Peh man, who was friendly, came to me saying that he would rent a place and then relet to me, which is lawful according to Chinese law. The gentry had banded themselves together and had threatened any leadlord who rented to a for-eigner. The punishment for such a crime was, the building to be torn down, and the property 'chong-kong,' turned over to the city. The people had also been ordered by the said gentry, as a precaution, not to let to any Chinaman unless he be a known resident of Kiang Peh. When this friend offered to rent in his own name and offered to rent in his own name and sublet to us, we took advantage of the opportunity, as it offered the only chance of getting a place. The place was soon rented, and the first eve after two of my student—Wang Shin-guay and Tang Hsi-i—went over to occupy the building as a precaution against its being torn down. That night, about 2 o'clock in the morning, a mob armed 2 o'clock in the morning, a mob, armed with clubs and anything they could lay their hands on, broke in the front and dragged the two boys out, yelling like demons all the time, to kill them. "wang soon escaped and made his way outside the city. The rabble, after beating Tang, strangled him and threw his dead body over the city wall, where we found it the next morning. After the murder the city was in an uproar for about a month. The officials would not let me cross the river, as the people threatened to kill me the first chance "After eight months of waiting the

"Tang Hsi-i was a man 25 years of age, loved by all who knew him. He had been a medical student for two years, and gave promise of great usefulness in the future. He was a steward in the church, and was developing as an exceptionally good speaker and Christian worker. He had preached in the hospital several times with great acceptability. He, together with all our native church, was greatly interested in the opening of Kiang Peh, and finally, when the building was rented, he was one of the valunteers to go and was one of the volunteers to go and occupy the premises. The night he crossed the river he was unusually happy. He bore his cross not because he had to, but because he wanted, and took pleasure in it. He manifested no fear in what might happen, and made fun of his companion when he lay down with his clothes on. When the mob attacked the place he made no resistance, and fell an easy prey to their fury. He was in the truest sense of the word a martyr, and gave his life that Kiang Peh might be opened. IT'S LONDON'S PENNANT. No more during the year 1899 wil citizens witness a Canadian League many expected it would be, after the Hamilton meeting of Monday last. Dispatches had been sent out, and appeared in some of the papers on Saturday afternoon that the games on Saturday would be the last. The local management knew the intention, and although not announced, the disbandment had become general news. The game on Saturday was of a reckiess sort, and the spectators present the players, especially the visitors. WIND-UP AT HAMILTON. Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 14.—The con-cluding game of the short-ended Canadian League season here Saturday was a burlesque. Recent sales of men had reduced the Hamilton team to eight men, and Jennings, a relic of the semi-professional crop of 1878, played center field, while Pitcher McCann was on first base, and Pitcher Bradford in right field. Hagerman was hammered unmercifully, and in the ninth, he did not try to pitch. Score:

The third series of Canadian League is ever furnished. Away backin'77 and '78 London gained the right to recognition in the baseball world by playing some of the hardest-fought and longest games of ball on record. Several of the leading players in the country made their reputations in London. Take, for instance, Fred Goldsmith, Powers, Hornung, Barnes and Doescher. During one year, two of the medals given by the New York Clipper to the best players in each position were won by Doescher and Hornung.

As year after year rolled on, amateur, he season.
Seiver pitched the closing game, and, clubs appeared on the London diamond, like Cooper in the opening game, he won | but not until now has a club even apit easily. Not once was the game in proached the wonderful record made by jeopardy, and before it was half over the club of 1899. When the season of it became uninteresting. Several ludiwould be the correct thing to give Peter really laughable. Black again at-temped to cover right. He dismally for 1899. This step was undertaken, and it will never be regretted, although cle, danced a two-step, waltzed across the management have not profited financially, according to the quality of baseball put up. The past winter was It was so laughable that all the not wasted by Lohman, and early in the spring when he arrived here, the men he had engaged were announced. Quietly seated in The Advertiser editorial rooms last April, Lohman gave the individual history of his men, and said he crowd when Cooper muffed a fly in the had a team that would give Londoners the best ball ever played here. The words were truthfully uttered, as the sequel shows.

On the London grounds 45 championship games have been played. Only two games were lost, one drawn, with Seiver's shoots. Carey's three-base hit forty-two victories. Phenomenal! Some have asked. "Why so many victories on the home grounds?" the outside press have said that it was due to grounds. Spectators will not bear this out, although in a measure it has helped the club. But to Peter Lohman becis' order, as they had to leave on the longs the credit of placing the city before the baseball world in such an enviable light. He promoted harmony, friendship and esteem among his team, who worked faithfully at his command. No petty jealousies have existed, and his efforts have been well rewarded. He has used excellent discretion in his management, and few, if any, mistakes have marred his control. His players have respected him, and will not forget when the three triples were made, and Good team work, spirited base-run-Babbit was caught at third endeavoring ning and well-judged coaching, are the principal causes for the many victories. The team has virtually remained intact since the opening. Three times has London captured the pennant this year, and they have almost continually

> The season was closed at the request of Hamilton, backed by Guelph. The Advertiser on Friday stated that the object of the Hamilton meeting was to get permission from President Young to close the season early. Nick Young has evidently sanctioned the request, and Hamilton is jubilant. The Hamilton officials have been urging this disbandment for some weeks past. Because their team have been tail-enders nearly all season, they have been "quitters." Hamilton had been in the lead their shouts of disapproval of this action would have been long and loud.

The season was to close on Sept. 12. The Londons will not disband until Sept. 15. Exhibition games will be played, and, if possible, the club may make a Michigan trip, if guarantees can be secured. The team will all be reserved, although one or two of the men may be drafted. Babbit will likely leave for the coast in a few days at his own request.

To President W. J. Reid and Secretary Bert Sheere congratulations are extended. They have at all times been earnest and indefatigable in their efforts to give the sporting public the best that could be secured.

1900 has been paid. Each club in the league is required to pay the salaries of all the players it wants to reserve up to the date mentioned above.

Of the four clubs London was the only one which wanted to continue playing. The principal object of the other three was to get protection for next year, and this has been done.

The season has not been a good one.

A mistake was made at the outset

A mistake was made at the outset in inducing Stratford to enter, and in allowing the club to go in without putting up any guarantee deposit. The failure of the St. Thomas club to meet its financial obligations was the next trouble, and the changes necessary gave the league an unstable reputation and the public lost confidence in it. That meant small attendance and loss, and an early wind-up was the wisest thing under the circumstances.

London is to be congratulated on the work of its team this year. It has practically been first all the time, and has made a wonderful record in its home games. It has well earned the championship. The management of Pete Lohman, under the veteran hand of Bert Sheere, has been most and Yeager.
praiseworthy. Up to three weeks ago Hamilton was always near the top, but a killing slump then set in. Guelph has had a hard pull for some weeks, but Woodstock is now more enthusiastic than ever. There is talk of a club under new management in St. Thomas next year, and one in Brantford.

LOHMAN'S ADVICE.

At the close of Saturday's game the dons gathered in their dressingrooms and were given instructions by Manager Lohman regarding the intention of the management for the balance of the season. He stated that the club would be kept together until Sept. 15, and they could not look upon the dis-bandment as a relaxation of rules and regulations. They were still liable to fine and suspension, and he expected every member of the club to continue to carry out his wishes, as they had during the entire season. something creditable to the team and to Manager Lohman to state that not one cent of fines has been imposed upon the team by the local management.

EASTERN TEAM PLAYS GOOD BALL.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 14.-President P. T. Powers, of the Eastern League, was in town Saturday, and saw the game between Montreal and the local team. He expressed himself as highly satisfied with the work of the locals and added that every team in the Eastern League was playing great ball. When asked as to the rumor that his visit to this city was to investigate the alleged rowdyism of some of the Rochester players, Mr. Powers said that such was not the object of his visit. In reference to the question about the Toronto game, Mr. Powers said that he had telegraphed the Canadian management that the extra game must not be played, and if anyone was to be penalized for the alleged offense it would be the Toronto team. He thought that the game would be eventually counted for Rochester in the next series to be played with the Canadian team, could make no definite statement until after a meeting of the league directors

Berlin, Aug. 14.—Emperor William has decided to offer another gold cup for a Dover-Heligoland race in 1900, with the important modification that the limit of tonnage for competing yachts shall be fixed at a minimum of 80 instead of 50 tons. The German emperor's yacht Meteor secured another cup at Ryde on Friday, thus winning with the greatest ease every event she has contested since she left Kiel. Her remarkable success is attributed to a great extent to the light weather that has prevailed; but regrets are keener than ever

London, Aug. 14.-Wnile no decisive news has yet been received from Pretoria, it is evident that President Kruger and Mr. Chamberlain are making slow approaches and will ultimately meet after a series of attacks. The British proposal for a joint inquiry into the effects of the franchise law may not be accepted in set terms, but the Boers will either supply full information and accept hints from Sir Alfred Milner or else a new scheme for enabrepresentation will be produced and enacted. Today's dispatches point to the latter alternative; but a specific settlement of chief questions at issue is almost a foregone conclusion. President Kruger's mertia causes delay, but he has met his match in keenness and patience. Mr. Chamberlain knows what he wants, and is DETERMINED TO HAVE IT. Military preparations continue, fresh relays of men and material of war going out to the Cape and Natal, but no offensive display is made of this menace of active campaign work. Barely enough is done to emphasize the fact that moral coercion is persistent and inflexible. Mr. Chamberlain has played his game adroitly throughout this week. He has brought the Queen into position and called check in the speech from the throne. There cannot be a drawn game when the ministry is united, the opposition silent, and the nation bent upon having the white community in the goldfields emancipated without sham or humbug.

BAD SIGNS.

Another correspondent cables: When Mr. Chamberlain proposed a joint inquiry, the bother was looked upon as settled, but the report that the Transvaal Government had refused to join in such an inquiry has created not only excitement, but in-tense surprise. Even those papers which have shown themselves controlled by the coolest heads, are betraying a loss of patience and tem-per. Even those papers which have been hot and strong against the government are now abusing President Kruger and his foolishness. There is no mistaking the bad signs. There is no mistaking the feeling and temper of the House of Commons before it who were taken by surprise, were closed its session on Wednesday. There no mistaking the meaning of hastening the embarkation of troops for the Cape. People feel the crisis has reached its height. Excitement is keen. Every bit of news from South Africa is eagerly read and discussed everywhere. The impatience of the populace is evident, and notwithstand-ing all that has been said to the contrary, notwithstanding that statesmen have been fighting their best to preserve peace, there is not the least doubt so bitter is the public feeling against the Boers—that a declaration of war would be hailed with enthusi-This is what the silly season has brought by ear. What the Londoners are calling the Boer backdown is scheduled for today, when a great open-air meeting of Boers will be held to pray for peace and after-wards appeal to President Kruger to make some more concessions for sake of peace. Whether a pacific solution will begin is doubtful, but these are the lines along which it is looked

MUST BE SETTLED SOON. It is but a short step from the momentous reference to the Transvaal in the Queen's speech at the prorogation of parliament and the final statement in the House of Commons of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the last governmental utterance of the session, to a declaration of war, and it cannot now be long be-fore the issue is known. When a united cabinet, speaking through the mouth of the sovereign, declares the position of the Queen's subjects in the South African Republic "is inconsistent with the promise of equal treatment whereon my grant of internal independence to that republic was founded, and the unrest caused thereby is a constant source of danger to the peace and prosperity of my dominions in South Africa," it needs no soothsayer to explain that the ministers therein explicitly declared the Transvaal must submit to demands made in the Queen's name or accept the suggestion of Mr. Michael Davitt and Mr. O'Conner, and others, that the ministers are merely conducting a great game of bluff, and it may be taken for granted that, failing the acquiescence of President Kruger to the British demands, they mean to compel acquiescence at the point of

The Irish element in parliament, some persons say, continues its best efforts embarrass the government's negotiations in regard to the Transvaal. The United League, at a meeting held In South Mayo last week, after a speech by Mr. Michael Davitt, passed resolutions of sympathy with the Transvaal "in its courageous oppoition to the dishonest attacks of Rand apitalists and their allies in the Brit-

THE KAFFIRS. It is two months since the first batch of so-called special service officers were sent to South Africa, and it was generally supposed at that time that they were primarily intended to fight the Boers. Now it transpires that their mission was to organize the white colonists throughout South Africa to deal with a Kaffir rebellion, which is expected to be one of the arst results of a war between England and the Transvaal, and what is more serious still, to cope with a pos-sible insurrection of the Dutch sympathizers with the Boers within the British borders. It is probable that one of the carliest complications in the tangled situation will be a protest from the Cape Government against COMPLICATIONS. The special correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette, which is extremely anti-Kruger, cables from Cape Town, admitting that "a new phase is added to the situation by the action of the English and Scotch residents, who have instituted a boycott on all Irishmen on the ground that they doubt the Irishmen's loyalty to the British Govern-I learn from a trustworthy source that the Cape Colony contains a large proportion of English who side with the Afrikanders. Everywhere, indeed, the strongest reasons accumulate why the British soldiers should not fire the first shot, and for different reasons it is to the Transvaal's interest, even if it means to fight against British encroachment to postpone the date of rupture." The Times' correspondent in Pretoria cables that the reason" the Boer Government is delaying as much as possible is in order that there may be time for the grass to grow, "for the summer rains will help the Boers, give grass for their horses and at the same time impede the British wagons."

THE LEDA INCIDENT. The shooting of a French fisherman by the British torpedo boat Leda for refusing to surrender when caught fishing within the British limit, is exciting violent animosity against the large British colony in Boulogne, whence the fishing vessel hailed. An organized attack was made on several Englishmen returning from the Casino in Boulogne last night, and was joined in by the soldiers. The Englishmen, roughly handled. English visitors, who are the principal source of livelihood of Boulogne and learned for livelihood large numbers despite the assurances of the authorities that further disturbances will be guarded against. The incident has aroused a bitter anti-English feeling along the French Atlantic coast, where, it is estimated, 200,000 English visitors are now staying. Comments of the French official press are dignified, but the boulevard organs are taking up an inflammatory strain.

THE IRISH PARTY.

The Irish parliamentary organization had been a dead letter throughout the session of parliament just closed, scarcely a dozen of the members attending regularly. Their hands have of the Hohenzollerns, measuring a trifle been weakened by dissensions and the collapse of all popular organization in Ireland. Dillon, T. P. O'Connor, Edward Blake and Davitt were the only leaders who attempted seriously to promote the Irish cause in parliament during the session, and there is no prospect of any better showing for Ireland in the British House of Commons unless a general election next or the succeeding year results in returning once more a united party. The only national organization now existing in Ireland, outside of Redmond's independent league, which has only a few branches outside of Dublin, is William O'Brien's United Irish League, which he is pushing vigorously, and at the present rate of progress it will be a ruling factor in selecting the new party candidates at the general election. O'Brien will not return to parliament himself, but will support Dillon for leader. There has not been even a titular leader in the house since Dillon resigned, which is the best evidence of the apathy and disorganization prevailing in the Irish parliamentary party, as now constituted.

LADY CHURCHILL. The engagement of Lady Randolph Churchill to young Lieut. G. M. Cornwallis-West, brother of the Princess of Pless, is meeting with the most violent opposition. The Marlborough family is quite furious at her, while Lieut. Cornwallis-West's family is denying the engagement everywhere, and has cut Lady Randolph Churchill dead. All influence is being brought to bear in the matter. The Prince of Wales even went to see the Cornwallis-Wests, especially to talk it over, and he also spoke to Lady Randolph Churchill on the subject; but, nevertheless, the engagement has not yet been broken off. THE CZAREWITCH'S MORGAN-ATIC SONS.

A letter received here from St. Petersburg, discloses the fact that the late Czarewitch, Grand Duke George, who died suddenly at Abbas Tuman, in the Caucasus, July 10, had four sons by a morganatic marriage with a weman who had been employed as a telegraphic clerk, though she was the descendant of a royal Caucasian house. According to the letter, Czar Alexander III., father of Grand Duke George, hearing of the marriage, said: "One must not deny a dying man anything." Even then it was thought the disease from which the Czarewitch was suffering was incurable. In conclusion the letter says that possibly the present Czar will make his morganatic nephews counts.

to talk over the foreign policy of the two empires, and the further fact that Emperor Francis Joseph in passing through Aussee did not find time to get off the railroad train to welcome the German chancellor, but contented himself with hurriedly greeting the chancellor from the car, and chatting with him only seven minutes, are regarded in political circles here as a proof that the relations between Germany and Austro-Hungary, despite the continu-ing of the nominal alliance, have ceas-ed to be really intimate. Newspaper comment and popular feeling through-out Germany have been for some time MOST BITTER, because of the growing ascendancy in Austria-Hungary. It is asserted that Emperor William shares this view since the persecution of the German element has become a part of the settled system. A large and influential portion of the press has reiterated these sentiments, and the government organs do not confirm or deny the above statements. Several facts have come to the surface which tend in the direction indicated. Thus, the Prussian Government has forbidden the lengthy stay, especially in the frontier districts, of Czechs and other Austrian Slavs. The Austrian press protests against the measure. The Sazon ministry of the interior has issued a decree that all communications sent to Hungary must bear only the German names of towns to which they are sent. To this the Hungarian press strongly demurs, and is also much stirred up over the sending of Emperor William's court

THE SAMOAN QUESTION.

Samoa is still occupying a good deal of attention, and the German press is full of comment, the bulk of the criticism, however, being directed against Britain. The Kreuz Zeitung says: "Samoa per se is not an object of sufficient importance for Germany to make it a crucial point of her policy, but it is an object whereby she can measure how far political solidarity is advisable with England."

The mouthpiece of the agrarians, the Deutsche Tages Zeitung, in a bitter editorial, charges both England and the United States with showing systematic animosity towards Germany in the Samoan muddle from beginning to end, attacks the foreign office for yielding every point to these powers, and says it would have been wiser to renounce from the start all claims to Samoa, and to have insisted on equivalents elsewhere. The Cologne Gazette, however, in an inspired article, takes these faultfinders severely to task, and ridicules the noseverely to task, and ridicules the notion that Germany is making enemies of all the powers over every trifling Blouses, regular price $3.75 each; of all the powers over every trifling clusion of commercial treaties-and for their own selfish ends.

From semi-official reports it appears that the German claims for property destroyed in Samoa during the troubles are not nearly so large as hitherto believed, namely, 3,000,000 marks.

The recent utterances of Baron von Stengel, of the Munich University, who was second in rank in Germany's delegation at the peace conference, regarding The Hague gathering, are almost unanimously disapproved in Germany. The National Zeitung says Baron von Stengel's private views are his own, and must not be confounded with th views of the government.

IMPROVED FRANCO-GERMAN RE-LATIONS.

A clear sign of the improved Franco-German relations is found in the fact that a commission of German and French army officers is now engaged in the geodetical measurements of the frontier, for the purpose of bringing the official measurement of both countries into complete accord. Prince Frederick Henry, eldest son of the Prince Regent of Brunswick, has attained his majority. He is the tallest over 6 feet 3 inches. A duel between two officers of the Tenth Uhlan Regiment, Count Solms and Count Shulenburg, was fought last and bunting. week near Konitz, Prussia. Count

Solms was mortally shot in the abdomen. The motive for the duel was jealousy. Both participants were among the emperor's favorites. DAMAGES BY HAIL.

Throughout the week hail and light ning have done great damage to life and property, especially in East Prussia, the Rhine Province and Wurtemburg. Lightning destroyed nearly every house in Oora, in the Province of Posen Near Thorn, West Prussia, an entire forest was burned, and at Oberklinge three bricklayers were killed. In the Berlin suburb of Wendischbuchholz a party of excursionists were struck by lightning, and two of them were killed. Near Myslowitz hail destroyed the entire crop, and great damage was done by hail at Seedorf, Fulda, Rheldt and Ilmenau. The crops were destroyed also at Starolenka, Gluschin and Tulce, OOM PAUL WAITING. President Kruger still seems to be waiting on events. The latest telegrams are more assuring, but nothing decisive is known as to whether Mr. Chamberlain's proposal for a joint inquiry will be accepted. The fact that the semiofficial German papers are beginning to hint pretty plainly that the Transvaal can expect no help from Germany may combine with the British Government's steady preparations for war to hasten a satisfactory settlement. In any case, no military movements would be made until October.

A rumor is current that Great Britain has secured a concession from Portugal providing that in the event of hostilities in South Africa, Great Britain would be permitted to land troops at Delagoa Bay and march them into the Transvaal. This rumor, however, lacks confirmation, and is generally discredited.

COPYRIGHT IN SPEECHES. The decision of Hon. Sir Ford North, judge of the chancery division of the high courts of justice, investing copyright in speeches in reporters, has provoked an unusual flood of comment, generally adverse, as likely to render still more complicated the vexed ques-tion of copyrights. There is little doubt that the decision will be appealed against, as legal opinion by no means universally supports Judge North's judgment.

THE FRENCH PLOTTERS

Telegrams Discovered That Led To Their Arrest.

M. Querin Still Holds the Fort-Serious Consequences Likely to Follow

Paris, Aug. 14.—The arrest of Paul Deroulede, rather of the League of Patriots, and a number of members of the Anti-Semite and Patriotic Leagues, on Saturday, is the sensation of the day in Paris. M. Querin, armed with revolvers and knives, at last accounts was holding possession of his apart-ments, the headquarters of the Anti-Semite League, to which entrance is only possible after running the gauntlet of a strong guard of Anti-Semites. It appears that the officials unearthed telegrams sent by the Duke of Orleans from Brussels at the time of President Faure's funeral, the first "All our men are ready." saving: The second telegram was dispatched the following day, saying: "It is useless to come."

The attempts at an insurrection against the government had in the meantime failed. Later, during the trial of M. Deroulede, traces were discovered of a fresh plot and of consultations at which the question was discussed whether the attempt should be made to change the form of government before or after the Rennes court-martial. The government thereupon, judging that the time for action had arrived, ordered a number of arrests to be made, all of which apparently have not yet been effected. The military of the interior declines to give the names of the prominent persons already captured or who are to be taken into custody.

According to rumors current in official circles the affair is likely to produce serious results. It is stated that the government possesses precise and detailed instructions from the Duc d'Orleans to his agents. It is pointed out that when the arrest of Deroulede was made no outsiders knew that the partisans of the Duc d'Orleans were mixed up in the affair. Curiously enough Prince Victor Bonaparte has been closely watched by the Orleanists for several months, they fearing that he might disturb their schemes.

A police commissary called at 4 a.m. at the residence of M. Thiebault, on adjoining house. The police have seized the Brapeau (newspaper) office. The house of Andre de Buffet, representative of the Duke of Orleans, and vice-president of the Young Royalist League, was searched and a number of papers were seized. Buffet was arrested at Feiguier, on the frontier, as he was about to cross into Bel-M. Mailhard, of the Petit Parisian staff, has been arrested on a charge of urging soldiers to plebiscite on the form of government. The police have placed seals on the doors of Jules Cuerin's residence, in which he still defles them. At Nancy a man named Cisson was arrested on a charge of espionage, and has been condemned to three years' imprisonment, 500 francs fine and to be deprived of civil rights for a decade. Of the seventeen warrants of arrests issued only fourteen were executed. CHILD MARRIAGE

Combined Ages of Bride and Groom 28-Secured a License-Are Now Under Arrest.

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 14.—Walter Bas-tedo, aged 15, and Myrtle Demain, aged 13, were arrested Saturday afternoon, and are now in jail. On Monday they came here supposedly to attend the circus. Bastedo's father hav-ing given him 75 cents for that pur-Instead of seeing the circus, Bastedo went to the county clerk's office and took out a marriage license, giving his age as 20 and that of the girl as 18. They then proceeded to the office of Justice of the Peace Linabury, where they were married.

Both are residents of Seymour Lake, and they were arrested on complaint of Bastedo's father. The girl lived with a Mrs. Seeley, her father and mother being divorced and her mother having married again. Bastedo and she had been acquainted three weeks only.

Pimples And Boils.

The nasty little pimples that come on the face and mar the beauty, as well as the painful boils which often cause so much suffering, are simply evidences of the bad blood within coming to the surface. When you take a bottle or two of Burdock Blood Bitters these all disappear, because the impurities which caused them are completely removed from the system by the powerful blood purifying properties of B.B.B.

Miss Agnes Bowman, Perry Station, Ont., writes: "I have been a sufferer from boils and pimples on my neck and face for many years. Last December I began taking Burdock Blood Bitters, and after finishing two bottles they all disappeared and have not bothered me since."

ALLIGATOR LOOSE IN CENTRAL PARK

Housemaids, Thinking It Is a Sea Serpent, Badly Frightened.

New York, Aug. 14.-Keeper Snyder, who has charge of the elephants in the Central Park Menagerie, has now been assigned to the sea serpent department of the place. Superintendent Smith sent Snyder to the Lohen-grin Swan Lake, at the south end of the park, to catch what was reported to him to be a derelict sea serpent. The animal was seen crawling out of the lake on to the lawn. Its mouth was open, and some of the nurses said that it was steering in the direction of a very plump little boy, who was making mud pies near the water's edge. In a moment he was grabbed by the nearest nurse. Then all the other nurses seized their charges and ran towards the arsenal, where they found Mr. Smith. "It's a sea serpent, sure!" cried one of he nurses. "It was spitting fire out of its face," screamed another, "and I believe it lives on babies."

To appease the girls, Mr. Smith sent for Mr. Snyder. "See here, Snyder," he said, "I want you to go down to the lake and catch that sea serpent that's scaring all the children." Snyder grumbled a little, because he had made arrangements to give one of his elephants an oil polish in the afternoon, but the sea serpent question was paramount, and he went down to the lake with a fishing line baited with a piece of bacon. Just as he reached the lake he saw the "sea serpent." It was an alligator three feet long, which had lived in the lake for many weeks. It was sitting on the bank chewing a green apple thrown to it by one of the children. Snyder managed to get between the wild beast and the water. He tried to wind his fish line about its body, but the creature easily dodged him and got into the lake. The treacherous reptile has already eaten five ducks and several pickerel belonging to the park commissioners. If captured alive it will be added to the population of the alligator pen, near the hippopotamus house.

LIFE SAVED.-Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12 .- A general covering movement by shorts marked trading in wheat again today, and resulted in irregular advances, September closing 1/3c higher and May 5%c higher.Corn closed at practically unchanged fig-Provisions opened easy at %c to %c under yesterday's close, September starting at 70%c to 70%c. The chief influence was the disappointing attitude of Liverpool. The decline was brief. Shorts were active buyers at the opening decline. The Northwest also bought and the price advanced rapidly to 711/8c for September. The prospect of small world's shipments was an aid to the market. The weather in the wheat-growing sections was reported favorable to crops, and especially in the southwest; but this had little effect on the apparently oversold market. After the shorts had absorbed enough for their needs the price eased off somewhat, September declining to 701/2c to 70%c under realizing; buying was active at the decline, and the close was strong at 70%c. May was traded in some today, showing some little advance. The seaboard reported a good continental demand. Clearances were 540,000 bushels. Minnapolis and Duluth receipts were 228 cars, compared with 240 last week and 145 a year ago. Chicago received 61 cars, 15 of contract grade. Total receipts at primary points were 588,000 bushels, against 461,000 bushels

Rev. Dr. Johnston on the Street Railway Strike.

Favors Investigation by an Impartial

Committee.

At St. Andrew's Church last evening, Rev. Dr. Johnson said: "With regard to the question or questions at issue between the street car company and the majority of their employes, I am not in a position to speak with authority, nor does it seem to me that sufficient particulars have been laid before the public to enable one to form a final judgment. It would, I am sure, be gratifying to the city if the general complaints of unfair and partial treatment meted out to certain employes by the street car manage-ment could be carefully examined by a committee of impartial persons, for until this is done there is certainly room for question, whether there was any sufficient reason for the originatany sufficient reason for the originating of this trouble.

"Leaving that question, as it is in my own mind, undecided, with regard to the methods adopted by some persons for pepetuating the difficulty, there is only one thing to say: They are unmanly, disgraceful and wicked. That every man has a right to patron-ize the cars or leave them unused, to deal with certain merchants and to buy from and sell to only such persons as he chooses, and that he has a perfect right to induce others to do the same by every fair argument and appeal, is a truth that will readily be granted; but that anyone has the right to coerce others into his way of thinking, either by persecution, by intimidation, by the use of oppositions against the state of oppositions. by the use of opprobious names, or by the damaging of property, that is an unrighteous principle, to escape from which our fathers shed their blood, and for liberty from which the price was not too great to pay. Cannot those who are encouraging the thing called a "boycott," by acts of violence, see that they are returning to the 'casting out of the synagogue' of the Jews, and to the thumb-screw and rack and faggot of the middle-ages? Judgment must not and cannot be coerced, and he who, by making those who differ from him suffer, seeks to force others to act contrary to their judgment, becomes a persecutor. Every cause must rest ultimately upon the enlightened judgment of the people. That judgment must be appealed to, not by destruction of property, by op-probrious epithets, by mutilation of dumb animals, but by argument, instruction and appeal, and these all are free to use, and the labor organizations will take a wise step when they join with the civic authorities in bringing to judgment every perpetrator of a deed of violence, and when they support their judgment by expelling from their ranks everyone found guilty of encouraging lawlessness. Unless some such action is taken, and taken speedily, it may be necessary for many who rather desire to take no sides in the matter, to enter their protest against the disgraceful acts being committed, by openly espousing the cause with which they may not otherwise be wholly in sympathy. These sentiments are, I believe, in harmony with the tra-ditions of the Presbyterian Church, men who toil, but no cause can succeed which allows itself to be supported by unrighteous methods, and only the cause characterized by his spirit can finally prevail." In an interview subsequently, Dr. Johnston stated to The Advertiser that he thought it unfair to charge labor organizations with the lawlessness resorted to for the purpose of coercing the public. He also declined to pronounce upon the merits of the strike. It would be preferable that a committee of impartial persons should carefully investigate the complaints, he said.

NEWLY INTRODUCED.

Sensation Caused in Barnaby River New Brunswick, by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Barnaby River, N. B., Aug. 14.-Quite a sensation has been caused here lately by the introduction of a new medicine —Dodd's Kidney Pills. Although there had been many deaths in this village and surrounding district from Bright's Disease, and other Kidney-troubles, yet, strange to say, Dodd's Kidney Pills had never been tested. Our people had little faith in patent medicines. Now, however, Dodd's Kidney Pills are creating a sensation. A large number of people are using them and expressing surprise and delight at the result. "From the first week I began to improve,"says Cornelius Crottie,of Barnaby River, who had been given up by the doctors. The fact seems to have surprised him, but it is always true where Dodd's Kidney Pills are used,

I never listen to calumnies, because if they are untrue I run the risk of being deceived, and if they are true, of hating people not worth thinking about.—Montesquieu.

LIQUID AIR IN SURGERY

A Great Local Anaesthetic-Its Value as a Therapeutic Agent.

The subect or liquid air in its application in medicine and surgery has been treated in a dispassionate manner by Dr. A. Campbell White in the Medical Record. In applying liquid air to the tissues of the body, Dr. White has used it in the form of a spray and by means of a swab dipped into the fluid. If a spray of liquid air is applied to the skin, the part at once becomes anaemic and per-fectly colorless. If the application is made only for a few seconds, the color as quickly returns and the skin is congested for some minutes thereafter. Within much less than a minute's time, by means of a spray, the part is frozen as hard as ice, but strange to say, in a few minutes circulation returns without any injury to the tissue, provided the part is not in the end of some ex-tremity. There is no pain in the application excepting at the very beginning, but there is a slight burning or tingling. It also completely anaesthetizes the part to which it is applied without freezing it solid. Dr. White has tried liquid air as a local anaesthetic in a number of cases with invariable success. It has one important advantage—that is, the absence of hemorrhages during the operation, enabling the operator to apply the dressing before any hemorrhage sets in, the dressing then being sufficient to stop any oozing. Dr. White has found the use of liquid air beneficial in the local treatment of ulcers, etc. He states that an abscess, boil or carbuncle in the early stages is absorbed absolutely with one thorough treatment. If it is more advanced, several applications at intervals of 24 hours are necessary. Liquid air has also been used to advantage in cases of sciatica, neuralgia,

An interesting experiment was tried in a case of tvy poisoning, involving the entire left forearm and hand. band around the forearm about three inches wide was slightly frozen by the spray, and then the usual treatment was applied to the entire poisoned area, including the part which had been treated with the liquid air. At the next dressing the part which had been treated with the air was very distinct, and this portion was greatly improved, the inflammatory process having subsided. A number of other diseases have also been treated with liquid air with marked success. Where no loss of tissue is desirable, liquid air should be applied by the spray and not by the swab. Dr. White is undoubtedly correct in advising the greatest possible care in using the new substance which science has placed at the disposal of the sur geon. Even such cooling agents as the ether-spray should be used with great caution, and liquid air should be applied only by those who have had some experience in its use.

In conclusion, Dr. White considers that we have reason to hope that we have in liquid air a therapeutic agent which will remove many otherwise obstinate superficial leisons of the body and cure some leisons which have hitherto resisted all treatment at our disposal, including the knife. He is of the opinion that in the use of liquid air in medicine, that is to say, in pulmonary diseases, in the reduction of fever, etc., a large field is open which presents many obstacles at the very start and possibly holds out much hope in

Pleasant Outing of the Employes of John Marshall & Co. On Saturday John Marshall & Co, with about 100 of their employes, together with quite a number of their friends spent a most enjoyable day at Port Stanley, under a cloudless sky, fanned by a delicious breeze off Lake Erie, and without one single incident of any kind to mar the pleasures of the day. After a baseball game be-tween the employes of the factory and those of the warehouse, in which the latter was victorious by the score of 6 to 4, dinner was served in the dining hall of the Fraser House. When He Appeared Again Before the Court Martial.

Ex-President Perier Denounces Mercier's Attempt to Create a War Scare and Contradicts Many of the Ex-Minister's Statements.

Rennes, Aug. 14 .- The shooting of M. Labori, leading counsel for Captain Alfred Dreyfus, took all the life out of this morning's session, and but for the sympathy the attempt is certain to excite throughout the country for M. Labori and Dreyfus, the deprivation of M. Labori's invaluable services to the prisoner would be a severe blow to the latter's prospects. The murderer, apparently chose today for the attempt, because it was well known M. Labori would crush Gen. Mercier, the former minister of war, with his cross-questioning.

The news caused an immense sensa-tion in the court-room, where the usuai attendance had assembled, awaiting the entrance of the judges. M. Labori's absence had just been announced, when suddenly M. Jaunay, syndic of the judiciary press, rushed into the room and shouted, "M. Labori has been shot."

A GASP OF HORROR. All present gave a gasp of horror and surprise, and then every man jumped to his feet, and a volley of questions was hurled at M. Jaunay's head, who, crying "That is all I know," rushed out of court again, followed by a number of his hearers. The remainder of those present were compelled to remain, as the proceedings were about to com-mence, and they excitedly discussed the crime and vigorously denounced the

Col. Jouaust, president of the court. when the news reached him, suspended the sitting of the court-martial until 7:15 a.m.

MADAME LABORI IN COURT. It appears that Madame Labori herself broke the news to the court, and informed M. Jouaust of the crime, having rushed from her husband's side to the court, crying for a doctor, and shouting that her husband had been shot.

PROCEEDINGS RESUMED.

When the court-martial was resumed, M. Mercier was confronted with M. Perier, formerly president of France. The latter declared Mercier's story, told on the witness stand Saturday, of the imminence of war between Germany the then minister of war (Mercier), in moving 60,000 troops to frontier without consulting him.

As it was M. Labori's task to take Gen. Mercier in hand, and Demange, associate counsel, was quite unprepared for the task, the few questions the latter put were practically of little effect, and Gen. Mercier escaped cheap-

Moreover, M. Demange was deeply his colleague, and was quite unable to do himself justice. M. Demange announced that though his colleague's wound was not so serious as at first supposed, it would be impossible for the latter to participate in the proceedings.

MERCIER'S TESTIMONY.

When Gen. Mercier was recalled, in reply to the president of the court, he resterated his belief that Major Count Esterhazy, in spite of his own declaration, was not the author of the bordereau, which, the witness claimed, was written on tracing paper.

The president asked M. Casimir-Perier to explain the circumstances of the confession Dreyfus is alleged to have made to Capt. Lebrun Renault. M. Casimir-Perier persisted in his statement of Saturday that he had never received any confidence of this character from Capt. Lebrun-Renault. He added that M. Dupuy, then premier, was present when Capt. Lebrun-Renault called at the Elysee. "Moreover," said M. Casimir-Perier, "here is a letter from M. Dupuy which I ask may be read." The letter recited that Capt. Lebrun-

Renault, when questioned by M. Dupuy, replied that Gen. Mercier had sent him to the president to receive a dressingdown for his indiscreet disclosures to the Figaro. Gen. Mercier here interposed, saying:

Capt. Lebrun-Renault spoke to me in regard to the confessions in the presence of Gen. Gonse, who will testify thereto. It was then that I ordered him to go to the president of the republic.'

MERCIER "DRESSED DOWN." Regarding Gen. Mercier's declarations on Saturday on the stand, M. Casimir-Perier said: "Gen. Mercier had no right whatever to intervene in a diplomatic conversation. I would have prevented such interference. It was I alone who conferred with the minister, and I declare that the impression I derived from that conversation was one of complete calm, other-wise the incident would not have been closed by the framing of a note. We had no telegram in regard to that note. If there had been any news in regard to the matter on the evening of the 6th, we should not have waited until the 8th to publish the note. There friendly power relative to the incident. The incident has been magnified; besides, in the event of diplomatic complications, the president would have communicated with the minister of foreign affairs.' Gen. Mercier replied that he went to the Elysee Palace as minister of war. He recalled that Gen. de Boisdeffre orders to Gen. de Boisdeffre on the 6th relative to mobilization. M. Casimir-Perier, resuming his testimony, said he did not desire to reply to certain of Gen. Mercier's insinua-tions. "I do not wish to answer them," said the former president. "The circumstances are too sad and too tragic for me to desire to envenom the discussion. I am master of myself and of my conscience. I would only state that Gen. Mercier has made every effort to fix me as deeply as possible in this affair. But I have remained aloof, I affirm, during the progress of the in-the respect he owed to the chief." M. Casimir-Perier next protested against the assertions made by Gen. Mercier in regard to the role adopted by the chief of the state in this offair, whereupon the general interjected that he had spoken of the attitude assumed by M. Casimir-Perier because he had sworn to tell the whole truth.

M. Demange asked Gen. Mercier if he had explained to the cabinet how he reconciled the relations of cause and effect and the patriotic emotion aroused by the treason with the communication of these documents to the courtmartial?

The general, in reply, repeated his statement of Saturday as his hypothesis of the situation.

At this moment M. Demange asked M. Casimir-Perier if, on the 6th, an understanding had not been reached between France and Germany on the subject of Dreyfus?

M. Casimir-Perier replied that before his interview before the minister on the 6th, the question of Dreyfus had never been raised between them and Germany.

M. Demange asked Gen. Mercier why he had not included in the dossier of 1894 the doubtful translation of the telegram of agent "B" to his government, under date of November? In reply, Gen. Mercier said that not one of the translations of the telegrams was communicated to the judges, because there still existed doubts in his mind. M. Demange remarked that the text was communicated to Sandherr as official, and, therefore, doubts were im-Rennes, Aug. 14.-After MM. Cavagnac and Manotaux, former minister of foreign affairs, had testified, the court adjourned at noon until Wednesday.

JOTTINGS FROM NEAR-BY PLACES

Elder H. M. Curry, of Pleasant Plains, Illinois, preached in the Bap-tist Church at Mayfair, Ekfrid, and was the guest of Mrs. Gilbert McLean, "Maple Dell." Misses Isabell and Jennie McArthur, of Cass City, Mich., are visiting May-fair friends. Work has been begun on the new skating rink at Ailsa Craig. Mr. J. McAdams, liveryman, of Mc-Adams & Ferguson's livery, London, on Wednesday night was driving Mr. Burroughs, of R. C. Struthers & Co., to Ilderton for the night when they were overtaken by the heavy thunderstorm which passed over this section about 9:15. Just as they came to the narrow piece of road in front of Mr. Gardner's residence, a clap of thunder frightened the spirited team, causing them to jump sideways. The two side wheels went over the embankment, and both ocupants of the vehicle were thrown violently to the ground, and mixed up with trunks and baggage, while the team galloped off with the wagon as far as Munce's blacksmith shop. Mr. Burroughs was not hurt, but Mr. McAdams alighted on his hip, bruising it badly. He was carried into Mr. Gardner's and Dr. McAndless summoned, who did all he could to alleviate the pain, after which he was removed to the Lorne House. The wagon was easily repaired.

DROWNED.

Amherstburg, Ont., Aug. 12. - The body of a man was found on the beach below here yesterday; about 30 years old; five feet ten in height; smooth face; dark hair; well-dressed throughout; dark serge suit; nothing in his pockets but a few cigars and a card of Charles Staebler, 175 Russell street, Detroit. A Transient Experience

The new-comer was a tall, well-made fellow, with regular features, and a brown skin, a long nose and straight eyebrows, dark and delicately drawn. George gave a start and fell sud-denly silent. His sharp eyes had recognized Gerard Norman Wentworth, the hero of the mysterious marriage at which he had so recently assisted. .

He perceived at once that neither his name nor his face had struck on any chord of memory. "Norman" was quite at ease, well-bred and civil, responding to his tutor's conversation, and paying the proper attention to Mrs. Fleming like any other gentlemanly youth on a similar occasion.

For once George failed to take the lead, and only said, "Yes, sir," and "No, sir," like the shy schoolboy which he was not.

"And where have you spent your hol-idays, Gladwyn?" said Mr. Fleming, presently.

"I've been with my eldest brother, sir, at his curacy," said George.

For his life he couldn't mention Ashdew, and the question, as to where the curacy was, was not put. When the two lads went to their own quarters, after dinner, Norman behaved exactly as anyone else might have done, asked about the ways of the place, volunteered the information that he was reading for an army exam. in the summer, but that his mother did not like him to be more than three months at a regular crammer's, and that a cousin of his had been at Fleming's and liked it. 'Yes, it's awfully jolly," said George, "and Mr. Fleming is a wide-minded man. But he won't cram us. He George's large eyes were fixed in a thoughtful stare, as various courses of action pictured themselves before his imagination. Should he make a casual remark about Ashdew and see what happened? He recollected that the bridegroom at that strange wedding had stood with his back to him, and had never looked up, but he must have known that someone had been there, holding the candle.

Should he tell Mr. Fleming that this correct and quite ordinary new pupil was a married man? It was characteristic of George that he realized fully that this step might involve serious

Should he write to Mark and ask his opinion? He had not the slightest value for it.

On the whole he thought that he would wait a little while before he did anything. The situation was intensely interesting to him and he wanted to study it keenly.

The oddest part of it was that there was nothing old about Norman. He had come from a public school, and had brought the most proper tastes and behavior with him. He played golf and tennis, did his work with intelligence, but without enthusiasm, never fell into gloomy silence, or behaved in any way becoming the possessor of a guilty secret. He was quite nice in the house, but did not throw himself into the affairs of the place with George's enchusiasm. If he was reticent, he was so reticent that no one could suppose that he had anything to conceal.

He was alone in the pupil's room after a few days, when Fanny put her h ad in at the door. She was not allo ved to go there.

"George," she said, "Mr. Norman's going to make a rabbit-hutch. You don't mind? It's good for him, you know, to have interests.'

"Fanny," said George, "it's part of the feminine nature to humbug. I never humbug," said Fanny, with tears in her eyes, and an air of unmistakable sincerity, "but I thought you might be vexed, as you said you

"Well, I'm not," said George, with equal honesty. "All right, we'll join at finding him interests for his good." Fanny laughed, and ran away, as "Mr. Norman's" step was heard in the Mark is a curate. He began last Christ-mas. He is at an odd little country place, with the queerest old church you ever saw, full of owls and jack-daws and monuments. It's called—" "Norman, my dear fellow," said Mr. Fleming, entering hastily, "here's a tel-egram for you, waiting for an answer." Longhurst was far from town or station, and telegrams were not maters of daily occurrence. Norman pulled the telegram open, and his healthy brown face went pale. "It's—it's my father," he said breath-lessly; "I must go, sir, at once!" Mr. Fleming took the telegram, and read: "Mrs. Wentworth to G. Norman.

—Come at once; your father is dangerously ill." There was the usual rush of preparation and sympathy. Mr. Fleming went to order the trap, Mrs. Fleming put up sandwiches, Fanny flew about on errands, George helped, and won-

Norman came down ready, his tutor already held the reins, prepared to drive him to the station. The boy shook hands with Mrs. Fleming. "I'm awfully obliged for your kindness. I'm very sorry—" he said, in a changed, agitated manner.

They were alone in another moment, and Mrs. Fleming sighed, partly from sympathy, partly, perhaps, because she knew that when desirable pupils are telegraphed away they do not always come back.

"Who is Mrs. Wentworth?" said George, picking up the telegram. "His mother. He took the name of some relative who left him money, quite recently."

"I can't round on the poor chap now," thought George.

A few days brought a letter. Norman's father was dead, their affairs were unsettled, and he could not come back to Longhurst. He was very sorry;

he had been very happy, and he wished he could have stayed.
"It's a pity," said Mr. Fleming, with a sigh. "I wonder what the poor fellow will do."

"So do I," said George, thoughtfully.
There came over him, as he stood wondering, a sort of realization of what it would be to be hampered at 18 by a secret marriage; of what that scene in Ashdew Church really meant for its chief actor.

The impression was as strong as an experience. It conveyed to George a profound sense of the responsibility of speaking, and the consequence was that he kept silence.

He felt that he knew better what it meant for Norman than the young man knew himself. He understood.

CHAPTER III.

In a cold east wind, on sticky clay, among loud-voiced birds and budding copses, George Gladwyn and Fanny Fleming were gathering primroses for the Easter decorations. George had continued reading during the holidays, and Fanny had returned from the first half-term at school, full of her experiences and eager to pour them out, as she sat on a moss-grown log, tying the primroses into neat bunches with her small red fingers, while George listened with the interest of a genial elder

"You know," said Fanny, "that Mrs. Fenwick, where I boarded, got Norman for Daddy. She was very sorry he didn't stay. But, poor fellow, his mother died almost directly after his father, and it turned out that there was not nearly so much money as they thought. So he can't go into the army, and has gone abroad."

"Really," said George, with interest, 'not so much money as they thought? How remarkable!"

"It's very sad, I think, but, oh, George, there's such a rice girl there. Mrs. Fenwick's her cousin. We're the greatest friends. I mend her pencils, and sew on her buttons, and keep her books from getting lost at the high school, and she tells me the most beautiful stories. She's nearly 16, and in the upper fifth, but though I'm only in the third she doesn't despise me." 'You don't say so!"

"No," said Fanny, "she confides in She told me that she hated her aunt.

BOY BURNED TO DEATH.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 14.—Belthaser Shable's large barn, a short distance outside the city limits, burned Friday afternoon, and his 8-year-old grandson was burned to death in the ture. Shable made a heroic effort to rescue the little fellow, being severely burned while hunting for him in the structure. The boy's body was not re-covered from the debris until this afternoon. Shable's loss is about $2,000.

DIED AT THE DENTIST'S. Holly, Mich., Aug. 14.-One of the saddest deaths in Holly's history occurred Saturday evening, when the wife of Stephen W. Harger died in the dental office of Dr. J. A. Clark. The deceased called at the office at 1:30 p.m. to have some teeth extracted, and, as she wished to take chloroform, her family physician, Dr. T. E. Mc-Donald, was called, who advised against it. But she insisted, and never came from its influence, although other physicians were called and every-thing was done to revive her. Deceased leaves a husband and five child-ren, the oldest but 7 years of age.

FOUND DEAD AT HIS DESK. Middletewn, Del., Aug. 14.—Leonidas Darlington, teller of the Citizens' National Bank, of this town, was found dead beside his desk in the bank about 8 o'clock Saturday morning. The discovery was made by Cashier Crouch. There was a wound in his head which, with a revolver lying on the floor be-side him, explained the cause of death. There was no evidence of even an attempt at robbery, and it was plain that he had committed suicide. Dar-lington's accounts with the bank are straight to the dollar.

FATHER AND SON DROWNED. Detroit, Aug. 14 .- "Come, George, and we'll go down to the brickyard for a swim before your mother gets home," said George Brown to his 10-year-old son Saturday afternoon. Thirty min-utes later their lifeless bodies were carried back into the little frame cottage on Herkimer avenue to await the com'ng of the wife and mother, while the little 8-year-old child who had accompanied them, sobbed out the story of their death. When question-ed, she sobbed out: "My papa hewent-in-swimming-wiv-George - and-I-dess-they-both-got-drowned." Their clothing near by was evidence enough that the child's story was true, and Henry Grenier, a young man living in Delray, dived for the bodies, and found them, the father still clutching his son so tightly that his arms could not be unfolded for some time. It is probable that he was taken with cramps. When Mrs. Brown heard of the double tragedy she fainted away. Brown was 45 years of age, and had liv 1 in River Rouge. A widow and five children sur-

PASSING OF THE DROP-BAR. It becomes more marked that the tendency to use higher handle-bars is growing. The drop-bars are to be seen on very few wheels, except those of the out-and-out scorchers. The use straight or upturned bars is not by any means confined to the stout and elderly riders, who move along at six or eight miles an hour, but club men and others who have been riding for years, and are capable of giving any of the habitual riders a hard brush. The extremely low bars, shaped like an A, are not to be found on the wheels of the record holders. They are seen mostly on the cycles of young men who want to look like racers.

WHEELING AS AN AID TO SUR-GERY.

A notable case of the bicycle being used for the cure of serious ailments is that of a Brooklyn man, who is riding with two broken knee-caps, and improving steadily. His injury result-ed from falling while out skating, and he adopted wheeling at the advice of his physician. At first he had to be lifted on to the wheel, but he now is able to mount from a step that is on the right-hand end of the rear axle. He cannot lift his left leg sufficiently to mount on the usual side, but his wheel is fitted with the two steps, so that as he improves he can try the leftfoot mount whenever he feels strong enough. He rides with a low gear, and proceeds very slowly, resting at frequent intervals.

LINTON WON THE HOUR GRIND. New York, Aug. 14.-Tom Linton, of Wales, champion of Europe, in a onehour paced race, won the champion-ship of America Saturday, beating Harry Elkes, of Glens Falls, at Manhatan Beach bicycle track, by nearly two laps. In the hour he rode 34 miles and 440 yards. This does not reach the record held by Elkes, paced in the old style, of 34 miles 1,204 yards. Elkes was left behind by the loss of a pedal from his own wheel and then by rid-ing off the track on to the ropes of the inclosure. Many thought, however, that he was being outridden, and that no matter what happened Linton would have won. Linton rode splendidly, without a hitch. Elkes led up to the tenth mile, and then Linton passed him. Linton won by 31/2 yards less than two laps.

THE KISSING BUG

Mr. John Dearness' Opinion of the Mystery.

Thinks the So-Called Kising Bug a Myth-Not Yet Identified.

"Have you heard much or anything of the kissing bug in your travels through the country?" was asked of Mr. John Dearness, public school inspector for East Middlesex.

"Then you think it has reached these parts?" "Yes; it is probably as prevalent here as anywhere else in this latitude. "What of the instances that have some under your notice?

"I have no personal knowledge of them, only hearsay. One was the case a new face powder. It is supposed the cosmetic attracted the kissing bug. Another was that of a young man who came to the city ostensibly to play baseball and see the street cars. both his lips were badly swollen. He attributed it to the kissing bug. His case was quite a serious one; his left eye, too, had been affected and had poulticed with beefsteak. third case came under the notice of one of the city physicians recently." "How can you tell it? What is peculiar about it?"

Its chief peculiarities are its great variation in form and size and the secrecy with which it does its work. If, as seldom happens, the victim should be wakened by the osculation and get up and light a lamp and search around the bed and in the corners of the room she may find the bug, but it is useless to describe it, because the description would be so unlike all the others that are going the rounds of the papers. A French journal in Montreal, La Presse, on the 8th ult., informed its readers that it was receiving a large number of insects ('un nombre incalculable des bestioles') with inquiries whether they were the kissing bug. It answered all its correspondents in the negative, stating that the only and authentic kissing bug is black, it measures an inch in length and its body resembles that of the bee, and adding that it has not yet made its appearance in Canada. Seven days later the same journal announced that the kissing bug had appeared in Montreal and environs in large numbers; and two days later it described a presumed kissing bug from Sherbrooke, two and a half inches long. Simultaneously another French paper, La Patrie, published an 'image veritable' of the kissing bug, and, lo and behold! it proved to be a butterfly. It may be that some sleepers have been bitten by the bed-bug hunter (Opsicoetus) a dark-colored bug, about three-fourths of an inch in length and one-third as wide, which preys upon bed-bugs and other insects, and which has a sharp, strong beak capable of making a deep puncture. This bug is more frequently seen in its younger stages, when it may be easily recognized by the gray dusty covering that conceals its true color. One has heard of bedrooms in which, if there had been more such kissing bugs the occupants would have enjoyed less disturbed slumber. Dr. Murray-Aaron contributed to a recent number of the Scientific American an account of his efforts to corner the kissing bug. Three out of forty reported cases he traced to the black-legged Melanolestes, which he says, is no commoner this year than usual around the electric lights in the

Then you seem to think the kissing bug is somewhat of a myth?" "I think it is a mythical genus, the interest in which centers around the discovery of the originator. It seems to be either a pretty fiction of Washington society or the invention of a discharged war correspondent."

The Popular Rector of St. Peter's Cathedral in Ill-Health.

Obliged to Retire From His Arduous Duties.

A Prominent Citizen for Almost Quarter of a Century-His Successor Named-Generous References by His Lordship the Bishop of London.

Rev. Father Tiernan rector of St. Peter's Cathedral for almost a quarter of a century, has retired from his arduous duties, and will be succeeded by Rev. Father Aylward. For some time past the good father's health has been failing. His physicians have repeatedly warned him against undertaking too much, but his zest and energy have been such that he continued to respond to all calls made upon his time and strength. The best years of Father Tiernan's life have been devoted to his work in this city. His name is a household word here, and no figure is more familiar to the citizens generally. In his determination to resign, London loses one of her most beloved citizens.

Father Tiernan was born in May, 1846, two miles from Essex Center, and received his early education in the parish school, obtaining a first-class certificate. After teaching school for six months Father Tiernan entered in 1863, St. Vincent College, Latrobe, Pa., to study for the priest-hood. He remained there four years, and then, on account of his health, he went to the Seminary of Our Lady of Angels at Niagara Falls. From this institution he graduated in 1869, and on Dec. 19, 1875, was ordained priest in the old Cathedral of London, by Bishop Walsh, and in six weeks from that day was made chancellor of the diocese. For five years he was secretary to Bishop Walsh, and when the erection of the new cathedral was commenced, the financial transactions were placed in his hands. In less than five years the cathedral was practically completed, and dedicated for service. The success of this undertaking was mainly due to the and perseverance of Father no spared no pains to make

t a creat to the Forest City.

Some generous references were made to the retiring rector at the regular service in the cathedral yesterday by his Lordship the Bishop of London, on his first appearance in the pulpit. The bishop said: "Instead of the usual high mass sermon, I wish to make a few general remarks to you this morning. In the first place, I wish to extend my thanks to the good people of this congregation, especially to the gentlemen of the committee and the choir, and to all who assisted in making the celebration of last Sunday's ceremony so grand. You did honor to the clergy of the diocese, to yourselves, and to your bishop. Your conduct was orderly, and in every "Yes; I have heard of one or two way equal to the great occasion. hope you will always be what the cathedral congregation should be — a model to the gave me great pleasure this morning to administer the holy sacrament of confirmation for the first time to the children of this congregation. sent them to their homes bright and little ones to abstain from all intoxiof a young lady who had been trying cating liquors until they attained the age of twenty-one years. I request you to protect the little ones, and to remind them from time to time of the resolutions they made on this day. Above all, you parents must show your children a good example. Hence a great many things are left over until the arrival of the new bishop, and it is duty to attend to these matters. One of these postponed affairs is of special interest to you, since it refers to your good and zealous pastor, Rev. Father Tiernan. For months past his health has been going down. Doctors have advised him to get away from the toil and care and worry of the rectorship of the cathedral. How the good priest stood it so long is a wonder to me. As far as I am concerned I do not wonder that his health is broken down. I know well the duties

A BUNCH OF GREEN ROSES. [Edwin Arnold in London Telegraph.] In the spacious and shady garden of a relative, not far from Meopham, I have seen this week a bush of green roses. The buds and blossoms, be it understood, were not merely greenish, nor striped nor variegated with green, but perfect green roses in shape and make, with calyx, corolla, petals— everything all alike—of a bright, vivid color, exactly resembling that of the ordinary green leaf of the rosebush. Some of the blooms were of the ordinary size, and fashioned like a tea rose, or small Gloire de Dijon, and many among them were most symmetrically Square Top, canvas.......$3 75 the dean of Rochester, and know his most delightful books about roses, I ought not to have been so astonished at a green rose. There exaled a faint perfume of briar from those emerald colored monstrosities—but what could possibly induce the queen of the garden thus to abdicate her lovely colors
