been murdered at Tibet and his body thrown into the river. THE CHINESE TREATY PORTS.

LONDON, Aug. 6.-Ed. Gourlay, Liberal, for Sunderland, questioned the Government in the House of Commons today as to the intentions of the Japanese Government regarding the Chinese treaty ports. Siz Edward Grey, Under Secretary of the Foreign Office, said Japan had promised not to attack Shanghai, and China there-upon had pledged herself not to obstruct the approaches to that port. In response to another question Sir Edward said he did not know at present whether or not coal would be contraband of war.

DENMARK HAS A GRIEVANCE. SHANGHAL, Aug. 6 .- Denmark has demanded the release of Herr Muhlenstedt, a passenger on the dispatch boat Isao Kiang, which was captured by the Japanese July 25. While the Japanese Minister, accompanied by his suite and the Japanese consul, were leaving Tien-Tsin on Aug. 3 they were attacked by a crowd of Chinese soldiers, who seized their baggage and threatened them with personal damage, but Li Hung Chang sent a force of troops to the scene.

A NEW JAPANESE MINISTER. WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6 .- A telegram was received at the Japanese legation today announcing the appointing of Shinichiro Kurino, chief of the diplomatic bureau of the department of Foreign Affairs to envoy extraordinary and minister plenipetentiary to the United

Mr. Kurino was one of the students sent to this country by the Government of Japan twenty years ago when that Government decided upon the policy of sending her young men abroad to study in colleges and universities of Europe and America. After mastering the English language he studied law at Harvard College. His abilities and characteristics are recognized not only by his own Government, but also by the officials of the foreign governments whose duties have brought them into contact

The recent announcement from Japan that Kentaro Kaneko would be appointed to succeed Minister Tateno was premature. LI HUNG CHANG IS ALL RIGHT.

London, Aug. 6.—A dispatch to the Central News from Tien-Tsin says Li Hung Chang continues to direct the war preparations of the Chinese. Today he received the newly arrived troops. The absence of his yellow jacket was the subject of much Li Hung Chang has sent a message to the Japanese Minister expressing regret for the treatment to which the Minister was subjected in Taku, and promising that the offending Chinese soldiers will be punished. The soldiers abused and derided the Minister and threw mud and stones at him.

"A telephone line has been established between Taku and Tien-Tsin. The commander at Taku has prepared to block the Pei Ho on short notice. The laying of the torpedos continues. All competent men in the training schools have been drawn for service in the various warships."

The Shanghai correspondent of the Central News telegraphs: "Yesterday's report that there had been another engagement off the Corean coast, in which three Chinese warships had been captured by the Japanese, is not credited here. The Chinese northern fleet remains in Weihai-Wei, and no Chinese transports have recently ventured to sea.

The Russian troops north of the Truemen River have been re-enforced. Several Japanese transports escorted by war ships have been sighted in the Yellow Sea. It is presumed that they were bound for Chemulpo. Loss $3,500,000. London, Aug. 6.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Times telegraphs: Li Hung Chang expects that England will claim compensation for the relatives of the Kow Shing victims, and for the owner of the vessel and cargo. He estimates the indemnity due China for the sinking of Kow Shing at $3,500,000.

Prof. Thomas E. Holland, an eminent authority on international law, has written a long letter to the Times concerning the Kow Shing affair. He contends that when the Kow Shing was sunk a state of war existed. The flying of the British flag, he says, whether a ruse or other-wise, is immaterial. The Kow Shing was clearly part of a hostile expedition which the Japanese were entitled to prevent from reaching its goal. The officers having been duly freed, no violation of neutral rights occurred. No apology is due Great Britain, nor have the owners of the vessel or the relatives of the lost Europeans

Ensign was thrown into a cell in an old Government prison, where he was kept prisoner for twelve years, when he was taken out and given to a prominent Catholic priest as a body guard and servant, and for nine years he was a slave. The priest, with Ensign as a valet, started on a year's tour, arriving in New Orleans about a month; ago, when Ensign deserted him, starting north to try and find his wife, whom he had left in this city. Yesterday he reached Michigan City and made his way to the home of James and John Prentice, two prominent farmers, who are nephows of his, where he found his

Sales, especially of corn, were made with a total disregard of price and at quotations varying from 31 to 31 per cent higher than yesterday's close for morning, and from 14 to 5 cents higher than that day's last figure for September corn. The uproar did not cease after the first raids had been made, as is usually the case, but were continued throughout the first half hour, the frantic bids outnumbering the offerings 2 to 1. The drought throughout the West was unbroken last night and in this circumstance lay the motiveffor the unusual activity and strength.

Queer Articles Sometimes Find Resting Place in Their Stemache. Some very odd things are come across by the ornithologists who are engaged in examining the stomachs of various kinds of birds for the purpose of ascertaining what they eat and how much of the crops they destroy. In the stomach of a crow was Powell, London; H. Bishop, Parkhill; W. found a warbler, says the Boston Tran-H. May, St. Thomas; W. R. Johnson, script. The stomach of the warbler contained a caterpillar, and the traces of the vegetation on which the latter had fed were clearly discerned under the microscope. Another oddity discovered in the stomach of a crow was a rubber elastic band, which had evidently been picked up by mistake for a worm. Once in awhile a bedbug is found in the stomach of a woodpecker. Doubtless the insects are got from pine trees. Pine cones are often infested by bedbugs, which must have lived on those trees long before they became human parasites. Ticks, too, which likewise breed on trees, are discovered occasionally in birds' stomachs, though so rarely as to suggest that the feathered creatures are afraid of them and would avoid them as a rule. The insects in a bird's stomach are ordinarily counted by their jaws. For example, caterpillars have soft bodies, which are quickly digested, leaving their jaws to be gradually ground up and disposed of in the gizzard. The jaws of beetles, caterpillars and grasshoppers are made of one of the most enduring substances in nature, being nearly as hard as the teeth of mammals. They are very characteristic, so that the difference may readily be told between those of a cricket, a grasshopper, a locust, etc. The jaws found in the stomach of a bird are counted and divided by two, which gives the number of insects represented. Cuckoos are the only birds that eat hairy caterpillers so far as is known. The horny linings of their gizzards are sometimes found so thickly perforated by the sharp and strong hairs of these insects as to be actually "fuzzy" when dried. Not long ago a crow from Oregon was examined whose digestive apparatus contained a beetle of a rare species so rare that the specimen would have been worth $15 if it had been in good condition.

RUB THE OTHER EYE.

Good Advice of an Engineer Regarding the Removal of Cinders. Nine persons out of every ten with a cinder or any foreign substance in the eye will instantly begin to rub the eye with one hand while hunting for their handkerchief with the other. They may and sometimes do remove the offending cinder, but more frequently they rub until the eye becomes inflamed. Bind a handkerchief around the head and go to bed. This is all wrong. The better way is not to rub the eye with the cinder in it at all, but rub the other eye as vigorously as you like. A few years since I was riding on the engine of a fast express. The engineer threw open the front window, and I caught a cinder that gave me the most excruciating pain. I began to rub the eye with both hands. "Let your eye alone and rub the other eye" (this from the engineer). I thought he was chaffing me and worked the harder. "I know you doctors think you know it all, but if you will let that eye alone and rub the other one, the cinder will be out in two minutes," persisted the engineer. I began to rub the other eye. Soon I felt the cinder down near the inner canthus, and made ready to take it out. "Let it alone and keep at the well eye," shouted the doctor pro tem. I did so for a minute longer, and looking into a small glass he gave me found the offender on my cheek. Since then I have tried it many times, and have advised many others, and have never known it to fail in one instance, unless it was something sharp as a piece of steel or something that cut the ball and required an operation to remove it .-

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

Clese of the First Year of Its Existence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., HOUSE, Aug. 6 -The first year of active existence of the 53rd Congress closed with the session today. There was nothing in the proceedings in the House, however, to indicate the fact. Most of the day was spent in discussing the conference report on the Indian Appropriation Bill. The conferees had come together upon every item except the one relating to the ratification of the treaties with the Sioux and Nez Perces Indians for the division of their respective reserves. There was a pretty long and interesting discussion in the Senate today over Mr. Chandler's resolution for an inquiry into the history of the Dominion Coal Company, of Nova Scotia, and over Mr. Mills' amendments to it, proposing to extend the inquiry to coal and transportation companies in the United States that might be affected by the Canadian competition as to whether the members of Congress or officers of the Government held any pecuniary interest in these companies. At the close of the morning hour the matter went over without action. The remainder of the day's session was occupied in the discussion of the Anti-Anarchistic Bill, which was finally passed and sent to a conference committee. The conference report on the River and Harbor Appropriation Bill was agreed to, and the Senate at 5:45 adjourned.

The Street Railway Company Did Not Receive the Amended Offer,

And Therefore Did Not Reply-A Trip to Montreal-No New Watering Cart-A Lesson to Sidewalk Contractors-The Band Concort Squable.

The City Council held its regular meeting last night and got through its business with surprising promptitude. City Clerk Kingston was at his post again after his holidays, and a couple of errors in the printing of the minutes in his absence were remedied. No reply was received from the street railway company with reference to the late offer, but this was not to be wonhad not yet been sent to the company. As the next regular meeting fell on Civic Holiday the council adjourned until the second week in September. The members present were: Mayor Essery, Ald. Taylor, John Heaman, John Pritchard, Stephen O'Meara, J. W. Jones, W. C. Coo, Wm. Heaman, Robt. Carrothers, Thos. Jones, M. Scarrow, J. Fitzgerald, H. Dreaney, F. J. Fitzgerald, J. Nutkins, Joseph Judd, Geo. Shaw and Ed Parnell.

COMMITTEE REPORTS. No. 3 committee report recommended a trip for Chief Roe, the city engineer and a member of No. 3 committee, to the National Association of Fire Engineers in Montreal on Aug. 14, 15, 16 and 17.

Ald. Carrothers and J. W. Jones took exception to the city engineer going along. Mr. Jones thought that two members of the committee should go.

Ald. Thomas Jones thought that the engineer should go. And Ald. O'Meara moved that only the chief be sent. Lost. The clause was adopted, and the chief, the engineer and a member of No. 3 committee will go.

The purchase of a new watering cart from George Heaman at $225 was recommended.

After a long debate Ald. J. W. Jones said that proper care had not been taken of the present carts. He moved that in the fall tenders be called for the overhauling and repairing of the present carts and for one new cart if found necessary.

This amendment carried and the original clause was struck out. NUMBER TWO COMMITTEE.

The first clause of No. 2 committee's report recommended that $132 be granted to the First Hussars' Band for band concert purposes.

Ald. Judd moved that the amount be taken out of the fund already placed for that purpose.
Ald. Taylor urged that the clause be voted down. The Seventh Band was a citizens' band and should be encouraged. Ald. Judd added to his motion that the bands play alternately until the $132 was Mayor Essery-Who runs the city? Is that the best music should be supplied. cliques trying to push the interests of certain bands.

Ald. Thomas Jones and Ald. Judd said that the members of the different bands were all citizens, and they should be treated on the same level. The latter explained that the Seventh, anyhow, had just twice as much of the appropriation as either of the other bands.

Ald. Judd's motion carried. The engineer reported that he was unable to recommend the acceptance of the Carling and less energetic boys, and beyond them street artificial stone walk from Mr. S. H. Craig, the contractor. He had notified that gentleman that unless the work was made satisfactory the $500 already paid on it would have to be returned. Ald. J. W. Jones moved that the engineer be instructed to see that the specifications were carried out.

Ald. F. J. Fitzgerald said that the councilliad accepted a cheap walk instead of a good one. Mr. Craig now wanted to lay down a new surface at a 60 per cent advance in cost. He asked if that could be done.

The mayor said that it could be done, but the city would have to pay the cost. Ald. Parnell said that the ratepayers who wanted the cheap walk should pay the difference (about $600).

Ald. Judd characterized the matter as a piece of cheek on Mr. Craig's part and on the part of his surety to expect the city to pay the difference.

Ald. J. W. Jones' motion carried. On the suggestion of Ald. James Fitzgerald the macadam pavement on Dufferin avenne will be extended from Colborne to Maitland street. NUMBER ONE COMMITTEE.

The accounts contained one of $104 80 expenses of a deputation to Ottawa and hard. Detroit on business connected with the L. E. and D. R. R. The band concert item amounted to $128.25. The total of the accounts was $10,893 55.

The report was adopted without alteration, as printed in the ADVERTISER of Saturday last.

INQUIRIES. By Ald. Coo-Has there been any reply from the London Street Railway Company to the offer as amended?

The Mayor-No; not yet. Ald. Coo-I heard today that the company had not yet received the offer from the council.

This was found to be so. City Clerk Kingston had been away on his holidays and his substitute had not attended to the matter. Mr. Kingston said he would look after the same to-day. BYLAWS.

The Beaconsfield avenue bylaw was read for the third time and passed. The free library bylaw was read for the second and third time and passed. The council adjourned at 10 o'clock.

GALA DAY AT KINGSTON.

Handsome Monument Unveiled by Archbishop Cleary.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 6.—The handsome monument erected on the grounds of the general hospital by Archbishop Cleary in memory of his countrymen who perished here during the plague, 1847-48, was unveiled in the presence of a great gathering of citizens. The monument-plinth, pedestal and statue-stands nearly twelve feet high. The statue, which is of purest Carrara marble and was sculptured in Italy, is a figure of the Angel of the Resurrection. It is erested on the top of the mound beneath which were laid nearly half a century ago the remains of the plaguestricken Irish who had been driven to this city in dire distress, having contracted the pestilence in the fetid holes of the old wooden sailing vessels that carried them with fatal slowness of motion across the Atlantic, whilst the germs of disease begotten of famine were developing from day to day among the imprisoned crowd of human beings that lay helpless between the decks for many weeks.

SHORT TALKS ON ADVERTISING

(By Charles Austin Bates.)

The down town terminus of the Third wenue elevated road in New York is exactly opposite the entrance to the Brooklyn bridge. As one comes down the stairway from the elevated, or comes out of the it the council or is it the bands or the fac- | bridge entrance, he is met by a number o tions behind the bands. The mayor further newsboys, each one carrying his papers and said that the city's honor was at stake, and at the same time holding out his hand in the hope of receiving the paper which you They were bothered every night with are through with. These papers are either sold again or returned to the newspaper offices as unseld copies.

There is as much difference in the methods of these newsboys as there is in those of business men who advertise, Some of the boys push to the front and seem to catch the eyes of almost everybody. There is another kind of boy who stands a little bit in the background, but who astill reaches out his hand. Out on the edge are some of the smaller, weaker are some who take no interest in the proceedings at all, who receive few papers and sell few. The boy who asks oftenest and keeps most persistently in the foreground, is the boy who gets the most papers. The advertiser who keeps his business prominently before people and asks persistently and often for their trade is the one who will get the most business. The man who is nearly as energetic will get the business that is left, and the one who stands around on the edge with his bands in his pockets may very reasonably and justly expect to get "what the boy shot at. Advertising reduced to the lowest terms is merely asking people for their trade. That's all there is of it. A business man wants trade in some particular line. If it is a good line, and if he understands it and runs his business properly, it is only a question of asking enough people and asking them often. In the dull season, when comparatively few people are buying any-thing, the advertising effort should be increased as the number of possible buyers decreases. It is easier to sell $10 worth of goods among 1,000 people than it is to sell that much among 100 people. If there are only 100 people to work on, work them

As the bar at the mouth of the river is of soft mud. The vice-president of the company is of the opinion that no special harm has been done, beyond the inconvenience resulting from the delay while the cargo is being shifted. The same officer stated that newspaper reports to the effect that arms and other articles contraband of war are being carried by the Canadian Pacific is without foundation; everybody connected with the company's steamship service was cautioned to do nothing that might furnish ground for complaint on the part of either of the contending nations.

THE RECENT INTERCOLONIAL CONFERENCE.

The official report of the Intercolonial Conference at Ottawa has just been given to the press after careful revision. An attentive perusal only confirms the impression already formed by the Canadian public that while the idea of the conference was well-intentioned, and its realization an edifying illustration of the unity of the empire, it has been barren of practical

This was the confession of one of the ablest delegates, Mr. Lee Smith, of New Zealand, who, on almost the last day of their deliberations, after the assembly had coronounced upon the main issues before it and mapped out its lines of action, remarked "that the conference had hitherto been discussing only abstract questions, and that they were going home without any result at all." Even the Earl of Jersey, the shrewd diplomat of the mother land, appointed by Lord Rosebery to play a passive part in the conference-to keep his ears open and his mouth closed, in fact-felt constrained to ask his colleagues to reduce their vaporing to facts, "because," he said, "unless I get something of that kind I think you will see I shall be placed in a very difficult position, and will have to generalize a good deal in the matter."

It is only necessary to quote the resolution of Mr. Foster, the Canadian Finance Minister, to show one reason why success did not crown their efforts:

"Whereas, the stability and progress of the British Empire can be best assured by drawing continually closer the bands that unite the colonies with the mother country, and by a continuous growth of a practical sentiment and co-operation in all that pertains to the common welfare;

"And, whereas, this co-operation and unity can in no way be more effectually promoted than by the cultivation and extension of the mutual and profitable interchange of their products;

"Therefore, resolved: "That this conference record its belief in the advisability and practical possibility of a customs arrangement between Great Britain and her colonies, by which trade between the empire may be placed on a more favorable tooting than that which is earried on with foreign countries.

"That, impending the assent of the mother country to such an arrangement, in which she shall be included, it is desirable that the colonies of Great Britain, or such of them as may be disposed to accede to this view, take immediate steps to place each other's products on a more favored customs basis than is accorded to the like products of foreign countries." There can be no objection to the preamble, though it comes with scant grace from one who has done his utmost to discourage British trade with Canada by refusing to lower the customs walls against her; but when Mr. Foster attempts to resurrect the corpse of British differential trade, which has long been buried under the weight of public ridicule in England, and to galvanize it into the liveliest issue of the conference, he sets the stamp of failure on it from the start. He must have known that he was chasing a phantom, but if he did not, as every sane politician does, there were those at the Conference who did not hesitate to tell him. Mr. Suttor, of New South Wales, pointed out that the resolution invited England to abandon her free trade policy, and asked if they were at this time prepared to commit themselves to such an expression of opinion as that? Mr. Lee Smith, of New Zealand, believed the true policy of England was in continuing free trade. Said he: "Mr. Foster's proposed differential allowance of 5 per cent would be inappreciable in comparison with the great market of London. Great Britain had thrown open her ports to the world of raw products, and to help the colonies in the way proposed she would have to put a duty on these. English people would not stand a duty on wheat or wool or any similar commodity."

If other arguments were needed to convince Mr. Foster of the folly of the preferential trade fad, they were supplied by the Earl of Jersey. He warned the conference that though it was within its power to record its belief as to the practical possibility of the first resolution, yet he thought he ought to point out that it would be well to consider, before the resolution was passed, whether there were not difficulties in the way. More than three-fourths, or 76 per cent, of Britain's trade, he reminded them, was outside the empire. If Great Britain was called upon usually fifteen years and its earnings to break up the whole of her commercia | 300,000.

this outside trade would undergo an alteration of some kind, continued the earl, and effect any great change would have on this 76 per cent of the trade which she carried on with the world. Though these remarks of Earl Jersey's were doubtless carefully guarded and "craftily qualified" to conform with his delicate relations to the conference, the inference is plain that he considered the proposition not only chimerical, but rash. Mr. Foster's resolution, however, was carried, the vote by colonies being:

"Yeas-Canada, Tasmania, Cape of Good Hope, South Australia, Victoria-5.
"Nays-New South Wales, New Zealand, Queensland-3."

The delegates who voted for it probably did so under the impression that though it was hopeless to look for such concessions, there could be no harm in asking for them. In opposition to the claim that this scheme would immensely benefit the colonies by giving their produce an advantage in the English market, is the view of Hon. Mr. Forrest, the delegate from Queensland. He

"England is the great dumping place, for the surplus products of the world are received there. There she manufactures these products and prepares them for distribution all over the world. England does not produce wool. She does not produce sugar, and there are lots of other things England does not produce; but you find amongst her exports a large amount of woollen goods that we do produce, and therefore, as a matter of fact, you will find that we are exporting to these foreign countries through England and to all her dependencies. Therefore, I say it behooves us to be most careful in anything that we may do in matters of this sort, and not interfere in any way with anything that will alter or cripple the trade of England. England, from her position and limited area, does not produce what exports. Therefore she must get the raw material from somewhere, and, as she is a great exporting and manufacturing country it is absolutely necessary that she should get the raw products as cheaply as she can. She must get the food for her people as cheaply as possible. The greatest bulk of England's trade is with foreign countries with whom she has treaties; and England's trade means our trade, and if we are not careful it may cause these nations to terminate these treaties at twelves months; and what I would like to have considered is this: Is it advisable to put a formal motion of this kind before the world, or is it advisable to try and get what we want without opposition? That is what I want to convey; and I think really this is worthy of consideration. The suspension of the treaties of the fereign nations with England would limit her trade and also limit our trade."

Mr. Forrest goes on to say that the colonies, should they secure a preferential tariff, might defeat their own object, that of extending their commerce, for if the mother country should cripple her own trade by yielding to this demand of her children, the business of the colonies, which is dependent upon that of Britain, must needs suffer

In a moment of candor-not weakness-Mr. Foster declared: "I want to see Britain's trade strongly developed, but you can search the annals through and you will find that Britain looks after number one, Europe wouldn't do it! and her colonies have to look after number one as well, and when it comes to business, her colonies ought to look after number one." In the next breaththis consistent politician moves a resolution demanding that Britain tax every man, woman and child within her borders, imperil 76 per cent. of her commerce, and shatter her whole financial fabric, which she has been 50 years erecting, all out of pure love for her colonies! Mr. Foster was right for once in saying that Britain looked after number one. Hard-headed, sensible John Bull allows no sentiment to interfere with business, and will quietly relegate the by no means unanimous resolution of the conference to oblivion. Mr. Foster advises the colonies to follow Britain's example and look out for number one in their own dealings. This is exceedingly rich, coming from the leader of a party which has sacrificed the commercial interests of the country and traded on spurious sentimena

The second part of Mr. Foster's resolution looks towards an extension of intercolonial trade on the preferential tariff plan. Canada needs an increase of markets as well as a decrease of taxation; but she cannot afford to pay too dearly for the former, and it is a question whether trade forced into artificial channels will be profitable, when our politicians refuse to cultivate natural markets at our doors at the bidding of monopoly. Mr. Foster during the discussion found the French wine treaty a veritable thorn in the flesh, because its enactment precluded the Australian colonies from receiving any ariff preference in that product over their

French competitors in the Canadian market. The project of the Pacific cable was lebated very fully. The commercial advantages of this cable would accrue almost entirely to the Australian countries or account of their remote and isolated positions; yet in the event of its construction Canada is called upon for an immense expenditure of money. Even the Australian delegates were by no means united, Mr. Playford (South Australia) pointing out that the proposed cable would compete with an overland telegraph established by his Government, and that, therefore, his colony would be unable to bear its pro rata share of the subsidy. The cable would be valuable from a strategic point of view, but that is hardly a matter of dollars and cents. The conference finally recommended that a survey of the route be first made, the cost to be borne equally by Britain, Canada and Australia. The third subject of discussion was the fast Pacific steamship service. Canada has already taken a huge load on her shoulders by subsidizing the Atlantic service. The Pacific route. On this matter the latter were likewise divided. The ideal of imperial unity can best be attained by following the imperial trade example, and the colonies are fast realizing it. Under the guidance of trade restrictionists they will never reach the goal.

Our idea is that he remembered how dull and long were some of the speeches from the throne with which he was afflicted in his reportorial days, and determined to give something lively, flamboyant, elequent and discursive, such as might serve as a model for all future generations. An extended and rhetorical speech to match the new Government House is in accordance with the

AN EDUCATOR.

Lucy Laney, of Augusta, Ga., is one of those remarkable women of her race who, in a modest way, have done so much for the education of their race. She is at the head of the Haines Industrial School at Augusta. She was born of slave parents, near Augusta, and at the close of the war was only a child. She had a great thirst for education, but had no means to secure it. Much to her surprise and gratification, two Christian women of the north met her and were so impressed by her that they gave her a scholarship in Atlanta University, where she remained until her education was completed. She went back to Augusta and began her life-work, in the course of which she met Dr. Allen, the then secretary of the Home Mission Board of Educators for the Presbyterian work in the south. She asked him for a commission that would give her the power to start a school in the interest of the Presbyterian work. Dr. Allen wanted to know where she was to get the money to support the work. She told him to give her the power and God would help her to get the money. He gave her the commission, and in just two years the board was compelled to give her a building to accommodate the eager scholars she had gathered about her. Ten thousand dollars was appropriated for the purpose, and the once slave child is now president of one of the most important female institutions of its character in the south .- [Philadelphia Ledger.

BASEBALL. HAMILTON DROPS TWO TO GALT.

Hamilton, Aug. 6.—Two baseball matches in the Canadian Western League series were played at Dundurn Park between Galt and Hamilton teams. The morning game was a very one-sided affair, and resulted in a bollow victory for Galt.

The afternoon game was close and exciting throughout, but the visitors by playing a faultless game were again victorious. The home team made more hits, but their errors were costly. Score:

| R. H. E. | 2 6 0 | Hamilton | 1 9 5 | Batteries—Lomas and Baker; | Burnett and Cockman.

NOTES OF THE GUELPH GAME. Carney's father accompanied him to Guelph and had the pleasure of seeing his son pitch the best game of ball played in many a season on the Guelph grounds. The latter club were loud in their praise of his effective work in the box. O'Connor, the Guelph's first baseman of last season, was on the grounds. He has just returned from the Southern League. Guelph leaves today for a three days' trip to Cobourg, Port Hope and Lindsay.

Thorpe's throwing to second was beautiful. He caught Bradford and McElroy in succession in the fourth. The fifth includ was very disastrous. Hiscott threw wild off Powers' hit. The two batters were easily retired. Downs gave the Alerts a chance to retire the side by placing a high fly to left center. Ball and Hynd can for it and allowed it to drop. It was the tormer's ball, and he said after the game that he should have taken it. Congalton drove a line grounder to Farnworth, who allowed it to rol! through his legs, the batter going the rounds of the bases before the ball was returned. A single and a triple followed. Not one run should have scored.

Hiscott usually throws pretty well, but his eye and arm must have lest their judgment. Both throws to first were from the same distance and thrown in underhand in the eighth, but could do nothing but a slow hit to Congalton. He had three balls and one strike called on him when he hit Guelph has very bad accommodation for newspaper men to score a game.

Daddy Dewns is the "king" in Guelph. He could do nothing with Carney's delivery.

Snyder, for Guelph, covered a let of ground and threw finely to first. Guelph eclipsed London by their excellent fielding.

One hundred and ninty-six tiekets for Guelph were sold from London.

Dyson's umpiring was faultess. Not one decision was disputed. There is a possibility of London still winning the pennant. Guelph has three games to play, one with Hamilton and two with London. Guelph is scheduled to play in London on Saturday, but claim that arrangements were made with Weber at Galt to play two games in London on civic holiday. THE WHEEL. BICYCLE EVENTS AT GUELPH.

The Guelph Bicycle Club held their annual meet yesterday afternoon on the same grounds on which the baseball game was played in the morning. About 1,500 people witnessed the sport. The meet, although successful financially, did not create much enthusiasm. The interest for the London people who attended was centered in Radway, Little and Blackwell, who were entered in several of the races. Radway took first in the one mile 2:40 class and Little second in the one-mile novice. The latter race was declared off on ecount of the slow time.

G. M. Wells met with an accident in the quarter mile open. On the turn into the home stretch his wheel collapsed, throwing him onto his knees. The left knee was badly scraped. This kept him from taking part in any of the other events, and also disappointed the large number of riders present, as he was to ride with a pacer to nake a mile record for the track. Hyslop obliged the Guelph people by going instead, and made a track record with flying start of 2:08 4.5, being paced by Moore and Hulse on a tandem. The Canadian record is 2:05 3-5, made at Sarnia. known to the meteorologist are found on Mount Washington, where the crystals are often a foot long. THE last criminals who were beheaded in England were the Cato street conspirators in 1820, though they had previously been killed by hanging. IF man had been limited to the use of his natural weapons of defense he would long since have been beaten out of the contest by the animal kingdom. MRS. DOLLY PENTREATH, who died in the village of Mousehale, on Mount's Bay, in 1788, aged 102, was the last person who spoke the Cornish language. Muscles of the eyes, ears and nose show that several groups, which in the lower animals are very highly developed, in man are in an almost rudimentary condition. GLUCK's life was made a burden by musical squabbles. He was a peaceable man, but it was his misfortune to be constantly mixed up in the broils of his admirers and their opponents. SWEDEN is the most Protestant country in the world. Out of a population of 6.000.000 but 2.000 are Roman Cathelics. The remainder belong almost exclusively to the Lutheran church. IT Is asserted that James T. Hightower, ZEKE CLOTTS, of Mobile, Ala., is the owner of an ox with a natural knot in the middle of his tail. Several veterinary surgeons have tried to untie it, but their efforts caused the animal to emit a strange hoarse cry. The tail is so shortened by the knot that it is practically valueless to switch off flies.

THOSE swimming wild hogs of Arizona are doubtless of the razor-back variety seen in the pine forests on the eastern shore of Maryland. They are fleet beasts, the razorback hogs of Maryland, and good swimmers, as are all lean swine. Fat swine float admirably, but when they swim their snarp fore hoofs dig cruelly into the hanging flesh of the breast and neck and the swimmer is sometimes exhausted from loss of blood.

A FISH exerts its great propulsive power who want them are enicined not to delay.

Those portant instence played this alternoon in the singles. The Parker-Landreth match with its tail, not its fins. The paddle wheel was very pretty tennis to watch, although was made on the fin theory of propulsion. and the screw propeller had its origin in noting the action of the tail. It is now shown that the fins of the tail actually perform the evolutions described by the propeller blades, and that the fish in its sinuous motion through the water depends on the torsional action of the tail to give it power.

The Graves of Royal Dogs.

(From the St. Louis Republic.) One of the most interesting spots in the mmediate vicinity of Windsor Castle, the summer residence of Queen Victoria, is the celebrated "Graveyard for Royal Dogs." It seems that Victoria's husband, the late Prince Albert, was passionately fond of dogs, and from the inscriptions on the largest of the "monuments" in this royal canine burial ground, it is to be inferred that the Prince was the first to mourn the hardened and fossilized by the lapse of loss of a favorite four-footed companion. The inscription on the slab in question is as

> MAURICE, Favorite Mount St. Bernard H. R. H. the Prince Consort, Died November, 1864.

Near by is the grave of "Prince, Scotch terrier, died Feb. 6, 1874," and a little further on is a slab marked "Nellie, mother to Bess, Flora and Sailor; died Oct. 12. 1886." Another little marble slab, about one foot in length, near the grave of Nellie, informs the reader of the inscription that it marks the last resting place of "Mina, daughter of Corran and Princess; born February, 1869, died February, 1873." Within a few paces of the grave of Mina is a slab erected "To the memory of Dot, granddaughter of Corran; died May 3, 1881, aged 9 years." Maurice was the favorite of the Prince Consort, "Gipsy" of the Queen herself. The little monument over Gipsy's grave says that she "died March 15, 1868."

THE ALDERMAN'S DREAM.

Questioned by the Recording Angel. The alderman dreamed that he was dead and with great fear and trembling he stood before the pearly gates, and knocked ever so timidly. "Come into the ante-room," said a voice. The alderman obeyed with the same alacrity he had always shown when on earth he was called into the ante-room to participate in a star chamber session. Then he saw an immense pair of scales and the clerk of the court dressed in white, with a pen interrogation-pointed behind his ear. He trembled, for he realized that his time had come for weighing in, and, as he carried no weights in his pockets, he might be found wanting. "Where do you come from?" thundered the voice, now no longer mild. "From London, Ontario," replied the quaking alderman, as he thanked his lucky star that it was not Hamilton, for in that case he would not have stood any show at

"What was your course on the electric railway question ?"

The alderman's conscience smote him, yet he managed to reply, "I wanted cheap fares.'

Was that all! The alderman was going to laugh outright, but he remembered where he was. "No," he replied, "I wanted a percentage." The clerk's pen was working like light ning. "What else?" "Mileage," answered the alderman, un abashed and beginning to feel at home. The man with the pen was looking black and putting down marks equally sombre. "What else did you want, pray?" He was sarcastic now. "The company to supply the paving material." "Go on."

"And to supply all labor."

"And pave or repave whenever the city

"Anything else?" "Well yes. I wanted the line to run past some promising real estate that I owned. Of course it meant crossing several railroad tracks, but then you know it would have increased the value of my property.'

"Nothing else, I suppose!" asked the white-robbed scribe as he prepared to cast up accounts. "Hold on," cried the alderman, as his bosom swelled with conscious pride, "we wanted the company to employ only home labor, and work their men only ten hours a "Did you do that because of your love for the working men, or for votes?" The alderman was candid. He knew it was no time for levity. "Votes," he re-plied, as he hung his head. "Look here, alderman," spoke up the book-keeper, "you want neither heaven nor an electric road. What you want is the earth. First elevator to the left going down. Next!" And the alderman woke to find the coun-

What Came of It.

The Miss Tafferels, looking on from the other end of the table, turned green with envy. Miss Lydia wished she had taken the seat by her aunt, instead of giving it to Dolly. "I wender who he is?" thought she. "I suppose he came in by the five o'clock rain." And when the company left the dining-room, Lydia ran to get a aly peep at be visitors' book.

"The Beron de Fierreville." "A baren! A real, live baren! French, of course!" Lydia Tafferel made a rush to her sisters, her cheeks glowing with excitement. There would be somebody worth dressing for now.

And from that evening the three young girls dressed in all their best. Feathers and flounces wonderful to behold, silks and ribbons and laces; and, though some people might have deemed them a little overdressed, they looked very well.

The Baron de Fierreville did not appear in the drawing-rooms that first evening; but the young ladies made his acquaintance the following morning. It was a very hot day: they and Dolly were sitting on the beach ander an awning, when he came strolling blong with young Mr. Pender.

"Oh, there are those charming girls!"
cried the young man. "Do let us join

'You must present me, then," said the Accordingly young Mr. Pender presented him—"The Baron de Fierreville." The three young ladies make each an elaborate curtaey: Dolly blushed and smiled.

But fate was not kind to young Mr. Pender. It came in the shape of his envious tutor to call him away. A grim tutor, who would not always be put down. So the young gentleman was borne off, and the baron was left alone with the ladies. He sot down by Rosa, and they began to talk to him—all three of them, their questions tumbling out one upon another. There was no room for Dolly to put in a word, wen had she wished to.

"How do you like Brightwater, baron?"

"Don't you find the bathing excellent?" "Why did you not come in to join the little dance last evening?"

"Do you like English girls?"
"How long do you think of staying?"

"I suppose you don't know all the people here yet? Those Miss Fitzroys are very nice. They had on blue net at dinner yesterday; perhaps you noticed them. Their father is Sir John Fitzroy, a half-pay colonel or admiral, or something: that old gentleman with a long white beard and; a

"Do you like cruising about in a yacht?" "Were you ever at Brighton?"

"In what part of France do you live?" These and a hundred other queries, the young ladies poured out. Dolly felt uncomfortable and blushed frequently. She could not have put such questions for the world; did not know how her cousins liked to do it. The baron laughed and answered freely—as freely as the torrent of words

He had landed yesterday from a friend's yacht; had come over in her from Dieppe; his friend, Captain Close, after landing him, had put off again, was going further up the coast; he did not see, as yet, much to like in Brightwater, but believed he did like English girls; had noticed the young ladies in blue and thought them pretty; had sat outside in the moonlight last night found him a most intellectual man; and so stayed there instead of going in to dance; his home was in Normandy, but for the past year he had been much away from it,

The girls listened eagerly to this, the substance of his answers. Lydia would have much liked to ask him how old he was, and whether he was a poor man or a rich one; but that would have been going a little too far, even for her.

"You have not told us, baron," she said, how you learned to speak English so correctly. You have scarcely any accent at all, Did you learn it in England?"
"No, I learned it at home: my mother was English," he answered. "She brought an English maid with her when she first came to our country, and when I was born the maid became my nurse. She is with us still-poor old Hannah !"

'At home, with your mother, do you "Ah, no," he replied, a sadness creeping Into his tone. "My mother is dead; nobody is in the old place now—save the servants.

When I am at home now I am alone." The young ladies noticed that he was in slight mourning, and concluded that he wore it for his mother. The conversation was becoming eminently satisfactory, for was not this an explicit avowal that the baron was a bachelor? Lydia's lips had been twitching to ask whether he was or not, but it was perhaps too home a question and might have been misconstrued; and now it was answered without asking? How lucky! When men get to be 30 years of age-and he looked to be as much as that-one could never be at any certainty. Your father, I gather, is also dead, then, baron ?" she began again.

'He died many years ago.' The baron got up and stepped away; perhaps he was tired of being asked questions; took a small telescope from his pocket, and stood looking at the sea. Presently he put it up again, turned back to the bench, and sat down at the other end, which brought him next to Dolly. She was knitting a sock, and he began talking to her about it.

'For a little brother or sister, perhaps, Mademoiselle ? "Yes," said Dolly, her blue eyes brightening with the success of the guess, as she raised them to his. "I knit all the socks for two or three of the little ones. It is cheaper than buying, and they last

"You have two or three brothers, thenor sisters-are they ?" 'I have ever so many," laughed Dolly. "Four brothers, and four sisters; we are nine in all.

"Are you the eldest of them ?" "Yes, the very oldest. The four boys come after me, and then the little girls. Mamma often says she is thankful I came before the boys. 'But why?' "Oh, because I can help her; I can 'do so much for them all. A boy could not have done anything." "So you are a very industrious young "I have to be," said Dolly simply. "And, oh, you don't know-you can't guess-how delightful it is to have a holiday, and to be at the seaside. I never saw the sea before; and now I wish I could always see it.' "You had better go in now, Dolly," said Miss Lydia. "Aunt Charlotte may be wanting you." And Dolly took up her ball of wool, and went slowly off, knitting as she went.

"She is not your sister, is she, that young lady?" asked the baron.
"Oh dear, no!" they all screamed at once, wondering at the little discernment of men, even of real French barons. They displayed an elaborate toilette in all the fashion of the day; Dolly had nothing on but a pink gingham, already washed to paleness. Their head-gear was bristling with feathers and steel bugles and cuckatoo tufts; Dolly's straw hat had a bit of ribbon twisted round it. "Our sister! My dear baron! how could you! She is only Dorothy Krane, a very distant cousin."
"Dorothy Krane," repeated the baron.

Krane ?" "Yes, rather an lodd name, is it not?— spelt with a K. We call her Dolly." When Miss Hamlet heard that the newly arrived guest was a French baron she felt doubtful. "I think," she observed to her nieces, "that you had better not cultivate any acquaintance with him. He was very pleasant and affable last night at the dinner table; but it is well to held foreign ers at a distance." (To be Continued.)

LAMBTON. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hamilton, of Sarnia, lost their little son, Harold Joseph, aged 4 years and 6 months, last week. The little chap was taken sick about noon and at midnight he was dead. A green apple that he ate was the cause. On Saturday morning Mr. Dan Crump, of Chatham, met with a most unfortunate ac-cident. While at work at Hadley's lumber mili his right hand caught in the machinery and was badly crushed. A surgeon ampu-tated three fingers and the thumb and dressed the wounds.

The smallpox patient in Chatham suburbs has passed the danger stage and is doing well. There are no other cases, and the quarantine is so thorough that no danger is felt of the spread of the disease. There has, however, been a general vaccination in the community.

OXFORD. Burglars made a bold raid on the clothing establishment of Messrs. Yeo & Chiswell, Woodstock, early on Saturday morning. They completely ransacked the store from front to rear, pulling out drawers, removing goods from shelves and getting as much of the stock as possible in readiness for quick removal. They were thus engaged when the night watchman came along, and the burg-lars, three in number, fled, carrying with them about $10 worth of smallwares. The police pursued the marauders and fired three shots after them, but they succeeded in escaping.

Some time ago, owing to domestic troubles, a Woodstock man named Jaques separated from his wife and family and took a position as laborer on a farm in the neighborhood of Strathallan. While there a young girl, some time ago sent out by Miss Rye's English agency, was employed as domestic in the house. The two became intimate, and it was deemed proper by the girl's guardian to remove her from the old man's influence. This was done, but a clandestine meeting was arranged, with the result that the people in the vicinity are considerably excited over the elopement of an old man of 60 and a girl of 19. The police, acting in concord with the girl's guardian, are endeavoring to locate the Sudden Death.

Stephen McCormick, of St. Marys, son of Stephen McCormick, of Elginfield, died quite suddenly yesterday morning. On Friday last he left for home feeling unwell. Inflammation of the bowels was the cause of death. He is the first to die of seven sons. James and John McCormick, of this city, are brothers of the deceased. The former went to Guelph on the excursion yesterday and received the sad news about dinner time. Friendsfin London will learn with sorrow of the sudden death. For about three years he had been traveling for J. D. Moore & Co., of St. Marys. His age was 22,

Foresters at Ingersoll.

The annual demonstration of the Ancient Order of Foresters was held at Ingersoll yesterday, when large delegations were on hand from nearly every town and village in Western Ontario. London not only sent a good contingent, but a Knights of Sherwood and a Robin Hood drill corps as well. A big procession was held in the afternoon, it finally coming to a halt in the town park. Here a series of games and sports was carried out. Drill competitions were also held, and it was very difficult for the judges to award the prizes in some instances, so close were the contests. The Knights of Sherwood Forest of this city executed their foot movements with great precision, but they lacked a little in their sword exercises. Two officers were wanting, and this made it almost impossible for them to secure a prize. The Robin Hood corps was also in hard luck. Fred Showler has had charge of them since their organization, but he did not, for some unaecountable reason, put in an appearance yesterday. The troop, however, was not going to be left in the lurch, and they secured Capt. John Brown to take charge for the day. This well-known authority on drill, though he had never before put the corps through a single move-ment, did remarkably well, and the errors made were of little consequence. The entry could only be made in the all-comers, and Brantford cadets and Stratford K. S. F. carried off first and second prizes respect-

Among the chief attractions in the procession of the Cook & Whitby circus last Saturday was the yellow wagen, which conveys through all of Canada that most desirable of cures "Williams' Royal Crown Remedy". This is what Mr. Weir says, whose life it saved; "This is a most marvelous cure. I became pale as a corpse; my blood seemed to be turned to water. I had dizziness and a ringing noise in my head: my hands and feet were cold all the time, and my lumbs were completely swoolen up to the body. Some doctors called it consumption of the blood. I got so weak that I could not walk, and finally took to my bed." Mrs. Weir says: "All Mr. Weir has told you is true. At times he lay for days unconscious and unable to take nourishment of any kind, and was reduced to a mere skeleton of & pounds; and I fully believe if we had been one day later in getting Williams' Royal Crown Remedy he would be in his grave to-day. government with the aid of a long net, and the judge dropped the newspaper he was reading and his dignity at the same time and defended his dogs with might and main. He did not proceed to argue the case in point according to the latest precedent in law. Instead he said nary a word, but made a bee line for his two little silverhaired poodles. The dog catcher had passed the judge a moment before, but the judge was reading and all unconscious. As he turned he caught sight of the net preparing to land over one of his favorite doggies. To pounce on the little dog was the work of an instant for the agile judge. Then he chased the other one around. For fear that the dog catcher would get the second poodle after all he gently steered it into a cigar store with his foot. Then he emerged triumphant with a dog under each arm. He stopped long enough to explain that the license was paid in the case of both dogs, only they did not happen to wear their tags. There was quite a crowd by this time, and many laughed at the ludicrousness of the situation. The last seen of the judge he was headed south on Richmond street with a beloved dog under each arm. Such high-bred canines could never have endured the company of the pleberan curs in the catcher's trap.

Lord Aberdeen's Estates.

Before the Royal Commission on Agriculture, presided over by Mr. Shaw Lefevre, Mr. George Muirhead, factor for Lord Aberdeen's estates in Aberdeenshire, in the course of his evidence, said that the acreage of Lord Aberdeen's estate was 53,-000 acres, the rental being £40,000 a year. Since 1872 Lord Aberdeen had spent over £200,000 in improvements on the estate. In 1880 £21,000 was returned to the tenants, owing to the disastrous season of 1879; in 1886 £5,068 was returned, and in 1892 £2,039. In 1886 a revaluation was offered to every tenant, and to those who -A handy index map or chart of the accepted it it brought a reduction of about Muskoka Lakes has just been issued by 22 per cent, but nothing like all the tenants Mr. G. He had at least 100 applications for farms lying in his office today. The farms which came to be let were generally let for less than some applicants were willing to give. Judging from the regularity with which rents were paid, he had no reason to suppose that the agricultural depression was felt in Aberdeenshire. His opinion was that the depression existing generally was due to the contraction of the currency and the consequent appreciation of gold. The only remedy he could suggest was an addition to the supply of gold.
