LABOR CANDIDATE IN LONDON; DECISION OF TRADES COUNCIL

Unionist Will Be Placed in the Field at the Approaching By-Election—Position of the Labor Men Toward Both Parties.

A labor candidate for the by-election in London, as announced in Monday's Advertiser, is an assured fact, the Trades and Labor Council at its meeting last night deciding to accede to the request of the Dominion Trades Congress, now sitting in Winnipeg, that a candidate be put in the field.

The labor men of this city have been discussing the matter for some time, but the telegram referred to in The Advertiser Monday hastened the present action.

No man has yet been selected, and no names were discussed by the council, so several prominent labor men stated to The Advertiser today.

On the table was the telegram from the Dominion Congress at Winnipeg saying that Mr. Verville, M. P. for one of the Montreal constituencies, and at present president of the Dominion Congress, Lawyer O'Donohue, of Montreal, the solicitor of the congress, and Allan Studholme, M. L. A. for Hamilton, would come to London at the earliest opportunity, and lay the matter before the labor men here.

The Convention.

The convention for the selection of a candidate will not be called for some time—probably not until the writ for the election is issued. Delegates from every trades council in affiliation with the Trades and Labor Council will be asked, and this convention will choose the candidate. This man's name will then be submitted to a mass meeting of the labor men of the city for their approval.

"I have not the faintest idea who the candidate will be," said a member of the council this morning. "No names have been mentioned so far, but in all probability many will come forward now that a labor candidate is a certainty. We will have a candidate all right, and he will be a good man. I think we can win, too. The labor party is united, and will work diligently for the election of the candidate. I do not know when the convention for choosing the candidate will be held. We will look the possible candidates over, and then decide. A convention can be called within 24 hours after the writ is issued. We have chosen the delegate plan, as a mass meeting would be too unwieldy."

Labor Men's Answer.

Purse of Gold for Capt. McCrimmon

After the completion of the business of the officers of the Seventh Regiment the other night Capt. McCrimmon, the hard-working and efficient adjutant of the regiment, was called forward, and was presented with a purse of gold by Lieut.-Col. Reid on behalf of the officers of the regiment.

Col. Reid referred to the long and splendid service rendered by Capt. McCrimmon, and his faithful efforts to improve the regiment. Not a little of the success achieved by the regiment was due to the untiring efforts put forth by Capt. McCrimmon. Other officers expressed themselves along the same lines.

Capt. McCrimmon made a brief speech, in which he thanked the officers for their kindness to him, and declared that he always had the good of the regiment at heart, and would do his best for it.

Bishop's Brother Typical Farmer A Peep at the Aylmer Granger

Marked Contrast in Appearance From the English Prelate—Seven Brothers in Family.

Aylmer, Sept. 18.—"Quite a contrast between me and the bishop," said Francis Herbert Wainwright Ingram, brother of the Right Rev. and Right Hon. Arthur F. Wainwright Ingram, D.D., Lord Bishop of London, to a reporter as he came out of one of his wheat fields in response to a message this morning.

There is a contrast between the Canadian farmer and the Lord Bishop of London. The farmer, fresh from his plow, was roughly dressed. Thick, strong boots, made to stand the strain of unequalled ground behind a plow or harrow, heavy worsted trousers, and a shirt of blue jean, constituted his attire. A big straw hat, referred to by some as a cow breakfast, crowned a mass of dark brown hair. But underneath the broad rim, was a face reminiscent of the Lord Bishop of London's, a face marked by strong, earnest lines. The eyes are the same, an unwavering blue, and kind and smiling. Around them are a hundred tiny lines, the gift of hard work and Father Time.

Been 31 Years in Canada.

Farmer Ingram was born in Worcestershire, England, 53 years ago. He came to Canada when a boy of 22. He spent a year near London, Ont., on a farm, and then bought one for himself of 150 acres nine miles south of here. "And you know anything about farming?" asked the reporter.

"I was the greenest hand imaginable," was the laughing response. "I bungled with this farm, however, and Continued on Page Four.

A Great Scarcity of Male Students

The shortage of male teachers at the three Normal schools is repeated this year.

Last year 350 students attended the Normals. This term's entry list shows 445, only 25 of whom are men.

In Toronto 150 teachers-in-training started, five of whom were men. Last year the roll call numbered 150.

In Ottawa there are 115, as against 100 last year. There are six men in attendance.

The opening at London found 150 in attendance, an increase of 50 over last year's figures. There are twelve men at the London Normal.

Congratulations Showered on Seventh

Congratulations on the splendid showing of the Seventh Regiment in Buffalo continue to come from prominent citizens of the Bison City. Gen. Fox, commander of the 74th Regiment, wrote recently congratulating Col. Reid on the excellent conduct of the men.

"A great many of the citizens of this city," he writes, "have spoken to me of the excellent appearance and perfect conduct of the men under your command while in the city."

Mr. Harry A. Forman, secretary of the Old Home Week Committee, also wrote, and spoke of the delightful time he had while entertaining the 7th Regiment. The band, he declared, was the best band that came to Buffalo during

Old Home Week, and was a decided credit to the city of London as well as to Canada.

Mr. G. W. Lemon, a prominent newspaper man of Buffalo, wrote a long letter in which the work of the week was reviewed. Two events stood out very prominently during the week in order of merit—the children's parade, the greatest thing ever seen in Buffalo, and the "Trooping of the Colors" by the Seventh Regiment. These two events made the Old Home Week very notable. He also congratulated the Seventh Regiment on their splendid marching, saying that it compared most favorably with any ever seen in that city.

Why Bishop Ingram Came to America

Toronto, Sept. 19.—The function which Bishop Ingram came to this continent to attend is one of the most important in the history of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States, as the daughter of the Church of England in that country is called. The occasion is the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Episcopal Church in the United States, which went was contemporaneous with the founding of Jamestown. The work of the Church of England in foreign parts in those days was done under the direction of the Bishop of London, the Bishop of St. Alban's assisting, and in consequence the occupants of those two sees and the secretary of the ancient but vigorous Society for the Propagation of the Gospel have been invited by the officers of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church to come to America to take part in the exercises marking this anniversary. The dignitaries who will attend are thus Bishop Ingram, Bishop Jacobs, of St. Alban's, and Bishop Montgomery, secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, who last autumn visited Canada.

Almost Abandoned.

LIBERAL CLUB OPENING

Owing to the inability of the speakers wanted by the officers of the Young Liberal Club to attend the opening of Hyman Hall on Friday evening next, it has been necessary to postpone the opening until Friday, Sept. 27. At least two of the most prominent speakers in the Liberal party will be here, and in addition there will be a splendid programme of music. Let every Liberal note the change of time, and let him be on hand.

THE FIRST GREEK CHRISTENING HERE

An Impressive and Interesting Ceremony Performed for First Time in London.

The home of Mr. Panteis Karkompass, 469 Colborne street, was the scene of the first christening ceremony ever conducted in this city, according to customs of the Greek Christian Church, when the three-months-old infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Karkompass was baptized and christened.

The ceremony, which was conducted by Rev. Mr. Pappas, a Greek priest from Buffalo, was an exceedingly in-

Adelaide Street Boy Swallowed Pin; Life Now Hangs in the Balance

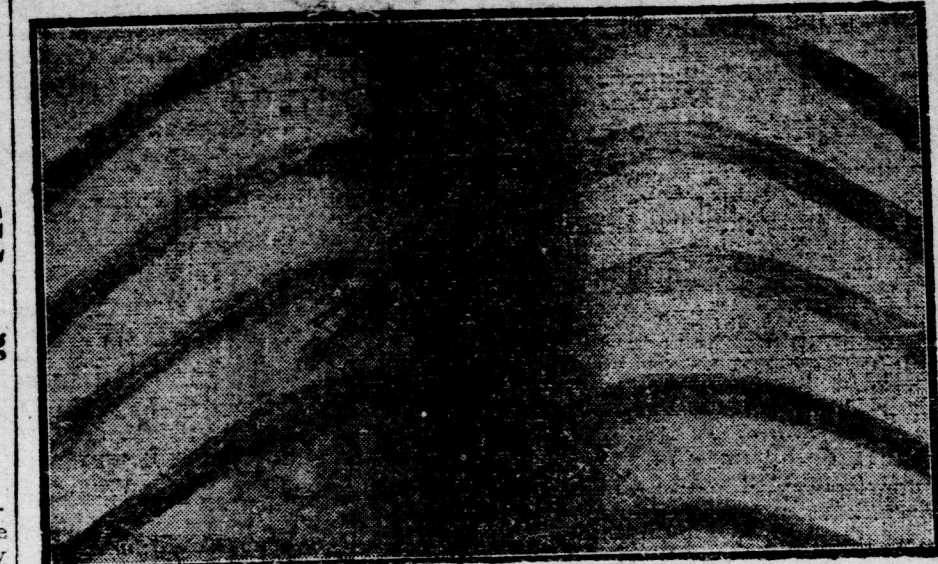

X-Ray Reveals the Location of the Pin—An Operation Necessary.

A case in which the life of a boy 44 in the balance, with a surgical operation as his only hope of recovery, is that of little Harold Christopher, son of

Mr. Charles Christopher, a C. P. R. A. Stevenson and Dr. F. C. Drake.

After every attempt to extract the pin had failed, the patient was taken to the offices of the Drs. Stevenson, where the X-ray was used. The result is shown in the cut above, which was made from the X-ray negative.

Tomorrow a last attempt will be made to take out the pin without resorting to an operation, but little hope

The other night Harold was playing about the house with a pin in his mouth. Somebody said something which caused him to laugh, and he swallowed the pin. Ever since he has been in great agony, and three doctors have done all in their power to alleviate his sufferings.

is held that this will be possible. If the pin is not out by two o'clock in the afternoon, the boy will be taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where an incision will be made, and the pin removed. It will be the first operation of its kind in London.

It is said that only one person has survived such an operation, and he is the young son of Philip Armour, the millionaire packer of Chicago.

ENGINEER SENTENCED TO 9 MONTHS

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Guelph, Sept. 19.—Mark B. Reid, who was the engineer on the special fruit train at the time of the fatal collision at Gourock, about a year ago, and who at the assizes here last night was found guilty by the jury on the second count of the indictment against him, that of breaking the rules of the railway, was sentenced this morning by Judge Anglin to nine months in jail here.

Saved $1,000 on Street Watering

No. 3 committee of the city council will have a nice surplus this year. Chairman Gillean and his committee have been very diligent and have watched the interests of the citizens with great care. Nearly $1,000 was saved in street watering, and two extra carts were put on. No difficulty has been experienced with contractors, and altogether the work has been very satisfactory. There have been few complaints about the work and it is done well.

"I don't think that I have had three complaints this year," said City Engineer Graydon this morning. "This system has been a great thing for me, and has made my work much easier. There will not be any difficulty such as there was last year. Next year I have a plan that will save the city a great deal more money. The street watering has been done well, and at a great saving of money. It should be done that way all the time. In spite of the great scarcity of water, the streets have suffered but little." The committee has saved nearly $1,200 in the management of the fire department, where great care has been exercised to save the people's money.

RAN ON THE CURVE! AT TOO HIGH SPEED

Railway Commission's Report of Fatal Wreck at Caledon.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Sept. 19.—The railway commission inspector, Mr. McCall, has made a report upon the Caledon disaster on the C. P. R. He says that the accident was caused by the high rate of speed at which the train was running on a sharp curve. If this curve is not straightened out then the board will likely order a change in route.

HORSEMAN BRATTON DEAD. East St. Louis, Sept. 19.—John S. Bratton, the horseman, died today. For the last few years Bratton was buying horses for the Vanderbilt and other big eastern stables.

Local frosts occurred during the night in Manitoba.

THROWS DOWN CHALLENGE TO CONSERVATIVE LEADER

Hon. Mr. Pugsley Invites Action in Courts Over Statements Re $500,000 Campaign Fund.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 18.—Hon. Wm. Pugsley, minister of public works, was today elected by acclamation as the St. John City and County representative in the House of Commons.

In a short speech the minister referred to criticisms in the press following his Fairville remarks regarding certain charges some of the leaders of the Conservative party made against the Government and its supporters, and criticised Mr. Borden and his speeches for dealing with petty questions and scandals. Mr. Borden, leader of the Opposition, was not taking the part of a man in his great position when he went about the country and charged the Government with all kinds of electoral frauds, and let gentlemen on the platform with him make charges more reckless than he himself made.

Conservative Campaign Fund.

In reference to his Fairville remarks about the 1904 Conservative election fund of half a million, Mr. Pugsley said if Mr. Borden had any hesitation in taking action against him as a public man because of his Fairville speech, let him pick out the Sun newspaper, if he liked, and act against it. He (Mr. Pugsley) would say that he had consulted with the editor of the Sun, and no plea of privilege would be put up by the paper. They would say the statements were libelous if not true, and opportunity could be taken to present the facts to the people of the country.

Nurse Volunteers to Care for Woman

The case of Mrs. Smith, the unfortunate woman who is dying from tuberculosis, as reported in yesterday's Advertiser, has awakened considerable interest about the city. The case was reported to Inspector McCallum, and an attempt will be made to force the husband, who has left her, to support her. The inspector laid the matter before Mayor Judd this morning, and whatever steps necessary will be taken in the matter.

Health Officer Hutchinson visited the woman this morning, and distinged the house, and did other necessary things. He reports the case as very distressing.

"The woman may live two or three months," said Dr. John D. Wilson this morning to The Advertiser. "I called this morning, and there was nothing for her to eat. Arrangements were made for the day, but something should be done for the woman. Her husband is employed with a large firm in the city, and he should be compelled to contribute something for her keep." Miss Talbot, a graduate nurse, has volunteered to nurse the woman for two weeks for nothing, and this morning was on the case.

COAL PRICES REMAIN STATIONARY

Local householders need have no fear of a further increase in the price of coal this year, according to several of the leading dealers.

If an increase does come, however, it will be nothing less than fifty cents a ton. Local dealers say that they always stand the first losses of an increase at the mines, and then go up a half dollar when the second fall raises at the mines takes place.

There was an increase in prices at the mines in September, but another one is not looked for this year with the possible exception of pea coal, which London people are just beginning to use.

ALL COREA ABLAZE WITH REVOLT; KILL JAP SOLDIERS AND CIVILIANS

Tokio, Sept. 19.—The prospect of annexation by Japan seems again looming before the Korean people. Marquis Ito is quoted as saying that in view of the increasing gravity of the situation, it may be necessary to alter Japan's policy, that the present situation indicates that the entire people are unfriendly, and if they persist in that attitude it will be the last day for them.

Reports to the Tokio papers state the insurgents are gathering from all sections around the city of Seoul with a view of attacking the capital itself. The size of their force is unknown, but one body is reported as 800.

Roaming bands of Koreans, under the leadership of former soldiers, are operating in all sections of the country, killing the Japanese police, the Japanese railroad and telegraph operators and civilians, and all Koreans suspected of friendship for the Japanese. These bands scatter in the mountains upon the appearance of the Japanese troops, but usually not before sustaining heavy losses. Following the policy promulgated by General Hayagawa, many villages are being wiped out by the Japanese troops as a punishment for some of the inhabitants joining the insurgents. Both sides are charged with atrocities.

The expedition sent against the pirates at Noko was completely annihilated, the bodies of the Japanese soldiers and their Korean guides comprising the expedition being found by a rescuing party horribly mutilated.

The first battalion of reinforcements from Japan arrived at Pusan yesterday, and others are en route. So far the losses of the Japanese troops are comparatively small. The Korean losses are unreported, but must run into thousands.

AYLMER MAKES MUCH OF BISHOP IN DETROIT SCHOOL

Met by Large Delegation and Escorted to Home of His Brother.

Aylmer, Sept. 18.—The Lord Bishop of London arrived here from St. Thomas at 3:40 p.m. today. Mr. F. H. Ingram, his brother, accompanied by his wife, left for St. Thomas on the noon train. They joined the bishop there, and returned with him. A little band of the town's notables were at the station to receive his lordship. David Marshall, M.P., rector's warden of Trinity Church, where the bishop will preach on Sunday, conveyed the party to the home of the bishop's brother, nine miles south of here, in his automobile. Mr. E. A. Miller, people's warden, of Trinity Church, greeted the bishop on behalf of the parish. E. R. Hill, manager of the Molsche Bank, Dr. John J. Kingston, A. E. Haines, H. Backus, Mayor Ernest E. C. Kilmer, Thos. Barnecott, and J. G. Heiter, representative citizens, were present to extend the town's greetings to the eminent churchman.

The arrival of the bishop afforded the town the opportunity of holding an informal reception at the station. The bishop will spend tomorrow enjoying a well-earned rest at his brother's beautiful home.

His first public appearance before he preaches on Sunday will be on the lawn of Mr. Ingram's home on Friday afternoon, when the bishop will give a half hour's address.

Miss Lillian Berry, Formerly of This City, Honored in Michigan.

The Informer, the organ of the colored people of Michigan, contains the following article in reference to Miss Lillian Berry, daughter of Mr. Wm. Berry, who formerly conducted a barber shop in the Market Lane here. Miss Berry is one of the very few colored teachers in the schools of the north. The Informer says:

"It is with unfeigned pleasure that the Informer announces the appointment of Miss Berry as a teacher in Detroit's public schools. Miss Berry is the fifth colored American to be appointed teachers in our public schools, and it speaks mountains for the spirit of fairness among some of Detroit's officials."

"Miss Berry received her certificate from Superintendent Martindale last week, was assigned to Clinton avenue school, and assumed her duties. Monday morning of this week. The Informer, on the part of Detroit's colored Americans, extends thanks to the school board for its fairness and broad-minded action in ignoring the much-touted color line in making this appointment."

"Miss Berry is a graduate of Fisk University, also of the State Normal at Ypsilanti, and we are proud of her. Inspector Treppa is said to have taken a special interest in Miss Berry's appointment."

TAFT AND HUGHES LEAD ALL RIVALS

Ballot Shows Each Man Is Second Choice in the Other's State.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—In going over the returns of the votes in The Tribune's test on the presidential candidate, it might be interesting to make the contrast between the results in Ohio and New York, because they are the states in which the two principal candidates reside.

The result has been almost more of a curiosity than was anticipated, because, while it shows that Taft and Hughes are, as might be expected, leaders in their own states each is second choice in the other man's state, thus following out the remarkable development of the last six or eight months, which has seemed to indicate something in the nature of a friendly fight between Taft and Hughes, with the chances thus far in favor of Taft and with Hughes as a second choice, who is gaining strength.

It has been said by some shrewd observers that Taft has reached his maximum, whatever it may be, in the minds of the people, because the chances are against his doing anything unusual in his office before the delegates are elected. Hughes, on the other hand, seems to be growing, and his growth is extending westward.

Taft and Hughes Like Allies. Between these two men, although there is of course no offensive and defensive alliance, there is rapidly being formed a bridge upon which either man may lead his strength into the political territory of the other. On the other hand, it is apparent that Cannon, Fairbanks, Knox, La Follette, Cortelyou, and the others must kill off both Taft and Hughes before they can have a prospect of success themselves.

Taft leads in Ohio with Hughes as second choice and Hughes leads in New York with Taft as second choice, so it is evident that whenever a break comes it will be by a general combination on the part of the smaller candidates in favor of one of the two leaders, or by a combination of the smaller candidates to kill off both the leaders. The latter expedient does not seem at all probable so far as The Tribune's ballots indicate anything, because it is sufficiently evident now that the people, without regard to the politicians, have grouped Taft and Hughes together as the two men most naturally fitted to assume the Roosevelt suit of armor, provided Roosevelt himself does not continue to wear it.

Taft's Strength in Ohio. Taking the figures as compiled in the table, it is shown, for instance, that in his own state of Ohio Secretary Taft is marked as first choice on 124 ballots, as second choice on eight ballots, and as third on two ballots. Practically his own individual competitor in Ohio so far as first choice is concerned was Senator Foraker. The ballots presenting the name of the Ohio senator were almost all accompanied by remarks of a particularly expressive nature, and all represented more of opposition to Roosevelt than to Taft.

At the same time, in Ohio one finds that Hughes was second choice on 66 ballots, and third choice on 22 more, while he was mentioned as first choice by only six of the voters. This shows that a remarkably large percentage of the Taft men wanted Hughes as their second choice, and it was evident that in Ohio, as in other states, the feeling in behalf of the New York governor is growing.

Hughes in His Own State. Reversing the picture, it is found that Hughes leads all others as first choice for president in his own state, but his lead is by no means so great over Taft in New York as Taft's is over Hughes in Ohio. In fact, the secretary of war has nearly half as many votes for first choice in New York as were given the governor, and was mentioned as second choice a great many more times than Hughes was in Ohio. This seems to show that at the present time at least Taft possesses more of the national character in his candidacy and averages stronger outside of his own state than Hughes does. At the same time the final compilation will show for all the states that Hughes is mentioned so frequently for second choice as to indicate that he would be pretty satisfactory for first choice to a great many of the Taft people.

PRETTY LISTOWEL WEDDING

Hedge Bower, the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon, the Scene.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon at half past three o'clock at "Hedge Bower," the commodious residence of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Vernon, when their second daughter, Miss Etta Alana, was united in the holy bond of matrimony to Mr. Thomas John Larter, a prosperous bookkeeper of Chicago. The house was tastefully decorated with variegated flowers and Messrs. Towell, Best and Moore acted in the capacity of ushers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Wesley Gough, of Wallaceburg, cousin of the groom, assisted by Rev. D. McCamus, of Listowel.

The bride was unattended, and was given away by her father, Miss Towell, of Guelph, played the wedding march, and Miss Laura May Hutchinson, of Trowbridge, was flower girl. After nearly and long-continued congratulations and best wishes, all partook of a dainty wedding repast. The toasts were proposed and supported by the officiating ministers and Mr. Towell, after which a very suitable reply was made by the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon filled admirably the position of host and hostess and richly deserved the compliments paid them. About 100 guests were present, Stratford, St. Marys, Guelph, Toronto, Kimberley, Wallaceburg and Trowbridge being represented.

The somewhat commonplace phrase, "The presents were valuable, well as sorted, ornamental and useful," was literally correct, as the gifts were exceptionally numerous and costly, showing the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held.

The happy young couple left on the evening train for Winnipeg and other points. After two weeks spent on honeymoon visits they will settle down to the sterner realities of wedded life in Chicago. Their large circle of friends wish their pleasures may be many and their sorrows few.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—Parting the curtains of the future, Mrs. Annie Besant, head of the Theosophical Society, last evening pictured America as the future home of a race of psychics who would be all but independent of material necessities.

Reasoning her theory out as if it were a mathematical problem, Mrs. Besant declared that this was not a dream, but a reality which already was begun.

These prophecies were but a part of Mrs. Besant's lecture, on "Psychicisms and Spiritualism," delivered at Orchestra Hall. The lecture is the first of a series of three lectures upon this general subject. The leader covered practically all of the ground ordinarily touched upon in her subject, and went considerably further.

Her massive figure, clad in a cream colored and loosely flowing gown, was not what would lead one to forget the material. It was her soft voice, however, and characteristic smile that kept her audience spellbound.

Race of Psychics. "The time is coming in America when more and more souls will be born with this psychic power—the development of the spirit which is looked upon as so extraordinary," said Mrs. Besant. "Here you will have a race of psychics. It is the next step in human evolution."

With this race it will be a simple matter for one to separate himself from his physical body. He may read the minds of others, look into the future, measure dispositions, and judge others' weaknesses. There is no reason why we may not do here what they have done and do for themselves."

Then the speaker described what one might expect if he did not make the best use of the brain. If the desires of the soul were base and unworthy, the soul would dwell in an animal's body in the next life. If the thoughts were uplifting and better, a beautiful body would be the result.

"But there is a body more subtle than this material one," she continued. "Your soul, your thoughts, are shaping this body. Evolution is making it what it shall be when it returns in the future to inhabit another body."

"Now these psychic qualities which allow the astral and the physical body to such a great extent are shared by all of us. Even animals have them to a greater or less extent. We all have discovered that a dog and a horse can scent danger and trouble long before any of their master's senses are aware of anything of the sort."

"In the Highlands of Scotland and in Switzerland these faculties are peculiarly developed in uneducated peasants and persons ignorant of book knowledge. They may see far ahead of them where the hand of death will touch their loved ones, and they themselves do not know how or why it is."

"Now, in explanation of this, we know that there are constant happenings in the other world of which we know little or nothing. We do know, however, that waves from beyond reach here and play upon our astral bodies, having what seem to be these peculiar effects."

"Gradually, as the astral body is developed, it becomes a simple matter for the psychic to separate the astral from the physical body. The astral body may go on excursions in quest of knowledge, and upon returning to the physical body and brain may impart to the physical the knowledge thus secured."

It is the commonest form of psychicism to respond to the thoughts of another. Ordinarily this is looked upon as marvelous. It is not, however, when you look at it as you do other modern discoveries.

"Does it strike you as marvelous that you may, from this continent, transmit messages through the air, to a vessel in mid-ocean?"

"Is it so much more wonderful, then, that our brains, so much more complex and powerful than these mechanical devices, should be able to do the same thing? I think not. It is merely that it is less understood."

Then these things do become generally understood and accepted, it means that death will cease to be the insurmountable barrier between this life and the next. It means that we will bridge the gulf that heretofore has been looked upon as insurmountable as we have bridged the ocean."

The great hall was filled almost to its capacity. Many of those who made up the audience were delegates from distant sections of the United States.

Gentlemen, Are You Bald?

Investigate and see for yourself the Art Coverings in Wigs and Toupees. Prof. Dorenwender's manufactures are worn on over 55,000 heads by all classes, and in all stations of life. They are the essence of perfection, light in weight, durable and a great benefit to health, and a protection to the head against cold, draughts, catarrh, etc. Trying on and demonstrating the completeness of these goods free of charge. He will be at the City Hotel, London, Wednesday, Sept. 25. 48-U-X-Y-BW CHOLERA MORBUS, cramps and kindred ailments annually make their appearance at the same time as the hot weather, green fruit, cucumbers, melons, etc., and many persons are debilitated from eating these tempting things, but they need not abstain if they have Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial to take a few drops in water. It cures the cramps and cholera in a remarkable manner, and is sure to check every disturbance of the bowels.

FOREST FALL FAIR WAS A SUCCESS

Horses, Cattle and Sheep Made Splendid Showing—Gate Receipts $480.

The annual fall fair of the Forest Union Agricultural Society was held on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, about three weeks earlier than usual. Owing to the lateness of the season the number of exhibits in some classes was not up to the usual mark. The entries were:

Horses 221
Cattle 116
Sheep 106
Swine 76
Poultry 274
Roots and vegetables 132
Grain and seeds 39
Mechanical 11
Dairy and provisions 95
Fruit and flowers 205

Domestic manufactures, ladies' work and fine arts 609

In roots and vegetables there was a large exhibit of fine samples of all kinds, although with a more favorable season the entries would have been twice as many.

Fruit and flowers were more numerous than was expected, as many varieties of apples, peaches and grapes are late in maturing this year.

There was a tempting display of dairy products and provisions, and if there was a deficiency in quantity it was well made up in the excellent quality of the exhibits.

In the combined classes of domestic manufactures, ladies' work and fine arts the exhibit was far ahead of previous years, and 609 entries represented as fine a display as could be seen anywhere. The competition was keen, and the energetic judge and her assistants had a busy time until their work was completed.

Horses, cattle and sheep made a splendid showing, but swine were not up to the usual standard.

The poultry exhibit was the best ever seen here, the 274 entries including pure-bred birds of almost every variety. Wm. McNeil, of London, who judged this class, gave entire satisfaction.

Forest defeated Parkhill at basket ball, 13 to 7. Gate receipts, $480.

LARDER LAKE INVESTORS MAKING MONEY.

Larder Lake Gold District Proving To Be the Greatest in the World.

Eminent engineers from England, Germany and France have recently made searching examinations of the Larder Lake gold fields, and without a single exception have indorsed the reports of United States and Canadian engineers and experts as to the Larder Lake district being the mining wonder of the world.

The fact that eminent English, German and French engineers who are familiar with and have examined many mines in the great mining camps in South Africa, Australia, Siberia, and in fact all the mining districts of the world, report that the Larder Lake district outclasses them all speaks wonders and promises much for Ontario and all capital invested there.

One of the most prominent engineers of London, who has just returned from Larder Lake after making a six-weeks' examination of the district in the interest of English bankers, stated that hundreds of millions of dollars had been made by the investing public of Great Britain in the shares of companies in the gold fields of South Africa during the past five years, but the prospects and opportunities were never so inviting or as safe and secure in Africa as they are at the present time at Larder Lake. Hundreds of millions will be realized by the investors in Larder Lake mines, who quires faith and patience on the part of investors, and now is the proper time; several hundred dollars or even less invested now will return thousands, and, as in England, thousands of investors of comparatively small amounts will become independent.

It is reported from London that engineers have gone to examine the Blue Bell and Lucky Boys mines at Larder Lake and that well-known mining interests of England and France are to become strongly identified therein and that a great plant is to be installed. The price at which these interests will become interested is reported to be considerably above par and is not from private holding but from the treasury stock of the companies. The shares of these companies were first placed upon the market during the past six months by Law & Co., brokers, of Toronto, at the price of 6 cents for Lucky Boys and 10 cents for Blue Bell. The development of the properties of these companies has been extensive. Many veins running in width from 4 feet to 14 feet have been developed, and it is estimated that the amount of ore in sight and available of these two companies now exceeds thirty millions of dollars which only awaits the installation of machinery to be produced.

The large display advertisements of Law & Co., offering Blue Bell and Lucky Boys at 6 and 10 cents per share, will be remembered by the Canadian public. The outcome of these mines establish and stamp these brokers as reliable and indicates that they

COWLEY-LEONARD NUPTIALS

Brilliant Social Event in Parkhill Society Circles.

The Sacred Heart Church, Parkhill, was on Wednesday the scene of a very interesting event, when Miss Elizabeth Dorothy, second daughter of Mrs. Hugh Leonard, became the wife of Mr. William Cowley, attorney and United States commissioner, of Mobile, Ala. To the strains of Maudslayi's wedding march, the bride was led to the altar by her uncle, Mr. John Kenna, banker, of Brown City, Mich., where the groom and his attendant were waiting to receive her. Father Dunn, parish priest, performed the marriage ceremony, assisted by Rev. Father Gnam, of Wyoming; Rev. Father Foster, of Mount Carmel, and Rev. Father Barry, of London. During the signing of the register, Miss Lillian Lang, of Granton, sang "My Realm of Love."

The bride wore a handsome Parisian gown of white cloth, over white tulle, with deep tucked flounce, trimmed with the most delicate hand-embroidered silk. Her hat was white, with flowing duchess plume, and she carried during the ceremony a white ivory prayer book and a pearl and gold rosary. Her only ornament was a pearl sunburst, the gift of the groom. Miss Leonard, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in Limerick lace, over blue tulle, with deep blue satin girdle. She wore a large white tulle picture hat with blue plume, and carried a sheaf of white chrysanthemums and maiden hair ferns. The bridesmaids were Miss Bertha Walsh, of Mobile, Ala.; Miss Nora Pettipiece, of Forest; and Miss Eleanor Leonard, sister of the bride. The groomsmen were Mr. Jack Leonard, only brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. O. K. Lang, of Toronto; Dr. J. Manard, of Windsor, and Mr. George Dignan, of Parkhill.

The groom's favors to the maid of honor and bridesmaids were pearl pins, and to the groomsmen and ushers gold monogram cufflinks. The church was tastefully decorated with white and blue bunting, and palms and ferns, while pink and white asters, were everywhere in evidence. From the church the bridal party and guests repaired to the residence of the bride's mother, where a recherche dejeuner awaited them. The presents were numerous and beautiful, and included substantial checks from the bride's mother, her and uncle. The happy couple left for a short trip east before starting for their southern home. The bride's going-away gown was of navy blue velvet, over navy tulle, with a blue Tuscan belt. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Walsh, Miss Cowley and Miss Anna Cowley, of Mobile, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kearns and Mrs. Roraback, of Brown City, Mich.; Miss Nora Pettipiece, of Forest; Mrs. Fitzmauld and Mrs. P. McGinnis, of London; Dr. Oscar and Charles Lang, and Miss Lang, of Granton, and Dr. J. Manard, of Windsor.

Governor Edward Casper Stokes, of New Jersey, was at one time a teacher in a village school.

WHERE DID THE MONEY COME
FROM?The new Federal Minister of Public Works, Dr. Pugsley, says he is not prepared to prove that the Conservative party raised a campaign fund
of $500,000 in the last election, but that he wants an opportunity to do so. He will protect the St. John Sun against the result of any legal action brought against it for publishing his statements, and the newspaper agrees not to plead privilege.There are some chapters of the Conservative campaign of 1904 which have not seen the light. An atmosphere of mystery surrounded the movements of a group of capitalists, who, for some occult reason, put forth great exertions to defeat the Laurier Government.A corner of the curtain, showing that the Opposition was not lacking in the sneers of war, was lifted the other day in a libel case in Quebec. Mr.
Hugh Graham, proprietor of the Montreal Star, testified that he was treasurer of the Conservative election fund,
and that his duty was to forward contributions of cash to constituencies
where most needed, and where there appeared some chance of the success of the party candidate. He did not say what the amount of the aggregate shipments of cash in the last general election was, but admitted having sent into one district in Quebec alone the tidy
sum of $29,000; so it is clear the total amount distributed must have been very large.It was left to Mr. Pelletier, the party organizer in Quebec, to show that these shipments of financial arguments were known to Mr. Borden. The former, in the course of his evidence, swore that the Opposition leader had promised him that money would be sent to Quebec to "keep things going" in that Province. Moreover, according to Mr.
Graham's evidence, Mr. Borden's only stipulation was that the money should not be sent to men in public life who might be brought to account for it, but that it must be dispensed through the more secret and doubtless more effective media of trusted private individuals. Mr. Borden's injunction showed at least a high degree of caution, his main concern being not to prevent but to protect the distribution of money by choosing purveyors who were not known as public men.It will be remembered that Dr.
Weldon, who afterwards opposed Mr.
Fielding in Queen's and Shelburne,
N.S., confessed that he refused the Conservative nomination for Halifax in 1904 because the party managers refused to run a clean election. This is further corroborative of the story that the party "opened the barrel." Who filled it, and why?

TRADE UNIONISM IN CANADA.

The number of labor unions in affiliation with the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress in session this week
in Winnipeg, by no means gives an adequate idea of the strength of trades unionism in Canada. According to last year's reports of the national body,
there were not more than 448 unions,
with an aggregate membership of 27, 567, in such affiliation. The reason why affiliation is not more general is probably found in the fact that many local unions are in close alliance with international bodies, having their headquarters in the United States, and have looked on them as their supreme court, though, of course, not a few of these locals have connection with both national and international organizations. But by degrees Canadian union men are becoming impressed with the advantage of keeping their interests in Canadian hands, the result being a steady growth of the Dominion body.The growth of trades organizations in Canada, has been particularly noticeable during the past four years,
which show a net gain in the number
of unions founded of 332, the building and transport trades displaying the greatest activity.It is in the United States, however,
that of late years unionism has shown
greatest development, having surpassed the United Kingdom, which, up to 1890, boasted of a membership greater than the rest of the world. In three years the membership of American unions increased from 900,000 to 2,000,000, while the greatest growth in Britain was from 1,500,000 to 1,900,000 in nine years. But, judging from the number of Laborists returned to Parliament at the last general election,
trades unionism is evidently a large
political factor in Great Britain than it is in the neighboring republic. The movement appears to have also taken root in France, Germany, Belgium and Holland, although politically it is overshadowed by Socialism.

THE SMOKE EVIL.

In all the great cities of Europe and America the smoke nuisance is one of the greatest evils with which the property owners and residents have to contend. In old London the money
loss by deterioration of decorations,
works of art, carpets, textile fabrics,
public buildings, parks and gardens is estimated at $25,000,000 each year.
Besides this it is calculated that an annual loss of $40,000,000 is caused by the defective construction of fireplaces, allowing a partial consumption
of fuel and sending four-fifths of the heat up the chimneys. A royal commission, which some time ago investigated Great Britain's coal supplies,
estimated that of the 150,000,000 tons of coal annually used in the United Kingdom, 60,000,000 tons are burned
to waste. In other great cities of both continents the outcry against the nuisance is loud, and constant, and many have been the remedies suggested.Great as is the financial loss, the danger of life and health through the pollution and contamination of the air
by soot and cinders and other products of semi-combustion of soft coal,
is a more serious matter. A prominent American physician, Dr. A. Jacobi, of New York, expresses the belief that the smoke evil ought to be regarded as and made part of the general campaign now in progress against tuberculosis and pneumonia. "Only from the point of view of life and health," he says, "can we hope to aid
the ridding of the community of an anomaly created by the recklessness of modern industry." The doctor quotes authorities and clinical statistics, refers to the experience of a number of foreign countries as well as to that of leading cities of the United States,
and concludes that "anthracosis of the lungs is caused directly by inhalation,
and that smoke enters the lungs from
the contaminated atmosphere either through the mouth or through the nostrils, which exert their protecting influence to an insufficient extent only."That the mortality from acute inflammatory pulmonary diseases is on the increase is held to be due to the contamination of the air by smoke. It is significant that in industrial districts the mortality of nurslings is six times greater than in agricultural communities, and also that dense smoke districts have a larger mortality
than other centers. The mortality of coal miners is 130 per cent greater than that of the rest of the male population, and it is known that many persons die of consumption whose symptoms never showed themselves
until they started to work in smoke
and coal dust. Dr. Jacobi contends that
"smoke causes a disposition for acute
pulmonary diseases and accelerates
the course of pulmonary tuberculosis," and argues that the expulsion of smoke from chimneys ought to be prevented and abated as a dangerous
nuisance, and direct injury to life and health. As to the desirability of putting a stop to the evil there can be no two opinions. The problem is,
How is it to be done?In the light of the experience of other industrial centers, it can be said that in this city smoke from the tall chimneys, which in certain atmospheric conditions becomes unpleasant,
has not yet reached the nuisance
stage, owing to the absence of congestion among our factories; but there will, no doubt, come a time when we shall be confronted with the problem,
of which greater cities now complain.
Possibly before that time arrives a satisfactory solution will be found.The sticks flying in the direction of Mr. Aylesworth must make him feel as complimented as Sir John Macdonald's apple tree.It is obviously not to say that the Federal Government is trying to avert a by-election in London. The seat must be filled before Parliament meets in November. There is plenty of time for that.The Montreal Gazette, the senior Conservative newspaper, suggests that there should be an official inquiry into the sources of party campaign funds.
This might be uncomfortable for a party which, according to Dr. Pugsley, raised half a million dollars in 1904.Some newspapers in this district are chuckling over the idea that local fair
will profit if the Western Fair closes its gates. They may be assured that there is absolutely no thought of ending the Western Fair. At the same time, the directors may as well understand that the Fair must go ahead or go backwards. There is no such thing as standing still.

POOR CONSOLATION.

[The Reader.]
Misses—But, Miss, what are you crying for?
Servant—My parents won't let me marry
my sweetheart.
Misses—Oh, well, calm yourself. Such a handsome fellow as he will easily find another girl.

KANSAS HAT CODE.

[Wichita (Kan.) Beacon.]
In reply to the question, "Please tell when and where are, or is, the correct
time for a gentleman to lift or remove his hat," we reply: Without consulting authorities of etiquette; in fact, giving it to you offhand, so to speak, we should say
at the following times and on the following occasions, respectively, the hat should be lifted, or removed, as circumstances in-dicate: When mopping the brow; when taking a bath; when eating; when going to bed; when taking a collection; when having the hair trimmed; when being sham-pooed; when standing on the head.

JUST HELD HIS OWN.

[Chicago News.]
Smith—Did you gain in weight during your sojourn in the country?
Brown—No; as fast as I put on a pound
the mosquitoes carried it off.

HIS CONVINCING MANNER.

[Chicago Tribune.]
Mrs. Gaswell—Everything at this tavern is first-class. What's the reason you're drinking about something all the time?
Mr. Gaswell—If we don't kick, Mirandy, everybody'll think we're pleased here because we ain't used to having fine things.

NEUTRAL.

[Washington Star.]
"Are those people who drove up today
your relatives?" asked the inquisitive neighbor.
"Yes," answered the small boy.
"On which side—your father's, or mother's?"
"Nary side. When father and mother gets into an argument everybody knows better than to take sides."

A JERSEY STORY.

[Punch.]
Farmer Pasterlot (discussing literature with the new boarder)—There was one book that my son Bill thought a heap of,
when he was 't hum—'all about swatting
and biffing 'n' blood.
"One of those swatting-buffing romances, I presume. Do you recall where the scene was laid?"
"Well, I took it to be a Jersey story,
from th' name of it. 'Twus called 'The Three Musketeers.'"

MODERN MEASUREMENTS.

[The Reader.]
Miss De Style—How far did you go on your holiday?
Miss Gumbusta—Thirty postcards west
of the Rhine, and then forty-two postcards west.

TIT FOR TAT.

[The Reader.]
"So, you have sold your piano?"
"Yes, my wife gave me no peace until
I bought it, and then I gave her none until it was sold."

CANNED AIR.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]
"How long can a man go without air?"
"I do not know. The longest Pullman trip I ever took occupied seven days."

"JOKES" ACROSS THE SEA.

[Punch.]
The report of the Zoological Society for the past month shows that 210 new animals arrived at Regent's Park. Among them was a slow-worm, and a lioness. The slow-worm, it is said, apologized for arriving late.

SHORT-COLD ICE.

[Kansas City Star.]
Carthage is worried because its ice isn't cold enough. Ice frozen at a temperature of 30 degrees will melt on absorbing two degrees of heat, while ice frozen at 20 degrees will not melt until twelve degrees of heat is absorbed, says a Carthage scientist.
Carthage has no way of testing the ice, but believes the ice men are giving full weight, but still short-changing on coldness.

HER PREFERENCE.

[Judge.]
He—You admire the view? Then marry me, and it is yours.
She—Thanks! I prefer my landscape
without figures.

SAW THEM FEED.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]
"Ever surrounded by wolves?"
"No; but I know the sensation. I used to open the dining-room doors at a summer hotel."

PLACE OF REPENTANCE.

[Chicago News.]
Clara—As Ethel married in haste I suppose she repented at leisure?
Maude—No; she repented at a cheap
boarding-house, I understand.

WORD WASTED.

[Punch.]
Shopman (to undecided customer come to purchase a dog-trough)—Would you like
one with "Dog" painted on it, madam?
Customer—No. You see, the dog can't read, and my husband doesn't drink water.

LATEST METHOD.

[Milwaukee Sentinel.]
"Did you hear that she and her husband
separated?"
"No. What was the trouble?"
"Their automobile blew up."UNFORTUNATE CHOICE OF WORDS.[Chicago Tribune.]
The earnest reformer, after much persistent effort, had rounded up an audience
of hobos, and mounted the platform to address them.
"My friends," he said, with his most engaging smile, "in the present crisis
affairs, a situation presents itself—"But here his auditors vanished.
They didn't know what the situation
was, but they knew they didn't want it.

THEIR SPECIALTY.

[Chicago Tribune.]
"Some so-called statesmen," observed the philosophical boarder, "are merely political seismographs. They are always in a state of agitation over some upheaval that is threatening to destroy the foundations of civilization, but they can't tell exactly what it is or where it is."

HIS BUSINESS TACT.

[Judge.]
A German who worked in the packing department of a large store tendered his resignation recently, and accompanied it with the remark that he was going in business for himself.
"We and another fellow we make a business," he explained. "I will give der experience and der other fellow will give der gabfelle."
"How long do you expect that plan to succeed?" asked the foreman.
"Oh, about five years," replied the German. "Und den I will half der gabfelle
und der other fellow will half der experience."

EASY TO DO THEM.

[Philadelphia Press.]
Huselo—There's nothing I hate worse
than a lazy man.
Shoude—You don't say? Why, I wish
there were more of them.
Huselo—You do?
Shoude—Sure. The more lazy men there are the less competition we'd have in business.PROF. ALEXANDER'S
TRENCHANT REPLYSays Wingham Correspondent
Labels California—No Admirer
of Japanese.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

In your issue of last evening (Sept.
18), under the heading of correspondence, you printed a letter from a Mr.
H. R. Holmes, of Wingham, Ont., in which there occurs a remarkable statement that I cannot permit to pass unchallenged."As for morality, or rather the lack of it, in Australia, it is about on a par
with California, and every traveler knows to what a low ebb it has reached in the Land of the Forty-Niners.
There, too, as a rule, it is the Japanese who are the most cleanly in their habits, and the most moral class of the community. It is at least not they who make use of the daily
divorce court held in San Francisco."It is the use of the word "traveler"
in the first sentence quoted, which gives Mr. Holmes away completely.
The great curse connected with the tremendous development of modern locomotion is that it has created a class of persons who rush up and down the earth in this direction and in that, and presently inflict upon a suffering world their impressions, a relationship of which to the truth
would scarcely be recognized even in a Scotch court. The average "traveler"
is about the most glib creature on earth, and I am afraid Mr. Holmes does not rise above the average. There is, or rather used to be, in San Francisco a certain route over which so-called "travelers" conducted parties of "travelers" for a consideration; along
this route were gathered, for the entertainment of eastern visitors, all the sad examples of degeneracy and vice
that a large seaport city could afford.
I think Mr. Holmes must have made the rounds and gauged all California
by what he saw there. It sounds exactly like what a "traveler" would do
—generalize from a minimum of knowledge. As a Canadian who resided seven years in California and cultivated in that time a great love
for that beautiful commonwealth and its noble, high-spirited people, I protest against your Wingham correspondent's responsible libel upon the moral character of California. It is a land of great breadth of view and latitude of thought, and there is a species of mind, which, of course, would misread and misinterpret every sign of that generous freedom with which it came in contact; the west is not for such. Mr. Holmes, with visions of the underworld and the Barbary coast floating before his eyes, has slandered the sweetness and the purity of twice a hundred thousand and homes of the Golden State, where uprightness of life and elevation of thought are as jealously guarded as in even conservative Ontario.Mr. Holmes again betrays his shocking ignorance of California conditions
when he speaks of the Japanese as the most cleanly in their habits as a rule, and the most moral class of the community. It is in San Francisco a notorious fact that houses
which scarcely accommodated more than six persons living according to the American standard, were converted to Japanese, who live in them
to the number of twenty-five or thirty.
Under such conditions readers of The Advertiser will not be surprised to learn that, despite Mr. Holmes' certificate of character, neither cleanliness
nor morality is conspicuously present.The limitations of his present view pressed in a public speech prevent one from plain speaking on the subject of Japanese morality in all its phases, but there is nothing to hinder my letting
Mr. Holmes know that for unreliability, duplicity, and downright dishonesty
they are without a peer on the coast.
Mr. Holmes, by the insidious only a few intimate friends were invited, and the ceremony was quiet.
Mr. Scott, who has been a widower for some years, met Mrs. Lewis last July at the Hotel Cecil, and today a reception followed the wedding at the place where the romance had its beginning. Mrs. Scott is reported to be quite wealthy, and it is reported, as is often the custom here, will associate herself closely with her husband's political work.

BISHOP'S BROTHER A FARMER

Today I have the finest place in Elgin County. I did not appreciate that fact when I bought it, you know."
"And you have been successful?"
"In a measure. I have worked pretty hard all my life, and do yet, so far as that goes."

Proud of Big Family.

Mr. Ingram has a family of nine children, five boys and four girls. "And I am proud and glad of my big family," commented Mr. Ingram.
Charles, the eldest of the children,
is 26 years old. He is married and lives on the farm with his wife and two children. Harold, aged 22, and Gerald, 18, are in the Molsons Bank
at St. Thomas, and Ottawa, respectively.
One son is with Heintzman &
Co., Toronto, and Alfred, the youngest,
is at school.The four girls, two of whom are grown-up young ladies, and the two younger ones are at home. The latter are going to school.Six Years Parted.
"When did you last see the bishop,
Mr. Ingram?"
"Six years ago, in London, England.
I saw him a week after he was installed as Lord Bishop of London. He is a fearfully busy man, you know,
and I did not see as much of him as I wanted to. I drove around with him considerably, but so many people
wanted him, wanted things of him,
that I felt like a trespasser."I spent two months in the old land
on that occasion, and divided my time between my mother and the bishop."
Bishop's Six Brothers.
Big families seem to run in our
blood," smiled the farmer, when asked
as to his other brothers.
There are seven of us—Edward is Rural Dean of Ross, Hertfordshire; Alfred is rector of Enville, Staffordshire;
Charles is a captain in the royal navy,
but at present is situated at home as inspector of coast guards; Gerald is in the civil service at Aligarh, India.Was Adventurous.
Mr. Ingram did not choose to take advantage of the education offered him
when a boy, in consequence of which he is not a graduate of a university.
He is, however, very well educated,
and in speaking is the master of an easy flow of diction which he gives voice to in clear, low tones. Mr. Ingram chose to come to Canada in an adventurous spirit. Today he is reckoned to be one of the wealthiest farmers in the county. A conservative estimate puts his holdings at $25,000.Puts On No Side.
Mr. Ingram has not the least bit of "side," one of the fine things on which the lord bishop placed his ban in Toronto the other day, in his make-up.
He is simple, kindly and sincere. That he stands a little in awe of his wife,
as all good husbands do, was evidenced in his reply to a request to sit for his photograph."Not in these clothes," he smiled,
extending his hands. "I would, gladly,
but I don't think Mrs. Ingram would like it. We are so busy on the farm
just now that I haven't time to dress
up for you."The Humblest Man Alive.
"The humblest man alive," was his only comment upon his distinguished brother.
Mr. Ingram's pride is in his farm.
He pointed out that, three-quarters of a mile away, could be seen Lake Erie.
"My place is the best situated in Ontario," he said, "and now, if you will excuse me I will hand you over to my daughters, and get back to the field."The Ingram house stands a little back from the roadway. It is a large, roomy house, painted white. In front of it is a broad expanse of lawn, on which the lord bishop will meet his brother's guests on Friday afternoon
at 2:30.For Uncle Arthur's Guests.
"I really don't suppose that the place
will hold them all," said Miss Ingram,
"but it is all the suitable room wehave. Today, you know, is our busy one, but come in. The house is upside down, but you can't expect anything else, as Uncle Arthur arrives tomorrow afternoon."A drawing-room to the south, a snug little library, and the dining-room on the north, occupy almost the entire frontage. Oil paintings, water colors, and endless knick-knacks evidence an artistic eye in the grouping of each room. Pictures and photographs of the lord bishop are numerous.

In Fulham Court.

"Get the picture of Uncle Arthur
sitting in the grounds of Fulham Court," said Miss Ingram to her sister. The large handsome photo was brought in, and shows his lordship resting beside a mass of foliage in the garden. It would lead one to think that his head was encircled by a wreath. The strong, fine lines of the face, the genial lips, and straight nose
of the lord bishop were faithfully reproduced.The young ladies are very fond of their pictures and display a pardonable pride in possessing them.The Ingram home is equipped with a rural telephone, and so numerous
were the messages coming through it
that it occupied almost all the time of one of the Misses Ingram to attend to it.

Where Bishop Will Preach.

Trinity Church, of which Rev. A. B.
Farney, rural dean of Elgin County,
is rector, where the lord bishop will preach during the morning service
next Sunday, is situated in the center of the town, on John street. Its seating capacity is a stretch, 350, and will be totally inadequate to hold the congregation which will gather to hear the noted churchman. Small as it is, however, it has many beauties. There are four stained-glass windows along
the sides, which have been presented to it by members of its parish. They represent all that is skilled in the glazier's art. A large one stands above the altar. The church contains a picture, noted throughout the country for its beauty of tone. A splendid solid brass lectern, upon which rests
a magnificently-bound Bible, was presented to the church by the widow of the late Rev. Thomas E. Sanders.Pulled Down Ivy.
Previous to this spring, climbing ivy
had covered the church from the ground to the roof. A multitude of sparrows nested amidst the green leaves and disturbed the service. A number of the church wardens wanted the ivy removed, but others would not hear of it. One of them, more enterprising than his fellows, climbed to the roof and discovered that the ivy
had grown underneath the shingles
and was gradually robbing the church of its covering. Needless to say, the church was at once rid of the ivy, and its pet aversion, the sparrows.Open-Air Meeting.
It is intended that if possible the lord bishop will address a number of the townspeople in the open air on Sunday afternoon, as otherwise only a few of those who wish to hear him
will be able to do so. Rev. Canon Cody, of St. Paul's Church, Toronto, will conduct the evening service, assisted by the lord bishop.Denver is to entertain 15 national

The White Cat

"Have you seen anything more?"
"Enough to make me worried." Then she brought out painfully, "Mr. Castle, do you think we would have any right to—listen?"
"You mean really to eavesdrop?"
"Yes." There was a look of pain in her eyes. I saw by this confession how far she had gone with her fears.
"I hardly think so, yet," I answered. "It would be pretty hard for us to do, wouldn't it?"
"But you remember that Miss Joy said last night, that she would leave it all to your judgment. Oughtn't we to protect her perhaps, find out just what it is he's doing?"
I thought it over at length. But it was a resource that I couldn't help wanting to leave till the last. After all, it wasn't as bad as that yet. Except in Edna's familiarities with me, and Leah's vague fears, I had no reason for fearing anything wrong. All depended upon the doctor's motives in being alone with her. He might, indeed, be making love to her; he might even want to marry her. It was a maddening thought for me, but after all it was strictly none of my business. He had a right to try to woo her. It couldn't at any rate go far without it. Joy herself becoming aware of it, that Edna had a right to permit it, if, however, he were dishonest in his motive, that was quite another matter, and it was obviously my place to interfere. We should have, at least to see that Edna could not get hold of any property.

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

A NOVEL SUSPENDER FROCK FOR THE SMALL GIRL—4225.

The suspender dress has ever been a favorite with mothers of artistic tastes, and deservedly, for there is no more becoming design for a little maid's frock. The mad-darling suspender show in the accompanying sketch is a novel and attractive variation of this popular model. The short, straight skirt is so arranged as to give the long-waisted effect that is now so much in vogue, while the pretty, full waist, pleated at the neck and gathered at the belt line, is of such shaping as to adapt itself gracefully to any little figure. As pictured, the dress is made of golden brown nun's veiling, and trimmed with narrow velvet ribbon of a darker shade, the waist portion being made of peignee; but it may be modeled in any preferred silk, woolen or tub goods, with skirt and waist of the same material, with or without the suspender attachment, and with full length or shorter sleeves. To model the medium size 3½ yards of 27-inch material will be required.

4225—Seven sizes, 3 to 9 years.
The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

not, so far as I could see, dangerous. My position, therefore, was a delicate one, and I made up my mind to have another talk with Joy before showing my hand in interference.

I went over all this with Leah and she listened attentively. She iterated that she didn't trust Dr. Copin, and that she feared there was danger at hand. I could see that the hint that he might want to marry Edna frightened her most of all.

"How can I tell Miss Joy?" she said. "How can I hint that Edna is too free with him—and all the rest that I suspect? Why, Mr. Castle, if she knew that, it would kill her! But couldn't I tell her? Is it fair for her to know? It's the most awful situation! I can't bear to think of it! We must save her from herself, though as well as from the knowledge of herself—do you see?"

She was sensitively alive to the intricate phases of honor that were entangled in the situation, and showing such fineness and delicacy, I could quite ignore the fact that she was a girl. But that was merely the negative aspect of my admiration for her. From this time on, the more I was thrown with her in the intimate way required by our co-operation, the more I began actually to find in her a positive beauty, a beauty that was truly of her race and type—a beauty that foreshadowed what, were environment permitted, what, were environment permitted, her future might be. Her features, though the skin was still dark, the features, insensibly modified by mental processes, would lose something of the extravagance of modeling now so repellent to whites.

Such vision came in moments like this, when her spirit was aroused and free. Usually, and always when suffering patiently the contempt or anger of Edna, I saw her only as the personification of loyalty, the loyalty of the hound who licks the hand that smites him. It was then as if her woman's soul were crushed back farther into the figure of the servant. But always those two qualities were finely blended in her—she was slave and friend, not alternately but at once. One dwelt with the other in perfect peace. No hunchback ever carried his deformity with a nobler grace than she the trial of her color.

Miss Fielding and the doctor remained closeted together till dinner time, when the three met at the table. She was slightly flushed and her eyes were keen and bright. It was as if she somehow saw more—as if she had passed from that curious, mentally apathetic state which I have called childlike, and were inspecting a new world. But this analysis, no doubt, comes from what I learned later rather than from my observation at that time. Perhaps all that impressed me then was that she had, in some way, changed. I could find no way in which to account for the precise degree of difference that I noticed. She was alternately gay and abstracted, at which latter times she fell unconsciously into poses so like those of her normal self—Joy's self—that it gave me often a start of surprise.

But, as if to cover all this, the doctor was more than usually jocose in a mechanical way so devoid of real humor that it irritated me. Try as I might, I could not get him to talk seriously. At every remark or question of mine, he threw me off with some nonsensical comment. It was the more maddening because of Edna's inevitable laughter, and it was evident that she thought him a most amusing companion, though to me he seemed wholly without atmosphere or radiation; everything appeared calculated, deliberate. I saw that there could be nothing between us unless, indeed, it should come to open conflict. He was the sort of man who could, I was well aware, arouse all my antagonism. It was easy enough to see that I was already jealous.

We talked on thus through the meal and then adjourned to the library for coffee. As we entered I saw a quick look about to see if I could catch any revealing sign. I saw nothing except that the morris chair was drawn up to another, so that the two faced each other, almost near enough to touch. There were a few sheets of ruled yellow paper on the table. These the doctor took up, as he went in and placed in his pocket.

The talk languishing after a while, we spent the evening at cards, and what with the doctor's sallies and

Manhood, Womanhood—the Turning Point of Health

Growth, hard study and the tax of social life, enter upon the seat of youth, is a severe tax on strength. If strength is not guarded it may lay a train of evils that retard success, and the result is poor health.

Edna's obvious replies, I think I was never before so bored in my life. The only amusing thing about it was the way she played us off, one against the other, twitting the doctor with his remissness when he was not so complimentary as I was to her, and accusing me of a lack of humor when I did not join in their badinage. She distributed her favors impartially upon the whole, though I caught several indications of some secret understanding between them, which was not surprising, considering the length of their acquaintance. He seemed to enjoy the evening as little as I, and to be a trifle embarrassed, even somewhat anxious. This was evident in the way he watched her covertly, and in the way he headed off all my questions, as if always on the defense. From a look she gave him, once or twice, I got the idea also, that his foot was busy, under the table, and that he was using that method of signaling when the conversation got dangerously near whatever it was that he wished to avoid. This interested me considerably for the reason that her other foot was touching mine in a way that assured me of her conscious intention. The situation was as unpleasant as it was extraordinary. I lost myself at times, in the inconsistency of it—the strangeness of her actions so unattuned to the exquisite body which was wont to house such delicacies of soul. She had indubitably changed from those first whimsical madcap moods of the morning. Somehow her personality had deepened; it had grown in strength and color; it was more assertive. She was no longer carelessly, thoughtlessly frank and forward, she had some definite motive.

Her coquetry and rillery lasted till ten o'clock, when she excused herself and went up to her room. The doctor and I remained in the library. I determined to cross swords with him. "I'd like to know what you make of Miss Fielding's case," I began. "Any thing that is that you can tell me with propriety. I confess I'm much interested in it."

He got up, long and thin, put his hands behind him under his coat tails, and stood backing the fireplace.

"Oh, I know what you're interested in," he said with his grin.

"Do you think there's any chance of her recovering?" I said, ignoring his sarcasm.

"What's she lost?" he asked.

"Why, herself, hasn't she? Today, at least."

"Oh, she'll find that tomorrow, I expect!" He balanced himself on his toes and smoked complacently.

"I might as well stop there, I knew, but at the risk of being impertinent I was bound to see what I could get out of him."

"Have you found any law governing these alternations?"

"Why, yes; I have good reason to believe they come in turn—first one and then the other."

"I got up, I fancy he came as near to receiving a blow on the point of the chin that moment as he ever did in his life. But I held myself in check."

"Of course, if you think that it's none of my business, I'll ask you no more questions," I said angrily.

"Oh, no! Oh, no!" He took his head with a deprecating wave. "Only sometimes it's easier to ask questions than to answer them. This is a common enough case, as you know, if you know anything about psychology. A mild form of mania; that's all."

"Do you mean to say that you consider it merely insanity?" I demanded.

"Oh, we're all insane, more or less," he pursued in his maddening, non-committal way. "Insanity is a relative term, you know. 'All the world is queer but thee and me, and even thee's a little queer,' as the old Quaker said."

"I did my best to keep my temper. 'It's very unfortunate, at all events.'"

"Oh, I don't know. We can't have too many of such fine women as Miss Fielding, can we? I'm sure I'd like to know a half dozen of them."

"You must confess it's hard on her."

"Oh, it gives her something interesting to think about. All alone here, you know." He waved his long arm comprehensively over the scene.

"But aren't you trying to do anything for her? She surely wants to get over it." I was determined to push him into some definite statement. But it was no use.

"Oh, she'll come all right," he replied, yawning behind his palm.

"She's too fine a woman, as you say; she has too fine a character, too fine a mind—" I began to protest.

"My dear Mr. Castle, women are always changing their minds. His shoulders shook as he laughed silently at his own joke."

"You'll change yours, before I've finished with you," I said, and I've finished with you."

But there was no use continuing the dialogue, and bidding him good night, I went up to bed. Leah had given her own room up to him and she spent the night in Miss Fielding's study. I heard him come stumbling up at midnight.

CHAPTER IV.

It was with a feeling of great relief that next morning I heard the dogs barking jubilantly in the yard, answering each in turn to their names.

Nokomis, I knew by her heavy note, had returned to the house. Joy was then herself.

This was better than I had dared to hope. My suspicions in regard to the doctor were now strengthened and I felt intuitively that, in some way, his presence at Midmeadows accounted for the increasing frequency of Edna's visitations.

The last three days had shown regular alternations of personality, but I recalled the fact that on both Monday and Tuesday it had been Edna who had possessed Miss Fielding's body. With this thought came also the recollection of Joy's unusual actions in telephoning to the doctor.

The two facts seemed to indicate a significant relation—a relation, perhaps, of cause and effect. A third hint came—that such anomalous states of personality were sometimes developed during hypnosis—and the three separate thoughts snapped together, crystallizing into an idea. Had not Dr. Copin hypnotized Edna, and given her the post-hypnotic suggestion that she, in Joy's person, should telephone to him in the morning? It seemed probable, for I could not doubt now, that it was to the doctor's interest to keep Miss Fielding as long and as often as possible in her secondary state as Edna. As Edna she was impenetrable and easily managed to his ends. Edna invited him and welcomed him to Midmeadows, while Joy was cold and reserved. Everything that had happened dovetailed into my hypothesis—his annoyance at my presence, as the especial friend of Joy, and his own particular cultivation of Edna—the proof, in fact, seemed conclusive. What then was he trying to do?

I went down early and found him, brown and lean, in a suit of muddy brown, wandering about outside, his long hands clasped behind his back. He greeted me civilly enough, but without warmth. I did not disturb him in his mood and he meandered up and down, turning over a stone with his foot now and then, stooping to pluck a flower and sniff it thoughtfully, humming a tune to himself as he strolled.

Leah came to the doorway, gave me a happy look, nodded meaningly, and passed up stairs with Miss Fielding's tray. I went back to the stable to see the colts. Nokomis bounded up to me and nuzzled my hand. Her forehead showed a scar where the whip handle had struck her, and I talked to her about it contentedly, in canine gutturals. We seemed to understand each other perfectly.

At half-past eight Leah called me in to breakfast. I found Dr. Copin already at the table.

"Going up to town today, Castle?" he asked, tucking his serviette into his collar.

"No, I hadn't thought of it," I said sitting down.

"H'm!" he ejaculated thoughtfully. "I didn't know but we might be taking the same train."

"Oh, I think I'll try my machine when I leave," I said.

He grinned. "Haven't you had enough ground-and-lofty tumbling yet?"

THE WEALTHY TAKE TO FADS

What Morgan, Rockefeller and Other Rich Men Do for Pastime.

New York, Sept. 18.—After all, America's richest men, particularly those who have won their riches in New York city or have come here to spend time, do not find their chief pleasure in adding to their hoards.

It seems that this could not have been written without qualification before the death of Russell Sage. There's Hetty Green, of course, but she's a woman. The men, while probably not neglecting the opportunities they have to keep their representatives busy looking after their investments, appear to grasp every available chance to do something else, than figure out means for the augmentation of their wealth.

The mention of John D. Rockefeller's name conjures up a mental picture of an old man trudging patiently over golf links. That's his public amusement.

Morgan's Fad Is Art
In private, he plays the fiddle—after a fashion—but most enjoyably to himself. Carnegie likes to give away his millions, but those who know him best say that he finds greatest fun sitting on the bank of a gurgling stream intent watching the float of his fishing line, oblivious to the fine sticky Scotch mist which wets his clothes and makes him cough.

Mr. Morgan's fad is collecting art treasures, yet for forty years he has been collecting fine colts, and it is believed by many that he finds more real pleasure among his dogs. E. H. Harriman says he finds relaxation on his business trip, but a greater joy comes to him, his friends say, when he is off in the woods, with rod and gun in hand.

H. H. Rogers, the Standard Oil magnate, enjoys yachting most, and next to that, or with it, a good book—preferably one of the style of "Huckleberry Finn."

Clark Fond of Poker.
In his younger days United States Senator Clark, of Montana, was fond of poker for high stakes in the Silver Bow Club, in Butte. Now he has the habit of collecting fine paintings and works of art for his mansion on Fifth avenue. Darius Ogden Mills, banker, likes most to help those who have been injured in "The battle of life." Though an octogenarian, his chief interest seems to be in his pet philanthropies—the Mills hotels and Bellevue Hospital Training School for Nurses.

Henry Havemeyer's fad is the "American Venice," at which he makes his home on the Great South Bay, Long Island. William K. Vanderbilt's chief amusement is breeding and racing horses; John Jacob Astor's is travel and yachting; Clarence MacKay's breeding horses and playing racquet; John W. Gates' shooting, and playing the races. James C. Archibald's high-speed motor power boats; George J. Gould's yachting.

The Euche Indians, 500 in number, who live in a remote part of the Creek Nation, cling to their own language and marry principally among their own tribe, after being conquered and absorbed by the Creek Indians more than 200 years ago. In some cases a Euche may marry a Creek and the children will speak to the father in the Euche language and to the mother in Creek.

Japan's advertiser has taken some billboard ideas from America. Worshipers at Buddhist temples invariably wash their hands in a fountain at the entrance before making their supplications. Formerly the priests hung towels there. Now the merchants of Tokio and other cities furnish the temples with free towels, rendering the privilege of printing their advertisements on them.

In the last five years, in New York City, 593,714 tenants have gone into new flat houses.

RICH MAN LIVES LIKE A BEGGAR

James Sterrett Spends Only Eighteen Cents a Day, Despite Wealth.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 18.—Pleading for mercy, James S. Sterrett, millionaire, stood before Justice Scheer and told much of his personal history, but not until he was threatened with jail.

Sterrett, whose age is 86, had been arrested by an officer of the health department for failure to have water connections in his living quarters. When arraigned and asked if it was a fact that he had not had water turned on in his rooms during the past twelve years he replied: "I am a very old man. I cannot afford to spend recklessly what I have worked years to get. I have to live economically and cannot afford to pay water rent."

"Mr. Sterrett," asked the judge, "how much are you worth? What do you value your possessions at?"

Buttoning his threadbare coat to the neck, the old gentleman cleared his throat and replied: "I don't exactly know; I had 30 houses and lots in this city, but I gave them all away. I own about 40 houses now, and six brick blocks. There are 10,000 acres in my farm in the state of Minnesota, and I own a block in Chicago that I would not sell for $100,000. I don't think I am worth more than $2,000,000, and if I should lose that I would have to go to the poorhouse."

"Where do you get your water?" "I can't afford to buy it," whimpered the old man. "I go over to the fountain in the park and get a bucket or two at a time. I take that over to my room and use it to drink and wash with. It answers the purpose and does not cost me anything."

"Where do you eat?" Inquired the judge.

Sterrett hesitated for a moment, but after wiping his eyes replied: "I did take my meals at the Arcade, but I can't afford to eat there now. I lost some money lately, so now I eat at the Three-Cent Lunch room. I can get a good meal there for nine cents, and as I only have to eat twice a day, it costs me 18 cents for my meals."

Asked about what he generally eats, the prisoner gave the following bill of fare: Coffee, three cents; bread, three cents, and on rare occasions a five-cent steak. He never pays over 12 cents for a meal, and generally gets one for from six to nine cents. Among other statements he said that he purchased his clothes at a local second-hand store, and that during the past fifteen years he has not paid out more than $75 for clothes all told.

DOOM AWITS THREE

Men Suspected of Plotting Against President Diaz Arrested.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 18.—Antonio Villareal, publisher of a revolutionary paper in St. Louis; Flores Magon, and Librado Rivera, three Mexicans, who were arrested here and held prisoners 23 days without a hearing, were released this morning, because Governor Gillette refused to grant extradition papers to take them back to St. Louis, where, it is alleged, they are wanted for criminal libel. But the Mexicans were immediately rearrested by deputy United States marshals on petition for their extradition to Mexico by Ambassador Cret to the state department, to answer to charges of larceny and murder. The present complaint was made by Antonio Lozano, local Mexican consul. It is said the men are plotting against Diaz' life, and every effort is made to get them into Mexico, where it is believed death awaits them.

The average valuation of the paper money printed daily by Uncle Sam totals over $3,000,000.

WEIRD FINANCING OF STANDARD OIL

Prosecution by U. S. Govt.
Brings Out Some Remarkable Facts.

New York, Sept. 18.—More light was shed on the remarkable earning capacity of the various subsidiary companies of the Standard Oil Company today, when Frank B. Kellogg, who is conducting the federal suit, succeeded in placing upon the record the profits of seventeen of the principal subsidiary companies in the years 1903 to 1906. The statement of earnings of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which was recently fined $29,240,000 by Judge Landis, of Chicago, for rebating, disclosed that in 1906 the company earned no less than $10,538,932, on a capitalization of $1,000,000, or over 1,000 per cent a year.

The Indiana Company in 1906 earned more than any subsidiary company of the big combine.

Mr. Kellogg developed during the day, while Clarence G. Fay, assistant controller of the Standard Oil Company, was on the stand, a curious problem of financial bookkeeping, or handling of accounts, which Mr. Fay failed to explain.

From figures submitted it was shown that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in 1904 made a profit of $7,751,190, and paid in dividends to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey the total sum of $32,998,430. This transaction reduced the net assets of the New York company from $40,425,900 to $15,179,760, while the liabilities leaped from $47,646,235, in 1903 to $81,395,145 in 1906, an increase of nearly $34,000,000. The gross assets of the New York company, however, increased from $88,074,561, in 1903, to $96,574,352 in 1904.

Meanwhile the accounts receivable on the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey grew from $19,045,014 in 1903 to $58,272,324.

Mr. Fay was closely questioned as to the nature of the accounts receivable of the New York company, and the increase in the accounts receivable of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, but he said he could not tell until he had examined the books of both companies, which he told Mr. Kellogg he would do.

Charles M. Pratt, secretary of the Standard Oil Company, recalled to the witness stand, told how he had sold for the Standard Oil Company the stock of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, at the time when it was not permitted to operate in the state of Texas. He said that he held the stock as a matter of convenience and not to avoid the anti-trust laws of Texas. Mr. Pratt then gave some interesting sidelights on the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, the stock of which was held for a long period by M. Van Bueren who was connected with the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Van Bueren purchased the stock from Mr. Pratt, and early this year the Standard Company bought it back. The nature of the transaction showed that Mr. Van Bueren received from the Standard Oil Company exactly what he paid for the stock and that during the time he held it the dividends were paid to the Standard Company.

After looking over the records of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Company, Mr. Pratt said that in 1899 a committee of four was appointed to act as a stock securities committee. John D. Rockefeller and Mr. Jennings were the members of the committee, which acted as custodian of the subsidiary stocks, having a book value of $375,000,000.

Mr. Pratt said that the Standard Oil Company of New York purchased oil from the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey for export and conducted almost all of the export business. Mr. Pratt said that he was a boy when the trust agreement was signed in 1882, and at that time only knew H. H. Rogers and his father, Charles Pratt, as among those who signed the trust agreement.

Wesley Tifford, treasurer of the Standard Oil Company, was called to the stand late today and Mr. Kellogg made an effort to have spread on the record a copy of the trust agreement of 1882, but John G. Milburn, chief counsel for the defendant companies, objected on the ground that such an agreement was prior to July 2, 1890, when the Sherman anti-trust law went into effect.

MR. ROOSEVELT AND E. H. HARRIMAN

Paris Paper's Pointed Remarks
as to That $250,000 Campaign Fund.

Paris, Sept. 18.—Present Roosevelt's attitude toward trusts and railroads found consideration this morning at the hands of the Siecle, which is inclined to fear that the President's powers of fascination would be damaged somewhat by the charges that he procured E. H. Harriman's help toward his electoral campaign fund.

The Siecle heads its article "Roosevelt and Harriman," and begins by saying that "there has happened to Mr. Roosevelt a rather disagreeable adventure, judging at least according to our European ideas." The article then recalls the recent speeches of President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft, which were based so largely on a campaign against the trusts and great corporations, the campaign being characterized as having been carried at full tilt. Secretary Taft is described as the President's intimate friend, and parts of Mr. Roosevelt's speech are quoted, after which the Siecle says:

"After having begun by declaring war on the big corporations and then after clearly having used them to the biggest advantage, on the approach of the last presidential campaign, Mr. Roosevelt returned to his first love or rather to his first hatreds."

The Siecle then details the charges that the President had not only accepted, but solicited Mr. Harriman's money, and says that while the source of the revelations has been concealed everybody supposes that Mr. Harriman is responsible since he has for some time shown himself to be greatly irritated at the President's anti-railway and anti-trust campaign.

"But," says the Siecle, "interest in the matter does not lie in that direction. What is interesting to know is if the information is correct. If it is not, it would seem that there would have been denials. Besides, such precise details as have been given would have been singularly audacious inventions. But how about the personal prestige of Mr. Roosevelt? Has it not become a mortal blow? What becomes of his renown for integrity?"

After referring to the possible use in the campaign of a cartoon picturing President Roosevelt and Mr. Harriman conversing confidentially as practical men, the Siecle says:

"It will be easy to exaggerate the political efficiency of such an easy trick, because in the first place the candidate will not be Roosevelt, but his friend, confidant and collaborator, Taft; and in the second place because Americans have a simple manner of viewing such affairs, which causes them to admire more than to blame practical men."

RIVAL OF BRIDEGROOM CARRIES OFF BRIDE

She Gladly Weds Him Because She Loved Him Better, Anyway.

Baltimore, Sept. 18.—Miss Della Patchett, of Cordova, Md., could not decide whether she loved Louis Plugge best or William E. Tarbutton. Both are wealthy young men. Finally she said "yes" to Louis Plugge, and he, triumphantly happy, got the marriage license.

Then he sent a friend through the county to ask all his acquaintances to his wedding at the Plugge homestead on Saturday night. The news came to Tarbutton's ears. Tarbutton got a marriage license, too. Then he hastened to Miss Della's home.

"Oh, Will," cried the wavering young woman delightedly, "I'm so glad to see you, for now I know I love you best."

While 100 guests were waiting for the bride at Plugge's home, she was married to Tarbutton.

RETURNS TO THE STAGE

Divorced From Earl, Countess Roslyn
Will Have New Play.

London, Sept. 18.—The announcement that the Countess of Roslyn, formerly Miss Annie Robinson, who recently obtained a Scottish decree of divorce against the earl, is to return to the stage after her absence of seven years is made tonight. It has caused a profound sensation in the social life of London, which is still discussing the divorce and the action of the earl in filing an appeal against the decree.

The countess has been engaged to play the leading part in a new comedy entitled "The Education of Elizabeth" at the Apollo Theater. She is now said to be engaged in the selection of her gowns, which will be the most elaborate ever seen on a London stage.

The Scottish decree allows her to retain her title, and members of the peerage are now asking if the American countess, as she is known, will use this title on the playbills in the city where her former husband lives as a peer.

Lady Roslyn tonight was at her home, which she owns at No. 11 Norfolk street, but she declined to discuss her return to the stage or say a word about her future.

The "Four Georges" of England were also kings of Hanover, a province of Prussia formerly an independent German state of 15,000 square miles. The German Federal Council, however, decided last month, for the second time, that an English duke cannot become reigning Duke of Brunswick unless he will renounce his claim to the throne of Hanover. It ceased to exist in 1866, when it was annexed to Prussia as a penalty for fighting with Austria. The father of the present Duke of Cumberland, grandson of George III., was then King of Hanover. He had received the throne on the death of William IV. in 1837.

New York, Sept. 18.—That a middle-aged woman whose identity remains a mystery, either lost or was robbed of a tin box containing $196,000 in cash and $40,000 worth of diamonds and other jewels while on her way from Larchmont to New York yesterday is the story that startled officials and trainmen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad yesterday afternoon and resulted immediately in a searching but fruitless investigation.

Benjamin F. Norris, a lawyer, accompanied by a woman who appeared to be about 45 years old, called at the lost and found bureau of the road, in the Grand Central station. Norris reported the loss. Norris, who did not mention the name of his woman companion, seemed much excited and worried. He spoke of the loss as being very serious. At first, Norris made much mystery as to the contents of the box. Mr. Norris explained that the woman was a wealthy child, that she had started from Larchmont with the tin box and also a suit case. He described the box as being about 14 by 10 inches, locked, and of the ordinary pattern, such as is used for the storing of deeds, securities or other valuable papers.

According to the lawyer's story, his client had been in the second car of the train and had left it immediately on its arrival in Grand Central station. It was not until she had crossed the street that she realized that she had not brought her box of valuables with her. She was much perturbed, but instead of returning immediately to the train, she called on Norris, her counsel.

Norris began offering liberal cash rewards for the recovery of the property. He seemed so distressed that he was pressed for further particulars as to the contents of the lost box. Papers of no value except to the owner, it seemed to these railroad men, must be extraordinary papers of they warranted offers of rewards ranging from $10,000 to $15,000 for their recovery.

Under further questioning Mr. Norris is quoted as having said that the actual contents of the box were $196,000 in cash and jewels worth probably $40,000. He refused to name his companion and appeared uncommonly eager to shield his client from notoriety.

"She does not realize it yet," Mr. Norris said, "but it represents nearly all she has. She is a woman, however, who has been accustomed to handling large sums of money all her life as easily as you or I might handle brass checks."

WANTS T. R. TO COLLECT SAYS THAT JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER OWES HIM TEN MILLIONS.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 18.—Secret Service Officer Washer was on duty in front of President Roosevelt's house at Sagamore Hill at 7 o'clock tonight when he saw a man dressed in overalls and wearing a slouch hat step around from the rear of the house. Washer did not say anything at first, because he thought the man might be employed on the farm, but when he went up on the porch and started to ring the door bell, Washer asked him what he wanted.

"Want to see the President to make John D. Rockefeller pay me $10,000,000 he owes me," the man said. "I know that's the only way I'll ever get the money."

He said he was Orlando Toland, and had come from Oxford, Ala., by beating his way on freight trains to Washington. When he found the President gone he stole a ride to New York. He walked to Oyster Bay, he said. Washer then sent a hurry call for one of the Government automobile bibles and the man was rushed down to the executive offices. There secret service men who know Alabama questioned him, and were convinced that he was telling the truth.

The secret service men talked with the man a little and decided he was harmless, gave him what he thought was a letter to Rockefeller ordering him to pay Toland what he owed him on sight, and then sent him to New York on the 10 o'clock train.

Toland told the officers that Rockefeller offered him $65,000,000 if he would find him murdered a certain woman in St. Paul. He said he didn't discover the murderer, but thought his work on the case was worth at least $10,000,000.

NEW RUGBY UNION CERTAIN

Several Eastern Players May Be Reinstated by the C. A. A. U.

Hamilton, Sept. 18.—The proposed inter-Provincial Rugby Union, to be made up of teams from Hamilton, Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa is now waiting for the Montreal and Ottawa teams to apply to the C. A. A. U. for the reinstatement of some of their players who disqualified themselves under the C. A. A. U. by playing with and against professionals. The applications for reinstatement with the necessary affidavits arrived this morning and were at once forwarded to the C. A. A. U. registration committee this afternoon. The men Montreal wants reinstated are: Ernie Russell, Smalle, E. Hamilton, R. Major and Gordon Davidson. It is likely that their amateur standing will be restored.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Preliminary Session of Commission
Dealing With the Matter.

Montreal, Sept. 18.—The workmen's compensation act commission held a preliminary session in the court house this morning. Mr. Arthur Globensky, chairman, presided. Mr. B. Gordon, of the Dominion Textile Company, and Mr. George Marois, president of the National Federation of Labor, were present as commissioners. Mr. Leon Garneau has been appointed secretary. The session was employed mainly in arranging the methods of procedure and in discussing statutes. Delegations in connection with this act will be received at some future date, when evidence will also be taken.

MORE RATE SLASHING

The International Mercantile Wars on The White Star Line.

New York, Sept. 18.—The steamship rate war in prices of minimum first cabin accommodations east-bound, which had practically subsided within a week, was reopened yesterday by a big clash on steamers of the International Mercantile Marine, which made unusually low prices on the steamers of the White Star Line, American Line and Atlantic Transport Line east and west bound. The new rates go into effect on Nov. 1.

The steamer Adriatic, the latest and largest of the White Star fleet, had a minimum first-class rate of $100. The rate slashing announced yesterday reduces her minimum first-cabin accommodations to $62.50. The Oceanic, the fastest of the line, was reduced from $90 to $67.50. The Majestic and Teutonic were reduced to $53.50. These four steamers comprise the White Star Line fleet on the Southampton-New York service.

The Baltic, Cedric and Celtic, of the Liverpool-New York service of the White Star Line, were reduced to $57.50.

The Arabic, also of this service, was reduced to $50.

All operators of the American Line, which operates a service between New York and Southampton, were reduced to $52.50.

ZAM-BUK
SAVED THIS BABY

Mrs. M. Barrett, 608 Morcan St., Montreal, says: "A horrid rash came out all over my baby's face and spread until it had totally covered his scalp. It was irritating and painful, and caused the little one hours of suffering. We tried soap and powders and salves, but he got no better. He was so fretful all day long that it made it very hard for me. He refused his food, got quite skin and worn, and was reduced to a very serious condition. I was one day advised to try ZAM-BUK, and did so. It was wonderful how it seemed to cool and ease the child's burning, painful skin. He gradually became more easy and able to sleep. ZAM-BUK from the very commencement seemed to go more easily and the pimples and redness and the irritation grew less and less. Within a few weeks my baby's skin was healed completely. He has now not a trace of rash, or eruption, or eczema, or burning, itching skin trouble, he has improved in general health. He has got fat and plump, weighs no less than 25 lbs., although only 10 months old, and is in first-class condition. ZAM-BUK is sold at all stores and medicine vendors, 50c a box, or post free from ZAM-BUK Co., Toronto, for price, 6 boxes for $2.45.

DOES THIS INTEREST YOU?

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder diseases, attributes a great deal of his success to the following simple vegetable prescription:—

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salads;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;
Mix, shake well, and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Your druggist can supply the ingredients, and the mixture can be prepared at home at very little expense. This, the doctor says, acts directly on the kidneys, assisting them to filter the poisons from the blood and expel same in the urine, at the same time restoring the kidneys to healthy, normal action.

We feel that a great many readers will be pleased to learn of this simple prescription, and knowing the ability of the physician whose formula it is, we do not hesitate to recommend it to any sufferer.

Married at London.

The Hamilton Herald says of the Kelly-Lawson wedding: A wedding of considerable local interest took place in London yesterday, when Thomas Kelly, of the office staff of the light and power department of the Cataract Power Company, was married to Miss Margaret Lawson, daughter of John Lawson, Euclid avenue, London. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, and was attended by a number of relative and friends of the groom in this city. Rev. Dean Davis officiated, and the happy couple were attended to in anticipation of the happy event the members of the office staff of the Cataract Power Company presented to Mr. Kelly a handsome dining-room table on Saturday.

A Bennett Act.

While Mlle. Carotta was doing the sensational turn of looping the loop in Bennett's Theater, Hamilton, yesterday afternoon, there was just as thrilling an act going on outside the theater. Two painters, employed by the contractor, were at work on a scaffold 30 or 40 feet from the ground, and they got into an altercation. It is alleged one tried to throw the other to the ground, which would likely have meant death. The man held to the scaffold for dear life, till Mr. R. St. John went up his ladder to his assistance. The men were separated, one being sent to another place to work.

An Industrial Problem.

Brantford has a peculiar problem in the industrial line. A Jewish company, employing 50 Jews, has purchased a large building on Dalhousie street, in a residential section, and is maintaining a rag and metal concern. It is now seeking the right to have a railway switch in its premises. Citizens, in asking the city council to refuse the privilege, are arguing against the business, not the switch. The council takes the stand that the business is legitimate and that as the switch will be an aid to it, it should be granted, provided the company meets property damages, which it has agreed to do.

Special Delivery Letters.

The postoffice department has considerably extended the special delivery list of postoffices, so that special delivery letters can now be sent to the following places: Halifax, St. John, Fredericton, Quebec, Sherbrooke, St. Hyacinthe, Three Rivers, Montreal, Kingston, Peterboro, Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, Brantford, Berlin, Stratford, London, Windsor, Calgary, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria. The special delivery stamp, costing ten cents in addition to the ordinary postage, will insure special delivery in usually 15 or 20 minutes after the letter reaches its postoffice of destination. The special delivery hours are between 7:00 a.m. and 10 p.m. on week days, but special deliveries are not made on Sundays. Drop letters for special local delivery, if bearing the extra ten cents, besides ordinary postage, and marked special delivery, will be also dealt with as express letters, and delivered with promptness. It is better to use special delivery stamps, but where that is not practicable, if the extra ten cents (in addition to ordinary postage) is affixed in ordinary stamps, the letter will be forwarded for special delivery; but in that case the words "Special delivery" should be marked on the letter. The system of special delivery letters is growing in popularity with the public judging from the experience of the London postoffice.

BISHOP INGRAM IS A GALLANT GENTLEMAN

Pleasing Incident on the Occasion of His Departure from London.

A very amusing incident in which the Bishop of London was the hero occurred at the Grand Trunk station at 2:30 yesterday afternoon when the bishop was on his way to visit his brother in Aylmer.

An old lady, well-known in London, was going to St. Thomas, and she was carrying a birdcage in which she had a small pup. The bottom fell out of the cage a couple of times when she was getting her ticket, and it was with considerable difficulty that she managed to get to the train.

The bishop noticed that she was having trouble and he made the clergy who were with him make way for her.

Just as she was near him the bottom of the birdcage fell out, and the pup took a tumble. The bishop took the birdcage, and reached down and picked up the pup. He fixed the cage up for the woman, and then helped her on the train.

The crowd enjoyed the sight very much, and Bishop Ingram had a hearty laugh over the plight of the woman and her pup.

"The Girl Who Has Everything," will be the attraction at the Grand tonight. More than usual interest is manifested by local theatergoers in the engagement in this city, by reason of the fact that Miss Isabel Irving, one of the most popular of American actresses will make her appearance in the play, and because the evening is written by the most prolific and prominent of playwrights, Mr. Clyde Fitch.

Author Fitch has combined in his new drama most of the elements that have gone towards the making of his many successes. He has conceived a strong story of cumulative interest that makes an appeal to both the heart and the intellect. He has drawn characters, counterparts of whom are seen in the daily walks of life, and he has provided these characters with crisp, smart and natural dialogue.

The attraction at the Grand tomorrow evening will be the old time and favorite farce comedy, "Side Tracked." This company does not carry a company of forty or fifty people or depend on a carload of scenery to make a success, but by giving the people a company of capable actors and actresses that have the ability to amuse and entertain their audiences without becoming tiresome. "Side Tracked" is not a new or untried piece, but a farce that has stood the test of time and was built for laughing purposes only, being replete with up-to-date songs and dances.

In these days of commonplace claptrap and cheap sensationalism, it is refreshing to encounter a play so delightfully wholesome, clean-cut and true to life and nature as "Jessie Left the Village," the offering at the Grand Saturday, matinee and evening. Each type is distinctive and life-like, with a loving, laughing, suffering, weeping, always human, always real. In the story are involved the fortunes of Jessie Moreland, the village beauty, and Jim Silveton, the sheriff of Clover Valley.

ANOTHER PEACE TALK

Central American Republics To Hold Conference at Washington.

Mexico City, Sept. 18.—The peace conference of the States of Central America, the object of which is to settle existing disputes, and bring about a condition of permanent harmony, will be held in Washington during the first days of November. This is the conference that was arranged by President Roosevelt. All the Central American republics have signed the protocol.

THE ITALIAN RIOTS

Enraged Mob Attempts to Lynch Landowner Who Killed Striker.

Cannossa, Italy, Sept. 19.—The agrarian strike is growing in this vicinity, and the whole countryside is in a state of terror. The strikers have posted pickets, armed with shotguns, at the gates of the town, to prevent farmers from going out to their fields. Yesterday a landowner, under provocation, shot a striker dead. A mob at once formed and attempted to lynch the landowner. Troops were called, and had the greatest difficulty in dispersing the crowd. Many persons were wounded, including the landowner, who sustained mortal injury.
