law.

Coun. McCormack said that he would go for the resolution heart and hand. He did not think it was right that men should be allowed to vote for members of parliament with taxes unpaid, while they were not allowed to vote at parish elections without first paying their taxes.

Coun. Howe thought a committee should be appointed to look after this affair. The excuse hitherto given by the legislature was that other counties had not asked for a similar law. It was the wish of nearly everyone throughout the county that such a law lar law. It was the wish of nearly everyone throughout the county that such a law should prevail. He saw no reason why York could not have such a law whether other counties had it or not.

Coun. Sloat said he agreed with the principle of the resolution, but thought it ought to be made more general. He thought that this council ought to confer with the other councils throughout the Province and unitedly make the demand for such a law.
Resolution, with amendments suggested by Coun. Sloat, carried.

Coun. Scott, seconded by Coun. Sloat, moved and it was noved and it was Resolved, That the date for holding the election of councillors for the County of ork be changed from the Third Tuesday of betober to the First Tuesday of the same month. Carried.

Coun. Howeasked the Secretary Treasure if there was any reason why the anaus meeting of the council could not be held o the first Tuesday of January.

The Secretary Treasurer said there was no particular reason, but owing to the change of the fiscal year of the Provincial Legislature he thought it would not be advisable to hold it earlier than the first of change could be made.

Coun. Burtt, seconded by Coun. McNally, moved and it was Resolved, That the committee on public buildings be empowered to erect weigh scales in connection with the County Court House, and further Resolved, That the scales be free.

Coun. Nason thought that it would incur an extra expense to the county. He was opposed to the resolution. Coun. Burtt said that a man was employed to take charge of the Court House, and it could be attended to by him with very little extra expense.

Moved by Coun. Cliff, seconded by Coun.

A committee was read from Mr. W H Beckwith asking for one of the rooms in the county building for the purpose of holding a meeting to discuss the question of liquor laws.

On motion of Coun Goodspeed the Sheriff's room was placed at their disposal. A communication was read from Mr. Harry Beckwith, foreman of the Grand Jury of the Circuit Court now in session, stating that they had visited the jail, and white everything could be said in praise of the keeper, there were many repairs and improve-ments needed in and about the jail. It was almost impossible to keep the building clean. almost impossible to keep the building clean, the walls and ceilings were in such a di-lapidated condition. Coun. Jewett, from the committee appointed to investigate public accounts, reported that the Secretary Treasurer and Auditor receive $50 each tor extra service during the pasts of a few trifling expenses entailed by the Secretary Treasurer in removing safe, etc., tor which there were no rouchers.

The balance to the credit of the Connty on March 30th, 1885, was $5,070.12.

The committee had also laid before them a statement made by the Secretary Treasurer of receipts and payments from Nov. 30th, 1885, to Jan 16th, 1886, showing balance to credit of County on Jan. 16th, 1886, or Jan. 16th, 1886, and present the counts.

On motion of Coun. Mastin it was decided that the assessors and collectors of Sonthal and about the building for which the Secretary Treasurer and Auditor receive $50 each tor extra service during the past year. Carried.

Coun. Colter, from committee on, public buildings, reported that the jail needed services when the exception and a part of the control Coun. Rowley moved that Pound District
No. 3 be assessed the sum of $50 for building a pound. Carried.
Coun. Nason moved that $30 be assessed in New Maryland for payment of assessors in taking valuation of the parish.
A short discussion followed concerning the payment of such assessors. The question was allowed to stand over.

The fraterial Gathering of Foresters of Prederiction and Vicinity. At St. Mary's, anomewhat accustomed to novelties of the sort. Twenty years ago the intimation that England had allowed China to take possession of a part of Burmah in order that the British and Chinase empires might adjoin each other would have been garded as a piece of nonsense; the probabilities of a railway from Calcuttate to Hong Kong were as visionary as those of a balloon voyage to the moon, and the free intercourse of foreigners with the people of all parts of the vast mongolian empire would have been looked upon as the dream of an impractical enthusiast. Yet the first-named proposition is simply the statement of an actual fact; the second is altogether likely to result from the extension of the Burmah railway into western China, and the third has been almost already realized. The truth is that China has awakened from her sleep of centuries.

A still more important consideration is that if China is to be open to the world the world must be open to China. The more the barriers are broken down the greater will be the outflow of the vast population which has hitherto been confined almost entirely to one area. "You have not tired yourself, dear, I hope. The day has been so oppressively warm, more like July than May. Wouldy you like your tea now, Vlolet? We can have it half an hour earlier if you wish."

All these evidences of affection Vlolet inotices in a dreamy, far-off fashiori: she is the happier because of them; yet she only appreciates them languidly, being filled with one absorbing thought, that dulls all others. She accepts the chair, the compliment, and the tea with grace, but with somewhat vague gratitude.

To Jack his brothers are behaving with the utmost bonkomie. They have called him "old fellow" twice and once (Geoffrey has slapped him on the back with a heartiness well meant, and no doubt encouraging, but trying.

with a heartiness well meant, and no doubt encouraging, but trying.

And Jack is greatly pleased with them, and, seeing everything just now through a rose colored veil, tells himself he is specially blessed in his own people, and that Geoffrey and old Nick are two of the decentest old men alive. Yet he too is a little distrait, being lost in an endeavor to catch Violet's eyes,—which eyes refuse persistently to be so caught.

Nolly alone of 'all the group stands aloof, joining not all in the unspoken congratulations, and feeling indeed like nothing but the guilty culprit that he is.

"How you were all laughing when we came in "s asy Volet, presently: "we could hear you all along the corridor.

"Yes, do, Nolly," says Violet.
"Go on, Noll." exclaims Dorothy, in her most encouraging tone. "Let Violet here it. She will understand it."
"I would, of course, with pleasure," stammers the unfortunate Nolly,—"only frey, hypocritically. perhaps Violet heard it before!"

"Well, really, do you know, I think she did!" says Mona, so demurely that they all smile again.

"Yes, sit there," she says, a new note of tender sympathy in her tone, keeping her hand on Vlolet's shoulder as the latter makes some faint polite effort to rise again. "You must indeed. It is such a dear, cozy, comfortable little chair."

Why it has become suddenly necessary that Vlolet should be made cozy and comfortable she omits to explain.

Then Dorothy, going up to the newcomer, removes her hat from her head and pats her cheeks, and tells her with one of her loveliest smiles that she has
