Britain Menaced by United States Expansion.

MONROEISM MAY CAUSE WAR

On the Other Hand, the Spectator Says the Dectrine is Good for Both Countries.

London, Aug. 31.-"A hatred rivalry which may some day be settled by the arbitrament of the sword" seems to fairly sum up the Saturday Review's opinion the relations between Great Britain and the United Sates. Discussing President Roosevelt's pronouncement on Monroeism, the always bitter anti-American Saturday Review uses the president's speech as a text on which to enunciate long sermon on "American Greed and Hypocrisy" and the danger threatening the British empire from the United States' future expansion. It says, in reviewing the history of the Monroe doc-

"It is unfortunate, if not exceptional, that the United States cannot be satisfled with the plain, straightforward policy of self-interest without attempting to explain it as a disinterested and highly moral position. It was on this basis that the war with Spain was undertaken, resulting in the Philippines being annexed and Cuba being put under the heel. South America's natural resources are enormous, but the individual states cannot act together. It is plain that they will not long resist American exten-sion southward, and American protection from European aggression will soon in-cubate into occupation by the United States."
Proceeding to discuss the effect of Monroeism on the British empire, the Sat-urday Review says:

"The United States is the only great "The United States is the only great power separated from the British empire by nothing but a land frontier and it is the settled object of the United States to ultimately include Canada. The United States is commercially growing fast at our expense and judging from its present progress the power of the United States in wealth and numbers will soon exceed that of any rival we have, possibly excepting Russia, whose position in relation to United States. possibly excepting Russia, whose n in relation to United States territorially is not nearly so critical. UNITED STATES NOT BRITAIN'S FRIEND. "Under those circumstances it is surely clear that the power we need be concerned about is America. Acute ritorial and commercial rivalry always results in an ultimate trial by force. It is the only final settlement. If that is is the only final settlement. If that is so the policy of either country must be to avoid doing anything which can increase the other's power or give it points in the struggle. On that principle the In the struggle. On that principle the United States has steadily acted in opposing us diplomatically, never conceding a point. We, on the other hand, have usually gone out of our way to help the United States, as in the matter of the Isthmian canal. We lost ground and America gained. The only balancing advantage would be such consequent and active friendship on the part of America that we might count on her as meeting that we might count on her as meeting us half-way by abstaining from injuring

"Of such friendship the Saturday Review has shown again and again that there is neither evidence nor likelihood. There is no question of liking or disliking There is no question of highly or disting the Americans. It is simply a question of which shall ultimately get the better of the other side. The controlling factors make it impossible to put the position of the two countries in any other way.'

AN OPPOSITE VIEW. by the Spectator on the same topic. It says:
"We are glad in the interests of the United States and Great Britain, and the peace of the rest of the world, that President Roosevelt announced in such clear and unmistakable terms that the Morroe and Mo and unmistageble terms that the Monroe doctrine will be enforced by the United States at all costs. The Monroe doctrine is a danger to peace only if and while it is undefined. All authoritative statements of the nolicy of the United States in this particular are therefore most wel-

"We hold that the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine is as good for us as for the United States. We like the United States have no desire to see the status que violently altered by the efforts of out violently altered by the efforts or continental European states to carve out for themselves colonial empires in Central and South America. It would suit us no more than the United States to see Germore than the United States to see Germany established in Southern Brazil or elsewhere on the western continent."

Proceeding to point out that Monroestem cannot rest on air, and that unless based on power it is sure to be exposed, to be pushed aside and disregarded, the Spectator continues:
"The power on which it must primarily

"The power on which it will rest is sea nower. If the European states know that America has enough sea power of conferce the Monroe doctrine, it will to enforce the Monroe doctrine it will be scribulously respected. The moment they see the doctrine is based only on paper it will be disregarded. To make the doctrine effective America must build a fleet unquestionably stronger than that of France or Germany. She need not trouble to outbuild us, as we no merely series to, but may be said to be passive supporters of the Monroe doctrine."

War Balloon,

London, Aug. 30.-Engineering prints a description of the type of balloon ordered by the French war office. An attempt is to be made to send it across the Desert of Sahara. The balloon will not be manned. The sole living occupants will be six pigeons, which will be in the lower compartment of Water ballast will be carried in a tank suspended by wire ropes below the car. Attached to the valve is brass wire, twelve meters long, bearing a steel ball weighing twenty kilos, which will keep the valve closed, except when the weight of the steel ball is removed, as when it touches the ground. The valve will then open, the water will flow, and the balloon will go up again. Even after a loss of a portion of water the valve will remain so long as the steel ball is suspended. The upper division of the car is provided with a camera, which is capable of taking a photograph every fifteen minutes. The car will also carry a hydrometer, a barometer, and thermometer. All the instruments are capable of working five days. There are also arrangements for the escape of pigeons when the balloon strikes the ground. There will be a small internal air balloon of 568 cubic meters. The balloon itself will be of 1,000 cubic meters. will accompany the balloon. It will be composed of varnished cambric and inflated with illuminating gas, and will carry a sail. The total weight will not exceed 170 kilos, including the entire equipment.

The Albert Memorial.

[Special to the Advertiser.] London, Aug. 30.-The Albert Memorial in Hyde Park, which has not been thoroughly overhauled since was completed in 1872, has fallen into great disrepair. The mosaics, gildings, etc., are in very bad condition. The memorial is now surrounded by scaffolding. It has been examined by experts, and will be thoroughly restored. An examination has revealed the fact that the memorial bears evidence of the late Queen Victoria's love and esteem for her consort to a greater extent than was ever ex-

At a meeting at the Mansion House in 1862 for the purpose of organizing subscriptions for a national memorial to Prince Albert, the voluntary contributions amounted to £60,000. Par-

Queen Victoria then announced that she would personally contribute to the found for the erection of the memorial in order that it might be recounted in future ages that it was raised by the Queen and people of a grateful coun-

The amount of the Queen's contribution was not divulged at that time, but it was generally understood to £10,000, making the total cost £170,-000, or $600,000. The examination now shows that the memorial probably cost about £500,000, or $2,500,000.

Everything for the restoration the memorial will have to be specially made, just as everything used in its construction was. The cost of repairs is estimated at between £8.000 and £10,000.

London, Aug. 30.-Montagu Holbein's almost successful attempt to swim the channel from Cape Grisnez to Dover, when he stayed in the water 22 hours and 21 minutes, and got within half a mile of shore, aroused great interest. The general impression, especially among channel pilots, is that Holbein added immensely to the difficulties of his task by selecting the course from France to England. The currents mostly set in toward the French coasts, as is proved by the fact that wreckage generally drifts there, rather than to the English side.

With the conditions as favorable as they were, the opinion is that he would have succeeded if he had followed the course taken by Capt. Webb. Holbein himself is almost converted to the same opinion. He is wonderfully well after the severe strain. Beyond a stiffness of arms, shoulders and legs, and a sore throat and mouth, caused by swallowing sea water, he feels little the worse for his experience.

After a temporary collapse when he was taken out of the water, he walked the length of the pier with the assistance of the arm of a friend on either side. Capt. Webb, after his swim, waded out and walked on the beach without assistance.

In describing his swim, Holbein says that for the most part of the time his mind was a blank, as he tried not to he made 25,000 strokes in his swim across the channel, and this fully accounts for the stiffness of his limbs. He mile from the shore, but the western tides set in strong and sent him out

The president of the swimming club who was in a tug, discovered that Holbeing was in a current, which in his feeble condition would be sufficient to drown him. Holbein admits that at the time he was in desperate straits. Replying to a question which was much debated on the tug and at Dover, whether the last hour or two alcoholic stimulants would not have been advantageous to him, he said he did not believe that they would. "My own experience has proved this point,' he says. "The only exception I have made is about ten minutes before the end of an especially big feat of endurance, such as the 24 hours of cycling, when I take a little egg and brandy. The reaction after alcoholic stimulants during such undertakings I have found to be terrible."

THE BOER GENERALS

They Arrive in London and Refuse To Be

Interviewed. [Special to The Advertiser.]

London, Aug. $1.-The Boer generals and their assistants arrived in London this morning, crossing, in the special steamer Batavia, which was placed at their disposal. They adhere to their previous policy of refusing to be interviewed, but it is understood that they hope to meet Prime Minister Balfour and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, during the week, and discuss various matters affecting the future administration of the South African colonies, such, for instance, as the Boer representation in the administrative coun-Referring to the visit to The Hague Adjutant Ferreira, the son-in-law of Gen. Dewet, says they found Mr. Kruger in the best of health. The London papers, he said, greatly exaggerated the differences between the generals and the leaders in Holland. They were on the most friendly terms, although, of course, there may have been slight differences of opinion in regard to the future policy. The disagreement, however, did not amount to anything serious, and he added: "We do not consider the cause hopeless." Speaking of the statements that Mr Kruger had lost confidence in the Boers, and resigned their leadership to Gen. Botha, Mr. Ferreira said: "There can be no nominal leadership now, but if it came to a test I think the people would put their trust in the fighters." He concluded by saying that judging from the subscriptions that were being received there was no truth in the report that the feeling on the continent had changed.

Joseph Chamberlain, the Colonial Secretary, in a speech at Birmingham today, referred to the unpreparedness of Britain for war at the beginning of the recent campaign in South Africa. He expressed his opinion that the coping with such trouble as that they had just emerged from. They would always have to call upon voluntary patriotism to supplement the defects of the regular service. It was mainly. if not wholly, due to the assistance of volunteers that they had come successfully out of the campaign just concluded.

SERIOUS STRIKES IN PROGRESS

The Labor Situation Has Become Acute in Florence.

[Special to Advertiser.] London, Sept. 1.—Serious strikes of municipal employes are in progress in various continental centers. The lighting and traction industries are chiefly affected. The situation as most acute in Florence, where the gas connections have been covered and the cafes are all closed. The newspapers could not be published today. An attempt was made to burn the English Protestant Church. Petroleum was poured on the door and ignited, but the fire was extinguished. Fifty thusand troops have been drafted for service in the district. Anarchist element is mixed up in the strike. Another strike is reported from Barcelona, where the gas employes have ceased work. A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Geneva reported that Mr. Bradford. the American manager of electric tramways, dismissed 42 men from the workshops. He offered them positions as conductors, but they refused and all the employes went on strike. On Sunday there was not a single car running and the town is crowded with tourists

TWO NOTABLE EVENTS Bearing on the Racial Crisis in South Africa. [Special to the Advertiser.] London, Aug. 30 .- There were two notable events in the Cape Parliament during the past week which will have an important bearing on the racial crisis in South Africa. Both come at a most opportune moment for the Boer leaders in Europe in the struggle with the British Government for concessions toward rehabilitating their people. The first is the decision of the Cape think of anything. He calvulates that Legislature to appoint a commission of its own to take evidence and report on the operation of martial law in the colony throughout the war. The second, which is perhaps more signifisays that he had the greatest hopes cant, is Dr. Jameson's assumption of through the Needles owing to the of succeeding, when he was half a practical leadership of the opposition to the ministry of Sir Gordon Sprigg, with the immediate suspension of the constitution as a policy. The effect of each of these steps is to make deeper and clearer the alignment of the forces of the Afrikander Bond, which is now master of the parliamentary situation in the colony, the remnants of the Rhodes party, and the so-called progressives. The appointment of the commission is a distinct challenge to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, whose own commission on the same subject, composed of Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, Judge Bigham and Major-General Sir John C. Ardagh, will begin to hear evidence in the colony next week, not only rings his bell, but wails like Despite the prominence and standing of these men, it is already obvious that it is the Parliamentary Commission alone which will enjoy confidence of the Cape Dutch who were chiefly affected by martial law. The appearance of Dr. Jameson as a party leader can only be said to mark the present barrenness of Cecil Rhodes political heritage. The appearance of the leader of the famous raid in the center of the political stage at this juncture is one of those things that make the Bund leaders rub their hands and laugh. It will surely spare them the trouble and expense of electoral convassing. For Mr. Chamberlain, however, it is all

Serious Matter. His refusal to suspend the constitution was conditional on the good behavior of the Cape Parliament. But, however troublesome politicians and their Boer sympathizers at the Cape have now become, it is out of the question that Mr. Chamberlain should take his orders from Dr. Jamieson. . The Boer leaders, who are coming to London tonight with their astute political manager Delegate Abram Fischer, will certainly not fail to use their political advantage. Precisely what they seek, besides money and an understanding on the question of education is not known yet, but their claims will probably appear more reasonable to Secretary Chamberlain, when he remembers the dire trouble they can make with the racial commission in South Africa by reviving all the angry passions of the last three years and looks at the spectacle of Dr. Jamieson as a loyalist political leader. Gen. Brabant, commander of Brabant's Corps, during the fighting in South Africa, sailed today for the Cape. Speaking of the political situation-Gen. Brabant expressed the opinion that it was not satisfactory. He added: "We are in danger of losing everything that we gained by the war."

diving is very singular. The increased pressure on the hull caused by the submersion can be distinctly felt. He attributes this to the deadening of vibration through submersion. There is plenty of light from the electric lamp. A sort of greenish haze slants through the glass scuttles of the conningtower. At a depth of two fathorns one can tell by peering through one of these whether the weather is cloudy or the sun is shining on the water. The first sense is one of numbness, but he is inclined to believe that this is more fanciful than real and is caused by a feeling of helplessness. There is no perceptible vibration to the boat even when the hull is submerged at a speed of seven knots, except for a slight tremor caused by the working of the gasoline engine. The sense of silence is profound. The longest time they were under water was three hours and twenty-seven minutes. Towards the finish he felt slightly nauseated. Two of the men aboard were very sick. The ringing in the ears seemed to be the chief trouble. All seamen on submarine boats, so this sailor man said, speedily grow pale. The seaman said he did not like the life.

Torpedo Boat Attack. It transpires that a night attack by torpedo boats from Portsmouth has been successfully made on the Isle of Wight forts. The idea of the flotilla was to force a passage through the Needles and so obtain an entrance to Spithead and Portsmouth harbor. Although the searchlights from the forts were turned over the water, two

The Leading Manufacturers Propose to Amalgamate.

[Special to the Advertiser.] London, Aug. 30 .- The Evening Standard understands that negotiations have recently been going on between leading manufacturers steel trade with the object of an amalgamation of their works and erection of a British trust resembling the United States corporation. A definite stage has not yet been reached, but in well informed quarters the completion of the arrangements is confidently expected. Only those works which are in a specially strong position will be admitted to the trust. The prime movers in the scheme have identified with certain recent trade amalgamations, therefore it is anticipated that there will be a successful issue to the present negotiations. The new trust will copy American lines in abolishing antiquated works and plants, and expects to create an organization capable of opposing American and German competitors at home

KITCHENER'S EPIGRAM

Tells Youth to Make His Own Autograph Worth Something-Royal Names Popular.

London, Aug. 31.—England is about to seize Swaziland. This little South African native state, about the size of Massachusetts, was under protection of the Transvaal, and at the close of the war has been placed under the guardianship of Great Britain. It is rich in coal and gold, and has fertile valleys, but its resources have never been developed.

The gold hunters are bent upon the opening of Swaziland and an eruption is already taking place across its borders. Its gold mines, according to indications, may prove as rich as any in South Africa.

AMBITION OF YOUNG MARQUIS. Among the scions of noble English families that are likely to be heard of in future, if early promises are fulfilled, is the young Marquis of Graham, heir to the dukedom of Montrose. Since his return from South Africa he has been speaking a good deal on social, commercial and administrative matters in a manner that has been attracting a great deal of attention and favorable comment.

"Now I learn," says a correspondent, "that he has determined to return to South Africa shortly to try to secure a seat in the House of try to secure a Colony, with the ob-Assembly of Cape Colony, with the oband the development of the shipping

If all the members of Parliament have had the same experience as Mr. J. Stroyan there is evidently no ground to fear regarding the peopling of South Africa with a British race. Mr. Stroyan is receiving letters at the rate, he says, of 300 a month from young men and women eager to go to South Africa. If each member of the Commons is having a similar experience, this would mean 201,000 young people a month making efforts to obtain employment in Great Britain's recently acquired countries in South Africa, or, at the same rate, 2,412,000 a year.

KITCHENER'S EPIGRAM. That Lord Kitchener's modesty is equaled only by his brusqueness, was proved the other day during his stay with Lord Londonderry at Wynyard Park. The hero of South Africa has been pursued by an army of autograph hunters and snap-shooters. Finally to one young man who had served in South Africa, Lord Kitchener turned and said, impatiently:

Young man, make your own autograph worth something. Mine is worth

Soldiers To Be Regularly Trained in Driving Automobiles.

Vienna, Aug. 31 .- For some time the Austro-Hungarian army administration has been devoting careful atten-tion to the development of automobiling and has already made sundry experiments with a view of ascertaining the most practical manner in which machines could be used to military advantage. Hitherto these trials have been almost exclusively restricted to automobiles for, heavy traction purposes and comparatively little has been essayed in regard to passenger trans-

the time the maneuvers are held. Heretofore the army has been de-pendent on the private individuals aced at its disposal by the different ms from whom the machines have een hired, but in future the military administration intends to annually select a number of suitable men from the ranks and to have them thoroughly trained, so that in an emergency there vill be no need to requisition civilian Northwest Farmers Are Looking Anxiously for Help.

Everything on Their Farms Is Ripening With a Rush.

81.—Hugh There is a boom just now in royal McKellar, chief clerk of the Manitoba Department of Agriculture, has given out the following statement regarding the harvest in the Northwest:

"We are having perfect harvesting weather. I might almost say too good,

"Seeding time was late, and as the seed was put in the ground in a short time, it can be readily understood that it must come on and be ready to cut at the same rate. A great part of our wheat has now been cut. Oats are ready, barley is cut. Binders in all parts of the Province are going from early morning until dark. Thousands eres are 'falling down' every day, but there are not sufficient men here

"Our crop is bigger and better than last year, and it must be handled quickly. Forty dollars a month was the wage offered a week ago; now those farmers not supplied are offering $45, $50, or even more for first-class men. "We require more than we estimated a week ago. I notice that many points from which delegates were not sent have not secured even a share of first supply, which is not at all looking forward to the excursions which start Aug. 31, Sept. and 2. I suppose they will be received in Winnipeg by delegates in the same manner as those who have already come. We will, therefore, try to secure our share of those who come. Our hope is in old Ontario. There is no doubt that the Government's estimate of 20,000 men required this year is correct. If 9,000 come on the next xcursions it may be possible to harvest our crop before the snow flies. The crop in most places is fairly easy to handle. Binders are doing their work well.

DUBLIN PEOPLE FEEL SLIGHTED

Vice-Regal Party Absent From Noted Horse Show.

LORD AND LADY DUDLEY SCORED

A Great Gathering of the Country Beauty and Fashion-Two Notable Engagements.

London, Aug. 30 .- This has been Dublin's week once more. The dear, dirty town was en fete for the annual celebrated horse show, which brings people from all parts of the continent, from America and the far-off east.

The Herald's special correspondent who has been over there for the week says that he has been to a good many horse shows, but that he has never seen Dublin so full. Sackville street, Dublin's fashionable thoroughfare, was so crowded that it was a matter of great difficulty for the queer Irish jaunting cars to make any progress. The weather, too, has been on its very behavior, not quite free from rain, but very near it, which was most fortunate, considering what the weather has been like all through this

VICE-REGAL PARTY ABSENT. Notwithstanding all this Dublin has not been either pleased or happy, strongly resenting being without the vice-regal party for the great week.

The whole effect was most charming. In the vice-regal stand were to be seen the colonial premier conversing with George Wyndham, who was pointing out all the attractions of the place. Nearby was Lady Grosvenor in palest gray, with green leaves and wearing her beautiful diamonds and pearls. Lady Iveagh, who was with husband, was dressed entirely in pale blue, with a white feather boa and blue hat trimmed with black ospreys. With her was Lady Rossmore, one of the prettiest women present. Women to Werk Days and Men at Night-Shop Girls Enlisted.

Chicago, Aug. 31.-The faminar messenger boy, so long identified with telegrams, is about to disappear, so far as the Western Union Company is concerned. This has been decided by the officials of the company having the matter in charge. The latest strike of the boys, the third disturbance in a month, sealed their fate.

The I. D. T. company, which supplies the messengers for the Western Union, has hired 400 girls to take the strikers' places, and after a trial of nearly a week it is declared that their services are eminently satisfactory The girls, or young women, for many of them have passed out of their teens, are to work in the downtown districts and the residence portions of the city during the day. HIGHER PRICES FOR MEAT THE GENERAL CONFERENCE

American Trust.

Prices Continue Rising in Germany-Talk of Meat Famine.

London, Aug. 31.-Dear meat is due more to the action of certain American trusts than to the closing of the ports against cattle," is what the president of the Board of Agriculture, R. W. Hanbury, told a meeting of farmers which he addressed at Shrewsbury yesterday, when defending the action of the Board of Agriculture in prohibiting the importation of stock. The cabinet minister also expressed his approval of the recent widening bases of taxation, and said he would not have been sorry if a further duty had been placed on flour, explaining that while it would raise the price of the food of the people half a cent, it would revive the milling industry of the country and give the farmers a proper supply of offals.

HIGH PRICES IN GERMANY. Berlin, Aug. 31.—The price of meat in Germany continues to rise, and the town councils and other bodies and the newspapers in every part of the empire, are discussing what is called the "meat famine." The butchers' guild advanced the price of meat this week from 24 to 5 the price of meat this week from 2½ to 5 cents per pound. A good steak costs 45 cents a pound in Berlin. Meats are generally reported statistically 26 per cent higher here now than in 1900, although in Rotterdam, Paris, Vienna and Buda-pest they are only 10 to 16 per cent higher.

Germany's more rapid advance is at-Germany's more rapid advance is autributed to the scarcity of home animals, the exclusion of foreign live stock, and the prohibition of canned meats, thus suspending large American imports. Hamburg figures show that the imports of American salt and smoked meats in 1901 were only 128,800 metric hundred-weights, against 205,300 in 1898. The imports of sausages have shrunk in the ports of sausages have shrunk in the time from 18,000 to 800 metric hundred-weights. Berlin slaughtered in July 5,110 fewer animals than in July, 1901, in spite of the increasing population, and the of the increasing population, and the slaughterings were further diminished in

Are Due to the Action of the Methodist Leaders to Confer at Winnipeg.

> Question of Western Missing Field To Be Dealt With.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 31 .- The quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Church of Canada meets in Winnipeg Saturday, Sept. 4, when it is expected 300 delegates will be in attendance.

The sessions of the conference, which will last probably two full weeks, will be held in Grace Church, the largest church in Western Canada. The last general conference met in Church. This is the first time the general conference has been held farther west than the western part of old Ontario. Winnipeg was selected because of the rapid growth of the great West, and because it was felt that the great field for the work of the church in the next ten years would be west of the great lakes. It was felt that to hold the general conference in the midst of the activity of the West would arouse all delegates to a sense of the importance of pushing the work in this field, while their presence in Winnipeg would enable them to study the problems of that new land at close range. The conference will be the most important that has yet been held. There is, first, the great question of supplying the growing home mission field in the West. Foreign missions will claim a greater share of attention than ever. With this will go the question of men. One proposal is, owing to the great extension of the field, to have three general superintendents instead of one-one for the Maritime Provinces, one for Ontario and Quebec and one for Western Canada. When the union took place there were two superintendents, each holding office for eight years, and it was intended that they would retire alternately, so that one vacancy would be filled at each quadrennial conference.

The general conference is the legislative body of the church, and to it is given the work of laying down the discipline which the annual confer-ences and smaller bodies enforce. The question of amusements will come up in the form of a motion to abolish a footnote to the general rule regarding specifically dancing and theatergoing. Many members hold that to single those amusements out, when others, perhaps worse, are left unnamed, is wrong, and contrary to the spirit of Methodism. The debate on this subject will be one of the most stirring ever heard in conference.

Delegates will be in attendance to represent the Methodist churches of England, Ireland and the United States, North and South.

Meeting of Detroit Citizens Called te Further Arbitration-Operators Opposed.

Detroit, Aug. 31. - As the result of an appeal from the Detroit Trades and Labor Council, Mayor Maybury yesterday issued a proclamation for a mass meeting in the Light Guards' armory next Wednesday evening in behalf of the striking coal miners, at which it is to be hoped to crystalize sentiment in favor of submitting the grievances of the miners in Pennsylvania and West Virginia to arbitration. This the mine owners refuse to LEGISLATIVE ACTION SUG-GESTED.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 31.-Persistent rumors were in circulation yesterday that a special session of the legislature may be called by Governor Stone in the interest of legislation looking to the arbitration of strikes in the anthracite region. It is understood that should there be a popular demand for the calling of the legislature to grapple with the question, a demand which should be imperative and unmistakable. representing the great unmistakable, representing the great mass of the people who have indirectly suffered by the coal strike, the governor would be constrained to call an extra session.

While no confirmation of these rumors can be secured from an official source, it is stated that a legislative solution to the grave situation in the strike region is possible. Governor Stone's leaning towards arbitration is pronounced and wall known to the pronounced and well known to the operators and miners.

HOPE STILL STRONG. Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 30.—At the close of the sixteenth week of the anthracite strike the talk of arbitration is again renewed. Despite the statements issued by the presidents of the coal carrying railroads that they will apply the property of the page is not agree to arbitration, the hope is still strong in the strike region that the influence now being brought to bear upon the operators will have the desired effect. It is reported here to night on good authority that President Mitchell will have a conference with United States Senators Quay and Penrose at the St. Charles Hotel, At-lantic City.

Some weeks ago at a meeting of the Peoples' Alliance, of this city, a committee was appointed to wait on the Pennsylvania senators and request them to use their influence to bring the miners and operators together Senator Quay gave his word that he would do all in his power to help bring about a settlement of the strike. It is said that yesterday President Mitchell and Senator Quay had a talk over the long distance telephone and they agreed to meet at Atlantic City and discuss the situation. It is also stated that Judge Smith, of the state superior court had in-formed the labor leader of the right of the legislature to take charge of the mines and advised him to meet the Republican state leaders and submit a plan to them for the enforcement of a settlement favorable to the OPERATORS OBSTINATE. A strike incident noted today tends to show the feeling of the operators toward all who favor arbitration or display their approval of anything of that nature. W. G. Hearst, manager of the Union News Company in this city, posted editorials, taken from the leading metropolitan press, about his place of business, and refused to remove them at the request of Mr Chase, superintendent of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company. He received notice to quit the premises on Sep-

ONLY ONE DEMONSTRATION. Tamaqua, Pa., Aug. 30.—The work of the strike leaders in cautioning their men that violence would be met with bullets from the troops has had its effect. This afternoon, outside of a flurry at Summit Hill, where strikers surrounded the home of a non-union man and made a wild demonstration, Toronto Sept. 12-20 the dust nuisance. Results which are considered fairly successful have been Toronto in 1898 in the Metropolitan nothing of an untoward nature occur-

At Lansford, however, there appears to be a deep under-current of dissatis-faction that would require little to surge it into the riotous condition that exister until this morning, when Gen. Gobin's strenuous order produced quiet. The strike leaders are loud in their denunciation of the order, and brand it as unnecessary, and issued in the interest of the corporations. Gen. Gobin denied this tonight, and while he admitted that the order was drastic in its nature, he considered that the situation fully warranted it. Today more men reported for work than on any other day since the strike began. They were put to work at No. 4 colliery, where the coal has been mined for the past week. A leading official of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company admitted tonight that 1,000 tons of coal are being mined and shipped daily. He said that Monday would see still more men at work.

On Monday an effort to mine coa here will be made. In this manner it is expected that in the course of a week or so every colliery in the Panther Creek Valley will be working. COAL LOWER. Coal of domestic sizes was to be had in New York Saturday for $10 a ton, while for several weeks it has selling at $11 and $12. It is believed the coal companies will soon release their reserve supplies of anthracite, and when this occurs prices will tumble to $6 and $7 a ton.

AUTO SCORCHING MUST BE STOPPED

The Fair Tragedy May Have Good Result in France.

MAYORS MAY REGULATE SPEED

New Ideas for Improving Roadways, Reducing Risk of Skidding and Laying Dust.

Paris, Aug. 31.—Despite contradictory statements of the Fairs' machinist, the opinion among automobilists is that Mr. John Alexander McCutcheon, of the original cause of the accident was

This raises the interesting question whether some means cannot be found of modifying the steering gear, so that even if a tire bursts the machine shall not swerve violently. M. Deutsche, who is still confined to his bed by some effects of his recent automobile accident, tells me that an accident similar to that of the Fairs' occurred a few days ago to his machine through the front tire bursting. The machinist, a very prudent and experienced autowas fortunately going only twelve miles an hour, and no one was hurt, but the automobile was upset. How to render the bursting of a tire as little dangerous as possible is the question of the day.

TO LIMIT SPEED.

The general sentiment among automobilists is in favor of actually limiting the speed to the capacities of automobiles for road work. M. Maurice Farmans observes that he is having built for his own personal use a machine unable to go faster than 50 kilometers an hour.

This movement is the result of the Fair accident. It is doubtful, however, whether manufacturers will refuse orders for machines capable hundred or more kilometers an hour. Estimates indicate that there are 8,000 automobiles now in the Department of the Seine. Three thousand three hundred and eighty-eight of these are registered as capable of going over 30 kilometers an hour.

MAYORS HAVE POWER. Recent automobile accidents have led to the publication of a government decree granting mayors throughout France full police power to regulate the speed of automobiles. This action is the result of many complaints that the existing laws are not enforced by the police in the neighborhood of fashionable watering places, which have been particularly dangerous lately for those using the roads.

The fifth automobile exposition will be held in the Grand Palais, on Dec. 10 to 25. In reply to a circular letter recently issued, Gustave Rives, the commissioner general, has received so many communications that he fears the building may not be large enough and the prospects are that there will be a rush for space.

Chauffeurs are still talking about the great speed made in the kilometer trials at Deauville, on Tuesday. The general belief is that a speed of 140 Invitations are out for the wedding of one of our most popular young ladies and a former Listowel young man.

Dr. Park, of Woodstock, is spending. figures because he is dissatisfied with the trial at Deauville in which a slight accident destroyed his chances.

CABMAN UP IN ARMS. Latterly the Auto-Velo, announced that MM. Gautier and Sacher had started at Cognac a public service of automobiles. The cabmen in the town are furious, and their ordinary language barely suffices to give expression to their sentiments. Some of them have, says the Auto-Velo, purchaser tin tacks, which they scatter about the streets of both the town and the neighborhood. The police have their eyes on them.

It is maintained by some officials here that a man should not be permitted to drive in public until he has taken out a certificate showing him to be an expert driver. Experience and resoursefulness are necessary to drive an automobile at high speed in safety, and these are not to be gained without going through the mill.

Meanwhile experiments are being made on improving roads, with a view not only to minimizing the risk "skidding," but also to keeping down TorontoSept. 1-19 | considered fairly successful have been obtained by distributing oil instead of water on highways that need consolidating rather than dissolving. But the results that are considered best of all are the outcome of experiments made by Mr. Hooley, county surveyor in Nottingham, England, who discovered that furnace slag, saturated with gas tar, makes a waterproof, dustproof, non-slippery and withal economically maintained road surface. Slag, as a substitute for granite, has long been acceptable. This new notion saturing it with tar gives promise of being a great boon to automobilists. for the dangers of skidding, to say nothing of the dust nuisance, will be reduced to a minimum.

LONDON, ONTARIO.

London, Monday, Sept. 1.

A Tariff Argument.

The Hamilton Spectator argued that the following articles, now on the free Het, should not be imported but supplied by Canadian labor: Lumber, logs, timber, Indian corn, flax, binder twine, copper, iron and steel wire, steel rails, barbed wire, galvanized wire and articles for government use (including locomotives, railway cars and dredges). The Advertiser gave what it thought were good reasons why these articles should be untaxed, and the Spectator replies categorically. As to timber and lumber, The Advertiser said:

"Free timber and lumber are a boon to the settlers of Manitoba and the Northwest, who cannot afford to pay for the long freight haul on Canadian

The Spectator replies:

"How much longer is the haul from say, Rat Portage to the plains of Manitoba and the Territories than it is from Northeastern Minnesota? Or does The Advertiser imagine that there is lots of timber along the south side of the international boundary?"

Surely the Spectator must know that one of the greatest drawbacks in Manitoba and the Territories is the high price of timber and lumber, due to the distance from the timber coun-The western farmers import most of their lumber from across the line, because the freight charges are would be simply holding the farmers up largely for the benefit of the Canadian railway companies. Is that the lumber, for geographical reasons, finds its way to bordering States, and the timber of Minnesota is more accessible to the Canadian Northwest. If there is anyfree exchange between the two countries it is in timber and lumber.

The Advertiser said: "Indian corn is wanted by the farmers to feed stock, and they would protest in a body against any attempt to restore the duty.

The Spectator says:

price of Canadian corn and of all corn to stock and lots of it. The farmers of this country did not imyear to shingle their barns with. Does the Spectator recollect the dressing this same argument gainst free stock-raising.

As to binder twine and barbed wire,

"Don't you know that the prices of binder twine and barbed wire (the use of which should not be permitted) up when the duty was thrown off, and have remained up?" The price of binder twine jumped up because of the scarcity of raw material. The tariff had nothing to do with it. The Canadian binder twine factories are still doing business and working full time. What use would an increase of the tariff be to the manufacturers unless it enabled them to Route.' collect higher prices from the farmers? The same can be said of a duty on barbed wire.

The Advertiser said: The manufacture of steel rails is bonused, which is the equivalent of a duty, and much more sensible." Says the Spectator:

"We'll leave that assertion to treated by the Free Trader of the Hamilton Times, simply repeating that steel rails should not be imported, but should be made in Canada."

We repeat, that the Government's plan of bonusing the iron and steel industries for a limited period was much wiser than raising the duties, and thereby handicapping to that extent the great iron and steel using industries. Mr. Clergue has the only steel rail plant in Canada, and he gets a bonus of $3 per ton on the pig iron and $3 per ton on the steel produced. Isn't that sufficient without a duty? The list, is at an end as a speaker in Ver-London Free Press, a Conservative paper, complains that the benus is too heavy as it is. When the present Government undertook to further encourage the steel rail industry in Canada by giving a contract to Mr. Clergue, for 25,000 tons, its action was denounced by Opposition members in the House of Commons. There was some force in the criticism, but it was not consistent coming from the professed champions of home industry at any

"Copper, iron and steel wire enter in-to iron and steel using manufactures, and are in a sense raw material."

The Spectator replies:

"Quite so: but are we to understand that raw material must always be imported? Are we to understand that it would be wrong to make something in Canada which is used by somebody in making something else?"

One way of encouraging manufac- sore turers is to make their raw materials as cheap as possible, thereby lightening the burdens of consumers as well. The Government chose that policy. It made sweeping reductions in the iron and steel schedule, besides extending the free list, in order to strike the shackles from the great iron and steel using industries and better enable them to compete in the markets of the world. The Spectator chooses to quarrel with that policy. The defect of any tariff system is that a duty on an article is a tax on every process of manufacture into which that article enters. A perfectly scientific tariff is out of the question. As to the articles for Government use, the Spectator says no one proposes a duty on these, but they should not be imported. We have not seen a Yes, 'tis a garret, let him know't who will:

There was my bed-full hard it was and list of them, but the Spectator mentions dredges, locomotives and railway cars. The Minister of Railways has explained that he gave the Kingston locomotive works all the orders it could fill and was obliged to purchase the remainder of the rolling stock in the United States, as it was urgently needed for the Intercolonial. We are not aware that any dredges were imported, but we know that Mr. Tarte is having dredges built in Canada. Does the Spectator lay down the principle that the Government should buy everything in Canada no matter how high the price is? We rather think the city of Hamilton accepts the lowest tender for civic contracts regardless of where it comes sary for Special Work. street.

With a Definite Object in View Two Years is Enough.

There is a general impression that, unless a would-be student spends four years in college, and is graduated with a degree, his education is incomplete. This is a narrow view of the matter. Of course, it is best, as a rule, for a boy or girl to take the complete general course, especially if it is undecided as to what one's future work is to be. Many a young man, however, has to begin work as a stenographer or as a clerk at an early age. He is not content in occupying a humble position all his life, and is ambitious, perhaps, to enter one of the professions. Most of his friends will tell him that it is impossible, unless he goes through college. He does not feel that he can afford to spend four years in doing that, and gives up in despair; when, if he only knew it, a two-year special course might furnish him with just the equipment he needs. It is even possible to take a special course and continue working at the same time. There are several young men at Princeton who are working their way through and fitting themselves to occupy high places in the world. They know experience at that time of stage life, and was acting as "second lead" when he gave up the boards to go to America. He came to me to find out how long it would require to take a course in literature and languages which would benefit him. I showed him that in two years he could get the best of the college course along those lines, and he is going to begin work next fall. He is earning a good living at present, but he is willing to earn less for two years that he may earn more in the future. It is an inspiration for him to take these studies while he is still young, and these two years of study will be the best investment he could make of his time and the money he has saved. He vill have an opportunity to do some writing while at college, and possibly he will be able to pay his way as he

I was attached at our embassy in Paris at that period, and became aware of all this by certain confidential reports by our secret agents which passed through my hands.
Truth to tell, we had at that time suspected the Princesse Narcisse of being a political agent, and she had therefore been closely watched. When I read the complete report up-on her unfortunate alliance and its tragic sequel, I could not at first believe it. But my own inquiries showed love and happiness could never be mine. The barrier of marriage was

I obtained leave, and traveling straight to Petersburg, found her in the private apartments assigned to her in the winter palace as dame d'honneur of the empress. And as we sat together I told her of my love, and of boudoir I had known so well in days the discovery I had accidentally made—the discovery that she was the wife of an exiled Nihilist.

She threw herself upon her knees The insta and confessed the truth. She told me that she reciprocated my affection, but that she had not loved me until after her romantic marriage and she had discovered the bitter truth regarding Kinski. She swore to me that she was no political spy; and then, in order to convince her of my love, I promised to preserve my secret. I handed to her the original report furnished by our agents, and she placed it in the fire, in silence watching the flames consume it. We mutually agreed never again to mention her marriage. She allowed me to hold her in my arms for a brief momentto kiss her lips for the first time. Then, bidding her farewell, I left with all desire for life crushed from my heart. I loved her with deep, fervent devotion. Her secret was mine, and I intended to carry it with me to the grave. Only one person could betray her—the unsuccessful assassin half to Hull. You shall have my own frozen six thousand versts from clothes and traveling kit. Zakharoff frozen St. Petersburg. He might denounce her. Arrest might come at any moment. For two years she had existed in daily suspense. I had now been trans-ferred to Rome, and we had met again quite unexpectedly. In that moment, as I sat by her side, all the old love returned. Her white bejeweled hand trembled in mine. She could not speak, so great was her emotion. Yes,

Ah! how many memories of the past were stirred within me at that moment when, my hand at her slim waist, the perfume from her chiffons rose and filled my nostrils. It was a sweet Parisian scent known as "Jardin de mon Cure." and whenever among the many others who have I smelt it upon a woman it always reminded me of my chaste unhappy well-beloved.

the Nihilist center in Petersburg demanding that, as she had joined them, she would return at once to the capital and ally herself actively with them in a scheme which would be fully explained on her arrival. "I received it this morning." she explained in a harsh, strained voice. "It is my death warrant." 'Why so?" I asked. "You cannot, of course, risk their displeasure by re-fusal. The peril would be too great. If you have no idea in common with the revolutionists, then you might, perhaps, assist the government" "And become a spy!" she whispered, horrified at the suggestion. "And perhaps save the life of emperor and empress," I added. "The Terrorists have wrecked your life. If you have information to the minister of police would it not be a just revenge?

"Revenge!" she echoed, "True, it would be a terrible one, but after all,' she added, bitterly, "my own situation cannot be altered. I am the wife of an exile. A man who is my legal husband stands between us."

"But your position is a perilous one. I pointed out. "If you do not ally yourself with the revolutionists, Kinski, from his Siberian tomb, will certainy denounce you as his wife; while if you consent to assist them in their plot you may find yourself arrested and sent to Sakhalin, as so many thousands have already been. There is but one alternative-you must enter the service of the political police.' And what satisfaction shall I obtain by hurrying dozens, perhaps hundreds, of hare-brained students and foolish young women away to Siberia?" "You can only save yourself by so doing," I pointed out. "Otherwise I feel certain that one day ere long you will find yourself within the Perisilni in Moseow.

She sighed. A slight shudder ran through her, and she stretched forth her hands to the burning logs. You believed once that I was a spy, and now you advise me to become one?" she said slowly in a hard voice. "Because it is imperative," I answered. "I urge you to act judiciously, otherwise your motives will be misderstood.' "But I cannot associate with murderers," she declared. "You must," I said, holding the letter in my hand. "Return at once to Petersburg and act with discretion in order to save yourself."

She burst into a flood of emotion. and bending I stroked her dark hair and tried to kiss her tears away. Until darkness fell I sat there talking earnestly with her, discovering that the real reason of her visit to Rome was in order to consult me. "You must not die!" I cried. "You must fly at once from Russia.' "But they will follow me. The vengeance of the Terrorists reaches to the furthermost ends of the earth.' "And what does the Minister Zak-

It was addressed to the chief of police of St. Petersburg by the exile Constantin Kinski who had, it peared, escaped from Siberia and returned in secret to Petersburg, rejoining his fellow conspirators. On his return lots had been cast for the removal of one of their number who was a spy, and he had drawn the fatal slip only to discover that he was compelled to murder the woman he had married and so cruelly wronged. Remorse had apparently seized him, for learning the name of the person whose life he was to take he had written this letter of explanation, adding that in these circumstances he preferred suicide, and that his body would be found in a cetain house.

The private letter from the minister accompanying it stated that the communication had been received at 6 o'clock that evening, and half an hour later, when the police visited the address given, they found the escaped convict Kinski cold and dead in a bare upstair room, having taken his life with the revolver lying upon the floor

MORALITY IN FICTION Famous Trials of Authors Charged

With Immoral Writing.

Trials of novelists in criminal courts on the charge of corrupting the public and underining morality and religion are not common occurrences. Flaubert was thus arraigned and tried by a jury for his "Madame Bovary," and that trial (which ended in an acquittal) is one of the most interesting events in the history of literary sensations. The critics now regard "Madame Bovary" as a highly moral book, while as literature it has become a classic. Some years ago Belgium had a literary "affair" which attracted attention in all artistic circles, even beyond the border. Two leading novelists, mille Lemonnier and George Ekhud, were indicted and tried at Bruges, a quiet ancient, conservative, and even puritanical town, for writing immoral of the prosecution were "L'Homme en stand by and allow you to sacrifice ary speech to the jury, and he was else. Most of Lemonnier's personal troubles and experiences connected with his literary tendency and artistic creed are made to befall the hero, a man of letters named Wildman, but certain domestic details and the final catastrophe of the novel. which is entitled "Less Deux Consciences" (The Two Consciences), are invented.

The plot of the novel may be briefly summarized as follows: Wildman, a novelist residing in Portmonde, an unprogressive Belgian city has excited the hostility of his townsmen by the ideas and methods of his literary work. He is a neo-Hellenist he shares the ancient Greek conception of harmonious development of body and mind; he believes in the purity of nature and the essential chastity of passion. He does not believe that the flesh is at war with the spirit and needs mortification and resistance. He holds this doctrine of the sinfulness of the body to be unnatural, blasill and hastily written that at first I phemous and superstitious, and he delights in the simple, natural, rude, import, but on second reading I fully but healthy, life of the plain people, attached to the soil and unconsciously realizing their oneness with universal life. Wildman is engaged in writing a novel describing the gradual evolution of human ideals, the decline of the present conception of duty and morality, and the return, in a modified form, to the religion of nature. He pictures the passing of mankind into terra libra where the will to live and the joy of life are the ruling principles of conduct, and self-abnegation has ceased to be a virtue. Wildman's open assault on the Christian religion and its moral code are resented by his fellowcitizens, and he finds himself isolated. socially ostracized. His domestic life, at first thoroughly happy, elouded, and, finally, intolerable. His wife is a devout Roman Catholic, and as such wholly out of sympathy with his notions. Her affection for him slowly fades away, and she grows to regard him as a lost and depraved man. They have a child, a boy, and the mother succeeds in completely estranging him from the father. The boy is sent to a convent school, and is never left alone with Wildman, who is ardently devoted to his family and Paris for the Holy Land to study the suffers keenly from this separation. At this time, a novel of his called "Terre Libre" is published, and the hostility of the conservative town becomes so acute that the authorities bring criminal proceedings against him as a corrupter of youth and advocate of vice and license. He is painted; almost the ecstatic communer wounded to the quick by this charge, for he protests that not a line or word of his book is open to the charge of immorality. He becomes despondent and discouraged, though the authors of Belgium and France send him messages of sympathy and appreciation. He determines to defend himself before the jury of his townsmen, not for his own sake, but for the sake of his ideas and of the truth which is dear

A preliminary investigation takes place and Wildman finds the examining magistrate stern, strenuous, resolute, though intelligent enough to comprehend that he is dealing, not with a wanton or mercenary offender, but with a sincere representative of another conscience. PAINTED LIFE OF CHRIST to paint the Redeemer with the fidelity of a disciple. Great Success of Tissot, Who Died Recently in Paris. Visit to Holy Land.

> James Joseph Jacques Tissot, the artist and the world-renowned illustrator of incidents in the life of Christ, who died in Paris recently, was 66 years old. Although most of his reputation abroad is due to his remarkable and original paintings in illustration of the life of Jesus, Tissot was one of the most notable figures in the Paris Salon, in which he made his first appearance in 1859, and in which he ex-hibited during many seasons there- offer of $220,000 after Tissot had refused an offer of $300,000 from a firm in England. after. Several of Tissot's pictures have been more or less familiar to the public everywhere, as for instance his "Faust and Marguerite," "The Return of the Prodigal Son," and his "Partie Caree, which were exhibited in 1861, 1863 and

He returned a mys tic and devotee: the reverent worshiper of the Savior whose life he had with mysterious presences; an absolute believer in Jesus Christ as the son of the living God.

CLOSE STUDY OF BIBLE. This change in Tissot's life was the effect of a close study of the Old and New Testaments, and a slowly acquired yet intense interest in the Jews and the Messiah of the Christians.

The painter was born at Nantes in 1836 and was educated at the Ecole des Beaux Arts under Flandrin and Lamothe. He painted some Parisian frivolities, went to London, where he spent ten years with friends acquired in the British metropolis, chief among whom was Alma-Tadema, and where he accumulated a vast fortune by the use of his brush.

REVELS IN LUXURY. Tissot lived magnificently in London. His house was a veritable "palace of painting"-a work of art in itself-and its illustrious master entertained his friends with Roman grace and splendor. Then suddenly the painter became the religious dreamer, the trembling worshiper of God and the possessor of a faith Pauline in its depths and trustfulness. Tisset's conversion to religion came after he was considerably past the meridian line of life, and of wrong-doing has been driven by was working within him before he persecution and bigotry to suicide."

European Aristocrats Engaged In Many Restaurants.

If there is any satisfaction in having one's gastronomic requirements mi istered to by a waiter of ancient, and even royal lineage and high-sounding there are many restaurants in which the pleasure may be experienced today. In one of the best known restaurants in Vienna, for instance, the urbane and attentive head waiter has much of the oldest and best blood of Europe in his veins. He is the son of an archduke and grandson of an emperor; and not many years ago was one of the most brilliant and fashionable of European princes.

But, as he says, "even princes must eat," and as he has a wife and seven children, and nothing to save them from absolute destitution but his own labor, he has wisely accepted the role of waiter. On his first day of service the royal waiter's tips amounted to over $15, and as there is naturally a great demand for his services, he can at least rely on an income of $5,000 .

year. A restaurant in the neighborhood of the Central Park, New York, can boast of three aristocrats among its small army of waiters. One of them is a Russian prince, the grandson of one of the most brilliant statesmen Russia has ever produced, and a privileged friend and confident of the illfated Czar Alexander II. The prince fled from Russia as the consequence of a duet with a brother officer and near relation, in which he killed his opponent; and after enduring great hardships in New York, was glad to accept the position of waiter at a restaurant, where he has never endeavored to conceal his past history. A fellow-waiter is the Baron von O, at one time a dashing and distinguished officer in the Saxon army, and the representative of one of the oldest and most famous families in Germany; while a third aristocrat who plies the napkin and administers cocktails is the grandson of a general who won considerable fame in the Franco-German war and is entitled to call himself "Count."

There are several young British aristocrats who are acting as waiters and bartenders in different parts of Australia. One of them, it is said, was acting in this capacity when he received news of the death of a cousin, which made him heir-presumptive

He had a life of singular adventure before this turn came in the tide of camps, graduated as a California gold miner, had mended roads and worked ers of a coronet can rival.

One of the most singular waiters in an Australian hotel is actually the younger son of a British peer, and a man who claims descent from a sister of Henry VIII. The remarkable feature in his case is that he has a sufficient private income to make wor! of any kind unnecessary, and that he follows his curious profession, as he says, "for love, and not for lucre."
London, too, has its aristocratic waiters. Indeed, it is said that one o Britain's present peers, during the varied and adventurous career which came before his accession to his title. spent several months as a waiter in one of the west end clubs, and in this capacity often ministered to his relative and predecessor, who had no suspicion of his identity. In a restaurant near Leicester Square London, the head waiter is an Italian count, and the present representative of a family, which has produced some of the greatest soldlers and statesmen of Italy. He is a man of distinguished appearance and courtly manners, and long before his identity was revealed was curiously enough commonly spoken of as the "Count." He still bears traces of a bullet wound which almost brought his career to a tragic termination at the siege of Gacta. One of the highest nobles in the Duchy of Baden was, It is said, for more than a year a waiter in one of the large London hotels, and it was during this period that the unexpected deaths of his grandfather, father and elder brother wrought such a dra-matic revolution in his fortunes.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Fears of frosts and other weather hanidcaps and big export business in wheat and flour worked against the duliness of an ante-holiday market in grains today. Corn traders were on tenter-hooks over possible damage to green cornfields, and as a result what changes were made in the somewhat duli markets were mainly on the buil side. September wheat closed %c to 1/20 higher. September corn 1/20 up. and September oats 1/20 lower. Provisions closed 5c lower to 15c higher.

In spite of a small trade there was a firm undertone in wheat. Freezing temperatures still lingered in the distant northern boundary of the Canadian Northwest, and bear speculators feared frosts as a consequence. Showers were northern boundary of the Canadian Northwest, and bear speculators feared frosts as a consequence. Showers were reported in the spring wheat country. Cables were lower. Paris having lost &c in two days. This, however, had little effect, as did a considerable enlargement of the receipts of new spring wheat. There was good buying of December here, but most attention was given to September, which, on short covering, was lifted %c at one time. Statistics were of little value, this day last year having been a holiday. The exceptions to this was the report of 997,000 bu of wheat and flour cleared at the seaboard, a bit of news that materially strengthened the pit. September opened unchanged to %c up, at 70%c to 70%c; sold sto 71%c and closed firm %c to %c higher, at 70%c to 70%c; December sold between 67%c and 67%c to 67%c. December sold between 67%c and 67%c to 67%c. Local receipts were 227 cars, 3 of contract grade.

Corn was abnormally dull, but prices held firm, Cash business was at a standstill, with no sales reported. There were no outside orders received, and speculators were not inclined to do anything an their own account, because of the double holiday. Receipts were still small, but cables were lower. There was a dropearly in the day of a full point on the extreme dullness, but later frost fears brought a rally. Advices from Kansas and Missouri were to the effect that corn would be ready for the shellers in a few days. There were no seaboard clearances.

Provisions were dull, and with fluctuations of very narrow proportions. Hogs were wanted and prices at the yards were higher. This brought a rally from the lower prices with which products opened. CHURCH TO MANAGE THE SHOWS

Westminster Abbey Annex Sold-New Wireless Telegraphy-Talk of Tariff War.

CHURCH AND THEATER. London, Aug. 31.—The Rev. Fortes Phillips, vicar of Gorleston, near Yarmouth, who aroused widespread comment by permitting Mrs. Brown Potter to recite from his pulpit, in June, 1901, is agitating a fresh and more startling scheme for a close union of the church and stage in the cause of religion. He proposes that each parish maintain a theater under the management of the church. In an outspoken interview the clergyman says: "Clergymen overdo the religious side of life, thereby ruining the spiritual liver, like that of overfed Strassburg The plan of the Rev. Mr. Phillips includes a revival of the mystery plays of the middle ages and the establishment of a sort of Oberammergau soclety in each parish. THE ABBEY ANNEX.

The Abbey annex will not be taken to America by an enterprising show-man, as the London papers prophesied at coronation time. The structure was sold the other day to be broken up. The work of demolition has already begun.

SUBMARINE BOATS UNSATISFAC-TORY.

The British Government is jealously guarding the experiments made with the new submarine boats, but reports of their performances, while somewhat conflicting, indicate that, on the whole, they have been rather disappointing. It is understood that the preliminary reports do not assign great naval value of the new craft. Their range of ob-servations, even with the vaunted new periscope, is decidedly limited, and so far the boats have not demonstrated their effectiveness against warships moving even at a moderate speed. The blue jackets assigned to submarine duty are the least enthusiastic of One official report to the effect "some inconvenience" was sufthe practice crews, was translated by the men themselves to mean that they suffered comparative blindness and serious headaches for days after the submerging. WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY SCHEME One of the latest wireless telegraphy scheme is the proposed installation of a combined lightship and ocean telegraph station 100 miles west of The Lizard. It is suggested that a vessel provided with a powerful searchlight, projected against the clouds, mark the position of the station at night. The wireless plant is to be powerful enough to command the fairway of the chanand exchange news with passing vessels.

Should the experiment succeed it is proposed to establish a number of such ships along the coast. It is thought that they will be particularly valuable in the transmission of meterological reports and storm warnings.

PREMATURE REPORT. The reports relative to the creation of another American cardinal are unfounded, or at least premature. For 15 years efforts have been made to secure another American member of the sacred college, but it was found that the American episcopacy was not sufficiently favorable. Gen. Di Cesnola went to Rome to advocate that Archbishop Ireland and the late Archbishor Corrigan both be promoted, to avoid their rivalry, but New York's geographical position was regarded at the Vatican as being too near Baltimore to allow another appointment.

At the Vatican it is said that newspaper talk will only delay Archbishop Ireland's chances, as the Pope is always irritated at the idea of anything being imposed upon him by the press. TARIFF WAR IN PROSPECT.

Sir Christopher Furness, the shipowner and shipbuilder, presiding at a steamship meeting at Manchester today, declared that a question which was more and more frequently asked was why in the United States, under protection, trade was so prosperous, while Great Britain, a free trade country, was not so prosperous as she should

As a free trader, he was of the opinion that the problem must be more seriously considered. There was danger, he apprehended, of Great Britain, before many years, becoming protectionist, and at the same time he would not be surprised to see the United States adopting free trade.

BYE-ELECTIONS

They Are Believed to Point to Balfour's Defeat.

Condition of England as Viewe d by Prominent Politician.

New York, Aug. 31.-The political condition of England as revealed by the recent defeats of the Government in bye-elections was thus discussed before a reporter of the New York Sun by an Englishman familiar with his subject: 'The last three bye-elections in England," said this critic, "left no doubt about the sentiments of the voters. The constituencies in which they took place were typical of their class. In the last, Sevenoaks, in Kent, near London, the large body of the electors is composed of landed gentry, well-todo members of the middle class, strong adherents of the Established Church, and the followers of those classes. The reduction of the Tory majority from above 4.000 at the election of 1900 to some 800 last week, was, therefore, a clear condemnation of the Government.

"The previous election at Clitheroe, in Lancashire, was in a constituency of a totally different stamp. It is a great working-class constituency, and was represented by a Liberal Unionist, who was returned unopposed in 1900. Under the circumstances no Tory could present himself, the Liberal party is out of favor owing to its division, and the trades union candidate not only refused to allow himself to be styled a Liberal labor candidate, but secured an unopposed election. The North Leeds election that preceded the Clitheroe defeat of the Government and Liberal party, resulted in an overwhelming vote for an advanced Liberal, where two years ago a Tory, who ment, had been returned by a majority the new Temiscaming and Northof over 2,500. The Liberal candidate, ern Railway, construction of which is who at first had inclined to Lord Rose about to be started, should be built bery's attitude toward the Irish nome Morley's principles, as recently enuncilis an official of the Boston and Maine ated by him, on the right of Ireland to Railway. self-government. "Remarkable, however, as the elecstill more so. It disclosed a split in the Orange party, which had hitherto given its undivided support to the celebrated Johnston, of Ballykilbeg. The contest was practically on class lines, and the candidate of the once dominant element in the Orange party was badly beaten by the humbler voters in it. The result is to be attributed without doubt to the agitation carried on by Mr. T. W. Russell, who seceded from his party and the Government on the question of land purchase and took sides with the Nationalists. "With four such expressions of popular opinion on the dominating issues of their policy before them, the present Cabinet in England can hardly be under any illusions as to its position before the public. If these recent elections have any meaning, it is that the country has no longer any confidence in its Government.'

Entirely Freed of Pile Torture

A Case of Twenty Years Standing them. Immediately Relieved and Ultimately Cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

There is no disputing the fact that Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only actual and positive cure for piles that has ever been offered for public sale. Day after day there appear statements in the newspapers from persons who have been cured. Ask your friends and neighbors about this great ointment. Mr. P. S. McLaren, farmer and contractor, Tiverton, Ont., states: "I was troubled for 20 years with itching piles: and during that time suffered a great deal. They bothered me most when I would get warm in bed. I would wake up in the night and lay for hours suffering the greatest agony. I cannot imagine any greater distress than the torture of piles.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment gave me relief from the first application, and now I am entirely freed of this horrible disease. For a time I would occasionally feel a slight return of the itching, but applied the ointment freely each time, until the cure was thorough." $12,000,000 for New York Harbor Improvements. New York, Aug. 31.-Only the approval of the secretary of war remains to put into effect improvements along the North River docks in New York, which will cost $12,000,000. It is planned to extend the piers from Thirteenth to Twenty-third streets, 1,000 feet. The harbor line is to be moved westward 200 feet, and the river narrowed to 2,700 feet between New York and the New Jersey lines. These improvements will keep many of the large steamship companies from transferring their anchorage to Hoboken.

Met a Terrible Death.

Jackson, Aug. 31.-D. L. Donovan, Central fell between two cars which he was switching at the junction, yesterday morning, and was caught on the brake beam and dragged for a considerable distance under the car. the Governor-General's Foot Guards.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 31.—The Tenth National Guard of Albany, N. Y., 312 strong, arrived in Ottawa at midnight Saturday under command of Major J. L. Hyatt, to spend two days in Ottawa the guests of the Governor-General's Foot Guards. When the guards last visited Albany they were treated like kings and the regiment is now trying to repay the honors. Today a church parade was held to Christ Church Cathedral, after which Lord Aylmer presented long service medals to members of the G. G. F. G. The adjutant general was accompanied by Major Heward, A. D. C., and Capt.

Morrison, D. S. O., as staff officers. Tonight the visitors went to Britan nia, where the G. G. F. G. Band gave a concert. The officers were dined at the Victoria Hotel Ayimer by the of-ficers of the G. G. F. G. Tomorrow there will be military manoeuvres on Cartier Square in the morning and the visitors will attend the Labor Day sports in the afternoon. Labor Day celebration in Ottawa tomorrow will receive added prestige by the presense in the city of the Tenth National Guard of Albany, New York, and the Hong Kong contingent to the coronation. The celestials are returning home by way of Canada and will spend the day in Ottawa. They will take part in the military review with the Albany visitors and will visit the fair grounds in the afternoon.

Mr. Fred L. Siddons, of Sarnia, spent Sunday in town.

Messrs. Albert Moran and James Angus have gone to Atlantic City. Mr. Thomas Ranahan has returned to New York after a visit with relatives in this city.

Mr. Dan Dwyer, after an absence of 20 years, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Mary Dwyer, of this city. Mr. Dwyer is manager of M. A. Mackenzie Carriage Works, Wichita, Kansas. He is greatly impressed with the advancenent that London has made since he left here.

FACTS FOR BUSINESS MEN.

The following is the opinion of a prominent business man of Montreal:
"I think the advertiser who uses a moderate space in good mediums, and uses it all the time, taking pains to say something that is of interest to the public in every issue is the one who gets the most for his money. Frequently such an advertiser will change the matter often, yet will maintain some connection between the different advertisements so that they are a sort of series, and, having seen one, you look for the next, and it seems to me that this is the man who gets the most for his money."

Rifle Matches at Rockliffe.

Chicago, Aug. 30. — Grain rates dropped off to 1½ cents on wheat to Lake Erie, with no charters being made. Five Canadian vessels were placed for Montreal to carry wheat. The rate was reported to be 4½ cents through. The boats were the Mylcs, Bannockburn, Melrose, Kingston, and Bothnia. Some of them will transfer at Kingston, but two or three will go on to Montreal with no break in bulk of their cargoes. These were the first grain charters made for Montreal direct this season and may mark the beginning of a new trade.

America Was Inhabited Before the Glacial Period.

Lawrence, Kas., Aug. 31.-The University of Kansas has another proof to offer that America was inhabited in glacial times. Prof. Williston, who declares that the "Lansing skull" once belonged to the body of a prehistoric man, indorses the statement. In the museum of the University of Kansas are the bones of a buffalo that was discovered by Mr. Martin, the curator, in Western Kansas several years ago. They were taken from solid rock. This stratum of the earth was pro-nounced as of the glacial period. In the skeleton of this was found imbedded an arrowhead. It was made of flint, and was skillfully and delicately fashioned. When he made the discovery in 1895 Mr. Martin asserted that he had brought to light sufficient evidence to prove the habitation of man in North America thousands of years ago, and now Prof. Williston, an authority in paleontology, indorses Mr. Martin's

GIRLS SERVE ON JURY

Two Young Women Assist in Court Trial in Colorado.

Denver, Col., Aug. 31.-Two stranded chorus singers of the defunct Manhattan Beach Opera Company earned two day's pay at the courthouse by serving on juries. They were Miss Katherine Dalton and Miss Edith Witwer. They visited the courthouse with the object of selling tickets to a benefit arranged to furnish funds to pay their way back to New York. Constable Philbin of Justice Hynes' court offered them a chance to serve on a jury and they accepted. The blushing coryphess were led into the presense of the court. Justice Hynes asked the respective counsel if they had any objections, and both gallantly waived their privilege. When the news was carried around the stuffy little courtroom became packed with an interested audience. The case occupied about an hour, and a verdict was returned. Then werrants were drawn for the fees and the pretty jurors returned and sold a score of tickets to the judge.

Toronto Firemen's Fund. Toronto, Aug. 31.-The committee of the board of trade in charge of the fire-men's permanent relief fund, the movement of which was established as a result of the loss of life at the McIntosh fire, have issued their report. The contributions amount to $53,989. Four trustees are named, the mayor, the president of the board of trade, the president of the Fire Insurance Underwriters' Association , and the chief of the fire brigade.

Took a Heap of Poison.

Toronto, Aug. 31.-Mrs. Newbiggin, 142 Spadina avenue, was found by the pelice at 9:30 o'clock on Saturday night in Queen's Park suffering from the effects of paris green, apparently self-administered. She was taken to St. Michael's Hospital and the stomach-pump used with effect. Nearly half a pound of the poison was removed and she will probably recover.

Three minutes later Arthur Halstead was bowing before Audrey Waldemar, a strange thrill running through his heart, an unwonted flush upon his checks, as her innocent blue eyes met his and he clasped the daintily-gloved hand she ankly extended to him.

What need to tell that the "old, sweet ory" began over again, then and there: that those frank, hazel eyes made mis-chief in the heart of the blue-eyed lassie? —mischief that time could never undo. Before they parted that night each soul instinctively knew that it had found its

The fortnight which followed was one never to be forgotten.
Every evening found Arthur Halstead by Audrey Waldemar's side, where looking into her eyes, listening to her voice, he forgot time, place, everything, save that he was in her presence; while to her head head he was in her presence; while to her he had become a king among men, a hero to honor and revere. His face was like an inspiration to her—a face that haunted her every thought—a face to dream sweet, girlish dreams over, to think of at dawn, to muse over at even. Only two short weeks thus went on, and then they both knew the full meaning that sweet old story—they lov d.

And forthwith he repaired to the hotel here that gentleman was a guest, and his frank, straightforward way requested a private interview.

It was unhesitatingly granted.

Mr. Waldemar had been much pleased with the young man, and had been in no way disturbed by his marked attentions to his days the statement of th tions to his daughter.

He knew that he belonged to an exceptional family, his father being a wealthy residing in a neighboring a time a

He knew that his child must choose some day one with whom to spend her life, and why, if her young heart had gone out to him, should it not be Arthur Halstead? In a manly fashion the young lover made known the object of the interview.

and craved permission to win the maider whom he loved. "My daughter is very young to enter into an engagement," Mr. Waldemar re-plied, debating within himself the wis-dom of allowing the lovers to assume

"I know it, sir," returned Arthur. "I could offer no reasonable objection to the lover's plea, he gave his hearty con-sent, and sent him rejoicing, yet tremb-ling, to put his fate to the test. Fair Audrey Waldemar was too pure and true to practice coquetry; and when Arthur Halstead told her with passionate earnestness how he loved her, and ste earnestness now he loved her, and begged her to give herself to him to brighten and beautifuy his life, she simply and trustfully laid her two small hands in his, though her golden lashes drooped until they swept her blushing cheeks, and she trembled with the great you that had thus come to her.

"We will brighten and beautifu cash." will brighten and beautify each other's life." she murmured, softly: "and you know that I love you Arthur."

It was almost as if she had said, with Browning:

Behold me! I am worthy! Of thy loving, for I love thee."

and they both believed they held "the thlef of all love's joys, only in knowing that they loved each other."

Mr. Waldemar smiled indulgently when informed of the result of this interview. Although the tears would start unbidden the thought that his sweet daughter uld never be wholly his any more, for she had passed the point "where the brook and the river meet," and hence-forth he must be content to hold the second place in her affections. He would not consent to a formal ennent just yet, het," he said, "until Audrey is bighteen and you have attained your ma-jority, which, you tell me, will be in bout six months; then, if you are both of the same mind. They were not to meet under six months, but were to be allowed to write as often as they chose, and when the stated time had passed Arthur was to join the family, wherever they might be, and their engagement could then be formally announced.

"Six months will seem like an age if I am to be separated from you all that time." the young lover sighed, on the evening before the Waldemars were to depart.

It will soon pass," Audrey said, cheerbest we can, so let us be patten! for I know that papa thinks he is acting for the best in insisting upon this delay." CHAPTER IV. When Arthur Hallead arrived at his home he found visitors there a whole houseful of friends, who had come to spend a few weeks before the family return to Albany, where they usually spent their winters.

It was the last of October—they always remained in the country until the cold fairly drove them back to the city—and everything in nature was clothed in its most gorgeous attire; the weather was delightful, everybody in the gayest possible mood, and Arthur received the most enthusiastic welcome from his family and friends. friends.

The visitors consisted of Mrs. Halstead's sister, with her three daughters wife, two sons and a lovely daughter.

Augustine Montrose and Richard Halstead had grown up side by side. They had gone to school together, played together year after year, and finally entered and passed through college together. They had always loved each other like brothers, though of late years, business taking Mr. Montrose to a distant part of the country, they had met tant part of the country, they had met very rarely.

Now, however, he had come at a special invitation from his early friend to make a "good, old-fashioned visit."

Ida Montrose, his only daughter, was Ida Montrose, his only daughter, was a lovely, dark-haired, creamy-complexioned girl of nineteen. She had great, lustrous, almond-shaped eyes, the features of a Greek goddess, a mouth that was a scarlet line of beauty, its dreamy smile haunting one with its wondrous sweetness. Every motion of her perfect form was one of grace and elegance, while there was a quiet repose of manner about her which impressed one with a feling of superiority and culture.

about her which impressed one with a feling of superiority and culture.

She was the idol of the family—the goddess before whose shrine they worshiped—the sun and center of their lives. When she was presented to Arthur there were two in the room who watched with eager eves to see how they met eager eyes to see how they met-Richard Halstead and Augustine

"She is beautiful," Arthur said to him-self, adding, with lover-like enthusiasm, "but she will not compare with Audrey." What Miss Montrose thought of him it What Miss Montrose thought of him it was hard at that moment to determine. She bent one lingering look upon him, gave him her hand with languid grace, and then turned to speak with her mother, who was sitting hear.

Several weeks of gavety and pleasure Several weeks of gayety and pleasure followed, and Arthur found that much was expected from him, as the son of the host, in the matters of entertaining the company and acting as scort upon all occasions; while he was a long in discovering that it seemed to active scovering that it seemed to aderstood that Miss Montrose be his special care and companion upon very occasion.

He longed to have a private talk with his father and confide to him the fact of his having formed an attachment for Audrey Waldemar, and that it was his Audrey Waldemar, and that it was his intention to marry her at no distant day; but it seemed he could find no opportunity to do so, though two or three times he was almost upon the point of confession, for he felt that he must occupy no false position in the eyes of their guests, but something occurred to prevent him, and the story of his love and wooing-remained untold.

So day after day went by, and he was the almost constant companion of beautiful Ida Montrose; and soon he began to notice the significant glances which were exchanged by different members of that gay household when they were together, while he was particularly annoyed by the sly winks and smiles which passed between his father and Mr. Montrose.

"Can it be possible that they all think I have fallen in love with the fair girl?" he asked himself, with a startled heart.
"Do my attentions to her savor of that appearance, and am I misleading her in the same way?"

same way?"

He began to be very much afraid of it is he marked the shy drooping of her ids whenever he addressed her, and the elicate flush which came and went in her reamy cheeks when her eyes chanced to meet his.

It would never do to let this go on, he told himself, and he felt exceedingly uncomfortable over it. Audrey, his beautiful love, held entire possession of his heart, and no one could ever win him from his allegiance to her.

He attempted to transfer his attentions from the tolerance of his coursing but he

He was thrown into a perfect fever of excitement by overhearing one day, a conversation between a couple of men who were working about the place.
"Whist, John," said one, "but they say the young master is going to marry the daughter of that rich old chap from the west".

"It looks like it, for sure, Bob," reed the man addressed as John 'A fine thing. I'm thinking, it will be

"I must put a stop to this at once," he saids greatly distressed; "people must not be allowed to entertain such false ideas, and I v l take measures to undeceive them without delay."

That very evening someone proposed that they make up a party and take a short trip to Florida, before separating to go to their several homes.

The idea was eagerly seized upon, discussed at some length, and finally adopted, and it was arranged that they should start the day but one following.

The party was to comprise Mrs. Copeland, Mrs. Halstead's sister, and her two eldest daughters, Mr. Montrose and family, Mr. and Mrs. Halstead, and Arthur.

A general clamor was instantly raised A general clamor was instantly raised about his ears.

Everybody protested that he would spoil everything if he remained at home, his father and mother insisted that he must go, and finally, so much having been said, he reluctantly gave in, and consented to make one of the company.

He resolved, however, to have a talk the fother before sterring and tell with his father before starting and tell him everything, and insist that his position be made known in a quiet way to his friends, and thus avoid all mistakes in the future.

But there was no opportunity. Everybody was full of hurry and bustle, and body was full of hurry and bustle, and there was no time for any private con-versation with anyone. The party started at the time appointed and, after a most delightful trip, arrived in St. Augustine just at sunset one lovely day, and took rooms at one of the principal hotels for a month's sojourn in that cipal hotels for a month's sojourn in ancient town.

And then there began another round of pleasure. Of course, there was the usual sight-seeing to be done, drives to take, and excursions to make, and it all happened just as Arthur feared: it fell to his lot to be the companion of Ida Montrose wherever they went.

"I cannot help it." he said to himself. "I am as true as steel to Audrey: I can never be compelled to make love to Miss well submit never be compelled to make love to Miss Montrose, and I may as well submit gracefully to this uncomfortable state of affairs. I will treat her as well as I can, in a friendly way, and let things can, in a friendly way, and let things go as they will."

And, having arrived at this conclusion, he strove not to worry about the future. They made many pleasant acquaintances among the guests at the hotel, and often joined parties of pleasure to different points of interest.

One day they were to visit a beautiful lake a number of miles from the city. A large party had planned to go; they were to spend the entire day there and return by moonlight.

SAVABLE WON FUTURITY AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY

Brantford Lacrosse Team Win Another Game.

Saturday on the Big Race Tracks-Get-a-Way Day at St. Louis-Harlem Today.

THE TURF.

WESTERN HORSE WON FUTUR-

ITY. New York, Aug. 30 .- Savable, sired by Salvator, the most sensational race horse the American turf has ever seen, won the rich Futurity at Sheepshead Bay today. John A. Drake, a Western millionaire, owns him; his trainer, Enoch Wishard, is from the West, and Lyne, a Western jockey, rode him to victory.

August Belmont's Hasting colt, Lord of the Vale, was second, only an eyelash behind, while Dazzling, one of the four Keene representatives, finished third. The time was 1:14, better than the futurity record over the full course, but a second and four-fifths lower than the best full six-furlong 2-year-old record down the chute. Never was a more inspiring race witnessed at beautiful Sheepshead; never was a crowd larger or enthusiasm greater. Fifty thousand would be a choice estimate to put on the multitude, for this was to be the greatest of all Futurities. The prize was rich, the field large, its quality incomparable, and before the fall of the flag it looked as if any one of a dozen thor oughbreds had an even chance for the stake. Indeed, with the great that faced the starter, the greatest in numbers that ever struggled for the laurel wreath of championship, seemed as though nothing short of a miracle could bring them all safely through the six-furlong journey, short though it was, with the crowding and bunching around the dangerous curve of the chute. They passed that point, however, like a troop of cavalry, and, straightened out, came into the stretch in a swirl of dust. Savable and Lord of the Vale fighting it out to the last It was Lyne's good ride carried his mount past the flying Bel-mont colt just at the wire. BACKED BY WESTERNERS. John A. Drake and the Western contingent always was confident Savable would score, and they played him down from twenty and in some books twenty-five, to fifteen. Thirty-one horses were carded to go, but Sovereign, Sir Voorheis, Dalesman, Love Note, Royal Summens, Merry Acrobat and Medal were scratched. Bounding Beauty was added at a late moment, by the Pepper stable, and a few minutes later drawn. There were 24 left to fight it out in a contest where only the stoutest hearted might hope to live.

The call to saddle was trumpted at 4 o'clock, and the long thin line filed He attempted to transfer his attentions from Ida to one of his cousins, but he was balked in this endeavor by the sons of Mr. Montrose, who appeared to be more than satisfied with the way matters had arranged themselves, and promptly manifested their disapproval of any encroachment upon their privileges; while the young ladies themselves did not encourage his purpose. So he was forced to drift with the current, for there was no other escort for Miss Montrose, and he could not reasonably refuse to act as such; courtesy seemed to demand out and cantered slowly past the came a swish of the flag and a burr of the bell in the judges' box.

Away in the distance, to those that were sharp of eye, there was a sudflash and after that a cloud of dust. Lord of the Vale was among first to break, with Savable, Hurstbourne and Dazzling right at his heels. Fine Easter, with Doggett ip, the only one that failed to go, was eft standing at the pole, half turned start, it was better almost than had been expected. ON IN A STRAIGHT LINE.

They flew like the wind down the oill, stretched out completely across the track, 23 horses in what seemed to be almost a straight line. Now and then the sharp wind would lift the veil of dust, and as they neared the turn those on the outside of the rail and those on the inside closed in, until saddle girths appeared to be touching. Up the hill they came, their necks, ready with whip and spur for the final struggle. Fully a dozen, as they mounted the hill, were bobbing up and down in perfect rythm, and within reaching distance of each other. The hearts of the fifty thousand onlookers were throbbing now with the intensity of the excitement. For a moment, as the racers straightened out, there was crowding in the 1:1434. center of that flying cavalcade. To go Secon down meant death; a single misstep meant a frightful catastrophe. There was hardly a sound in the stand, but a mighty shout went up when Dazzling, carrying the spotted white of the Keenes came first into the straight and the others spread out for the dash LORD OF THE VALE FALTERED.

McCue touched Lord of the Vale with the whip, and the gallant son of Hastings sprang out to the front. Perhaps he made his run too soon, for he began to falter when hard challenged a moment latter, but recovered. goal was well within sight, and McCue began to ride like a fiend. The Whitney and Keene candidates were pushing him hard. Through that cloud of dust everyone's eyes made out his own favorite. There were cries of "Irish Lad," and "Golden Maxim," and "Flying Prince," and "Mizzen," and a half dozen others. Savable, the son of Salvator, never was thought of. There were hoarse shouts for Dazzling and Duster, for Aceful and Payne and Whitechapel. Yet one small group— they came from the West-had their strained eyes set for a glimpse of tur-quoise blue that seemed far back in Rag Tag 100, Emma R. 97, Carl Kahler the rear. Lyne was ready, too, and Savable answered the tip of the spur and the swish of the whip across the gleaming flanks. He came out of the bunch like a thoroughbred. Lyne lifted him with every leap, and inch by inch in the last sixteenth, he wore down the single length between him and victory.

He was beaten by Gold Heels in the Advance at Sheepshead Bay, but did not start against the stout little son of The Bard-Heel and Toe, in the Brighton cup, two miles and a quarter, at the Beach. If he had he would no doubt have wiped out the Advance score. Gold Heels fell lame in the cup nearly a quarter of a mile from the finish. No lame horse could beat Advance Guard this year, even if he had the whirlwind speed of Salvator and the unfaltering courage of Luke Blackburn.'

Prince Direct, who was in the same race, is looked to to do a few things from now on. He didn't get right until Readville was reached, and reports from the east are that the killing that was made on the little black pacer in the cace in which he beat Billy M. and Dan Riley discounted everything that has been done that way in a long time. the world, remarks the World. The most valuable Futurity heretofore, was in 1890, when Potomac was the victor, and the great race was worth $67,675. Chacornac won the least valuable renewal of this famous event in 1899, it being worth only $30,630, less than half it was in Potomac's year. The inaugural Futurity was worth $40,900. Proctor Knot winning it, with Salvator, prob-America's greatest race horse ehind him. In 1889 it was worth $54,550, being won that season by a rank outsider, Chaos. Potomac's year was the next; then in 1891 His Highness proved the victor, earning for his stable in this event $61,675. The mighty Morello won it in 1892, when it was worth $40,450, and the sensational Domino led his field safely home in 1893, winning $49,350 hung up that year. It was worth $48,710 in 894, when won by Butterflies, and $53,190 in 1895, when captured by Kequital. In 1898, the late Marcus Daly won it with Imp. Ogden, who beat Ornament, it being worth $48,790. It was only worth $34,290 in 1897, when thef filly L'Alouette proved the victor: $36,610 was its valuation in 1898 when won by Mr. Hendrie's Martimas. Chacornac's race following in 1899. It was worth $38,580 in 1900 when won by Ballyhoo Bey, and last year its value was $36.850, the victor proving to be that lucky colt, Yankee.

A dispatch from Lexington, Ky., says that the Kentucky association racetrack, the most historic and the second oldest race-track in America, is to become the private training ground of Multi-Millionaire James B. Haggin, the employer of Otto Wonderly, the famous London jockey.

The graduated club house, stables and 62 acres of land, the most of which is in the city limits of Lexington, were purchased the other day for a reported price of $30,000. The track was owned by Charles M.

Green, a real estate man, of St. Louis. He took the property at the foreclosure on a mortgage when the Kentucky association went under. C. J. Enright. manager of Mr. Haggin's great Eim endorf estate, is reticent in regard to the sale, as the deed for the property has not yet been filed. It is stated in Lexington that the track will be used as a training ground for the numerous Haggin yearlings, which will be broken in Kentucky instead of the east. This action was prompted by the ill-luck of W. C. Whitney and other horsemen, who tropolitan tracks during the past winter.

Rumor still farther says that grand stand will be torn down, as well as the twenty odd stables, and two immense training barns erected. Then the inner field and other portions of the property will be cut up into paddocks, so that the yearlings may have ample room to be turned Oshawa, Aug. 30.-The first of a series of home-and-home games in the intermediate lacrosse championship semi-finals betweens the Orioles, of Toonto, and Oshawa was played here this afternoon, and was stoutly con-tested by both teams. The home team strike rule abolished. It is of no won by superior playing, the score be ing 8 to 4. The play was somewhat rough towards the last, and it took Referee H. B. Clemes, of Port Perry, all his time to keep the men in hand.

CAPITALS 6, CORNWALL 5. Cornwall, Aug. 30.-The Capital team won from Cornwall here today by a hairsbreadth, the score being 6 to 5. The match was one of the best exhibitions of lacrosse ever seen in Cornwall, and while there were a few hard bumps going it was clean throughout. Four men were ruled off on each side. The eleventh game saw the whole Capital team bunched on the defense, but Cornwall wore them down and had them going when the timekeepers announced that time was up. BRANTFORD 17, ST. CATHARINES 2.

Brantford, Aug. 30 .- The Senior Canadian Lacrosse Association game here today resulted in a victory for the home team by 17 to 2, the Athletics of St. Kitts never being seriously in the contest.

SHAMROCKS 12, MONTREAL 0. Montreal, Aug. 30.-The Shamrocks, in perfect condition, appeared on the M. A. A. A. grounds today, and ran away from the tailenders. The Irishmen seemed to score at will, while Montreal was never near the other goal. The final score was 12 to 0.

VICTORY FOR THE ANN STREET STARS.

A very interesting game of baseball was played on Saturday afternoon between the Anns and the Waverlys, the score being 5 to 4 in favor of the Anns. Facts to Tickle The Fans' Fancy.

Detroits failed to make a run off the Athletics in 89 innings.

Matthewson is reported as having signed with McAleer for next year. Arthur Irwin is touted for Dwyer's place as manager of the Detroit club. Donovan seems to have dug up a very promising young pitcher

Hoy's retirement has caused sorrow among the deaf mutes all over the league circuit.

Billy Nash is now in charge construction corps of the New England Telephone Company. There is a feeling of uneasiness in the Reds' camp that Crawford will be with Detroit next season.

The Pittsburg players' ambition has been to win 100 games this season. They will hardly achieve it. Detroit is said to have offered Pitcher Pittinger $5,000 for next season, and that the Athletics have made Willis a big offer. St. Louis fans have warmed up to their great team, which is now making a fight for the American League championship.

Jake Beckley easily leads the Reds in the matter of home runs for the season. Last year at this time Sam Crawford had over a dozen homers to Thirteen homers up to date is the record that Seybold boasts of. When his 245 pounds lays behind the ball it is certain to float into some remote district. Lajoie said the other day that he intended to stick to Cleveland, and that reports to the contrary were issued by league agents simply to influence other players. Recently in 23 games Lajoie accepted 196 out of 199 chances, only three misplays in almost 200. It is one of the most remarkable fielding feats on record. Like Ned Hanlon, McGraw will make earthly use, and is a serious handicap for a batter. Not only is Pittinger a fine pitcher but he is invaluable on the side lines. He has a voice like a circus "spieler and the opposing pitchers dread to see him up on the lines. "Si" Seymour is considered the best ever in Cincinnati since he joined the Red band, but before that he was never pointed out as a model outfielder by the Queen City scribes.

Jimmy McAleer says Mathewson will be with St. Louis next year, and Mc-Graw states that the twirler will remain in Gotham for the next two seasons, and there you are. Arrangements for a Virginia league for next season, are already under way. The circuit will be made up of Petersburg, Newport News, Richmond, Manchester, Norfolk and Danville. It is estimated that by the end of the season nearly 600,000 people will have witnessed American League games. The National will fall nearly 200,000 shy of the American number. Another misfortune has overtaken the Providence club, and now Catcher Farmer is out of the game, probably for the season. The injury to his knee cap has developed water on the knee, and his physician advises him to play no more this season. The O'Neill boys are bound by contract, and so are a majority of the box men. Donovan will be in good shape when the season begins, if he does not succeed in landing an Amertean League player. -It is announced that the marriage of Miss Dora Taylor, the well-known vocalist, to a physician of New York, will take place at the residence of the bride's father, Ridout street south, in two weeks.

-A very pleasent reunion was held on the beautiful grounds of Herbert Baynes, of Mansfield, Pennsylvania, Thursday, Aug. 28, to do honor to his guests, Oswald Baynes and daughter, of this city, who have been spending two weeks there enjoying the mountain scenery and renewing old ac-quaintances. The tables were beautifully arranged on the lawn under the overhanging trees. About 30 relatives sat down to the good things provided after which the day was spent in a social manner.

SATURDAY PICNIC DAY AT THE RIVERSIDE PARK

Postponed Sports.

The I. O. F. Outing Proved a Most Enjoyable Event.

The annual picnic of the McCormick Manufacturing Company was held some time ago at Port Stanley. It was as successful in its way as many previous outings of the company's employes, but owing to the rain which fell during the day the sports had to be called off. Mr. Thos. McCormick, president of the company, determined, however, that the employes should not be robbed by the weather of the pleasure of these sports, which are always considered man), the most important part of the picnic. Saturday was named as the day, and ner, Hicks, Bex and Williamson. Springbank the place. The employes, London Companion Court was remany of them with their wives and families, and others with their friends, accordingly journeyed to the pretty park on Saturday. Two hundred people at least were present, and thoroughly enjoyed the outing.

The committee who so ably carried out the sports were Messrs. Amos Bradford (secretary), D. C. McNaughton, Thomas Duff, Thomas Dempsie, Charles F. Benson, J. S. Mason, Geo. Carley, S. T. Gale, and James Craig. The judges were Messrs. Marshall, Smith, W. J. Piercey, H. Nevell, T. Dempsle, W. Gower, E. Littlejohn. The starters were Messrs. Thomas Duff, R. D. A. Hillier, Geo. One result of the misfortune to the Oaklands has been the lowering of their high percentage, which was gained by their defeating the Sacramento team 13 out of 14 times early in the season. The four teams are now beginning to bunch, and it looks as though the race for the pennant will be more exciting from now on. Sacramento has been playing better ball of late, but received a good bumping last week at the hands of Morley's Angels, who took three out of the four games.

This Los Angeles team is playing great ball, and they must be considered earnest aspirants for the flag.
