PARLIAMENT TO MEET NOV. 22

Expected Speech from Throne will be Adopted After a Week's Discussion.

DEBATE ON TARIFF

Senate Vacancies will be Filled
Before the House
Meets.

Ottawa, Nov. 2.—There was a meeting of the Cabinet this afternoon when it was decided to summon Parliament on November 22.
The proclamation will appear in tomorrow's Canadian Gazette calling Parliament for the despatch of business. It is expected that the Speech from the Throne will be adopted after a week's discussion so that there will be about three weeks left before the adjournment for the Christmas holidays to debate the tariff.

It is more than likely that an adjournment will be made about December 21st until the 7th or 8th of January. However, the idea of the Government is to make this adjournment very much shorter, but the opinion of Parliament is always accepted in such matters, and the majority of the members will favor a couple of weeks to let them spend Christmas and New-Year's days with their families.

There are four vacancies in the Senate which will require to be filled before the House meets. Two of these are in Nova Scotia and two in New Brunswick. These vacancies have been standing for some time. The last of the elections to the House of Commons will take place the day before Parliament meets with the exception of Nicolet, if the Postmaster General decides to sit for Gaspé instead of Nicolet. The only difference in the political complexion of the House is that the Conservatives have lost one seat in Ontario and the Government have an Independent Liberal instead, of a straight Liberal in the Province of Quebec. Of course, the results in St. Anne and St. Marys will probably make more changes. For instance there may be a Labor instead of a Liberal for St. Marys.

The outlook is for a long session. The tariff discussion will by no means monopolize the debates.
For instance there will be the Foster - Fowler - Bennett - Pope-Lefurey land deals and the London election.

REACHED THE FARTHEST NORTH.

Peary on His Return from Arctic Explorations—Expected in New York Soon.

New York, Nov. 2.—Commander
Robert E. Peary, of the United States Navy, has given to his native country the record of having penetrated "farthest north"—87 degrees and 6 minutes. News of the feat came tonight. The intrepid Arctic explorer failed to reach the North Pole as he had confidently hoped to do with his specially constructed vessel, the Roosevelt, but he penetrated near the pole
than the Duke of Abruzzi's expedition, which had held the Arctic record, 86 degrees, 34 minutes.

SCOTT MATTERS ARE SATISFACTORY

Cases Now Being Tried Before Judge Connors at Chatham.

FIVE CONVICTIONS.

More Informations to be laid This Week—Inspector Menzies
Work.

The Police Committee of the Town Council has had some difficulties to overcome in the enforcement of the Scott Act in Newcastle which have been surmounted.

For the past two months the Act has been practically a dead letter here, but last week three convictions were secured before Judge Connors, of Chatham, and yesterday two more admitted and paid fines.

Inspector Menzies has been given a free hand and we understand that more informations will be laid today. Friends of temperance are watching developments and it is expected that the numerous bars lately opened will come to an abrupt end.

TAKE ACTION IN SMALLPOX MATTER.

County Board of Health Promptly
Attend to its Duties
Here.

A special meeting of the County Board of Health was held Wednesday in Dr. Desmond's office. All the members of the Board were present, viz: Col. R. L. Maltby, chairman, Dr. F. J. Desmond and Dr. McKenzie.

The Board carefully considered the situation in regard to the small-pox outbreak reported from Kent County. It was decided to publish in the local papers a notice warning lumber operators and all other employers of labor to see that persons in their employ coming from the infected district have certificates of successful vaccination and that they have not been exposed to contagion.

The members of the Board will keep in touch with the situation, and if it should call for further preventive measures they will be promptly taken.

LOCOMOTIVE UPSET AT NEW SHOPS.

Track Gave Away Beneath—The Crew Escaped.

Locomotive No. 310, in charge of Driver Andrew Cook and Fireman
Wm. Atkinson, was overturned on a siding at the new shops this afternoon, but fortunately, no one was injured.

A few minutes before the accident occurred, the locomotive had been detached from the cars, and was running along at a very slow rate of speed. On one portion of the roadbed, just opposite the car shop, the temporary filling under the rails had been weakened by the continued rain, and when the weight of the engine came upon the tracks, the rails gave way.
The locomotive sank a short distance into the soft mud, and then sank over on her side, giving the crew sufficient time to make a hastened exit.

The throttle had been left open,
and when the engine sank into the mud, the wheels continued to revolve at quite a rate of speed, throwing large quantities of mud in all directions. It was some time before the crew could make their way back into the cab, and shut off the steam.

Locomotive No. 310 had been stationed permanently at the new shops, where a great deal of filling work is going on in connection with the new siding.—Transcript.

FIRE RAGING IN SPRINGHILL MINE

The Company Decides to Abandon
No. 3 and Seal it up.

MEANS A GREAT LOSS.

Springhill, N. S., Nov. 4.—The condition of the Springhill collieries has turned out to be more serious than was feared. The fire area in No. 3 mine is found to be so far advanced that the management and the government inspector of mines rendered safe, by sealing up the whole of the 2,600 foot level and all the working places of the 3,000 foot level.

The haulage plant, rails, tools, and everything in this part of the mine have been abandoned. It means also the loss of a very large body of coal. The company will replace all lost tools and they also announce their attention, within a few days, of placing every man at work in other sections of the mine.

It will take about two weeks to completely seal up the fire sections by building solid brick walls. In the meantime the isolation has been made as complete as possible by use of boards and canvas.

The areas that will be thus sealed and abandoned are very considerable. On the 2,600 foot level, a section half a mile long by 600 feet wide, is gone; on the 3,200 foot level a section three-quarters of a mile long by 400 wide, is sealed, and the two districts comprise very valuable producing portions of the colliery. The company will keep the men at work night and day in the remaining portions of the development of new sections, and in course of a comparatively short time the colliery will likely be producing as much coal as ever.
The total number of employees,
men and boys, at the Springhill collieries, is 1,700 and the pay-roll amounts to between $35,000 and $40,000 every fortnight. It may be years before the fire is extinguished by the sealing up process. No mine, where a fire broke twelve years ago, was sealed, and while the fire is diminishing, it is still in existence in that portion of the mine.

ONE LIFE LOST AT ST JOHN FIRE.

James W. King Suffocated Property Loss About $24,000.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 3.—The loss of one man's life and over $24,000 worth of property was the result of a fire which broke out about midnight Saturday in the rear of Myers' machine shop on Waterloo street, and totally destroyed the large wooden block which contained Ungar's Laundry of which Gillespie & Green are proprietors. The fire quickly spread to the building of Stanley
B. Lordly, furniture manufacturer, which was completely gutted. A number of buildings on Brussels street were slightly damaged by sparks.

About half past one fire was again discovered in the block owned by Mrs. Sweeney and occupied by several tenants. Whether the fire caught from Myers' Building or ad a different origin is a disputed point. But the feeling is general that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

The fire was mrgked by the tra-dic death of James W. King, trader for W. H. Thorne & Co., who was assisted by his brother,
J. King, in removing property from the Sweeney building. Death was due to suffocation and the body was found only after the fire was well under control and long after each man had taken place. The re had burned the body brown almost all over and one of the hands was charred. His brother was first to recognize him. Unbuttoning his coat he immediately recognized the dead man as his brother by the fob on his watch chain.
Many people are of the opinion that the two fires were the work of an incendiary.

Kenney was riving a team of horses when a tree fell across his right leg, breaking it below the knee. A doctor was not procured until Monday, and in the interval the unfortunate man suffered intensely. Tuesday Kenney started for his home in Bathurst, and is now in St. John at the home of his brother. The injured man managed with difficulty to make his way on crutches from the station to a cab, where he was driven to the home of his brother on North street.

ANOTHER GREAT DISCOVERY.

A well known gentleman in Black Bay, Ont. Mr. John Jowan, has discovered an absolute specific for Rheumatism, and writes: "I was affected with Sciatica and chronic Rheumatism which I contracted years ago. The disease had a great hold in my blood, and it was hard to make any impression on it. Reading of Ferrozone I was convinced of its merit and it certainly the best I have ever tried. Why it just drove away the Rheumatism. Even stiffened old sufferers will experience quick results. The reason is that, Ferrozone sets through the blood and thereby destroys the cause of the disease. Price 50c. per box at all dealers."

HON. MR. FIELDING HAS A BIG MAJORITY.

Shelburne, N. S., Oct.—With all the returns in from the Shelburne-Queens election Hon. W. S. Fielding has a majority of 1,181 over R. C. Weldon, compared with the 385 with which he had in the general election of 1904, when Mr. Fielding's opponent was J. J. Ritchie, of Halifax.

The conservatives did not expect so great a majority against them as this, but there was not a worker in the united counties on the opposition side, during the campaign, who did not know, though he would not publicly admit it, that the Minister of Finance would secure his election.

The only hope for Dr. Weldon's friend's was that they might keep the majority of the Minister of Finance somewhat near his figures for 1904. Mr. Fielding has 262 more votes than he secured in that contest and Weldon has 344 less votes than Ritchie received.

TRRIBLE TALE OF SUFFERING AT SEA.

Five Men on a Raft Were Facing Death when Rescue came—One of their Number Driven mad Jumped into the Sea.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 2.—Counting the minutes which seemed to them to be but few, interviewing between them and death, bruised, bleeding, and hungry and athirst five men adrift on a bit of wreckage off the Florida coast saw one of their companions whose sufferings had driven him mad, throw himself into the sea to death, and not long afterwards a ship saved their lives.

The five survivors were landed here to-day by the British steamer Heatpool, Captain John Grieves which arrived to-day for bunker coal and on route from New Orleans to Rotterdam. The survivors are Frank Foremar, Marianna, Fla; Gus Johnson, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Ben Clarke, of Somerville, Mass.; Abner Bell, of Kinsimie, Fla.; and John Campbell, of Philadelphia.

They with about 145 others were constructing a concrete viaduct for the Florida East Coast Railway, through the Florida Keys and were aboard houseboat No. 4, which lay anchored off on the night of Oct. 17. The great hurricane which swept the coast struck the houseboat about one o'clock on the morning of Oct. 18 and Number 4 broke adrift. The houseboat soon afterwards foundered and all of the 150 aboard were thrown into the sea. The houseboat was dashed to pieces by the waves. Many of the men were killed by the heavy timbers. Six men lashed together two timbers, one ten by twenty inches in thickness, and the other 6 by 14 inches and both 20 feet long, and lived on this raft until one of the party became mad from suffering and injury and threw himself into the sea.

On the morning of Oct. 19, Captain Grieves, standing upon the bridge of his ship, heard the cries for help and discovered the raft. He launched a life boat and soon brought the men aboard where they were given light food and put to bed.

The survivors are being cared for at the Norfolk City Mission, until the company for which they worked or their relatives can be heard from.

The head of the department cowered at the peddler who had come in to make a small purchase. He exclaimed: "Whatever have you been doing to yourself? I hardly knew you. You must have taken a bath?" The peddler looked frightened and No. it wasn't me. Is there von tampered in a confused manner: "issing?"

Death From Heart Disease.

A Case of Neglecting a Weak Heart and Tired Nerves.

If your heart flutters, be careful. A attack is liable to come on at any time. Excitement, over-exertion or emotion may cause it. Blood rushes to the head, if palpitation and short breath are noticeable, there's cause for alarm.

If you want a good honest remedy try Ferrozone. We recommend Ferrozone because we know it's just right for heart trouble. It cured A. F. Beattie, who lives at Allen Hotel, Bay City, Mich. See if your symptoms resembles these: SYMPTOM OF WEAK HEART.

Nervousness, Palpitation, Trembling, Dizziness, Sini g Feeling, Heart Pains, Short Breath, Weakness.

Mr. Beattie says: "I was weak and miserable. "I was subject to heart palpitation and dizziness."

"As I grew worse I began to have trembling and sinking sensations. "Ferrozone strengthened my eart, gave vigor to my nerves, oon made me well. It's a great ebuilder."

By strengthening the muscles of he heart, giving proper circulation and causing a general rebuilding of the whole system, Ferrozone is bound to do great work in heart trouble: try it, 50c. per box, or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

The Pandora Thermometer

The thermometer on the Pandora range oven means precisely in accuracy to the cook what the square and compass mean to the draftsman. Without the square and compass the draftsman would have to work entirely by guess, just as you do without an accurate and reliable thermometer on your oven.

The Pandora thermometer reduces cooking to an exact science. You know precisely how much heat you have and what it will do in a given time. It is one of the small things which makes the Pandora so much different and better than common ranges.

HARCOURT.

Harcourt, Nov. 5.—A little stranger arrived last week in the home of William and Florence Beers.

On the 21st a large number of young ladies and gentlemen met at the Methodist Parsonage for an old time Hallowe'en party, spending a very enjoyable evening.

Miss Marion Dunn entertained her youthful friends on Hallowe'en at her home.

Mr. Henry Fordred, who has returned, and is now visiting Harcourt, where Mrs. Fordred has been out West for some time, has lately resided.

Mrs. McMurray of Newcastle has since the 2nd been visiting Mrs. James Carter.

Mrs. Robert Saulnier returned on the 3rd from a week's visit to Rogersville. Just previously she spent a week in Moncton.

Small-Pox in Kent A SERIOUS MATTER

Dr. Bosford Shows Original Report Was not Exaggerated.

CORROBORATED BY PRIEST

Moncton, Nov. 2.—Dr. R. L. Bosford, who was first to visit the small-pox infected district in Kent county, and who made a report to the Moncton Board of Health about the alarming prevalence of the disease, was this morning shown the statement by Dr. Fisher, secretary of the Provincial Health Board, who claims the situation was exaggerated.

Dr. Bosford, basing his opinion on personal observation, states that there has been no exaggeration, and in proof produced the names of a number of families who are afflicted—two families each having three cases, another with one and another with seven.

Besides these, five houses in the district were under quarantine. At St. Norbert settlement, about seventeen miles from St. Anthony, even worse conditions exist. In one large family, that of Edward Cormier, thirteen cases exist, a whole family being stricken with the epidemic.

Another entire family in which there are seven members, is also stricken, that of Peter Casey. In the homes of Alfred Bouche and Wm. Thibault, there are two and three cases respectively, and farther away in the same district there are ten homes all containing one or more cases, but Dr. Bosford did not have the time which a house to house examination would require.

Father Legere, of St. Anthony, corroborates Dr. Bosford's report, and it is thought that Secretary Fisher did not visit all of the district infected.

ENCOURAGE INDUSTRIES.

Newcastle, one of the best located towns in the Maritime provinces, endowed by nature with almost everything to make it great and prosperous, is to-day very little larger or more prosperous than it was ten years ago.

True the town is making some progress but not at a pace which should satisfy its citizens. While real estate values, as every other commodity, except newspapers and advertising space, is advancing in price, yet the industrial development of the town is practically at a stand still.

A few years ago the Newcastle Board of Trade took a deep interest in the town's welfare and largely through its work the Anderson Furniture Co. was induced to locate here and while there are those who freely criticize the granting of the loan to this company, yet we expect to see this industry expand into a large manufacturing establishment before many years.

What we want is more industries and we would suggest that a meeting of the Board of Trade be called at an early date and the subject taken up energetically.

This is the day throughout all Canada of great manufacturing expansion, and we in Newcastle should not sit calmly by while other towns with more enterprise and spirit get all the good things.

We heartily commend the action of the Leader in its presentation of this matter and will do all in our power to further the good work.

Let all the citizens awake and do something.

Sir Wilfred Laurier made some interesting points in his address a few days ago to the "Women's Historical Society" of Ottawa. It suited him better, apparently, to have women take an interest in history than to have them taking a hand in politics, and he appropriately drew attention to the fact that the resting place of George Washington is cared for by a committee of ladies who keep it in perfect order and repair. It assuredly could not be entrusted to better hands, for a committee of men would be almost certain to neglect it. Calling Washington the "Father of his country" would not keep his tomb in good preservation without sympathetic and incessant vigilance.

The Women's Historical Society of Toronto has done much to awaken public interest in historic spots, of which we have none too many in this country. Under Lord Curzon's regime the notorious "Black Hole" in Calcutta was, at his instance, located with the utmost accuracy and monumented with the utmost care. As the statue itself is no longer in existence, all that could be done was to ascertain precisely where it had stood, and indicate its location by means of several tablets affixed to different buildings in the immediate neighborhood. Women who take an active and effective part in such work as this are rendering a service to society of higher value than they themselves realize. A community that takes no interest in its own history is likely to find its nemesis in the narrowing of its own outlook.

The most historically interesting spot within the limits of Toronto is the "Old Fort," and our historical and pioneer societies can undertake no more commendable work than seeing to its preservation and working for its restoration. It has been mutilated in the true spirit of vandalism, but not to such an extent as to seriously curtail its dimensions or to permanently prevent its re-enlargement to its original area and form. There is only one other fort in this Province that appeals as strongly to the historic sense and sympathy of the people—Fort George, on the Niagara River, near its mouth. They are contemporaneous, each having been the scene of stirring military incidents in the war of 1812-15. Both should be kept as much as possible intact, and kept as nearly as practicable in their primitive condition.—Ex.

WAS IDENTIFIED BY FINGER PRINTS

Escaped British Murderer Found in Kansas Act Aroused Suspicion.

Washington, Nov. 3.—A curious result of the recent adoption by the United States army of the system of identification by finger prints has just been reported to the War Department, in the discovery, in the person of a soldier at Fort Leavenworth, of a British murderer for whom the Scotland Yard authorities have long been looking. The man was a prisoner in the United States penitentiary, serving a five year sentence for a military crime. In prison he was well behaved and liked, but when the warden following the general order to take the finger print records of all the soldiers, attempted to secure an impression of this man's digits he met with violent resistance, and was knocked down and roughly handled. Suspecting that this resistance was based upon the man's previous knowledge of the use to which these finger prints might be put, and that his record was bad, the warden sent copies of the prints to the police authorities in a number of cities. Within a comparatively short time Scotland Yard reported that the man had committed an atrocious murder in Malta; that he had been sentenced to life imprisonment, and had escaped to America.

CARLETON COUNTY MAN DIED FROM EXPOSURE

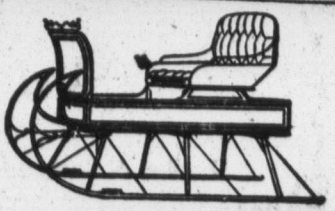

Woodstock N. B. Nov. 5.—On Wednesday John Burton, one of the prosperous and well known residents of Kirkland, went into the woods near his place on a hunting expedition. His two boys accompanied him, but he sent them home. Not hearing from him the following day, it was surmised that he went to a neighboring farm house. Later information proved he was not there and a general search was made on Saturday which resulted in the finding of his body in the woods that afternoon. It is supposed he lost his way and death was caused by exposure. He was 55 years of age. The funeral took place in Kirkland yesterday.

"Priscilla," said the old gentleman, sternly, "be more careful." Why father, replied Priscilla in surprise, "there is no great harm in dropping a stitch in your stocking, is there?"

Yes my daughter. Surely you would not have it go on about that your staid old sire wore drop stitch stockings like the dudes of two hundred years from now?" And Priscilla, shocked at the very thought, began to unravel the whole stocking.

DRIVEN ASHORE NEAR RICHIBUCTO.

Norwegian Barque Adeona, Lumber laden, a Total Wreck at Rexton.

Rexton, N. B., Nov. 5.—The northeast gale which commenced here last Wednesday was the heaviest for several years. Rain fell incessantly from Wednesday evening till Saturday evening. Fences were blown down in many places and telegraph and telephone wires were put out of business. Communication over these lines has only now been resumed.

Schooner Alexander, Capt. Herbert, outward bound, lumber laden, lost both anchors and dragged ashore on the south flats inside the beaches. She is not much damaged and can probably be floated by discharging cargo.

Norwegian barque Adeona, which was completing her cargo outside the bar, dragged her anchors on Thursday night and went ashore off the reefs, where she now lies a total wreck. The crew have not yet been taken off, although pilots and fishermen have made repeated efforts to board the wrecked vessel. The weather is extremely cold and unless assistance can soon be rendered the suffering seamen they must die from cold and exposure. The Adeona is a vessel of six hundred tons and carries a crew of twelve men.

Rexton, N. B., Nov. 5.—The wind is still blowing a gale from the northeast. A boat was seen today to leave the wreck containing seven of the crew. They started for the beach, a distance of about a mile, but had not gone far when the boat capsized, throwing the poor fellows into the sea. All were drowned.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT OF ATLANTIC CITY DISASTER.

Letter from a Child Addressed to "Mamma, Heaven."

New York, Nov. 3.—A World special from Atlantic City says: "A letter addressed to 'Mamma, Heaven,' came to Atlantic City in the mail bag from Philadelphia last night. It contained a childish scrawl. The message: 'Dear Mamma, please come and see your boys and bring papa, too, we pray for you.' (Signed) JOSIE GEORGIE. No clue is given to the identity of the childish writer and the letter will be forwarded to Washington."

Many friends here heard with regret of the death of Mr. Frank B. Street the popular traveller, which took place at Fredericton on Saturday. Mr. Street was well known among the business men here and was calling on the trade of the Miramichi last Wednesday.

The usual fleet of Joe boats is arriving, but the number grows less each year. Years ago, before the C. and G. T. Railway was built, the public ship would be filled at this season of the year with boats, laden with fish and farm produce.

MASS MEETING WELL ATTENDED.

Opera House Comically Filled to Hear Rev. C. W. Hamilton Speak.

The Newcastle Opera House was well filled Sunday afternoon with spectators to listen to an address on "Temperance and Moral Reform," by Rev. C. W. Hamilton.

Mr. T. A. Clarke acted as chairman and after a song service introduced the speaker in a few words. Rev. Mr. Hamilton then delivered an eloquent address, bringing out many strong points. He strongly emphasized the necessity of organization and it is hoped his remarks will take root and that many citizens who have not joined the various temperance organizations will do so at once. He made a special appeal on behalf of the Sons of Temperance.

The song service was greatly appreciated besides a number of hymns, a quartette composed of Mrs. J. W. Miller, Mrs. McNutt, Messrs. McNutt and A. E. Shaw rendered two selections very acceptably.

BAD FIRE AT GRAND FALLS.

Damage About $30,000—Beautiful Catholic Church Destroyed.

Grand Falls, Nov. 5.—The most disastrous fire in the history of this place occurred today and entailed a loss of $30,000 in a few hours. At 10.30 A. M. fire caught from a new stove being placed in an upper room of Victoria Restaurant. The hole cut for the pipe was not properly protected by tin.

The town was without any fire protection of any kind and all efforts had been made to save adjoining buildings. Men on the post office building only a few feet distant worked like beavers and succeeded in saving their building. The McCormick building in which the Victoria restaurant was completely destroyed. Loss $2,500 uninsured. Mrs. McCormick who lost all her clothing and a sum of money was carried out of the house in an unconscious condition. The fire spread to the McMillan building in the south and it and two large barns in the rear were soon consumed. Loss $2,000, uninsured.

Burning embers were carried by the wind into the belfry of the beautiful Catholic church which cost $60,000. In a short time the whole building was a flaming mass. Women, and even strong men wept while the church was burning.

The C. M. B. A. Hall adjoining the church also caught fire and in a short time the Hall and magnificent church were leveled to the ground. Total insurance on the church only amounts to $5,000.

Although the church was almost surrounded by buildings, some of them being mere fire traps, all escaped destruction. The altars, statues, stations of the cross, organ, pulpit and pews were saved from the church and the C. M. B. A. saved their organ and library. Immediate steps will be taken to rebuild the church on a larger scale.

MR. EMERSON SPEAKS ON I. C. R.

He Declares it to be the Greatest Asset Canada Ever had, and says the Day of Deficits has Passed.

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—Hon. Mr. Emerson, Minister of Railways, was the guest of the Canadian Club at luncheon Saturday and spoke on the aims and objects and results of the Intercolonial Railway. At one time he had intended to speak on government ownership, but anything he would say on that subject would necessarily be of an academic character and on the other hand the I. C. R. was the greatest public work that Canada possessed.

The minister briefly traced the history of the Intercolonial which had its origin as far back as 1831. Mr. Emerson contended that the I. C. R. was the greatest benefactor that Canada ever had. It bound the provinces together, in addition to serving the country's trade within her own boundaries. The benefits of the road could not be measured in dollars and cents. "But the time had arrived," said the Minister, "when public sentiment demanded that the I. C. R. should pay its way. To meet that demand has been my task and I think I can say in all modesty that the department of railways has been partially successful in meeting the demand. Last year there was a surplus and the day of deficits on the I. C. G. has passed."

Mr. Emerson went on to say that the only obstacles were from boards of trade and municipal councils. The I. C. R. had fulfilled its mission and it was the greatest asset that Canada had and was deserving of support.

The Adventurers

BY E. R. MARRIOTT WATSON
COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"By this time, as you may guess, I was in a deuce of a huff, and off I strode into the wood, whistling to show my indifference. It was silly, no doubt, but I did not want a pack of skunks like that to imagine I was worrying about them. Just as I had got a dozen yards or so I heard some one come into the forest after me, and, turning, caught sight of a man named Demetrios. 'What are you after?' thought I. I kept straight ahead, for the wood was very thick there, and there was no one about. I only wanted to get away for a spell and consider the position. But after a bit I pulled up and took a seat on a patch of heather where the ground was more open. The morning sky shone on the bushes and worked into the corners of the forest, and as I sat there in a meditative way I heard sounds coming nearer, and presently Demetrios poked his head out of a bit of shrubbery and glanced at me. Immediately after some one approached upon the other side, and I caught a glimpse of another of the gang poking his ugly pike from behind a tree, and then, again, I found a third to the left. This set me up right awake, and I asked myself what it meant. You can't wonder if I could not make it out. Could you have tumbled to it? Well, I didn't, not just then. But, for all that, it made me angry. I rose and ran at Demetrios with the express idea of kicking him; but, retreating, he slipped out a knife and snarled at me like an angry dog, and at the same time his fellows drew up to support him. I had come out without a weapon, and I was at a disadvantage, but by this time it seemed to me to be growing serious, and so I made off back toward the cave. The beggars followed me.

"When I got near the cave—there is a track that runs hard by, winding somewhere over to the western valleys, but unfrequented—I will take a walk here," I said to myself, and accordingly I turned off, but at that motion of mine there was a sort of scrambling among the undergrowth and three of the cut-throats barred my path, each showing an ugly knife. 'Very well,' thought I, 'I don't know yet what you're up to, but I'll warrant I'll find out, and meanwhile I'll see that I'm on a little better footing in the matter or arms.' I got back to the cavern, where the two remaining scoundrels sat tossing coins, and I went in. My revolver had been removed, and there was not so much as even a pocket-knife left to me.

"You will conceive now that I began to be scared. What was the issue of all this? I moved down toward the slope, and two beasts got in my way and grinned at me. I turned back and tried another route, but there I was confronted by two more. I tell you that it dawned on me then that it was plain black murder they meant!"

Sercombe paused again and refreshed himself, casting a glance at us in which I thought I detected a look of fear renewed from his experiences.

"Perhaps you say," he went on in a slow voice, "that I might have cut and run for it. That thought occurred to me, but I put it off. I thought this was a mistake on their part which I could explain. Anyhow, I thought, they're taking no active proceedings. They want to pen me up, that's all, and the morning was wearing on, and, to say the truth, I thought I'd argue it out and have some food, but I soon found that, for any arguments I had, I might as well have talked to the wind. To begin with, only two of them understood more than a sailor's English, and of these Stamboules merely grinned by way of reply, while the other paid no heed. What Hood had said to them I don't know. He had pretty well alienated them from me before this—and they were only the scum of the earth to begin with—but up to now they had proved pacific. I guess he poured some poison into their ears. That dirty Levantine breed is superstitious. Perhaps I was supposed to have the evil eye, but more probably it was filthy greed that was at the bottom of it. Anyhow, I could not come to terms with them, and so I sat in my place, with my back against a ledge of rock, and whistled. 'All right,' I said, 'I'll dine on it.'

"It may have been an hour or two later when they prepared a meal for themselves. Up to this it hadn't occurred to me to wonder where my food was coming from. But just as this notion came on me I saw Stamboules, who was the worst of the lot, approaching with a dish in his hand.

"Come; this looks better," said I. 'They're only playing it down on me after all.'

"He came to a halt a yard away and, grinning all over his face, offered me the dish. I was pretty hungry by this time, but there was that in his grin which made me sit up. I fixed my eyes on him.

"You're a nice sort of scoundrel!" I said. For answer he grinned wider than ever out of his black mug and, slowly drawing a paper from his pocket, emptied a yellow sort of powder deliberately over the dish.

"I believe I turned white; at least I know I felt it. That notion had never entered my mind. But the vermin set down the dish before me and returned were safe enough perched in that high hollow. But I started out. I ran down and gained the track. Then of a sudden I thought they could catch me in the open track, and I jumped off into the forest.

"They were after me—oh, yes, smart enough, the lot of them, I think—but I sped through the growth like a tough. I was a hare, I tell you. I was upon a cinder track; that was how I felt. I heard nothing and saw little, but presently something clutched me, and on the instant I turned. There was nothing could stop me now. I got him and his neck in my hands, and I pulled and squeezed. I should have knuckled the soul and the life out of him, but I had no weapon. He raised his hand. I saw his knife. It got me somewhere.

Sercombe raised his coat, and a black stain showed on his shirt.

"But I held on, and I choked harder. Then I heard other voices. I think I was superstitious just then. It ran over me suddenly that the game was up. 'All right, knife me,' I thought, and the black brute did. It struck my shoulder blade, and I dropped my hands off him and lay still."

He ceased. We drew our breaths deeply.

"I knew I was done," he said. "I wanted no better. I lay quiet. Then I was conscious that he was off me and stood there looking down."

"Presently there were some feet close by my head, and through my half open eyes I saw there was another of 'em, and he was looking down. I didn't care, but I must have gone off about that time, for when I looked up again there was no one there, and I felt stiff and faint and sick in my stomach."

He ceased and fell back in his chair, while a silence held us for some seconds. Then Sheppard rose and, a brightness shining in his eyes, put out his hand in his impulsive way. "Captain," said he, "you've blotted out a good many points by this story, and I don't hesitate to say so on my own behalf."

Sercombe accepted his hand and laughed. "The trouble is, Mr. Sheppard," said he, "that I had to strike the bargain not with you, but with Mr. Greatorex. I wish I'd known your feelings before."

"Are you all right?" I asked. "What about this wound?"

He rose from his seat. "I pay no heed to trifles when I'm on my feet," he declared. "You must remember that it was mainly exhaustion that did for me, and, thanks to the wine and the good meal and the brandy, I'm another man. I'm not cat's meat yet, and I fancy I'll see other people out before I am," he ended significantly.

"Very well," said I. "And now your plans?"

He looked at the clock. "Till half time, too," he said. "I don't know, but the time is fixed, but what hour I didn't hear. I guess about dark. The place I can find with your aid. Isn't there a stream that runs south of these hills into the Ray?"

"There is the stream behind us," I answered. "I believe, that wanders out below the town, but I've never traced it."

"That will be it—a mile this side of the river itself. We can follow the course, and the sooner the better. Are we ready?"

"Ready this moment," I answered, looking at Sheppard and Montgomery, who nodded.

"Then let us get away."

We turned to leave the room, when I suddenly recalled what we had all forgotten in the excitement of the narative and this precipitate plan of campaign.

"Good heavens! What about the police? They will be watching for you."

Sercombe frowned. "This is nasty," he said, sitting down again. "You are right. Will they take me?"

"They have a warrant," I replied. "Yes, yes; true. Well, we must dodge them. I reckon the castle can do that if the castle can stand a siege," he said, smiling.

As we were considering, Sercombe still with his smile upon his face and the rest of us about the room, Sheppard poked upon the back of a chair, there came a knock at the door. We all started, but, recollecting that it could be no more than Mrs. Main, I answered to the rap. Mrs. Main it was, but, after all, there was some reason in our start of uneasiness.

"Mr. Jones, sir, wishes to see you," said she.

A look passed round the assembly. "It seems that we are anticipated," remarked Sercombe pleasantly.

"Did he ask who was here?" I inquired.

"No, sir; he said he would like to see you."

"Very well," I answered slowly; "show him into the library." And when Mrs. Main was gone I said: "This brings the matter to a point. Jones is here after you, captain. His men were watching."

"Of course," put in Sheppard, "there's the outlet from the treasure chamber."

"Now we're getting at it," said Sercombe easily.

"And the only path to that is by way of the gunroom, and as like as not Jones' men are without," I retorted.

"There's my room with the secret staircase," interrupted Montgomery. We looked at him. "By Jove!" said Sheppard.

"You're right," I said.

With that I went off to visit Jones, whom I found in a most portentous mood and with his infernal notebook to hand.

Everybody Agrees

that COD LIVER OIL and IRON are beyond question the greatest medicines known. Then why does not everybody take Cod Liver Oil and Iron? Simply because most people cannot take the Oil and few can digest the Iron in any ordinary form. These difficulties have been entirely removed by the introduction of FERROL, in which the Iron is scientifically combined with the Oil, rendering the Oil palatable and the Iron digestible. While is manufactured from the best quality of Cod Liver Oil (the whole of the Oil) and is richer in oil than any other emulsion, and while it contains just the right quantity of the best form of Iron and Phosphorus, it is so scientifically prepared that not one person in a thousand finds any trouble in taking it, and infants digest it without difficulty. Moreover the well-established value of the Oil and Iron is immensely enhanced by the process of manufacture, and as the formula is freely exposed it is not to be wondered at that physicians everywhere have fully endorsed FERROL, and used it largely in their practice. FERROL is invaluable for the treatment of any kind of Lung or Bronchial troubles, while for wasting diseases it has no equal, and do and reaped the great gains just after dark was fallen. As we passed through I thought I perceived the black shadow of a man hovering among the bushes near by, and I put him down as Jones.

At the foot of the gorge we turned, and, following the road to the right for a quarter of a mile, dipped quickly with the bend of the brook eastward and for the border of the farther country. The first part of the way took us through the outlying stretches of the forest, but presently the woods hugged the margins upon either side, and behind was open country, broken into fields and pastures, with here and there the shining windows of a farmhouse or cottage. About this point it occurred to Sheppard that we were being followed.

"I saw a man cross from that last stile," he declared, "and I'll swear I heard a rustling in the bushes."

"Very well," said I. "If Jones is after us Jones will have a long tramp, and the sooner we dispatch him on it the better."

"What will you do?" he asked.

"Sit tight," said I, "and keep mum. Here's an excellent corner for silent meditation," and I dropped into a black patch of bracken, whither he followed me.

We had been following a footpath which wound through the copse close to the stream, and a little distance to the left we sank into our hiding place and waited. Some five minutes after the footsteps of a man sounded softly behind us, and he came into the plane of sight. Dark as it was I made him out for one of Jones' men, and my opinion was confirmed by the stealthy manner in which he proceeded.

"We'll let him pass," I whispered, "and then follow him. Rustic police are no match to us."

Five minutes later we emerged, and resumed our journey, diligently opening our ears to the sounds of the night, but nothing was audible to alarm us, and we reached at last a spot where the path ran down to the water's edge between thick trees. Opposite, the dark bulk of a little jetty was just discernible and beyond that the lights of a house.

"This is the place," said Sheppard. "But I see no sign of the others. Yet they must have got here before us."

"Let us wait," I suggested, and meanwhile we are better in hiding."

We concealed ourselves among the trees and passed ten minutes in some anxiety. "Was it possible," I asked myself, "that Montgomery and Sercombe had already encountered Hood and his scoundrels with a tragic result? Or, again, had Jones happened upon them and taken Sercombe? Perhaps even the captain had been dealing treacherously with us all through."

NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE PERILS IN THE FAR NORTH.

A Record of Splendid Endurance by a Northwest Mounted Policeman—Almost Without Food and Lived on Frozen Meat.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The qualities of the men who compose the Royal Northwest Mounted Police have often been demonstrated, but rarely have fidelity, devotion to duty, fearlessness, unselfishness, and indomitable determination been manifested in greater degree than was displayed last winter in a journey made by Constable Seller, amounting in all to about 995 miles. The trip was made in company of Interpreter Ford and an Eskimo named Tupealok. It was undertaken for the purpose of locating the whereabouts of a Scottish ship, the Ernest William, and ascertaining her liability to the customs duty for supplies imported. Constable Seller probably receives pay to the amount of about a dollar and a half a day, but, without a murmur, he entered upon and successfully accomplished a journey attended by great hardships, and which many an explorer would have been proud of relating. The recital of Seller's trip is contained in a diary, which has just been received at the Mounted Police Department. Nothing more modest or unaffected than his account of the long journey and the difficulties met with and surmounted could be imagined.

Constable Seller, with his two companions and a dog team of ten, left Fuller-on, on the west coast of Hudson's Bay, on February 21st last. They returned on April 19th, having been exposed for two months to the rigors of an Arctic winter. The only casualty was a frost-bitten leg of one dog that was left behind at Lyon's Inlet. On the way to their destination and back intensely cold weather was encountered, and many blizzards. At night snow houses would be built for shelter, called by Eskimos "igloos." Herds of deer were seen, and several were shot for food. For a couple of days, however, both men and dogs went on short rations. Had it not been for falling in with a party of natives they would at one time have been in desperate straits. For a great part of the journey the FOOD HAD TO BE EATEN FROZEN, because the alcohol and wood gave out.

Here are a few extracts which show the nature of the hardships encountered on the journey: "We have only fifty pounds of deer meat, two pounds of pemmican, and six pounds of boiled meat for ourselves and ten dogs, so we must find natives. Very cold day. I had both my feet badly frozen. My footgear is in a very bad state—wet and worn out. We were compelled to break up some barrels to cook food, as we had been subsisting on frozen meat for the last three days.

"Terrible snowstorm. Impossible to go out looking for natives. Our dogs are getting hungry, as they have had nothing for three days. We cannot possibly give them anything out of what small supply we have for ourselves. My feet are very sore, the result of frost burns."

"Bad storm, but not nearly so bad as yesterday. I sent Ford and Tupealok out to look for natives. They returned at 5 p. m., bringing us information that cheerer us quite a little. The ship they learned was at 'Melachuseetuck.' THE PLACE WHERE GHOSTS CHASE WOMEN.

They brought some meat for the dogs, and said the natives, who belonged to the Nitaluk tribe would come in the morning with as much meat as they could spare."

"Still storming. Eaten up all our meat for breakfast. About noon the natives came in, bringing about 400 pound of meat, which I purchased from them. It was nearly all seal meat. We found it rather high all by itself, but hunger is a great sauce."

In due course the party reached the vessel for which they were searching, and received a hearty Scottish welcome from his commander, Captain Murray, who fitted them out with stores for the return journey.

Here is the last item in Constable Seller's diary
"April 19th. Broke camp at sunrise (about 4 a. m.) and made the detachment about 2:30 p. m. Some few miles from barracks I noticed the flag at half-mast, which told me plainly that what I feared had come to pass. On arrival my thoughts were confirmed on hearing that Staff-Sergeant Hayne had passed away the night before. We were just in time to attend the funeral.

The report of Constable Seller contains much valuable information about the country traversed and the natives met with. He mentions a rumor current among the natives that in the winter of 1905 a white man belonging to a ship wintering in the Arctic was killed by the Nitaluk tribe. The white men retaliated by killing three Eskimos and all their dogs. Contrary may have happened in connection with the Norwegian sloop stable Seller believes some such Gjoba.

Mrs. A. "You appear pleased, my dear?"
Mrs. Z. "Indeed I am. You know while I was in the country George went fishing and the neighbors said that he came home with a beautiful 'skate.'"
Mrs. A. "And is that why you are so pleased?"
Mrs. Z. "Certainly, my dear. I looked in the encyclopedia and found out that a 'skate' is a large fish."

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Two Grateful Letters from Women Who Avoided Serious Operations.—Many Women Suffering from Like Conditions Will Be Interested.

Margaret Morkley

When a physician tells a woman, suffering from female trouble, that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart. As one woman expressed it, when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for just such operations! It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief, this medicine is certain to help.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have escaped serious operations.

Mrs. Robert Glenn of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need my recommendation, but I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in its favor. I have suffered unduly for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation, but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound, and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same. I pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes.

Mrs. Margaret Morkley of 2034 Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness, severe shooting pains through the pelvic region, cramps, bearing down pains, and an irritable disposition compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said that I had a serious female trouble and advised an operation as my only hope. To this I strongly objected—and I decided as a last resort to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

To my surprise the ulceration healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared, and I am once more strong, vigorous and well, and I cannot express my thanks for what it has done for me."

Serious female troubles are steadily on the increase among women—and before submitting to an operation every woman should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been curing the worst forms of female complaints, all functional troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling of the uterus, displacement, irregularities, indigestion and nervous prostration. Any woman who could read the many grateful letters on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office would be convinced of the efficiency of her advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

PHILADELPHIANS RISK LIVES IN MOOSE HUNT

Society Young Men Have Experience in New Brunswick.

Seasoned hunters that they are, and accustomed to roughing it in many rough places; James L. Pequignot and Philip A. Castner, two young men of the Philadelphia smart set, have just returned from "the" adventure of their lives—a moose and caribou hunting expedition into the wilds of New Brunswick.

Accompanied by one guide, they penetrated 100 miles into a trackless wilderness, where even the guide had never been before. They established headquarters near the source of the Miramichi River, where the country is dotted with small lakes, and where it is usually cold, even in the middle of summer.

"Moose" are the wariest game in the world, with the possible exception of the Rocky Mountain sheep, said Mr. Pequignot, "and we dared not light fires. As a consequence, sleeping on the ground, as we did, we suffered a good deal from cold. There were some terrific gales, which uprooted great trees, and several times we had hail and snow."

"We got many moose, and then started for the home of the caribou making for the headwaters of the North Pole River. Never having explored that region, the guide had to trust entirely to the compass and to his woodcraft. We crossed the moss-covered barrens described by hunters who had been there three years ago.

Although caribou were not plentiful, neither hunter came away empty handed, and a buck that

The North Shore Conservatives who depend for their news upon The Chatham World are rejoicing over a Conservative victory in North Bruce. Said the World on Wednesday: "The Laurier government suffered still another defeat on Tuesday, the Conservative candidate being elected in North Bruce. The Conservatives carried it at the general election by a small majority." Considering that North Bruce went Liberal on Tuesday for the first time in twenty-four years and gave the Liberal candidate the largest majority ever recorded by any party in that constituency, it seems to be up to the World to do some explaining.
