CONFERENCE AT WHITE HOUSE

President Roosevelt and His Advisers Again Discuss the Great Strike.

To Induce Miners to Return the President to ask Congress to Examine Complaints.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—In an earnest effort to expedite the adjustment of the coal strike problem another conference over the situation was held at the White House to-day, and adjourned after three hours' deliberation. No statement was given out as to the conclusions reached, and every participant absolutely refused to discuss what had taken place during the meeting. The conference was called for to-day, although it was Sunday, in view of the extraordinary importance to the American people of a solution of the question. Besides the President, there were present at the conference Secretary of War Root, Secretary of the Navy Moody, Attorney-General Knox, Postmaster-General Payne, and Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor. The conference began shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. When those who were to participate arrived at the White House in a drizzling rain they found Surgeon-General Rixey, the navy, and Dr. Lang, the President's physician, already making the morning call on the distinguished patient. This caused a delay of a few minutes. When the two physicians left it was reported that the President's condition was progressing satisfactorily, and there were no untoward developments. The President in expressing his views at the outset of the conference, talked earnestly, and showed a deep feeling. His voice at times could be heard down stairs. Several times during the conference Secretary Cortelyou was summoned into the room and directed to prepare certain matter for the consideration of the President and his advisers. This was taken to indicate that some action of one nature or another was about to be consummated. When the conference adjourned the President's face was pale, and he had a deep frown. He had joined it, declined to talk. Every member of the cabinet and Mr. Wright, the only outsider who was pledged to the President, to absolute secrecy as to what had occurred within the conference room. The utmost effort was made to guard against publicity, just as the presidential summons which called the conference had been made in a very quiet and carefully guarded way. Not since the Spanish war has there been such a reticence shown at a conference of such character as was observed to-day. In this state of absolute reticence everyone of the parties to the conference, it is almost impossible to do more than draw the most general conclusions as to the

HEAD-ON COLLISION

Helena, Mont., Oct. 4.—A Burlington west-bound train and the Northern Pacific east-bound express met in a head-on collision between Columbus and Park City, Mont., on a curve on the Northern Pacific track to-day. Two men were killed and seven injured—one fatally. The engine and mail cars were wrecked. The dead—D. A. Campbell, Sheridan, Wyo., fireman of the west-bound train; Andrew Lundvall, Boise, Mont., mail clerk on the east-bound train. The injured include D. E. Bruce, of Bristol, Tenn., injured internally, who may die.

WITH CANADA

Reciprocity Proposition Raised a Storm in Massachusetts G. O. P. Convention.

Boston, Oct. 4.—An unexpected attempt to amend the platform presented at the republican state convention yesterday caused a sudden but very brief storm. Ex-Rep. Frank M. Fitts, of Somerville, moved an amendment to the platform in the form of a plank for reciprocity with Canada and an immediate revision of the tariff so as to include free coal, free iron, free steel and free hides. Instantly a wave of excitement swept the floor of the convention. Isaac B. Allen wanted an amendment protesting against the alleged ill-treatment of colored voters in the south, but this was lost sight of in the interest aroused by the proposition of Mr. Fitts. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, noting the tangle which impeded, averted further trouble by making a vigorous speech in favor of the resolutions as reported by the committee. The amendment was defeated.

BOOTH ARRIVES

Salvation Army Leader Given Enthusiastic Welcome at New York.

New York, Oct. 4.—On the steamship Philadelphia, which arrived to-day from Southampton, was Gen. Wm. Booth, the head of the Salvation Army. Twelve tugs and three side-wheel passenger boats bearing soldiers of the Salvation Army met the Philadelphia at quarantine and gave an enthusiastic welcome to General Booth.

TURKISH TREATY

Muslims Amazed, While the Sultan Shows Attention on Grand Duke Nicholas.

Constantinople, Oct. 4.—Excited comment has been caused by the fact that Grand Duke Nicholas arrived here on the Russian ironclad Georgi Pobiedonosetz, which owing to the insistence of Russia, was permitted at the last moment to pass the naval forts.

The warship anchored in full view of the Yildiz Kiosk. The censor suppressed all mention of the word "ironclad," but the Musselman population was deeply impressed by what was regarded as another instance of Russia overriding the clause of the Berlin treaty, which closes the Bosphorus to foreign warships.

The sultan is showing extraordinary attention to the grand duke and is treating him on the same footing as a sovereign.

PIONEER GONE

The death took place yesterday at the Home of the Friendless of Allison Robinson, one of the oldest residents in Chatham. Mr. Robinson was 75 years old, and at one time was a bail-jester. He was born in Rochester, N. Y., and has lived in Chatham for fifty years. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

POOR LO!

James Thomson, an Indian, appeared before Judge Houston. The Judge asked the red man what he had been doing. "I was drunk, I guess," was the reply. Mr. Indian man didn't know where he had got his jag, so the court sent Thomson up to jail for a week to find out if he would tell. "A white man can get drunk and doesn't have to tell where he got his liquor. If an Indian gets drunk he has got to tell where he got his whiskey. Strange laws in this country," said the Judge. The brave said he was half blind and couldn't tell who the man was who provided him with the booze. It was surprising what a poor memory the Indian had. He didn't even know whether he had got the liquor in a house or on the street.

Chas. H. Everett, of Bellville, visited his Chatham friends yesterday.

LOOK FOR COAL TO CANADA

Americans Cry for Removal of Duty—Endorsed by Senator Lodge.

Dominion Coal Co. to Ship U. S. 100,000 Tons of Anthracite—"Run on the Mine."

Boston, Oct. 4.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge took the opportunity, at a meeting of the Essex Club this afternoon, held to ratify the recent State nominations, to make a notable and surprising statement dealing with the coal situation and also with the tariff revision. He expressed earnest sympathy with and emphatic support for the President in his efforts to end the coal strike, and confidence that the party would be with him in whatever further steps he might take. Continuing, he said:—"The President will not let the matter rest where it is. There is a cry to take the duty off coal—the little duty there is—67 cents a ton. I should like to see Congress pass a law authorizing the President to proclaim the removal of the duty on bituminous coal coming from Canada just as soon as Canada takes off the duty from our coal going into Canada."

COAL FROM CANADA.
Washington, Oct. 4.—The secretary of the treasury has received a communication from the collector of customs at Portland, Maine, in which he states that the Dominion Coal Company, of Canada, is about to export to the United States 100,000 tons of anthracite "run of the mine" coal, and asks that increased facilities be given the company for handling the same. The department will expend every facility within the law at its discretion. The coal pays a duty of 67 cents a ton.

COAL FROM ABROAD.
New York, Oct. 4.—At the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. this statement was issued by Mr. Steele, of the firm:—"It was learned to-day that the International Mercantile Marine Co. has arranged to purchase in England fifty thousand tons of the best domestic fuel coal for immediate transportation to this country. Shipments of the coal will begin at once and be hurried forward as rapidly as possible, even at the sacrifice of the company's ordinary business, if that should be found necessary. This coal, as well as more, if required, will be used to relieve any suffering or scarcity that may exist among the poor in the public institutions."

A firm of miners and dealers which shipped a year ago 2,500 tons of anthracite to Boston, France, as an experiment, has found that the coal was not used, and has brought it back and sold it here for delivery on its arrival. Although the cost of re-shipping to the coast is calculated at $1 a ton, the deal will be profitable.

A steamer will sail early next month for this port with 6,000 tons of Scotch anthracite. This will be the first importation of Scotch coal. There are more than 50,000 tons of foreign anthracite has been brought to this port since the strike reached an acute stage. The great bulk of this was purchased by the gas and elevated railroad companies.

COAL IN DEMAND.
London, Oct. 4.—Additional large orders from the United States for steam coal were reported to-day on the Newcastle coal exchange. Exporters are negotiating for a number of large steamers to transport coal to America.

DIED IN TORONTO

Toronto, October 6.—Many will regret to learn of the death of the inspector of legal offices for the province of Ontario, which occurred yesterday morning at his residence, 27 Isabella street. Mr. Fleming was able to perform his duties up to Thursday, and on that day, visited his friend, Mr. John R. Cartwright, the District Attorney-General, at the parliament buildings. He then seemed to be in his usual good health and spirits.

His death came as a complete surprise to his friends in Toronto, very few of whom were aware of his illness. Dr. Fotheringham, however, stated to The Mail and Empire that Mr. Fleming had been suffering from muscular degeneration of the heart, which would have been apparent to any observant physician had they been called in, but that for two years previous to his last illness Mr. Fleming had not consulted him.

Deceased was twice married, and a widow, the daughter of the late Rev. James Pringle, survives him, as well as one daughter, Miss Kate Fleming, a teacher in the high school at Niagara Falls, Ont.

The funeral will take place at 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning, and will be private. The remains will be conveyed to the Union Station, and thence by train to Brampton, where he lived for many years, and where interment will take place.

The deceased was a relative of Manager Friggle of the Merchant's Bank here.

NEGRO LYNCHED

Columbus, Miss., Oct. 4.—Utt Duncan, a negro, was taken from the county jail here late this afternoon by a mob of several hundred men and hanged to a near-by telephone pole. Late last night Duncan entered the telephone office at Eagle Lake, where Miss Lena Harris, night operator, was on duty, and conducted himself improperly. Duncan was arrested and brought here from Eagle Lake for safe keeping, but a mob of men this afternoon succeeded in forcing their way into the jail and removing Duncan.

NOT GHOST

The Solution of an Apparition Which Alarmed a Swiss Community.

Geneva, Oct. 5.—For some time past the inhabitants of Oron, in the Canton of Vaud, have been agitated by the nightly wanderings of a ghost. Some few have attempted to solve the mystery, but the majority have, with Swiss superstition, accepted the ghostly visitor as a token of past crime or coming disaster.

A few days ago a Maziere's gendarme, while making his rounds, came upon the supposed ghost in a secluded forest path. It proved to be a girl of about fifteen years of age, dumb and partially an idiot. She wore no clothes beyond a portion of old sacking, roughly tied across her body, which was covered with thick and tangled hair. She was taken to the village, where her appearance has created a sensation. Her feet are covered with thick, horny skin. She is unable to walk in shoes, and can only go up and down stairs on all fours. Whence she has come or how long she has existed in a wild state is unknown.

WAS DULL

Mr. Hall Caine's New Play "The Eternal City" Jeered by a London Audience.

London, Oct. 5.—If Mr. Hall Caine had responded to the persistent calls for the author at the close of the first performance of "The Eternal City" at His Majesty's Theatre last night it is to be feared that the audience's treatment of him would have shocked his sensitive nature.

The house sat none too patiently through four hours of dullness, and after giving full recognition to the excellent work of the actors, it sought an opportunity to express its opinion of the play itself.

The nature of that opinion had been too clearly indicated, however, by the jeers and laughter with which some of the most labored passages were greeted, and the author wisely refrained from facing the ordeal.

Mr. Beerbohm Tree never staged a play more sumptuously. His acting and that of Robert Faber, Lionel Brough, Brandon Thomas, and Constance Collier left nothing to be desired; but, despite these advantages, it was impossible to life the play into anything approaching a dramatic success.

In fact, the audience, from being nearly bored, finally sought amusement in ridiculing the heavy dialogue, Mascagni's incidental music did not prove altogether new, but it included several pleasing original passages.

WORLD'S MONEY MARKETS.

Berlin, Oct. 4.—The rate of discount of the Imperial Bank of Germany was raised from 3 to 4 per cent to-day. The rise in the bank rate which had been anticipated, was due to the large increase of bills discounted by the Bank of Germany and to the rise of the Bank of England's rate.

London, Oct. 4.—Holidays on stock exchange. Gold premiums are quoted: Buenos Ayres, 128.20; Madrid 33.60.

CAUSED A MELEE

James Points, better known as "Dug", was assessed $3.50 for creating a disturbance on the street. He paid. Points had a patent cane that exploded a cartridge with a loud report when the cane was hit heavy on the pavement. The report equaled the noise made by a revolver shot. Points is the witness before the court. He said that the cane belonged to Mr. Eberts, and there were lots of them. The man who kept the Bee Hive had lots of them. Brown, who was fined for being drunk, claimed that the reports made by Points were responsible for his (Brown's) getting into trouble. Brown thought that somebody was shooting and got mixed up in the crowd to see, and the next thing he knew he was arrested. Points said that Brown was under the influence and the big bottle of liquor in his pocket was responsible for Brown's trouble. Chief Holmes heard the report of Points' torpedo cane when he was crossing the park and thought that it was a pistol shot. Points pleaded that he didn't think it was any harm to make the noise, but it cost the colored porter at the Hotel Garner $3.50 for not thinking.

YOUNG MEN'S CLUB

A meeting of the ministers of the city was held in the offices of the Chatham Loan and Savings Company this morning at ten o'clock, all of the ministers being present with the exception of T. Beverley Smith, who preached in Toronto yesterday and was not able to be present. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the advisability of forming a Young Men's Club in Chatham. They were all unanimous in the opinion that such a club should be formed, and expressed their willingness to help the scheme along as much as they can. A young man who has been connected with the Y. M. C. A.'s was present and gave some very valuable information concerning ways and means of forming young men's clubs. Two delegates will be appointed from every church in the city and a meeting of these delegates will be held Tuesday evening.

NASTY ACCIDENT

Bob McGarry and Jack Austin drove to Dresden Saturday afternoon and were returning on Saturday night when their horse suddenly took fright and ran right into a ten foot ditch by the roadside, throwing itself, rig and occupants into a couple of feet of mud and water at the bottom. Neither of the boys were hurt, but their clothes were spoiled. The rig was slightly damaged, but the horse didn't have a scratch. It was only a few miles from Dresden where the accident happened and the boys had to walk to that town. The hotel were closed and they had to roost in the livery stable in their wet clothes over night. The boys got home last night and are still explaining.

The Pendulum Is Swinging Fast

The pendulum of Time and Weather is swinging fast past the point where warm weather ends, and fall becomes a stern reality, with winter casting its deep shadow on the dial of time.

The pace it sets is fast. Yet, as the season advances, event after event, at Austin & Co.'s proves that it but puts impetus to the swing of this store's doings.

The Bargain Centre was never more typical of the great busy store it is,—the very vim, snap and bustle of the life within it is characteristic.

"Cheap" clothing is a bad investment, under any conditions.

The happy combination of merit and economy is found in Austin Boys' Clothing, whatever its price, for when high priced it is never dear; when low priced it is never poor. You're safe either way.

Theatrical

Alaska at the Grand to-night—Lincoln J. Carter's latest production of melodrama. From Cincinnati Enquirer of Sept. 15, '92.

"ALASKA."

"Alaska" is the title of a four-act melodrama that made its initial appearance in Cincinnati yesterday at the Lyceum Theatre, before two capacity audiences.

Mr. W. L. Lockwood is mainly responsible for this new thriller, which has been furnished with an excellent scenic environment by that renowned disciple of the story, which is interesting all the way through, principally on account of its novelty, is in brief, as follows:

The hero is accused of a murder just about the time a massacre threatens the settlement of whites in the country of ice and gold. An Indian attack saves him from lynching and finally the villain and half-breed accomplice are brought to justice, and two love stories are incidentally unwound.

The two cabin scenes, the volcano crater and the deck of the Eagle are realistic pictures. Lincoln J. Carter, as the villain, is a masterpiece of acting, while A. W. Ellis, an actor of repose, and ability, portrayed the villain in a way that isn't often seen done.

The fun, too, was in capsule hands. Miss St. George Rusey, whose Irish woman has been a gleeful part of nearly every play that demands an Irish woman, made an unmistakable hit.

Perry O'Dell & Dee's Comedians at the Grand Opera House, on Wednesday and Thursday (Fair nights) will doubtless be a big success, as they are more than worthy of a bumper house judging from the press notices they have received wherever they have appeared.

The program consists of ten very funny acts, including, farce, "The Wireless Telephone," by company; "Bonny Dee" by comedian; "Health and Exile" gun juggling, trick shooting; "Tommy Haver" late of William West's jubilee singers; "The three Dees" in a laughable sketch "Benton and Green" two funny comedians; "Ada Haver" in illustrated songs; "Miss O'Detta," America's greatest dancing girl, and "The Kinestograph," latest moving pictures.

This is a very strong attraction of high class vaudeville and is a splendid card for fair night at the Grand.

A FAMOUS SCULPTOR.
Mrs. Theo Ruggles Kitson of Boston
Has a Worldwide Reputation.

However unusual her endowments and training may have been, it is hard to believe that any young woman twenty-seven years of age could have attained a permanent position in one of the most difficult branches of art and achieved a worldwide fame as a sculptor. Nevertheless this is what Mrs. Theo Ruggles Kitson of Boston has accomplished, and an examination of the large number of works of surpassing artistic merit which Mrs. Kitson has created during a period of life when less accomplished artists are learning the technique of their vocation furnishes sufficient evidence that the future holds for her even greater successes than those which have already filled a brief past.

Mrs. Kitson's most recent work, a bronze statue of heroic size of the

MRS. THEO RUGGLES KITSON.

"Volunteer of '01," is a departure from the symbolic and decorative work with which most of her admirers are familiar. A notable exception, however, is the bronze statue of Admiral Esch Hopkins of American navy fame, now standing in the Hopkins park, Providence.

Mrs. Kitson was born in Brookline and began the actual study of modeling when fifteen years of age, though long before that time she had given promise of artistic ability. Her first instructor was Henry Hudson Kitson, the well known sculptor, whom she afterward married.

A little later Mrs. Kitson, then Theo Ruggles, studied drawing in Paris under Dagnan-Bouveret and Cottais. At the same time, alone and without any realization that she was developing her real vocation, she continued modeling in clay and during this period produced her first statue, "Young Orpheus." This was exhibited at the Salon, and its youthful creator, seventeen years of age, still in short dresses and wearing her hair in long braids down her back, received honorable mention. Indeed, she was the youngest person who ever received honors from the famous institution.

From this time on she devoted herself entirely to sculpture. In 1889 one of her first busts made from life was accepted by the Salon committee as the standard of sculpture in the American section of the Paris exposition.

Mrs. Kitson was represented at the World's fair by two statues symbolic of the forests of Michigan, "Pines" and "Oaks." These figures in bronze are now in the Museum of Fine Arts, Detroit. Boston Herald.

Furnishing the Bedroom.

The bedroom, though primarily a place where one may get refreshing sleep—"sleep that knits up the raveled sleeve of care"—is also a place to dream in by day as well as by night, a place to rest in when one has an hour of leisure, a place, in short, sacred to oneself, where one may go, "the world forgetting, by the world forgot." Its requisites, therefore, are comfort, a restful atmosphere and such beauty as may be.

Very handsome or elaborate furniture would seem out of place in a bedroom, and in no room are inharmonious combinations unbearable. The most successful bedrooms are often found in unpretentious homes because there simplicity and taste must be used instead of expense.

The Japanese believe in banishing from the bedroom everything which is not really necessary to comfort.

All things useful they make as decorative as possible, but for mere ornament nothing is added, unless it be a vase containing flowers, arranged as only the Japanese can do.

Their custom will bear consideration by the housewife of our western world, for by this method the utmost neatness, simplicity and repose are possible.

Add beauty and daintiness, and little is left to be desired.

Bedrooms go appointed may be easily kept in order and free from dust, that foe to comfort and health.

A Suggestion For Parents.

What will be to many a new thought in regard to children is the suggestion made in Good Housekeeping that elders could add much to the happiness of children if, instead of painting the future very bright, the effort should be to lay stress on the joys that are theirs alone. It is suggested that if, instead of saying, "You may not do that now; wait until you are older," we would say, "You may do that now, while you are young; later you cannot do it, we could give our children a certain valued sense of prerogative and take away much of the envy they feel toward adults. It is surprising how many times in a day a mother finds occasion for saying, "Wait until you are older," or, "When you are older, you will understand." To continually talk in this strain gives the child the impression that he is of little importance until he has become a grownup. If we had been warned, "Ride your pony now, while you are small; by and by your legs will drag on the ground," every child would have been precious. It is surely worth while to impress upon children the beauty and the privileges of their golden days. There is a deal of common sense in this criticism, says Vogue. As the writer later in her article says, very truly, a habit of anticipation is developed in the child which is apt to carry through life and which forever interferes with its finding the day's happiness sufficient.

Save Your Trimmings.

It is an excellent plan to have a box for hat trimmings, in which all the millinery odds and ends left over from season to season may be kept. Fashion rotates with such unerring regularity that good bits pass one season or quite likely to be in demand after two or three have passed. Steel ornaments, for example, are in and out of vogue at intervals. If at all handsome, they are expensive and well worth keeping. They may be cleaned from rust and discoloration by rubbing them with a brush dipped in paraffin oil and then in emery powder. Steel ornaments, for example, are in and out of vogue at intervals. #### Furnishing a Small Room.

In furnishing a small room two necessary points must be considered—first, that space is gained by making things as flat as possible against the wall, and, second, that stiffness is prevented then by introducing plants and breaking the lines by pulling out a table a little, turning a chair, and so on. A seat sixteen inches in height running around a corner and along one side of the room to some break of door or window saves space and furniture and adds a charming effect. It should be upholstered and have only an occasional rather small and carefully selected pillow. Low bookshelves, too, built against the wall furnish without furniture, but care must be taken that they are not extended in too continuous a straight line. A carpet of a solid color greatly increases the effect of space.

The Upright Piano.

Covers of oriental weave come for the backs of upright pianos, but they are by no means inexpensive. An experimenting housekeeper who wished but could not afford one of these bought as a substitute and at much less cost one Japanese portiere. This was too long and too narrow, but a piece taken from the bottom was fitted at the side, and a second piece was added at the top to go over the lid of the piano. A pattern in shades of gold in a striped effect was chosen, which lent itself readily to the piercing scheme, and the new cover is extremely effective.

Rugs.

The average American housewife wears out her rugs by continual sweeping and beating. The plan of putting them upon a line every two weeks or even once a month and there having them whipped is not to be commended if the rugs are of any value. They should be cleaned with a carpet sweeper, occasionally put upon a line and brushed and once a year sent away to be cleaned in a proper manner or else washed at home.

Stair Carpet.

When buying a stair carpet, get an extra yard and fold in a piece at each end. If you do this, you will be able to shift the carpet sometimes higher, sometimes lower, and by this means you will get it worn evenly all over and will not have the edges of the stairs looking frayed and shabby while the parts of the carpet remain untrod and fresh.

When Children Begin to Walk.

Experiments upon 1,220 children show that 95 per cent begin to walk under the age of twenty-four months, a little over half begin under fourteen months, one-third begin under twelve months, and 10 per cent begin under ten months. Three babies out of the whole number began to walk under eight months.

To Clean Pewter.

To clean pewter make a strong solution of soda and water; add a few drops of oil of tartar and thicken with sand. With this scour the pewter thoroughly, and then, after wiping dry, finish by polishing it with a chamois leather dipped in whiting.

Many people think it a waste of time to iron stockings, but if they once find out the difference between darned ironed and unironed stockings they will speedily change their ideas.

If a chimney catches fire, throw a handful of sulphur into the grate. As the sulphurous fumes ascend the fire in the chimney will die out.

Don't moisten your food with the idea of saving your teeth. It spoils the teeth, and you will soon lose them.

The council met pursuant to adjournment. The members were all present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

The Terry drain by-law and a by-law to appoint two township collectors were read and finally passed. Charles Hart, commissioner reported verbally in reference to the obstructions in the McFarlane drain.

Grant-Trudell—That Chas. Hart be instructed to clean out the McFarlane drain in the manner and at the points recommended by him as commissioner of said drain, under a general repair of the drain under an engineer's report is impracticable owing to the present state of the water, and to report to the council when the work is done.—Carried.

Trudell-Grant—That Gregory G. Carron be appointed commissioner to and superintend the work of the construction of the Terry drain, the work to be finally received by the engineer, and the commissioner to report to the council when the drain is completed.—Carried.

Wright-Grant—That the receiver and clerk be appointed to have the collector's bonds executed and report to the council. Carried.

West, Robert Smith and Robert O'Mara be each paid $1.00 for pathmasters' returns.—Carried.

Grant-Trudell—That S. Hughes be paid $8 for 2 sheep killed by dogs, being 2 value as per certificate of the inspector.

R. Cooper's account, $4.05, for stationery was ordered paid and R. Brant's account, $1.50, for printing. The council adjourned.

Lord Pauncefoot's Ready Wit

Le Gaulois tells this story illustrative of the humor of the late Lord Pauncefoot: In the Peace Congress of The Hague he attracted the attention of the delegates by taking notes with a fountain pen, the hands of which was formed by the shell of a dum-dum bullet. One day the representative of a foreign power, excited by the heat of the discussion in the streets of eternal peace, said to him sharply: "My lord, it isn't right for you to use that murderous shell in this congress. The instruments used by persons are almost emblematic. They can be expression of their ideas and of their personality." Lord Pauncefoot smiled but said nothing. The following day his critic, wanting to write something, turned to the English diplomat to borrow a pen. The ambassador pulled out of his pocket an old-fashioned pen made of a grey goose quill, and after the borrower had finished said: "Monseigneur, it isn't right for you to use such an instrument in this congress. The instruments used by persons are almost sure to become part of their personality."

Among the Grand Figures.

Mme. de Thebes, the Paris fortune teller who predicted the King's serious illness from his hand eight years ago, in a recent interview before the coronation for him to show the real qualities which will rank him among the grand figures of the British Empire.

I think these words of somewhat singular conception may interest readers like everything now connected with their beloved King.—London Times' Paris Telegram.

A PRIVATE SECRETARY.

That For an M.P. is a Difficult Post to Fill—The Qualities That Make for Success in This Calling.

"Nothing," said Addison, "that is not a real crime makes a man appear so contemptible and little in the eyes of the world as inconsistency." I am quite sure that all private secretaries who attend at the House of Commons are models of single-minded devotion to their chiefs. I have used the room devoted to their purposes for some years, and I seldom meet new faces. And I feel therefore, that I have some ground for thinking that the fact of the same secretaries meeting session after session redounds not a little to their credit.

The post of a private secretary to a member of Parliament is by no means an easy one to fill. He must in the first place display an absolutely unselfish devotion. He must to a great extent give up his individuality in his master. He must resolutely set himself to reject dignity and all kinds of personal gain and in order to enjoy complete trust and sympathy, he must display a thorough consistency to the man to whom he practically dedicates his life.

The private secretaries in the House of Commons are a comparatively small but none the less important body. Small, because only a limited number of legislators can afford the luxury of their service. Two long conference rooms are given up to their use, and from the time the House begins to sit until it adjourns they continue to come and go. Some members work early in the afternoon, some just before dinner, others as late as 10 or 11 o'clock. But the rooms are seen at their best between 5 and 6 when it is often difficult to get a table.

The secretaries who use the rooms are of different types. There is the "hack," there is the brilliant barrister, the lawyer's clerk, and there is the shorthand writer pure and simple. Although we meet every day, few of us know each other's names. We like to know one another by the names of our chiefs. The practice is one upon which we rather pride ourselves as it affords conclusive proof of our ability to sink our individuality.

The rooms are often employed for receiving deputations. Constituents with grievances come to represent their case, and the member naturally finds it convenient to have at his side an interested witness in the shape of his secretary, who can note with exactness what he hears.

Most of the secretaries are stenographers, and there is no doubt that the thoroughly equipped private secretary, if he wishes to be armed for all emergencies should know shorthand. Not that it is always the most important qualification. A great deal of good work can be done without it. I remember watching with envy last session a secretary efficiently unacquainted with stenography but possessing such a well-trained memory that he was able to carry out long and elaborate directions from his chief without a note, and was able to write from memory a wonderfully correct report of a deputation, giving the substance of each spokesman's remarks, the questions, answers, comments, and intonations with astonishing accuracy.

The rooms afford plenty of amusement to those who make a study of human nature. A vast amount of work is accomplished there, but often under the most trying conditions. One drawback to the place is that it can seldom be made a study of which requires real solid thinking. At any moment an industrious secretary may find seated opposite to him an equally industrious member of Parliament, debating in a fluent tongue, a mass of the most uninteresting correspondence to his secretary. One member used to have a strong objection to anyone else working in the same room as himself and his secretary, and had no scruples in asking others to remove their papers. That room was for some time labelled Mr. So-and-So's office, but I fancy the new rules of procedure enable the member to remove a little longer in the city to do his business, for without disrespect, he has happily not been near us this session.

A private secretary makes a great mistake if he expresses his own opinion on questions too frequently. One is often tempted to put one's own ideas into letters and speeches, but unless specially invited it is best to use the chief's exact language. This is why shorthand is so essential a qualification. But the secretary must avoid the danger of becoming a mere machine. If he can do no more than take notes and transcribe them, if he cannot produce an original thought or put forward a criticism, he had better remain at the reporter's desk.

Industry and accuracy are essential to success, but a knowledge of the world, a cultivation of the amenities of life, and the possession of extensive information are equally indispensable to the private secretary.

Although we, who try to be our members' other selves, are a contented body, we shall not always be satisfied at remaining private secretaries. We feel the honor and the dignity of the position, but we do not like to banish from our heads the thought of one day becoming celebrated. There have been many distinguished men who have used the rooms we work in, and have attained eminence by giving the best of their brains to those for whom they have worked. Speaking personally, if I were ten years younger and had to choose my lot again, I should elect that of a secretary as the groundwork of a career. A young fellow who becomes associated in the enterprises and responsibilities of a member of Parliament by force and character can enjoy to better training. Much, however, depends upon your chief. Get hold of a man who stimulates you, not one whose voice is simply the echo of the popular cry of the moment. You will find that he will keep your intelligence lively and that your working energies will stand in no danger of being sapped.

A KITCHEN APRON.

One That is Serviceable and Easily Made at Home.

Without doubt every housewife has a kitchen apron of some description, but the style shown in the sketch below is becoming very popular. It may be bought ready made or very easily constructed at home. If new material is used, apron gingham, two widths are necessary, putting the selvages together in the side seams and leaving a space of six inches at the top not sewed for the armholes. If the person is rather plump for whom the apron is made, use three widths of gingham in the same way. By following the sketch closely there will be no difficulty in carrying out the design. It is only straight breadths of material gathered into a band; these shoulder straps, merely straight bands, connect the back with the front. The apron should be long to cover the gown well, as this apron is easily put off and on, making it indispensable to the young housekeeper who does her own cooking. Do not make a mistake and omit the ruffle around the bottom, for it protects the gown underneath by its fullness sticking out from the skirt.

A Mother's kitchen apron is very desirable during the preserving season. It may be made of a gingham dress skirt that has a passe waist by making the length of the skirt sufficient by adding a wide ruffle. The apron buttons down the back—Exchange.

To Gain Flesh.

To gain flesh, eat a hearty breakfast and dinner and a light luncheon.

Bread, butter and stewed fruit and milk are necessary articles of diet. Let the bread be brown or gluten loaf, and have the milk hot, not scalded; take some of the salad during the day, but eat no salads between meals. Olive oil on fresh green salad and cream with baked bananas are fattening foods.

Before retiring take a warm bath to induce sleep, which aids in increasing flesh. Devote ten hours to sleep, and if possible rest for ten minutes every afternoon.

Spend one whole day in bed each month, sleeping as much of the day as possible. The only true way to rest is to lie down in a darkened room with closed eyes and think of nothing. Even five minutes of such rest is valuable; the muscles of the face relax, and one does not get a hard, set look, which adds many years to the appearance.

Take time to eat your meals. If you have not time to get a meal leisurely, you without it, as it will not injure you a quarter as much as it will to eat in a hurry.

Unvaluable For Mending.

A very handy thing to have about the house is a strip of the rubber tissue such as is used in hospitals. Not only is this an excellent cure for scald or burn, a rheumatic muscle, a sore chest or tired, aching joints and feet, but it is a valuable adjunct to the mending basket.

If there is a tear in a three layer skirt, draw the edges together, lay on a little sand of the tissue, cover this with a patch and press with a moderately hot iron until the tissue, which is of pure gum, is dissolved. If care is taken of this tissue, it will last indefinitely. It must not be kept in a hot room or shut up away from the air in a tight box or drawer. Put it between two sheets of paper and lay where the air can circulate around it. It is not expensive. Fifty cents will buy a strip over a yard long and a quarter wide, an outlay that will pay for itself many times over. It can be bought at almost any drugstore.

How to Spell Faults.

Laugh at their faults; encourage them; give them their own way; tell them pretty untruths; give them what they cry for; shout at the top of your voice to them; never encourage their efforts to do better; fly into a passion with them several times a day; punish them if they break some trifle by accident; don't enter into their games; when they ask for information, tell them to be quiet; let them think the streets are the best place to play; never take any notice of their childish sorrows; don't have any toys or playthings tossed around the house; don't bother yourself about those house they go to; don't trouble inviting their companions to your house; always take part against their teasers and try to forget as much as possible that you were once young yourself.

Whooping Cough.

For whooping cough, 5 cents' worth of sirup of rhubarb and 5 cents' worth of castor oil, mixed, and given twice a day—half a small teaspoonful at a time—will often effect a cure. Another good remedy is powdered alum. Give four grains of this in a teaspoonful of sugar and water three times a day one hour before food. This dose may be given to a child one year old and upward, increasing the dose till eight grains are given. For a child of ten begin with eight grains and increase to sixteen. Let the child be in the open air as much as possible.

SEVEN YEARS IN BED

This Wonderful Case Borders on the Miraculous

Nothing Like it Has Ever Been Heard of—In Newfoundland, Where the Story Comes From it Has Created a Profound Sensation.

Cottrell's Cove, New Bay, Newfoundland, Oct. 6.—(Special).—This part of the island has been thoroughly aroused by the miraculous cure of a man named Joseph Boon.

For eight years this man had been ailing and for seven years of this time he was unable to work. He had Back Ache and Kidney Complaint, in fact he was all pains and aches. He had been treated from time to time by several doctors and although he always carefully attended to their several prescriptions he got no relief, but was slowly growing worse.

Finally he went to the Hospital, where he remained for seven months, only to be sent home as an incurable case.

He has tried every remedy he could hear of, electric belts, liniments, oils and other medicines but all of no avail. No one thought he could ever be well again.

However, one day he picked up a newspaper containing an account of how Mr. Richard Quirk, of Fortune Harbor, had been cured of Lumbago by Dodd's Kidney Pills. After reading this Mr. Boon made up his mind to try this remedy and at once began a treatment.

He used altogether twenty-one boxes before he was able to go to work again, but now he is able to attend to his daily duties as strong and vigorous as any man along the coast.

Mr. Boon is a fisherman and is at present engaged at lobster fishing with no thought whatever of his old time Back Ache and other pains.

Many people here regard this cure as little short of miraculous.

Bananas, English Style.

At English table spoons are served with bananas. If the bananas are served as a single fruit course, however, sherry is usually sent around with it. A few drops are poured upon the plate, and the banana, stripped little by little of its skin, is dipped into this and thus eaten.

A Natural Development.

"Hello, Stave! Haven't met you in some time. Still a bachelor, I suppose?"

"Not a bit of it. I've branched out in matrimony."

"Indeed! Olive branches, of course?"

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE G.O.M. OF CRICKET.

Dr. W. G. Grace Continues His Wonderful Work at the Wicket at 54—He Plays Every Week Day.

Dr. W. G. Grace, the greatest cricket player that England, or, for that matter, the world, has ever produced, has just celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday. Two days before the opening of the anniversary he completed his two hundredth century at the game in matches with first-class clubs in a contest between the London County Cricket Club and the Marylebone Cricket Club, Dr. Grace is the captain and the greatest drawing card of the London County Club.

Compiling his two hundredth century means that he has made more than 100 runs in match games and more than 1000 in all.

He is an amateur, and only plays cricket for the fun and sport he finds in it, and yet despite his age he plays nearly every week-day during the season. Besides being a great batsman, he is a first-class bowler, and in the game mentioned he had the satisfaction of putting out the recently knighted novelist, Dr. Conan Doyle. They do not raise cricket players to the knighthood, but the honor would have been conferred on Dr. Grace many years ago.

Relative to Grace's two hundredth century in connection with his birthday, The London Morning Leader has this to say:

"Dr. W. G. Grace is 54 years old to-day, and we wish him many happy returns. Not long ago a well known writer gravely suggested the probability of the champion qualifying by residence to play for Kent County Club. The wish was no doubt father to the thought—especially among those who had the good fortune to see him make 257 runs at Gravesend in the year 1895, but the hero of two hundred centuries appears to have taken a final farewell of the county championship, and to-day he appeals to us as a batsman of Empire."

The sporting world has been as potent as that of the retiring Premier in the domain of politics.

"Dr. Grace, who is the perfect embodiment of John Bull, has been known to the public over forty years as a cricketer, and a gentleman, and in grateful recollection of his matchless services to the game, we are proud to accept him as such."

It was in the year 1850 that W. G. severed his connection with Gloucester cricket, and came up to found that London County Club at the Crystal Palace.

There can be little doubt that the English champion has done much to foster the game in the metropolis, especially among second-class cricketers, who at once flocked to his standard, but for the sake of the old memories at Downend and the many trophies he had won in the western county, it seemed rather regrettable that he should have left the home of the Graces and identified himself with a new body.

For more sentimental reasons we would have preferred the name of Grace to have been a synonym for Gloucester cricket to the end of the chapter, but cricket is not run on sentimental lines, and the country gentleman of the nineteenth century is the bias of the new century.

"The absurdity of comparing modern batsmen with the champion is more apparent when one reflects that he was born in 1848, and that he will be 54 years old next Friday. Hanitschki dazzled us yesterday with a magnificent innings at Hastings, but the Indian is still a young man, and it is doubtful if he will ever be found scoring over 300 runs, as Grace did in a single innings at the age of 48. The quality in Grace that compels the admiration of the whole sporting world, is the marvelous consistency which he has shown for nearly half a century against all sorts of bowlers and upon every condition of wicket."

"In the days of his boyhood, when the famous brothers played in the quaint old garden at Downend, W. G. was always a prominent figure, and he had reached the discreet age of 9 when he was called on to assist West Gloucestershire. At 15 he scored 170 and 56 not out against the Gentlemen of Sussex at Brighton; at 18 he made 224 not out for England against Surrey at the Oval; and if Grace had never reached the majorities he would have glorified the traditions of the game. For five years in succession he scored a thousand runs and took a hundred wickets in first-class cricket; he has topped the double century thirteen times; he has taken all ten wickets for the M. C. C., and scored for the same club in the year 1876 the enormous total of 344."

"Coming down to more recent times, he started the cricket world by taking five wickets for 29 runs against the Australians at Lord's for the M. C. C. in May last. Last year he topped the hundred on two occasions—against Cambridge University and the M. C. C.—and both scores were made at the Palace, where the doctor has now been playing for three years on behalf of the London County team."

The baggage-smasher's wisdom. The other day an express wagon filled with trunks rattled up Broadway, and just opposite the postoffice a big Saratoga slid off and came crashing down on the car tracks. Several people ran out from the sidewalk to rescue it, but the trunk proved to be empty, and there was little damage done. "Now, if that had been full," said one old gentleman to the expressman, "you'd have had a fine old time with it." "Huh," replied the baggage charioter scornfully, "full trunks don't fall off by themselves. You got to fling them off!"

The food of the woodcock consists of worms, leeches and grubs, which the bird seeks by probing with its bill the earth of such swamps as contain them. There are miles and miles of wet swamp lands among our hills where the soil, composed of peat and decayed leaf mold, is too cold and sour to hold worms. Into such swamps the woodcock never goes. The best woodcock ground is along the banks of woodland brooks where it is in and out through alder swamps, where the rich black mold is soft and full of worms and where the skunk cabbage and helioleone grow thick and broad leaved. Such places are the woodcock's dining rooms, and in them he leaves his sign manual, the oblong, almost triangular holes which dot each and every square foot of earth where a worm might possibly lurk.

"Huh," replied the baggage charioter scornfully, "full trunks don't fall off by themselves. You got to fling them off!"

The baggage-smasher's wisdom. The other day an express wagon filled with trunks rattled up Broadway, and just opposite the postoffice a big Saratoga slid off and came crashing down on the car tracks. ## TWENTY-FIVE LONG YEARS

Victoria Ave Methodist Church Has Been the Home of Good Congregation.

Largely Attended and Successful Anniversary Occasion—Splendid Addresses.

For the last quarter of a century have the people of the Victoria avenue Methodist church congregation worshipped in the present edifice.

The twenty-fifth anniversary was observed yesterday and is being celebrated this evening. In that time many changes have come to pass, in that time, ministers have come and gone, in that time many of its worshippers and founders have passed into the Better Land and their progeny have sprung up to take their places.

In the last year the church has been remodelled and greatly improved. The Victoria avenue Methodist church has always been prosperous, but never more so than at the present time—due to a great extent to the zealous and untiring work of the able pastor, Rev. T. T. George. Mr. George has not been many years in Chatham, but in that time has been promised promotion and had been taken away from fishing with the promise that they would become fishers of men. They now needed food and had gone out to fish and had been fishing all night without success. During that time they had likely become almost discouraged and all but given it up, but had stuck to it, and now morning was come and Jesus stood on the shore and told them to cast the net on the right side, with what result? The net was full to overflowing. He did not tell them to get a new device to catch the fish, that the fish were onto the ways of the net, he did not even tell them to get a new net, but just use the old one. Some preachers and people say that new devices must be instituted for bringing souls to Christ, but it is not so, and the old way of heart to heart prayer is the best.

There is no one but can do some good. I have known local preachers who they were only away some place, but if we are going to do good it must be in our own circles. Some people always go to church, sometimes when they are sick, sometimes when they are better. Some say they will go to church if they stay at home; some say that they can be better at church. That is purely a personal business, business way of looking at it. When you go to church, go with the idea of doing others good besides yourself, help in the sermon and when you go home don't say, when asked how the sermon was, Oh, it was pretty good for him, but say We preached a good sermon. Concluding, Mr. Russell said there was always help for those who trusted in God.

THE DAVIN MEMORIAL

Quebec Mercury.
We are glad to learn from that old Quebecer, for many years a resident of Ottawa, Mr. Henry J. Morgan, that he has raised enough money by subscriptions to begin work on the monument which the friends of the late Nicholas Flood Davin, member of parliament, journalist, poet and historian, propose to erect to his memory in the Capital City of Canada. The site for the memorial has already been selected in Beechwood cemetery, which is both historic and picturesque. We have not seen the design of the shaft, but that it will be appropriate may at once be conceded. Mr. Davin was a merry-hearted man, rich in wit and humor, an orator of the type which recalled Caran, a clever writer of verse, a good classical scholar, and a maker of sparkling epigrams, which came readily from his lips. He took life as he found it, and though he had his troubles, he never let them bother him. He was a kindly spirit, his perfect gentleness and his readiness at repartee, gave him a foothold in every society. We are glad that a remembrance of so good and estimable a gentleman is to find expression in enduring bronze or marble.

Inexpensive Garment.

"Yes," said the soprano in the choir loft, "religion is absolutely free and without price."

"And yet," grumbled the basso profundo, "it is considered quite the thing to make a cloak of that cheap material."

Too Much.

Clara—Didn't you and Charlie Castleton too fresh?
Maud—I should say so. I didn't mind his kissing me, but I thought it was too much when he asked me to be his wife.

As Soon as Possible.

Diner—Waiter, bring me a napkin.
Waiter—In a moment, sir; give you the first one that is vacant.

Sure Test.

FEEDING AN ARMY CORPS.

The Enormous Amount of Provisions Required to Feed a Force Like That in South Africa.

The most serious problem with which a general in the field can be faced is that of keeping up the necessary food supply for the troops under his command. An army, indeed, marches on its stomach. At a pinch it can make shift to do without tents or transport, while, as is well known, successful operations have at times been carried out in a hostile area when not a single cartridge had been expended for weeks on end. Yet, though bullets may be dispensed with, this is certainly not the case with regard to bread, or its equivalent. This, at any rate, has always been the opinion of the great military leaders—Napoleon, for example, being reported on one occasion to have had a soldier shot for throwing away a bag of biscuit in order to make room for some ammunition. The scale on which the commissariat arrangements for a protracted campaign are conducted—such as that now happily concluded in South Africa—is an exceedingly large one. A fact, the consequences materially to this is that not only have rations and fodder to be issued daily to every man and horse on duty, but also that a considerable reserve supply has to be maintained at all times of operations. In the recent Boer war, for example, the amount of food stored was as far as possible that equalling a four months' consumption. When it is remembered that the number of troops being engaged, it was well over 200,000 at a time during the greater portion of the war, it will readily be seen that such a supply necessarily represented a very large stock indeed. To go into actual figures, it may be of interest to learn that at the head of the various items composing it was 24,000,000 pounds of biscuit. This enormous total was closely approached by the "bully beef" one, as for every pound of the former commodity there was at least a pound of the latter. To render it more palatable than it would be in itself, the commissariat department was required to keep in store 1,600,000 pounds of compressed vegetables and 800,000 pounds of salt. As appropriate accompaniments to the beef and biscuit, coffee and tea to the extent of 800,000 pounds and 400,000 respectively were also included in the reserve supply. In addition to such absolute necessities as biscuits, beef, and vegetables, the four months' food supply for the average army corps in the field includes many items that may almost be described as luxuries. For example, that for the British troops in South Africa, contained 2,900,000 tins of jam (each holding 1 pound) and 720,000 tins of condensed milk. Jam, it is worth pointing out, was introduced as an article of diet for soldiers on active service during the Egyptian campaign of 1884. As it was found to have excellent results (chiefly on account of its antiseptic properties), and also to be extremely appreciated by the men, it has remained a "field-ration" ever since. It is generally eaten with biscuit, as bread is but rarely obtainable in the actual theatre of war. "Drinkables" occupy almost as large a place as do "eatables" in the reserve food supply of an army corps when on active service. After 800,000 pounds of coffee and 400,000 pounds of tea already referred to, the principal totals maintained in South Africa during the progress of the recent hostilities, were 40,000 gallons of rum, 64,000 bottles of port, and 24,000 bottles of whiskey. There was also a very large quantity of lime-juice, kept in the reserve for the benefit of the sick and wounded.

Among the "miscellaneous stores" which the commander of the army corps took to his commissariat department to furnish when called upon, are 160 tons of alum for purifying doubtful water, 40 tons of chloride of lime, 12,000 pounds of carbolic acid, and 20,000 gallons of kerosene. The food supply for the horses and mules is also on a generous scale, thousands of tons of hay, oats and bran being always kept at hand in readiness for instant despatch to the front.

Of course, it must be understood that these huge totals are subjected to an almost continuous drain, while hostilities are in progress, consequently in a few weeks after the outbreak of war the reserve stock has necessarily assumed much smaller proportions than was the case at the commencement. In the same way, the end of the campaign is almost bound to find itself, on the declaration of peace, saddled with an immense accumulation of perishable stores for which there is no further use. The general procedure in these instances is to sell by public auction such surplus stock for what it will fetch. As a rule, this is remarkably little, and certainly not more than a tithe of its original cost.

In an article on the supply of rations to troops engaged on active service, Lord Wolsey has laid it down for the guidance of officers that "it may be accepted as a fact that the better the men are fed the more they will be able to get out of them, the better will be their health and strength, the more contented they will be, and the better will be their discipline." Judging from the liberal scale on which rations are issued in time of war, the soundness of these views seems to be accepted without demur by the authorities. The actual quantities which the soldier receives daily are, under ordinary circumstances, when the commissariat wagons are in touch with the column, as follows:—Bread, 1½ pounds; meat, 1 pound; coffee, 1½ ounces; tea, 1-6 ounces; and sugar, 2 ounces. Jam, cheese, pickles, and compressed vegetables are also included in the ration allowance as frequently as possible.—Horace Wyndham.
