Some Timely Virtues. There are certain qualities of spirit and attitude towards life that are always in place and that serve great and useful purposes at all times, but they seem to be especially required for this very day and hour that is upon us.

Children's Diseases Are Not Necessary. They Add Nothing to the Well-being of the Child and Invariably Leave the System in Worse Condition Than Before They Came. In fact, they often sow the seed which, in adult life, develops into disorders of the heart and blood vessels and degenerative diseases of the kidneys.

Children whose blood becomes thin and watery are helpless before an attack of measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, or other contagious disease. They seem to "catch" everything that is going. They are always "catching" cold. Their resisting force is nil. But their young bodies soon respond to the nourishing, invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. As their blood is enriched they become healthy, robust and rollicking - they enjoy their food - their play - their work at school, and grow into strong, healthy men and women.

Here and There.

A cholera is a slow poison—slow but sure.
Abstain and be master; drink and be mastered.

Drowning one's grief in gin is not murder, it is suicide.
Abstinence is a virtue that can be practiced by all.

Some people say it is right to use liquor if you don't abuse it. No one abuses liquor, but the liquor user abuses himself.

Stop thinking; stop drinking.
Those who can take a drink and also do without it will soon have an opportunity to try the latter alternative.

A love for liquor means no love for liberty.
If a young man, as he takes his first drink, could see himself as he will be in a few years later, he would hesitate a long time before making the fatal start.

The world-wide war has now been won.
The war on rum must still go on.

Master your appetite for liquor before liquor masters your appetite.
A glass of liquor has advanced in price, but the ultimate cost remains the same—Catholic Abstinence.

Anti-Narcotic Why?

A FEW "WHYS" TO ANSWER.
If tobacco is not injurious, why is the cigarette the object of so much attention by temperance and anti-tobacco workers?

Why do honest smokers as a rule advise others not to smoke?
Why before giving an anesthetic do doctors ask if the patient smokes?
Why are prospective athletes forbidden to smoke?
Why are cigarette smokers an easy prey to diseases?
Why do not cigarette using students stand first in their classes?
Why do many countries prohibit cigarettes to minors? Japan leads in this respect. They protect the boys until 21.

One more "why" will do, while we might enumerate a great many more "whys."
If it does not hinder vocations, why do so many firms refuse to employ boys and young men who indulge in cigarettes?

Smoking a Cause of Cancer

Cancer of the mouth in civilized countries has been greatly reduced by good dentistry, 85 per cent of the cancers of the lip occur in smokers. Formerly clay pipes which became very hot were much used, and there has been a notable reduction in the number of cancers of the lip since the clay pipe has gone out of fashion. Smoking, however, is the cause of most cancer of the lip, the tongue and the floor of the mouth.—Major W. J. Mayo, U. S. War Department Lectures.

Why Cooks Leave Their Work.

From a suburban town where the domestic servant problem seemingly threatens soon to become insoluble—description of the life of a suburban town to be indicative of exact locality—comes a tale that deserves thoughtful attention.

As told it reveals a colored maid, not long acquired or particularly efficient, but highly paid and even more highly valued because so hard to replace, saying to her mistress the dreadfully familiar words, "I'm going to leave." Impassioned demands for explanation of this cruel purpose it last elicited the reply, "Because you have hurt my feelings," and then by further inquiries, still more impassioned, the maid's grievance was brought to light.

"Where you got your feelings from the war last night, you didn't introduce me to him. He has been fighting for me just as much as for you, and I wanted to talk to him."

To the thoughtful this is much more than an amusing story, and the wis: will not decide too hastily that the maid's grievance was not a real one or that her expectations were presumptuous.—New York Times.

General Debility Follows Influenza.

HEALTH CAN ONLY BE RESTORED THROUGH THE USE OF A BLOOD-MAKING TONIC.

Debility is a loss of vitality not affecting any part of the body particularly, but the system generally. It is dangerous because it reduces the body's resistance to disease. When debility follows acute diseases, convalescence is slow, and one's strength does not return as it should. An attack of influenza often results in debility that persists for months. Everybody recognizes that the remedy for debility is to build up the blood, because the blood goes to every part of the body and any improvement in its condition is quickly felt throughout the system.

In cases of simple anemia, or debility following acute diseases, such as fevers or influenza, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be found valuable, because they really build up the blood and strengthen the nerves. There is no other medicine as valuable for growing children, and for men and women whose nervous energy has been overdrawn. They are worth a fair trial in every case where the blood and weak nerves have started the trouble. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has been proved in the home of Mrs. John Frank, of Orono, Me. She was troubled with a bad cough; she was pale, weak, and her appetite was poor, indeed I feared that she was going into a decline. A friend advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking eight boxes she was again enjoying the best of health. Again last autumn Spanish influenza attacked our home, and after the acute symptoms were past, both myself and another daughter were very much run down. My daughter was so weak that she could not walk to school and would tremble whenever she got upon her feet. I was so weak myself that I could not do my household work. Again we resorted to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and in each case we took five boxes, when we were as well as ever we had been. I never enjoyed better health than I am now doing and am able again to do my household work. After our experience it is not possible for me to say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicines or by mail 1.50 cents a box or six boxes for $8.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Dolman and Cape.

As if the dolman were not a cape enough, this enviously chic expression of it must take on a cape supplement. It does that rather attractively, though you must allow, perhaps, just a bit one-sidedly too. But it is all the smarter on that account, says Milady Fashion.

To go into particulars, though, the wrap comes forth in the loveliest of multi-colored, or ecologues with a delightful use of pleating to bring the smart irregularity of its hem line in to prominence. Don't miss that collar treatment, though in your interest for the pleating it rolls back gracefully and joins the cape at a yoke-line you see.

The Romance of Silver Islet

FIRST heard of Silver Islet when I was a child at school. It was one of the names in the list of "islands of the Great Lakes" with which our teacher dutifully plied us. Oddly enough that one remained in my memory. I recall wondering why we should have to learn about such a tiny spot on one of the lakes and why it was called "Silver Islet."

Some time later I heard its story. Back in the sixties before the Canadian Pacific Railway traversed Canada, Northern Ontario was little more than a name, a synonym for a wooded, rocky wilderness peopled by Indians. Yet even in those early days some of nature's hardiest souls were doing pioneer work at Prince Arthur Landing—now Port Arthur—and the Hudson Bay trading post, on the banks of the Kaminiquia river, which was the embryo Fort William. It was reserved for a geologist named MacParlane to do the work of discovery which made this corner of the little world famous.

Mr. MacParlane was employed by the Montreal Mining Co. to prospect on the company's locations around Thunder Bay in the summer of 1888. Deciding to make a geological map of the district, he sent his men to make a reconnaissance of the great mass of the point. It got about there they had been exploring for as low as 64. or 65. feet in the schools of New York State and have recently been issued which enable the geologist to turn in one or two at a time and get credit for it. In other words, he was out there in the bush country where the world does not hesitate to accept one out that a child in its school desires to save.

World Shortage of Sheep and Pigs.

I saw an article in the Montreal Star of the 11th inst. in which the Department of Agriculture stated that in the Dominion of Wales, there were 1,468,593 sheep, 43,516,371 pigs, and 7,251,642 cows, and a total surplus of 1,999,646 animals. There is such a shortage of sheep and pigs in the Dominion of Wales, that the Government has decided to add the addition of two churches and a prison were a semblance of civilization to the island.

Since doing so he has been free of an operation or even of a doctor as the "cure" has completely left him. I cannot find words to speak our gratitude for his cure.

The Belgian Government has offered Canada a site in the town of Ypres for a museum to contain souvenirs of the battle fought on the famous salient.

A Canadian Officer says: Canadian visitors will come to Ypres in thousands for years. They will come to see the graves of their dead, and we have thought it would be a good plan that they should have a meeting place where they could find all the documents explaining the terrible combat fought on the salient. There will therefore be a museum, library, models of the trenches, etc. The monument will be surrounded by a garden, planted with Canadian flowers and trees only.

Developing a New Clover Seed District

During the last three years Mr. Don H. Bark, Chief of the Irrigation Investigation Division of the Department of Natural Resources of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been conducting a number of experiments in the growing of clover seed in Southern Alberta, and has met with surprising success. Before coming to Alberta in 1915, Mr. Bark was a farmer growing on farms, and was engaged in irrigation enterprises in Idaho. His experience in irrigation and his knowledge of the soil conditions of the West, led him to believe that the growing of clover seed in Southern Alberta was a profitable proposition. He was therefore engaged in a series of experiments in the growing of clover seed in Southern Alberta, and has met with surprising success. Before coming to Alberta in 1915, Mr. Bark was a farmer growing on farms, and was engaged in irrigation enterprises in Idaho. His experience in irrigation and his knowledge of the soil conditions of the West, led him to believe that the growing of clover seed in Southern Alberta was a profitable proposition. He was therefore engaged in a series of experiments in the growing of clover seed in Southern Alberta, and has met with surprising success.

The following year, therefore, he arranged for several plots to be planted in the various experimental areas of the Canadian Pacific Railway situated in the irrigation block, east of Calgary, Alberta. The first year the yield from these plots was not very satisfactory, but the second year was somewhat better, 200 pounds of seed of an equally good grade being produced. On the above basis, this represents a gross return of more than $100 an acre.

One of the largest plots planted during the first year was three and a half acres, which were planted to alsike clover at Tilley, Alberta. This area produced the following year 3,815 pounds of an excellent quality of machine run seed per acre, or an average yield of 748 pounds, or approximately twelve and a half bushels per acre. This seed could have been sold readily, without re-cleaning, to dealers at twenty cents a pound, which would have given a gross return of $748.00 per acre. But such was the quality that after a thorough re-cleaning, there remained slightly over 100 bushels per acre of the seed, which is a possible grade of seed. At this spring's retail prices each acre produced a gross revenue of upwards of $1200.

At the same place another plot, comprising almost an acre and a half, was planted to white Dutch clover in 1916. This crop had not looked very well throughout the season, the stand having been thin and the growth rather indifferent, yet the total yield of 205 pounds of seed of an excellent kind were secured from this area in 1917. The average yield was 142 pounds per acre. As this seed was worth at least fifty cents a pond, the returns secured were very satisfactory, despite the poor stand and indifferent growth of the clover. Last year the yield from this plot was somewhat better, 205 pounds of seed of an equally good grade being produced. On the above basis, this represents a gross return of more than $100 an acre.

Mr. Bark shows the prolific nature of clover under conditions in Southern Alberta: In the fall of 1917, a one-acre lawn of Kentucky Blue Grass and White Clover at Castles, a small station west of Medicine Hat, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, appeared to contain enough ripe clover heads so that it would pay to harvest it. This accordingly was done, and the area threshed, 105 pounds of White Clover seed of an excellent grade and quality. This lawn, therefore, produced over 350 worth of seed, though it was not planted for seed production purposes. Mr. Bark has gradually extended his experiments over a larger territory with equally favourable results. Three and a half acres planted to alsike clover at Rosemary, north of Brooks, Alberta, were harvested for seed in 1918, and although the stand was only fair, an average yield of 250 pounds of seed per acre was produced. Complete records were kept of the cost of harvesting this area, and at the rate of forty cents per hour per man, and fifteen cents an hour per horse, worked out at $62.07, or $17.75 per acre. The total seed produced was 85 pounds, which at twenty cents a pound, is worth $17.00. The net profit from the three acres, therefore, amounted to $114.93, or $36.31 per acre, not a bad return for one season from land that cost only fifty dollars an acre, although the crop was considered rather disappointing. But much better results were secured with white clover on the same farm. Of this, three acres produced 1,144 pounds of machine run seed, which when thoroughly re-cleaned weighed 1,033 pounds. White clover seed is now being sold on the Calgary and Winnipeg markets at sixty-five cents a pound. The gross return from the three acre plot would be no less than $681.50. As in the case of the alsike clover, the actual cost of harvesting was carefully kept. It amounted to $110.20, or $36.73 an acre. It will be seen, therefore, that the actual net profit from these three acres was $571.30, or over $190 an acre. With such results it does not take many acres to provide a man with a good income.

Now that the possibilities of growing clover seed on the irrigated lands of Southern Alberta have been practically demonstrated, it will not be long before every farmer in the district is growing at least a few acres. The demand for high-class seed is so great and likely to be greater in the future, that the danger of causing a shortage of seed is very real, and the grower can rely on good prices. There is little doubt that within the next few years the industry will assume considerable proportions in Southern Alberta.

A FARM PROFIT SHARING SCHEME

Profit-sharing is often heard of in connection with our industries, but a farm share-out on this basis sounds altogether novel. Such a scheme has, however, been carried out with great success in Southern Alberta for a number of years. It is the hobby of S. N. Noble, a man whose reputation all over the world by harvesting what was claimed to be a record crop of wheat on 1,900 acres the average yield per acre on this area working out at well over fifty bushels to the acre. This is a record that has not been equalled anywhere outside of Alberta, though it is claimed that it was surpassed by another farmer in Alberta in that year of record grain crops.

Mr. Noble has devoted considerable study to the subject of profit-sharing, and has been successful in having it enticed to a share of the wealth he creates, and in the Noble Foundation, the name under which his company is incorporated, and his associates have tried to put this theory into practice. This company owns and operates a farm property, stores, elevators to the value of over two million dollars.

Any employee who has been employed by the company to prove his value may become a shareholder in the scheme and the method of acquiring stock is very simple. The employee is required to pay ten per cent of his stock in cash and give a note for the balance at eight per cent interest. He then makes monthly payments of a certain amount to pay off the note, to which also his dividends are credited. In this manner his stock is paid off fairly rapidly.

Needless to say, many of the employees avail themselves of the opportunity to become shareholders in the scheme. Last year they drew a dividend of fifteen per cent on their investment. The fact that last season was generally considered a dry one, by no means detracted from the value of the Noble Foundation and its faith in the country was paid in addition a considerable sum was placed in the reserve fund.

The results of the operations of this company are a striking example of the productive capacity of the soil in Southern Alberta and the kind of crops that may be expected if careful and proper farming methods are followed. It is questionable if the land they own is any better than millions of acres of other land in the province, yet last year, when the crop was generally considered a dry one, the average yield of wheat was twenty-four bushels of wheat per acre. Still more interesting is the average for the years 1913 to 1917, which was no less than thirty-eight bushels of wheat and ninety-two bushels of oats, with such high average yields as these the big dividends need not cause any surprise. As instances of the progressiveness of the Noble Foundation and its faith in the country was paid in addition a considerable sum was placed in the reserve fund.

The Strain of Overwork

Your work is heavy, and sore, tired muscles are a common occurrence. Each time your back aches you blame it on your work, and just there the danger lies—for that pain in the back may not be from strain, as you suppose, but the forerunner of kidney or bladder trouble.

For your own interest, it is best to be particular and sure, as kidney troubles inevitably pull you down and destroy your earning power.

Take note of these symptoms. Do you get dizzy and have repeated headaches, painful urination, brick dust deposits, or feel drowsy and generally good for nothing? If so, it is your kidneys that are bothering you—not work—and Gills Pills are necessary.

No person can work properly when they feel sick, tired and dizzy all the time. The more they try, the more energy they use up, and this only tends to aggravate their condition, as the kidneys are already tired out with their overwork to relieve their congested state and perform their function properly.

The kidneys are vital organs, and when they become affected through any cause—you suffer until the congestion is relieved and the cause remedied.

Don't let your system become run down. A box or two of Gills Pills will relieve the kidney complaints and restore your old-time health and strength.

Your health is priceless. Don't risk losing it. Keep your kidneys in order always by taking Gills Pills.

Sold everywhere for 50c a box. Write for free sample to The National Drug & Chemical Co., Canada, Limited, Toronto, Ont.
