

Peculiar

To itself in many important particulars, Hood's Sarsaparilla is different from and superior to any other medicine.

Peculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

Peculiar in strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses one dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Do not be induced to take any other preparation. Be sure to get Curling Matches at Belleville and Campbellford.

Trotters Sold at Chicago and Lexington—General Sports.

CURLING.
The primary competition in group one of the Ontario Tunkard matches took place at Belleville on Wednesday afternoon. Port Hope and Belleville were the only rinks that played, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Ogdensburg, Rockville, and Belleville consequently were defaulted. Belleville consequently won the match.

The annual bonspiel for the Campbellford medal, which was won by the Keene club last year, took place Thursday. Belleville, Lakefield and Millbrook defaulted, leaving only Keene and Campbellford to play. The home team was defeated; majority for Keene, 16.

CHESS.
The tournament of the Canadian Chess Association was concluded Wednesday. By defeating Muntz and Hill each two games, Davidson won third prize and fourth went to Hood.

Steinitz won the thirteenth game in the great chess match against Tchigorin at Havana. Score, Tchigorin, 5; Steinitz, 4; drawn, 4.

THE TRIGGER.
Dr. Carver's match with Lewis Clarke, champion of Victoria, at the Melbourne, Australia, Gun Club grounds, proved to be an easy victory for the American. The men shot at 100 live pigeons each, for $100 a side. The Australian did not seem to be in very good form. When 60 birds had been fired at, Dr. Carver had killed 50 and Clarke 48. The latter then grased 21 straight, but he was unable to overtake the doctor, who won by a score of 90 to 85.

After the shooting Dr. Carver was attacked with influenza, and was compelled to take to his bed. His other two matches with Clarke were declared off.

HORSE TALK.
The Perry combination sale of trotters took place at Chicago. Fifty-seven head were sold for $22,739. The best prices were $3,000 for the meeting stallion Ed. Rosewater, and $2,500 for the stallion Vitale. Successor went for $900.

Trotting horses sold well at the Brasfield sale at Lexington, Ky., the 54 head changing hands for $98,720, an average of $1,789. J. J. Conley, of Lexington, got Constantine for $27,000. Constantine is a 5-year-old stallion with a record of 2:19, made in the third heat of a race.

The Executive Committee of the National Association of Trotting Horse Breeders has unanimously decided to establish a new stud book for the registration of high class trotters exclusively. The sentiment among eastern breeders is almost a unit against the admission of the pacer to the trotting standard.

Advance copies of the programme of the Ontario Jockey Club's May meeting at the Woodbine, Toronto, are out. The bill which will be offered to the race-going public consists of 23 flat races, 5 steeplechases and a single hurdle. A total of about $12,400 will be offered for judgment, besides the Queen's and Woodstock Plates and the Walker Cup. The cash will be hung up on the different days as follows:

First day—$3,100 and Queen's Plate.
Second day—$1,550 and Woodstock Plate and Walker Cup.
Third day—$3,150.
Fourth day—$1,750.
Fifth day—$2,400.

For the Queen's and Woodstock Plate entries are due March 1; for the York, Dominion and Steeplechase handicaps and the Juvenile Scurry entries close May 21, and none of the others until May 21. Ten of the races are over-night events.

EAST MIDDLESEX ELECTION.

Nomination of Candidates to Contest the Riding.

Speeches by Mr. Marshall and Mr. Mayor Taylor—The Candidates Define Their Positions.

Speaking at the East Middlesex nomination in Collins Hall commenced at 2 o'clock. Captain Thomas Robson was voted to the chair, and asked that good order be kept.

Mr. Marshall was the first speaker. His address was very similar to that delivered in the East London Tuesday night. He alluded to the election trial, claiming that only one charge was proved, though the petitioner had a chance to prove all.

The Conservative party was now more united than before 1891. Mr. Abbott's Government desired a clean honest administration; it had purified the civil service, and punished those who robbed the treasury. He claimed the policy of that Government was the best for the farmers.

Voice—What about the mechanics?
Mr. Marshall said it was better for the mechanics too. Hon. Oliver Mowat had said the farmers and mechanics here were better off than in the States.

The speaker commended his action in raising the duty on beef. If he had never done anything more than that it was sufficient excuse to ask his election. Protection, he said, was the best for the farmer. Unrestricted reciprocity would not benefit them. The Eastern States was the only place Ontario would be able to send her produce to, as the western portion was the agricultural portion, and even then they would have to compete with $5,000,000.

Voice—I contend that New York would consume all Ontario could produce.
The speaker said the farmers of the States held the same opinion as those in Canada. He said there was an article in the London Advertiser advising farmers to cultivate the manufacture of cheese for the home market, as there was no market as profitable as the home one.

Voice—Oh, that's for cheese only.
Continuing his speech said that from 1882 to 1889 in Ontario the value of the farms, buildings and stock had increased $100,000,000 according to the statistics. The average income of skilled and unskilled workmen in Canada in 1881 was $233 and in 1890 it was $270. The man who stated that he (Marshall) voted for free corn for the distillers and not for the farmers should post himself better. The distillers did not have free corn, and had to pay 75 cents a bushel for corn. He said to see how reciprocity would benefit the horse trade here.

Mr. Simmonds, of London East, desired to ask Mr. Marshall a question, but a disordered crowd near the door refused to let the speaker proceed. The chairman of the question he heard was, "What is the reason for the disordered crowd?" and it was only by threatening arrest that the noise was stopped.

Mr. Simmonds said that Mr. Marshall told them that sugar was cheaper than it was some years ago. He desired to know if Mr. Marshall favored keeping up the present tariff while sugar was still cheaper in the States. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Marshall replied that he was a protector of the nation's interests. The people should be satisfied with the reduction they got already.

Mr. Taylor was well received. He was glad to see the electors were disposed to discuss the questions of the day and fall naturally. He was willing to stand or fall naturally. He took on the Jesuit question. He rebuked the statements made that he was an annexationist, and pointed to his record as a British soldier as an attestation of his thorough loyalty.

He had seen a country as any under a people and as fine a country as any under the sun, yet with all its wonderful resources why was it not progressing and developing? The speaker cited the census as an example. In 1881 the population was 4,324,810, and despite immigration, returns showing the same 800,000 people, natural increase, the population at present was only 4,829,411. (Hear, hear.)

He denied Mr. Marshall's statement that the (speaker) had a chance to prove all. This was not so, as judgment was given on each charge as it came up. He did not want to disqualify Mr. Marshall. The latter said he was a supporter of the Government, no matter what course it took.

A small boy might as well have been sent down. (Laughter.) It reminded him of the story of the man and the bull going to market. Somebody asked the man where he was going and he replied, "Oh, I don't know, but I am going to the market." The speaker referred to the recent Government scandals as evidence that independent thought was necessary. Why did not Mr. Marshall advocate a reduction of the sugar duties in the last campaign? (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Marshall—I didn't want to anticipate the Government policy. (Laughter, and "Oh! oh!")

Mr. Taylor pointed out that before the Government went to the country last time they gave as a reason that they desired to make a treaty with the United States in natural products. (Hear, hear.) Nothing had been heard of that since; it was evidently an excuse to dissolve Parliament before the scandals came to light. Yet Mr. Marshall now claimed that they did not want reciprocity in natural products. (Hear, hear.)

Even at present Canada was discriminating against Great Britain by high tariffs on British goods. That was not the way to encourage trade with the mother country, encourage trade with the mother country, encourage trade with the mother country.

He wanted a fair and honorable reciprocity. In Canada they were getting only eighteen pounds of sugar for $1, and in Port Huron 25 pounds for the same money. He was decidedly opposed to granting bonuses to railroads; many railroads were not paying their way. This system of indiscriminate expenditure should be stopped. Year after year the debt of the people was being increased, and last year's statement of revenue and expenses showed an addition of $27,000,000 to the debt. Day after day letters that were not paid for were distributed free to city people. Why should not the farmer be granted the same privilege?

There was a law enacted at Parliament for more legislation enacted at Parliament for the majority of the people—the farmers. (Cheers.) He knew his old friends would stick to him and he felt assured the verdict on Feb. 11 would be satisfactory to him. (Loud cheers.)

An elector asked Mr. Taylor which party he would support in Parliament.

Mr. Taylor said he would support any good measure no matter where it came from. (Cheers.)

Mr. Marshall said Mr. Taylor was trying

BURGULARS AT STRATFORD.
The Places Visited and Robbed on Wednesday Night.

STRATFORD, Feb. 4.—Three burglaries were perpetrated here last night, probably by the same party. At the American House about $5 was taken from the till of the bar. Dr. A. E. Ahren's house on Elizabeth street was visited and $100 extracted from the pocket of the doctor's pants that laid on the foot of the bed. The doctor's gold watch, worth $110, was on a settee near the bed, but the thief did not take it. The doctor was up three times in the night, but did not discover his loss till 7:15 in the morning.

The biggest haul, however, was made at the residence of Mr. Walter Cousins, Vincent street. Mr. Cousins has a cork leg and on retiring he leaves the leg in his pants. The first indication he had of the burglary was when he got up this morning and could find neither his pants nor his leg. Search was made and they were found on the landing at the head of the stairs, minus $48.50, which was in his pants the night before. The burglar after getting what he wanted went out by the front door.

Over 400 Lives Lost.
LONDON, Feb. 4.—A Chinese steamer, supposed to have been the Namchow, was lost recently. There were over 400 Chinese on board, besides six Europeans. All hands perished except 29 Chinamen. The steamer sank in sight of the China merchant steamer Meelee. H. M. S. Porpoise having been dispatched to search for the sunken vessel, the admiral received the following telegram from Capt. Burr from Swatow: "Steamer, name unknown, foundered off Cape. Five hundred Chinese were on board and about six Europeans. All were lost except 29 Chinese, who saved themselves in the ship's boats. They are now coming on foot to Swatow."

FREE PRESS ON MR. CARLING.
On 26th January the London Free Press told this story to illustrate the anxiety of Mr. Hyman's friends to have Mr. Carling run. Said our contemporary:

"A Grit spew bubbles breathless into the room. On his ashen face is a look of despair. 'Mr. Carling ain't going to run,' he gasps.

Consternation fills the room and the people in it.

"We'll keep up a bold front outside, boys, anyhow."

"Easier said than done," growls another inmate of the little room.

This was the Free Press' view of it, then, when it is thought Mr. Carling had been successfully frozen out by the efforts of Mr. Hyman's fearful opponents. It makes the position of the paper laughable now. "Oh, these sharp curves," sighs the unhappy editor.

NEW KIND OF GLASS.

A Composition Which Possesses Much Greater Advantages.

A Vienna glass manufacturer claims to have produced a substitute for glass which contains all of the transparent, colorless and resistance to acid properties of glass, while it has the greater advantage of being pliable and to a great degree inflexible.

In speaking of the new preparation, the writer says: "I dissolve from 4 to 8 parts collodion wood in about 100 parts by weight of ether or alcohol or acetic ether, and with this I intimately combine from 2 to 4 per cent of castor oil, or other non-resinous oil, and 4 to 10 per cent of resin or Canada balsam (soft resin)."

The compound, when poured upon a glass plate and subjected to the drying action of a current of air about 50 degrees centigrade, solidifies in a comparatively short time into a transparent, glass-like sheet or plate, the thickness of which may be regulated as required.

Managers or Worse.
A warning to the friends of Mr. Hyman is supplied by the experience of one of his committeemen who lives on Grey street.
The other evening a man rushed down to the house of this committeeman, and said:
"Mr. J. W. Little has sent me down for you, and I have to take it up at once." The committeeman did not like the appearance of the visitor, and promptly informed him that he would take it up himself. He was surprised when he met Mr.
Little, to discover that he had sent no such message, and that the dishonest expedient was adopted in order to forward the interests of Mr. Hyman's opponent. No other explanation appears possible. Committeemen cannot be too careful.

Canadian Poultry at the World's Fair.
A deputation, consisting of Messrs. Allen Bogue, London (chairman), J. J. Mason, Bowmanville, Jos. Dilworth, Toronto, and W. H. Doll, Eglinton, Ontario, waited on the Minister of Agriculture in Toronto recently in relation to the advisability of the poultry interests of Ontario being represented at the World's Fair in Chicago next year. Mr. Dryden received the gentlemen in a friendly and friendly manner, and became much interested in the reasons assigned why the Government should lend their assistance to further this object and bring it to a successful issue. Before leaving, the delegates were very much pleased to receive a promise from the Hon. the gentleman to this effect, that the Ontario Government would take full charge of the poultry exhibit for the Columbian Exhibition, and he had no doubt but arrangements would be made that would be in every way satisfactory to all Provincial breeders.

A RATTLING MEETING.
Mr. Taylor's Fine Reception
in the East End.

Addresses by a Workingman and a Farmer—A Marshall Man Speaks—
His Candid Admission.

Mr. Geo. Taylor, the Independent candidate, had a splendid meeting in the East End Hall last night. The big place was filled with the electors of that part of the riding, and they were attentive, appreciative and enthusiastic.

Mr. Joseph Simmons was voted to the chair. He said Mr. Taylor's opponents had claimed that all the evidence was in the election trial. This was not the case, as Mr. Marshall could have been unseated half a dozen times.

Mr. Taylor was given a warm reception upon rising. His opponents stated that as he was the candidate of no political organization he had no right to oppose Mr.
Marshall. He thought by the support given him at the last election that in sentiment and feeling he held many in sympathy with his position and platform. (Cheers.)

His Conservative friends in the city had waited on him and tried to drive him back into the old party lines on the Saturday before his election as mayor for the second term, and had told him that if he did not agree to their demands he would be defeated. The speaker told them that he would stand by his former position as an independent man. That was when he ran against Mr. Callard and he was elected.
(Cheers.) Mr. Minihnick was brought out by the Conservatives, and the speaker wondered why they thought he (Mr. Taylor) was getting too far away from the party.
A gentleman came down from Ottawa to urge Mr. Minihnick's nomination and election; but without success. (Cheers.)

The speaker said he favored free trade if it was obtainable, but he would not agree to a tariff reduction of duty on sugar and other articles he was denounced as an annexationist. (Laughter.)
Some of the duty had been since taken off and sugar made cheaper, and was anyone more of an annexationist now because of that? (Cheers.) Reciprocity could not hurt the farmers if, as it was claimed, the selling price was fixed in the foreign market. (Hear, hear.) Farmers could remember that some years ago, when the Buffalo market was easier of access, Americans were buying up our sheep and cattle by the hundreds in this country.
(Cheers.) While wanting a liberal trade policy with the States, he would not favor discrimination against Great Britain. For fifteen or seventeen years he had been in the active pursuit of farming; yet some of his opponents sneered at him for calling himself a retired farmer. Incidentally he touched on the L. and P. S. R. and the car shops questions as affecting the people of East London more particularly. He had advocated the connection of the two questions in the Council, and although the Council then did not accept his views, they were now doing just as he had contended for by sending a deputation to Montreal to talk about the L. and P. S. R. with Mr. Sergeant. In concluding he said he would serve his constituents as best he could. (Laughter.)

Mr. A. Shebbottom, of London township, a former neighbor of Mr. Taylor's there, and a Conservative, made a short address.
He had been at one of Mr. Marshall's meetings recently, and the chief topic seemed to be about Mr. Taylor's loyalty. (Laughter.) He was at a loss to know how they made out Mr. Taylor's disloyalty. As farmers they felt that the high protective tariff was prejudicial to the farmers' interests to some extent, and enabled others to make money at the farmers' expense. Sugar, salt and other commodities were higher in price than they ought to be. (Hear, hear.) When Mr. Taylor lived near him he was a model farmer. Personally he had nothing against Mr. Marshall, but Mr.
Taylor's policy was preferable. He condemned the publication of anonymous letters in the press against Mr. Taylor. He knew the farmers were going to give Mr.

243 DUNDAS STREET

Taylor good support and elect him by a good majority. (Cheers.)

Mr. R. Dunn said he was a workingman, and had also been a Conservative, but was now a supporter of Mr. Taylor. He had made a good mayor in the city, and would do as well in Parliament. (Cheers.) Mr.
Marshall had voted to take the duty off corn for use by brewers, but not for feed. Farmers could not grow sufficient for home use, and it was unfair to take the duty off for the brewers and not for the poor people and the farmers. (Cheers.) As a workingman he felt the present policy tended to destroy Cheese. You might as well give up minor factories and build up big combines.
He would like to ask our workingmen if it were better for them in East London ten years ago than now. Then the Globe Works and the Ontario car shops were running, but they had been crushed out.
(Hear, hear.) Mr. J. R. Minihnick now had only five or six men employed. (Laughter.) A few years ago salt was 50 cents a barrel, and now it was over double that price just to benefit a combine. (Hear, hear.) "I am loyal to my country and will support the British flag so long as I can stand," said the speaker, "and I believe the Reform party is just as loyal as the Conservative party is. (Loud cheers.) George Taylor was mayor of London for three years, and is there a Conservative or Reformer who can point the finger of scorn at him?
(Cheers.) Let us turn the man out who favors taxing the necessities of life.
You might as well send to Ottawa a machine wound up to vote whenever the party pressed the button as
Mr. Marshall. (Cheers and laughter.)
The speaker characterized W. W. Fitzgerald's attitude towards Mr. Taylor as unworthy of a brother Orangeman. "I know a man here who wants annexation?" (Cries of "No.") "Then why do they accuse the Reformers of disloyalty everytime? Every Conservative and every Reformer with independent principle should come out and poll his vote—one vote; we don't want two—(loud laughter)—for George Taylor." (Cheers.)

The chairman said any friend of Mr.
Marshall's was welcome to speak. Mr. H.
N. T. Colquhoun took the platform and announced himself as a Conservative and a supporter of Mr. Marshall. Mr. Taylor, he said, denounced bonus giving and yet took credit for what he did to get the car-works here, the main principle of which was a bonus. Mr. Taylor had said that the Liverpool market fixed our prices; therefore, what advantage would farmers get from reciprocity? Neatness to the American market was the only advantage.

"Voice—It's a good one too."
The speaker said he had asked Mr.
Taylor at the nomination which party he would support in case the present Government was in the majority, and he replied that he would support any good measure no matter what party it came from.

"Voice—That's a very fair answer."
Mr. C. contended that it was not a fair answer, but the audience seemed to disagree with him. The speaker said that Mr.
Taylor had attacked his character at the nomination.

Mr. Dunn—Did you not attack Mr.
Taylor's character?
Mr. Colquhoun—No.

Mr. Dunn—Yes, you did on the Hamilton road and in the streets. (Cheers.) Mr. Colquhoun then let the cat out of the bag. "I had no enmity against Mr.
Taylor," said he, "until he incurred it by depriving me and my family of water when he was a water commissioner."

A big laugh greeted this admission at Mr.
Colquhoun's expense.

"Voice—Say, we came here to discuss the Government's policy, and not personal matters." (Cheers.)

Continuing, Mr. Colquhoun denied that the N. P. had built up combines. A salt combine was started, but when the Government found it out the duty on salt was lowered. He wanted to know of any combine the present policy had built up.

"Voice—'Sugar'! 'What about Massey?'"
Mr. Colquhoun—You talk about freetrade England, why there never was such a protectionist country until it was strong enough to hold its own against the world.

"Voice—What was it in 1840?"
Second voice—Yes; and the laboring men got 50 cents a day.

The speaker went on to tell how the N. P.
had stimulated boot and shoe manufacture in the city.

"Voice—Where is it now?"
Mr. Taylor asked that Mr. Colquhoun be given a fair hearing, though advising him to curtail his remarks.

Mr. Colquhoun did not say much more.
He was replied to by Mr. Taylor, who explained the reason of Mr. Colquhoun's animosity which arose out of certain actions of the hospital trust and the water commissioners towards Mr. C. Those actions were in the interests of the city, and not of the individual.

The meeting broke up with cheers for the Queen and Mr. Taylor. Mr. Colquhoun was afterwards heard with calling Mr.
Taylor by a profane name by one of the latter's friends. A wordy war ensued for a time.
