The Hyams' Previous Records Not To Be Told at Present.

SEVERAL DOCTORS EXAMINED

Coroner Aikins, the First Witness for the Defence, Tells Why He Did Not Hold an

Toronto, May 14.—The sequence of the eyidence of fact which has been well sustained since the trial commenced was broken yesterday morning, when Mrs. Hyams' testimony was abruptly terminated by her illness.

Hyans' testimony was abruptly terminated by her illness.

The Crown called witnesses to prove the telegrams already referred to in the evidence, and which were sent by Willie Wells on January 16, regarding the purchase of the farm.

Uriah J. Jones of Pickering, the uncle of the dead boy. of whom the farm, for which the $1,000 held by Hyams was to have been paid, was purchased, came into the box, and identified the agreement to purchase the farm. He testified to receiving telegrams from Will Wells, relating to his visit to Pickering to conclude the purchase. He received one from Will on January 14, asking him to meet his nephew at Whitby, and then two days later he got a dispatch announcing the death of Will Wells.

The most important evidence brought out was that by Expressman Fox, who told of the alterations that were made to the now famous elevator under the supervision of the Hyams brothers.

The witness then gave his version of the finding of Wells' body. He went to the warehouse at ten o'clock on the morning of the death, but he could not get in at either door.

ing of the death, but he could not get in ouilding. As he entered he saw that Harry's hands were bleeding, and he askd for an explanation.

There was a sensational story inter-woven in this witness' evidence which s unearthed by Mr. Osler's asking Fox he ever talked over the death with Dal-bring in other persons' names Counsel for both sides said the story must come out, and then Fox said:

"Mr. Dallas Hyams told me to go to B. D. Humphrey, the undertaker, and tell him to keep his mouth slut. The reason of this was that Mr. Sullivan, of the Oriental Laundry, came to see me with ed Wilson, a frie ierk named Wilson, a friend of Sullivan, the had borrowed some $500 from Hyams. They also told me that they were going p to see Humphrey, and so Hyams, then I told him this, asked me to tell fumphrey to keep his mouth shut."

T:ronto, May 15.—Mr. Osler showed he value attached to the evidence of Fox: y submitting him to another re-examination vesterday.

blood, the back particularly, and then he was allowed to go.

Thomas Chambers, a livery stable pro-rictor at 108 Mutual street, said that he ent out a hack on Monday, January 6, o the warehouse. Jerry Riordan, who held the position of Jerry Riordan, who held the position of driver on a one-horse car along Church street in 1893, said that on one day, it might have been January 16, a man with bloody fingers climbed on his car while it was near Colborne street on Church. This man said that someone had been killed, and that he was going for a doctor. The man got off at Queen street and went west. He was uncertain about the circumstances, and E. H. Nix, the Street Railway Company's roadmaster, was called to give the driver's "time," in order to show at what hour the car passed up Church street. The thorough way in which the defence has prepared its case was shown when this witness blurted out the fact that Mr. Horn was down to see You'd hardly believe they could be made at that price. weight could not have been severed round the hook. This seemed so convincing that it is probable that the theory will be abandoned by the defence.

Sanuel Grandige, a money lender, by his oridence, pointed out that the prisoners were in need of money before Wells was been been before well and the collaboration of the Royal Artillery.

Dr. King, who was called late yes

Dr. King, who was called late yesterday afternoon, said that Dallas Hyams scemed very much pleased to see him when he entered the warchouse, and the three at once proceeded to the sceme of the tragedy. He described the position of the body, and said that he had been told that it had been moved, and he saw no blood nor a scratch on Dallas Hyams nor arything that would lead him to believe that a struggle had taken place. The Dr. was cortain that the deceased did not have glasses on when he saw the body, and he did not believe that there were gloves on the hands.

did not believe that there were gioves on the hands.

Toronto, May 17.—Mr. C. S. Smoke yesterday told of the business transaction between Mrs. Hyams and H. P. Hyams, and B. D. Humphrey, an undertaker, described the condition of the body of Wells when he found it on the car of the transaction.

Wells when he found it on the car of the tragedy.

George H. Grundy, general agent of the New York Life Is alleaned Company, in the afternoon told of the insurance which was placed on the life was for $80,000 and in the form of a twenty-year endowment. Thomas G. McConkey, another agent of the New York Life Insurance Company, corroboractic the evidence of Grundy.

William Dark, the third of the agents of the New York Life, talked life assurance to the court, and very carefully explained what had already been minutely described.

S. W. Hughson, of the Covenant Mutual, said that W. C. Wells had placed two policies on his life for $1,000 each, 1000 each, 10000 each, 1000 each, 1000 each, 1000 each, 10000 each, 100000 ea tual, said that W. C. Wells had placed two policies on his life for $1,000 each, payable to Miss Martha. He said, too, that H. P. Hyams had applied for $10,000 of insurance on his own life.

Dr. Little said that he had endeavored to find Hyams to examine him, and when one day he did see him the question was evaded, and said that he was busy and madé an engagement for the following day, but he never called again.

Toronto, May 18.—Two events happened yesterday morning at the Hyams trial which madé the session interesting and important.

The defence revealed its hand, and will attempt to show that it was or could be possible for the weight to rest on the very tip of the nose of the hook, and if in this position a projection was encountered the weight would leave the hook with a bound. The defence has made experiments to satisfy them on this. The Crown, however, will attempt to show that the weight could not have got in such a position.

The last line of the Crown's evidence began this morning, when Dr. Caven, in a scholarly and highly intellectual way, began to describe the fractures on the dome of the skull. This occupied the entire morning, and he told of the fractures of the base of the skull in the afternoon. Detective Cuddy told of having interviewed H. P. Hyams shortly after the tragedy regarding the insurance on young Wells' body. He was referred to Miss Wells, now Mrs. Hyams, but although he went directly to the house Miss Wells, now Mrs. Hyams, but although he went directly to the house where she lived he did not see her until she had a conversation with the prisoner. Toronto, May 20.—At four o'clock on Saturday afternoon Mr. Osler announced that for the present the Grown would not call any more witnesses for the prosecution in the charge against the Hyams brothers.

The judge ruled against admitting the evidence of Detective Heidelberg, New York, and Detective Pearson, Jersey City, relative of the career of the prisoners in these places before coming to Toronto. Should, however, the defence put in evidence of good character the Crown may then call the detectives to the stand. Further evidence was offered by the Crown or Saturday relative to the elevation. Crown on Saturday relative to the elevat-Crown on Saturday relative to the elevation, and several medical men were also called to speak as to the probable causes of the injuries which resulted in cleath. WAS NEY EXECUTED?

REV. J. A. WESTON'S REVIEW OF THE TESTIMONY FOUND IN HISTORY.

The American Ney Looked Like the Mar shal-Admitted That He Was the Great Ney, and Knew All About the Napolconic Wars.

The long-heralded volume by the Rev James A. Weston, upon the "Historic Doubts as to the Execution of Marshal James A. Weston, upon the "Historic Doubts as to the Execution of Marshal Ney," has made its appearance.

Mr. Weston is not the only man, or the first who has doubted that Ney really fell lead on the morning of his supposed execution. Many European historians have uttered such doubts. It fell to Mr. Weston to make this investigation, which has occupied him during some portion of the past twelve years, because of his personal acquaintance with so many who had known the man who, in North and South Carolina, passed by the name of Peter Stuart Ney, and who at times freely stated that he was the Marshal.

Mr. Weston begins with a brief account of Ney's millitary career, and then proceeds to the evidence. This may be arranged in two parts—one negative, the other positive. The task is, first, to prove that it is impossible to prove that Ney was killed; second, to prove that he was not killed, and that P. S. Ney was he.

Mr. Weston begins his consideration of the testimony with a scathing analysis of the errors of history, passing to the conflicting accounts of Ney's execution. Some say that he fell on his face, riddled by many musket balls; others, probably more correctly, that the execution was hurried and private; that the body was taken away hastily and in perfect appearance; that no proof can be adduced that it was ever burited at the point known as Ney's grave, and that his widow never sought to erect a stone there. It is Mr. Weston's theory that Wellington widow never sought to erect a stone there. It is Mr. Weston's theory that Wellington Weilington with the matter at all, unless we desire, as Mr. Weston seems to do, to clear his memory of the charge of having seemed to consent to Ney's execution. believed himself the Duke there can be little doubt.

More to the point are the annotations which Ney penciled on the margins of the leaves of "Napoleon in Extle" and other works. In some of these notes Ney refers to Marshal Ney in the lirst person, somethines in the third. In instances of the latter sort he is most efter concerned, it seems, with explaining the antons of Marshal Ney, defending his character or upfolding his judgment. The comments are cegtainly keen and intelligent. Many of them are in shorthand, in which P. S. Ney was proficient. Where Barry O'Meara quotes Napoleon as saying "Sachet, Clousel, Gerard, are, in my opinion, the first of the French generals," Ney's penciled note is: "N. B: Kleber, Desaix, Ney, Duroc, Hoche, etc., are now dead." THE SOLDIER'S FRIEND. THE LIFE AND WORK OF FLORENCE

Mission to the Crimea.

There are very few instances on record of a great public woman, and particularly a great heroire, having throughout lived up to her reputation. If she has done some great work—and there are very many women of world-wide, colebrity wiose work has not been great—she is apt to be forgotten in the steady march of time and the progress of thought and life. A great exception is Florence Nightingale. On the fifteenth day of this month she celebrates her seventy-fifth birthday—as great a woman and as a great a public benefactor, and as much of a heroine as she was forty years ago, when she went beneractor, and as muon to a hotoconsease she was forty years ago, when she went forth from her comfortable home in England, not as a mere nurse to attend to the wants of the wounded and dying British soldiers in the Crimea, but as a fearless organizer of a great field-hospital system, which the British War Office authoritie aff officers and generals has a mere matter of afterthought in a mere matter of afterthought of one of iminary arrangements of one of the t difficult campaigns in the history of

But even in those days, when news traveled slowly and when newspapers merely recorded bare facts of news with traveled slowly and when newspapers merely recarded bare facts of news with but little comment, public opinion was soon aroused, and when Miss Florence Nightingale arrived at the Crimea with her band of nurses she had the whole British people at her back. Miss Nightingale undertook her work without thought of commeration, and she was happly in a position which enabled her to do so; her father, Mr. William E. Nightingale, was a Hampshire land-owner of good means. She was born in Florence, whence she took her Christian name, but her early childhood was spent at the Manor House at Leahust and some of the most beautiful scenery of southern England.

Miss Nightingale started for the Crimea not as a mere enthusiastic novice, but theroughly trained for the work she had undertaken. Before she was thirty years

More than all, he himself when drunk—his only jault—or when in solemn talk with those he trusted, would say that he was the great Ney. He spoke with what some called a French, some a Scotch-Irish accent, using good English, Marshal Ney's mother was Scotch. At the time of Napoleon's death, P. S. Set Great Store on Apples.

A gentleman, recently returned from England, calls attention anew to the high appreciation in which choice apples are held abroad.

"I had occasion," said he, "to repay a few courtesies received at the hands of some English business acquaintances, and did so by givir g a dinner. In the course of conversation the subject of American fruit, and apples in particular, was mentioned.

"Of course, our apples are exceedingly toothsome, but it was almost impossible for the to comprehend the delight they afforded my English friends and their acquaintances. In two cases special dinner parties were given, just exactly as one might be given here if you were presented with a fine saddle of venison, a wild turkey or some other rare game.

"From my experience you can state of the positively that if you want to make an Englishman your friend for life, and at expensional type of my place, this is the anniversary of my father's death, and out of respect to his father's death, and out of respect to his positively that if you want to make an Englishman your friend for life, and at a comparatively light outlay, just send him a barrel of choice apples, and I might add just one line to that—be sure that

There was a time a few years ago when I would prostitute my great gift of word painting to almost anything at a price.

I fell in the summer of 1875, when a sad looking man came in and laid on my desk the statement that "Brignoll. Jr., will be along here in about its week and remain a little over a fortnight."

In a moment he had gone, having thoughtlessly left a square package containing a box of cigars. I was giad to get the cigars and tickled that Brignoll, Jr., thought enough of me to send cigars for me, probably on his father's account, for I had been one of his father's "standing-room-only" at one time.

In the flash of the eye the foremen had the little note out in the composing room and the printers—the foremen and a small solled boy—took several of the cigars, and we were quite merry, yet I felt that I was doing a wrong, for the man who owned the paper was away for much needed rest and change of scene eating wild meat up the caryon and corresponding with the sheriff regarding a criminal act on the part of the editor by means of which he had thoughtlessly reduced the Democratic majority and 'then "flew as a bird to his mountains." Spiraim Niles, aged 78, of Toronto, drank half an ounce of laudanum on The Merickville, and spent her whole life there until her marriage, and her many friends are congratulating her on her recovery to health and strength after years of pain and suffering. When the correspondent of the Recorder called at the Wood homestead, Mrs. Wood, although now not looking the least like an invalid, said that since girlhood and until recently, she was troubled with a weak back which gave older the weakness and pain increased, and for nearly twenty years she was never free from it. About a year ago her misery was increased by an attack of sciatica, and this with her back trouble forced her to take to bed, where she remained a helpless invalid for over four months. Different doctors attended her and she tried numerous remedies said to be a cure for her trouble, but despite all she continued to grow worse. She was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink. Pills, but she had dosed herself with so many nedicines that her faith in the healing virtues of anything was about gone, and she had fully made up her mind that her trouble was incurable. At last a friend urged her so strongly that she consented to give the Pink Pills a trial. Before the first box was all consented to give the Pink Pills a trial. As we pass down from Morton post office to near the bridge that spans Whitesish creek, we turn to the left on a very good road that has been cut in the rock along the foot of the cliff that forms part of the great hill on which Morton is perched. Whitesish has its origin near by in the Rideau chain of waters and from which it receives its supplies. It was once the favorite resort of tens of thousands of that most delicious of all fresh-water products—the whitesish. They were attacked some years ago by a disease and the dead whitesish could be seen in wagon loads near the mouth of the at eighten years? It can be a seen of your intellect. Here comes the flood of novelettes, ninety-nine out of one hundred belittling to every one that opens them. Here come depraved newspapers, submerging good and elevated journalism. Here comes a whole perdition of printed abomination, dumped on the breakfast table and toa table and parlor table. Take at least one good newspaper with able editorial and reporters' columns mostly occupied with helpful intelligence, announcing marriages and deaths and reformatory and religious assemblages, and charities bestowed, and the doings of good people, and giving but little place to nasty divorce cases and stories of crims, which, like cobras, sting those that touch them. Oh, for more newspapers that put virtue in what is called great primer type and vice in nonpareil or agate! Show me the newspapers you take and the books you read, and I will tell you what are your prospects for well being in this life, and what will be your residence, 1,000.000 years after the star on which we now live shall have dropped out of the constellation. modern rifle. A man with a Snider felt very much as though he had a bow and arrow in his hand. Mr. Dickey thought parliages for some distance. "Why?" we all asked. But we soon saw for sourcelves that, while the first four of five spans of the bridge were up, farther on there was a span that had fallen, and we could not but shudder at what might have been the possibilities. When your rail train starts on a long bridge, you want to be sure that the first span of the bridge is all right. But what if farther on there is a span of the bridge that is all wrong? How then? Since freshets had carried away a bridge, and a man knew that the express train would soon come along. So he lighted alantern and started up the track to stop the train. But before he had got far enough up the track to the light of his lantern, and standing in the darkness as the train came up he threw the lantern into the locomotive, crying: "Stop! Stop!" And the warning was in time to halt the train. And if any of you by will habits are hastoning on toward brink or precipice or fallen span I throw this Gospel lantern at your mad career: "Stop, Stop! The end thereof is death!" Young man, you are carged now by many environments, but

Mr. Northrup discussed the trade estion in all its bearings, and made easient in that the Government was tilled in asking the people to stand by a policy that had done what it was d it would do. He began with the mention that the words "tariff for tenue only" did not mean anything wenue only" did not mean anything finite. He did not hold the Liberal crty responsible for the depression which curred under their administration, and f course he would not admit that the attoined Policy had any responsibility or the hard times of the part few years at what he did claim for protection was that had at least saved this country uring the recent depression from the aditional evils which would have resulted Canada had been made a slaughter araket, as she was in the seventies. Mr. Devlin wound up, as he began, with an ornate eulogy of Sir Richard Cartwright, which was warmly applicated by the Opposition. Mr. Craig pointed out that there was simply the pointed out that there was simply the ghoice between two politices—the indefinite shifty policy of the Opposition and the protective policy of the Conservative. The policy of taxation for revenue raised by a moderately protective tariff, that he conceived to be a sound Canadian policy—a policy framed in belief in Canada's resources. Mr. Edwards agreed that Canada was a country of grand resources: the sources. Mr. Edwards agreed that Canada was a country of grand resources; the trouble was they were not being developed by a policy suitable to the country's requirements. While he was an out and cut free trader he would support a revenue tariff as the nearyst approach to free trade for which the country was prepared. Hon. Mr. Wallace said that it was proposed to reduce the expenditure by two and a half millions this year, and he would like to know how the Opposition would still furthey conomize in that regard. The Lord, when He handed the great commission to the apostles a few minutes before his ascension, didn't happen to think of but one theme—evangelize or preach Jesus and His love, and empha-ized that by being silent on other matters. Ignoramus to the contrary notwithstanding, collegiate theology has added a hundred themes to the Lord's theme, capping it all with higher criticism, but the Church has developed spiritual power and purity in proportion as she cancelled every item added to what the Lord put there. He would like the Opposition to explain, when they had abandoned the policy of unrestricted reciprocity and adopted that of free trade, how they would be able to secure the market of sixty millions and induce the people of the United States to throw in their lot with us. Mr. Devlin said that Mr. Cockburn had little cause to say anything against the Opposition policy. Two years ago he had gone to Chleago and drawn nearly $5,000 of the people's money in his capacity as commissioner to the World's Fair. Mr. Devlin wound up, as he began, with an ornate culogy of Sir Richard Cartwright, which was warmly applauded by the Opposition. Mr. Craig lauded by the Opposition. Mr. Craig gnote between two policies—the indefinite shifty policy of the Opposition and the protective policy of the Conservative. The policy of taxation for revenue raised by a moderately protective tariff, that he con-ceived to be a sound Canadian policy— sources. Mr. Edwards agreed that Canada's re-sources. Mr. Edwards agreed that Canada was a country of grand resources; the sources. Mr. Edwards agreed that Canada was a country of grand resources; the trouble was they were not being developed by a policy suitable to the country's requirements. While he was an out and cut free trader he would support a revenne tariff as the nearost approach to free trade for which the country was prepared. Hon. Mr. Wallace said that it was proposed to reduce the expenditure by two and a half millions this year, and he would like to know how the Opposition would still further economize in that regard. For additions to the public debt in recent years the Conservative Government has splendld assets to show. Mr. Ottawa, May 17.—In the House yester
