

Clique Suggests Raising Salaries To Repair Wrong Done L. C. I. Staff

Believed That Mr. W. C. Ferguson Will Accept Position in Toronto.

Robbed of promotion by the MacRobert clique of the school board, it is thought by his friends that Mr. W. C. Ferguson, B. A., English master of the London Collegiate Institute, will accept the offer of the position of modern language master in the new Riverdale High School, Toronto. Mr. Ferguson is at present summering on the Georgian Bay and cannot be communicated with.

MR. W. C. FERGUSON.

The Toronto News says of him that he is looked upon as one of the most efficient collegiate teachers in the Province. Nobody knows this better than the members of the London school board, and they know that his removal will be a heavy loss to the Collegiate. If Mr. Little had had his rights, Mr. Ferguson would have succeeded him as vice-principal of the L. C. I., but now the door has been closed to his advancement. He has reached the maximum salary of $1,500. The salary in Toronto to begin with is $1,400, but it goes up to $2,200.

Clique Is Alarmed.
The members of the school board clique are in a state of alarm over the public censure which is raining upon their heads from all quarters. They realize that the interests of the Collegiate Institute have been jeopardized, and they propose to raise salaries all round in order to try to reconcile the staff to the injustice that has been done.

The suggestion of an all-round increase in the maximum salaries is put forth by their organ, which points out that the scale is much lower in London than in Hamilton and Toronto. There is no doubt that the salaries at the Collegiate are niggardly and should be increased. This idea did not strike the ruling element of the school board until the present time, when the institute threatens to fall to pieces through an act of injustice to the senior members of the staff.

Tragic Death of St. Thomas Man; Eats Oatmeal Containing Arsenic

Cyrus Winters Killed by Eating Poison in Regina Restaurant.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

St. Thomas, Aug. 14.—E. H. Chase, of this city, received news last night of the death of his son-in-law, Cyrus Winters, at Regina, from arsenical poisoning. Winters boarded at a restaurant, the proprietor of which loaned some oatmeal to a Chinaman keeper of a rival eating-house. The Chinaman returned the oatmeal, which was used, with the result that a number of the boarders were taken violently ill. Three of the victims were taken to the hospitals and Cyrus Winters died. An analysis of the oatmeal revealed arsenic. Investigation developed that the Chinaman had plenty of oatmeal in stock and had no need to borrow. He was arrested and is still in custody. Winters was an employee of the London Cement Company, and was aged 30 years. He leaves a wife and child, who have been living with Mr. Chase ever since his son-in-law left for the west in May. Mr. Chase left for Regina this morning to bring the remains back to Inwood, where deceased's mother lives.

Col. Little Appointed to Command Of Nineteenth Infantry Brigade

Capt. Frank A. Reid Gazetted Colonel of the 7th Regiment—Makes Statement.

Seventh Regiment (Fusiliers)—To be lieutenant-colonel and to command the regiment, Captain Frank Aspinall Reid, vice Lieut.-Col. J. W. Little, who on completion of his period of tenure of command is transferred to the Nineteenth Infantry Brigade.

The above is an extract from militia orders issued at Ottawa, and it confirms the statement made in The Advertiser some time ago that Lieut.-Col. Little would be placed in command of the Nineteenth Infantry Brigade. This brigade is composed of four regiments, all being city corps and being located as follows:
The Seventh at London.
The Twenty-fifth at St. Thomas.
The Twenty-first at Windsor.
The Twenty-fourth at Chatham.
Col. Little has proven a very efficient, painstaking soldier, and did a great deal to place the Seventh Regiment in the front rank of the city corps of Canada. At Ottawa and Toronto, the regiment, under Col. Little, made a profound impression on the people, and at headquarters the colonel has been Peers Cheer Rosebery As He Castigates Govt.

Denounces Policy of the Liberals in Relation to Scotland.

London, Aug. 14.—Lord Rosebery made another of his meteoric appearances in the House of Lords last night and delivered an able speech against the Government. With great rhetorical brilliancy he denounced the Government's Scottish small landowner's bill. The rumor had gone forth that Lord Rosebery was to speak and the House was filled to listen to a liberal peer castigate a liberal cabinet.

Lord Rosebery declared that he wished the Government well, but he ridiculed its efforts to legislate for Scotland. His complaint was that the bill in question would "Croftize" Scotland. In the most scathing manner and with an abundance of dramatic gesticulation the speaker declared he would not be a party to the introduction into the healthy body of politics of the "Poisonous bacillus of the Irish-American system." The Conservative peers were delighted and cheered Lord Rosebery to the echo. His speech was the event of the evening, but the Conservatives themselves doubt whether it will have much practical effect.

CAPT. FRANK REID, Gazetted Colonel of Seventh Regiment, But Is Undecided as to Command.

DEAD IN DITCH BESIDE TRACK

A Tramp Stealing Ride on Grand Trunk Near Woodstock.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Woodstock, Ont., Aug. 14.—An unknown man was seen lying in the ditch beside the G. T. R. tracks at Centerville, seven miles west of Woodstock, early this morning, by the engineer of a freight train going west. The engineer telephoned to Woodstock from some place farther up the line, and Dr. McKay went up. He found the man dead, and he had apparently been so for several hours. His head was crushed in and he was lying face downward. Nothing was in his pockets but matches, and every pocket was full of them. There was nothing by which he might be identified. It is surmised that the man was a tramp, and while stealing a ride on a freight fell off and was struck by the same train. He was apparently about 50 years old. The body was brought to Woodstock and an inquest will be held.

BREAKMAN CONFESSES TO DYNAMITE OUTRAGE

Boulder, Col., Aug. 14.—John W. Reeves, a brakeman employed on the Colorado and Northwestern Railroad yesterday confessed that he was responsible for the destruction of the Colorado and Southern station by fire, and dynamite Saturday. Later Frank Kizzor, another suspect, also confessed. The result of their act was the wiping out of five lives and the injury of a half hundred others besides, and the destruction of property valued at half a million dollars. Reeves narrowly escaped lynching.

YOUNG LADIES WANT SUNDAY CARS HERE

Acting Mayor Gillean Hears Request and Gives Advice to Applicants.

This morning two young ladies approached Acting-Mayor Gillean and asked him how to get Sunday cars. Ald. Gillean told them to hustle out, get a petition signed, and then submit it to the council. They thanked him cordially for his information, and "hustled" out for the petition. The young ladies did not give their names. They are said to belong to London Progressive Association.

BOMB FOR A LORD IN HIS IRISH LODGE

Lord Ashtown Has a Narrow Escape From Death.

Clenmell, Ireland, Aug. 14.—Lord Ashtown had a narrow escape from death at his residence, Glenabery Lodge, early this morning. He was asleep in a room on the ground floor, when a terrific explosion, caused by a bomb, shattered one of the walls of his apartment, and destroyed most of the furniture, but did not injure Lord Ashtown, who only arrived at the lodge last night. The gamekeepers recently had trouble with poachers on the estate, and the outrage is attributed to them.

COAL SHUTES' BUILDING SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

Big Early Morning Blaze Brought Out Brigade at 6:30.

The fire brigade responded to a telephone call from the Grand Trunk coal chutes on Egerton street, about 6:30 this morning. The room of a building on the south side was found to be on fire. Owing to its height there was considerable difficulty in extinguishing the blaze, but within half an hour it was brought under control. Part of the roof and the side of the building adjoining it are affected, but the damage is slight. A spark from a locomotive started the blaze.

Dr. Tillmann Points Out Dangers of Filtered Water

Is Very Strongly Opposed to the Proposed Filtration Scheme.

"I am against filtered water," said Dr. W. J. Tillmann this morning. Dr. Tillmann has traveled extensively in the United States and had occasion to live for some time in cities where filtration plants are in operation. His experience there has led him to be very much opposed to the filtration scheme. "A filtration plant is in use in New Orleans, the water being taken from the Mississippi River. But this is not the water the people use. They put out tubs and other dishes when a rain comes on, and after the rainwater themselves instead of using the filtered river water. Another very noticeable feature is the fact that bottled spring water is used very extensively in the cities where filtration plants are used. This proves conclusively that the people who know do not care for filtered water."

"Then you are out-and-out for spring water?" asked the reporter. "Yes, I would not use filtered water under any circumstances," he declared. And yet it is said "all the doctors" are out for river water!

Union Men Deny Alleged Statements That Barbers' Strike Isn't Official

Strikers Say All the Unionists Are Behind Them in the Struggle.

Thursday night the striking barbers of London will hold a band concert in Victoria Park, when an excellent programme of music will be rendered. The men met last night and drafted a statement for the press, but nothing in the statement refers to the objections raised by the master barbers to the holding of the concert in the park. The statement is as follows:

Strike Is Indorsed.
"In order to clear up any misconception in regard to our present strike, and to refute statements that are absolutely false, not only has the general secretary-treasurer indorsed our strike, but International Organizer Wm. Hubble is at present in the city, advise here by the executive board to send and assist the local union."

public that statements to the effect that our stand has not been indorsed by the international executive, are absolutely false. Not only has the general secretary-treasurer indorsed our strike, but International Organizer Wm. Hubble is at present in the city, advise here by the executive board to send and assist the local union."

Local Men Behind It.
"The London Trades and Labor Council has also indorsed the stand we have taken, and many of the local unions in the city have given us not only their moral support, but aided us liberally by financial donations. It must be fully apparent to the public that the master barbers have made many statements that time has proved to be misleading to say the least. The places of the striking journeymen have not been filled, and what is more, they cannot be filled. The local union is prepared at any time to meet the (Continued on Page Eight.)"

Salvage Work in the Crystal Hall

The work of salvaging the wreckage of the Crystal Hall and Long and Brewster stores commenced this morning. Contractor Bone, who has charge of the work, has a large staff of men with teams clearing away the debris, and it is expected that within a few days the wreckage will be cleared away. Considerable crockery smashed by the crash is being taken from the debris and it is thought that the salvage will exceed expectations. Mr. Frank Reid is also personally supervising the work.

Colborne Street Man Badly Crushed In Grand Trunk Yards at Simcoe

Mr. Fraser W. Ingram Seriously Injured While at Work on His Train.

Fraser W. Ingram, a Grand Trunk brakeman living at 145 Colborne street, this city, met with a serious accident yesterday afternoon at Simcoe. He is in a serious condition at present, although hopes are held out for his recovery. While coupling cars in the Grand Trunk yards, Ingram missed his footing and slipped under a car. One foot was caught, and was badly crushed between the ankle and knee. A Simcoe doctor was called and amputated his foot.

Mr. Ingram was brought to the city last night and taken to Victoria Hospital. Dr. Drake was called in consultation. The patient was suffering greatly, but further action was deferred until this morning. Mr. Ingram spent a very restless night, and this morning his condition was serious. Dr. Drake decided that it was necessary to amputate his leg above the knee in order to save his life. The operation was performed this morning. Ingram came out of it very satisfactorily, but is still in a very serious condition. His recovery is expected, provided no complications ensue. Mr. Ingram is a young man and unmarried. Ald. Booth, of this city, went to Simcoe and had him removed to London.

THE PROVINCIAL BUILDING INSPECTOR IS SUMMONED

Acting Mayor Gillean Backed Up by City Engineer Sends in the Request.

The provincial building inspector will be summoned to London immediately. Acting Mayor Gillean, acting under advice from City Engineer Graydon, decided to summon him to the city owing to the large number of complaints that have been received of late about unsafe buildings. Accordingly, a wire was sent to Hon. Adam Beck, member for London, informing him of the decision. No answer has yet been received to the request. "We want someone to assume the responsibility until the council appoints a building inspector," said Ald. Gillean. "Numerous complaints have come to us lately, and something should be done. I was informed by another alderman this morning that the factory inspector had condemned one or more buildings as being unsafe. The inspectors came here on the quiet and made their report. Mayor Judd asked the council to lay the matter over until he returned from Port Arthur. His worship is making inquiries on the subject, and will make a report on his return. But it was the opinion of several aldermen that we should show the people that we are doing something."

FENCED OFF THE BUILDING.

Considerable attention was called to this matter this morning when City Engineer Graydon ordered the contractors who are tearing down the wall next to the Priddis building to put a fence out to keep the people off the sidewalk in front of the latter store. The front wall of the building was warped badly, and presented anything but a safe appearance. The wall looked to be very rotten, and City Engineer Graydon refused to take any chances with it. No danger is anticipated, but it is just as well to be on the safe side.

That there are many unsafe buildings in the city, was the opinion of many of the bystanders, and clearly emphasized the need of a building inspector.

MR. THOMAS JONES FOR INSPECTOR.

It was rumored at the city hall today that Mr. Thomas Jones, of Jones Bros., contractors, will be appointed building inspector for London at the first meeting of the council in September. Mr. Jones is at present a member of the board of license commissioners, and is a prominent Conservative.

Operators Here Still at Keys Waiting General Strike Order

Montreal and Toronto the Only Canadian Points Affected.

The telegraphers' strike shows little change from yesterday. Neither the C. P. R. men nor the G. N. W. men of the local offices have gone on strike as yet. In all probability the G. N. W. operators will not strike, as they are not members of the "Telegraphers' Union, and therefore are not organized. The C. P. R. men all belong to the union, but as no strike has been ordered they are still at work. They are handling no messages from non-union men. The Associated Press operators are at work in nearly all the large cities, and although the usual amount of press stuff is not coming over the wires, still it is very satisfactory. Commercial messages are delayed a great deal, scarcely any messages being sent over the wires. "We handled over two-thirds of our usual business yesterday," said Mr. W. C. Furness, manager of the G. N. W. service. "The strike has not affected us very seriously. In Canada only Toronto and Montreal operators are out. We are getting some messages through to them. We are doing very little with the United States, as their system seems fairly well tied up. I look for an improvement within the next day or two. The men in the States seem to have little to strike over save the recognition of the union. Operators in California where the trouble started, receive from $120 to $160 a month, with increase for overtime. That is good wages, I think. We will have no trouble in our office." The C. P. R. men are working, and do not know what will happen so far as they are concerned. Mr. C. E. Hill, of Toronto, the Canadian representative (Continued on Page Eight.)

DEATH OF MR. C. CLUETT

Well-Known Londoner Passes Away at Victoria Hospital.

The death took place yesterday afternoon in Victoria Hospital of Mr. Clement Cluett, 136 Emery street. Mr. Cluett was born in England 56 years ago, having come to this country from Jackfield, Shropshire, in 1903. Since that time he has worked as shipper for the McClary Company. Mr. Cluett, had been ill only five days, his death coming as a great shock to his family and friends. A widow and two children, George and Bertha, all at home, survive their father. Mr. Aloysius Stone, organist in one of the Hamilton churches, is a stepson of the deceased. The funeral takes place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the family residence to Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Rev. Mr. Bowen will conduct the services.

LIEUT.-COL. J. W. LITTLE, Appointed to Command of Nineteenth Infantry Brigade.

Engineer Graydon in Twain's Class

City Engineer Graydon was never intended to "waste his sweetness" amid levels and transits and other paraphernalia of an engineer's office. He's a humorist in Mark Twain's class. As for M. Quad or Ezra Kendall, he has them beaten a city block. Today he received an anonymous card from a south end resident, asking why it is, that a certain William street grocer can water the roof of his barn and sheds every night at 10 o'clock, while other people cannot even water their lawns.

Mr. Graydon's answer is that he suspects the grocer has a hose and attaches it to the hydrant. This answer is on a par with the answer given a country correspondent by the editor of a well-known weekly. The correspondent wrote the editor as follows: "Every morning when I get up my hens are stretched out stiff on their backs. What is the matter with them?" And the editor replied as follows: "Your hens are dead."

Traction Cars Idle Next Two Weeks

The insurance inspectors arrived this morning to estimate the cost of the recent fire sustained by the Southwestern Traction Company. With the officers of the road, they went to the scene of the fire, making a thorough inspection of the ruins. No report has been issued as yet.

The officials of the road state that they do not think it will be possible to resume their service for at least two weeks yet.

GOULD NOT A SUICIDE.

Margellies, Aug. 14.—There is no truth in the report circulated in London that Vere St. Leger Gould, the confessed murderer of Emma Levin, had hanged himself in prison.

WILD SCENES AT A REVIVAL

Thousands Attacked by Violent Religious Mania in Central Prussia.

London, Aug. 13.—Entire villages in the Central Prussian provinces are at the present moment given over to a frenzied form of religious excitement. The movement began with two Swedish women, who proclaimed themselves divine emissaries specially sent from heaven to lead the inhabitants of Cassel, and the adjoining villages, to salvation. The first meetings held daily in what is known as the Blue House, Cassel, attracted so many followers, peasants coming in from far and near, that soon other halls had to be engaged. Now every village has its meeting of fanatics.

These meetings reveal insanity in its most dangerous form. Members fling themselves about in extravagant gestures, uttering inarticulate utterances which are rapturously hailed as inspired messages. Shrieks and groans fill the air, and men and women are seen every side rolling about on the floor in imaginary wrestlings with the evil one. Some fall unconscious, exhausted by their struggles, while others, thinking they have prevailed, jump up, and seizing one of their fellows who is in a similar condition of ecstasy, rapturously embrace him or swing him off in a wild dance of triumph. Incoherent confessions and sometimes partially coherent confessions of amazing things are delivered to the accompaniment of loud hand-clapping and shouts of "Bravo!" Women tear off their hats, and men their cuffs and collars, to symbolize their renunciation of the vanities of the world. Visions of a nature which it would seem profanity to describe are seen every evening as their recitation is listened to with manifestations of delight which are generally not witnessed outside a lunatic asylum. These orgies go on regularly till long past midnight.

One spectator writes: "I saw 200 people absolutely intoxicated with religious ecstasy, I heard wild cries, uncanny shrieks, groans, and most unearthly noises. I saw distorted faces, men and women gesticulating like lunatics. I saw them sink to the ground and kick out in all directions. "Several worshippers shouted, 'We see the blood of our Saviour.' Women embraced one another, saying, 'We have seen our Saviour himself.' "The preacher offered up the following prayer: 'O Lord, let everyone here kneel down. Whoever refuses to kneel, let him be thrown from our midst.' One man remained standing, whereupon there were wild cries of 'Out with him! Out with him!' "When the unbeliever left the hall, the worshippers shouted, 'The devil has now gone. The evil one has left our midst.' "Apparently nothing can be done to prevent these excesses, and the fire will have to be allowed to burn itself out, leaving, as is always the case in such circumstances, a residuum of incurable insanity behind it.

NO PERSON should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kell's Dysentery Cordial in their pocket, as a change of water, cooking climate, etc., frequently brings on summer complaint and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand, which oftentimes saves great suffering and frequently valuable lives. This Cordial has gained for itself a wide-spread reputation for affording prompt relief from all summer complaints.

A remarkable mode of incarceration is practiced by the hornbills, birds with immense bills and horny crests, which inhabit Southern Asia, the Malayan Islands and Central and Southern Africa. In most, if not all, species the brooding female is walled up in a hollow tree and fed by her mate. She remains confined in her prison until the eggs are hatched, and in some species until the young birds are able to fly. Meanwhile the mother has become temporarily incapable of flight, as she has moulted, or at least, shed all her wing feathers, during her captivity. But the male is indefatigable in providing for his family, and is said to work so hard that he is reduced almost to a skeleton at the end of the brooding season.

THE BOW STREET MEMORY MAN

Jailor Who Had Acquired a Habit of Never Forgetting Retires.

London, Aug. 13.—After a quarter of a century of service Assistant-Jailer Soper, the "Memory Man," of Bow street police court, who never forgot a face or the record of a criminal he had once handled, retired on Wednesday on a pension.

Mr. Soper's connection with the court dated from the opening of the present buildings. Hundreds of criminals passed through his hands, and he remembered them all, as many found to their undoing when they attempted to receive the court as to their careers.

"Do you know this man?" the magistrate asked recently. "Yes, sir," replied Soper promptly, and without looking at the book, he gave the actual date and offense of the man, who had not been at the court for four or five years.

More than one magistrate has expressed himself amazed at the accuracy of Soper's recollections. Soper not only never forgot a face, he had a faculty for remembering its associations. Not once was he proved wrong when the book came into use for verification purposes. No officer has, perhaps, had a more remarkable collection of celebrated criminals through his hands than the "Memory man."

Famous Criminals.

The railed inclosure of which Soper was custodian held, for instance, Gallagher, Wilson, Curtin, and Whitehead, the desperate dynamitards, whose plot to overthrow the Tower of London and Government buildings in 1883 seems to many an officer as though it happened but last year. Inspector Frost was in those days just winning his spurs.

Bow street had an echo back in the eighties, too, of the Phoenix Park murders. Carey, the informer, was followed by a man named O'Donnell, who shot him on the high seas. O'Donnell was committed for trial at Bow street, and subsequently executed at the Old Bailey. To Bow street were taken in 1894 the Liberator directors, convicted the following year of frauds. Following came the Oscar Wilde case and, just afterwards, Jabez Balfour.

All sorts and conditions of men pass through the hands of a dock officer. Soper's "gallery" ranged from Neil Cream, the doctor-poisoner and forger of signatures, to Col. Lynch, the Whittaker Wright, and Monte Carlo Wells, the "man who broke the bank," and incidentally also broke a number of confiding members of the British public.

What frequenters of the court will miss most will be Soper's dialogues with old birds who with well-assured surprise have protested against the "Bow street" memory, and tried to overthrow it—and his way with youngsters, for whom he had words of magic comfort and advice.

During the quarter of a century Mr. Soper has served, Bow street has known four chief magistrates, Sir James Ingham, Sir John Bridge, Sir Franklin Lushington, and Sir Albert Ratten, by all of whom the dock officer was held in high esteem, and was constantly referred to for practical advice in dealing with the prisoners in the dock.

DRUCE AND DUKE

The Claimant Loses a Point in the First Round.

London, Aug. 13.—A preliminary point with respect to the claim of Mr. G. H. Druce to the Portland estates came before the court on Tuesday upon the refusal of Justice Pickford in Chambers to send out a commissioner to New York to examine an American lawyer.

Mr. Arnold Statham, on behalf of Mr. Druce, stated that Mr. Caldwell, the American lawyer, was a most material witness. His client was prepared to pay such sum as the court considered right to impose as security for the costs of the commission. Mr. Caldwell was said to be 71, and to be suffering from ptomaine poisoning. If Mr. Caldwell were enabled afterwards to attend the trial Mr. Druce would undertake not to use the evidence taken on commission. The getting up of the case had cost many thousands of pounds, and it would be very serious for Mr. Druce if the evidence that Mr. Caldwell was prepared to give was lost upon a technical objection. The other side had examined several witnesses on commission, and Mr. Druce had taken no objection. Counsel said he was therefore surprised that objection had been taken to defeat Mr. Caldwell's evidence being available.

The Master of the Rolls: The affidavit filed in support of the application does not state that there is any difficulty in bringing the witness over.

Mr. Statham admitted that was so, but said that Mr. Druce had sent a gentleman to New York to ascertain the facts and report upon them. That report had not yet been received.

The Master of the Rolls: What did the learned judge think about it? Mr. Rowlatt (for the defendant trustees): Mr. Justice Pickford thought that Mr. Caldwell was not a witness who ought to be examined on commission.

Lord Justice Kennedy: Is the trial likely to come on shortly? Mr. Rowlatt: The pleadings have now been closed and the case is likely to come on in the next legal year.

The Master of the Rolls: We do not wish to preclude Mr. Druce from making a further application upon further materials. The present application must be dismissed, and the respondents will have the costs in any event.

NO RELIEF FOR DESPERATE RUSSIA

Official Brutality Leads to Many Crimes of Violence.

London, Aug. 13.—St. Petersburg telegrams tell of terrible penalties inflicted by the revived summary court-martial and the reckless retaliation of certain desperadoes.

All the accused brought before this strict tribunal in the capital were condemned to death by hanging. Two other prisoners were similarly sentenced by ordinary court-martial, while at Riga seven youths were condemned to be hanged.

A consequence, undoubtedly, of this reckless repression was the attack by twelve armed men on a loan bank in the Bolshay Prospect, St. Petersburg, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The ordinary business of the bank was in progress when the dozen desperadoes rushed in shouting "Hands up!" All the money at hand was grabbed, and while the robbers were still searching the safes an alarm was raised, and a number of armed police and bandits hurried up to the spot. The band then began to retreat, shooting and killing one and wounding several policemen. During their flight part of the money dropped in the street. One of the robbers was killed and two wounded. The rest escaped in cabs, which were in waiting.

Such an occurrence in the center of the capital is declared to be feebly characteristic of the state of the rest of the country. Tuesday's papers alone reported the discovery at Kishinef of eighty-six packets of explosives; at Bachmut of four bombs, a bomb explosion at Vilna; and attack at Pensa by an armed band on a company of soldiers, two of whom were wounded, while their prisoners escaped; the killing of policemen at Kutais and Odessa; the holding-up of a train near Yuzhnyok, four men being shot; the wounding of Jews at Odessa and Lodz by hoodlums; the holding-up of a train near Irgen; at Kamyslin an armed attack upon a bank treasurer; at Kieff an armed attack on the postoffice; several raids on state grog shops; a robbery of the Tiflis mail, 100,000 roubles being missing; and a great number of other crimes.

While this state of anarchy continues the authorities are deepening the general discontent by silencing the press, imprisoning scores of inoffensive journalists, and by innumerable "heavy arrests," which destroy all hopes of peaceful progress. And, says the correspondent sending the above message, the odd thing is that, walking among the people, I found hardly any indignation over the affair. Goodness has ceased to impress the popular imagination.

HOLY JUMPERS TO INVADE NEW YORK

Will Try to Make Converts by Means of Their Fanatical Dances.

New York, Aug. 13.—New York city is threatened with an invasion of the "Holy Jumpers" despite the sad fate of the Dowle conquest, which seems to have been forgotten. There is a colony of the "Jumpers" at a place which they call Zarepath, near Somerville, N. J., and "Rev." C. W. Birdwell, who presides, says that he is going to bring his forces over to Broadway, just as he took them into Denver.

"Yes, we dance and make a big demonstration in the streets," said the leader. "I am aware that we are classed as fanatics and derisively called 'Holy Jumpers,' but we do not care what the people say or think about us, and keep right on our way. Our religious dance is neither that of whirling dervish, nor society two-step, but it is the exultant hop of one inspired with due religious fervor."

Of course the Jumpers will seek converts. Every person who joins their society must turn over all his earthly possessions and dedicate his life to their peculiar work. Birdwell said that he feared he would have a hard time getting desirable recruits in New York city, "because," he said, "we believe in the sacred bond of matrimony, but not in divorce."

Gates' Friends Doubt. Friends of John W. Gates doubt the correctness of the report that he is planning to quit America and live in England. They assert that when he sailed last week he said that he would be back about the middle of October, and that he has leased a suite of rooms in the new Plaza hotel, which will be ready about the end of the year.

Mr. Gates' interests in the United States are very large. He is one of the largest shareholders in the Republic Iron and Steel Company, the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, the United States Realty and Improvement Company, the Moose Mountain Ore Company, the Texas Oil Company, and several other industrial corporations. He already has leased office room in the Trinity building, and his friends say that it is certain that he will make his headquarters there upon his return from Europe.

CHOLERA MORBUS, cramps and kindred complaints annually make their appearance at the same time as the hot weather, green fruit, cucumbers, melons, etc., and many persons are debilitated from eating these tempting things, but they need not abstain if they have Dr. J. D. Kell's Dysentery Cordial, and take a few drops in water. It cures the cramps and cholera in a remarkable manner, and is sure to check every disturbance of the bowels.

MISS MAYOU WRITES

Gives Some Interesting Information Re Sending of Goods to Labrador.

The following is an extract from a letter received by a lady of this city from Miss Mayou, formerly lady superintendent of Victoria Hospital here, and dated from Deep Sea Mission Hospital, Harrington, Canadian Labrador, July 2, 1937. It is of concern in that the writer gives some very important directions to those interested in this work, as to how to address bales intended for the use of those who live on the rock-bound coasts of Labrador:

"I wish I had time to send you a long account of the work. Dr. Grenfell is doing wonders for this barren rocky coast, but you heard his lecture, and know much."

and who by sending them help Dr. Grenfell in his great and wonderful work amongst those poor but hard-working and honest fishermen and their families.

I wish all could know how much the clothes given by kind friends enables us to help the people. They get them in return for labor, or articles, such as fish, wood, mats, berries, etc., and so can spend upon food and other necessities all the money they receive for their fish. In former days the women and children could not go out in the winter for lack of clothing; an old trouser-leg was often an infant's sole outfit. Now, wherever Dr. Grenfell goes, no one, thanks to the kind friends who send such generous bales, is destitute of clothing. If you hear of anyone sending anything to Harrington, will you please ask them to send them freight paid to Halifax, care of Mr. Jas. Thomson, Wood's Wharf, Halifax? He is a trader, and his schooner comes to this coast for fish, and will carry freight at a reasonable rate. Many things intended for us have, I am afraid, miscarried, from having been sent to St. Johns, Newfoundland, 700 miles away, and with which we have no communication, except by the Strathcona, which makes it her winter quarters, and leaves there in May or June not to return there until she goes in November for the winter. She brought this June some barrels which had been lying in St. Johns since last summer. And will you also ask anyone who sends anything to put inside the name and address of the donor? So often we are unable to acknowledge gifts, not knowing who sent them.

I wish I had time to send you a long account of the work. Dr. Grenfell is doing wonders for this barren rocky coast, but you heard his lecture, and know much."

Some years since he became a bachelor of arts, two years ago he qualified as a mining engineer, and now he has passed quite brilliantly

WILD SCENES

AT A REVIVAL

Thousands Attacked by Violent Religious Mania in Central Prussia.

London, Aug. 13.—Entire villages in the Central Prussian provinces are at the present moment given over to a frenzied form of religious excitement. The movement began with two Swedish women, who proclaimed themselves divine emissaries specially sent from heaven to lead the inhabitants of Cassel, and the adjoining villages, to salvation. The first meetings held daily in what is known as the Blue House, Cassel, attracted so many followers, peasants coming in from far and near, that soon other halls had to be engaged. Now every village has its meeting of fanatics.

These meetings reveal insanity in its most dangerous form. Members fling themselves about in extravagant gestures, stammer inarticulate utterances, which are rapturously hailed as inspired messages. Shrieks and groans fill the air, and men and women are seen on every side rolling about on the floor in imaginary wrestlings with the evil one. Some fall unconscious, exhausted by their struggles, while others, thinking they have prevailed, jump up, and seizing one of their fellows who is in a similar condition of ecstasy, rapturously embrace him or swing him off in a wild dance of triumph. Incoherent confessions and sometimes partially coherent confessions of amazing sins, are delivered to the accompaniment of loud hand-clapping and shouts of "Bravo!" Women tear off their hats, and men their cuffs and collars, to symbolize their renunciation of the vanities of the world. Visions of a nature which it would seem profanity to describe are seen every evening, and their recitations are inspired with manifestations of delight which are generally not witnessed outside a lunatic asylum. These orgies go on regularly till long past midnight.

One spectator writes: "I saw 200 people absolutely intoxicated with religious ecstasy. Women were crying, uncanny shrieks, groans, and most unearthly noises. I saw distorted faces, men and women gesticulating like lunatics. I saw them sink to the ground and kick out in all directions.

"Several worshippers shouted, 'We see the blood of our Saviour.' Women embraced one another, saying, 'We have seen our Saviour himself.'

"The preacher offered up the following prayer: 'O Lord, let everyone here kneel down. Whoever refuses to kneel, let him be thrown from our midst.' One man remained standing, whereupon there were wild cries of 'Out with him! Out with him!'

"When the unbeliever left the hall, the worshippers shouted, 'The devil has now gone. The evil one has left our midst.'

Apparently nothing can be done to prevent these excesses, and the life will have to be allowed to burn itself out, leaving, as is always the case in such circumstances, a residuum of incurable insanity behind it.

NO PERSON should go from home without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kell's Sarsaparilla. It is the only medicine that cleanses the blood, cures skin diseases, and restores the system to its normal state. It is a sure remedy for all summer complaints and there is nothing like being ready with a sure remedy at hand, which often times saves great suffering and frequently valuable lives. This Sarsaparilla has gained for itself a widespread reputation and is the most reliable relief from all summer complaints.

A remarkable mode of incarceration is practiced by the hornbills, birds with immense bills and horny crests, which inhabit Southern Asia, the Malay Islands and Central and Southern Africa. In most, if not all species the brooding female is walled up in a hollow tree and fed by her mate. She remains confined in her prison until the eggs are hatched, and in some species until the young birds are able to fly. Meanwhile the mother has become temporarily incapable of flight, as she has moulted, and at least, shed all her wing feathers, during her captivity. But the male is indefatigable in providing for his family, and is said to work so hard that he is reduced almost to a skeleton at the end of the brooding season.

The Itch Fiend

That is Itch, Rheum or Eczema, one of the outward manifestations of scrofula. It comes in itching, burning, oozing, drying, and scaling patches, on the face, head, hands, legs or body.

It cannot be cured by outward applications, the blood must be rid of the impurity to which it is due.

THE BOW STREET

MEMORY MAN

Jailor Who Had Acquired a Habit of Never Forgetting Retires.

London, Aug. 13.—After a quarter of a century of service Assistant-Jailor Soper, the "Memory Man," of Bow street police court, who never forgot a face or the record of a criminal he had once handled, retired on Wednesday on a pension.

Mr. Soper's connection with the court dated from the opening of the present buildings. Hundreds of criminals passed through his hands, and he remembered them all, as many found to their undoing when they attempted to receive the court as to their careers.

"Do you know this man?" the magistrate asked recently.

"Yes, sir," replied Soper promptly, and without looking at the book, he gave the actual date and offense of the man, who had not been at the court for four or five years.

More than one magistrate has expressed himself amazed at the accuracy of Soper's recollections.

Mr. Soper's connection with the court dated from the opening of the present buildings. Hundreds of criminals passed through his hands, and he remembered them all, as many found to their undoing when they attempted to receive the court as to their careers.

Famous Criminals.

The recalled inclusions of which Soper was custodian held, for instance, Gallagher, Wilson, Curtin, and Whitehead, the desperate dynamitards, whose plot to overthrow the Tower of London and Government buildings in 1883 seems to many an officer as though it happened but last year. Inspector Proest was in those days just winning his spurs.

Bow street had an echo back in the eighties, too, of the Phoenix Park murders. Carey, the informer, was followed by a man named O'Donnell, who shot him on the high seas. O'Donnell was committed for trial at Bow street, and subsequently executed at the Old Bailey. To Bow street were taken in 1894 the Liberator directors, convicted the following year of frauds. Following came the Oscar Wilde case and, just afterwards, Jabez Balfour.

All sorts and conditions of men pass through the hands of a dock officer. Soper's "gallery" ranged from Neil Cream, the doctor-poisoner and murderer of Chapman, to Col. Lynch, the Whitaker Wright, and Monte Carlo Wells, the "man who broke the bank," and incidentally also broke a number of confiding members of the British public.

What frequenters of the court will miss most will be Soper's dialogues with old birds with well-assumed surprise have protested against the "Bow street" memory, and tried to overthrow his way with youngsters, for whom he had words of magic comfort and advice.

During the quarter of a century Mr. Soper has served, Bow street has known four chief magistrates, Sir James Ingham, Sir John Bridge, Sir Franklin Lushington, and Sir Albert de Rutzen, by all of whom the dock officer was held in high esteem, and was constantly referred to for practical advice in dealing with the prisoners in the dock.

DRUCE AND DUKE

The Claimant Loses a Point in the First Round.

London, Aug. 13.—A preliminary point with respect to the claim of Mr. G. H. Druce to the Portland estates came before the court on Tuesday upon the refusal of Justice Pickford in Chambers to send out a commission to New York to examine an American lawyer.

Mr. Arnold Statham, on behalf of Mr. Druce, stated that Mr. Caldwell, the American lawyer, was a most material witness. His client was prepared to pay such sum as the court considered right to impose as security for the costs of the commission. Mr. Caldwell was said to be 71, and to be suffering from ptomaine poisoning. If Mr. Caldwell were enabled afterwards to attend the trial Mr. Druce would undertake not to use the evidence taken on commission. The getting up of the case had cost many thousands of pounds, and it would be very serious for Mr. Druce if the evidence that Mr. Caldwell was prepared to give was lost upon a technical objection. The other side had examined several witnesses on commission, and Mr. Druce had taken no objection. Counsel said he was therefore surprised that objection had been taken to defeat Mr. Caldwell's evidence being available.

The Master of the Rolls: The affidavit filed in support of the application does not state that there is any difficulty in bringing the witness over.

Mr. Statham admitted that was so, but said that Mr. Druce had sent a gentleman to New York to ascertain the facts and report upon them. That report had not yet been received.

The Master of the Rolls: What did the learned judge think about it?

Mr. Rowlatt (for the defendant trustees): Mr. Justice Pickford thought that Mr. Caldwell was not a witness who ought to be examined on commission.

Lord Justice Kennedy: Is the trial likely to come on shortly?

Mr. Rowlatt: The pleadings have now been closed and the case is likely to come on in the next legal year.

The Master of the Rolls: We do not wish to preclude Mr. Druce from making a further application upon further materials. The present application must be dismissed, and the respondents will have the costs in any event.

NO RELIEF FOR

DESPERATE RUSSIA

Official Brutality Leads to Many Crimes of Violence.

London, Aug. 13.—St. Petersburg telegrams tell of terrible penalties inflicted by the revived summary court-martial and the reckless retaliation of certain desperadoes.

All the accused brought before this strict tribunal in the capital were condemned to death by hanging. Two other prisoners were similarly sentenced by ordinary court-martial, while at Riga seven youths were condemned to be hanged.

A consequence, undoubtedly, of this repression was the attack by twelve armed men on a loan bank in the Bolshay Prospect, St. Petersburg, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The ordinary business of the bank was in progress when the dozen desperadoes rushed in shouting "Hands up." All the money at hand was grabbed, and while the robbers were still searching the safes an alarm was raised, and numbers of armed police and gendarmes hurried up to the spot. The bank then began to retreat, shooting and killing one and wounding several policemen. During their flight part of the money dropped in the street. One of the robbers was killed and two wounded. The rest escaped in cabs, which were in waiting.

Such an occurrence in the center of the capital is declared to be feebly characteristic of the state of the rest of the country. Tuesday's papers alone reported the discovery at Kishinev of eighty-six packets of explosives; at Bachmut of four bombs, a bomb explosion at Vilna; and attack at Pensa by an armed band on a company of soldiers, two of whom were wounded, while their prisoners escaped; the killing of policemen at Kuznetsk and Odessa; the holding-up of a train near Huzhova, four men being shot; the wounding of Jews at Odessa and Loda by hooligans; the holding-up of a train near Irgen; at Kamyslin an armed attack upon a bank treasurer; at Kieff an armed attack on the postoffice; several raids on state grog shops; a robbery of the Tiflis mail, 100,000 roubles being missing; and a great number of other crimes.

While this state of anarchy continues the authorities are deepening the general discontent by silencing the press, imprisoning scores of independent journalists, and by innumerable arbitrary arrests, which destroy all hopes of peaceful progress. And, says the correspondent sending the above message, the odd thing is that, walking among the people, I found hardly any indignation over the affair. Bloodshed has ceased to impress the popular imagination.

HOLY JUMPERS TO

INVADE NEW YORK

Will Try to Make Converts by Means of Their Fanatical Dances.

New York, Aug. 13.—New York city is threatened with an invasion of the "Holy Jumpers" despite the sad fate of the Dowle conquest, which seems to have been forgotten. There is a colony of the "Jumpers" at a place which they call Zarepath, near Somerville, N. J., and "Rev." C. W. Birdwell, who presides, says that he is going to bring his forces over to Broadway, just as he took them into Denver.

"Yes, we dance and make a big demonstration in the streets," said the leader. "I am aware that we are classed as fanatics and derisively called 'Holy Jumpers,' but we do not care what the people say or think about us, and keep right on our way. Our religious dance is neither that of whirling dervish nor sally twister, but it is the exultant hop of one inspired with due religious fervor."

Of course the Jumpers will seek converts. Every person who joins their society must turn over all his earthly possessions and devote his life to their peculiar work. Birdwell said that he feared he would have to send the undesirable recruits in New York city, "because," he said, "we believe in the sacred bond of matrimony, but not in divorce."

If you hear of anyone sending anything to Harrington, will you please ask them to send them freight paid to Halifax, care of Mr. Jas. Thomson, Wharf, Halifax? He is a trader, and his schooner comes to this coast for fish, and will carry freight at a reasonable rate. Many things intended for us have, I am afraid, miscarried, from having been sent to St. Johns, Newfoundland, 700 miles away, and with which we have no communication, except by the Stratford, which makes it her winter quarters, and leaves there in May or June not to return there until she goes in November for the winter. She brought this June some barrels which had been lying in St. Johns since last summer. And will you also ask anyone who sends anything to put inside the name and address of the donor? So often we are unable to acknowledge gifts, not knowing who sent them.

I wish I had time to send you a long account of the work. Dr. Grenfell is doing wonders for this barren rocky coast, but you heard his lecture, and know much.

LEARNED CHIMNEY SWEEPER.

M. Koloman Zanzl, chimney sweeper of Budapest, is probably unique in his profession.

His mornings and days generally he devotes to clearing the sooty ways of the material world; his evenings to exploring the obscurities of the region of intellect. For years it has been his practice, once the working hours of the day were done, to retire for a long evening of study. Science, history and law were his favorite subjects. Some years since he became a bachelor of arts, two years ago he qualified as a mining engineer, and now he has passed quite brilliantly

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 14.

A PERNICIOUS PRECEDENT.

Ex-Mayor Wilson's manly arraignment of the School Board echoes the sentiments of many of his fellow-Conservatives, who have a sense of fair play, and believe that good citizenship comes before partisanship.Dr. Wilson's statement is a courageous one, as it is a virtual repudment of several prominent members of his own party, and is likely to bring upon him the resentment of machine politicians. Upon a previous occasion he pleaded with a convention of his party friends for the elimination of politics from municipal affairs. Evidently he is not daunted by the discouraging reception of his views at that time.He is on unassailable ground when he says that educational affairs in particular should be kept out of the party arena. There have been numerous School Board squabbles in the past
over chairmanships and other honorary posts, but these matters concern the trustees more than the public. The drawing of party lines in the appointment and promotion of teachers is a very different thing. If this principle is established it will destroy the integrity of the teaching profession. In the present case it has allied with another principle equally vicious—that of nepotism. The teachers of the city are treated to the spectacle of principal-ships, both in the public and high schools, carried in the pockets of one man and peddled out to family connections. When the prizes of the profession are disposed of in this fashion,
it is not very encouraging to the teaching body. Add to this the notice which the School Board has practically served, that teachers who are not of the same stripe of politics as the dominating element of the Board, need not look for preferment, and it will be realized that a scandalous state of affairs has been created, against which every good citizen should raise his voice, as Dr. Wilson has done.

CANADA'S RAILWAY SITUATION.

The railway situation in the Canadian West is decidedly novel. The transportation problem is solving itself with marvelous rapidity. The people are witnessing a gigantic race in railway construction.According to the Edmonton Bulletin, an excellent authority on Western affairs, the haste at present being displayed in railway building is at the fever point. The companies are scouring the country for men, teams and material. One contractor is said to have seven thousand men engaged in his construction contracts on the G. T.
P. and C. P. R. between Winnipeg and Edmonton, while hundreds of men are scattered along the line of the C. N.
R., ballasting and improving the road
bed for the heavy traffic that is certainly coming fall. A few days ago it was announced by the manager of the G. T. P. that a contract could be let at once for grading west from Edmonton, provided an experienced and responsible contractor could be procured.While the managements of the old and new transcontinental roads are concentrating their available forces to accomplish the construction of two new lines across the prairies, the third competitor is confining his efforts to track levelling and putting under the rails a solid foundation, the object being to enable it to operate more and heavier trains and at greater speed. It is taken for granted that the immediate prize
at stake is the growing trade of Central Alberta, for it is but natural that the road first in position to handle
it efficiently and at reasonable rates
must go the lion's share of this trade.
The ultimate objective of all three roads, however, is believed to be the Pacific tidewater. Indeed, two of them—the G. T. P. and C. N. R.—
admit that it is their purpose, and no
one on the scene believes that the C.
P. R. intends its short line merely as a feeder.Freight for the Orient originating in Central Alberta and Saskatchewan is at present carried south a day's haul on the C. P. R., and from Vancouver is carried a day's voyage north on the steamers. It is hardly likely the C.
P. R. will be content to forever carry every passenger and every ton of freight over this four hundred extra miles at the same rates as the more northerly routes offer. Moreover, there is every reason to believe that competition for transcontinental traffic will prove a strong force in inducing
the C. P. R. to extend to the east the Winnipeg-Edmonton line.

As a result of the wisdom and foresight of the Liberal Government at Ottawa the country is securing not only a transcontinental railway, forming a second link between the Atlantic and the Pacific, but is experiencing a competition in railway construction

that is unparalleled even in the history of the Western States.

TYPHOID AND WATER SUPPLIES.

As a result of recent experiments,
the possibility of preventing typhoid fever by means of inoculation (presumably with attenuated germs) is now being discussed in England. It is claimed from experience in two cases—one the inoculation of nurses
and attendants at a typhoid hospital at Maldstone, England, and the other its widespread use at Meerut, India—that the inoculation creates immunity.
No more layman will presume to question the efficacy of this treatment,
but it is to be feared that much more experience is needed than is afforded by these two cases before inoculation will find general adoption. To ordinary people the better plan of guarding against this dread disease would seem for communities to make sure that their water supplies are pure, and to keep them pure, for unquestionably water is the chief source of infection.
The assertion is made that in every case where there has for years been a sustained rate of typhoid—like, for instance, that of the two Pennsylvania cities, Pittsburgh and Allegheny—it was due to water from rivers, and it is equally true that cities having pure spring water supplies are free from the disease. It has long been London's boast, as well as its good fortune, that its water supply is as pure
as any to be found the continent over,
which mainly accounts for the city's comparative freedom from typhoid.
What few cases do appear here are invariably traceable to outside sources,
the infection being caught while the victims were away holidaying, for it is a well-established fact that the disease becomes more prevalent during and immediately after the midsummer holiday season than at any other time. The necessity of the city safeguarding its pure water supply for household use is at once apparent. Citizens will resist any attempt to force
on them as a substitute for their health-giving water a supply as to the purity of which there is no guarantee; for the risk is too great, as well as unnecessary.Some London Collegiate Institute
teachers are prized by other school boards if not by the MacRobert faction.It will be noticed that in this telegraphers' trouble the public, like the innocent bystander, is the party that gets hit.Having realized that public opinion is outraged, it is now proposed to offer the local Collegiate Institute teachers consolation money.This is the season when many a husband in a servile household gets new light on the domestic help problem while his wife is visiting her mother in the country.Goldwin Smith celebrated his 84th birthday on Monday. His mind is as keen and his pen as incisive as ever.
A certain school of critics will never concede him a foremost place in the world of letters, as his literary style is too lucid.A Canadian in Flint, Mich., evidently impressed by the numerous cases in which the unwritten law had been invoked in the United States, has deliberately killed a man, and boasts of his deed. Apparently any homicide across the line may escape the gallows or death-chamber by trumping up
a story affecting his wife's or daughter's honor.

ADVICE TO KICKERS.

[Telukoma News.]

If you are a kicker and see the shadow of failure in everything that is proposed to help the town, go into some secluded canyon and kick your own shadow on the clay bank, and thus give men who are working to build up a town a chance.
One long-faced, hollow-eyed kicker can do more to keep away business and capital
from a town than all the droughts, short crops, cinch bugs, cyclones and blizzards combined.

BOUND NOT TO LOSE THEM.

[Clinton New Era.]

The other morning a woman with six children made a train transfer at Clinton station. None of the children were lonesome, but she had taken the precaution that she would not have anxiety in looking after them, for they were all securely tied to her. Asked if she would like any situation in getting them all on the train,she replied: "No, I can manage them all right, but they are considerable of a care nevertheless."

FIRST LOVE.

[New York American.]

First love—time when youth wanders
moonstruck through the Forest of Arden, hanging round on every lawlorn bach-ster's love is "traceable to two scientific causes." So, at least, says Sir James Criston-Brown, who has traveled far into the land of science, although he may never have been in the enchanted forest.First, says Sir James, there is a "cerebral commotion" (which sounds remarkably like brainstorm), and then there is a "stirring of some hitherto dormant association centers." The cerebral commotion agrees well with Boswell's dictum that "love is more a madness," and would be whipped out of the infected were the whippers not themselves afflicted. As to the association centers, all first love associates it again with a brown eye or a dimpled cheek.First love asks but little. There is perfect happiness in holding hands and turning sheep's eyes toward the adorable one. To the cautious observer it suggests cerebral commotion less than delicate trepidity, and the young lover himself appears in no romantic light; rather does he look like a homebody call in a strange room."The young fool," says he. And then, perhaps—in an utterly unscientific way—
science suddenly thinks of a lock of golden hair, a blue sash, remembers a swinging gate or a shady porch back in the "old town," where age was once young. "The young fool," repeats age, but this time with a trace of envy in the voice and maybe a quick dimness in the eye.

OUTSIDERS CAN'T HELP.

The very biggest mistake that married

[The Car.]

Only in Great Britain, so far as I know,
does the law hold that a foot passenger has an equal right to the highway with wheeled traffic, and that it is the duty of the driver of the latter to avoid at all costs the former, even if he has to do so at considerable inconvenience and often danger. In other countries, on the contrary, it is the duty of the pedestrian to give way to the wheeled traffic.

would be called fashionably bred, although her blood lines are of sterling quality. She is by Jay Time, a son of Jay Bird, not previously represented in the 220 list, and her dam is by Bayonne Prince, 2:21½, a New Jersey stallion, prominent in the days of high-wheel sulkies; he by Kentucky Prince and out of a mare of whose pedigree nothing was known, but that afterwards added to her fame by producing Marcus, 2:29½, and that mare, with her history complete, has also two producing daughters with one performer apiece to her credit.Belle Bird likewise comes from a new section in the production of fast colt trotters, having been bred in Maryland, where the trotting-bred horse has gained a lot of ground in the last few years, a number of the historic breeding establishments of that commonwealth, that for generations
have been nurseries of the thoroughbred, being now the headquarters of trotting stallions and bands of mares bred in the best harness horse lines.Many of the Aged in Training.
But when Belle Bird is the best three-year-old trotter to date, there is a flock of them in training that in their work have shown speed enough to win
any race for their age. A striking feature is the fact that, outside of Belle Bird, the colts that have thus far shown the best are by Peter the Great, 2:07½;
Todd, 2:18½, and Bingen, 2:06¾;
one of which was a great colt trotter in his day.Peter the Great was second at a two-year-old in 2:14, and won the Kentucky
Futurity the following season in 2:12½.
Bingen trotted a public trial in 2:12½ as a two-year-old, making him the fastest of that age, with the single exception of Arion, and Todd, prevented by an ailment from showing at his best, trotted the last half of a 2:21 exhibition mile at Readville as a two-year-old in 1:06½.In fact, on their form as two-year-olds, the best of the candidates for this year's Futurity are Kentucky Todd, 2:14½; Blue Hill, 2:15½, and Lucille Marlowe, records made at that age, but neither of them has started in 1907 they have been overlooked in favor of the new performers that are early in the fray. It is generally the case, however, that the crack two-year-olds of one season are the best three-year-olds of the next campaign, and for that reason horsemen still are trying to the ones that made the pace for the two-year-old trotters of 1906.ABUNDANT YIELDS
BARLEY AND OATSCoarse Grains to Make Up for Any Wheat Losses in the Far West.Winnipeg, Aug. 12.—Crop reports of all kinds are in circulation at this season, and as the critical stage approaches the usual concern is felt with respect to the ability of the grain to mature in time. In some quarters an unusual amount of apprehension is aroused owing to the lateness of the season and the comparative slow growth. This lateness undoubtedly furnishes the chief cause for unrest,
and if the frost comes at the usual
time it will damage the grain much more than in an ordinary year. An area of about 5,000,000 acres under wheat may be considered as satisfactory, despite of the fact that the remarkable progress in grain-growing
has led to expectations of a larger cultivation. It should be remembered, too, that the increases in oats and barley
are very heavy, and if loss comes through a decrease in the production of wheat there is reasonable ground for hoping that the difference will be more than made up by the abundant yields of the coarse grains.

Farmers Expect Higher Prices.

A consideration of the crop situation
in relation to the general commercial condition of this country must take into account the prices which the farmers will receive for their various commodities. "Dollar wheat" has not yet arrived in this country, and the price for milling grades on the basis of delivery at Port William is at present fluctuating around 90 cents. The impression abroad in the grain-growing belt is that prices will go much higher before the close of the next crop-moving season. This view is based on the alleged shortage in the world's supply of wheat, and the probability that the aggregate demand will raise values higher in all markets. This prospect of shortage has already been partially discounted by the advances which have occurred during the past three months, and further advances will depend upon the extent to which the reports of crop damage in various wheat-raising countries of the world are confirmed. It is undoubtedly true that the supply of wheat will be much smaller than it was last year, while the demand will probably be larger.
The effects of the discrepancy will not be fully felt for at least six months,
and if the prices go higher the movement will be gradual, extending over the whole of that period.

Oats and Barley Dear.

The higher prices for oats and barley are also worthy of notice, because these grains are playing a more important part in the upbuilding of the Canadian west. Reports from the United States indicate that oats will not be a full crop there this season,
and the market in Canada will be certain to reflect that shortage. At the present time the oat crop in the three western Provinces is making remarkable progress, and there is a good prospect of an unusually heavy yield.
The acreage shows a large increase as compared with that of last year, and if the average for 1906 be maintained,
the production will be several million bushels more than it was a year ago.

are bound to hold firm, in sympathy with those of wheat and oats and the larger acreage under cultivation is most encouraging. This increase is 175,000 acres in Manitoba alone, and it is fairly heavy in Saskatchewan and Alberta.
The condition of the growing barley is excellent, and the probability of its being saved in good condition is indicated by the fact that farmers in some parts of southern Manitoba have already begun to cut it.

Is a Disappointing Feature.

The worry about frost began before the wheat was out of the ground this year, and it has continued to wield an influence during the past two months.
Freezing weather has been known in the west in August in some years, although there are no record of serious damage in that month in recent years.
The first heavy frost, of a general nature, in 1906, was on September 19.
By the same date this year the greater part of the crop should be in the stook, although a good deal depends upon the quality of the harvest weather. The irregularity of the growing grain is its most disappointing feature, and it is altogether probable that some fields will not mature at all.IS LITERATURE IN

My Lady Cinderella

By Mrs. G. N. Williamson

Author of "My Friend the Chauffeur," "Lady Betty Across the Water," Etc., Etc.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Diana Throws Down the Glove.

I had a quaint, pretty little nook of a bedroom, next a large one occupied by Lady Sophie, on the Idle Hour. She rustled in to talk over the thing that had happened, when we had said out "Good-nights" to everyone else, and when she had been angry in whispers with her enemies bidden me be of good heart and ignore the incident, because so one would think the less of me, she disappeared to her own room again. Lady Sophie thought a great deal of her "beauty sleep," which she declared that at her age she could ill-afford to miss; but I had no inclination for bed. I had not forgiven Diana Dunbar; and until I could feel more in charity with her it was no use to try and say my prayers. Without them I had never slept; even with them I should find difficulty enough in composing myself to sleep on this night. I was in a dressing gown, slowly brushing out the waves of my long hair, endeavoring to attain a proper frame of mind, when I heard a soft knock at the door. At first I thought it came from the one which connected with Lady Sophie's room, but the light sound was repeated, and I knew that I had mistaken the direction. I went to the other door and peeped out. To my surprise Diana stood there, fully dressed as she had been for dinner. "Will you let me come in for a few minutes?" she pleaded, in her sweetest voice. "I want particularly to speak with you."

4235

A GOWN OF GOOD STYLE FOR A GIRL—4235.

The summer materials are so attractive this year that every woman and girl wishes as many gowns for warm weather wear as her purse will allow. Here is sketched one of simple style, yet altogether youthful and pretty, which the home dress-maker will find quite to her liking. The waist has a deep pointed yoke of Valenciennes lace in strips, which is finished with a band of coarse lace. Tucks extend a short distance from the yoke edge, and the entire length back. The sleeves may be to the wrist or elbow, as desired. The skirt is in seven gores and gathered at the top. Any of the washing fabrics, pongee, foulard, taffetas or voile might be developed in this way. For the medium size 5½ yards 44 inches wide are needed.

4235—Sizes, 14, 15, 16, 17 years. The price of this pattern is 10 cents.

chances people do get on a house boat?"

"Yes, I have noticed that," I responded to the inner meaning I suspected. "Come in, then, if you like."

She came, and shut the door, though I would have left it ajar, as a gentle hint that I wished the visit to be brief.

"I want for one thing to tell you how awfully sorry I was for you to-night," she began, sitting down without waiting for the formality of an invitation.

"Thank you. I fancy I know exactly how sorry you were," I responded. "I don't think we need waste words upon that."

I had not sat down when she did, but continued to stand, straight and still, in the middle of the little room. As I finished speaking Diana sprang up, and laid a hand on each of my shoulders.

"Oh, I wish you would not be so cold with me. I wish you would let me be your friend. I want to be your friend, really, really," she asserted, watching my face to see if I were moved by her protestations.

"I don't make friends easily," I said. "The word means a great deal to me."

"Will you at least let me talk to you as if we were friends?" she entreated. "I'm ready to listen to anything you care to say."

"Ah, you are not kind. And when I spoke up for you this evening, too! Consuelo, what are you going to do after that wretched affair? It will make a tremendous difference in your future plans, of course."

"Why should it?"

"Why? Oh, you know very little of society, or you would not ask. People whom one fancies are one's friends really care nothing about oneself. They only hang round if one is popular, and it is the fashion to be seen with one. But they would all rather have something nasty than nice to say behind one's back; it is so easy to be witty at one's friends' expense. You can guess that, or they wouldn't have labeled you 'My Lady Cinderella.'"

It was just smart enough and apt enough to stick. Now this episode of tonight will be in all the society papers by the end of the week. Even if they don't use your name, they will have paragraphs so worded that everybody will know who is meant. You've been a good deal talked about already, but after this town will be too hot to hold you with any comfort for yourself, I'm afraid. That's why I'm so sorry for you, dear. Men who have been apparently at your feet before will forget to ask you to dance. They like a girl to be conspicuous in some way, but not as you will be now, for that 'dowdy' and 'bad form'—the two most noxious things that can be said of a girl nowadays. Hasn't Lady Sophie told you the same?"

"She has not," I said shortly.

"Oh, she was afraid of hurting your feelings, no doubt. She's a good sort; she wouldn't mind a fib for a friend's sake any more than she would for her own, which is so loyal and nice. Every woman fibs for herself, but she generally tells the truth to, or of, her friends."

"I suppose one judges others by oneself," I retorted.

"Don't be horrid, dear; I'm trying to help you. I've been thinking it over, and putting myself in your place. It seemed to me, looking at it so, that you would have to go away, for a time, at all events, till this unfortunate affair has blown over—been forgotten for the next nine-days' wonder."

"You would suggest that I return to the Peckham, perhaps, to which you have consigned me?"

I spoke feily, though my soul was hot within me.

"I was going to suggest a nice, long, restful visit at a country place of ours which we seldom use ourselves, though we sometimes lend it to friends. Mamma would be quite willing, I am sure. But why do you say 'the Peckham' to which I have consigned you? I know nothing about Peckham."

"Except that you and Lady Dunbar followed me there," I burst forth, reckless now of consequences. "Except that you have both set inquiries on foot regarding me. Except that you have started all the gossip—made the gossip."

You and Lady Dunbar have your reasons for not wishing your interest in me to be known, so you do not speak out what you have learned by spying. You work in an underhand way, lest the scandal should be traced to you. You want to get rid of me, and you hire music-hall singers to hound me out of your world."

"How dare you?" cried Diana, even now scarcely raising her voice, for she had been well trained to conventionalities, and the walls of the Idle Hour were thin. "How dare you accuse me of such things? Why, if you repeated your words, I—I could sue you for them if I liked. There's a law in England which discourages the speaking of scandal, just as it does blackmail and libel. I should have thought in the rank of life you came from you would have known more about them than I do. Why should I want to get rid of you? for dragging in my mother's name is too ridiculous. Do you think I am jealous of you?"

"I think that you hate me," I replied.

"I do not care that for you!" she snapped her fingers, the pretense of friendship forgotten now in this vivid moment, which was showing me the real woman. "I suppose that you think I am annoyed because of George Seaford's flirtation with you? What nonsense! As though he were a man to marry a little upstart from nobody-knows-where! I have looked on, laughing in my sleeve, while the paltry farce was played, wondering how you would feel if you knew that I had refused him last year, when he really cared for me as he pretends to care for you now. That habit of his—amusing himself with every new girl who comes along—has grown upon him since those days; but George is a proud man, proud of himself and his family, whose boast it is that not one of their long line has ever made a mesalliance. Knowing nothing of you, he would not have married you, even if he had been genuinely in love. Knowing the truth about you, he would do so still less."

"He is welcome to know all—everything that can be known of me!" I cried.

"Why you came to live with Lady Sophie, among other things?"

Her eyes burned into mine, as if she would have dragged an answer from me, if necessary, with red-hot pincers. For the first time I quailed, feeling that she had an undue advantage—that I was groping in the dark, while she held a light.

"What do you know of that?" I questioned.

"I will tell you, if you will give me your version of the story first."

She hesitated for an instant before making me this offer.

"I came because Lady Sophie took a fancy to me, and invited me; that is all," I answered.

"Nonsense! Think of something more credible. No one who knows Lady Sophie de Gretton and her circumstances would believe that for a single second. She must have been influenced by some extraordinary motive in taking up a girl like you."

"Must have been!" I echoed. "Then you do not know why she did it? You are only trying to find out through me."

"Well," she said, in a changed tone, after a moment's pause, "that was rather a slip. To tell you the truth, I don't know."

"Neither do I," I retorted. "I know no more than I have told you, which was the reason Lady Sophie gave. She likes me; she is an impulsive woman who enjoys novelty. I believe that it was exactly as she said."

"Then you were never so mistaken in your life. You are letting yourself live in a fool's paradise. But though I don't know the explanation of the mystery, and therefore can't enlighten you, I will find out; and then you shall hear the truth from my lips, Consuelo Brand."

"There is nothing to find out," I persisted, though my heart grew cold.

"There is something. What, I swear to you, I will find out before I am many weeks older."

"You are good at spying," I flung at her. "But if you spread more stories about me, everyone shall hear what I know of you and Lady Dunbar's reasons for taking an interest in me. I don't want to be revenged, yet I must defend myself."

"If you tell what you imagine, but cannot know, not only will I tell you all I discover of Lady Sophie's mystery, but I will tell the whole world as well."

Her eyes frightened me. I had not known that the face of a girl could express such hatred as flashed from hers to me.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Paragraph in a Letter.

Lady Sophie suffered from headache the day we left Henley. The doctor pronounced her attack a mild form of sunstroke, which she had contracted during those hot days on the river; and his advice was that she should have rest and mountain air, ten days at least of quiet, before returning for Goodwood.

And so, before returning for Goodwood and Cowes, I offered my services as nurse, only too glad of a chance to show my loving gratitude for all that I owed to her kindness; and she, to see no one but me and Adele.

"Mountain air," Lady Sophie interpreted to mean Cumberland, where a distant cousin of hers had a place, and (conveniently for her present plans) deserted it for half the year to live abroad. He was at present in Switzerland, but a telegram sent to his bankers was duly answered, and by the time that Lady Sophie felt able to travel she had heard that the house was placed at her disposal.

I should have been nothing short of brutal if I had not shut myself up with the invalid, waiting upon her, keeping her amused as best I could; and I took no credit to myself for doing so, especially as, for some reasons, I was not sorry to be out of town for a few days. But Lady Sophie's illness and our journey, with the doctor's commands debaring her from all society, effectually cut me off for a fortnight from George Seaford.

Twice before we left for Cumberland he called, but once I was bathing, and Lady Sophie's aching head with eau de Cologne and could not leave her; again, she was sleeping with my hand in hers, and as Adele was her mistress' faithful dragon, I did not hear of the visit until it was of the past.

From Cumberland Lady Sophie answered a letter from Sir George, assuring him that she would be back in London again before Goodwood, so that he need not fear we should fall him as guests; and after that there were other letters and flowers, in which I sometimes shared.

"Poor George! he's horribly impatient for us to get back," she said, looking up from a letter which had just been received, a few days before the one more or less definitely fixed for our return. "What would you give, Consuelo, to know some of the things he says here about you?"

"It depends whether they are good or bad," I replied, with an attempt at smiling indifference.

"Which do you think they are more likely to be?"

"Oh, I suppose he would not say anything very rude to you about your guest."

"If you will tell me your exact opinion of him I may be tempted to ignore the confidential understanding between George and me, and read you a paragraph or two of the letter."

"I wouldn't have you betray confidence for the world. Besides, I haven't so fixed as an opinion of Sir George Seaford. Sometimes I fancy he's rather a flirt."

"He has never flirted with you, at all events, no matter what he may have been in the past. He is over head and ears in love with you, Consuelo. Of course, you must know that, though you've always avoided the subject with me before."

ARE UNABLE TO BUILD FIRES

Fast Dying Andamanese Scarcely Intelligent Enough for Missing Links.

Calcutta, India, Aug. 12.—Earth's oldest and oldest race of men has been brought prominently into notice again through the widespread interest aroused by sending a batch of Indian political agitators to the penal settlement on the Andaman Islands, that beautiful coral-bound archipelago in the Bay of Bengal. This remnant of the most primitive human species in existence will soon be nothing but an ethnological memory. Contact with advanced civilization has been followed, as usual, with a train of infectious diseases which are steadily thinning the ranks.

Owing to the ancient course of trade, the Andamanese have been known about from the earliest times. Ptolemy's Agathang Daimonios Neos probably preserves the misinterpretation of some term applied by sailors to a place in or near the modern Andamans. Notices of them by travelers, Asiatic and European, are continuous from the seventh century, and the islands regularly appear in some shape on maps of these regions from the middle ages down.

No Tailors or Milliners Required. The Andamanese live in a Hesperian garden where they toil not, neither do they spin. For the product of the spinner, they have no use, as the men go stark naked and the women wear one or more leaves in front and a bunch of leaves tied round the waist behind.

The average height of the men is fifty-eight inches; that of the women fifty-four inches. They appear to dwell free from care in a country that is everywhere beautiful and varied. In the ordinary attainments of human beings, however unenlightened, the Andamanese are amazingly deficient. During the ages of their intercourse by word of mouth they have not developed a medium worthy of the name of language. Before the arrival of the British tribes, except actual neighbors, had no intercourse. Even clans of the same tribe found difficulty in the details of dialogue with one another. There is a change of jargon along about every twenty miles of the coast. They have no words for ordinary greetings, salutations or expression of thanks.

Such language as they have, however, is exceedingly interesting from the philological point of view. It possesses a quality which would be invaluable were the Andamanese a business people. In their speech only what is absolutely necessary is usually expressed. These mites of humanity could do just as well probably without any words at all. They have an expressive sign language, which they employ almost as much as the spoken words. Their speech is jerky, disjointed and helped out often by a grimace, a gesture or a sudden change in tone.

The Andamanese knows scarcely anything and has no desire to increase his stock of knowledge. He has never learned any sort of agriculture. Until the English taught him to keep dogs he did not know how to domesticate any animal or bird. He cannot count, even with his fingers, and doesn't see the need of counting. All his ideas are hazy and inaccurate.

On one point, however, he is level-headed. He belongs to a race of bad fighters, knows it, and will never attack unless certain of success.

The Andamanese are nomads. They have their customary places for encampments, and dwell there by turns year after year. Close to every hut is a small platform built of palm-wood, standing about eighteen inches from the ground. This is a storage place for the surplus food that they gather when nature for some reason fails to lay it in their hands.

Never Learned to Kindle a Fire. Under this platform at least one fire is always kept burning. Good care is taken that the platform shall be a protection for the fire against rain and not fuel for the flames.

This preservation of fire is the only thing about which the Andamanese evince any particular interest or care. They do not know how to produce fire. One of the greatest misfortunes that can befall a camp is the going out of a fire. It may be weeks before the clan can get a new blaze for their cooking.

They carry their fire with them when they break camp, and this despite the fact that their journey sometimes is from one island to another. They show amazing skill in carrying a smoldering log across deep water. Two or four of them will swim the distance, holding the log clear of the water. To arrive on the opposite shore with the precious blaze extinguished is a mishap so rare as to be handed down in tribal legends for generations.

The religion is animistic and consists of fear of the evil spirits of the woods, the sea, disease and ancestors and of avoidance of acts traditionally displeasing to them. A deity in the form of a man—Paluga—is the cause of all things, but it is not necessary to propitiate him, though acts displeasing to him are avoided for fear of damage to the products of the jungle. Paluga dwells now in the sky, but used to live on the top of Saddle Peak, the highest mountain of the Andamans.

The Andamanese idea of the soul arises out of his reflection in the water. This reflection is his spirit, which goes after leaving him to another

HEROINE SAVES HUNDRED LIVES

HOW ARCHIMEDES DID HIS SUMS

Discovery of Manuscripts Reveals Methods of the Great Mathematician.

Copenhagen, Aug. 12.—The discovery in a convent at Constantinople by Prof. L. L. Heiberg, of this city, works by the great mathematician, Archimedes, which had hitherto been among the treasures of antiquity lost to the world, proves to be of extraordinary interest. Not only is the find itself of extreme value, but the circumstances in which the manuscript was run down suggest fascinating possibilities of similar finds in the Turkish capital.

Prof. Heiberg is probably the leading living authority on the life and work of Archimedes, the greatest mathematician and inventive genius of the classical age.

Last year Prof. Schone, a German savant, informed Prof. Heiberg that there could be found a convent library at Constantinople, which he believed would be found to contain some of Archimedes' writings. Prof. Heiberg immediately began negotiations through diplomatic channels, with a view to having the manuscript sent to him as a loan. The Turkish Government not only refused the request, but denied that any such manuscript existed.

Permitted to Take Photograph.

The professor began by collating the pages and transcribing a large part of the contents. He found, however, that to copy the entire manuscript would be a long task, and he therefore asked permission of the Turkish authorities to photograph the manuscript. This time he did not have any trouble with them, and the permission was granted.

The book consists of 185 written pages. The original writing is in a beautiful brown ink. On eight pages—1, 2, 15, 18, 20, 122, and 144—the script has so far baffled all attempts at deciphering, while the professor has succeeded in reading only a few words on pages 119, 157, 158 and 160. Dr. Heiberg, however, is hopeful of ultimately making out almost the entire manuscript. He has already been greatly assisted by his colleague, Prof. H. G. Zeuthen.

For full details of the discovery, we shall have to wait until the volume is published, but it is stated that it is of peculiar value, because, unlike the previously known works of Archimedes, it does not contain only bare mathematical and mechanical formulae, but explains how Archimedes obtained his knowledge through various methods and gives a wonderful insight into the mind of this great philosopher—one of the most wonderful minds that ever existed. The name of the philosopher Democritus is often mentioned in the manuscript, showing that Archimedes was a close student of his writings.

At the same time the manuscript contains many geometrical figures which, it is asserted, are of extreme interest. In some cases these figures do not appear to have been finished, being mere suggestions of the complete diagrams.

A VICTIM OF DELUSIONS

Counsel for Eddy Petitioners Explains Science Leader's Condition.

Concord, N. H., Aug. 13.—The case of the next of kin in the Mrs. Eddy suit to obtain an accounting of her property was begun before Judge Aldrich here today.

Mr. Chandler, counsel for the petitioners, said that the incompetency of Mrs. Eddy was established by the trust deed, which she executed on March 6, by which she transferred all her property beyond her control. Her incompetency, he added, is further shown by her evasion of taxes in the city of Concord, an act which she would never have been guilty of or allowed her agents to commit had she been in her right mind.

He stated in closing that Mrs. Eddy was the victim, not of a solitary delusion, but of a series of systematic delusions, which influenced her whole life, and has resulted, or will result in senile dementia.

Judge Aldrich asked what opportunity the masters were to have to examine Mrs. Eddy herself. Frank S. Streeter, her counsel, replied that she had not sufficient strength to come into court and undergo an examination, but she would be glad to receive the masters at Pleasantview.

The hearing was then adjourned until tomorrow.

FOUND TREASURE IN A TREE.

A singular case of treasure trove is reported from the Belgian village of St. Omer-Capelle, where some boys, climbing an old willow tree to rob a bird's nest, found in a hole high up in the trunk an old leather bag.

On opening this they found it to contain what seemed to be bright yellow counters and pieces of paper, bearing writing which they did not understand. So they made playthings of the lot, and gave some away, without, however, anything being damaged.

As soon as the find reached the ears of the parents they naturally guessed the truth. Some among them, being honestly disposed, gave information to the mairie, which gave some trouble resulted in the whole contents of the bag being got together again. They were old notes and gold representing 30,000 francs.—London Globe.

HEROINE SAVES HUNDRED LIVES

Prevents Fast Santa Fe Train From Taking Fatal Plunge.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Through the quick wit and prompt action of a woman in flagging the Santa Fe's California Limited early yesterday morning at Hart, Mo., as the heavy train was about to plunge through a damaged trestle, the lives of over a hundred passengers were saved, and what might have proved one of the most disastrous railroad catastrophes of a number of years averted. The woman to whom so many owe their lives is Mrs. Minnie Hartshorn, of Ethel, Mo., a cook for a railroad camp near Hart.

Details of the narrow escape were learned late last night when a train to which the passengers of the limited had been transferred arrived in Chicago nine hours behind the regular time of the limited.

According to passengers who were awakened soon after 3 o'clock yesterday morning to make the transfer across the creek at Hart, the California Limited had left Kansas City in the evening, nearly two hours late, and was running at a high rate of speed to make up time into Chicago.

At Hart a trestle of considerable length spans a small river at a height of about seventy feet. The tracks approach the trestle on a curve thus obstructing the view of the engine men.

Warned by Danger Signal.

As the heavy train consisting of eight or nine Pullman cars with their sleeping occupants, approached the bridge, and was less than a half mile from it, a lantern light was seen waving down the track by the engineer.

The first intimation that passengers had that all was not right was the grinding shock of the airbrakes. Thus aroused, they hurried out of the coaches and found the engineer and trainmen conferring with a woman. She explained that the abutment which supported the trestle on the western side had fallen in, and that the tracks and trestle work were merely hanging. Train officials and passengers who went ahead to the bridge found her statement true, and shuddered at the thought of their near escape from a death plunge to the creek bottom.

News of the accident to the trestle was carried to Ethel, a small station several miles to the east of the trestle, and instructions were received that the west bound train from Chicago would approach the bridge, and would carry the passengers of the limited on to Chicago.

Story of Narrow Escape.

While waiting for the westbound train, the passengers drew from Mrs. Hartshorn the full story of her discovery of the danger. She said the abutment to the bridge had been in a bulging state for several days, and that it was regarded so dangerous by at least one engineer that he had proposed he would not run a train across it again until it had been repaired.

Mrs. Hartshorn said she had watched the bridge for several days. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning she was aroused by a crash and by the barking of her pet dog. Suspecting the cause of the crash, she arose hurriedly and hastened to the trestle. She saw the abutment had fallen, and instantly thought of the east bound limited, which had not passed at its regular time, and was on the way. She ran back home, seized a lantern, and hurried down the track, waving it frantically as she turned the curve and saw the headlight of the swiftly-approaching train.

By the time the recital of the story was finished most of the passengers of the limited had been aroused, and appeared on the scene. They had a consultation, and at the end a hat was passed, and a handsome purse was made up for the woman who had averted the disaster. Resolutions of thanks were drawn up, signed by the passengers, and presented to Mrs. Hartshorn.

TRY TO FIND MARTIANS

Prof. Todd and Wife Study Planet from Chilean Desert.

Boston, Aug. 13.—In the great desert of Atacama, in Chili, Prof. David Todd, of Amherst College, and his wife, Mabel Loomis Todd, are now studying the canals on the planet Mars, with a powerful eight-inch telescope, endeavoring to find out if the planet is inhabited. A letter has just been received here from Mrs. Todd giving some account of their location and undertaking. The desert of Atacama was chosen as the first station of the expedition on account of the dryness of the air. The region lies on a plateau, 3,000 feet above the Pacific. The snow-clad Andes tower to the east.

Prof. Todd's temporary observatory is a day's journey from Iquique. He is now making arrangements to take a series of photographs of Mars with a telescope lens. The pictures are then to be greatly magnified.

The scientific world has been eagerly conjecturing for years whether that far-off globe is inhabited, and it is hoped that the investigations of the Amherst astronomer may throw some definite light on this interesting question. Mars is now nearer the earth than at any time in the last fifteen years, estimated at 35,000,000 miles.

Mrs. Todd, a dainty, slender, pretty little woman, always noted for her chic gowns, is herself a trained astronomer. She is making studies in the ancient civilization of Chilli and Peru. She is a great traveler, and was the first white woman ever on the Japanese island of Yezo.

The plans for the handsome building which will contain the negro exhibit at the Jamestown exposition next summer were drawn by W. Sydney Pittman, a negro architect, who started in to learn the trade of wheelwright at Tuskegee and later became an architect.

FROZEN TO DEATH IN THE TYROL

Awful Fate of Two Wealthy Woman Tourists in the Alps.

London, Aug. 14.—Two German ladies have been frozen to death in the Tyrolean Alps because they would insist on wearing light blouses and openwork silk stockings. They were Fraulein Frederique and Marguerite Zaslara, of Nelsse, women of 40 and 43, respectively.

They set out with three young friends, the Fraulein Stuckenschmidt, of Charlottenburg, all in their teens, to climb the Birnlucke, which is some 8,000 feet high.

All were wealthy ladies, but not one was equipped for mountaineering. They were wearing panama or lace hats, light blouses, openwork silk stockings and high-heeled shoes. None of them carried anything stronger than a light parasol. Naturally the guide pointed out the absurdity of their costumes. They refused to listen to his advice, and insisted on carrying out their programme. When they had climbed about 2,000 feet the weather changed suddenly. The wind rose, and snow began to fall in great flakes.

The Guide Defied.

When the guide insisted on the return of the party to the valley, Fraulein Marguerite Zaslara, exclaimed scornfully: "We are paying you for the expedition, and we intend to finish it, whatever happens. If you are afraid, you can go back, but we shall go on." He expostulated further, but to no purpose, and when the ladies went on he followed them at a little distance. He was joined by three other alpinists named Tschuppik, Trester and Hof, and they also made fruitless efforts to induce the ladies to return.

Very soon the snow was falling heavily, and the alpinists were up to their knees. In spite of this the ladies obstinately persisted in going on, but in another half-hour the snow had reached their waists and two of the ladies fell exhausted.

The wind was then carrying great clouds of snow before it, and the climbers, who could not see a yard in front, lost their path. After a while Fraulein Zaslara became delirious, and then the four men carried the five women to the shelter of a rock. The guide and two men started in the blinding snow to bring help from the valley.

For two hours the fourth man remained with the delirious women, who were screaming and moaning for help. All the time the snow fell in blinding showers.

When the rescue party arrived brandy was administered, and the five carried with the greatest difficulty to the valley. Here restoratives were administered, and the three younger women recovered, but the sisters Zaslara were dead. The guide and the other man were badly frostbitten in the feet and hands.

Casablanca saying that the fighting between the natives and Gen. Drude's command lasted all day Saturday, but quieted down on Sunday night. A renewal of the attack, however, is feared, as another raid with numerous reinforcements has arrived. The warships continue to shell the Arab positions. The last of the French troops in port, a detachment of cavalry and a company of artillery, have been disembarked.

The Matin publishes a dispatch from Saffi, on the west coast of Morocco, saying the town is surrounded by natives, and that the European residents are preparing to defend themselves. The situation at Saffi is declared to be critical.

The Figaro publishes a dispatch from Casablanca saying the raid who was responsible for the massacres of Europeans which led to the present state of disorder in Morocco, has been arrested and placed in custody on board the French cruiser Gloire.

It is reported that the governor of Casablanca has been arrested and taken on board a French warship under suspicion of not having co-operated loyally with the French authorities.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

And our champs went down—both at Tecumseh Park yesterday, and at St. Thomas the day before. Saints-Stars today. Wallop 'em, you Tierney-ites!

It was erroneously stated in yesterday's Advertiser that the Thistle Club had won the Bank of Toronto trophy. The game was but one of a series of matches.

Too bad Rube Waddell didn't remain hidden until the close of the Tiger-Phillies series.

Toronto CAN step some. For further information apply to the Skeeter Club, Jersey City.

Mr. Alex. Abraham, treasurer of the Stratford Labor Day committee, and Mr. F. J. Todd, secretary of the same organization, were in this city yesterday, trying to arrange with one of the local teams to play a picked team at Stratford on Sept. 2.

On Labor Day there will be a big road race from St. Marys to Stratford—approximately fourteen miles—for which a handsome trophy, valued at $100, and eleven other valuable prizes, such as gold watches, medals, etc., have been offered.

Dick Grant, the famous ex-Harvard champion runner, now of St. Marys, originated the road race scheme. Grant will not be a competitor.

This season seems to be one of sensations and surprises on the Grand Circuit—and, to date, none of the latter have been more pronounced than the performance of the pacing mare Alice Pointer, winner at Buffalo recently, of the $10,000 Dominion of Canada stake—the richest event for "side-wheelers" that has been or will be contested in 1907.

Something like ten years ago there was a rarely good pacing colt—for that day—racing on the Great Western Circuit. He was called Red Seal, and took a record of 2:10, and his performances made him much talked about. His owner was R. C. Rawlings, of Chanute, Kan., and he became so much in love with the colt that he decided to acquire his dam, a mare called Alice M., and breed her to the best horse in the country, as he believed that she would prove a great producer. However, his luck did not break any too well for him, and a few years later he found racehorses to be too much of a luxury for him, so he closed out his bunch under the hammer. Among them was Alice M., and when the hammer fell on her it was at a bid of only a few hundreds.

The venue at which Rawlings sold his horses was held at Cleveland, Ohio, and the buyer of Alice M. was W. J. White, of that city. White—who is familiarly known as "Yucatan" White—has made a mint of money out of chewing gum, and at one time he had quite a bit of it invested in a stock farm near Cleveland, where he had a stud of trotters and pacer. When White inaugurated this venture—now nearly twenty years ago—such a thing as a mile in two minutes was only the dream of harness horsemen. Few of them, indeed, would admit the possibility of such a thing. But White was one of these, and, to show his confidence in the future, he named his new stock farm the Two-Minute Farm.

Just ten years ago this month—in August, 1897—the impossible was achieved. That is to say, Star Pointer paced a mile in 1:59.4, and immortalized himself as the harness turf's first two-minute horse. At that time he was owned by James A. Murphy, of Chicago, but Murphy found the nervous strain of owning such a phenomenon too great, so he sold him at auction soon after. The buyer was White, who declared that the only appropriate place for the first two-minute horse was at the head of the first two-minute breeding farm.

Through a misunderstanding it was stated yesterday that the Thistle Club had won the Bank of Toronto trophy. The facts are that in all there were twelve games to play for the cup. Of the four played the Rowing Club has won two—one from the Thistles and one from the Asylum—and the Thistles a like number, having defeated the Rowing Club and the Asylum. Two of the remaining eight games will be played off this week. The Rowing Club will play the Thistles on Saturday, and the Thistles hook up with the Asylum on a day to be set.

This afternoon nine rinks of local trundlers will play away from home. Four rinks from the London Club will journey to Aylmer, while five rinks of Thistle bowlers go to Woodstock.

A Chicago exchange says:
AT PHILADELPHIA.
(Every now and then).

Rube Waddell has been petitioned by the Commercial Association to postpone his fishing trip till October.

Fans are so eager to read the full details of the games that permission has been secured to deliver newspapers at front doors at 8:30 o'clock in the morning.

Business-men along Market street are kept informed of the progress of games by the liberty bell, which has been loaned for the occasion. When the Athletics make a score the bell rings gladly (if you don't mind the crack). When the enemy scores the bell is tolled.

Although baseball is the great national game, says the Detroit News, no ballplayer, no matter how much he has been worshiped by the people, has ever yet made good on the stage, simply because of his reputation as a player. The last one to be trotted out on the boards was Rube Waddell, and he practically killed the show, "The Stain of Guilt." He had a bad habit of taking the stage carpenter out to have a drink just when the latter was needed to cut the rope that let down the trap door through which the innocent child was thrown into the deep, dark river.

Pop Anson tried it when he was in his palmy days, and Pop lasted just two months with one of Hoyt's "A Runaway Colt."

"Anson never forgave Willie Keeler for a joke they played on him when he was in that show," remarked Hugh Jennings, mogul of the Detroit team, the other day, while talking of those who sought histrionic honors. "The show came to New York during a league meeting, and as an extra attraction Anson had three or four players appear on the stage with him."

"There was a scene laid on a baseball field. The hero—Pop Anson—was to hit a homerun and thereby win the heart of the sweetheart's father, who was a fan. He was to get the daughter, and they were to live happily ever afterward."

"The show was doing all right for several weeks. Anson was driving in the homerun and winning the bride twice a day."

"But he made a mistake in getting those ballplayers to take the part of the supers during that special engagement for the benefit of the gathered baseball moguls."

"Willie Keeler played third. Jack Warner caught, and Arlie Latham was umpiring. I don't remember the rest of them."

"Well, the show went all right until this scene came up. The players were all laying for Anse. He hit out the homerun, and went tearing around the bases. Just as he passed third, Keeler stuck out his foot and tripped him."

"They threw the ball to Jack Warner, and he tagged poor Pop out."

"It nearly broke up the show. According to schedule, there the girl was in the stand waiting to be claimed, and there was the old man awaiting to turn his daughter over to the man who brought in the winning run. But Pop was out."

PRESS CHAMPIONS LOSE A GAME

Fowler's Demons Drop a Punk Contest to Lau's Lobsters.

Fowler's Demons got it in the locality of the eleventh veterans yesterday and they got it according to Hoyte.

Of course the fracas, which by the way came off at Tecumseh Park—where all great games take place, was an errorless one. Nobody made any misplays and everybody—except Phenom Long poked the pellet to the four points of the compass. That party evidently couldn't hit an elephant in the elbow with a snowshovel. Of course it was all umpire Chester Jeffries' fault, though, as "Nig" absolutely insisted on calling a ball which went square over the plate at the regulation height a strike.

J. E. L. Stein was the star performer of the bunch from Richmond street, although his delivery was slammed for 40 or 50 singles.

For the Advertiser Demons "Pason" J. Harry Fowler, Routledge and Fitzmaurice gave a clever exhibition. "Dutch" Moyer was at his worst and was responsible for at least four of the tallies correlated by the opposition.

For a never-was, Mr. Wallace Laut converted about the sod real sprightly like, and McHugh at first evidently had glue in his mitt.

John L. McLean pulled off a brace of nice acrobatic stunts at the second stop-off, while "Chawlie" Parsons out in middle garden almost caught several skyscrapers. Little Read gave a fair imitation of a backstop white wootton and Steele played a commercial league.

To the Demons battery we must hand a biscuit. They had everything, and with a few good fielders, a brace of basemen and—well, and some support, they would have won.

Routledge made the other gang peck up and take notice by his sensational stops. Muggsy McGraw has wired him for his terms.

This makes one apiece for the aggregation. Next time.

The official line-ups:
Demons—Deacon Fowler, c.; Fitzmaurice, p.; Gorman, 1b.; Baker, 2b.; Routledge, s.s.; Tucker, 3b.; Moyer, r.f.; Floyd, c.f.; Crothers, l.f.

Lolla Pollingers—Read, c.; J. E. L. Stein, p.; McHugh, 1b.; J. L. McLean, 2b.; J. Wallace Laut, s.s.; Wootton, 3b.; Parsons, r.f.; Lang, l.f.; Steele, l.f.

Umpire—Mr. Chester "Nig" Jeffries.
Time of game—3 hours, 4 minutes, 2 seconds.

As usual Phenom Long attempted to catch with the back of his hands.

Much thanks is due Mr. H. Barker Archer for his able management of the Demons team. He is in Jennings' class.

The statement that there was a bunch of foolish water on the ground is indignantly denied by the players.

Pickett may be out for the next game. He is badly needed to steady down the Demons.

Crothers is some pumpkin if he is from the backwoods. Four hits is going some.

J. Harry got to base every time he was up.

Didn't it bump you to see J. Wallace darting hither and thither, giddily stabbing at hot ones and pasting the ball on the boko.

Where was "Mac" the darling mascot of the Lobsters?

OPERATORS HERE STILL AT KEYS

five on the international executive, is in Chicago, where the executive meets today. If a general strike is ordered, the local operators will drop their keys. They are all union men.

"How does the strike affect your business?" was asked Mr. Beard, manager of the Bell Telephone Company, this morning.

"It made little difference to us," he answered. "You see, we do not compete with the telegraph lines. We compete more with the postoffice than any other. Several long distance calls were made on Detroit and other points, but not much more difficulty than usual was experienced in getting them through. Those large cities are very hard to get at any time, and this is especially true at night. The strike does not help us much."

ASKS AID OF ROOSEVELT.

Chicago Board of Trade Appeals to President to Help.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday authorized the president of the board of trade to appeal to President Roosevelt, to use his personal influence toward effecting a settlement of the telegraphers' strike.

President H. H. Sager sent the following telegram to President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay:

"The business of this great country which is suffering such serious loss, to the extent of millions of dollars each day on account of the deadlock between the telegraph companies and their employees demand an immediate settlement of the differences at issue, so that a national catastrophe may be averted. In this great emergency we look to the chief executive of this country to take a personal hand."

All the Associated Press circuits radiating from Chicago to the east, north, south and west were restored to a normal working basis today. The eastern circuit was fully manned yesterday, two wires working through the day and night. The north circuit to Milwaukee, St. Paul and Minneapolis was fully manned, and sent forward the regular quota of report. The southern circuit to Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Columbus and Louisville was restored with only Dayton missing when the wires were opened this morning. The big western circuit was today opened for the first time to St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joseph and Omaha, and will be extended to Denver and Colorado Springs during the forenoon.

BARBERS MAKE AN EXPLANATION

master barbers in public debate, and are willing to allow the public to decide as to which side has the best of the argument. We again assert, emphatically, and are ready to prove the assertion if it is challenged, that the master barbers of London charge higher prices than are charged in any other city in Canada, while they pay their journeymen a lower scale than is paid in other cities. The recent increase in prices as now in effect has doubled the profits of the employer.

Court Publicity.

"The journeymen barbers court the fullest publicity, as they feel they have right and justice on their side, and they will at no time make assertions they cannot back up and prove. The increased number of shops that have signed the union agreement and now display the union shop card is an eloquent testimony to the fact that the people of London have opinions of their own, and have not been misled by misrepresentations on the part of our opponents. We came out to win, and are winning, and after we have gained our point we are more confident than ever we will be ready to hold out the hand of fellowship to our employers."

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD

Mr. John Plaxton Passes Away After a Lingering Illness.

One of London's oldest and most respected citizens, Mr. John Plaxton, passed away this morning at his residence, 345 Glebe street, after a lingering illness.

Mr. Plaxton came to this country in 1819 from Yorkshire, Eng., and for nearly 90 years had reached in London Township and this city. Sixteen years ago he moved to the city and had lived here ever since.

They deceased is survived by one son, Benjamin, of Hull, Quebec, and four daughters, Mrs. Feeley, of Hull, Mrs. Cox, of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan; Mrs. Hollway, of Buffalo, and Miss Mary at home.

Mr. Plaxton's wife died about three and a half years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Plaxton were lifelong members of the Dundas Center Methodist Church.

IRISH ATTACK BIRRELL

Demand That Troops Be Withdrawn From Belfast.

London, Aug. 14.—When the House of Commons met this afternoon, the Irish secretary, Mr. Birrell, faced a shower of questions concerning the Belfast strike. The Irish members of parliament wanted the troops withdrawn from Belfast and others urged the necessity of a full inquiry. Mr. Birrell said:

"The Government is fully alive to the urgency of this matter and is doing all it can to secure a settlement of this most unfortunate strike."

The president of the board of trade sent a representative to Belfast today, the trade unionists of Ireland having notified him of their willingness to submit to arbitration.

Secretary Haldane read a report from the officer commanding the troops at Belfast in which it appeared that one of the objects of the military demonstration was to separate the Catholics and Protestants.

It appears that in the trouble at Belfast, as usually happens, there has developed a cleavage on religious lines. The Protestants have cheered and supported the troops, while the attacking parties apparently have been composed of Catholics.

TRACED BY FINGER PRINT

Italian Blackmailer of Priest Cleverly Caught by the Police.

Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 14.—Traced by finger prints discernible in an ink impression of a black hand signed to a letter received by Father Feretti, of St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church, in which the priest is threatened with death unless he turns over $800 by Sept. 1, Michael Venzio, an Italian barber, was arrested as the writer of the letter. The police rounded up several Italians and took impressions of their fingers. Edward Schwartz, who is at the head of the Bertillon Bureau in Newark, declared that the impression in the letter corresponded with the impression of Venzio's fingers taken by the police, and on this evidence a conviction is hoped for.

FLOATING CARCASS OF COW IN THAMES.

The stench from the decaying carcass drove boatmen away from the river and made those who have been told that river water for drinking purposes is all right, wonder why it is that Londoners should be asked to trade the Springbank supply for what Mayor Judd terms "diluted sewage."

CONDENSED LOCAL NEWS WITH CLOTHES UNDER ARM

Youngful Miss, Intoxicated, Parades Streets of New York.

New York, Aug. 13.—Daughter of a wealthy Minnesota lumberman, sister of Mrs. Frank Towle, whose husband is president of the Log Cabin Maple Syrup Company and who lives at the Waldorf-Astoria, Jane Clark, youthful, handsome and fashionably attired, was arranged before Magistrate Breen in the Yorkville court today on a charge of intoxication that was attended with remarkable circumstances.

Policeman Maher arrested the young woman at Madison avenue early this morning. She had shed many of her fashionable garments and was carrying them under her arm. She seemed dazed and quietly submitted to arrest.

A patrol wagon took her to the station house. Today when she appeared in court she was still somewhat dazed. But, after being placed in charge of Alice Smith, the probationary officer, she managed to get home as was in St. Paul, where her father and grandfather are wealthy lumbermen.

Magistrate Breen finally committed the young woman to the Magdalen Home.

EDWARD MEETS KAISER

Hearty Reception Given the British King at Cassel.

Cassel, Prussia, Aug. 14.—King Edward reached Wilhelmshöhe today, and was met by Emperor William, attired as a British field marshal. The monarchs repeatedly kissed each other on the cheeks. The German Emperor had caused elaborate preparations to be made, in order to give the King a hearty reception. The road between the railroad station and the castle was occupied throughout its entire length with troops, garrisons from the veteran societies and pupils from the public schools of Cassel, and the towns in the vicinity. Unusually large crowds gathered to witness the meeting of the monarchs. The Emperor and his guest were escorted to the castle by a squadron of hussars.

Returned from South.

Mr. W. H. Braddon, vice-president of the Columbia Handle and Lumber Company, has just returned from a six weeks' visit in the south, and in addition to the sawmills which the company is now operating in that country, has concluded arrangements for the establishment of a factory in Tennessee for export trade. The home trade has so largely increased that it is impossible to handle the export trade from here. As the firm's hickory supply comes from that region it has been found necessary to make this move.

A HUDSON BOAT AFIRE.

Newburgh, N. Y., Aug. 14.—The steamer Adirondack, of the Albany and New York Line, was discovered to be on fire at midnight, as she was passing Newburgh. The fire gained considerable headway, and the officers finally beached her north of Roseton. As soon as the boat struck, the crew attacked the blaze, which was soon extinguished.

The passengers, numbering not far from 2,000, were inclined to be excited, but were calmed by the officers, who assured them there was no danger. Most of them then quietly returned to their state-rooms.

The Stoke Newington Borough Council have decided to purchase "a gold-branded hat for the hall porter at a cost of $2 50."

American who have been spending a holiday in the "old country" are now flocking homeward in large numbers.

The Adriatic was the outward-bound steamer from Southampton to New York on Wednesday, and she was "full up" in all classes, having over 400 first-class, 500 second-class, and a very large number of third-class passengers. There are extensive bookings for the next few weeks.

A man who recovered $25 damages from a cab proprietor at Clerkenwell county court on Tuesday for personal injuries said he was the owner of a large gramophone, by which he earned his livelihood in the streets. He was earning on the average $5 a week, and took $12 in one day for the Brighton Hospital.

In the Westminster county court on Thursday a defendant named Waterack, who was unwilling to pay two years' rent for a flat at 174 Piccadilly, said that it was overrun with rats. They ran up and down the stairs in swarms, gnawed the doorposts and furniture, and smashed the china and glass in the kitchen. At last she had to go to her club to sleep, using the flat as a warehouse. Judge Woodfall found for Mr. Benson, the plaintiff.

A well-known city officer in Auld Reekie was celebrated for his cunning and wit. His mother having died in Edinburgh, he hired a hearse and carried her to the family burying place in the Highlands. He returned with the hearse full of smuggled whisky, and being teased about it by a friend, he said: "Oh man, there is no harm done! I only took away the body and brought back the spirit."

THE SENECA A DANDY

Skipper Jarvis Says That the Adele Was Outclassed.

Rochester, Aug. 14.—The Adele, the defeated Canadian challenger for Canada's cup, will be sailed across the lake to Toronto as soon as the weather permits.

Speaking of the races, Skipper Jarvis said this morning:

"There was nothing to it from the beginning. Adele is a beautiful boat, and a fast boat, but she is not the equal of Seneca in any point of sailing. Seneca is a wonder, nothing less, and was sailed for all that is in her."

The Canada's cup is thought to be safe for two years at least. The Canadian yachtmen will probably not challenge for some time, and the cup holders will not go hunting up challengers to come after the trophy.

ASSAULTED PICQUART.

Rochefort, France, Aug. 14.—Edouard Lecocq, the member of the National Workmen's Federation, who assaulted Minister of War Picquart in the railroad station here last Sunday evening, and who was thought to be insane, has been declared to be in his right mind, and yesterday was tried on a charge of assault and sentenced to four months in prison and fined 500.

DIVIDING THE RESPONSIBILITY.

Early in Baron Huddleston's career, at the bar, he shared rooms with another barrister. Bodkin went one evening to take tea and wine with the future baron, and he particularly noticed the dirty, slovenly appearance of the clerk who waited upon them, and of whom the host had for the notice assumed exclusive possession.

Bodkin strongly advised Huddleston to insist on a change in the treatment of the younger's person and appearance, and said it was scarcely decent to have a person in that dingy condition about him. I do not much like to interfere," was the reply, "he looks upon Mr. T. as his master, and at the utmost I cannot claim more than half of him."

"Then," said Bodkin, "I would, at all events, make him wash my half of his face."—Bench and Bar.

Lent no longer finds much favor with old world royalty, and, save at the courts of Madrid, of Munich, of Vienna and of St. Petersburg, it has ceased to be observed by means of fasting. The days when Queen Elizabeth not only issued privy council decrees, but likewise secured from Parliament the enactment of statutes providing for those eating meat on fish days, are past and gone.

At a meeting of the Academy of Medicine M. Chauvel read a paper communicated by M. Boigey dealing with the subject of blindness among Arabs. The observations therein described showed that the principal causes of blindness among Arabs were, in order of their importance, uncleanliness, diffused glare of the sun, dust, excessive use of kohl (supplie of antimony).

A CURE FOR FEVER AND AGUE.—Par-melee's Vegetable Pills are commended for use in any climate, and they will be found to preserve their power in any latitude. In fever and ague they act upon the secretions and neutralize the poison which has found its way into the blood. They correct the impurities which find entrance into the system through drinking water or food, and if used as a preventive fever is avoided.

The Church Army is threatened with legal proceedings. Diamond Grade

It's just as easy to get a Diamond of same size for $100 today as a few years ago; but, of course, it will be of poorer quality. Now won't you give us the opportunity of enlightening you on the comparative qualities and values of the Diamond? It won't take long, and we will make our story and exhibit as interesting as we can, in our Diamond Parlor, which is at least cosy and comfortable.

A charming specialty, redolent of odor as the flowers themselves. It is indeed a dainty device, for which no substitute can be found. Very perfect must be the skin that can afford to refuse this innocent method of refining it. Hazel-Rose imparts to the face the velvety softness of a peach. Twenty-five cents.

Springbank presented a lively appearance yesterday when the Knights of the Maccabees turned out in force for their annual picnic. Members from all over the city and the surrounding localities were present. The afternoon was spent largely in athletic contests.

A baseball game between Aylmer-Springfield and Kirkton-London, resulted in favor of the former by 8-4, but not until after a stubborn struggle.

Married ladies' race—1, Mrs. N. Moore, Kirkton; 2, Mrs. Morrow, London; 3, Mrs. Durbin, London.

STRAW HAT IN THE LORDS

Starting Innovation in Cloakroom—Buff Waistcoat on the Benches.

London, Aug. 13.—Whether the influence of Kelt Hardie's cap and John Burns' bowler hat reached the august chamber of the House of Lords is a question that has been asked in connection with the epoch-making event of Tuesday, Aug. 8. Until that date nothing ever had been seen on the hat-pegs in the lobby of the House of Lords but tall hats. On that day it was reported that a straw sailor hat was observed on a peg under the label of the Earl of Mayo.

The startled observer of this strange revolutionary happening reported other remarkable departures in dress. On the front Opposition bench sat Lord St. Aldwin in a light tweed suit, and on the Government side, just above the ministers, the buff waistcoat of Lord Courtney Penwith flashed out from a group of frock coats. These may portend that reform of the House of Lords is to come from within.

Ordinary punishments answered very well for Susy. She was a thinker, and would reason out the purpose of them, apply the lesson and achieve the reform required. But it was much less easy to devise punishments that would reform Clara. This was because she was a philosopher, who was always turning her attention to finding something good and satisfactory and entertaining in everything that came her way; consequently it was sometimes pretty discouraging to the troubled mother to find that after all her pains and thought in inventing what she meant to be a severe and reform-compelling punishment, the child had entirely missed the severities through her native disposition to get interest and pleasure out of them as novelties. The mother, in an anxiety to find a penalty that would take sharp hold and do its work effectively, at last resorted, with a sore heart, and with a reproachful conscience, to that punishment which the incorrigible criminal in the penitentiary dreads above all the other punitive miseries which the warden inflicts upon him for his good—solitary confinement in the dark chamber. The griefed and worried mother shut Clara up in a very small clothes closet and went away and left her there for 15 minutes—it was all that the mother heart could endure. Then she came softly back and listened—listened for the sobs, but there weren't any; there were muffled and inarticulate sounds, but they could not be construed into longer; by that time she was suffering

The programme for the summer school on Monday evening was of a patriotic nature, and enjoyed by a large crowd. Rev. J. E. Holmes, of Lucan, was chairman, and the following numbers were rendered: Instrumental duet, Misses McFalls, of Lucan; reading, Miss Coupland, of Watford; solo, Mr. E. A. Humphries, of Parkhill; address, "Fighting for the Flag," by Rev. J. H. Oliver; solo, Mr. E. A. Humphries. The address by Mr. Oliver was indeed excellent, and all were more than delighted. The management of the summer school is to be congratulated on the fine programme they have so far been giving the people.

AMAZING MARRIAGE

Miss Maude Fealy Consents To Give Up Her Husband.

New York, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Margaret Fealy Cavallo, mother of the popular actress, Miss Maude Fealy, has proved that her power over her daughter is too great for the latter to pass to the dominion of a husband.

It was announced on Friday last that Miss Maude Fealy had married Mr. Louis Sherwin, a dramatic critic, secretly in Denver, Colorado, but on Wednesday Miss Fealy declared that she would annul the marriage, having decided to stick to her mother.

Mrs. Cavallo has been running a dramatic school in Denver, and when the news came of her daughter's marriage she threatened to give it up and leave her friends. Later she said her daughter had explained to her that the marriage was one of probation, and after a year of absence from each other the couple had decided they would deliberate as to whether they were to consider themselves married or not.

Following this came an interview with Miss Fealy herself, who says: "I am seeking an annulment of my marriage to please my mother. My husband and I agreed that the wedding should be kept secret for a year, and we would make provision out of our income sufficient to provide for my mother's future. The secrecy pledge has, however, been broken, and I am full of regret about it. A stranger told my mother what I had done, and she says she will never forgive me if I persist in my marriage. The annulment is the only reparation I can give her for her grief caused by the step I have taken. Yes, I am sorry for my husband, but the course I am now taking is mutually best, and will prevent much unpleasant friction."

It is understood that Mrs. Cavallo's objection was not to Mr. Sherwin, but to a marriage of her daughter to anyone.

SUPPLIES FOR SHIPWRECKED.

The catboat ran gayly before the wind. The sea was alive with sunshine. Shoreward, on the board walk the people walking looked no bigger than dominoes.

"No, sir," said the skipper, "there is not a desert island of the sea that the Governments of the world haven't stocked up with grub and clothes and tools for the use of shipwrecked mariners."

"There's thinned soups, dried meats, sealed cans of rice and flour and sugar, dried peas, beans, tobacco, knives, nails, matches, shovels, buckets, hatches, and so on—all a shipwrecked mariner could need."

"The governments have done this for a number of years. The proven-der is hid in caves or under rocks. There's a book published giving the exact location of these caches and most ships carry a copy of the work."
