DOUBLE MURDER AT RODNEY WAS ONLY AVERTED BY MIRACLE

Slayer of Eliza Lowery About to Kill Mrs. Covell When He Was Frightened by a Noise in an Adjoining Room.

Miss Lowery Made a Brave Fight for Her Life and Honor Minute Description Secured of the Murderer-Mrs. Covell Could Not Identify Farmer Willis.

"While he was choking me with the intention of killing me, the cat made a noise. I renewed my fight and shouted, 'There's my husband. There's Mr. Covell. Thank God.' My assailant immediately took fright and ran around to the back of the house."

[By Our Own Reporter.]

Such is the statement made by Mrs. Covell, wife of Benjamin Covell, as to how, through the incident of the family cat jumping from a cupboard into a rocking chair, her life was saved, and the disgrace of a double murder was saved the people of Old Rodney Corners. The incident is tragic in its tense dently sought a refuge on top of the old-fashioned cupboard, which forms the chief furnishing of the simple sitting-room and kitchen combined, and when the death battle had been renewed with another quarry in the next room the cat, coming down from its place of retreat, jumped into a rocking chair, causing it to rock to and fro, making a noise of which the enfeebled old woman, to whom the prospects of dishonor and a brutal death had given new life, was quick to avail herself, and the cowardly brute, took fright and ran through the fields in his anxiety to put as great distance as possible between himself and the husband of the woman he was seeking to kill.

That the murderer and assaulter of one woman, and the attempted murderer and assaulter of another is no tramp, but is some with the vicinity and the people, is now pretty well agreed by all, drinking more than is good for him. Though only the local constable and St. Thomas police have as yet been working on the case, Provincial Detective Greer it is expected, will take the matter up today, and that an arrest will follow before very many hours is the belief of the majority of the people The motive for the crime was revealed in all its disgusting and abhorrent viciousness by the examination of the physicians, and it is thought that the robbing of the poverty-stricken old women was but a well-thoughtout scheme of the brute to throw a herring across the trail when the inevitable pursuit of the murderer began. With the motive revealed, and with the fact to work on that the man who committed the crime was acquainted with the names of those who lived in the community, as well as with the name of a Mary Taylor, now three years de ceased, and for whom he inquired when he entered the Covell home, there does not appear to be any room to doubt that it is only a matter of hours until the criminal is apprehended. The deliberate character of the brute is shown by the fact that he, before entering the Covell home, deliberately and coolly went to a cherry tree which grows close to the fence a couple of hundred yards from the scene of the murder, and cut the club with which he extinguished the life of Eliza Lowery. By a few people it is thought that the murderer had heard that Mr. Covell was home on Sunday night, and that he may have been under the impression that likely after pay day; but the general belief is that the robbing of the old women was merely a subterfuge, and that it was done merely to throw suspicion for the commission of the crime onto some outsider, probably a tramp. It is known, too, that a tramp spent the night in the village, but those who saw him say that his description does not at all tally with the description Mrs. Covell gives of her assailant.

In the light of matches which the murderer used in his efforts to locate her when she was hiding under the bed to save her life. Mrs. Covell saw her assailant's face, and she describes him as follows:

"A MAN ANYWHERE BETWEEN 25 AND 40 YEARS OF AGE, CLOSELY SHAVEN, HAIR CROPPED SHORT, THIN POINTED NOSE; IF ANY MUSTACHE, A VERY SMALL ONE, DARK COAT AND VEST; WORE AN OVERCOAT WHEN SHE FIRST SAW HIM OUTSIDE IN THE MOONLIGHT, BUT HAD CAST IT OFF WHEN HE APPEARED IN THE HOUSE; THINKS HE WORE A STIFF HAT, AND WAS VERY AC-TIVE AND SUPPLE.

As Eliza Lowery, the murdered woman, struck the murderer a vicious blow on the face with a chair when he was kicking Mrs. Covill, the police are looking for a man with a scar on his face, and this blow of the old woman's may result in the capture of the murderer.

The people of the vicinity are greatly incensed over the outrage and murder of Miss Lowery, and on every hand the opinion is expressed that the exercise of capital punishment is not sufficient for the crime.

These so-called cures (?) go first to the stomach, then into the intestines, mix with the food and the excretions, are taken up by the blood, and eventually an infinitissimal part may reach the nose. If you had an acute attack of indigestion, would you put the medicine up your nose and expect to be relieved. Vice versa, how can you cure catarrh by dosing the stomach?

Japanese Catarrh Cure is an aromatic, antiseptic pomade. It is inserted in the nostrils, melts at the temperature of the body, and reaches every part of the afflicted tissues. It soothes and heals inflammation, kills the germs of catarrh, clears the head, stops all discharges, and sweetens the breath.

> As the long hours gradually wore way, she became hysterical, crying iteously for help. No one came that way, however, until about 8 o'clock when Mrs. Covell saw two school boys passing the house. By pounding on the window glass she succeeded in attracting their attention, and acquainted them of what had happened. The lads ocated the dead body of Miss Lowery at the rear of the house, and they at once gave the alarm to Mr. P. D. Mc-Vicker, a neighbor, who lives about an eighth of a mile from the scene of the ragedy. He at once visited the house, and after viewing the body he sent some men and women to watch the place and take care of Mrs. Covell, af. ter which he notified Dr. Dorland, the Head Beaten to a Jelly.

The body of the murdered woman was found lying with the feet toward the east wall, in an alcove formed by the lean-to and the kitchen. The top of the head was almost beaten to a jelly; the hands were covered with blood from the club with which she had been beaten by the murderer, and her clothing was all disarranged. In the soft sand were many footprints left by the brute, but unfortunately sightseers who went to view the scene of the tragedy almost obliterated these before the arrival of the coroner.

The club with which the murder was committed is about two feet long, about one and one-quarter inches thick at the butt, and tapering down to about three-quarters of an inch at the small end. It was cut in an orchard, which stands a couple of hundred yards from the Covell home, the tree from which was taken being located close to the fence. A deep cut was made with the knife into the limb, and the strength of the man is shown by the fact that only half-cut through, the limb was wrenched off without stripping the bark in the least. On the fencepoards are traces of mud where the scoundrel crossed to get into the field. It has been suggested by prominent be offered, so as to increase the number of persons who are now engaged in running down the murderer.

LONDON, THURSDAY, APRIL 20. The Rodney Outrage.

The crime near Rodney is one of unspeakable horror, and all the resources of the Provincial constabulary should be placed at the disposal of justice. It would be another crime to permit the fiend to escape through any delay in spreading the network of the law. Offenses of this dreadful character are usually traced to tramps, who have a cunning in concealing their The present case recalls the atrocious murder of the little girl, Glory Whalen, near Collingwood, two by local and Provincial police, but scarcely a trace of the wretch could be found. The wonderful craft of the one-legged tramp who killed Policeman Toohev in this city is, another reminder of the danger to which the community is exposed from this class of criminals, to say nothing of profesburglars like "Texas" and tramp nuisance has been greatly abatthe efforts of the Provincial Hundreds of these vagrants from the other side of the line used to invade Ontario every summer. They which is a highway between the Eastern and Western States. The Provincial police began systematically rounding them up early every summer, and deporting them. The tramp is now a rare species in Ontario, and he avoids the cities, towns and villages, where he is likely to be arrested on sight. It is suggested that the Rodney criminal may not be a tramp, or even a stranger to the neighborhood, as he pretended to have known the first husband of Mrs. Covell. But it is almost inconceivable that such a brute and devil could be a member of a quiet country community in this Province. and grow to manhood without becomthe target of suspicion.

The administration of the license law was under discussion in the Legislature yesterday. Mr. Hanna, the Provincial Secretary, admitted that the majority of the license inspectors had been removed, and made no pretense that they were dismissed for cause. His only exuse was that "the appointees of the Government could be held responsible o a greater extent than those not so appointed." The Premier gave expression to the same views, claiming that the Government could not be responsible for the enforcement of the law unless it was responsible for the ap-The same arguments might be ad-> police today court In the two men who had pleaded guilty to charges of theft were dealt with. One of them, Wesley Boyce, was was given three months in the Central Prison. The other, Charles Alexander Reid, was allowed to go on suspended sentence, on account of his youth and previous good character. The three complaints against Boyce were laid by liverymen. Boyce pleaded not guilty to two of the charges, but was convicted on all three. The magistrate, after receiving no answer when he gave Boyce a chance to say something, for himself, went on to point out that drink had probably caused Boyce's downfall, as his home advan-tages had been of the best. He would not sentence him to a heavy term because his relatives, who were highly respectable, had said they were going to give him a chance to go to Northwests Three months in the Central would show him he could not continue to go as he had been doing and escape punishment. Another charge was read against

Reid, making three in all. The last one was that of stealing a pair of opera glasses from the home of Richard Winnett on South street. He pleaded guilty to the charges and offered no excuse. Magistrate Love told Reid that he understood that he had been living a double life. A PERFECT KITCHEN Interesting Demonstrations in Use of Gas for Cooking.

The Gas Appliance Company of this city are conducting extremely interesting and instructive demonstrations in room 7 of the Duffield block this week. The room is fitted up as a great kitchen and the perfection of its interior arouse the admiration and envy of the many housewives who visit the scene. The utensils, which are a marvel of convenience and neatness, are kept as clean as a whistle.

The gentleman who is in charge, Mr. F. A. Smith, is an expert in this line, and under his direction puddings, garnishes, jellies, egg work and other delicacies are made that displays the superior value of gas in the kitchen. The demonstrations will be held on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday venings, at 8 o'clock; on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, at 10 o'clock, and every afternoon of the week at 3:30. The company invites the citizens to attend these demonstrations. A pleasant feature is the serving of refreshments after the proceedings are concluded.

CEDAR BLOCKS FOR FUEL

Citizen Thinks the Health Officer Should Interfere.

The following letter has been received by The Advertiser regarding the giving away for fuel of the old cedar now being torn up:

"I notice by last evening's Advertiser that the blocks now being taken up on Queen's avenue 'will be given away to those who are willing to pay for the teaming,' Surely our health officer will have something to say in this matter. It would certainly be very doubtful charity to allow such disease-breeding Full particulars by writing L. The aking up of the pavement will of itself be a source of danger to the residents of the avenue, without the rotten blocks being hearded up in our midst." In speaking of the matter today, City Engineer Graydon said the blocks will he no more dangerous piled in the yard of a poor man than they now are on Queen's avenue, and he says that as far as he is concerned poor people are welcome to them.

representatives of the Ministerial Aliance and the W. C. T. U. for a reduction of nine licenses in the city.

The meeting was the first open session of the new board, which is composed of Messrs. A. B. Greer (chairman), Thomas Jones and William Yeates, and it drew out the temperance and liquor people in force. On one side of the large lodge room in the Duffield Hall were the large majority of the hotelkeepers of the city every one of whom is seeking a renewal of his license for the year beginning May 1, and on the other side were the advocates of temperance, prominent among them being a number of the local clergy and also several ladies.

After spending two hours in hearing the deputations, the commissioners, through Chairman Greer, simply announced that the licenses would not be lecided for some days.

Wr. Haverson's Reply. Mr. Haverson followed the representatives of the alliance and the Temperance Union. He pointed out how the school question was arousing tremendcus discussion, and said that although the opposing elements were each sinere, probably the full truth could not be obtained from either side alone. The do with the question. The outspoken policy of the new Government n regard to temperance was the enforcement of the liquor license act. This was, therefore, the duty of the new commissioners. Rev. C. T. Scott assured the commissioners that they had the confidence of the citizens of London. He went on to the citizens of London. He went on to say that he had expected Mr. Haverson to base his case upon legal technicalities, as he had done before other Ontario boards. Speaking of going affeld, Mr. Haverson had drawn instances from England, where conditions were entirely different. Mr. Haverson had called for narricular charges, but Mr. Scott sainted particular charges, but Mr. Scott pointed out that the law did not require such action before license boards. The temperance people had not, indeed, gone to the asylum to get the poor victims of drink to act as witnesses. Mr. Scott said that although there had only been twelve convictions, there had been a great many who had broken the law, but against whom no legal evidence was obtained. He claimed that, contrary to what Mr. Haverson asserted, better hotel accombe obtained from either side alone. The same applied to the question at present at issue before the board, Mr. Haverson denied that politics had anything the city might have many fine, large TORM LOWER VII. hotels. Mr. Scott claimed that Mr. Haverson had offended against the majesty of the law when he said that it was not very wrong to sell liquor after hours. And further, the law clearly enunciated the principle that there should not be a license within 300 feet of a church or fair grounds. Mr. Scott was glad that Mr. Haverson had said the commissioners should follow out the policy enunciated by the Whitney Government. He entirely agreed with him in that particular, and said that stricter enforcement of the license law would inenforcement of the license law would inturned the next, only for a whim, the business would be demoralized. BOY MANGLED

Frederick Kerr, Fourteen Years Old, Loses Leg in Accident Last Night.

A most unfortunate accident happened last evening about 7 o'clock, when Frank Kerr, the 14-year-old son Class I.—Adrian McDonaid, Elliott patcher on the Grand Trunk Railway, of Mr. James G. Kerr, who is a disand whose residence is at 347 Maitland street, was struck by a Pottersburg car at the corner of Maitland and Dundas streets, and very badly injured, The boy had been at the station with his father's midnight dinner, and at the station he boarded a Belt Line car to go home. When the car reached Maitland street, Fred gave the signal the conductor and the car slowed down. Before it had fully stopped, he alighted and went behind the car. A Pottersburg car was approaching from the west, and just as the boy reached, in crossing, the center of the rails. he was struck by the car and thrown into the air. The fender of the car should have caught him as he fell, but un-fortunately he slipped beneath it. Apparently he went right under the car, and when picked up it was thought surely he must have been killed. Mr. Charles Sumner, of Maitland street, witnessed the accident. He noticed young Kerr alight from the Belt Line car, and then to his horror, saw him step in front of the Pottersburg car. He states that the boy was struck with terrific force and thrown into the air. Then he fell and the fender failed to catch him and he went right under the wheels, and Mr. Sumner thought that he must be killed. The car stopped in its own length, however, and Mr. Sumner was first to reach the boy's side. Several other men who were near were unable to render assistance because of the shock to their nerves. Finally the street railway men aided Mr. Sumner to carry the injured boy into the office of a nearby doctor. It was found that right leg was almost severed just at the knee, and that the thigh bone of the right leg was fractured. right arm was also fractured above the wrist. The ambulance was summoned soon as the boy's injuries had been attended to temporarily, and he was removed to the hospital. Here he was operated upon, his right leg being amputated just at the knee. It was gratifying to learn that the operation was successful and that because of his strong constitution it is altogether likely that he will recover. This morning the reports of the boy' condition were very favorable, and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

REASON WHY YOU SHOULD USE

Red Rose

Because it is Reliable

Some one has said: "A single fact is worth a shipload of argument."

A few facts: I introduced this tea to the public about ten years ago. In that short time the business has grown to such proportions that we now occupy the largest Tea warehouse in Canada.

This enormous business has been built up without extensive advertising.

The merchants who commenced handling Red Rose Tea ten years ago are the most enthusiastic in its praises

The merchants who sell it, the people who drink it, have found that it could be relied on

The brand, "Red Rose Tea," is accepted everywhere as a guarantee of the highest quality, and those who drink it are its best advertisers.

Ask some of your friends about it.

morning, Webb, a man very well known town, was found dead in a shed adjoining the Grand Central Hotel, at the corner of Ridout and King streets. All the circumstances being taken into consideration, it appears that Webb's death was due to the effects of over-indulgence in alcoholic liquor. A bad bruise appears on the right cheek of the dead man, but the indications are that this had nothing to do with his death. Mr. W. H. Mahon, proprietor of the hotel, says that Webb received no drinks at all over was on his way to his home on Thames street. Several persons stated to The Advertiser that they saw Webb badly intoxicated yesterday afternoon and these practices, and 25 rounds of ammunition issued free to each member story of the dead man's life is a very sorrowful one.

Yesterday afternoon about 4:30 ulations are carried out.

A free issue of 25 rounds for each of 181½ the regiment's practices will be given 1623 each officer, non-commissioned officer and man of the regiment who attends and man of the regiment who attends and conversation. On King street they were encountered by Thomas Webb, who was well known to Mr. Mahom. Webb was intoxicated, and man of the regiment who attends and conversation. and stumbled against Mr. Haverson, Shortly afterwards, Mr. Donohue, an employe of the London Electric Company, was driving east on King street, and saw Webb going towards Ridout street. Mr. Donohue saw P. C. Mc-Roberts helping Webb along.

Mr. Dave McArthur, bartender at the Clyde House, just opposite the Market Square, on King street, says that he was on duty all yesterday aftown hotel yesterday afternoon. The man who gave this information to The Advertiser says that he was struck with the peculiar expression on the sleeping man's face. Webb looked as if the hand of death was already upon him, and he was snoring in a very peculiar way.

About 6:30 o'clock last evening, Webb made his appearance at the Grand Central, and asked for drinks, but was refused. more than five drinks here in the past five years," said Mr. Mahon. I would lead him out of one door, and the next moment he would come in at another door, laughing. After he was put out the second time last night, I saw no more of him in this world. During the last few months, I would allow Webb no drinks on any account. Webb's home is on Thames street few doors from King street. There he lived with a widowed mother, aged about 80 years, three sisters, and a George, who is the sole support of the family.

Mr. Mahon told the sad news to the family this morning, and they are broken-hearted. Mr. George Webb is painter on the G. T. R. and was in Palmerston last night. He was notified and arrived in the city today. The dead man worked at times for the City Gas Company and on the corporation "He would drink a quart of whisky at a time," said a man who knew him when he could get it."

About 6:30 o'clock this morning, John Barnes, porter at the Grand Central Hotel, had occasion to enter a new summer kitchen, which has been erected at the rear. Lying against the wall, with one arm crossed on his breast, lay the body of Webb. No signs of any struggle appeared on the body. except the aforementioned bruis which was probably caused by Webb The porter summoned Mr. Mahon, who at once notified Sergt. Crawford of the police. Coroner MacLaren visited the scene and viewed the body, which was then removed to Smith & Clarke's undertaking establishment. Here it was viewed at 11:30 o'clock by a coroner's jury. Webb was a rather good-looking man of about 40 years of age, and was a well-known character in this city. He usually were a black overcoat, dark fedora hat, soft shirt and tie, and buttoned boots

Another brother, John Webb, foreman for Perrin & Co., died three years ago. The surviving brother, George, is the youngest. He is usually in the city only on Saturdays. Several persons have remarked that Thomas Webb had been looking more poorly than usual during the past few months. Death was probably due to heart trouble, or to an epileptic fit. It is probable that some friend saw him making his way home last evening, and, to save him from the police, led him into the Grand Central shed to sleep. The yard open this morning. Hamiiton Man Terribly Injured by a Shock of Electricity.

Hamilton, April 19. - David Tapsley, an employe of the Cataract most delicate skin, but is in reality a Power Company, was terribly injured at the Victoria avenue sub-station while at work today. He was standing en an iron ladder about two feet away from the feed wires, through which over 20,000 volts of electricity passed, and the current jumped through a space and scorched Tapsley's legs to a crisp, burning the flesh to the bones. His body was also terribly burned. The unfortunate man went stark mad as a result of his awful injuries, and half a dozen men held him until the police arrived and took him to the hospital. The doctors say he cannot live.

This year it will be a frock coat Easter

As Easter comes so late this year, we have made extra preparations for it. Overcoats will probably be discarded by then, and frock suits will be more popular than ever.

The frock is the only correct dress for church or any daylight function. More people are realizing each year the importance of being correctly dressed from both a social and business standpoint.

The Semi-ready frock coat is an extremely elegant garment. It is made of Cheviots and Worsteds, dressed and undressed. The linings throughout are of satin duchesse or silk serge, with lapel facings of armure or bird's-eye weaves. Prices, $20, $25 and $30.

We would like to show you what a sumptuous garment the Semi-ready frock is. Won't you call and try one on?

Mr. Atkinson's Ideal Piane.

Mr. G. D. Atkinson, organist of Wesley Methodist Church, Toronto, has been a prominent figure among the musicians of the city for some years. His instincts are distinctly musical, his knowledge of all branches of his art wide and accurate, and his taste as to devotional music conservative and artistic. As a choir leader he has achieved great success and he has the faculty of inducing enthusiasm, the great necessity if a volunteer choir is to accomplish anything. After Mr. Atkinson had been organist of Wesley for several years, he was appointed to Dundas Center Methodist Church, London in succession to Mr. W. H. Hewlett, but when Wesley put in a new organ the music committee asked him to return to his old position, and he accepted. His opinion of the latest achievement in piano-making is contained in the following letter addressed to the firm of Messrs. Gourlay, Winter & Leeming: "It affords me a great deal of pleasure to add my word of appreclation of your Gourlay piano. Having had two of them in use for nearly two years. I have had abundant opportunity of proving their many excellent qualities. Without attempt to enumerate these in detail. I would simply say that in your piano I feel that you have been particularly happy in combining those mechanical and artistic qualities which go to make up the ideal instrument.
