THE CITY HOSPITAL.

It is to be regretted that the mayor and Ald. Coe should have chosen to go to Watford to discuss the relative standing of the City Hospital and the hospital conducted by the Roman Catholic Sisters of St. Joseph. The proper places to consider the reasons why doctors have been compelled to send patients to the new hospital instead of to the old-established institution is in London and the county of Middlesex, which are jointly interested in the question. The people of Lambton can neither help nor retard any movement for enlarging the City Hospital.

We have again and again given the facts regarding this matter, in order that public men could take such steps as they might deem best for the interests of the people. The City Hospital has outgrown the needs of the community. Its managers, much to their regret, have to refuse pay patients offered to them by doctors in the city and throughout the west because they do not possess the room for them that is necessary. Good Protestant medical men, too, have more than once advised that patients be sent to the new hospital at the top of Richmond street, not because they favored the Roman Catholic faith, or desired in any way to help its propagation, but because they entertain the belief that their patients would make a better recovery in the one hospital than in the other. They condemn the situation of the City Hospital and regard that of St. Joseph's Hospital as a decided improvement.

These are the facts, and the public should know them. It was more than insinuated by a civic emissary at Watford that the city medical fraternity are bribed to favor the St. Joseph's Hospital and to boycott the other institution. That charge we leave to the medical profession to deal with as they see fit. Even if it were true that the medical fraternity referred to—without exception Protestants—had so conspired, our civic rulers have still to meet this situation:

1. The City Hospital has outgrown the wants of the people.
2. Its managers have been compelled to refuse patients because of lack of accommodation.
3. These patients had either to go to the St. Joseph's Hospital or to a hospital in another city.
4. Many citizens are opposed to the present site of the City Hospital, and regard it as objectionable in many ways.

It is not a question of denominational preference at all, but of putting the City Hospital in a shape to meet all the demands that can be made upon it for accommodation for all classes of patients.

—During the month of October, according to the official customs returns, a duty of $77,000 was collected on $71,000 worth of coal oil imported from the United States, or over 100 per cent. The value of rice imported was $5,985, which was taxed $4,202. To reimburse the workers to these tax burdens, the Government permitted oil paintings and copies of the old masters to be brought in free.

A KNIGHTHOOD DECLINED.
It is announced from Toronto that Mr. Christopher Robinson, who was offered a knighthood for his services as one of the Canadian counsel in connection with the Bering Sea dispute, has declined the honor. Mr. Robinson will be thought none the worse of on that account. In recent years knighthoods have been much cheapened by the appointment, on the recommendation of the Dominion Government, of various tainted politicians.

Perhaps Mr. Robinson chooses to pick his company, and we respect him for his decision. When a citizen of the caliber and record of Adolphus Caron can get a knighthood, it is no very enviable distinction to attain.

WANTED, $375,000.

The full text of the bylaw for the granting of $100,000 to the Grand Trunk Railway Company, on condition that the car shops are concentrated in this city, is published in the ADVERTISER to-day. It is the first of a series of bylaws that will in all probability be submitted to the public at this time. Indeed, there is ground for fear that the multiplicity of projects will result in the defeat of one or more of the applications for money, though it is to be hoped in any event that the G. T. R. bonus bylaw will not be among the number.

Let us briefly recapitulate the demands made upon the freeholders:
For G. T. R. car shops, $100,000
For electric light plant, $25,000
For waterworks improvements, etc., $25,000
For new main, $75,000
For hospital extension, $10,000
Total, $235,000
The Water Commissioners will ask the Legislature to let them borrow $125,000 on debentures, and will request the City Council to submit to the people the question whether an additional sum of $75,000 shall be spent on a new main between the reservoir and the city. No definite action has been taken as to hospital extension, but it is generally conceded that it is imperative if the hospital is to be put in an entirely satisfactory condition.

There will doubtless be searching discussion of all these monetary proposals between now and the day of voting.

MR. STEAD ON "MANIFEST DESTINY."

Mr. T. W. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews, has been lecturing in Toronto. He likened Goldwin Smith to Jeremiah; but in his lecture he said pretty much the same things as Goldwin Smith about the desirability of undoing in some way or other the fatal blunder of George III., which severed the relations between the United States and Canada and England.

Mr. Stead also spoke satirically of "any party which, with a great deal of trumpeting and a great deal of rant about the old flag, accused the opposite party of being disloyal to that flag, for the defense of which they would be as willing as their adversaries to shed their blood."

This was too much for Mr. Castell Hopkins, of the Empire, who at this juncture pointedly walked out.

A smile which became a laugh went over the audience.
"I don't see where the joke comes in," said Mr. Stead, in a surprised way.
"The joke's gone out," someone volunteered to explain.

—Speaking of the official list showing what proportion of Ontario Government employees are Protestant and what Catholic, and their salaries, "Don" (Mr. E. E. Sheppard, formerly of this city), says in Toronto Saturday Night:

"It will be noticed by everybody that the proportion of Catholic appointees is by no means large, scarcely in proportion to the population. No better answer could be given to this question making war upon the church than this official list. It is to be regretted that any such question should obtrude itself upon the voters in the face of a general election. Of course it is born of the general tendency to be sectarian before anything else, a tendency which has cursed this country from its very inception.

The arraignment of this class of men by the Canada Presbyterian is not too severe. Their endeavor to create a war of creeds, and to foment bigotry, is despicable, and should be condemned by every fair-minded Canadian.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE STREET RAILWAY WAR.

Now that it has been decided that the tearing up of the street railway switch on Dundas street west was an illegal act, for which the city is made liable for damages, a discussion has arisen as to who is to blame for the illegality.

As the Free Press champions the paid adviser of the city (Mr. Meredith) and holds that the mayor and council alone, and not the solicitor also, were blameworthy, it may not be amiss to turn to the record as found in the columns of our contemporary on the day after the raid—Thursday, July 13 last.

"Ald. Scarrow moved that the mayor and city solicitor take prompt action against the street railway company if they persist in laying two tracks on Dundas street west. Ald. Garratt seconded."
"Ald. Coe moved an amendment that the city engineer be instructed to have the double track taken up at once, and that the chief of police be instructed to have the work of tearing up the track protected if necessary."

The motion, we learn, was carried, not the amendment, so that from this it appears that the power given was discretionary, and only gave these representatives of the council power to act if the street railway company persisted in laying two tracks on Dundas street west. The city's own expert witnesses at the trial agreed that the lines laid were not double tracks. Further on the report informs us:

"His worship did not waste a moment, but evidently had his mind made up as to what action to pursue. After a brief consultation with City Solicitor Meredith, who was present at the meeting and who advised the action taken, the mayor instructed the city engineer to have the tracks of the street railway at once removed from the street and to have the pavement replaced."

Our contemporary at present says that the city solicitor did not advise that the rails be torn up. The motion passed by the council certainly left the mayor and city solicitor to act as they deemed to be legal. Does the Free Press now mean to say that the mayor acted on his own volition? If so, of what use was the paid-for advice of the city solicitor?

THE TAXED MISSIONARY.

Rev. Dr. G. L. Mackay, the Formosan missionary, has been refunded the $50 poll tax collected from the Presbyterian Chinese student who came with him to Canada to study the institutions of the Dominion. What idea must the student have of our system of tax collection?

It took an indignation meeting and many protests from the press and pulpit to bring the Dominion customs controller to a realization of the fact that it was a meaning to handicap the intrepid missionary in his self-denying labors by such a barbarous exaction.

PATRONS IN ONTARIO POLITICS.

(From the Toronto Globe.)
We submit that a fair conclusion from the facts is that in Dominion affairs the Patrons found abuses, open and flagrant, and the need for reform obvious; but that in Provincial affairs, while no one pretends that perfection exists, they have had to search diligently for faults, and have unearthed nothing that could be dignified with the name of abuse or grievance. In such a case, a superficial appearance of impartiality may be given by attacking both Governments; but for men whose aim is the betterment of politics it is surely as much a duty to support a good Government as to choose a bad one.

ARE WE A PUNY LOT?

(From the Canada Presbyterian.)
The existence of the Protestant Protective Association in this Province can be vindicated by showing that popular government, free education and the Gospel have failed in their missions, and it cannot be successfully defended in a similar manner. For 50 years the people of Ontario have enjoyed popular government. Every man not a lunatic, or a tramp, or a criminal, has a vote. Are the Protestants at the end of half a century of self-government unfit to take care of themselves without the aid of this politico-religious society which does most of its work in the dark? We spend about three-quarters of a million annually on education, besides the amount given by churches for the support of universities under the control of the State. What are Queen's and Trinity, and Victoria and McMaster, and the collegiate institutes, and the high schools, and the public schools, and the private schools doing for the people? Are they not a puny lot?

The man who said knowledge is power must have been mistaken or perhaps our educational institutions do not impart knowledge. More than all and worse than all, the very Gospel has been a comparative failure in Ontario if by this time the Protestants need to import a Yankee invention to protect their religion. Hundreds of ministers have been preaching, and thousands of Sabbath school teachers teaching for many years, and yet the people preached to and taught need a semi-political society outside the machinery of both State and Church to defend the Gospel as Protestants understand it! We had the opinion that the Gospel, especially the Gospel as preached by Calvinists, made men brave and strong and able to take care of themselves. We incline to the opinion that the statesmen and teachers and preachers of this little country are not quite so prepared to write themselves down failures.

PUSHING FOR PROHIBITION.

The Plebiscite in Oxford—World's Fair Prizes for Scientific Temperance School Text Books.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 28.—At the Oxford Teachers' Institute's convention here the following resolution was unanimously carried: "That in the opinion of this institute the taking of a plebiscite by which the people of Ontario may express their views on a question which, we believe, affects so materially the educational, moral and financial interests of our Province is a step in the right direction, and that we as teachers pledge ourselves to use our influence for every wise measure which has for its object the suppression of the liquor traffic."

(CHICAGO, Nov. 28.)—The educational exhibit at the World's Fair was so extended that the judges have only just had time to report upon the largest group, group 149. No single exhibit in that group, nor in all the educational displays in the White City, attracted more attention or excited more interest than that of scientific temperance instruction in the public schools. The exhibit, Mrs. Mary A. Hunt, has just been informed five highest awards. (1) For legislation requiring physiological temperance instruction in the public schools of 44 States and Territories in the United States; in Canada and in Sweden; (2) for graded series of text books on this subject in the English language; (3) for translation of these books, now in use in five different languages; (4) for methods of schoolroom study in this branch; (5) for exhibit of pupil-work in this branch from various States of the United States.

What is Eczema?

It is an agony of agonies.
A torture of tortures.
It is an itching and burning of the skin almost beyond endurance.

It is thousands of pin-headed vesicles filled with an acrid fluid, ever forming, ever bursting, ever flowing upon the raw excoriated skin.

No part of the human skin is exempt.
It tortures, disfigures and humilifies more than all other skin diseases combined.

Tender babies are among its most numerous victims.

They are often born with it.

Sleep and rest are out of the question.

Most remedies and the best physicians generally fail, even to relieve.

If CUTICURA did no more than cure Eczema, it would be entitled to the gratitude of mankind.

It not only cures but

A single application is often sufficient to afford instant relief, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure.

CUTICURA works wonders because it is the most wonderful skin cure of modern times.

SELF-WILLED.

Then she gets into the fly, and drawing her skirts around her, falls into an intense silence, which lasts until the vehicle joins the line of carriages at the entrance to the town hall. The building is a blaze of light, footmen in their best liveries stand in the shadows of the pillars, and the crimson carpet leads to the entrance. Over her head she is gazing, and the coachmen are wearing under their breath, and confusion which is not half so confounded as it looks, she is triumphant.

"We shall be kept here for an hour," says Mr. Harrington, uttering the grumble which he has given vent to for years on similar occasions.

"But, as if in answer to the complaint, a tall, stalwart figure in evening dress comes to the door, and Willie Fairchild's voice says cheerily—

"Here you are! I'll make way for you!" and with a word or two he does make way, and the fly moves up to the entrance.

"Ah, Willie, how are you?" says Mr. Harrington, dolefully, but Willie, taking no heed of him, gets hold of Carrie's hand and leads her out.

"How good of you to come so early!" he murmurs, his honest, handsome face reddening with delight and gratification. "They have only got through two dances. I have waited outside, thinking you wouldn't be late."

"But why?" says Carrie, coldly. "We could have got in without your taking so much trouble."

"It is no trouble," he says, quickly, and peering into the fly, "Is—Lord Cecil with you?"

"No," says Carrie, shortly.

"No? Well, never mind—"

"I don't mind in the very least, says Carrie, with a laugh.

"He offers her his arm, and just touching it with her fingers, she allows him to escort her up-stairs into the ball-room. Mr. Harrington taking charge of him, or rather, to be correct, Philippa taking charge of him, and Willie Fairchild, with badly-concealed eagerness, presses for her hand, but Carrie declines.

"I don't know that I shall dance at all," she says, coldly.

"Not dance?" he says, staring at her.

"Oh, come—"

"Why should I?" she says, looking round the crowded room. "There are quite enough without me."

"Why?" he says, aghast. "The ball wouldn't be the ball if you didn't dance! If you won't give me this, give me the next," he pleads.

"She remains silent, and with a patient sigh he walks round the room searching for a seat.

As they make the circuit they come to the further end of the room, where, planted on front seats, and gathered together as if for mutual protection, are the elite, the titled grandees whom Carrie has declared that she despises.

There are the Dowager Duchess of Cleveland, the Countess of Donmore, and her six marriageable daughters, Lady Serton, and last, but not least, in bulk—Lady Bellairs.

There they sit, enthroned, as it were, apart from the vulgar herd, exclusive and aristocratic.

As Carrie approaches, the modesty and meekness which Philippa commended so highly disappear; the finely-cut line curve, the aquiline nose grows tip-titled, and the beautiful eyes harden and become icy.

Lady Bellairs, the butcher's daughter, surveying the scene patronizingly through her gold eye-glasses, sees the beautiful vision approaching, and at once—immediately—settles into stone, and bestows an elaborate "cut" upon Carrie, and tries to look as if she didn't see her.

Carrie smiles sarcastically, and in an audible whisper to Willie, says—

"The best people have not come yet, I see."

And, having thus delivered her thrust, passes on.

"Here is a seat, if you are sure you won't dance," says Willie, longingly.

"Not this one," says Carrie; and she seats herself within earshot of the grandees. "But don't let me hear you say a word or a syllable, and go and dance."

"No, no," he says, blushing. "You know I don't care to dance if—if you won't dance with me."

"That's absurd," she says, shortly. "As I said, I may not dance all the evening."

"Then I will not, either," he says, with determination; and he seats himself beside her.

Five—two—minutes have not elapsed before they are surrounded. Soldiers are quick to acknowledge grace and beauty, and some of the officers of the regiment gather round the beautiful young Miss Harrington in an admiring and solicitous group.

But to one and all Carrie expresses her determination, and some of them go off despairingly, while others remain to bask in her presence, and to catch a word or a smile from the girl who threatens to be the most beautiful in the room.

In the midst of the noise of the band and the dancers, Carrie can still hear the voices of the grandees behind her, and presently she hears Lord Cecil Neville's name mentioned.

"I should think he will be here," says Lady Catesby to the Countess of Donmore, whose eyes, together with those of her six daughters, are fixed expectantly on the door.

"Yes, I should think so," says the countess, with a smile that barely conceals her anxiety—poor mother! "He would never think of refusing, surely."

"Oh, dear me, no," dear Lady Catesby. "Lord Neville quite promised to come—didn't he, Euphemia?"

Euphemia smiles vacantly, and the grandees who have not at all forgiven Lady Bellairs the butcher's shop, eye the pair coldly and doubtfully.

"If that eccentric young man, isn't he?" says the old duchess, who is more than rather deaf, and who, like most deaf people, speaks in a particularly loud and distinct voice. "Something wrong here, eh?"

She touched her wrinkled forehead, above which waggled a splendid bunch of feathers—feathers were worn in her young days, and she still sticks to them, stanch old lady as she is.

Carrie smiles at this direct question, and waits for the answer. If only Lord Cecil could hear her!

"N—o," says Lady Serton, who is rather young and pretty, and was nearly a professional beauty for half a season. "Oh, no, I'm perfectly sane in the family."

"Oh, nonsense, my dear," says Lord Serton, who happened to come up at the moment, wiping his face and showing marked signs of the wear and tear of the day's walk. "Nothing of the kind! Why, Lord Fitz-Harwood has got the keenest brain in the kingdom."

"Well, clever people usually are eccentric," says the duchess, when this had been shouted into her ear by the eldest Lady Donmore. "I remember Lord Calthorpe—that's his grandson dancing over there—very clever man, my dear, but the most appalling idiot!"

"Good Lord," groans Lord Serton, "somebody keep her quiet. Calthorpe will hear her!"

"The most appalling idiot that ever lived," and the avowed old lady nods and grins. There is silence for a moment as Lord Calthorpe, who of course has heard every word, passes, and glances with a red face at the party. Then suddenly the old lady spies Carrie. "Who's that?" she asks, pointing her fan and nodding imperatively. Of course the other ladies pretend not to understand, and quietly attempt to evade the question, but her gaze is accustomed to be answered, and reiterates the interrogation rather more loudly this time. But Carrie smiles and does not turn color.

"Who is it, eh? Seem to know the face. Wonderful pretty girl. Just like I was when I was a girl. Who is it?"

"Lady Serton stares through her eye-glasses at Carrie, and shakes her head, and Lady Bellairs murmurs something—"A Miss Harrington, I believe," she utters.

"Harrington!" shouts the duchess, "is that one of Harrington's daughters? I remember him well! We used to call him Handsome Harrington. Hem, she's a beauty. Bring her to me, I should like to know her—"

The ladies round the august old dame stare at each other aghast, and the duchess, who likes to be obeyed, is about to repeat the request in her loudest tones, when Carrie, crimson to her delicate ear-tips, looks up with a smile at Willie, and says—

"I think I will have a turn if you are still of the same mind."

Of the same mind! With a flash of the eyes he puts his arm round her waist, and like a gentleman comes forward with the duchess's message, Carrie glides out of his reach.

"I always thought," she says, for she can't tell while she waits, being sound of mind—"that a duchess could not be so chafed if she tried. How one's most fondly cherished ideas are shattered as one grows up. Some day I shall discover that current play at pitch-and-toss in their leisure hours, and that prices of the blood are given to skittles."

Willie laughs and looks down at the beautiful face with fond admiration.

"Oh, the old duchess says what she likes," he explains.

"She certainly doesn't say what I like," retorts Carrie.

It is a nice waltz, and the band—a little noisier, perhaps, than Cootie & Timmy's, but very well, but somehow, for some undefined reason, Carrie doesn't enjoy it as well—well, say as well as she thought she should, and very soon she stops, not out of breath in the slightest, but with a little sigh.

"Let us rest," she says. "I think I like looking on better than dancing. There is a nice little corner; let us stand there."

"All right," says Willie, delighted at the prospect of a tete-a-tete.

And they go into the corner. But they are not alone, for a small party of well-dressed ladies in the character of wall-flowers are seated on the front seat, smiling inly, and looking on through their eye-glasses, in imitation of the grandees at the other end of the room.

One old lady recognizes Carrie and greets her effusively.

"How well you are looking, my dear, and is your papa here?" she whispers. "And Mr. Fairchild too! What a lot of people! More crowded than ever. But Carrie, dear, in a hushed and excited whisper—

"Well," says Carrie, bending her head as the old lady clutches her dress.

Falling Off a Log.

"As easy as falling off a log," is an old saying. When it was first uttered, nobody knows. Nothing is easier, unless it is the taking of a dose of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. These act like magic. No gripping or drenching follows, as is the case with the old-fashioned pills. The relief that follows the happiest mood; the impulse given to the dormant liver is of the most salutary kind, and is speedily manifested by the disappearance of all bilious symptoms. Sick headache, right side and shoulder-blade, and yellowness of the skin and eyeballs are speedily remedied by the Pellets.

In the Vatican library there is a treatise on dragons, a manuscript in a single roll 300 feet long and a foot wide, the material of which is said to be the "tanned gut of a great dragon."

Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity by Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is eczema. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hives, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, to which the young are especially subject.

The Mediterranean has been commonly supposed to be a sea without tides; but, as a matter of fact, at Venice there is a tide in the spring of from one to two feet.

To Mothers.

It is given to every physician, the formula of Scott's Emulsion being no secret; but no successful imitation has ever been offered to the public. Only years of experience and study can produce the best.

THE PARIS PRESBYTERY

Endorse the Call of Dr. Colmie, of Bradford, to Windsor—Planning Work for the Plebiscite Campaign.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The Paris Presbytery today considered a call to Rev. J. C. Colmie, of Bradford, to Windsor, Ont. The call was accepted and endorsed by the Presbytery. Rev. Mr. Hardie, of Ayr, received a call from Petrolia, but he did not entertain it. The Bradford county Christian Endeavor met in convention to plan the work in the coming plebiscite campaign.

Life is Misery

To many people who have the taint of Scrofula in their blood, the agonies caused by the dreadful running sores and other manifestations of this disease are beyond description. There is no other remedy equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla for scrofula, salt rheum and every form of blood disease. It is reasonably sure to benefit all who give it a fair trial.

Hood's Pills cure all liver ills.

Bayonet was so called because it was first made at Bayonne, in France. It was originally a knife stuck in the muzzle of a gun.

Drops and all diseases of the kidneys and bladder are curable through the perfect action of Hood's Blood Bitters.

Milliners first piled their trade at Milan, and to be a Milanese was equivalent to being able to prepare an elegant head-dress.

Rheumatism, sciatica and similar complaints yield to the curative powers of Hood's Blood Bitters.

Over 400,000 trees have been planted in Switzerland in seven years in the effort to "reforest" the country.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a sure and safe cure for coughs, colds, sore throat and all throat and lung diseases.

The steamers between Europe and North America carry on an average about 70,000 passengers a month.

Burlock Blood Bitters is a purely vegetable cure for dyspepsia, constipation and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood. Before long women will be admitted to German universities on an equal footing.

The great lung healer is found in the excellent medicine sold as Fickie's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

FRANCIS MURPHY, the temperance agitator, is arousing the old time interest in his work at Desford, Ill., and other towns in the neighborhood. He is assisted by his wife and son.

Should you suffer from toothache try Gibbons' Toothache Gum.

This season's orange crop in Florida is much above the average in quantity, being estimated at 5,000,000 boxes, and is much earlier than usual.

Mrs. Martha Besant's New Treatment Absolutely cures nervous debility, impotence and all their attendant evils. It never fails. This new medicine makes itself manifest in the brightened eye, clear complexion, vivacious spirits, increased bodily strength and general feeling of buoyant health and vigor.

STATISTICIANS claim that the earth will not support to exceed 5,994,000,000 people. The present population is estimated at 1,407,000,000, the increase being 8 per cent each decade. At that rate the utmost limit will be reached in the year 3075.

A Man Made Happy.—GENTLEMEN, Five years I have been a great sufferer with Dyspepsia; the pain in the pit of my stomach was almost unbearable and life only seemed a drag to me. When I would go to sleep I would have horrible dreams, and my life was a misery. I was cured by the use of only two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This happy state has all been changed and I am a well man. I can assure you, my case was a bad one, and I send you this that it may be the means of convincing others of the wonderful curative qualities possessed by this medicine, that is specially adapted for the cure of Dyspepsia. A large number of us had the Dyspepsia very bad, she could scarcely eat anything, and was troubled with pains similar to those I suffered with; and she cured herself with two bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I wish you success with your medicine, as I am fully convinced that it will do all you claim for it.

Signed, MELVILLE B. MARSH, Abercorn, P. Q. General Merchant.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osmond, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Transformers.

To no other class of apparatus can the axiom that "the best is the cheapest" be more truly applied than to electrical machinery and appliances. To transformers does this especially apply. It will pay you to buy the best in the market, and we now offer you the very best at such a reduced price that the essentials of quality and efficiency are combined with extremely low prices, which is rendered possible only by the introduction of improved labor-saving machinery, added to a large increase in our output.

The Transformer we offer is the improved type F. Thomson-Houston design, celebrated for its high efficiency and perfect regulation.

The following points in a Transformer are all essential: (1) Perfect safety; (2) high efficiency; (3) good regulation; (4) small core loss; (5) convenience in installation.

These are attained in the New Type F Oil Insulated Transformers (which we are now manufacturing at our works at Peterborough, Ont.), in a greater degree than any other upon the market.
