There are at the present time in the town five new buildings in course of construction, and many old ones undergoing repairs and improvements.

Notable among the former is the Graves Vinegar and Pickling Factory, being erected on the Bay Road near the corner of Granville street and within a few rods of the site of the M. &. V. B. Ry. station. This is a fine building 55 ft. long by 36 ft. wide. It is three stories high in front and two on the rear, over an excellent and commodious basement. An extension will be built on the rear for a boiler room, and a large shed created at some distance from the main building to accommodate the main building to accommodate the content of the first shaptist church, of Cleveland, Ohio the church home of Rockefeller, with Mrs. Eaton, arrived in Wollville on Friday, and will spend some days at the Seminary Hotel. Mr. Eaton is just recovering from an attack of typhoid fever from which he has been suffering since March.

—Mr. William Ruffee is the possesscrected at some distance from the main building to accommodate the tanks or vats beyond those for which there will be space in the factory proper. From the tanks the product will be run into the basement and forced by pumps to the 3rd story, after which it will pass down through the generator and be led away wherever desired. The exterior of the building is now about completed and the manager expects to have the factory in operation in time to turn off 100,000 gallons of pure cider vinegar this season.

The Annapolis Valley Vinegar factory is also nearing completion. It consists of two buildings, the main factory being 50x30 ft. on the ground and two stories high. The shed for the cider and vinegar tanks will be 75 ft. long by 24 wide. The factory will be equipped with the best American machinery, which is already on the ground. This factory adjoins the wood-working factory of Beeler & Peters and will te ready for operation in about a month. Near by Mr. Peters is having an addition over 30 ft. in length built on his residence. The foundations are now laid.

be mentioned the residence of Norman E. Chute at the corner of Granville and Church St., the appearance of which has been so changed as to practically transform it into a new building. The changes in the exterior were effected by raising the whole building a couple of feet and placing it on an underpinning of brick. A handsome verandah and balcony have been built around the front and sides of the house. The changes in the interior have been in keepings with those on the outside and it has been completely modernized, by no means the least of the improvements being an up-to-date bath room. The house is this week in the hands of the painters, the body and dark green and canary for the trimmings. Mr. Chute has also made some changes in his warehouse and outbuildings, and will shortly have an attractive as well as commodious block of buildings.

A short distance away on Granville St. Mrs. John Lockett is having her business property improved. A new plate glass front has been put in and the repairs will include a new platform in front of the store. Another notable improvement may be seen in the cottage lately donated to the Superannuation Fund of the Baptist Church This has been transformed into a deidedly pretty little cottage, and is now about completed.

An extension of 30x20 ft. is also being built on the rear of The Monitor office. It will be divided into two dapartments, one of which will be used for a stock room, and the other will accommodate part of the job plant.

Mrs. Freeman's fine residence on Granville street has undergone thorough repairs, and is resplandent in a new coat of paint. Some alterations in the grounds are also notices and painters this spring and loo's neat and attractive. A new barn has recently been added to the premises.

Ferry C. R. A.

A few days since a challenge was sent by the Round Hill C. R. A. to the Granville Ferry C. R. A. for a ritle competition at Round Hill on the challenge was promptly accepted by Capt. Wade.

A number of us were driven to Round Hill by our good Whip, Councillor Edwards, in his commodious buckboard drawn by his commodious buckboard drawn by his three best horses, and a right good drive we had. On arrival we were most courteously received by the energetic Captain, Rev. R. A. Smith, and Percy B. Bancroft, the efficient secretary of the Round Hill Association. Each member of the visiting team was pressuiced with a tastefully gotten up program of contests—200, 500 and 600 yds., a copy of "Rules Governing Shooting," and, last, but not the less, an invitation to a collation at Mrs. Andrew LeCan s. On alighting and asking Mr. Danvolt, "Where is your range?" is reglied "There it is," and we looked upon one of the best and most picturesque ranges in the province, dry, level, sandy soil, with a well wooded hill m rear of the butt, and lesser wooded elevations on both sides. The butt is well located and constructed, with two targets which run so easily a child can work them. The marking was perfect and rapid—not a shot was challenged. Mr. Sibbons and his three boy assistants in the butt deserve the greatest credit. The firing mounds, large enough for four men are well and substantially made and sodded, the sides boarded from the ground to the surface. The range has been purchased by the government and is ideal.

The day was perfect. A large number of the fair sex and others from near and far by their presence gave

After battling with death for a fortnight the soul of Pope Leo XIII passed away at 4.29 o'clock on the afternoon of Monday, June the 20th. His life and labors have been such that his death even at the age of 93 years, is regarded with regret by all creeds and races of the civilized world. I know of an instance of the state of the case of a very mischievous boy who was always in scrapes. One day at the dinner table when the whole family was present, he was accused by his brother of having done a mean action. "Stop!" said his

Fill in the cuntre with contrasting foliage, selecting some of the many small plants which never grow tall. Finish with some of the water plants and grasses from low spots and drains, and those who have trodden and grasses from low specifications, and those who have trodden these simple plants underfoot will be amazed at the result. The planes will keep green and fresh indefinitely if moistened daily.

No one-need be told that ferns from the roadside and woods will remain lovely for months if taken up in a little of their own earth and placed in the house. The broad, thin leafed fern is the least hardy when so treated. Maidenhair ferns will not grow for some people, but all the other varieties are as satisfactory as they are lovely, and will flourish anywhere if only watered frequently. One woman, who loves green things, fills tin boxes and cans with ferns and covers the holders with green cloth, paper or bark. She gathers ferns upon every summer outing, and so not only has bark. She gathers ferns upon every summer outing, and so not only has greenhouse decorations for the long, how days of summer, but provides abundant loveliness for winter days.

—The collarless shirt waists are probably the most acceptable new features, of summer fashions. They are howe to stay, as they are not only cool, but they are dainty and pretty and add materially to the effect of a dressy shirt waist.

PLEA FOR THE GROWING BOY.

"Ease him over a bit, ma'am! Ease him over till he stops growing, he'll be all right then." Such was the advice given a perplexed mother by a wise doctor, when she consulted him with regard to her young son. She complained that of late Tom had changed. From being an industrious, active and obliging boy he had become the reverse. He had lost all amiltion, was lazy, and work ence with it he's mistaken, as the story is too good to keep. Jones, as you know, considers himself a great ladies' man, although he is old enough to know better. I was walking with him this afternoon, and he could talk of nothing but his "latest." Suddenly he exclaimed:

"By Jove! There she is now, across the street. Isn't she a peacht"Off came his hat with a flourish, exposing his bald pate, and an idiotic grin spread over his features.

"Much to my surprise, for she did not look like a girl who would indulge in a street flirtation, she waved her hand, hesitated a moment and that started to cross the street to where we were. active and obliging boy he had become the reverse. He had lost all ambition, was lazy, and went about his work with a listless air—had an ungracious manner, and was disobliging when asked a favor. Every one complained of him. And yet he was the picture of health, and growing like a weed. His animal spirits were overwhelming and his appetite abnormal. He had also grown careless in his dress and manners; forgot to take off his hat in the house, whistled in the sitting-room, and banged every door behind him as he went out. His feet seemed to spread all over the place, and knocked against tables and chairs, while his big hands broke nearly everything he tcuched.

Does any mother of a growing boy fail to observe in the above picture the portrait of her own Tom or Dick or Jack, as the case may be? Have not all parents passed through a similar experience with their growing boys, that period of all others when they needed to be 'cased up a bit' over the read from boyhood to manhead?

"They can't resist me,' said the beaming Jones. Excuse me, old man; see you later; ta, ta!.

"Hat in hand and grinning like a monkey, Jones approached the young lady, who suddenly stopped, looked startled for a moment and then gasped. ed:

PRIDE HAD A FALT

THE FINISHING TOUCH,

This is a very tender age for poor Tom, too. He is sensitive to a degree, though he will not let you see it you may depend; to be laughed at for his changing voice (varying from a deep bass to a high falsetto), is keen agony to him; while to hear himself described as 'all hands and feet and asked to 'take his big paws off that book,' makes him angry enough to wish he were a bear and had paws big enough to chastise his tarmentors. This is the time of all others when a boy needs his mother to throw herself in the broch and protest and sisters, or the reprimands of his father, who has little patience with his awkwardness, and speaks threateningly of boarding school if 'Tom does not improve.'

His mother, if wise, will observe that praise rather than censure is needed to encourage and bring out the best of a boy at this trying age, and will always, if possible, impute good motives to what he does. She will find that this is the way to win his heart and keep his confidence, and believe me, though he tries to hide all feelings, and pretends he "dees not when I thought it over, I knew he The small boy with his eyes open ofwill always, if possible, impute good motives to what he does. Youth's Companion.

HIS OWN GRANDFATHER. Beppo Bruzzoni, a Neapolitan sailer, is a living proof of the fact that a man can be his own grandfather. "I married," he said, "a widow, and she had by her first husband a hand-some girl named Silvetta, with whom my father fell in love, and who became his second wife. Thus my father became my son-in-law and my step-daughter became my mother, since she had married my father. Soon after-ward my wile gave birth to a son, who became my father's step-brother and at the same time my uncle, since he was my stepmother's brother.

"But that was not all, for in due time my father's wife also gave birth to a boy, who was my brother and also my stepson, since he was the son of my daughter. My wife was also my grandmother, for she was the mother of my mother, and thus the my wife's husband and at the same time her grandson. Finally, as the husband of a person's grandmother is naturally and at the same time my uncle, since of a person's grandmother is naturally that person's grandfather, I am my own grandfather.

The loy must not be nagged at, must not be censured in public. That hurts his pride and crushes his manly spirit, for at this age he is impatient under restraint, while punishment only makes him more obstinate and wilful. A quiet suggestion spoken in his ear alone, and that at the proper time, will be all-prevailing.

As to his awkwardness, much of it comes from self-consciousness and a A PREACHER'S GOOD GUESS, ear alone, and that at the proper time, will be all-prevailing.

As to his awkwardness, much of it comes from self-consciousness and a little assurance will 'ease him over' it. No matter if his big boots do destroy the furniture, or his clumsy hands break your china; all the more reason for allowing him to help you and wait on you. Let him know that such services are always a pleasure. Above all, let him know that is always welcome. The growing boy will all too soon have outgrown the home, and the wide world will have claimed him. And then, oh then, what would we give to have him back with all his noise and awkwardness! How quickly his faults will change into virtues and how tenderly we will remember his 'provoking' ways. Yes, 'ease him over' a bit, mother, while you have the chance, and you will be spared remorse.

An old, white haired man, past the three score and ten, said to me, in speaking of his rother: 'I never remember the time in my boyhood, coming home to my mother that she did not meet me at the door with a smile on her face. All through 'my long life I have remembered that beautiful smile.' And so I put in my plea for the growing boy, while he is at home, so that when he goes out into the world where he will meet many a frown, be may look back with pleasure to the time when there was always a smile waiting for him.—M.
