THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE

By LOUIS TRACY Author of "The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," "The Captain of the Kansas," etc.

"I am sorry," was the unsatisfying answer. "I can do nothing without His Excellency's instructions, and he has gone out for a drive."

"Gone out for a drive!" repeated Royson, quite taken aback by the reply rather than by the explanation.

"You are an understander, aren't you?" "You are an understander, aren't you?" "You are an understander, aren't you?"

"After consultation with the Government," "After consultation with the Government," "After consultation with the Government,"

"No, sir. I think not. Indeed, I am almost positive she has not heard of it." "Then why are you here?"

"Mrs. Haxton probably guessed what would happen. Some scoundrel named Alfieri, who has tried more than once to steal my poor friend's secret, has gained the ear of the Italian foreign minister."

"When I was at Harvard," said Dr. William F. Anderson, "The boys had a little program with which they used to warn speakers not to be too profane."

When they drew near the hotel, Royson saw Irene watching the main street anxiously from the balcony. It was strange, remarkable that she should be alone, but all other thoughts were swept aside by the sight of the joyous, rosy-faced girl when the carriage stopped at the portico and she learned that her grandfather had arrived from an opposite direction.

freedom. We must make for Aden at once. I will not trust the cable from Massowah. By Jove, I have been a supporter of peace all my life, Mr. Royson, but it is a lucky thing for this thief's den that I have not an armed ship now at my disposal, or I would blow their lot out of its foundations."

"The older man little knew how his outbreak affected Royson. The reference to Alfieri was absolutely staggering. No up-to-date battleship could have demolished the Massowah fortress so effectively as Mr. Feneshave's outspoken wrath crumbled the edifice of doubt built by circumstances in Royson's mind."

"He has a good deal of sense, Mr. Feneshave," said Dick, "but he is a man-trap. I came here in good faith, and I quit the place with the resolution that never again shall I entrust myself to the vagaries of any Jack-in-office who thinks he can browbeat a man of my repute like one of the wretched natives whom he misleads."

"Royson had some difficulty in persuading his irate employer to enter the Governor's carriage, Mr. Feneshave insisting on the plea that it was a stiff walk to the hotel, and his granddaughter would be consumed with anxiety if any alarm should be given by the fact that she was alone."

"The other signed, whether on account of his vanished youth or the unpropitious nature of the scheme, it is hard to say. Our weapons are meant only for defence," he said, "and I am much mistaken in my officers and men if they refused to back me up. But, as it is, we can do nothing. That is what galls me, my complete helplessness."

"To cure a cold in one day," "To cure a cold in one day," "To cure a cold in one day,"

"The Governor was such an affable person that he refused to let me go," said Mr. Feneshave grimly. "He has detained me in that room for an hour, and I am upstairs. I am pining for that long-deferred tea. Where is Mrs. Haxton?"

LONG DROUGHT IN NEW ENGLAND DRIES MANY STREAMS UP

Boston, Oct. 25.—In face of the fact that the drought in New England has been unprecedented according to all meteorological records in this section, all of the cities and towns that have a municipal system of water supply, are in no danger of a water famine, with the single exception of the city of St. Albans, in the extreme northwestern corner of Vermont, although in a few places the supply is limited.

With the exception of a few days of rainfall in July at a time when the crops sorely needed it, the drought, practically has been unbroken since the early spring. There have been a few days upon which some rain has fallen, but at no time could it be considered heavy or protracted.

Rivers have shrunk within their banks, brooks have dried up, wells have been lowered and forest fires have raged almost unchecked. Industrial establishments, dependent on water power, have been forced to close, and it was popularly supposed that all New England was on the verge of a water famine. Investigation has shown, however, that such is not the case.

LOCAL OPTION IN MANITOBA

The Temperance People of That Province to Wage War on the Barroom. Winnipeg, Oct. 24.—The provincial executive and the Moral and Social Reform Council of Manitoba and the Royal Templars have both held meetings since the decision of the Court of Appeal on Tuesday. There was great disappointment that the decision would prevent the vote from being taken in forty-five or forty-six municipalities, where petitions had been completed in good time, but where there were no meetings of the municipal councils to receive them. It was decided that it would be unreasonable to ask the electors, who have done everything that they could to bring on a vote, to lay down their arms for another year. In both executives a resolution was unanimously adopted in favor of the legislative praying for the enactment of a measure that would abolish the barroom, and thus knock out the drinking habit. Petitions will be prepared and issued this week, and the whole province will be appealed for vigorous action. It is stated that sixteen municipalities which were moving for veto are not affected by the decision of the Court of Appeal, and that in these the vote will be taken on December 15. There will also be a vote for repeal in a number of municipalities where voters are now enrolled, and it was pointed out that there was a remarkable anomaly in the law, the electors have a right to bring on a vote for repeal, according to the interpretation of the Court of Appeal, must present their petitions to a regular meeting of the municipal council before the 1st of October.

THE FAKE CURES FOR CONSUMPTION Physicians Tell Maine Tuberculosis Society How They Foster Disease. A number of Maine men of prominence in medical and civic life addressed the meetings last Friday of the Maine association for the study and prevention of tuberculosis, at its first annual meeting at the Fine Street Methodist church. Dr. Edwin Gehring of Portland in a valuable paper on the importance of early diagnosis in tuberculosis stated that there were 5,000 persons in this state suffering with this disease two years ago. Dr. Gehring asserted that one reason for the prevalence of tuberculosis was found to lie in the stupendous gullibility of people concerning "consumption cures." He defined the case of one boy whose death was traceable to belief in one of these "nostrums," and added that it was not true that "it is only the ignorant who are victimized by the fake cures."

OTAWA'S POPULATION 80,000.

OTAWA, Oct. 24.—The assessment for Ottawa for 1928 is $20,822,200, or $6,008,700 in excess of 1927, and is the largest in the history of the city. The next best record was made in 1925, when, under the act of 1924, there was an increase of $1,139,000. There is satisfaction at the announcement made in Assessment Commissioner Stewart's report that Ottawa's population at present is 80,254, an increase of 4,024 within the last twelve months. About a year ago, when several new suburbs were annexed, it was announced that the population had "jumped" 8,573. Thus within two years there has been an increase of between 12,000 and 13,000 in the population of the capital.

As St. Raphael is situated 100 miles from the city, the burglar's flight and without any telegraphic communication the news received here was a very strange description. A farmer residing opposite the bank also heard the noise and went out of his house with a gun but the burglars ordered him to drop his weapon which he immediately did as the burglars levelled revolvers at him. The more noise they

GREATEST DEMONSTRATION IN ST. JOHN'S HISTORY FOR THE LIBERAL CANDIDATES

Thousands of Electors Cheered Hon. Wm. Pugsley and James Pender on Saturday Night—Grand Torchlight Procession—Queen's Rink Crowded and Immense Meeting Held in Charlotte Street.

The greatest political demonstration ever seen in St. John was given on Saturday night in honor of Hon. Wm. Pugsley and James Pender. WILD CHEERING FOR THE MINISTER

The chairman then briefly introduced Dr. Pugsley, referring in the course of his remarks to his previous return by acclamation, to the great things which St. John expected from him, and to his having in very instance made good. He had accomplished more for the port, he said, than any minister of the crown had ever done.

THE CAMPAIGN
One feature of the political campaign which closes today was especially noticeable. It was the very large attendance at the public meetings. This was not peculiar to St. John, nor to the meetings of one party. Whether it was that the people are taking a deeper interest in national affairs, or whether the lively exchange of personalities afforded more entertainment than in an ordinary contest, it is a fact that public interest was aroused to a quite unprecedented extent. Even the children talked politics.

This was certainly a good feature of the campaign. The more interest the people take in public affairs the more hope there may be that we shall have a good government. Public apathy invariably results in corrupt or incompetent administration of the country's affairs. Therefore large meetings and keen public interest are to be welcomed.

The large attendance of ladies at the meetings led the speakers on both sides to pay pretty compliments to the fair sex, although there may be room for doubt whether, if the ladies asked for something more substantial than compliments, the male orators would be willing to give them the franchise. Compliments are not expensive and the ladies might be tempted to remark that the best evidence of a desire to awaken their interest and ensure their careful study of public matters would be the gift of suffrage.

It may be hoped that the tendency to violent personal attack in political campaigns will not grow in this country. It is most unfortunate when public men charge each other with conduct unbecoming a representative of the people. On many platforms, in many constituencies, men have charged each other with making statements they knew to be false. These very men would do business together in an ordinary way, and trust each other to tell the truth. It is most unfortunate that the ordinary courtesies of life cannot be carried even into the heat of a political campaign. It is bad for the country to create the impression in the minds of the young voters that public men are without honor and unworthy of confidence and respect.

IN THE BALKANS
World-wide has the following summary of the situation in the Balkans:
"Affairs in the Balkans have been quiet during the past week. Previously Bulgaria had been clamoring for war and Turkey had begun, regretfully, to make preparations to meet the crisis. The general representations of the powers in favor of peace had little effect at Sofia until Russia finally took decisive action. She notified Bulgaria that unless she instantly modified her attitude, Russian troops would be sent, with Roumania's consent through that country to invade Bulgaria from the north. That saved the situation. Ferdinand's government had no choice but to notify Turkey of her desire for peace, and to that end would yield her wishes on the railroad question and would negotiate conciliatorily on other matters. On receipt of this communication on October 17 Turkey promptly countermanded her orders for mobilization. Austria also has now taken more friendly attitude towards Turkey and has notified her that she prefers to negotiate with her direct on questions regarding Bosnia and Herzegovina. Turkey sympathizes with this suggestion and will inform the powers of her desire that of a conference be held at all, which she no longer asks, it shall confine itself to Bulgaria's action, and the ques-

The maximum penalty for not complying with the order is six hundred marks fine or a day's imprisonment for every ten marks thereof, which cannot be recovered.

ST. JOHN, N. B.

THE NEW TORPEDO IS A WAR MARVEL

Range Four Miles, Speed Increased—Far More Deadly Than the Old Weapon.

Further details have been received of the new British torpedo. The new torpedo is a marvel of speed, range, accuracy and destructiveness. Its general features may be summarized:
Diameter, 21 inches.
Range, 7,000 yards (about four miles).
Speed, 31 knots.
Explosive charge, over 200 pounds.
Of late years greater attention has been devoted to the torpedo in all fleets, in view of the increased recognition of its role in naval warfare. The modern torpedo is a terrible weapon, in itself a complete mobile ship of war. Though weighing only 1,218 pounds, and with a length of but just over 16½ feet and a diameter of 18 inches, it carries 190 pounds of gun-cotton. It is as much a ship as a submarine torpedo-boat. Divided into various sections, it compresses a head, carrying the explosive, with a pistol to fire the charge on impact; an air-chamber containing the motive-power of compressed air at a pressure exceeding 2,000 pounds per square inch; the balance chamber, with the intricate mechanism for keeping the torpedo at any desired depth in the water; the engine room, which contains the propelling engines, the servo-motor for actuating the horizontal rudders, and counter gear for making the rudder adjustment; the buoyancy chamber, which holds the tubes through which pass the main propeller shafting and the diving rod for working the horizontal rudders; and, lastly, the tail and propellers, the latter numbering three in the latest type.

The new British torpedo resembles the torpedo now in use in most navies. The existing weapon has a diameter of 18 inches, and the new one is of 21 inches. The increase in size enables a heavier explosive charge to be carried and more powerful engines to be installed. But the revolutionary change is in the motive power. Before the Dreadnought was built it was known that we had no navy.

Whitehead, Kings county, Oct. 25.

range at least, if they would keep outside the reach of the enemy's torpedoes, and at this distance the familiar six-inch gun was comparatively ineffective. Therefore word went forth for a ship to carry only the biggest and most powerful guns. If the war in the Far East had not shed light on naval gunnery, the Dreadnought, with its all-big-gun armament, would have been justified by the new torpedo. The remarkable increase in speed and range is due to a simple cause. Some time ago an American hit on the idea of heating the compressed air used in propelling the torpedo. The trials were encouraging. Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co. later on designed a type of heater that gave most remarkable results. The application of the heater to the familiar 18-inch torpedo at once raised its range to 4,000 yards with a speed during the entire run of twenty-eight knots—an increase of speed of eight to ten knots, due entirely to the simple process of heating the compressed air.

It is understood that, apart from the increased charge carried, the new torpedo has an improved type of gyroscope for keeping it off its course. It runs consequently more consistently than even the present one. This is the new weapon which will be fitted in all our British men-of-war. In view of the increase of the range of the torpedo a just upon four miles, battles must be fought in future with guns of the large size only. The development of this new weapon illustrates once more the remarkable sequence in naval evolution.

WHO WERE COMING.
"And the streets were paved with real gold and there will be music and flowers, and everything will be beautiful!" finished the Sunday school teacher, who was telling her small charges of heaven.

"And now tell me," she continued, "what kind of little boys and girls are going there?" "Nobody knew; then from one corner a small brown hand shot up. "Yes, Samuel," the teacher smiled.

SECRETARY SAW IT.
(Royal Magazine)
Among the biggest letters recently received at the office of a benevolent society was one running thus: "I have a friend who is a young man, who is the only son of a widow, who died childless, and his earnings maintain his aged father and infirm brothers, whose sole support he is. The secretary of the society wrote on the margin of the epistle the following note: 'The circumstances of the case are evidently exaggerated.'"

THE OLD VIOLIN

(By the late Arthur Upson, in the Bellman.)
"When I was alive and the street I was silent; now that I am cut down and dead I sing—MIDCIVIL."
Long ago, my forest home forsaking,
First my heart, contented silence breaking,
Woke to sound beneath the carver's knife.
There upon the peak my spirit slumbered,
Foot-secure in that unobscured spot,
Rain and sun went by in years unnumbered;
I had joy of them and knew it not.

Now for many years—years that are counted
I have seen the quiet hills no more;
And my soul is tremulous, tick-haunted,
With great stormy dreams undreamed before.

Long ago they cut and carved me finely;
Since that day the soft command of songs
Makes my heart burst out divinely
With a comprehension full and strong.

For the Masters taught me their great passion,
Taught me all the joys and wants of men,
These I hear in every wood-dwelling nation,
All my lore, in beauty, back again.

All my lore of love, and weep and grieving,
Unuttered yearnings everywhere,
These I gather, and with hope new-weaving,
Make them magic-sweet upon the air!

IN LIGHTER VEIN
ANYBODY'S DARLING!
Male Voice—Hello!
Female Voice—Hello!
"Is that you, darling?"
"Yes, who are you?"—Yonkers Statesman.

MY: BUT ISN'T HE NASTY!
Young Green—Do you know, sir, I believe that woman is real endowed with a sixth sense.
Grouch—Humph! Just about a sixth, all the women I've met.—Tribune.

AN IMPROVEMENT.
Hubby—"This pie isn't anything like my mother used to make."
Wife—"I'm sorry, my dear."
Hubby—"I'm not. It was her pastry that put me in the dyspeptic class."

TOO MUCH FOR HIM.
Smithson used to labor under the impression that he was a born humorist. But he has given up trying to be funny now. He called one day on an old school friend and was shown into a room where his aunt's sister was busy arranging a quantity of dried grass which she had collected.

"What are you doing with that grass?" asked Miss Ritchie.
"I'm making a room for a donkey to get into," said Mr. Smithson.
"Make yourself at home, Mr. Smithson," said the girl, pleasantly.
When he arrived home, all the humor was crushed out of him forever.

TH LAST RESORT.
A celebrated physician, having asked a young man who was giving medicine under him at his examination what means he would use to promote perspiration, a particular disease, the student exhausted all the resources of his memory and ingenuitv, and still the pertinacious old physician continued to brow beat him. "Give up, sir, and if that failed, then what would you do?"

"The last resort, sir, I would say, is to let him to you to be examined and, if that did not make him sweat, it is my opinion his case would be hopeless."

THE SOFT ANSWER.
It was a wise young man who paused before he answered the widow. He wanted to guess her age. "Do you have some idea of it," she said, with what was intended for an arch sideways glance.

"I'm admitted," with a smile. "The only trouble is that I hesitate whether to make you ten years younger on account of your looks or ten years older on account of your brains." Then, while the widow blushed, he took a graceful but speedy leave.

SORT OF A REPROACH.
A Yorkshire (England) farmer was asked to the funeral of his wife's third wife, and as he had attended the funeral of the two others his own wife rather curtly when he declined the invitation. On being asked his reason for his refusal, he said: "Well, these see, lass, it makes a chap look bit more like a man when he never has nowt of his own to ax 'em back."

AT THE MILLINER'S.
"Yes, I like the hat immensely, but I'm afraid my husband won't care for it."
"But such a lovely hat!"
"Yes, I know. Oh, will you put it aside until to-morrow and I'll bring my husband."

THE INGLENOOK PHILOSOPHER OF KENNEBECCASIS BAY
He was the Apollo of our neighborhood—young, handsome, courteous and well educated. He was the pride of his family, and while his brothers worked on the farm he pored over his books, for it was his destiny, they all said, to enter one of the learned professions, to become a preacher, a lawyer or a doctor. He was proud of his mental and physical strength and gratified by his recognition in the little community as one likely to be heard from in the future. One day it was noticed with surprise that he appeared to be suffering great pain as he walked about his father's house, for was not he, a young Hercules, whom neither enemy (he had none) nor accident could harm? His infirmity increased; he walked with a cane and after a time had to support himself with a crutch. But he never allowed to his infirmity and a neighbor who with the kindest of intentions inquired as to its nature came near getting his brains knocked out (with the crutch) for his temerity. All this time he was attended by the family physician who, apparently, was powerless to help his patient, and after a year or more a consultation was held in which one eminent New York doctor participated, and they decided that the only way to save the patient's life was by the amputation of his right leg just above the knee. James Griswold heard their decision without a quaver but he positively refused to submit to the operation till a period of ten days had elapsed.

James Griswold.

About a week later James Griswold called at our house. He was very cheerful and affable. I remember well how cordially he shook hands with us all, even with me, the little boy, when he bid us good bye. He made similar calls on all the neighbors, some of whom thought because of his cheerfulness that he was hopeful of recovery.

One day before the expiration of his stipulated ten days James Griswold was sailing on a lake a few miles from his home and was never seen alive again. His boat drifted ashore the next day, with out anchor or anchor rope, but with his hat and coat in the bottom. They dragged the lake fruitlessly for his body, but it rose after a time and was buried.

Was he a physical coward? I think he was. The only live man will battle for the mastery of his fate, until the end, no matter how great the odds may be against him. I once heard a wife say to her husband, "If you were not such a contemptible coward you would go and shoot yourself!" He demonstrated that he was no coward by accepting the situation and living on.

Interesting Memoirs of Sarate a Famous Spanish Musician Who Made £10,000 a Year From His Violin.

London, Oct. 24.—The death which occurred rather suddenly recently of Senor Pablo Sarasate, the famous violinist, at Biarritz, at the age of sixty-four, recalls many stories of his interesting career.

Born at Pampeluna, the old capital of Navarre, Sarasate played at his first concert at the age of six. Four years later his fame reached the court of Madrid, and he was invited to play before Queen Isabella.

He entered the Paris Conservatoire on January 1, 1856, and the following year gained the first prize for solfège and the violin. Becoming the favorite pupil of the great Alard he played at a concert in such magnificent style that his gratified master rewarded him with a box of toy soldiers, which he always regarded as the most valuable gift.

His first visit to this country was at the age of seventeen, when, in 1861, the year of Patti's debut at Covent Garden, he played at the old St. James's Hall on May 22. Other visits followed and though he never mastered our language he soon had a great following here, among his closest friends being Sir Arthur Sullivan and the Duke of Edinburgh.

The latter he often played in private. In his native town he was hailed as a demigod. Once a year he appeared at Pampeluna, and the whole town kept holiday. The streets were decorated with flags, and he would give two or three concerts, but the proudest moment was when he stepped out on a balcony and played to the poor of the town such music as millionaires would pay fortunes to command.

About twelve years ago, on the occasion of his annual visit, he was carried shoulder high at the hotel, where the governor unveiled a commemorative tablet. Ten thousand pounds a year is said to have been the reward of his concert playing for the greater part of his career.

JUDGE TAFT ENTERTAINED BY ROOSEVELT AT WHITE HOUSE

After Breakfast Taft and Roosevelt Walked Arm in Arm to Church Where They Saw a Pair of Twins Baptized—U. S. Elections in Two Weeks.

(From our regular correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., October 22, 1908. Apparently the incident of most importance this week was the appearance of Judge Taft in this city and his entertainment at the White House. He came from Virginia and Tennessee, where he had been making speeches, and reached Washington about midnight, but did not leave the capital until this morning, when he went to the White House for breakfast.

After breakfast a conference was held with the President, Secretary Root and other members of the cabinet, and the President went arm in arm to All Souls Church, listened with due decorum to a sermon by the Reverend Pierce; saw the baptism of twins and separated at the church in the afternoon. He returned to the White House and the President going to the German Embassy nearby to pay his respects to the widow Baroness von Sternburg, ambassador, who died in Germany last summer after an operation for cancer. The appearance of the President at the church was the first time he had gone to church, and I do not recall that during his years of residence in Washington as Civil Service Commissioner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy and President of the United States. Taft has one to any other than his own, the Dutch Reformed church.

SUMMARY.

Americans in London steady about parity. London market generally quiet and featureless. London settlement begins tomorrow. Newspapers forecasts give election to Taft with New York election for governor close and uncertain. European politics quiet. Wine Central surplus after charges for year equal to 2.8-10 per cent on P.M. against 8.5-10 per cent last year.

The editor replied: "There is no danger of that."

Of the hay trade the Halifax Herald says: "The hay trade reported by Goodwin & Co. as having opened with weak prices. The rate for good Timothy grown in N. B. or N. S. is $11.00. The remainder of the searching party was engaged in grappling on the river and in other sections of the Cove. After being brought to land the body was conveyed to Chamberlain's undertaking establishment, where it was viewed by Coroner Roberts. TWELVE WERE BEFORE COURT

Five Arrested on Sheffield Street—Bad Boys on Long Wharf.

Of the twelve individuals who occupied the prisoners' bench at the police court this morning five had been apprehended on Sheffield street.

John Tapley, a youth who when taken into custody gave his age as nineteen, added two years this morning. A huge bottle of whiskey, termed an Imperial quart, was in his possession when arrested.

"Well," sarcastically commented the magistrate, "you are two years older in two days, but are you two years wiser. There are five daily newspapers in this city and after reading the names of the bums whose names appear in the police court news, you were impressed with the idea that you couldn't be a man unless your name figured in that column too. I advise you to secure a photograph of yourself and companions in that distinguished looking group and keep it as a souvenir." Tapley was remanded.

Andrew Green, the Rotherham farmer who created the scene in the market on Saturday, and who was released on deposit of $25 was fined $20 for assault and the remaining $5 was refunded.

Charles Bishop stated that he arrived from Moncton on Saturday afternoon with a thirt for intoxicants that the ice water on the train failed to quench. As the train steamed into the depot the impatient Bishop alighted and hurried to the nearest saloon, where he purchased three bottles of whiskey; a quart, pint and half pint, and proceeded to imbibe himself. He was fined $5 or thirty days and action may be taken against the liquor dealer if the owner does not recover his supply for violation of the liquor license act in selling more than a quart.

Joseph King, Robert Burns, William Lyman and Thomas Howes were fined $5 or 30 days. Howes was in court only one week ago for intoxication, resistance and breaking a mirror.

Fred Brown was fined $5 or 30 days and Fred Chapman was remanded.

Patrick Downey and Newton Wilbur, who were arrested yesterday on Sheffield street, were fined $5 or two months.

"Content is unnecessary," remarked his honor as he affixed his signature to their commitments.

George Watson, or Lavigne, was charged with being a member of a disorderly crowd of boys on Long Wharf last night. The lad is fifteen years old, and is on parole from the Reformatory. Recently he was arrested for confirmed truancy. During the year that he has been at liberty from the institution he has reported to the magistrate only eight times. In reply to a query from his honor the boy said there were twelve men in a year, which illustrated his ignorance of even the rudiments of routine justice. For several weeks he has been employed by a Great despite the fact that his parents promised to give him an education when he was liberated.

The police state that the collection of boys who frequent Long Wharf are steeped in vice and gambling is done openly. When informed that he was liable to three years in the Reformatory, the lad sobbed bitterly and while confined in a cell continued his weeping.

DETECTIVE KENNEDY MADE GOOD CAPTURE

Two Men Arrested for Robbing St. Croix Lumber Co's. Store.

(Halifax Chronicle.)

The St. Croix Lumber Company's store at Harriestville near Windsor was robbed on Sunday night last and a large quantity of goods and money stolen. Detective Kennedy was sent from Halifax to investigate the case, and he arrested two young men, Winburn Archibald and Fred Bushie, and charged them with the robbery. The case was a very difficult one to handle as the two men had got out of the way, and Kennedy had considerable difficulty in locating them. He also recovered the goods and the money.

The prisoners were taken to Windsor, and yesterday they were arraigned before Stipendiary Magistrate Curry and committed for trial. Chief of Police McDonald and Officer Conlin rendered Detective Kennedy valuable assistance.
