Columbia

Sir Wilfrid Laurier on Canada's Duty to the Empire.

A Gratifying Scene in the House of Commons.

Why the Japanese Exclusion Act Was Disallowed-The Chinese May Be Excluded-Mr. Siiton on Immigra-

Ottawa, July 8.-A motion to adjourn the house immediately it had assembled yesterday was made by Col. Prior, for the purpose of enabling him to dis-cuss the question of Chinese and Japanese immigration. The premier took advantage of the opportunity to announce that the government would not have disallowed the British Columbia legislation had it applied to Chinese With repard to the Japanese it was different. The question of the Orient might become very acute at any moment. Great Britain might be precipitated into war, and it was of mighty import to her to have the support of Japan. Canada could not take all the advantages of British connection and make none of the sacrifices which it entailed. It is no exaggeration to say that in years there has not been heard in the house such general and unanimous cheering as was evoked by these few patriotic words of the great French-Canadian who is at the head of the second British Govern-ment in the world. Not a man in the chamber was silent. From both sides of the aisle came a roar of applause that lasted for minutes. For that space of time party distinctions were forgotten in the outburst of loyal enthusiasm brought out by the speech of Sir Wil-frid Laurier. The spectacle was un-wonted. It was one good for Canadians to see and hear of.

Col. Prior. in his speech, urged the premier to make an announcement as to the intentions of the government in regard to the allowance or disallowance some fourteen statutes passed by the British Columbia Legislature, prohibiting the employment of Japanese and Chinese upon certain works in the province. He impressed upon the premier that the uncertainty engendered by the delay in making an announcement of its intention was prejudicing the interests of the companies affectwho were hampered in their work organization. The Japanese, he agreed, were better than the Chinese, if there is any difference, but the presence in increasing numbers of these people, who work for a mere pittance, was a menace to the workingmen of the Dominion. Col. Prior admitted that he himself employed a Chinese cook because he could get no other, but he urged that something be done to preurged that something be done to prevent the influx of Japanese and Chinese.

Mr. Cowan suggested that the honorable gentleman did pretty well with balance of the influx of the influx of Japanese and Chinese.

Mr. Clarke, the minister of the Interior said the commissioner of crown lands his cook, judging from appearance.

Col. Prior also objected strongly to the encouragement of the immigration given land which had been refused to of Galicians and Doukhobers, whom ne had never seen personally, but of whom he had very poor reports from men who liament pass an act increasing the had lived with and among them. He poll tax on Chinese, whom he conhad information from Captain Clive sidered most demoralizing in their in-Phillips Woolley, who had lived with fluence upon Canadian communities. them in Russia, and from others, that GALICIANS AND DOUKHOBORS the Doukhobors were not desirable immigrants. He would be much more glad to see French colonists encouraged than the Doukhobors, and pleaded for men who have been brought up to respect and obey the laws of their own

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied at some length, dealing at first with the in-advisability of bringing up questions on motion to adjourn which he con-sidered a breach of the privileges of the house. Coming to the question of British Columbia legislation, looking towards exclusion of Chinese and Japanese, he admitted there was a strong sentiment of repugnance among the English race towards strong Mongolians, notwithstanding the generally tolerant spirit of Englishmen. This was manifest by British legislation, passed in Australia and the Settlements, as well as in British Columbia, and was a circumstances which had to be considered. At the same time Canada had contri-buted largely in the way of steamship subsidies to develop trade with Japan and China. These two facts might appear anomalous, yet facts they were. The former was, perhaps, the domin-ant consideration and due consideration could therefore be given to request now before parliament in the shape of a bill to increase from $50 to $500 the poll tax on Chinese. "I may say, however," continued the pre-mier, "that in our treatment of this subject the government has made a distinction between Japanese and Chinese immigration. Whilst we are prepared to deal with Chinese immigration in the way indicated, and to do our best to meet the view of the people of British Columbia, I have to say that so far as Japanese immigration is concerned, that question is governed by other questions of imperial policy which must appeal to every member of this house as a British subject. As part of the British Empire we have duties to discharge to the empire which we cannot ignore." Continuing, Sir Wilfrid referred to the recent disallowance of the British Columbia acts restricting Chinese and Japanese labor, adding that if it had been in the government's power to disallow only the acts relating to the Japanese labor, they would have done so, but it was not in their power to do so, as the acts had to be taken as a whole. If the legislature were to reenactlegislation omitting the restriction of Japanese, such legislation would not disallowed. (Hear, hear.) But so

New York, July 8 .- Robert Bonner, founder of the New York Ledger, died at his home in this city, Thursday evening, aged 75. He had been in falling health since the death of his friend, Rev. Dr. John Hall, and was profoundly affected by the loss of his son, Andrew

Allen Bonner, Dec. 27 last.

Robert Bonner was born in the North of Ireland, of Presbyterian parentage, and came to New York in 1839 when 15 years old. Landing a penniless boy he began his wonderfully successful career as printer's devil in the Courant office in Hartford Conn. In 1844 he became connected with the Evening Mirror in New York in a mechanical capacity. In 1848 he bought an interest in a paper called the Mercantile Ledger. He soon tired of the routine, and soon branched out in a new line. So he changed the paper's name to the New York Ledger, and its character to that of a family story paper. 'He paid lavish sums in the 50's for advertising space for his paper in the daily jour-nals of New York, and Fanny Fern, and other leading fiction writers were paid as high as $1,000 each for stories. What the Ledger became all the world It attained a circulation of over 400,000 copies weekly. Few or no advertisements ever appeared in it. The occasion of this interest was the gathering together in the city of the Viavi representatives from all over Canada. Mrs. L. Stein, of London, was conspicuous among those present. Dr. Hartland Law, the founder of the celebrated Viavi treatment, was in Toronto at this time, and in addition to delivering a series of lectures on "The Troubles Peculiar to Women," was Troubles Peculiar to Women," conducting this convention. Libeling London.

The Free Press repeats the falsehood about the Laidlaw-Watson Company being driven from London by the strike of their employes, and tries to make out that London is a hotbed of labor troubles and an uncomfortable place for manufacturers. In its efforts to minimize London it extolls Toronto as a city "which seems thus far unaffected by the striking fever." To put it mildly, this statement shows downright ignorance of current events. Toronto has had an epidemic of strikes this year. A month ago there were simultaneous strikes in four different lines, involving hundreds of men. At present the cloakmakers of the great Eaton establishment are out. There is no city in Canada that has had proportionately fewer strikes and fewer labor yexations of any kind that has London. The Free Press is deliberately stabbing London in the back.

A Wrong Way of Helping Them,

Lord Salisbury has caused a good deal of stir in Great Britain by bringing in what is known as the "Clerical Tithes Bill." The measure has been prepared for the special benefit of the clergymen connected with the Estab-Church. It is designed to "amend the law with respect to the payment of rates on the rent charge attached to beneficiaries." It is likely to be opposed with much spirit by that section of the community-a very large one-which believes that there should be no favoritism extended to any one church in the community, and siready it has cost the government a loss of strength in the constituencies.

The estensible reason for bringing forward this bill is the insufficiency of the incomes of the clergy of the Established Church. It is pointed out that the value of the tithe has depreciated. Here is a confession that tithes are etill collected in the motherland. Canadian defenders of the state church system have been in the habit of maintaining that there were no tithes collected in Great Britain. But this measure makes it clear that there are, and that the present Government of Great under the same circumstance. Mr. bert Tupper speaks of. Sir Hibbert Britain means to further add to the advantages of the state church clergy over their neighbors by remitting their taxes and saddling them upon the general public. It is true that the value of the tithe has depreciated; but surely the tithe possessors should have been contented to take the lean with the fat. While land was dear and the products of the soil were at a much higher figure than they are now, the clergymen quite properly accepted of what the law gave them, and looked for more! Now when there is an era of low prices in land values and in everything else, and the incomes of the clergy from tithes have fallen away, the clerical owners of the tithes have persuaded the Government to throw a part of their burden upon the shoulders of their neighbors.

The question which presents itself to a very large number of the community who are ouside the pale of the Established Church, is whether they should have to make up the shortage in the income of the clergy of that communion. The more just method would be to appeal to the laity of the Established Church to increase their contributions to the support of their church. Instead of that, what has been demanded is that there should be a raid on the national exchequer for the benefit of one of the great churches that exist in Great Britain, and that one which is already a great beneficlary at the hands of the state. The clerical applicants for national bounty ask that they shall be forgiven their taxes because the tithe rates have been lowered through the fall in the value of land. The incomes of many other professional men are affected from time to time by various causes, but the government has given none of them any aid whatsoever. The journalist, the lawyer and others have no secure income such as is vouchsafed to the Anglican preacher. The clerical tithe receiver has no such risk as they have. As long as he lives his income is safe. It is a first charge on the send, and takes precedence to rent. The fact that the landowner is a supporter of another church makes no difference-he has to pay to support the Established Church though he never darkens the door of such a place of

Many people believe that a fairer way to the clergy and to the public would be to adopt the simple process relatributing the vast funds at the disposal of the church so that the income of poorer churches might have a fair share of the church income. Everyone who has studied the figures knows that at present the inequalities of remuneration and services in the Anglican parishes are startling. A correspondent of the Guardian, an English Church paper, points out that while in many parishes the endowments average from a penny to a shilling, in others they range from £1 to £10. The trouble, as Lord Egerton of Tatton pointed out, in a recent address, is that the laity of the Established Church are not trained to voluntarily give with the liberality that characterizes those belonging to churches which maintain their clergy without state aid. Despite the advantage which the Established Church has in point of tithe receipts, very many of the clergy are poorly paid. Canon Newbold has said that the small pay which the overwhelming majority of the curates in the Established Church receive is a disgrace to the nation. It is not a national disgrace. Whatever disgrace attaches to the matter must be charged to the mem-

The general public will not take kindly to this scheme for giving another advantage to the Established church at the expense of the whole community.

A Champion of the Exemption System.

The Free Press comes to the defense of the bonus and exemption system under cover of an attack on The Advertiser. Says our contemporary:

"The other day it (The Advertiser) had an attack upon a local factory, which has a fixed assessment, and was enlarging its premises. With this for a text it preached against the exemption system. Yet what our contemporary denies to such old established local concerns as the Perrin and McCormick factories, it was enthusiastic in conceding to the G. T. R. (owned three thousand miles away), only three years ago. The Advertiser swallowed greedily the proposal to give the Grand Trunk Company a bonus of $100,000 and other favors for rebuilding their workshops. nothing to say then as to the 'irregu-larity of the exemption system.'"

The Free Press is, as usual, grossly unfair. The Advertiser did not attack the Perrin Company for claiming exemption from taxes on their new building, but merely cited the Perrin case to illustrate the inequality of the exemption system. We distinctly stated that the Penrin Company were doing what any other taxpayers would do identical official returns which Sir Hib-Perrin himself declared that he was believer in exemptions, but he claimed the same treatment as the City Council had accorded his business competitors, the McCormick Company. In the very article the Free Press rails against, The Advertiser

"We are not inclined to blame the beneficiaries of the exemption system. or to place the whole responsibility on the City Council. Each municipality has to face the fact that if it will not offer inducements to manufacturers, other municipalities will. This is a destructive rivalry, which both parties in the Ontario Legislature have refused to check, although a praiseworthy attempt to reduce the evil was made at the last session. We are sure that manufacturers, as a class, would welcome an equitable and uniform fixing the limits to which any municipality could go in such practices. The present system is grossly unfair to the manufacturers, as a whole. The majority get no concessions and are laboring under a serious disadvantage in competing with those who are enjoying bonuses or exemptions else-where. If all could be put on an equal footing, there would be no complaint from legitimate manufacturers, and a serious injustice and dangerous precedent would be removed.

There is nothing in this that can be construed as an attack on manufacturers. The Advertiser realizes that so long as municipalities are free to bid against one another for industries, London must enter the competition, in self-defense. We were perfectly consistent in supporting the Grand Trunk bonus. Brantford secured the car shops by means of a bonus, and London was justified in employing the same means to regain them. So long as bonuses and exemptions are in vogue, London will have to do its share. But we believe the principle is pernicious, and should be exterminated, root and branch. London, with its splendid natural advantages, would have nothing to fear with a fair field and no favor. The poorer ratepayers would not be saddled as they are now with the taxes of wealthy firms and corporations. We do not envy the Free Press its role as a champion of the present abuses.

A Mare's Nest.

Mr. Henry Dalby, of Montreal, the new organizer of the Conservative party, sends us the following circular: "Dear Sir, - There is a widespread feeling that the Yukon charges should be presented to the public in summarized form to get for them the largest possible number of readers. The inclosed is regarded as a fair synopsis and it is felt if you can give it insertion a very good purpose will have been served. If you take the same view, send me a marked paper containing it.

"I think you will say that in this form they make the very best reading you could offer your readers. If, for any reason you cannot insert, may I trouble you to drop me a line to let me know? I need scarcely add that your kindness in these matters will be taken note of. Yours faithfully, Henry Dalby."

Accompanying the circular is a twocolumn proof sheet, containing Sir Hibbert's charges, with a display head and an introduction. We regret that space forbids a full compliance with Mr. Dalby's gentle request. We have already given the indictment in a more condensed form, but we stretch a point to reproduce in extenso Sir Hibbert's main charge. It reads as follows:

"That according to official returns, the following parties obtained leases of gold placer mining or gold dredging areas in the Yukon district: A. E. Philp, said to be of Brandon, for lease of Bonanza Creek; A. E. Philp, said to be of Ottawa, for lease of S. Ford (Stewarts); G. Philp, said to be of London, for lease of B. Salmon; A. E. Philp, said to be of Ottawa, for a lease on Indian River or Creek; J. A. Philp, said to be of Ottawa, for a lease of Teslin River; J. A. Philp, said to be of Ottawa, for a lease on Stewart River or Creek. That A. E. Philp and A. D. Cameron were law partners of Mr. Sifton, when he became Minister of the Interior. That W. J. Lindsay, said to be of Ottawa; P. C. Mitchell, said to be of Brandon, and W. L. Parish, said to be of Ottawa, applied for dredging leases on the Yukon, whereas they were residents of Brandon, who first learned of these applications by letter from A. E. Philp, advising them that the leases had been granted in their names and inclosing power of at-torney in favor of Philp for them to sign and enable him to dispose of the property. That the return containing the above information also contains the names and addresses of the following, purporting to be applications for dredging leases; F. Burnett, Vancouver; F. Burnett, Colborne; J. G. Burnett, Edmonton; F. Burnett, Colborne; Frank Burnett, Brandon. Whereas Burnett was never in Colborne in his life, but said Philp came from that place. That Philp represented in writing that he was engaged in a dredging venture in the Yukon, and that Mr. Sifton and Major Walsh were interested with him but their names could not appear "for obvious reasons.'

This is a direct and outspoken attack on the probity of Hon. Clifford Sifton. Mr. Dalby, however, forgot to add a foot-note to his circular, explaining that Sir Hibbert had made another discovery since the original charges were penned. He has discovered that A. E. Philp and A. D. Cameron were not law partners of Hon. Mr. Sifton when the lat ter became Minister of the Interior and furthermore that neither A. D Cameron, nor A. E. Philp, nor G. Philp. nor J. A. Philp obtained any leases of gold placer mining or gold dredging the contrary the applications of these gentlemen for leases were refused. This is shown by the must have read them in a poor light. or else his eyesight is failing. Meanwhile Mr. Dalby should call in the circulars and issue a revised edition.

The following is a copy of the telegram sent by Mr. W. T. R. Preston to Mr. Donald Macnish on the night of the latter's election in West Elgin; 'Heartiest congratulations. Sorry to the bottom of my heart I cannot be with you tonight. To be supported by such a noble army of workers should make you the proudest man in Ontario. Shake hands with the boys for me, and hug the members of the much-abused threshing machine for 'Auld Lang Syne." We fail to see anything here discreditable to Mr. Macnish or Mr. Preston. It is just such a telegram as any man in a jubilant mood would dash off. A great fuss has been made about the jocular reference to "hugging the machine." Sergeant Buzfuz also made much ado about the mysterious phrase "Don't forget the warmingpan" in Mr. Pickwick's dispatch to Mrs. Bardell.

Denominational Differences. [Bystander, in Weekly Sun.]

Who now cares much for the dogmatic differences between the Presbyterian, the Methodist, the Baptist and the Protestant Episcopalian? Is real importance attached to anything but Christian character and Christian hopes? Why, then, should there be this multiplicity of Protestant churches? Why should three or four be maintained in a village where one would hold all the worshipers? Why should three or four ministers be maintained in a state of penury instead of giving one a decent maintenance? This is a question which begins practically to present itself. To bring about unity among the great organizations with the vested interests attached to them would no doubt be very difficult; though in the case of the Episcopal and the Wesleyan Methodists such a union has been accomplished. But the Christian people of a village may act for themselves. They may choose among the denominations, unite as a congregation and provide a sufficient support of their common church. In Australia arrangements for the union of certain churches have already been completed. Why should not the example be followed here?

Obligatory Voting. [Seaforth Expositor.]

If we are to get rid of the baneful influences of the machine, and depend upon the more enlightened and decidedly more intelligent influences of the platform, we must have legislation that will discredit the one and uplift the other. We know and can think o no better remedies to this end than those which we proposed two weeks First, let every elector whose name appears upon the voters' list be required to attend at the poll and cast a ballot, on pain of being disfranchised at the following election unless he can give a satisfactory reason for his failure to so vote. Second, let the act of personal canvassing or in any privately or personally soliciting votes by a candidate or his agents be an offense that will void an election, the same as bribery now does. These two remedies would effectually destroy the machine by removing the use for it, and they would at once uplift the platform by making it the chief medium of communication between a candidate and the people, thus making it a neccessary adjunct of an election campaign. These two objects accomplished, impure elections would soon become unknown, and as a natural result we would have abler and more honest legislators, better laws and a more honest administration, and we might also have a more intelligent constituency. Surely these objects are worth striving

LIFE SAVED-Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good

POOR BOY ON TOP

At Cambridge-A Change in the English Order.

[From the London Spectator.] A remarkable and unique event has happened at the Mathematical Tripos at Cambridge this year. Not only the senior wranglership bracketed between two students, but these students represent the nouvelles couches sociales, whose presence at our universities is transforming the character of our seats of learning. One of the sen-lor wranglers, Mr. George Birtwistle, began life as a poor boy at Burnley, his father having died when he was young and his mother having to support her young children. And now at the age of 22, the poor Burnley youth finds himself at the head of the learned and promising young men of England of the present year. His colleague in the senior wranglership, Raghernath Paranjpye, is a Hindoo, educated at Poona and at the University of Bombay, where he secured a government scholarship and afterwards went to St. John's College, Cambridge, as a foundation scholar. His subtle Hindu Minard's Liniment Cures Colds. etc.

intellect, combined with hard work, has enabled him to become senior wrangler, and we are glad to note that when the lists were read out in the Senate House this Hindu triumph was greeted with enthusiasm. We think we are right in saying that this double Wethink event constitutes a very important

Our universities have been steadily democratized in fact and in tone during the last generation. A sign of the change is that you do not find today, say in the big court at Trinity, Cambridge, the gold braid and velvet cap of the nobleman, as was the case about a quarter of a century ago. The peer's son enters as an ordinary undergraduate, and finds himself sitting at table with a youth who began life in a board The expenses have been cut extravagant entertainments down. have declined, and altogether a much simpler tone has been introduced. Into such a society as that of today, with its wider outlook and more reading, the introduction of the picked young men of the poorer classes and of the best minds from United States and the British colonies is a fact the beneficent importance of which can scarcely be overestimated.

EAST BUFFALO, July 7.—Cattle— There was about one load of stockers and half a load of fed cattle; the feeling on stockers was somewhat improved, but the beef trade is slow, on account of the hot weather. Calves were in good supply, 150 head; fair demand, and sold at the quoted figures; choice to extra were $6.25 to $6.50; good to choice, $6 to $6.25. Sheep and lambs— The supply of sheep and lambs was again moderate, 30 loads; the demand was good and prices strong, with spring lambs about a shade higher; the through shipments were fairly liberal; spring lambs, choice to extra, were $6.25 to $6.50; good to choice, $6 to $6.25; sheep, choice to extra, $4.75 to $5; good to choice, $4 50 to $4 75; common to fair, $3 to $425. Hogs-The market opened slow, with a total sale of 37 loads; the basis was lower, being $4 10 to $4 12½ generally, with a few sales at $4 15; heavy were $4 10; mixed, $4 10 to $4 12½; pigs, $4 12½ roughs, $3 50 to $3 60; stags, $2 75 to $3.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The cattle market was a little lower today, prices dropping 5e per 100 lbs; an unusually large number of cattle for Friday were re-ceived today. Hogs-Receipts fairly PITTSBURG, Pa., July 8.—Oil opened and closed today at $1 19.

changed; receipts consisted largely of spring lambs; inferior to prime flocks brought $3.75 to $6.90; yearlings, $5 to $6 25; for sheep the ruling prices were $2 to $5, with occasional sales at $5 25. Receipts—Cattle, 5,000; hogs, $1,700; heep, 12,000.

TORONTO, July 7.—The run of stuff at the western cattle market this morning was heavy; 65 loads, composed of 1,000 cattle, 75 calves, 60 milch cows, $00 sheep and yearlings and 1,400 hogs. The closing trade this week was almost without quotable change from the values on the previous market, though a threatened strike gave the market a rather shaky feeling. The trading at the opening was not much during the morning, the choice very active, and did not brighten up offerings of cattle being the only things in any urgent demand. The offerings included a number of poor cows and inferior grades of cattle, which were really unsalable at even lower prices. During the past week the arrivals of inferior grades of cattle have been exceptionally large, but there is no demand for these cattle, which are left over in large lots in the pens at the close of each market. The quality was good and the attendance was large. Export cattle—The market was firm; cable advices from the old country markets showed no material change, and heavy exporters, which were in moderate supply, were quoted at $5 to $5 15 per cwt; light were in small supply at steady prices, or $4 60 to $4 75 per cwt; the burk of the offerings were left over at the close, owing to the fact that local exporters were unable to get space this week. Butchers' cattle—The movement in this branch showed no improvement today; the offerings, which were a little heavier than anticipated, met with a feeble demand, but the good grades occasionally found good sale at prices holding up to the level of the week; although the attendance of butchers was large, they did not seem inclined to do any trading in the killing line; a few loads of good bulls met with an active demand at firm prices, or $3.75 to $4.25 per cwt, and light good bulls. light stock bulls were firm at $2 50 to $3 per cwt. Stockers and feeders-The market for Canadian stockers for Buffalo was a little steadier today, and the tone of the market was a little this market during the past week showed a slight decline, on account of the Buffalo markets, which opened this week with prices show-ing a big decline; choice stockers were in ample supply, and were quoted at $2 50 to $3 per cwt, and a small run of stock heifers, found slow sale at prices ranging from $2.75 to $3 per cwt. Sheep and lambs—The supply was heavy, but the demand was not very active, excepting for good export sheep, which made up the bulk of the offerings: values for the sheep were a little firmer, and the market showed a slight improvement all around, with the exception of calves and spring lambs, which were a little irregular on account of the heavy supply; sheep for export and butchers' use were quotable at $3 25 to $3 40 per cwt, and good butchers' killing sheep fetched $3 25 to $3 30 per cwt; a light run of spring lambs were slow, at $3 to $4 each, and bucks were quiet at $2.75 to $3 per cwt. An ample supply of good veal calves were quiet, at prices ranging from $2 to $6 per head, and lambs brought $2 50 to $2 75 per cwt. Hogs-The arrivals in the annex to-day were moderate for the closing market this week: values underwent no quotable change from yesterday, and choice selections, which were fairly heavy supply, were quoted at $5 per cwt; a heavy run of light and thick fat fetched $4 25 per cwt, and sows were quiet at $3 per cwt, while stags fetched $2 per cwt. OLD COUNTRY PRICES Liverpool, July 7 .- Prices here and in London for cattle are firm at yesterday's slight increase. American steers are quoted at 11½c to 12¼c per lb, dressed weight; live sheep are dull, at 111/2c to 12c, dressed weight; refrigera-

The Christian Endeavorers Carly Out Their Programme

Though the Tents Failed to Keep Out the Water-Future of the Great

Detroit, July 8 .- The enthusiasm of the United Society of Christian Endeavor was given a severe test yesterday morning, when services were held amid a flooding rain. The tents furnished but little protection against the weather but, so far as is known, no one left the meetings. Flocks of peo-ple began arriving at the grounds as early as 7:30, and they all made the best of the situation. All meetings of the morning at the grounds were held as advertised, although the delegates had to sit on the backs of seats, and protect themselves with umbrellas.

OPEN PARLIAMENTS. The rain practically ceased soon after 10 o'clock, the tent seats became partially dried and programme proceeded, with both the great tents comfortabiy filled. The speaking was not wholly from the platform. The humbl-est delegates in the audience had their chances as against the pulpit orators on the stage. They promptly improved all opportunities given by the open parliaments to shout out their experiences in religious work, and their plans for future efforts toward regeneration of the world.

Tent Endeavor was the scene of a "Practical School of Methods," addresses alternating with open parliaments in bringing out concensus of opinions and past and prospective achievements. Some of the topics and leaders were as follows: "New Ideas for the Prayer Meeting Committee," William E. Sweet, Denver, Col.; "New Views for the Lookout Committee," W. H. Ball, Philadelphia; "Some New Committees," S. J. Duncan-Clark, Toronto, Ont. The theme of the meeting in Tent Williston was "Best Things," a practical school of methods, at which Treasurer William Shaw, of Boston, presided. "Ten of the best Things That Can Be Done," by the various society committees, were described in brief talks. The Rev. J. H. scribed in brief talks. The Rev. J. H. O. Smith, of Chicago, spoke on 'Don't Be Satisfied With Second Best."

PROTESTS. The trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavor gathered in the Hotel Cadillac to discuss several matters left undetermined at Wednesday's meeting. The most important of these was the consideration of a protest from the Ministerial Alliance of Toledo against the opening of the gates of the Chio Centennial on Sunday. After some discussion, and con-trary to the expressed wishes of the Toledo pepresentatives, who were present, a general resolution was authorized, protesting in the name of the Christian Endeavor Society against opening the gates of any national exposition or fair on the Sabbath. Another resolution was authorized

The trustees consumed some time in discussion of matters concerning the 1900 convention at London and the methods and rates of ocean transportation, but adjourned without definite action. There is understood to be a plan under consideration for the chartering of several ocean steamships to carry the American Endeavorers to England. Secretary Baer says the idea is to make a straight fare for all parts of the ship, and have the second cabins and steeages filled up as nearly as possible on an equality with first cabin statesrooms and also to allow passengers full privileges of the upper decks, and provide them with all possible con-

THE SHUT-IN ENDEAVOR BAND An interesting feature of the convention is the admission of the "Shut-in Endeavor Band," a non-denominational organization, whose motto is "For Christ and Suffering Humanity." The object of the band is to promote the Christ-like spirit among its members, and to scatter sunshine in the lives of all invalids, and particularly of its invalid members. One day in each month, the 15th, is set apart for prayer and communion. Correspondence circles and private correspondence is also a means of helping and cheering the Shut-ins. The membership consists of three classes—invalids, or Shut-ins, workers and associates. The invalids, or Shut-ins, consist of all Christians who are willing to sign the pledge, and who are, from reasons which they can Father, prevented from attending the meetings of the church.
The workers are all Christians who are willing to sign the pledge and write cheerful Christ-like letters at least once each month to one or more Shut-ins, furnishing stamp when necessary for answer, and who will help in any way to "scatter sunshine.' The following is the pledge:

"Trusting in the Lord for strength, I promise him that I will strive to do whatever he would like to have me do, and that just so far as I know how I will endeavor to lead a Christian life.'

THE BIBLE. Detroit, July 8 .- "The Bible is the worst-printed book in the world" and "the division into verses, those horrible verses" are two of the astonishing sentences that Christian Endeavorers listened to last night. It was during the lecture of Prof. R. G. Moulton, of Chicago, who spoke at the First

The statements of the professor were stunning to many of the Endeavorers for a few moments, but, as they caught the drift of the Chicago professor's remarks, they understood and did not think him quite so much of an iconoclast as he had seemed. The professor said another startling thing. He remarked that the system employed was as though the Bible were "a divine scrap-book." This was a hard one for many, and the assertion of the professor seemed likely to pro-duce a sensation in some parts of the audience. "The revised version is one of the greatest steps in the history of litera-fure." said the professor. "It is the first move made to get the book in the right form. For the first time the Bible was translated by men that realized that the Bible is literature.' NOTES. President Clark has a severe cold and it was difficult to hear his voice beyond the first few rows of seats in Tent Endeavor on Friday. A Mrs. Henderson, of Buffalo, was taken with a severe chill on Friday during the meeting in Tent Endeavor, and had to be removed to the hospital tent. There are many camera flends among the delegates, and they are taking everything in sight. Dr. Anna Starring was on duty at the hospital tent for ladies during the meeting last evening, and had occasion to relieve seven cases of heart failure and similar ailments. One attractive feature, that commends itself to those who have attended previous conventions, is the total absence of fakirs, newsboys, undesirable characters and bicyclsts from the grounds. This has been accomplished by the hearty co-operation of the ground management and the police department. Several of the officials have been heard expressing their approva

of the service and attention. The plans were well laid and are being carefully On the first night there were numerous bicycles around the tents, but since then the riders have cheerfully followed the requests of the police, and have had the wheels checked.

A. Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Quebec, July 3.—Napoleon Comtais, gunner, No. 2 Company of the Royal Canadian Artillery stationed at the Citadel here, considers himself a lucky man. He will wear the Queen's uniform for years yet. He expected at one time that kidney disease would necessitate his quitting the service. But he heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. Gunner Comtais received a letter re cently asking about his cure. He replied as follows: Royal Canadian Artillery Library, Quebec. June 1, 1899. Dear Sir,-I received your letter and hereby certify that I was cured of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills. By them I can be a soldier a few years yet.

As was remarked the other day, the Street Railway Company seem to think more things can be solved by the arm of the law and by litigation than by tactful handling, and giveand-take methods. There is no reason why the alert legal representatives of the Company should object. Per contra, they probably indulge in a mild inward Te Deum of thanksglving every day of their lives, that Providence has been pleased to send them so litigious a client.

Some of the Company's adherents wear a grieved expression in speaking of the boycott of public opinion indicated by the procession of empty cars. They were apparently grieved that the impossible is not the possible - that things do not go as smoothly in what is, on a limited scale, a state of war, as they do in a state of peace. Such persons reminds one of Shakespeare's character, described by Hotspur, who, after descanting on the awfulness of villainous saltpeter being digged out of the bowels of the harmless earth, declares that but for these vile guns white west. The Reason They Didn't Run-Got Lost Between the Mayor and Manager-Strike Notes.

The reason why the cars did not run July 3 has got lost somewhere between Mayor Wilson and Manager Carr. The manager, in the first place, said the cars were called in because the mayor, as a favor, asked the company not to run them. The mayor denied this. He showed a letter from Mr. Carr predicting trouble on the holiday, whereupon the mayor told the manager that if he feared trouble he had better keep the cars in. The manager consulted the chief of police, who laughed at the idea of any serious disturbance, and offered ample protection. In fact, the chief made all preparations to give the company this protection, and was surprised when the cars were run in. Now the manager says the cars were stop-ped solely because of the mayor's letter. The manager says the mayor plainly advised against running the cars, and on the Saturday preceding the holiday, his worship said he would insist on the car service being suspended. Mrs. Becker disappeared in January.

Two weeks later Becker married Ida Sutterlein, a 17-year-old girl, with whom he was infatuated. When arrested Becker admitted killing his wife, but said he did it in a fit of rage. the Scene. Eggs Thrown and Windows Smashed -The Company Manage to Get

Two Cars Out Again.

This afternoon great excitement was apparent in the East End. About 2 p.m. a large crowd had congregated in the vicinity of the car barns. A dozen policemen and the company's whole staff of private detectives were on hand. The crowd and the excitement increased apace. Soon it was whispered around that the new employes of the street railway company intended going on strike some time in the afternoon. The first car to turn into the barns was No. 54, off the Ridout and Quebec route. Then followed in quick succession, Nos. 56 and 88, the former of which is on the Dundas and Pottersburg line.

The crowd which had assembled numbered fully one thousand people, and they were very demonstrative. The cheering could be heard for several blocks.

CARS COME OUT AGAIN.

After being in the barn a few minutes, the cars started to return to the streets. This intensified the excite-Car. No. 56, the first to emerge, was greeted with shouting, yelling, and a shower of eggs. The police and detectives attempted to drive back the crowd, who stood their ground. It looked as if there would be trouble.

Of the three cars that entered the barn, only two came out. No. 54 remained inside. All the cars passing on Dundas street, past Lyle, were pelted with eggs and stones, and the windows smashed.

Motorman Fitzsimmons brought the first car out of the barn. It is said he flourished a revolver. Car No. 56 came along about three o'clock. It contained several lady passengers and was not molested. Assistant Superintendent Break was at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets, and interviewed the men on each car as it came along, sup-posedly with a view to inducing them to continue with the company. reported the men were dissatisfied with the situation of affairs.

A DETECTIVE IN TROUBLE. About 3:10 p.m., one of the company's detectives, named Hull, made some remarks, at which the bystanders took offense. They justled him, and Hull caught a man by the arm and told a policeman to arrest him. The crowd protested, and the policeman wisely took Hull and led him away to a safe spot. Nobody was arrested. At the time of going to press the crowd was still growing.

DEATH OF WILLIAM SAGE

Was One of Western Ontario's Oldest Pioneers.

By the death of Mr. William Sage, who breathed his last on July 8th, at the residence of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Georgina Sage, near Ingersoll, Western Ontario loses one of its oldest settlers. Mr. Sage had reached the ripe old age of 96, being born in Oxford county, where, as a youth, he with his uncle at a place known as a grist mill now stands. He used to raft lumber to Chatham, there being no dams on the river in those days. and he was wont to talk of the plentifulness of game at that time, when deer were so plentiful that they were shot without difficulty. On the occasion of London being platted out by Colonel Talbot, Mr. Sage received from that officer a grant of some lots on Clarence street, but so little value was there attached to real estate that the property was disposed of for a triffing consideration in the shape of a pair of shoes, or something of that kind. After being in the lumber business for over 20 years, he turned his attention to farming, and acquired about 400 acres of land at Nilestown. where he lived until about 20 years ago, since which time he had resided Oxford county. Mr. Sage married Dorothy McClary, an elder sister of John and Oliver McClary, of this city, and by her he had issue of seyeral children, among them being Nelson Sage, of London, and Willard with several children by this later marparticular ailment except feebleness flickered out, after running over almost a century.

Mr. Doyle has commenced lately to market a liniment preparation, which he has used privately and made up occasionally for friends for the last 30 years, and is delighted with the strike it has made for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Muscular Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Sore Throat, etc. Testimonials have proved it to be wonderful in its effects. It is equally good for man and beast.—

Bourier has established a free lodging-house at Sevres for priests who, like himself, have renounced Rome; and he has established a religious paper for the advocacy of his views, which has now a subscription list running well into the thousands, most of which subscribers are priests. The editorial 100ms of this journel, the "Chretien Francais," afford a rallying place in Paris for those sympathizing with the emeute, and he has also quite recently established a branch house for the reception of ex-priests near the buildings of the Sorbonne, upon the south side of the Seine. HOME OF THE VIRGIN MARY. Professor Zahn, in an article on the Home of the Virgin Mary," in N. Kirch, Ztft. for May, claims to have proven(1) that the unnamed youth of Mark xiv, 51 f., who followed Jesus and the twelve to Gethsemane, and the man who bore the pitcher, belonged to the house in which Jesus ate the last passover with his disciples; (2) that this youth and man were none other than the evangelist John Mark; and (3) that this home of Mary, the mother of Mark, to which Peter came after his deliverance from prison, probably on the passover night of A. D. 44, was the house in which the Lord's Supper was instituted. It is probable that the home of Mark was also the "upper room" of Acts i., 18, and the place of

Pentecost, Acts il., 2. If so we can well understand the peculiar affection with which Peter, Barnabas, Paul and others regarded Mark. His home had been the home of Jesus in Jerusalem. It was supposed to be on Mount Zion. But the late tradition that the Apostie John and Mary the mother of the Lord lived in this house and the latter died here has no historic support. It is the supposed site of this home of Mark and his mother, the first meeting place of the church in Jerusalem, which the Sultan recently gave to Emperor William and he presented to the German

EXTREMES IN THE GOLD REGION

Some Miners Loaded Down With Gold and Others Starving.

Seattle, Wash., July 8 .- The two extreme results in the search for gold in Alaska were presented in strong contrast when the steamer City of Topeka arrived from the north.

Miners from Dawson walked down the gang-plank, trembling under the weight of the gold dust they carried, while miners from Copper River staggered from weakness and disease contracted in the terrible north. The Klondikers wore new suits, and those from Copper River were still in the blanket clothes they wore when they left civilization, and nearly every one had a roll of blankets under his arm. One poor Copper River miner, from New York, landed without a cent. A banker, hearing his plight, purchased for him a ticket across the continent, with a sleeping car coupon, and fitted him out with new clothes.

The Topeka brought news of the drowning of four men at Five Fingers Rapids. They were: I. Green. Seattle; H. Mohlin, Whitby Island, Washington; H. Dingley, Victoria, B. C.; Wm. Hoff-man, Whitby Island, Washington.

While Training for the Races at Te cumseh Park.

A nasty spill occurred at Tecumseh Park last night, while a number of bicyclists were practicing for the races today. Five riders-Clay Manville, Harry Edwards, William Dean and J. Both riders fell, and Manville, Stratton and Duncan, who were just behind, and going very fast, ran into them with great force. Manville had his shoulder dislocated, and Stratton was cut about the face and pretty badly used up. The other riders felived a number of cuts and bruises. There were 200 or 300 people in the grounds at the time the accident occurred. The track was in splendid condition, and in no way to blame for the accident.

For Any Emergency

The Authorities May Resort to should the negotiations with the Transvaal fail." Conscription.

Transvaal Government Agrees to New Franchise Proposals.

Many Were in the Plot to Kill Ex-King Milan of Servia.

London, July 8.-In the House of Lords the secretary of state for war, the Marquis of Lansdowne, introduced a bill which is regarded as the thin edge of the wedge of conscription, and as therefore likely to render the government unpopular. The bill, which is entitled the "Militia Ballot Act," is intended to simplify and regularize an existing act, now practically suspended in favor of voluntary enlistment. Lord Lansdowne carefully explained that the government only wanted it read the first time, as there was no intention to pass it, and he repudiated the "idea of trying to introduce conscription by a side wind." Personally, he said, he did not favor conscription, but he thought it "advisable that such a bill should be in readiness if wanted," and that "the country should realize how it stands with regard to this question." Already the Liberal papers are attacking the government, and asking what need there is of such a measure unless conscription is intended, and looking to the fact that recruiting is daudling, the bill will be regarded with great suspicion.

In the House of Commons Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, Liberal leader in the house, asked the government leader, Mr. A. J. Balfour, if he had any statement to make on the apparently official communication, published in the Times, giving the names of a number of officers said to have been ordered to South Africa for the purpose of organizing the residents, as well as the police and local forces, at various points on the frontier. Mr. Balfour replied that he was not aware that it was an official communication. No contingency had yet arisen which in the opinion of the government neceswas an official communication. sitates a material increase in the forces now in South Africa. He added: We, however, think it necessary, under the existing circumstances, to take such steps as may bring the present force up to the proper standard of efficiency and mobility. The war office would have been extraordinarily wanting in its most obvious duties if it was not prepared for any emergency."

After applying the closure to the debate on the military works bill, the house passed the second reading for the measure by a vote of 159 in favor to 53 against.

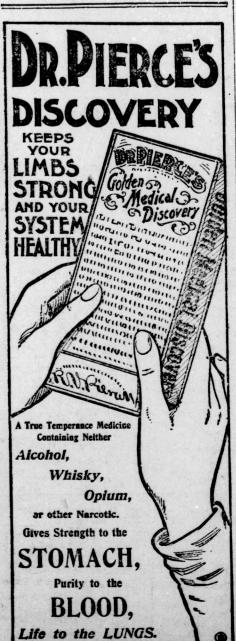

MAY OBVIATE A CLASH.

The Digger News says that the Transvaal Volksraad has agreed to the new franchise proposals, whereby all persons now naturalized and persons settled in the country prior to January, 1891, shall receive the franchise imme diately. Newcomers will be enfranchised after seven years' residence, sons of burghers at the age of 16 years and those of Uitlanders at 21.

The importance of the Volksraad's action, if the Digger News' advice is correct, can scarcely be overestimated, as it means a compromise which will do much to obviate a clash between Great Britain and the Transvaal. In the Bloemfontein conference the best President Kruger could offer Sir Alfred Milner was the enfranchisement of the Uitlanders before 1900, in tw years from now. This was rejected. FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

The London Times announces that several officers, including Brevet-Col. Robert Stevenson Smyth Baden-Powell, commanding the Fifth Dragoon Guards; Capt. Lord Edward Cecil (fifth son of the Marquis of Salisbury), of the Grenadiers, and Lieut. Algernon Henry Charles Hanbury-Tracy (second son of Baron Sudely), of the Royal Horse Guards, have been ordered to proceed to South Africa to organize the residents as well as the police and local forces, at various points on the frontier. Additional special service offi-cers, says the Times, "are likely to be

DEVILISH TORTURE. New York, July 8 .- The New York World prints an alleged interview with M. Labori, counsel for Dreyfus, in Paris. M. Labori said Dreyfus had told him a tale of devilish torture to which he had been subjected on Devil's Island. TRADE REPORTS ENCOURAGING

Business Outlook in Canada Satisfactory in Spite of Customary Summer Dullness.

New York, July 8.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Canadian reports, on the whole, are rather encouraging, although they do not indicate much improvement for the season. Halifax states that trade is decreasing as summer progresses, but is up to fair average of former years and that crop prospects are encouraging, with prices of fish firm but stocks small.

At Montreal trade is quieter with the advancing season, but the situation in healthful, and drygoods payments on the Fourth were well met. Trade at Quebec is steady, with collections

In groceries and sugars trade at Toronto is fairly active, with hard-ware, metals and leather in good demand, but wool continues dull. In all lines trade at Vancouver keeps up to the average, with collections good, and at Victoria wholesale trade is only fair in most kines, with collections satisfactory.

Bradstreet's says: Rather less than seasonable quiet is reported in Do-minion trade circles. Toronto reports June trade the largest for ten years past, and retail trade and collections Efforts to sell Canadian wool in England have not been successful, prices obtained having not been relatively any higher than could be got in the United States after paying duty. The demand for lumber from domestic sources is good, and renders the lack of demand from the United States less keenly felt. Montreal reports the dry goods trade good and collections satisfactory. The hay crop will be light, but other crops will be good. British Columbial trade is good and collections only fair. Failures for the week number 25, as compared with 23 last week and 16 in the same week a year ago. Bank clearings for the Dominion of Canada were: Mont, i, $13,066,003; Tocanada Were: Monta, 18,000,005, 100,005

ON THE OTHER SIDE. R. G. Dun & Co. say of trade in the United States: Railroad earnings for the half year have been the largest ever known on 160,000 miles, 5.6 per cent larger than last year and 10.5 per cent larger than in 1892, all sections showing gains for the year and all but the coal roads over 1892.

Wheat declined % of a cent, exports being but 2,259,021 bushels for the week, flour included, against 2,643,139 last year, for both coasts, although western receipts were 1,861,523 bushels against 618 492 last year. If bushels, against 618,492 last year. If the farmers actually carried over 65,one farming journal estimates, they need the education which they are getting but the cleim still entirely and the control of getting, but the claim still entirely fails to account for their liberal spilling this year at lower prices.

Shipments of boots and shoes were smaller for the week than in 1898 or 1897. Prices do not change as yet, nor does leather on moderate transactions for some kinds, but one sale of 300,000 sides, said to be the largest single transaction ever made, was at some concession. Hides show change in prices at Chicago.

Textile manufacturers are doing well, and in woolens good prices tend upward, with a considerable better demand. Cotton goods show no pressure to sell, but are quieter.

The volume of business for the first week of July has been 36.0 per cent greater than last year, and 49.9 per cent greater than in 1892. Failures for the week have been 199 in the United States, against 229 last year, and 20 in Canada, against 17 last year.

Dear Sir,-Yours of the and May to hand, and contents noted. Dodd's Kidney Pills in my case have been a wonder and surprise to myself. After over twenty years of suffering with my back and kidneys I am well. Not the least painful part of my trouble was the pain, frequency and poor success experienced in urinating. When I tried to urinate I could make but little at a time, and had to try often. The pain was so severe that I almost at times feared to try. A number of remedies were suggested by friends, but I had read about Dodd's Kidney Pills, and determined to try them. I got a box and used it, and afterwards six other boxes, and am now like a young man, though 76 years of age. I enjoy the natural, comfortable feeling in the particulars above referred to. I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to you or any other than the feeling of the commend of the second of anyone else who is suffering as I did before I used them. I have recom-mended them to scores of people here and in St. John, and they have always done what they are advertised to do.

Very respectfully yours,

AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Great Interest in the Exhibition Being Held in Paris.

A dispatch to the New York Sun says: Paris is chiefly occupied today with the great automobile exhibition in the Tuilleries Gardens. Frenchmen are convinced that they are far ahead of the rest of the world in everything connected with automobilism. The craze, already great, seems destined to be far greater.

Automobilism has gained a high position in the world of sport, and nowhere more than in France does the sportman revel in costumes supposed to be particularly adapted to his special sport. Tradesmen's windows now contain numerous examples of the correct costume for the automobile sportsman. The effect of these is to make the wearer look something like a cross between a fireman and a diver.

Baron Franchetti, president of the Milan Automobile Club, has just arrived by automobile to visit the exhibition, traveling from Milan through Switzerland and Germany at the rate of 250 kilometers daily.

SLEPT WITH SWINE

Filthy Condition of an Old Man Who Became a Nuisance.

Windsor, July 8 .-- John Hawkins, an old man who resides on Goyeau street, was arrested on Thursday by Police-man Jackson. He was tried in the afternoon on the charge of being a nuis-ance, and sentenced to 21 days in Sandwich jail, with the option of paying a fine of $14 50. Hawkins drove a cart full of garbage in front of the Presbyterian Church, where some of the Christian Endeavor delegates were, and commenced inquiring what the crowd meant. No person wished to answer his questions on account of the smell on his person, and he soon had the lawn in front of the church to himself.

When the prisoner arrived at the police station he presented a filthy ap-pearance. All the clothing he had on was an old shirt and a pair of trousers. The shirt was torn in many places and revealed his bare skin. The trousers were no better, and his appearance so shocked the magistrate that he thought it best to send him to jail for a time, where he would be sure of receiving a bath. Officer Jackson said the filth in the hut where Hawkins lived was terrible. He had three pigs, and all of them stayed in the house with Hawkins, and the floor was inches deep with dirt. The place where he slept was a bundle of rags, and there were only a few articles of furniture in the place.

One class of American travelers in Europe includes those who take a flying trip of three months, realizing that it will probably be their only visit for at least a long time, and who start mer-rily in to "do" everything from the North Cape and St. Petersburg to Venico and southern Italy, ending up in a more or less dazed and disheveled condition via Paris, London and Killarney. Armed either with a conductor or with an unlimited belief that American resourcefulness "goes," they career like a terrestrial comet across the face of amazed Europe, and return home with a miscellaneous collection of alpenstocks, ikons, silk rugs, musical boxes, gloves, bog oak and photographs, together with impressions that are equalharacter capitalist. Lucille seemed to think it smart to laugh at me for this extremely laudable and perfectly natural ambition. As for her, she wasted her substance in riotous living, spending every cent of her salary on opera tickets, imported toilet articles and tortoni biscuit with a reckless disregard for the future that could only mean one thing, namely, matrimonial hopes.

And, to tell the truth, Lucille was attractive enough to warrant her having some hopes in this direction, and could have had her pick any time from half dozen young fellows, each one of whom got almost as much salary as

But that has nothing to do with my own ambitions, which were of a very different sort. I say were, for I'm not so sure about them now, my first experience as a capitalist having rather unsettled my views of life for the time

I was very young indeed when I first formed my ideas as to the desirability of wealth. It was way back in my childhood when old Mr. Higginson used to come to church in his great fur-lined overcoat and dirty linen, and I observed how the minister and the elders crowded around him to shake his hand, when he was such a hateful old curmudgeon that I had privately thought the Lord ought to have made some sort of a public apology for perpetrating him on the community.

"Oh, Higginson has got a lot of money out at interest," my father would say when I ventured to wonder why people made such a fuss over a dirty and disagreeable old man.

What a marvelous power "money out at interest" must be, I thought, when it can transform even Mr. Higginson into an acceptable companion.

And so at that early age I was made and I resolved that some day I, too, should have "money out at interest."

When I was made head stenographer in a big law office I considered my ambition as good as realized. It had seemed so far away before that I'd never tried to save very much, but now that It was fairly within my reach I began to lay up money at a frantic rate. "If you get another raise in your salary you'll be so stingy you'll take to lunching out of the mucilage bottle and wearing your bicycle suit to church," declared Lucille in disgust. But I just let her jeer and kept on economizing, and at last there came a day when I had $1,500 in the bank. Mr. Amams, a friend of mby father's, invested it for me in a first mortgage on a suburban cottage, and when the papers were signed I went home flushed and triumphant. "Congratulate me, Lucille," I cried, throwing myself into a chair and my hat on the couch. "I haf inveshtigated mein moneys." Lucille was trimming a hat to wear to the theater that night, one of those silly white tulle affairs that a single ver will transform into an imitation custard pie before your eyes.

"Huh" she exclaimed. "I believe you think you've done something really fine. Sara Dunning, if you do out, your nose will grow hooked just like! Mr. Dunkelspeil's down at the pawn-broker's shop."

"What do I care?" I retorted gayly. "I've got money out at interest, Lucille. Do you realize what that means?" "It means that you've worked like slave and denied yourself all pleasure for a year and a half to get it, and you're thin as a shad and as yellow as a lemon. Come on and go to the theater tonight and forget that you're a capitalist long enough to enjoy yourself, that's a dear." But the fever was in my blood, and I wouldn't listen to her.

So I went on putting money in the bank, and looked forward eagerly to the time when the interest from my investment would begin to come in. It was paid promptly enough the first quarter and the second. Then it lapsed. Six months went by and no "It seems to me," remarked Lucille one day, "that you'd better 'investigate' that money in dead earnest."

"Oh, don't worry yourself," I retorted snappishly. I was nervous of late, and besides, Mr. Higginson was allowed to be as cross as he liked, I re-

Respectfully,

I had long had a desire to become a skirts preparatory to going out. She was really outrageously pretty.
At the door she met some one coming in. A pale, forlorn-looking old woman, with a pinched face and an appearance of having cried for six months. "Is this Miss Dunning?" she asked. I assured her it was, and she proceeded timidly: "I called to see you about that mortgage."

"Ah, yes," I said, hastening to shut the door on Lucille, who was lingering in the hall in an unprincipled fashion which I could not approve.

"We've been unable to meet our payments lately," went on my visitor in a depressed tone, "and yesterday your agent sent me word you intended to foreclose. Oh, Miss Dunning, don't. Please don't be hard on us. My poor husband has been sick in bed for a year, and if we lose our little home it will kill .him."

Here the poor creature burst out crying, and I reached for my handkerchief, feeling somewhat that being a capitalist wasn't such fun as 1 imagined.

"Oh, Miss Dunning," proceeded my guest, as soon as she was able speak, "if you knew how hard we worked to build that house. We put the savings of years into it, thinking that in our old age we'd have a roof over our heads. And now we must lose it all."

A fresh burst of sobbing interrupted her, and I swallowed a succession of what seemed to be cobblestones. I tried to think what Mr. Higginson would have done in such an emergency, and wondered if ever he felt as much like a chicken thief as I did at that mo-

"Why, don't cry," I managed to say at last. "I'll not deprive you of a home. I only bought the mortgage as an investment, you know." Here I was actually apologizing for having "money out at interest." The poor woman went away a little comforted at last, and I went to bed with a nervous headache.

I rather lost interest in my mortgage after that. I didn't sleep well for some reason, and when I did dose a little my dreams were haunted by weeping old ladies. I got a bad habit of going into a brown study at inconvenient times, and would start guiltily when spoken to suddenly.

One day I got a note from Mr. Adams saving he was going to foreclose at once, and assuring me that I'd get my money all right—I needn't worry. Somehow I didn't find the assurance comforting, and went home without any appetite for supper. "May the Lord preserve me from ever becoming a capitalist," cried Lucille, tooking at my face as I sat trying to read after supper. "You look, my dear, for all the world like Judas 1scariot after he was found out. A fun-eral would be cheerful beside you. Thank goodness Bob is coming to-

Bob is Lucille's cousin, a young lawyer, and the jolliest boy going. But alas when he came. Bob was in the blues, too. He sighed like a furnace every few minutes, and finally announced that he couldn't stay.

about a mortgage," he said, and I "It's the saddest case I ever heard of," he went on. "An old couple who are clients of mine had a mortgage on their home. It was bought a year or so ago by some shark or other." I covered my eyes with my hands just here, and Lucille coughed in an embarrassing way. But Bob noticed nothing and proceeded in a troubled "Of course, they couldn't keep up the interest. Whoever bought the mortgage knew that they couldn't. Such people always figure on that, you know, and now the poor old chap has gone crazy over losing his home-clean daffy, you know-and his poor wife will be turned out unless something is done.' There was a dead silence for a moment when he stopped, and then I got up without a word, and, going to my desk, unlocked the drawer where I kept the precious mortgage. With trembling fingers I seized my pen and with a few strokes canceled the mortgage, and as I did so a load rolled off my heart. "Here," I cried eagerly to the mystified Bob, "take this to that poor woman, quick, tonight"

"Oh, Sara," cried Lucille, "you work-"Oh, Sara," cried Edding," ed so hard for that money." ed so hard for that money." I said. "And I am a lord, and then Lucille embraced me You were never cut out for a cap-big as saucers, "the prices are away up in G." Who cares?" I said. "I'm richer tonight than I've been for years." And we went.

A Will of Her Own.

The czar and czarina are constant surprises to their subjects. They continue to thrust time-honored customs and enact new thoughts. Comparatively little is known of the czarina's as it is spent for the most part within the palace walls. Occasionally, however, facts find their way outside the royal domain. Her first action was in refusing to give up her baby, little Olga, to hired nurses. Her own mother had nursed her children, so had Queen Victoria. Olga should receive the same She did the same with the second little girl, who is called by the English name of Vicky. The czarina's second act to astonish Russia was her persistence in refusing to take a retinue of ladies with her to drive. She would take one or two, but no more. The former czarina, now the dowager, had always ridden with a mounted equerry on each side of her. The czarina before her had been accompanied by two carriages of ladies. But the czarina, Alice of Hesse, wanted nothing of the sort—only a lady to act as companion. The czarina then decided to have her gowns made in the royal palace by her seamstress. It was the etiquette of the court to send to Paris for evening frocks and to London for tailor suits and to establishments in St. Petersburg for everyday But the czarina ordered all her costume made at home, except a few that were purchased at the shops. She likewise ordered the table to be daintily laid and everything to be served in a simple manner. czarina has brought the habits of the court of England into Russia as nearly as possible, and the czar is delighted at the banishment of some of the curious old formalities.

Tinted Glassware.

There is very little white glass seen on the tables of the fashionable dinner-givers just now. It seems to have quite gone out of style, and colored tumblers and small glasses are all the rage. For instance, at a very large bridesmaids' luncheon the other day the entire glass service of the table was of an exquisite shade of green Bohemian glass, including tumblers, finger bowels, bon-bon dishes and water bottles. The glass had a delicate vine pattern traced on it, and the effect was really charming. To carry out completely the color scheme of this luncheon, the floral center piece was of asparagus vine, arranged in moss, in an oval basket. Amber glass is also very fashionable, and so is rose color, but green seems to be the most popular. There was a time, not so long ago, when the fad was to have nothing but white cut glass on the table. Now colored glass is accepted by those who profess to know how to set a dinner or luncheon table well, as the correct thing to use.

+++ Fancies of Fashion.

Boleros are as long-lived as the blouse. They can be made out of almost anything. The newest have a half sleeve which reaches a little below

A pretty spring garment comes to us in the guise of the Marie Antoinette fichu much befrilled, with rounded ends, tied in the front or at the back. These fichus are usually made of black glace taffeta, and the frills are either pinked out or edged with narrow fringe. A good many swallow-tail coats are seen; they suit tall women very well. The variety in cravats is endless, but white tulle keeps well to the front. Collars rise in two points under the ears or at the back.

The hair is hardly waved at which will save both purse and locks. It is softly coiled high on top of the head in an insolent little knot of curls kept in place by fancy combs. Side bouquets are still the rage for evening wear, and bunches of cherries or violets are poised over each ear a la Jap. Louis Seize knots of velvet or gauze, spangled with silver, are still much worn for evening coiffures.

+++ She Wanted Perfection.

An obtuse, supercilious woman, who evidently thought she was a lady, was trying the patience of an old German florist while making her selection of flowers for Easter. The collection did not suit her, and after more or less of unpleasant comment and criticism, the old man became impatient, and delivered the rebuke she needed. "Goot madam, I make not de flower. God does not ask me how I will haf them. I can't gif hummin'-birds mit every rose. You is not like dat yourself. I never often see de lady das vas beautiufl, dat vas young, dat could sing, dat vas good temper, dat know ner mind, all in one lady. No. I see her ready-made shoes," said the experienced salesman, "if they would stand up to fit them on instead of sitting down. Nine persons out of ten, particularly women, want a comfortable chair while they are fitting a shoe, and it is with the greatest difficulty you can get them to stand for a few minutes, even when the shoe is fitted. Then, when they begin walking about, they wonder why the shoes are not so comfortable as they were at first trial. A woman's foot is considerably smaller when she sits in a chair than when she walks about. Exercise brings a larger quantity of blood into the feet, and they swell appreciably. The muscles also require certain space. In buy-ing shoes this fact should be borne in

When Shoes Are Fitted. "People would find less difficulty with

Our Slimsy Figures.

How eager our women are to appear as long-drawn-out and thin as possible is shown by the fact that they have real time, and now the lining follows suit, the lower edge of the skirt being faced with a wide fold of silk to prevent the hem from being altogether too flimsy. Double-faced material is mostly used for these dresses, one side being a black and white plaid and the reverse either blue, red, green, etc.

And it is strange what a hold this tight-fitting fashion has gained on our tight-fitting fashion has gained on our women, so much so, in fact, that every one is trying to see how tight she can get her skirts, and it may not be long before we look like animated umbrellas stuck in a tight casing. From an economical point of view this is, of course, very laudable, because we do not need much material, but from an aesthetic view it is anything but pretty.

Golden Rule of Exercise.

Maurice Thompson, in the Phila-delphia Saturday Evening Post, seems to think there is a good deal of exercise taken that is not only not help-ful, but injurious. This is what he Physical exercise has been so much insisted upon recently in considering the best development of men and women that both theory and practice have been pushed to dangerous extremes. A sound mind in a sound body is the thing most desired, and the hasty conclusion seems to have been reached by a great many people that if physical exercise is good the more of it the better. An immense injury is being done by over-violent and too long-continued application to the pleasant and stimulating activities known as athletic training.

Our remarks need not be confined in their application to those who go into what is called "professional training," but may be taken to heart by all who ride the wheel, play golf, excel in rowing, fencing, boxing, or go enthusiastically into any other sport or pastime involving great physical exercise. It is particularly to the interest of persons following a sedentary avocation to understand just when and how physical exercise should be taken in order to get its best benefits without the risk of injury to the great centers of energy. Nerve force and muscular power are so intimately connected that to interfere with the one must certainly hinder the other. Almost every sedentary occupation, and es-pecially where the mind is hard worked, makes a great draining of nerve force; and yet we see persons turn from long and exhausting brain labor to the most violent physical exercise without any intervening rest. greater mistake could be made. Physical exertion is but an additional draught upon the resources of the The young woman who has applied her mind intensely to shorthand and typewriting for many consecutive hours is no sooner released from duty than, perhaps, she mounts her bicycle and goes for a long, hard spin, hoping thereby to fortify her body and limbs, strengthen her lungs and heart, keep her system in robust working order. The young man who is an accountant, or lawyer's clerk, or official copyist, or laborious student thinks it his duty to go directly from his work to the gymnasium or to the tennis court for what he fondly imagines will "build up" his muscular system and counter-act the exhaustion caused by the intense mental application of business hours. This is burning the candle at both ends, and instead of receiving shown by the fact that they have real benefit from exercise the mis-

Photographic Chart of the Heavens Being Prepared.

Every Department of Science Owes a Debt to Photography.

Difficulties That Beset the Amateur Photographer a Quarter of a Century Ago - Had to Make Everything Himself From Camera to Plates.

The greatest charm of photography is that its pursuit leads one into so many different and interesting fields of study. On one side it is closely connected with art, both fine and industrial, and on the other its relations with science are equally intimate. It may be called the child and handmaid of both. The scientific aspect of the work presents much that carries the worker away beyond the commonplace and into the realms of wonders as even the more ideal art side fails to

In these days so much is done for the photographer in ready-made plates, developers and printing papers of all kinds that the present generation is inclined to take the "goods the gods provide," asking no questions, ignorant or regardless of the fact that these very plates, paper and solutions are the results of work and discoveries of a half-century.

REMARKABLE PROGRESS. In the early days of photography the road to a good negative was not so easy. Twenty-five years ago every step of the process from the cleaning the glass to the sensitizing of the printing paper was a matter of individual labor. It is most interesting and instructive to glance through the earlier works on photography, beginning with the publications of the '50s, trace the gradual growth of the art through the experiments of such men as Fox Talbott, Daguerre, Sir John Herschel and others, and to see how from small beginnings the art of photography has been evolved and how the chain of discoveries has never been broken. Inventors and men of scince have handed down the torch from one to another, and still the procession goes on, and who can see the ultimate goal? Note how all the resources of science have been pressed into the service of photography. The opticians have given lenses of infinite variety and great perfection. Mechanicians have made cameras, actinometers and shutters of the greatest ingenuity, while chemists have given plates and films marvelously sensitive to light, and have raneacked the world of nature for substances to develop the latent image and to fix and print it on paper and other substances. An immense number of vegetable, animal and mineral substances have been utilized, such as gold, platinum, silver, lead, aluminum, copper, iron, mercury, potassium, ur-anium, magnesium, and their salts and oxides, gelatin, gun cotton, ether and sleehol seids and alkalis of all kinds, vegetable dyes and extracts—all have been laid under contribution and have assisted materially in bringing the art to its present position. HOW IT HELPS SCIENCE.

Photography is also a precise registering instrument of value to scientists. It records the rise and fall of thermometers, barometers and other measuring instruments, the earthquake, lightning, all the aspects of cloud, sunshine and atmosphere are set down by the lens, thus making a valuable history of the weather.

Another important branch photography helps is that of spectrum analysis, by which we are enabled to dissect nature and pursue her into her Photo-micography faithest recesses. has made rapid strides also, and special lenses have been designed for the work. Most interesting annals are now kept by microscopic work, and wonders of nature in the infinitely small as in the infinitely great are preserved through the photographic prints for reference and illustration of scientific works

The camera has been the means of throwing much light on the origin and character of contagious diseases through photographing of disease germs, and physicians are further putting the camera to use for registering stages of mental and physical disease surgical operations of various kinds.

To the geologist and geographer the value of photography was long ago made manifest. In map-making and surveying for military purposes the camera is also of the greatest use, and there are many other branches of scientific study and research to which the art lends assistance. It is very difficult to estimate the immense value this so-called mechanical art has proved as a recording instrument in scientific pursuits of all kinds, and the ultimate connection between it and the many branches of science.

Those who simply look upon photography as a toy with which to pass away an idle hour have little or no knowledge of its latent capabilities. But the serious worker in either artistic or scientific photography understands that, like every other study, it spreads wider and wider, and every step advanced in it opens up fresh wonders and an ever-extending horizon.

LAWS OF OPTICS STUDIED. The laws of optics and light have been closely studied, the actinic and luminous powers of the spectrum caremeasured and fresh discoveries made as to its constitution and the actinic power of the non-luminous rays.
The rapidity and wave lengths of the colored rays have been calculated, and have made manifest to us something if the inconceivable rapidity with which light travels. The chemical power of light has been measured by actinometers in all seasons and quarters of the globe, elaborate tables have been prepared for the photographer's use, and plates are prepared and their degree of sensitiveness accurately adjusted to the requirements of the worker and the light at his disposal. the means of electricity, magnesium and aluminum we can dispense altogether with the sun for indoor work, and by use of vegetable extracts we can render the gelatin film more uniformly sensitive, and thus partially remove one of the greatest drawbacks to photography—namely untruth of re-lative tones. Color in any satisfactors way still eludes discoveries, although something even in this direction has been done, and certain colors have been produced on silver and gelatin In the reproduction from the negative science has lent valuable aid in showing how platinum, iron and carbon may produce beautiful and permanent results and how in numberless other ways the impressions from trotype and other blocks may be made of artistic and commercial value. PHOTOGRAPHY NOT UNGRATE-

FUL. Such are some of the aids science has lent to photography, and in return photography has not been ungrateful. The discovery of the gelatin plate has opened the pathway to the unknown. It is a fact that thousands of stars quite invisible to the human eye, as-sisted by the highest powers of the telescope, have been and are every night somewhere in the world being impressed on the photographic plate. A gigantic photographic chart of the heavens is now in course of construction by the leading astronomers of Europe, which will require no less than 22,000 photographs to complete it, representing some 600,000 stars, and will doubtless reveal further wonders.

The sun and his spots are daily recorded at Kew, Greenwich and other observatories when not obscured by clouds and during eclipses. Most valuable pictures of the corona have been obtained, though so hard are these to get that during the past 30 years the corona has only been under observa-tion for about 30 minutes. New comets, stars and nebula are continually being discovered by the aid of the camera. The moon has not been neglected either, and an enormous amount of detail has been secured, the craters, so-called seas and mountain ranges on its surface being photographed so clearly that they may be studied with the greatest ease and the heights of the mountains accurately measured. Much information has also been obtained from recent photo-graphs of the planets; the ring of the belts of Jupiter, the ice Saturn. cap of Mars and even the moon of Neptune, 30,000,000 miles off, have all been delineated on photograph plates with a beauty and accuracy to be achieved in no other way.

A PIONEER AMATEUR. Dr. Burdick gives some interesting particulars of at least one amateur's experience of a quarter of a century

"Few cranks on photography realize the difficulty experienced by a begin-ner in photography twenty-five ner years ago. In those days we did not press the button and have some one do the rest, no dealer was ready to give advice and carry on expensive demon-strations with the idea of getting amateur trade; in fact, if it was once known that a man was an amateur his supplies were immediately shut off and he was either told that amateur trade was not wanted or worthless truck was palmed off on him under the dealer's special guarantee.

"Twenty-five years ago I became infected with the 'photographic mania,' and with intervals it has persisted to the present day. I owe my introduction to the ranks of photography to an article that appeared in the Scientific American about 1872, in regard to the beauties of the process and the ease and simplicity of its manipulation. read and reread the article until I became infatuated with the idea that I never would be happy until I was able to make 'sun pictures.' I was enabled to indulge any fad that I might choose to dabble in, as I was the village druggist's chief assistant when he went dinner and slept in the store at night to act as 'bell boy' for night customers, for which arduous labor I had the run of the books and received the munificent sum of $2 per week and found. My income was further augmented by acting as 'printer's devil' on Wednes-day afternoon during the regular isof the village newspaper, for which I received 75 cents and all of the scientific exchanges and a commission on all articles I sold which had been taken by the editor which made a considerable sum for a boy of 10 years. LOOKING FOR POINTERS "After carefully reading the article I called on and pumped the photographer like a veteran for all the information he possessed, and was careful to conceal the fact that I was about to 'commit photography.' Having exhausted his knowledge, I sent to New York for a modest outfit and received a letter by return mail asking me if I was a professional. On replying that I was not I received the answer that my order could not be filled. I immediately set to work to construct a camera in my workshop in the basement of the drug store. I made it as near like the one I had seen at the photographer's as I could, but of slightly smaller dimensions. After a week's work I had a very presentable camera made from old boxes, with a bellows of pasteboard and leather, and for service, as I look back, I do think I could make a better one if I should try today. The first difficulty I found was to get a piece of ground glass. When I went to the grocery store where glass was sold and asked for a piece of ground glass the kindly proprietor patted me on the head and told me I must not always be wanting something that no one kept in town or Barnum would take me with him when he came around. I insisted on getting a piece, and he kindly looked over all his wholesale list and informed me I had got things mixed, as he could not find any such thing, and if it was not on his list it was not made. I was very much cast down over my ill luck and called on the photographer again, but found he had got wind of my little scheme, and I was turned down with little ceremony and advised to stick to the drug business and let photography severely alone. I turned away sorrowfully, but more determined than ever to succeed and make him rue the day he refused to help me. In spite of the petty persecutions I was sure of a my editor, and of their kindly advice and encouragement. "After numerous experiments I manufactured a piece of ground glass by depositing an alcoholic solution of gum mastic on a piece of plain glass, and which, by the way, is a far finer grain than is fitted on cameras today. camera being completed, the next problem was the lens, and as I had studied optics to a certain extent I naturally took to a spectacle lens as the easiest obtainable. On fitting it on my camera I found the image on the ground glass beautiful and went into raptures over my success, little knowing the trouble that lens had in store for me further on. My lens and camera being completed, my attention was turned to the subject of wet plates. The formula given in the Scientific American was carefully followed without much sucess. The first difficulty was in getting the necessary chemicals, but with the help of the druggist I was able to buy bottles with labels on that were supposed to what I needed, but continued bad success led me to again make my own chemicals, and I did it carefully, and as I look back now with astonishing success. The calladion I purchased could not be flowed over a plate, drying immediately and leaving a deposit of lumps and bunches, so I was induced to attempt to make my own gun cot-ton, and without the proprietor's steadfast friend in the druggist and knowledge, and as strange as it may seem, without an explosion until I had now made it for over one year. With my own chemicals my hopes increased, and one evening I made my first plate after a score of attempts. The first time I pour the salted calladion on the plate arned for the first time that ester than water, and my glass plates it all directions and about one-half the contents went down the sleeve of my coat, and for the next hour I was the most stuck up little man that ever caught the camera fever. After I had peeled the calladion off my person I was convinced of one thing, and that was that my calladion had good stick-ing qualities, and I took up the work more cheerfully, and after numerous attempts flowed a good plate—a trick I did beautifully after I learned the fact that dirt and finger marks were the cause of my trouble, and this explained my want of success earlier. plained my want of success earlier. HIS FIRST EXPOSURE.

"Having at last made ten good plates, I waited a favorable oppor-tunity of making an exposure, and a bright day at last gave me my long-sought opportunity. I placed one of my beautifully made plates into the nitrate of silver solution, in the dark (red and yellow light not being in general use at that time), and after a tew minutes placed it in my plate holder and made my exposure, about ten minutes, and removed it to a dark room for development. After I had gone through all the necessary manipulations I emerged from the darkness to the light and was thunderstruck to see the plate all clear glass, and on closer examination my cherished film gone. On investigation I found it in the mtrate of silver bath. I took the film to the light for closer examination, and being struck with an idea, placed it in the developer, and had the intense satisfaction of seeing the entire film darken, as I had a right to expect it to do, having seen negatives that were made by the village photograph-That settled the chemical part of the work, and left me the interesting mechanical part of making those films stay on the plates until they were finished. After trying many devices and learning many curious chemical and physical facts, which before that time I had never dreamed could be facts, my idea of a good adhesive was limited principally to glue and gum arabic, in general use at that time, and my thoughts naturally turned to the first of these as a probable solution of the difficulty. I prepared a nice hot solution of fish glue, dissolved in acetic acid, and applied it to the edge of one of my films. To my chagrin my plate broke along the line of glue, making as clear a break as if cut with a diamond, and while my stock of know-ledge was increased, I was not looking for a way to cut glass, but to make my film adhere to the plate. Consequently I allowed my glue to cool off considerably, and applied it to another plate, and had no difficulty in applying it this time. After treating all the plates to their adhesive strip of glue, they were set aside to harden, my services being required elsewhere. A DISCOVERY. "When I came to examine my plates a few days later I was mortified to learn that the glue in contracting had frosted my glass in a beautiful manner. A discovery, by the way, which was afterward patented, and while the inventor made little, the purchaser made a fortune. It may not be generally known that all of the fine decorated glass in the better class of office buildings is made by this process. Not looking for a method of decorating glass, however, I looked on my experiment in the light of a great misfortune, for it ruined my plates and made it necessary for me to buy new ones be fore my experiments could be carried farther. After a great number of experiments I learned that white glue and gum arabic was a most excellent adhesive if the article was kept in a dry place. It was worthless when moist, consequently I was compelled to turn to some compound not soluble in water, and after trying everything at my command, settled on candle grease as the most available, cleanest and cheapest, and I might say a great im-

where he wanted it during the process of sensitizing and development. 'Having solved the problem of keeping my film where I wanted it, a new set of plates were made without a hitch, and an exposure made and developed in the dark. The result was a bird's-eye view of the town from the top of the drug store, on a county fair day, and the result, while disappointing to me, would have made a modern exponent of 'artistic photography' go wild with delight. It was 'fuzzy,' and had 'atmosphere' enough for the most ardent crank to wish for. It was really a very fine negative, but not being educated up to 'woody photography,' I set to work to find out where the cause might be lo; cated, and it required nearly a month's work to find out there was a difference between the ground glass and the plate in its holder. On correcting that discrepancy I was astounded to find that the difficulty had grown worse. This set me to experimenting to see just where the plate should be, and after weeks of trouble I found it was sufficient to focus sharp and then bring the plate three-quarters of an inch

by the village photographer of using patent clothespins to keep his film

nearer the lens.

TROUBLE WITH THE LENS. "The reason was that my plain spec tacle lens was not a chromatic. I did not learn this for two years, when a book on optics fell into my hands. Having found the place that gave me a sharp mirage on exposure, I was considerably elated, but my joy was tempered by the fact that while the negative was all I could wish for in the center, it gradually vignetted off into invisibility, and it took me several weeks of study and experimenting to find out that my lens needed a dia-phragm, and further that when a diaphragm is used exposure is necessarily prolonged. When I finally had all parts of the process working in mony I made very fine negatives, from which prints were taken on albumen paper, the fabrication of which had given me more trouble than the plates. "The warm weather coming on found out that my tailow candle would not do to use on the films and caused their destruction. This led me to investigate further for a substance, and after canvassing the field thoroughly I setttled on a solution of rubber as most likely to fill the bill, and used sulphide of carbon as a solvent, and principally because it was a new agent to me. I half regretted my choice of sulphide of carbon after I had succeeded in making a quantity, as it had about the vilest odor on earth, but the rubber worked so beautifully that I danced a war dance over my success.
"Having now conquered both the mechanical and the chemical parts of the business, I made a number of ex-posures of objects of interest, succeded in getting beautiful negatives and gave out a few prints, when public sentiment again changed, and my old friend the village photographer suddenly evinced considerable interest in me, and succeeded in borrowing some of my best negatives, from which he made prints and peddled them out.

EARLY MORNING EXPOSURES. "My success in outdoor photography I know to be due to the fact that all of my work was done before 6 o'clock in the morning in summer, due to my other pressing engagements. I looked on this as my misfortune at that time, but now realize that my success depended on and was due to that very fact. Any man who has seen a good wet plate negative has seen something that is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. For a while I became the lion of the town, and received invitations to photograph everybody's house. I confined my attentions to landscape photography, however, and after a year's work I printed a business card and purchased a single landscape lens, which was a chromatic. My success was very satisfactory afterward. We labored under difficulties in those days that are unknown now. For instance, if your plate dried between the sensitizing and developing, no development could be had, so a landscape photographer had to pick out his picture, set his camera where it pleased him, and after the ground was satisfactory, the time of day for the exposure and pins put into the ground to indicate the position of the tripod legs, if the place was at a distance from a laboratory a horse and buggy with a driver was waiting.

After sensitizing the plate it was put into the holder, and taking the outfit into the buggy the horse was whipped into a run. After reaching the place the exposure was made and the same means was taken to get back to the laboratory in the shortest space of time. If it was made within an hour the result was fine, if not the film was insoluble, and you had your labor for your pains. I succeeded in improving the keeping qualities of my plates until at last I could sensitize plate and have it keep a week before it began to deteriorate, and by means of negative albumen-I made my films adhere to the plates so strongly that nothing but boiling lye would re move them, an achievement I worked out myself and without help or suggestion except from scientific journals, and any poor misguided creature who places implicit confidence in the infallibility of articles that may appear from time to time in scientific papers is bound to have his confidence considerably shattered. As a rule, people who make their bread and butter by a vocation are apt to guard all the tricks of the trade with which scientific writers are not familiar, thus leading an amateur into considerable

"About 1876, during the centennial year, dry plates were discussed by scientists, which led to my attempting and after a year's effort succeeding far beyond any commercial plate on the market at that time. The difficulties I had in working this process will make any gelatin worker grin with delight, and it makes my side ache now when I remember how long it took me to learn the relationship between heat, moisture and temperature of the room. One day I could make a hundred photos and not lose one, and the next day I could not coax the gelatin to stick to anything. I overcame all of these difficulties, until I understood the natural laws governing the process, and at last knew on just what kind of a day dry plates could be made in my workshop and when not to try it because of certain failure.

"Under the above condition of the art I often wonder how large our society of amateurs would be if they were compelled to pursue their fad hampered by such difficulties. We didn't waste a dozen plates on a dog fight in those days, and make prints to inflict on our suffering friends." - Chicago

BLOOD POISONING.

Terrible Suffering of a Prince Edward County Farmer.

Hospital Treatment Failed to Benefit Him and His Life Was Despaired Of-Again Well and Strong.

[From the Belleville Sun.] A reporter of the Belleville Sun recently had an opportunity to investigate a cure made through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which is little short of miraculous. The subject of the cure is Mr. William H. Conklin, a well known farmer, who lives in Ameliasburg town-, Prince Edward county. When reporter drove over to see Mr. When the Conklin, he was under the impression, from what he had heard of the case, that he would find a partial invalid, but to his surprise found a stalwart, robust man of six feet, actively engaged unloading logs from a sleigh. making known the object of his visit the reporter was invited into the house and Mr. Conklin gave his story as follows:

You can see for yourself that my condition is now one of good health and yet I have been near death's door A year ago last summer I injured my hand, with the result that blood poisoning set in. A doctor was called in and the usual treatment given and the hand apparently got well, and I started to work. It soon turned out, however, that the poison had not been entirely got rid of, and it spread through my whole system. The doctor was again called in, but looking upon my case as critical, advised me to go to the hospital at Belleville. This I did and remained there throughout the month of October, 1897. My condition was desperate, and as I was not making any progress toward recovery, I may frankly say that I gave my case up as hopeless. Believing that I could not recover, I asked to be taken home. I then tried various treatments with no better results. I could not walk without help, and I was doubled up like a jack-knife. At this stage was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and sent for half a dozen boxes. After using the first half-dozen my appetite returned and night-sweats, which had been the bane of my sleeping hours deserted me. Knowing that pills were helping me I sent for a further supply. Meanwhile a swelling came in my hip, which finally broke and from that on my progress was more rapid, and I am again as sound as ever, and able to do a day's work with anyone. I can only add that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought me to my present state of good health and so long as I live I shall praise the remedy that brought me back from the verge of the grave." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by gong to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is inclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark. BRITAIN'S POLICY UNSELFISH

Her Imperialism Benefits the Whole World-Begrudges No Other

The imperialist policy of England in the present day is easily confused with nationalist policy which we have the abandoned; but it differs from it ab solutely and entirely, says Prof. William Cunningham, of Cambridge University, in the July Atlantic. Last century we sought to maintain political power here, so as to continue to control and direct and develop the resources of this territory in the interest of England; we make no such attempt anywhere today. It is the constant complaint of our manufacturers that they have to contend with obstacles in our own dependencies; that Lancashire mills are restricted in their operation by factory acts which do not apply in Bombay; and that our own colonies set up hostile tariffs against us. According to the present economic policy of the English government we never grasp at exclusive advantages for English producers or consumers, but simply maintain fair play for all-English, American, French, German or any one else. It is a cosmopolitan policy-the policy that is necessary for ourselves, but a policy which leaves all others free to take advantage of all the markets and all the industrial opportunities

The difference between the old nationalism and the new cosmopolitanism

comes out very clearly in the attitude we take, in our new possessions, toward the capital and industry of other civilized nations. We are exercising control in Egypt, with considerable difficulty and under great provocation; but the French capitalist does not want to get rid of us. He is taking a large part in the industrial and trading development of the country. We have lately opened up the Nile Valley, at our own expense, but we do not restrict the advantages that come from it to Englishmen. Our government know that the American method of bridge building is more rapid, and they adopt it, and our own ironmasters get very little sympathy, either from the government or the public, when they grumble. We think the English engineers had better learn by experience, and that it is good for them to be made to keep up with the times. The English subjugation of India by Clive was of no direct advantage to the colonies here, for at that time we were working on national lines; but the policy of England in Egypt and on the Nile, at the present day, is just as beneficial to the American as to the English manufacturer. The United States are reaping advantage from our imperial-Ism, and we do not grudge it to Americans or any one else.

stamped on the medal round the edge. The medal is intended for a general service war medal. The special applicability will be designated by clasps, of which three are authorized, bearing respectively these insorptions: "Fenian Raid, 1866," "Fenian Raid, 1870," and "Red River,

For years the agitation for these medals has been in progress. A memorial, beautiful in construction, in royal purple morocoo gilt back and edge, was addressed to Her Most Gracious Majesty. Some 800 memorials were sent out and signatures were obtained from Cabinet Ministers of the local governments, mayors of cities and towns and prominent public men in all parts of Canada.

The medals are to be distinctly known as general service war medals, not general service medals, as commonly stated. A veteran of the two Fenian raids and the Red River rebellion would receive the medal and three clasps. For active service that may be performed by Canadian militiamen in the future, medals such as these will be given, with suitable clasps. The final clause of the memorial,

SOME GREAT LOVERS.

Byren, Tem Moore, Heine and Goothe Loved Fervently and Often.

Byron was feolishly jealous of every woman he ever loved. His loves ran well nto two figures, and he managed, sooner Heinrich Heine, the poet, was also serribly jealous. One day he poisoned a parret belonging to his ladylove, for fear is should claim too much of her attention.

"The Rivals" is a true story of Sheridan's courtship, the character of Lydia Languish in the life play being taken by Miss Lindley, who later became the author's wife. Thomas Moore was always in love. If one looks through his poems one may and the names of some 16 different ladies to whom he swore eternal fidelity.

The Disappearing Horse.

On no less authority than that of Colmade that at no distant time a cart or carriage drawn by herse or other animal will be a curiosity in the cities of the world, and in most of the rural districts as well. Colonel Pope foreshadows the reign of electricity as the power for horseless vehicles, and shows that a motor carriage, while it may cost more than the ordinary carriage, costs far less for its care and keeping, can be recharged with lectric power at small expense and on the shortest notice, and will do as much work as a vehicle drawn by two or four borses. Colonel Pepe pradicts the speedy supremacy of the horseless carriage, and the change will be gladly welcomed not only by those who appreciate the economy of the new power, but also by all who greater cleanliness of our streets,

A POPULAR OFFICIAL.

Lieut.-Col. Pinzuit, Deputy Minister of Militia-For Many Years an Officer -Once an M.P.P.

The accompanying cut very fairly portrays the features of one of the most popular and efficient officials in Ottawa. In his short career as Deputy-Minister of The Medals Are the Product of the Militia, Lieut Col. Pinault has come before the public in a most favorable light. He has none of that offensive reserve and haughty bearing that certain brother deputies and lesser officials seem -Some Medals Given by Other to think sit so becomingly upon them. The free and unaffected Major Pinault that you met a year ago on the streets of Quebec is the same Lieut.-Col. Pinault who holds the high position of Deputy deferential to the great nor overlearing with the small. The least in the land having business with the Militia Department can be assured of courteous and honest treatment at the hands of the big soldierly looking fellow who fills the post visional Rimouski Battalica, and the very next year took the field against the Fenian raiders. For some weeks his battalion was in barracks at Rimouski. Encamped in a barn, the Rimouski boys were an object of considerable curiosity to the habitant from below Quebec, who asked if the Englishmen were coming back. Pinault acquired rank after rank in the Rimouski Battalion, until finally, when called to the bar in the city of Quebec, he was made captain of the 9th Battalion, "Voltigeurs de Quebec." He went with the Voltigeurs to the Northwest in the rebellion of 1885, and his conduct there will live long in the memory of the men of the gallant 9th. Captain Pinault was indefatigable in earing for his men, and his invariably good temper and cheerful disposition did much to take the rough side from soldiering in the cold Northwest. When he came back to Quebec he was promoted to the rank of major, and though now a lieutenantcolonel, he will be a long time outliving "Major" Pinault of the Voltigeurs.

In politics Col. Pinault has been a Liberal, and captured Matane in 1890, but the wave that wrecked the Mercier ship likewise submerged Pinault. He went down before Flynn, but the latter electing to sit in Gaspe, having run in two constitue cies, the Pinault waved again over the electoral division of Matane. There is none of the bigot, says his biographer, about Lieut.-Col. Pinault. In religious and racial questions he has given abundant illustration of his broadminded views. He is the man who organized Le Soleil, which made its appearance the very day the Archbishop of Quebec interdicted l'Electeur. He took the management of the new company, which with no interruption, continued the work of l'Electeur on precisely the

The French Aristocrat Who Hates the "Peasant President."

The Comte de Dion, who has won for himself a conspicuous place among the ruffian wing of the Royalist party in Paris, is one of the decayed noblemen who move in the set of the erratic and featherbrained Count de Castellane. Dion was one of the loudest in the shameful attack made upon President Loubet at the race track on June 4. His two weeks' sojourn in prison only served to make him all the more popular with the scorbutic aristocracy of which he is a noble exemplar. The Count is the owner of an automobile factory and does not think it beneath him to enrich himself with the dollars that come out of the grime and grease of the shop. At the same time he proclaims his hate for the "peasant President." In olden days his ancestors had power of life and death over their peasants, and the fact that M. Loubet, peasant born, has the power of pardoning a convicted nobleman does not rest easy on Monsieur le Comte's great soul. Dion has not been very active in politics, but now, having insulted the President, it is not impossible he will try for the Cham-

Facts and Figures About the Next Competing Yachts.

Lipton's Shamrock -Times Speculation as to Her Euild From the Glimpse Obtained at Her Launching-The Yacht Columbia, the New American Oup Defender.

The Lendon Times says of the build of Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, the Shamrock: "So far as could be judged during the very short time the vessel's underwater body was visible, there has been no radical departure with regard to shape. There are the long counter raking the stern post and overhang forward that characterizes the modern racing yachts. The profile of the bow slopes easily and gradually aft, until perhaps a third of the length is reached, and then the outline takes a sudden dip down almost in a vertical line.

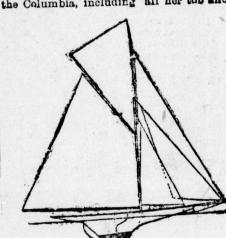

"The midship section may be described as that of somewhat shallow bodies, the vessel having an extremely easy entrance and delivery; and, depending from this structure, is a large and approximately flat surface, which will afford the necessary lateral resistance for keeping the vessel to the wind.

"If the body plan be compared with that of the Defender it may be judged that the Shamrock has the flatter floor and the squarer bilge and will therefore possess more stability of form than her

"In regard to the dimensions nothing more than a guess can be given; but it may be supposed that the yacht will build up to her full size and will probably be over 90 feet on the water line. For this length she possesses considerable beam. Certainly the Shamrock is not a narrow craft and differs most materially from some earlier cup challengers.

"The lead is evidently carried in the way now usual with racing yachts. The keel is slightly bulbous in form as in the Defender. That is to say the cross section dimensions are greater at the bottom than they are higher up and nearer the main body. There is, however, nothing approaching the hideous bulb keel that was so common a year or two ago with many racing craft."

The yacht Columbia is said to be the largest and costliest vessel ever designed for purposes of sport. Of all the things about the Columbia the most impressive is the power of her sails. In a fair wind they are equal to the engines of a fast steam yacht. The Columbia displaces 145 tons. A steamer of that size, in order to equal her speed, would need engines of 1,500 horsepower. The total sail area of the Columbia, including all her top and head sails, is 19,945 square feet. That includes the mainsail, 7,475 square feet; the jib, 1,850 square feet; the topsail, 1,400 square feet; the jib topsail, 1,620 square feet, and the spinnaker, 7,000 square feet. The lead in the keer of the Columbia weighs 90 tons.

The running rigging to be used on the Columbia is one and one-half miles in length. Here are the chief items in this rigging calculation:

Mainsheet, 770 feet; throat halliards, 462 feet; mainsheat jig, 308 feet; peak halliards, 800 feet; jib halliards, 300 feet; jib jig, 270 feet; jib downhaul, 180 feet; staysail halliards, 230 feet; jib topsail halliards, 600 feet; spinnaker halliards, 600 feet; topsail halliards, 850 feet; topsail sheet, 200 feet; topsail tack, 90 feet; jib topsail sheets, 250 feet; jib sheets, 180 feet; staysail sheets, 100 feet; spinnaker boom lift, 240 feet; spinnaker boom guys, 180 feet; spinnaker boom overhaul, 200 feet; spinnaker boom sheet, 80 feet; balloon jib sheets, 150 feet; balloon jib downhaul, 250 feet; reefing tackle on main boom, 100 feet; club topsail halliards, 350 feet; club topsail guy, 800 feet; club topsail tack, 90 feet; boom tackle, 130 teet; quarter lifts, 180 feet; quarter lift tackles, 660 feet; topmast backstays, 240 feet; topmast backstay tackle, 200 feet masthead runner tackles, 200 feet. The rope used in the Columbia's rigging averages an inch in thickness. A steel mast has been built for the Columbia, and she may sail either with this or a wooden one. The steel mast is, of course, hollow. It is 110 feet high and 60 inches in circumference at the thickest part. There will be at least 40 men to haul on the mainsail, as one or more of the owners and officers are sure to take a hand in the work when there is need for it. The 39 sailors on the defender will get $35 a month apiece. For a season of five months they will draw $6.825 in pay. Their food will cost $10 a month apiece.

season. The matter of salaries and food alone will cost over $12,000. No one can accurately predict how much it will cost to sail a yacht like the Columbia for a season-not even the owners. It is probable, says The New York Journal, that it will reach finally a total of $500,000.

Britain's Premier Owes Much to His Good Wife's Devotion-Their Errly Life.

The face of the Marquis of Salisbury is familiar, but that of his wife is not, and more than ordinary interest attaches to her because this man, the head of the noble house of Cecil and England's Premier, braved parental displeasure and toiled for some years in comparative poverty in order to marry her.

Lady Salisbury unites the higher qualities of mind with the love of domesticity and has been her noted husband's helper and trusty confidante throughout his career. If she had neither wealth nor social standing to bring him she had inheritance of goodness and culture. Her father was Eon. Sir Edward Hall Anderson, Baron of the Court of Exchequer, noted as a scholar and wit. She was one of a large family of brothers and sisters and her father's companion. The society she went in comprised the elite of the legal and literary worlds. In her youth Lady Sallsbury, without being a beauty, was a fine and striking girl, tall, fair and of commanding carriage. She charmed Lord Robert, the second son of the then Marquis of Salisbury, but his father would not hear of the match. His son insisted on marrying his sweetheart and the father cut him off with no allowance. For some years Lord Robert Cecil and the young wife lived in lodgings off the Strand and supported themselves out of the husband's literary earnings. The death of his elder brother and his father gave Lord Robert the marquisate and from then on Lady Salisbury has reigned at Hatfield House, the wife of a distinguished peer, who has four times

In Algerian expeditions in 1860, 1864, 1865 and 1868. he rendered great service, and his regiment of African chasseurs, with their splendid action, efforted unstinted admiration from the Prussian King himself during the Franco-Prussian war. At the siege of Paris he commanded a brigade in Versailles. When the army was reorganized the Marquis was nominated general. He is one of the most uncempromising Dreyfusites in Paris.
