CHAPTER XXXV.

ROBERT FULLER'S HISTORY.

"Somebody says, 'The nobler the nature, the easier it is to deceive!' Judging by this rule, Robert Fuller's nature must have been a very noble one, for he seems to have been more easily deceived than most men when in love, and that is saying a good deal. The heartless, unprincipled creature he called wife fooled him to the top of his bent—made him her slave, her convenience in everything, and laughed in her heart at the strong, deep passion she could neither feel nor comprehend. The great, awkward, gentle-spirited man, simple as a child in his noble faith, was a mere tool in her pitiless white hands, and he could deny her nothing.

"Carriages, dress, balls, parties, display of all and every kind, became as the air she breathed to the girl who, until her marriage, had never known the enjoyment of either. And, strive as he would—and he did strive with almost more than mortal energy to stem the tide of debt—the hour came when he saw himself a ruined man!

"With the change in his fortunes, Doctor Fuller's enlightenment as to his real nature came with a bitterness that was like the bitterness of death! In the hour of his poverty and misfortune he learned to his cost the kind of woman he had married—a woman, who, failing to find life all pleasure and enjoyment, changed from a ball-room belle into a fretful scold, who gave way to fits of temper as terrible as they were unprovoked.

They can relish everything bearing the name McCormick's, and highly recommend McCormick's products to all their friends. But, after all, McCormick's Biscuits and Candies hardly need any recommendation in Newfoundland. The steadily increasing sales show that their goodness is known and appreciated.

"Now that she had squandered the money for which she had married him, she made his life one long misery by her tears, her ceaseless complaints and reproaches, that always culminated in fits of rage that verged on madness.

"Still, he did not quarrel with her. He could not stoop to a life of low bickering with a woman he was rapidly learning to dislike; and with a courage worthy of a better reward than it met with, poor fellow! he applied himself to the task of extricating himself from the meshes of debt and difficulty in which she had involved him.

"Devoted to his profession, though he never made any great success in it, he plodded patiently on among his patients in the great manufacturing town in which he had contrived to work up a practice, eking out his income by writing articles for the medical and scientific journals, and wearing himself into the grave by toiling at night over a more ambitious work, which he fondly hoped was to make him famous.

"A hope, alas, that, like so many of its kind, was doomed to disappointment! The great work that had cost him so heavily was finished at last; and, like the rest of Doctor Fuller's life, it proved a failure! The theories he advanced did not happen to meet with approval in high places; and the critics for some reason were down upon him, and dissected his book with a merciless scalpel that cut him to the heart.

"A wound that was not robbed of its smart by the fact that the partner of his joys and sorrows, instead of comforting him in his misfortune, never ceased to upbraid him with his poverty and want of success.

"Now that the means of gratifying her pride and vanity had failed, she showed herself for what she was: a woman destitute of every good feeling; of every noble quality either of mind or heart. Still, he did his honest best to stem the tide of her suicidal folly, to bring her to reason before it was too late—in short, to make her a better woman—an effort that was met with ridicule and contempt.

"She had never loved him. Mrs. Fuller was one of those people who are literally incapable of loving any one or anything but themselves; and now that he could no longer supply her with money for which she had married him, she never missed an opportunity of planting a sting into the proud, suffering heart of the man whose life she had ruined!

"Her beauty, such as it was, but which had sufficed to lure a good man to misery, began to wane so rapidly that she resorted to artificial aids for effect; and as poverty excluded her from the society in which, at the cost of her husband's ruin, she had reigned for a time, she began to frequent circles to which no sensible man would care to see his wife descend.

"From bad, things rapidly went to worse. His home was a wretched scene of alternate extravagance and shameful neglect. And how he loathed the life she led him with her ceaseless lamentations over their fallen fortunes, her card and wine parties, her rouge, her false hair, her sham jewelry, and questionable friends, who shall describe? But even this was not the worst.

"The time came when grave whispers concerning her conduct crept into circulation. Mrs. Fuller became the talk of the not too select circle she affected—a circumstance that finally reached the doctor's ears, and, asserting a husband's authority for the first time, he sternly forbade her continuing the acquaintance with the people she called her friends.

"Three days later he came home to find the house stripped of everything valuable it contained, and his wife fled with the very man to whose acquaintance he had most particularly objected.

"Of course, there was an expose, and poor Fuller, with his noble soul, his strict sense of honor, smarted under the horrible sense of outrage and dishonor that had fallen upon him, as only a proud and good man can.

"It was but the repetition of the old story, only too often rehearsed in society both high and low—a good man martyred by his love for a worthless woman; but Robert Fuller was not the man to support the humiliation of such a position with equanimity.

"It was a blow from which it is not too much to say that he never recovered. True, he did not die or do anything desperate, as some men might have done under the circumstances.

"He simply took his hurt in silence, and asking pity and sympathy of one living, threw up his practice and went out to Africa with a party of explorers. For years he never returned to England, spending his time abroad, where, toiling like a slave and with almost as little profit, he worked among the sick and dying under the burning suns of India and Africa; but even here reports concerning his wife's disgraceful conduct continued to reach him from time to time.

"Most men, under the same circumstances, would have sought and obtained a divorce; but Fuller, perhaps from a natural shrinking from publicity, did nothing of the kind, preferring to bear his wrongs in silence; and, at last, worn out with hard work and long endurance of many hardships in unhealthy climates, he came back to England and settled down to practice his profession in the little house in London where he still lives.

"There, Lesley," Len concludes, "that is Doctor Fuller's history, or so much as I learned of it from the one and only impulse of confidence in which I ever knew him to indulge. A sorrowful story, is it not?"

"A sorrowful story, indeed," I reply, turning away to hide my tears. "Oh, Len, why is it that the most precious things in life are always given to those least able to value them? Think of it!—only think of it!" I cry, almost bitterly. "A good man's love like that wasted—worse than wasted on a bad woman!"

A few days after that interview between me and Doctor Fuller, I am delighted beyond expression to learn that Leonard's engagement to pretty Rita Chaytor has become an acknowledged fact.

The dear old fellow is making no mistake this time! That Rita is just the woman to make him happy, it is as impossible to doubt as it is to doubt the depth and earnestness of the love that exists between them—a love which I fondly hope will prove a crown of eternal joy to both!

There is no one whom either Adelaide or I would more gladly welcome for a sister-in-law; and the marriage it is settled, is to be very soon.

"They have nothing to wait for; and Len is far too impatient a lover to brook delay very easily. Some time in July the wedding is to take place, I believe; and this same evening, while discussing my brother's prospects with me, Charley Denton takes an opportunity to speak to me very earnestly on the subject of our own marriage.

"I have kept my promise, Lesley," he remarks, taking my hands and drawing me fondly toward him. "I have been very patient, have I not, dear? But you must not try me too far. When am I to receive my reward? When am I to claim my wife?"

"Oh, Charley!" I reply, a sudden fit of trembling seizing me, "are you quite sure that I can ever make you happy?"

Murder Most Foul.

London, Aug. 28.—Details of the sinking of the French steamer Lydiana (off the north coast of Spain on July 16, show that the crew of the German submarine deliberately murdered most of the thirty-eight persons lost. There were only eight survivors out of the forty-six of the crew and passengers on board.

The U-boat torpedoed the vessel without warning, killing several of the crew. White a boat was being lowered from the Lydiana, a second torpedo struck the vessel. The boat was torn from her davits, but she kept her keel. Seeing this, the submarine rammed her and cut her in two. The enemy then turned and rammed a second boat which had been launched successfully. A young woman of twenty-three, one of the passengers, was thrown high in the air by the impact and instantly killed. The captain of the Lydiana was killed in the same crash.

The Germans then endeavored to sink a raft carrying the remaining survivors. At first their efforts were without success. When one of the ship's officers left the raft to swim back to the sinking Lydiana, the submarine deliberately turned and cut the officer to pieces by its propellers. After disposing of the Lydiana by shell fire, the U-boat made a sixth and successful attempt to ram the raft, amid laughter from the U-boat's captain and crew. The submarine then turned and disappeared toward the east. The eight survivors were picked up from the sea by patrol boats.

Electric Lighting For Outports!

For a number of years there has been a growing demand for a satisfactory electric lighting system for use in the outports. There are dozens of so-called "farm lighting systems" on the market. Almost without exception they are unable to produce a steady flickerless current, without first charging storage batteries; and then taking the lighting current from the batteries. In using this system they are up against many difficulties—batteries of fair capacity are expensive; they require constant attention. When they are new, about 15 per cent of the current is lost when passed through batteries; after one or two years this proportion rapidly increases; this means that a large portion of the current is wasted; batteries that will produce 110 volt current are very expensive, therefore the manufacturers of most battery systems use what is known as low-voltage. A low-voltage current will only give a satisfactory light when used close to the battery. If the current is carried by wires to other buildings a short distance away, a great deal of energy is lost and it gives a poor light.

Low-voltage systems cannot use standard lighting equipment such as lamps, electric fans, electric irons, electric toasters, etc., but require special low-voltage apparatus from the factory.
After comparing the various lighting systems on the market, we found one that overcomes all these difficulties. It is known as the Unilectric Lighting Machine, which is the only machine of its kind made. It consists of an engine specially designed for electric lighting purposes, directly attached to a special dynamo and electric governor. This outfit will produce a steady flickerless 110 volt current without having to depend on batteries; it will use all standard equipment in common use. Wires can be run from the engine in any direction up to two thousand feet without charge.

Three of these lighting machines have been in use in Newfoundland. Monsignor Reardon, Placentia, lights his Church and foundland from one to two years and are giving perfect satisfaction; Rev. Father Maher, St. Lawrence, lights his Church, Presbytery, Convent and School; G. C. Fearn & Son, Placentia, light their shop, office, fish stores, saw mill, blacksmith's shop and ship yard. We have also ordered for them an electric boring machine to be run by current from Unilectric machine and to be used in shipbuilding.
We are now installing the Unilectric Lighting System for Mr. Fred Ayre in his country residence. The Unilectric Corporation of Detroit are doing their best to supply the demand for these machines, but do not expect to be able to furnish them at present prices except for a very short time. They have promised us three more machines at present prices if orders are sent in promptly.
Anyone interested in the best country lighting system ever made will receive one of our catalogues and full information by writing us.

The Unilectric Engine is built for continuous service. The engine is equipped with the sliding sleeve valve and is guaranteed for five years.
A small inexpensive battery can be attached to wires to allow the use of a few lights when machine is not in operation.

Peace Terms on Which the U. S. Will Insist.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge delivered a speech in the United States Senate last week which has deservedly attracted wide attention, in the course of which he set forth the only terms of peace which will satisfy the United States, following this by a warning as to the immense task before the nation and the necessity for turning a deaf ear to German peace proposals, and to the "whimperings of pacifists at home." Peace, he said, must be a dictated peace, and the victory making such a peace possible "must be won finally and thoroughly inside, and not outside, the German frontier." Such a peace, he asserted, can be won nowhere else. These are the terms upon which Senator Lodge says the United States will insist, and short of which there can be no permanent security for civilization; Belgium must be restored; Alsace and Lorraine must be returned unconditionally to France. All areas where the Italian race is predominant, including Trieste, must go back to Italy. Independence for Serbia and Rumania. Greece must be made secure. The great Slav populations, now under Austria, must be established as independent States. The Polish people must have an independent Poland. Russian provinces taken by the Austro-Litovak peace treaty must be returned to Russia. Turkey must be driven out of Europe, and Constantinople must be placed in the hands of the Allied nations as a free port. Bulgaria and Turkey both must share the fate of Germany. Palestine must never return to Turkish rule; the Christians of Asia Minor must be made safe. Senator Lodge dismissed the arguments of those who favor a negotiated peace by saying they overlook the fact that this war is utterly different from any that the world has previously known. Because it is, the peace to come after it must be utterly different from any peace which has ever been agreed upon before. He declared unequivocally that the war must be carried across the enemy's frontier. He said: "It cannot be a peace of bargain, of give and take and of arrangement. The peace that satisfies Germany in any degree can ever satisfy us. 'It cannot be a negotiated peace. It must be a dictated peace, and we and our Allies must dictate it. 'The victory bringing such a peace must be won inside, not outside, the German frontier. It must be won finally and thoroughly in German territory, and can be so won nowhere else. In the final game of the regular football League series at St. George's Field last night, the C. E. I. defeated the Collegians by a score of 4 goals to 0. The game however was fairly fast and had it not been for the noteworthy good work in goal for the Collegians his team would have suffered greater defeat. The extra round to decide the championship was drawn after the game. The contesting teams in the opening game of the Star and will be run off on Monday night. Charge of the Tank Brigade.

Half a league, half a league, Half a league onward, Move like the scythe of Death Tanks, by the hundred. Boche bullets harmless glide Down from their metal hide, While from that steely Hell Showers of shot and shell Volley and thunder.

Was there a Boche that stayed To see how they were made? Not when each Fritz felt His hours were numbered. Their lips not to peck and pry, Their lips not to wonder why, Their lips but to spit, or die, Straight to Berlin they fly, Huns by the hundred.

Tanks to the right of them, Tanks to the left of them, Tanks back and front surround Pitts, Hans, and Hegmat. Rolling the wires straight, Onward they navigate, Crushing each creature that Snails like a German.

What is that yellow streak In the dim distance? Speak! Is it a circus freak? Has Nature blundered? Hush! 'Tis the Kaiser's kin, Trying to follow in, Vain his retreating pin. Small blame you wondered.

A Bad Road.

Dear Sir,—The "Rocky Road to Dublin" can now be very aptly applied to the stretch of Road from King's Bridge to St. George's Bridge, on the Portugal Cove Road. The worst section is within the city limits and a couple of men with rakes could remedy this condition in a day or two. Now that this matter has been brought to the attention of the Council, we trust that they will do their duty like "Blue Jay" Corn Plasters and "make this hard road easy" by the next whole holiday.

No Messages Received To-day

Again we regret to inform our readers that we are obliged to go to press without the daily Cable Despatches. This did not happen two days in succession when the service was in the hands of the Postal Telegraphs, and there is no legitimate reason why it should occur now. An explanation is due by someone in authority.

Along the Waterfront.

The Clutha is at Crosbie's wharf undergoing extensive repairs. She will not be ready for sea until about Christmas. When finished the Clutha will be practically rebuilt. The American vessel, Marne, which came in here some time ago, is at Bishop's wharf. The Marne is a handsome vessel. She carries cold storage apparatus. The owners are endeavouring to sell her. The Elizabeth Fearn is now discharging coal at Goodridge's wharf. When all discharged she will go on dock. The schr. Cappahayden, loaded with new fish, arrived yesterday morning from Fermanagh, and is now discharging some at Goodridge's. The Alma Nelson, arrived recently from Green Bay, with a cargo of lumber. She sailed for Labrador to-day, taking with her a cargo of salt. She will bring back fish. The Portia is due at Channel to-day. Baird's Stella is in the stream. Baine Johnson's schr. "Lawson" left port this morning, loaded with salt from Labrador coast. She will bring back fish. Baine Johnson's schr. "A. J. Sterling" is at present at the wharf, loaded with salt. She will probably go to Labrador for fish. Baine Johnson's motor vessel Minora, arrived from Hr. Grace this morning, loaded with oil, which she is discharging on the South Side. Baird's "Herbert Warren" is at the wharf. The Thetis is now at Job's wharf. The three-masted vessel "Evelyn" is now at Job's wharf. She brought salt, which she has not discharged yet. A large vessel is now discharging sand at Harvey & Co.'s wharf for W. J. Ellis. The Aerial of Fogo, arrived in port yesterday, with a cargo of herring from Twillingate, which she is now discharging at Shea & Co's wharf.

Things That Grow Double.

Freaks of Nature That the Wisest of Men Find Some Difficulty in Explaining. Nature does some strange things in the formation of vegetables, nuts and different kinds of fruits, an exchange states. It is quite common to find two or more growing together, and naturalists frequently run across some very curious freaks. Double ears of corn are quite common. They grow side by side, and are sometimes of equal size, but usually one has a little better chance to grow and gets the advantage over the other. A double ear on exhibition in one of the Western States was certainly a curiosity. One side was one variety of corn, while the other side was so different that it was hard to believe the two had grown so close together. Double heads of wheat are quite common, but double grains are scarce. Grains of rice, however, are often double, and the same is true of rice. Onions, radishes, beets, carrots, turnips, cabbages and other vegetables are often found in double form. The prettiest specimens of double peaches are those with two seeds, as they are most distinctly double, being joined at a point about half-way from the stem of the blossom ends.

Regimental March Tunes.

British Regiments are very jealous of certain tunes which tradition and association have connected with them. "Dumbarton's Drums" has been the quickest march of the Royal Scots for over two hundred years. The West Yorkshire Regiment claims "Ca Ira" as its march; the 1st Battalion Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, "One and All"; the Cheshire Regiment, "Who wdna fight for Charles?" in honour of Sir Charles Napier, who once commanded them; the Rifle Brigade, "I'm Ninety-Five"; the Scots Greys, "The Garb of Old Genu"; the 10th Hussars, "Godd Bless the Prince of Wales"; and "Men of Harlech"; the 5th Lancers, "Let Erin remember"; and "The Harp that once thro' Tara's Halls"; the 2nd Battalion Seaforth Highlanders, "My Pretty Brown Lass"; and "The Relief of Lucknow"; and the 12th Lancers and 21st Hussars, "Obourg." The Scottish, Welsh and Irish regiments of the Army are all partial to tunes of national extraction; and English regiments formed originally in counties the names of which they still bear, have melodies applicable to the locality, and cling to them tenaciously.

"Better Than the Best."

"Colonel ———, in charge of the British interests here, told me that 'one of the greatest English Generals' had said to him that he would rather 'command a contingent of Newfoundland troops than any in the world, 'that when others were ready to 'drop the Newfoundlanders were asking for more.'—Late Exchange.

When England called her gallant sons For her to do and dare, For to give battle to the Huns They did not quake with fear. They came with merry songs and shout From every sea-washed strand; And among the foremost to come out Were the boys of Newfoundland.

Though they had been unused to wars, Yet freedom fired their souls, They fought beneath the shrine of Mars, No braver he ever rolls Than those young folks so brave and strong.

When we all love to-day, Whose deeds are told in prose and song In England far away. On every field where soldiers stand To seek for freedom's light, There stands a youth from Newfoundland. They're foremost in each fight; Where'er a son of England went Our native songs did fly; And freely there their blood was spent To crush our Hunnish foe.

Though Scotia's sons be good and true And fighters of great fame, Where'er they went "our boys" went too. And kept up their good name, You'll find those youths on land or sea Perform some valiant work, They bravely battled as we see, One time against the Turk.

Where'er the sons of Ireland's Isle Had dared their grit to show, "Our boys" we saw beside them toll, Our native songs did fly; They hold their own on sea and land, And a great man did attest That the boys from Newfoundland Were "better than the best." JAMES MURPHY. Sept. 6th, 1918.

Few Clothes.

By RUTH CAMERON.

If one should take a pencil and sit down and reckon how much it would cost to have clothes exactly suited to all occasions (even for those of us who haven't such a wide range of occasions) to have them good, and to have them new each year, one would be appalled.

Of course the average woman never does that. It would do her no good, for she knows that it is impossible for her. She must compromise and sacrifice, some of them and the question always and ever before the house is which considerations shall she sacrifice.

Among my young married friends, are two who answer this question in exactly opposite ways. I want to tell you about them.

One has a great many clothes. She is not satisfied unless in her wardrobe there is always a winter and summer suit, two or three afternoon gowns and a couple of evening gowns, several thin dresses and innumerable blouses.

She Always Has Something New. She is always surprising us by appearing at the small functions where we meet her, with something new—now a new afternoon dress, again a new hat and a very fancy pair of shoes that she bought at some bargain sale, again a blouse whose claim to distinction is the elaborate way it is trimmed. Most of the things are made of inexpensive materials and are concocted at home by a none too gifted dressmaker. Inevitably they soon get shabby and out of style, which justifies her in buying more. She never sticks to any particular color scheme, says she gets tired of two or three colors, and likes to try them all.

A Suit Once In Two Years. The other woman has comparatively few clothes, but what she has are of the best. She buys, perhaps once in two years, a first class suit of excellent tailoring and materials. To go with this she buys two thoroughly good blouses one more elaborate than the other. She wears these with her suit to the most of the afternoon and simpler evening functions to which the other woman wears her afternoon gowns. The simpler blouse also serves when she goes shopping. Sometimes she has one semi-dressy afternoon gown for the more elaborate occasions, and always, of course, she has one good good evening gown which is bought at a first class shop and lasts her two or three years. She usually has on hand a thoroughly good but very plain coat which lasts her several years. She has had one set of furs since I knew her. She paid a price for them which the other woman thought extravagant. They still give her an air of distinction after six years wear.

She Sticks To Two Or Three Colors. In order to keep her clothes in harmony, she sticks to two or three colors which she knows are most becoming to her. Of course she has to appear in the same clothes a good many times, but they are always so attractive and she always so well groomed, that she is never hard to look at. Also she sometimes has to be rather underdressed, as for instance, in a suit and blouse at an afternoon tea where the other woman wears gowns. But it is always better to be underdressed than overdressed, especially when the overdressing is of a tawdry sort.

I meant to leave it uncertain which of the two ways I liked the best. I wonder if you agree with me sufficiently to join me in the resolution. I have made to get fewer clothes and have them better.

PAY CASH.

If you have a trouble in your tent you'll certainly enlarge it, by saying to the grocer, "Charge it." In peaceful times I bought my lath and coal and hay on credit, but cash is now the safest path, and so I sanely tread

it. When war's on deck no man can say what ill may chance to-morrow, what stern reverse may come his way, what heavy clouds of sorrow. And if the winds of trouble blow, the frost edged blood congealers, unfortunate are those who owe big bills to all the dealers. The merchants ought to have their mon from patrons whom they trusted; they want to help to whip the Hun, and can't because they're busted. Debt is a nuisance and a frost to seller and to buyer; it is one thing that keeps the cost of living going higher. The denbeast sticks the grocer jay and skips for parts uncharted, and then his bill we have to pay, which leaves us broken hearted. In times of peace I ordered prunes, and said, "I'll settle later," but now I hand the pica-yunes to merchant, clerk or waiter. I know that debt's a thing accurst, and I remark, "Ay, marry, though future days may do their worst, I'll have no debts to carry."

THE PERFECT THROAT AND NECK

Many women think it incumbent upon them to paint and powder and make fair the skin of the face, powdering it to a ghastly whiteness, yet the skin of the neck and throat is left alone, and often a dark streak is allowed to appear above the V shaped or round neck. It seems a pity that such necks are seen, when the remedy is so near to find. Anyone who will, may have a well appearing throat, so long as her age is on the sunny side of fifty.

The too thin neck hints of ill health but the proper exercise will round it out and make it symmetrical. These exercises, consist of the slow and gentle rolling of the head upon the shoulders, first all the way around from right to left for several times and then reversing the motion. The bowing of the head far forward and then far back, then leaning to the right side and then to the left, these movements taken slowly and gently night after night, will develop the unused tissue which causes the neck to lack roundness.

After such exercises the fish should be well scrubbed with hot water and soap, carefully and thoroughly massaged with cream for at least ten minutes, the cream removed and cold water applied to the glowing surface. The correct massage necessary to break down and remove fatty deposits around the throat are best given by an experienced masseuse who is familiar with anatomy. Care must be taken to keep the muscles firm and not to reduce too rapidly. Hollows can be filled in by massage and the double chin can be reduced. So there seems little excuse for the unsightly neck and throat.

THE FLOW OF MATERIALS.

Our's not to hear the shrill trumpet scream;
Our's not to see the crimson stream;
Our's not to face the shot and shell—
Nor venture into war's grim hell,
Where death and pain are every-where;
But in it still we have a share.

"The ours to keep a steady flow
Of needed things to them who go;
"The ours to frigate the ocean wide
That every want shall be supplied;
And day by day the ships must sail
With precious freight, and never fail.

Let one ship stay too long in port—
Of something needed they'll be short;
Within its heavy load of freight
May be the guns for which they wait
And if we later, surely they Shall suffer there for our delay.

The flow of metals must proceed.
No hand must stop the things they need.
No toiler's voice must bring a halt
To labor. Banish finding fault,
And keep the cargoes moving on.
Until the last gray Hun is gone.

"CANTON" Account Registers!

Merchants everywhere realize that to be successful, and to get best results from their business, they must do the largest possible volume of business with the least help. This is the reason why so many Computing Scales, Cash Registers, Oil Tanks, Meat Slicers, Cheese Cutters, etc., are being sold. All these specialties are expensive and it pays to buy the best made. Bookkeeping in any business is an expensive proposition. Any system which will make bookkeeping easier and avoid mistakes is of great value. Many Account Registers of various styles have been placed on the market, they have proven very valuable in saving time and avoiding mistakes. It was found however that in order to be of real value, any account register must be kept in a fireproof cabinet.

At present the market is flooded with so-called "fireproof" cabinets containing Account Registers. The walls of most of these cabinets are so thin, they cannot possibly resist an ordinary fire. Some of them have glass covers which are easily broken. Some have different compartments requiring transfer of accounts from one compartment to the other, all of which takes time.

The "Canton" Register has recently been placed on the market which overcomes most of these difficulties. It consists of a strong, well-made metal cabinet. The walls are made of special heat-resisting material, and are double, with one inch air space between; this gives much better fire protection. It contains receptacles in which may be filed account slips or in which a separate book may be kept for each customer. No index is required and only one writing is necessary. These cabinets are made in different sizes. For instance: our one hundred account cabinet contains space for one hundred steady customers, also for an equal number of transient or occasional customers. This cabinet occupies a counter space of 13 1/2 by 20 inches and is 24 inches high. They are built in six sizes at following prices delivered to your store:

100 account	24 inches	$127.00
200 "	36 "	$188.00
300 "	36 "	$252.00
400 "	36 "	$285.00
500 "	36 "	$340.00
600 "	36 "	$390.00

To give an idea of the substantial construction of these registers we might state that our 200 Account Register weighs about 265 lbs. This Register was patented November 21st, 1916, and is the last word in fireproof cabinet construction. Any standard pads or sale book can be used.

GERMAN "STATE OF SINGLE LAW"

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5. A decree signed by General Von Ludendorff, Commander of Brandenburg province, according to the Cologne Volks Zeitung, places the territory of Berlin and the province of Brandenburg under "the law relating to a state of siege, which provides for a fine or imprisonment of persons involved or circulating untrue rumours calculated to disquiet the people." A notice accompanying the decree calls attention to the circulation of frivolous and sometimes malicious and traitorous gossip exaggerating the transitory success of the enemy, and casting doubt upon Germany's power for an economic resistance and deprecating the wonderful achievements of the German troops, who, it declares, are victoriously withstanding the enemy.

LUDENDORFF SPEAKS.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5. Vienna newspapers received here continue to print interviews with Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff. "The war has now been concentrated upon French territory," General Ludendorff is quoted as saying, "and by the enormous utilization of troops and materials has assumed proportions which have thrown everything hitherto accomplished in the shade. We thus far have stood the bitter struggle honorably, and are confident that we will continue to do so. We may all be thankful that war in the form it has assumed has on the whole been spared us in our home territory. The armistice of the Central Powers are safeguarding their homes."

ADVICE FROM HINDY.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 6. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, according to a despatch from Berlin, has issued a proclamation to the German people declaring that the enemy, in addition to the armed offensive, is conducting an offensive by printed matter containing "most insane rumours" which are distributed in Switzerland, Holland and Denmark, from which countries they are spread throughout the whole of Germany. The Field Marshal warns the people "to be unanimous against this enemy who fights with scraps of paper and rumours intended to sow dissension and disunion among ourselves and between us and our allies," and exhorts all Germans to remember "these poisoned scraps" coming from the enemy.

TOWN OF HAM ENCLOSED.

PARIS, Sept. 6. General Debeney's army is steadily advancing in the direction of Ham, which has been completely encircled.

FRENCH IN SIGHT OF LAON.

PARIS, Sept. 6. General Mangin's troops are in sight of Laon, having reached a position within ten miles of that city. General Berthelot's soldiers have reached the Aisne on a large front. General Humbert's army is making steady progress and has succeeded in completely removing the German menace from Noyon.

GOMPERTS WELCOMED.

DERBY, Eng., Sept. 5. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and William Bowen, President of the International Bricklayers' Union, today visited the British Labor Congress, which is now in session here, and delivered their fraternal greetings. Mr. Gompers, who spoke at some length, received an enthusiastic greeting.

GENERAL HUMBERT'S ARMY IS MAKING PROGRESS.

PARIS, Sept. 6. General Humbert's army is making steady progress today in the region of Gulescard and Ham. Advices from the battlefield say that the town of Ham has virtually been taken by the French forces.

DOEGENT CAPTURED.

LONDON, Sept. 6. (Official.)—South of Peronne the British have reached Athies and Monsen Chaussee. They have captured the village of Doegent.

NORWAY'S SHIPPING LOSSES.

LONDON, Sept. 6. Norway lost 13 vessels, aggregating 22,976 tons, through war causes, in the month of August, according to an announcement made today at the Norwegian Legation here. Two Norwegian sailors lost their lives.

ENEMY FORMING MANOEUVRING ARMY.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 6. (By the A.P.)—The retreat of the Germans proved in the first instance by their second defeat on the Marne, is continued and extended in order to release enough divisions to form a manoeuvring mass and regain a liberty of action, of which Marshal Foch's brilliant operations deprived them. That is the expert opinion of the situation, based on the best obtainable evidence of the condition of the German army and concerning the views prevailing among the German officers. The impression derived from the same sources is that the military party in Germany, which is still in absolute control, will give up only in the last extremity, and if they are unable to reconstitute reserves sufficient to resume the war movement, they will agitate to impose an offensive position on the Allies in the hope of striking them out and holding a considerable part of Northern France and Belgium as pledges with which to bargain when the occasion arises.

NOT SUFFICIENT AIRPLANES.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. Confidential messages from General Pershing and other reports from France indicate that the American army is now supplied with sufficient airplanes of all kinds to protect men in battle. General March, chief of staff, gave this information to members of the House Military Committee today at their weekly conference at the war department.

HUNS RESIST STRONGLY.

LONDON, Sept. 6. British troops are reported to have advanced this morning astride the Amiens-St. Quentin line on a front of twelve miles to a depth of three miles. The British are at the western edge of Templeux Le Forest, three and a half miles northeast of Peronne. The Germans are strongly resisting the British advance by rearguard actions.

FRENCH APPROACHING OLD LINE.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY, Sept. 5.—(By the A.P.)—The Germans tonight are destroying bridges and flooding the country between Chauny and LaFere, which is a good indication that they do not expect to remain much longer in advance of their old line which ran from LaFere to Mennellis. Today their retreat continued in daylight east of the Ailette River and their columns suffered very heavy losses from shell fire. Between the Ailette and the Aisne French troops advanced to a line from Margival to Quincy and Chevre while to the north they occupied Coucy de Chateau and Coucy Le Ville, approaching their old line of 1917, around the edge of the hilly wood region of St. Gobain. There they will encounter the formidable defence works the Germans prepared as part of the old Hindenburg position and which perhaps has been further strengthened since beginning their retreat.

PUSHING AHEAD.

PARIS, Sept. 6. French troops last night continued to push forward on the entire front between the Somme and the Vesle, says today's war office statement.

AMERICANS' WORK.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 5.—(By the A.P.)—Franco-American troops reached the south bank of the Aisne to-night between Conde and Valenciennes on an eight mile front. The American forces this afternoon occupied the towns of Dhuzel and Barbonval virtually without opposition.

MANY VILLAGES TAKEN.

PARIS, Sept. 6. Official: South of Peronne French troops made further crossings of the Somme in the region of Epancourt. Further south the Ham-Peronne road was reached at several points. South of Ham the towns of Leploissis, Patis, Doie and Berlancourt were captured, and still further south the French pursuing troops pushed beyond Guivey Calloieux-Crepigny and Abbecourt. In the region north of the Ailette the French reached the outskirts of Sinceny and plateau north of Landricourt and south of the Ailette the advancing forces are along the Vaux Allion ravine. The American troops advancing from the Vesle have captured the town of Clemies south east of Revillon and have advanced their lines as far as the outskirts of Villers-en-Prayeres on the Aisne and have occupied Genies.

PROTESTS FROM DUTCH.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 6. The Dutch minister at Berlin has been instructed to protest against the destruction by the German submarines of vessels within what is designated as the barred zone, and against the sinking of seven Dutch fishing vessels on Aug. 24. The minister also has instructions to protest against the fact that the skippers of the fishing vessels were forced to sign a declaration, the contents of which were unknown to them. The minister also will make a request for the goods taken from the fishing vessels.

WITH THE BRITISH.

LONDON, Sept. 6. The British troops south of Peronne are advancing approximately seven miles of the Somme on the general line of Montchi, Lagache, Vraignes and Pincourt, all of which villages have been taken by them, according to Field Marshal Haig's communication issued to-night. In the Lys sector slight advances also have been made by the British.

DAYTON
Money Weight Scales!

After deciding to locate in Newfoundland, we wished to obtain agency for the best computing scale made. We visited all the leading cities of the United States and Canada as far west as Chicago. We visited three computing scale factories, all of which offered us their agency. We talked with hundreds of users of various types of computing scales. The result of our investigation showed us that the Dayton Money Weight Scale was absolutely the best computing scale made, and that it would outwear any two computing scales of the swinging pendulum type.

We therefore closed the contract for the sale of Dayton Scales and have sold a number of them in St. John's and the various outports. Every scale sold is giving perfect satisfaction.

We are also agents for the Dayton Silent Meat Slicer and Dayton Cheese Cutter.

Address.

To Miss Lena Power, Principal of Branch Superior School, From the Pupils and Ex-Pupils.

Dear Teacher,—We assemble here this evening, though not without feelings of regret, to perform a sad mission in wishing farewell to our dearly beloved teacher.

We cannot find words to express our feelings when we know that you, who have done so much for our welfare are about to leave us, and we should be very wanting in gratitude and affection if your departure did not elicit from us sentiments of heartfelt sadness.

We avail of this opportunity to express to you our deep sense of gratitude for all you have done for us. The zeal which you have displayed in our regard and your unceasing anxiety for us to all. Thus we have learned to know you, to respect you, and to love you as one whose like we may not look upon again. Although, dear Teacher, you will be absent from our midst, yet you will live in the minds of the pupils of Branch for many years to come. Therefore we can only pray that kind Heaven may send down upon you its choicest blessings and may the guidance of the Supreme Power be with you in the new field of labour which you are about to undertake in that sweet invitation: "Come, follow Me," which the Divine Spirit has whispered to your youthful heart. We ask you to accept the accompanying gift as a token of our gratitude and esteem. We are not presenting it for its value but because we want to show our appreciation by some act or token of love.

So now, dear Teacher, we all wish you an affectionate farewell and we fervently trust that kind Providence will spare you for many years to persevere in the work of the Divine Master.

Signed on behalf of the pupils and ex-pupils:

Pupils: Lena Naab, Katie Colins, Fannie Roche, Nora Mooney, Ex-pupils: Bridgie Power, Aggie English.

REPLY:

Dear Children,—Words fail to express to you my gratitude for the nice address and most useful gift. I feel I do not deserve the praise you have given me for I have tried only to do my duty; this was made easy for me by your good conduct and not through any excellence on my part. This evening's proceedings were entirely unexpected by me and I have been agreeably surprised by the expression of your regard and affection. I wish you every blessing and success. I shall not forget you but I shall ever recall with pleasing memory the days I spent with you.

Again thanking you, dear children, for your kindness,

I remain,
 Your sincere friend,
 LENA POWER.

Hoeing is a severe strain on the back. It calls into play muscles not used much in lifting or in other kinds of farm work.

If you have a weak back you cannot stand much hoeing unless you use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to set the kidneys right and remove the cause of weakness and lameness of the back. Just try one pill a dose at bed time and see how much better you will feel.

Motor Association Meeting.

Last evening's meeting of the Motor Association, Mr. F. W. Ayre presiding, was well attended, some fifty members being present. Following the reading of the minutes of last meeting, the additional bye-laws or rules of the road, governing the driving of cars, signals to be used, etc., were read and adopted. These will apply to cyclists as well as drivers of cars. Mr. W. R. Warren announced that the Association had been finally registered and explained the delay in having same done. On motion of Mr. A. W. Piccott, seconded by Mr. Wm. White, it was decided that the officers and executive that had been previously elected pro tem, retain office until the annual general meeting in May next. These are: President, F. W. Ayre; 1st V.P., W. S. Monroe; 2nd V.P., W. A. O'D. Kelly; Secretary, E. Collishaw; Executive, Messrs. W. R. Warren, J. Sellars, J. O. Havermale, Dr. McLaughlin and Dr. Scully. The Secretary announced that 80 members had forwarded their fees to date, and in addition, the following subscriptions had been received: F. J. Canine, $25; Harold Bishop, $15; J. J. Lacey, $10; J. A. McKenzie, $10; another $100; W. S. Monroe, $100; E. Collishaw, $100; J. Sellars, $100; A. W. Piccott, $10; Dr. Cowperthwaite, $10. Letters from forty car owners, expressing their intention of joining the Association, have been received. Twenty-one of those present volunteered their services in bringing in additional members. The executive of nine, mentioned above, will meet at once to name the committees on roads, discipline, etc. It appears that a large sum, to be expended in improving the condition of different highways, will be forthcoming, as including fees and subscriptions, there is already about $1,500 on hand, and it is expected this sum will be doubled. It was also decided that every member display a badge, in the form of a wheel enclosing a red star, on his wind shield. These badges, for the present, will be of the transfer type, and the secretary will see to the securing of metal ones as early as possible. The meeting adjourned at 10.15.

Fire Last Night.

Shortly before 12 o'clock last night, an alarm of fire from Box 32, called the Central and West End Companies to Barter's Hill, where the garage of Hector Chafe was a fire. It was started by one of a couple of boys, who were measuring gasoline, touching the liquid with a lighted candle, which he held in his hand. The firemen soon had the fire under control, but before considerable damage was done to the building, and a car that was stored there for repairs. The all-out signal sounded 20 minutes after the alarm.

The First Battle of the Marne.

E. B. Osborn in Illustrated London News.

There is not a sod in the whole length of the "Catalanian man," where the Boche is now beaten, which has not been a man's sepulchre since the beginning of time. Long before the war I watched a peasant plougher, making a tall, shivering pile of his fering post, and saw a white object appear in the wave of brown earth turning over. It was "man's tooth." A tooth, it seems, survives all the other bones of a man, and it is just possible that this grim relic had actually there undisturbed ever since the year in which the first battle of the Marne freed the world, kindly, winging West the nameless horrors of a Mongol conquest.

The fourth and fifth centuries were a time of ruin and confusion for the provinces of the dying Roman Empire. Wave after wave of the invader's surges across the frontiers, and passed on to the shores of the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. Rome fell and was sacked; all the world of Latin civilization was involved in a sea of savagery, the out of the officina gentium or cesspool somewhere in the uncharted Asiatic vastnesses. What was these waves in motion? By degrees the West, as it conquers conquerors, had an inkling of the terrible truth. Vandals and Goths the rest were themselves evading the pressure of a nightmare in the Far East—a Mongol typhoon, growing like a cancer and extending its tentacles in all directions, the name of Attila. Attila, hailed abroad throughout Europe, like the sullen music of drums and horns—and then, on a stormy day, the grey-eyed Gaul saw the Goths and sickened at the sight, the echoes of the horror they were heard in the pig-Latin mouths of the verbal) of such chroniclers as has

The First Battle of the Marne.

There is not a sod in the whole length of the "Catalaunan" where the Boche is now basting, which has not been a sepulchre since the beginning of historic time. Long before I watched a peasant ploughing, making a tall, shivering pile of his ferning post, and saw a white object appear in the wave of earth turning over. It was his tooth. A tooth, it seems, carries all the other bones of a man, and it is just possible that this grim relic had actually there undisturbed ever since the year in which the first battle of the Marne freed the world, kindly, winegrowing West from the nameless horrors of a Mon-

Jornandes. They were dwarfish men, with fat, flat faces, pig eyes, scanty beards, squat shoulders—"more like two-legged beasts than men," wrote Jornandes. Not even the beauty of women—hours of the East or tall Visigoth maidens with auburn tresses—could win from them a moment's mercy. The cities they took vanished from the face of the earth; towers and pyramids of skulls and carcasses marked the course of their victorious campaigns. In Attilla they had one of the greatest captains of all time, whose strategy and tactics were as swift and unerring as Alexander's or Napoleon's.
Yet Attilla and all his hordes of archers and horsemen were beaten by a girl-saint and a dead King in the green, rich country-side eastward from Chalons-sur-Marne. Genoward, a little Christian shepherd, prophesied his defeat and death; her prophecy ran like mystic wild-fire through what is now France; and every man who had a weapon hastened to the marching banners of Theodor and Aetius. The battle that followed at Chalons was a world-battle—all the fighting races from the Chinese Wall to the Atlantic and from the Finnish barrens to the Mediterranean took part in it. Theodor, King of the Visigoths, was slain as he rode along the lines to encourage his men; like the Douglas who dreamed his "wearie dream" before the Battle of Otterbourne, he might have truly said—
I saw a dead man win a fight,
And I think that man was I.
The fight in the Catalaunan fields was too vast to be understood by any who fought in it, except, perhaps, Attilla, who lost 162,000 men and had to retreat—"like a wounded lion," says the Gothic chronicler.
In 1914, and again, in 1918, history has plagiarised itself. Joffre and Foch have earned the fame of Theodor and the Roman Aetius which is as thunder in the blue hills of Time gone by. There is a double strain of the Tartar in the modern Prussians, which completes the analogy. Once more, also, Genoward (St. Genevieve) has guarded her beloved City of Light.

A Queer Collection of Relics.

The Eccentric Club, in West End London, possesses the most curious collection of relics to be found in any similar institution, and they have been contributed from all parts of the world. Until its removal to St. James's, the roll of members consisted of exactly 999; the 1,000th man was always on the "waiting list." The motto of the club is "Nil nisi Bonum" (Nothing but Good). Its emblem is an owl. Its clock possesses two figures only on the dial—viz, a XII and a XIII, for it opens at noon and closes—except in war-time—at 4 a.m. The club's treasures include things almost as old as the world and as young as the war of to-day. It is quite up-to-date in having a jagged fragment of a bomb, which has been presented to the members. It is a nasty, ugly bit of metal, part of the first bomb dropped from a Zeppelin upon Antwerp on August 24, 1914. The club has lots of china, but a bit of real "China" is a brick from the Great Wall of China. It is a white-grey slab about a foot long and six or eight inches wide, and was once part of the wonderful wall—built as a protection against Tartar invasion—which was begun about 200 B.C., took forty years to build, and "zigzags" across the country for 1,500 miles over the tops of mountains and into the depths of valleys. Amongst other relics are to be seen the truncheon of a special constable of the time of the Chartist Riots, and a cutlass and sword used at the period of the Fenian Rising, in 1867.

The Antiquity of Artificial Limbs.

Since many of our gallant soldiers who have returned from the front have been deprived of one or more limbs through the severe wounds sustained in action, the question of artificial limbs has been much to the fore. Few people, however, have any idea of their cost, but think a few shillings covers the outlay. As a matter of fact, an artificial member of the body is an expensive luxury. A good leg, well made and serviceable, will cost the wearer from £15 to £20; while for a fancy article, with all the latest improvements—such as joints, &c.—almost any price may be paid. Artificial arms cost about the same amount as legs. This manufacture is of very ancient origin. Sergius, the grandfather of Catinella, in early life lost his right hand in battle, but made himself an iron substitute, with which he could handle and use to advantage sword or lance. About fifteen years ago a tomb was opened at Capua, which contained a remarkable specimen of a well-made artificial leg. It was composed of thin sheets of bronze riveted together and fastened to a wooden core. Iron bars connected the leg with a bronze belt round the waist of the skeleton; and there were traces of a wooden foot.
The oldest tree on earth with an authenticated history is the great big tree of Burmah. For twenty centuries it has been held sacred to Buddha, and no person is allowed to touch the trunk. When the leaves fall they are carried away as relics by pilgrims.

Holyrood Garden Party.

The Last Great Event of the Holiday Season.
The destruction by fire of the beautiful Church of Holyrood and the subsequent public and eminently successful and generously responded to appeal for help to restore the church by the reverend Pastor Father Finn are well-known facts of past history. But the Garden Party to be held next Wednesday is an event of future significance and paramount importance with the object of raising funds to add considerably to those already collected for the purpose of rebuilding the church. Rev. Father Finn and his committees of ladies and gentlemen have had several meetings organizing for the great event of the next week. A great wave of garden party enthusiasm is radiating from the committees respectively presided over by Miss A. Kennedy and Capt. John Lewis, the clerical and secular work being well done by Miss A. Bennett and Mr. Dwyer, so that promising prospects are entertained of making next Wednesday's event the record Garden Party of Holyrood. The Star Athletic Club of St. John's have organized an outing to Holyrood to take part in the Garden Party festivities and Mr. Frank Woods and his secretary have already visited Holyrood to make arrangements to take part in the occasion and have planned to call off a number of sports and games on that day. A cup presented by Hon. M. F. Gibbs will be competed for, and all are doing their very best on that end to make a big success of the undertaking. The men's committee have arranged boat and pony races, swinging boats, dancing and shooting galleries and other attractive games and amusements—all designed to make the day pleasant and enjoyable to visitors. The ladies' committee the making of the enterprise, will serve hot dinners in camps on the field so that the most fastidious epicure will fill up on all the good and hot things he desires. The Carboniferous and Cadet Bands will supply the music for the occasion. The Garden Party will be held in the field of Mr. Wm. Maher where for miles around the prospect extends over as fair a scene as ever rejoiced the sight of man—mountain and valley, forest and stream, town and solitude grouped together in forms of almost ideal beauty. To pleasure-seekers and philanthropists and to all who wish to help out a worthy and necessary undertaking we say come to Holyrood next Wednesday and be greeted with a right royal welcome from Father Finn and his assistants. The founding of the day's festivities will be a dance, refreshments and teas in the Star Hall at night which will undoubtedly add to the day's amusements and proceeds and draw a large number of the younger and sportive elements.

After Sunset.

I have an understanding with the hills
At evening, when the slanted radiance fills
Their hollows, and the great winds
Let them be,
And they are quiet and look down at me,
Oh, then I see the patience in their eyes
Out of the centuries that made them wise.
Their thoughts of granite and their whims of fern,
And why a dream of forests must endure
Though every tree be slain; and how the fire,
Invisible beauty has a word so brief,
A flower can say it, or a shaken leaf,
But few may ever share it in a song,
Thought for the quest a life is not too long.
When the blue hills grow tender,
When they pull
The twilight close with gesture beautiful,
And shadows are their garments, and the air
Deepens and the will-berry is at prayer,
Their arms are strong around me;
and I know
That somehow I shall follow when you go
To the still land beyond the evening star,
Where everlasting hills and valleys are,
And silence may not hurt us any more,
And terror shall be past, and grief and war.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

THE Sunlight enterprise and organization for production, manufacture, and distribution were made complete long before the war. But during the war the difficulties and costs of transport have been multiplied. Therefore, Lever Brothers have purchased a fleet of steamships to convey raw materials direct from their plantations to Port Sunlight.
The Housewife is given the full benefit of this enterprise, and thus, in spite of the difficulties caused in England by the war, Sunlight Soap remains the best soap throughout the world, and gives the fullest value for the housewife's money.
THE SUNLIGHT SERVICE IS THE MOST COMPLETE SOAP SERVICE IN THE WORLD. SUNLIGHT SOAP IS MADE FOR THE HOUSEWIFE'S PROFIT, FOR ONLY THEREBY CAN THE MAKERS HOPE TO PROFIT BY SUNLIGHT SOAP.

Money Making Hints For Merchants.

HOW MANY DOLLARS ARE THERE IN AN HOUR? You don't want to waste time doing work that a machine will do for you. A complete new Model NATIONAL Cash Register will give you more time to make money. It will keep your accounts straight to the cent. You can tell it at any minute the number and amount of sales for the day, who made them, whether goods were sold for cash or charged. It will enable you to KNOW, you will no longer have to GUESS.

NO MORE BOOK-KEEPING! Handling accounts in the old-fashioned way means either overtime work for the merchant or employing a bookkeeper. It either adds to the merchant's troubles and labour, or adds to his overhead expense.

The new National Credit Account File takes care of all detail work AT ONE WRITING. No day-book, no ledger, no monthly statement. It protects your charge records against mistakes and losses, and will SAVE YOU MONEY.

DO YOU USE COUNTER CHECK BOOKS? Let us quote you on your next order. We specialise in this work and can supply you with a superior book with the new carbonised back—does not soil fingers—or carbon sheet. Write for sample and prices.

We carry National Cash Registers in stock for immediate sale, freight and duty paid, on easy monthly payments without interest, or allow a liberal discount for cash. Call or write to-day for full particulars.
