COUNTY VISITORS

On Thursday last the members of he counties council came by special rain to Athens to visit the House of Industry. They were escorted through every department of that institution by Manager Steacy and expressed them. Manager Steacy and expressed themselves as delighted with the order and cleanliness everywhere apparent.

On invitation of Co. Councillor M.

On invitation of Co. Councillor M.
B. Holmes, reeve of Athens, the party came on to this station, where they were met by Mr Joseph Thompson, chairman, and Messrs Beach and Donnelley, trustees of the Model School, and Messrs W. G. Parish and H. H. Arnold of the High School. They first visited the Model School and assembled in the room jevoted to the training of teachers, where they were introduced by Mr Holmes and warmly welcomed by Principal Burchell. LESSON IX.-DEC. 1, 1907.

The Death of Samson.-Judg. 16: 21-31. Commentary.-I. The downfall of Samson (vs. 21-25.) 21. Took him-At once, while he was with Delilah. Put out eyes—The Hebrew word means "to eyes out by very violent means. This they did as soon as they had secured him, and thus rendered his case apparently helpless and hopeless.—Terry. To disable a rival, not to mention an en-emy, by boring out his eyes, has ever disable a rival, not to mention an enemy, by boring out his eyes, has ever been a common expedient in the East. Even to-day it is not unknown.—Hall. To Gaza—The principal city of the Philistines. "How changed from that Samson who so recently departed in scoffing triumph from that city with its gates upon his shoulder." Fetters of brass—Instead of using ropes they used "brass," or as we would say, "iron." The "dual" number is used, indicating that there were two fetters, "probably one for the hands and the other for the feet." (Lias.) Compare II. Kings 25; 7. Did grind—"He was reduced to the basely low condition of a public slave, the most miserable o.' all the grades of slavery. To keep him alive in such a slavery, and with his eves out. was worse to him To keep him alive in such a slavery, and with his eyes out, was worse to him than death, and a magnifying of their triumph." "Samson, the fool of women all his life, set, in his blindness, to do a women shared, which is turning the Food woman slave's work in turning the handmill as he sat on the floor, was the very superlative of humiliation."—Geikie, 22. Hair ... began to grow—As his hair Hair ... began to grow—As his hair grew his strength returned. "We must not suppose that Samson's great strength lay in his hair, and yet beneath that hair was the secret of his power. Not the hair, but the Nazarite consecra-tion which it represented, was his glory before God."—Terry. "From the return of his strength with the growth of his hair, we can only understand that he repented, and renewed voluntarily the repented, and renewed voluntarily the yows of devotement which had been imposed in him before his birth, and which he had so miserably broken."—Kitto. 23. Dagon—A fish-god. Dag signifies a fish. "The figures representing him vary, some having the human form of fruitfulness.—Watson. Our god hath delivered — They considered Dagon su-perior to Jehovah, inasmuch as they had ained a victory over Samson. 24. Saw him—Saw Samson in his humiliation and shame. Praised their god —Samson could now see how he had dishonored God. It was no longer a test of strength between Samson and the Philistines, but between Dagon and Je-

25. Call for Samson-He is brought in like a chained bear to be made the object of ridicule, to be reviled, buffeted and jeered at, as well as to dance to the sound of music (I. Sam. 18; 7; I Chron. 13: 8: 15: 29.) -Hom. Com. Between -In full view of the people. He was placed there to receive their

II. Samson slays many Philistines and dies with them (vs. 26-31). 26. The lad humiliating for Samson now to find it necessary to be led by the hand by a lad! House standeth—The two by a lad! House standeth—ine car-pillars must have been the principal ones upon which the house rested. "Gaza is largely built on hills, which, though comparatively low, have declivities exceedingly steep. The temple was erected over one of these, beyond a doubt, for such was and is the custom of the East; and in such a position, if the central columns were taken out, the whole edi-fice would be precipitated down the hill ruinous confusion. There is such a steep declivity on the northeast corner of the present city, near the old dilapidated castle."—Thompson. Iean upon them—As though he desired to rest. 27. house was full-It appears that many distinguished persons were in the building, while the common people were on the roof, which was flat.

28. Called unto the Lord—The prayer would extend over more than a single sentence as spoken by him, but in the Scripture record everything is extremely abbreviated so that all we have here is the substance of what he prayed put in single sentence; and it contains much It implies: 1. He has faith in the God of Israel to the last. Though Dagon seems to triumph, and though Jehovah seems to have left him uncared for, the sport of cruel enemies, still his faith is un-shaken in the God of Israel. 2. He lays claim to God as his own God. 3. He still has hope in God's mercy. He does not give way to desair. Though he has grieveusly sinned he yet hopes to be remeinbered by his God, for His thereies are great. 4. He prays for the accomplish ment of his life's object—the destruction of God's enemies. They had deprived him of sight, and so rendered him unfit to accomplish that object .- J. P. Millar. Samson's words are not a mere vindic tive imprecation on those who had per-sonally injured him. If he had had no higher or worthier motive than this, the Lord would not have accepted his prayer, and answered it as He did. With all his weakness and sins, Samson was nevertheless, God's appointed champion of His chosen people against their persecutors and oppressors. And he makes his appeal to God in his representative character, that He would vindicate His own honor against the worshippers of Dagon, His down-trodden Israel against the triumphant Philistings, His own ap ointed instrument against those who had done him a most cruel wrong."— Green, My two eyes—"For one of my two eyes."—R. V., margin. "Samson may have felt that the utmost venge-ance could not requite him for the loss of both his eyes."—Terry.

30. Let me die—"I am willing to die, if only I can accomplish this victory.
It is not a wish for death in itself considered, though he had little to live for, but the blinded man perceives that the present moment holds out an occasion for victory, and avails himself of it, notwithstanding that it must cost him his own life. He knows that if his deed be successful, he cannot escape." Dead were more—In his life, so far as we know, he slew thirty men of ishkelon ture of his (chap. 14, 19), one thousand at Lehi pediments.

(15.15), and a large number mentioned in chapter 15.8. There may have been more than this, but the total number did not reach the number he slew at Gaza, which was probably five or six thousand. 31. His brethren, etc.—The Danites and his near relatives took his body, evidently without opposition. Judged Israel—His office of judge was probably confined to the southwestern part of Canaan, to Dan and the neighboring tribes.—Johnson.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS. PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS,

Sampson grinding, Poor Samson. Born, in accordance with God's promise, for a purpose; reared in the fear of God and kept pure as a Nazarite; for nineteen years a successful judge of Israel; a champion of God's cause; filled with the consciousness of God's presence; trusted and honored by his people; yet now we see him blind, his hands in fetters, yoked like a beast of burden, to the sween of a corn mill But his not Paul persecuted with stripes and imprisonment and final execution. For him was laid up henceforth a crown of rejoicing. Pity Samson from whom the Lord has departed. Pity the man above all others from whose heart has departed the glow and fire of God's love. Pity the church, it matters not how perfect in organization or how prosperous in numbers, if from its shame the glory, the holy joy, has departed and its work has become "tread mill" hoor. O Lord, "Take not thy Holy Spirit from us."

The sacrifice to Dagon. The Philistine

The sacrifice to Dagon. The Philistine nobles made a sad mistake when they met to praise Dagon for their seemi prosperity. It cost them their lives. Prosperity not meted out by God's hand or attended by his blessing is a snare. It offers no security and brings no lasting good.

Making sport. It is insafe to make sport of God's people or show disrespect for divine things. A wicked man of Seattle, Wash., visited a revival service and for sport mocked at the testimonies him vary, some having the human form down to the waist, with that of a fish below the waist, others having a human head, arms and legs, growing, as it were, out of a fish's body, and so arranged that the fish's head forms a kind of cloak, hanging down behind."—Cook. To a race like the Philistines, living on the sea-coast, the fish was a natural emblem of fruitfulness.—Watson. Our god hath delivered — They considered Dagon superior to Jehovah, inasmuch as they had in vice. Swift-winged vengeance may not always overtake such insolenceg, but retribution will surely follow.

Samson's prayer. Can a man from whose heart the grace and presence of God have been banished be restored? While Samson was grinding he was preparing his heart for the return of God's Spirit. Affliction brought to him, as to others, repentance, and a burning desire to vindicate God's cause possessed his soul anew. Meanwhile his hair began to grow and to mark him as one upon whom rested the sacred vows of God. At the crucial hour the old-time divine inspiration seized upon his humbled but renewed heart, and he uttered the prayer of faith whose answer dethroned Dagon and exalted the name of God and his people and proved Samson now God's true servant. Samson's death. May one who has backslidden be restored to his old-time usefulness? When Samson's locks were usefulness? shorn the privilege of his judgeship passed from him forever. Yet God gave him the opportunity to do more to strengthen Israel by his death than he had accomplished in all his former life. It is to God's glory that he often restores one who has backslidden from him to useful ness, though often the usefulness lies in Samson's strength. As Samson prayed, that divine strength with which he had been familiar, thrilled him anew. Without it he was a poor, blind slave. With it he was a mighty giant who could pull out the main posts from the foundation of the temple on the roof of which sat three thousand people. With-out that inward strength which God bestows Moody was a clerk in a Chicago store like other clerks. With it he was a mighty moral power in all the Chris-tian world. Without it you and I are weak like other men, ready to yield and fall under temptation. With it we may meet the grand divine purpose in our lives, glorify God in death and secure a victor's crown for eternity. Samson a type of Christ. "The whole history is full of the shadow of Christ. The very name 'judge' is in the original 'saviour.' Samson is supposed to have been a type of Christ in such respects as the following: The birth of both was miraculous; both acted the part of savicurs; both were consecrated to their work by the divine Spirit; their work was done through the influence of that Spirit; both did their work alone, without ar army or arms; each in death slew more than in life; each was received with indifference by his own people; each was betrayed by his own people into the hands of enemies; each was faithful to the interests of his own people; both were successful in every combat they had with their enemies; both endured much mockery from the world, while ful-filling their commission 'teceived from heaven; each proved himself able to destroy the gates of the enemy; each was faithful to his God amid surrounding amid surrounding Clark W. Shay. treason."

$100,000 FOR AIRSHIPS.

Supplementary Credit to be Asked for by German Government.

Berlin, Nov. 25 .- It was announced to-day that the Imperial Government will ask for a supplementary credit of $100,000 for the construction of a new airship which Count Von Zep-pelin has built in the greatest haste in order to have it ready to begin experimenting in the first favorable weather next summer. This amount is in addition to the $400,000 collected in the budget of the Interior Department.

Payment of the latter sum will depend upon results attained with the new airship. It is intended to, in part, remunerate Van Zeppelin for the expenditure of his private for time on airship ex-

The Question of Finances Overshadowed by Another of Greater Importance

"Yourself and your wife and your check-book should be a committee on finance that meets monthly with closed doors," is good advice in the interests of domestic harmony and success. other frontier points catch from half a dezen to a score of these newcomers. Very few of them have a cent, and hardly one knows where he is going or what he is going to do.

It is recognized that hundreds of them will spend the winter as vagrants in Canadian county jails, and their presence in the country is a grave menace to the peace and security of rural districts and small villages where police control is not strict. One day this week one detective caught six of these men between noon caught six of these men between noon and dusk. All who cannot show that they have means of self-support are or-dered back to the States, but the United States immigration inspectors are so vig-ilant that only those who are American citizens and cannot be denied admission to the country are permitted to re-en

Of each of the scores of English, Irish, Scotch and Europeans who are included in this homeless host four dollars head tax is demanded. Of course, being penniless they cannot pay and are forced to remain in Canada. Canada has no immigrations officers on this frontier and so is made an easy dumping ground for all the thriftless Europeans which the United States wishes to be rid of. Sault Ste. A. C. Duncan, Dominion Inspector of Fisheries. It is expected that wholesale prosecutions will be instituted by the Government. Many thousands of dollars are involved in the seizures.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 25.— The statement made by prisoners in the police cells at London that Canada is to be invaded by an army of unemployed from the United States is proven true by conditions on this fromtian at the capture of a tug, a sailboat and a gasoline tions of the law consisted in catching whitefish and trout out of season an having them in their possession.

One of the tugs, belonging to Purvis Bros., was seized, as well as a large number of pound nets and two gasoline launches, belonging to Gauthier, of French River. James Noble, Dominion Fish Con missioner, it is alleged, was found to have freshly caught whitefish and trout in his possession. Noble claimed the fish were caught in the open season and had been kept over, but the offic-ers claim they were fresh. Even had and had been kept over, but the officers claim they were fresh. Even had they been caught in the manner described, the offence is none the less flagrant in the eyes of the law, which distinctly states that none of the fish mentioned shall be in the possession of any party after the closing of the season on Nov. 1. London, Nov. 25.—The Druce case, in which the presecution intends to prove that the fifth Duke of Portiand and Druce were one and the same man, was resumed to-day. Miss Mary Robinson, who was under cross-examination, said that when she first met Druce; whom she afterwards knew as the Duke of Portland in 1862, he did not have a bulbous nose, but it had two warts on it. She was severely questioned on this point, as Robert C. Caldwell of New York testified that the Duke of Portland at that time was being treated for bulous nose. Miss Robinson said she met Charles Dickeas in Boston and was engaged by him to return to England and act as outside amanuensis for T. C. Druce, for whom she received letters which were delivered to him at Welbeck Abbey. The witness added that Mr. Dickens told her that Druce was the Duke of Port-land, and she said Druce himself after-wards confirmed the statement.

by Bomb They Were Making-Naval Officers Wounded-Popular ment Growing.

London, Nov. 25. Details received here of the recent bomb explosion at Lisbon, by which two persons were killed and a third severely injured, show that the Portuguese authorities did everything to minimize the importance of the affair. The censorship rerbade the transmission of despatches giving the names of the men killed, who, it appears, were Camara Pestana and Gonsalvo Lopes, two doctors of high standing at Lisbon, while the injured man was a naval officer. The three were engaged in the manufacture of bombs, which, it is surmised, were to have been used on the occasion of a projected demonstration against the throne and dictatorship. An examination of the building where the explosion occurred led to the discovery of a great quantity of completed bombs stored in the cellars. Despatches sent to Madrid which to Madrid which escaped the censorship state that prominent Nationalists of Lisbon have been threatened with deporta tion to Africa if they attempt to take part in any demonstration of public feeling. Seven Hundred Bombs.

Lisbon, Nov. 21.—The investigation of the explosion of an infernal machine here on Nov. 18, when two Anarchists who were manufacturing bombs were killed and a third was arrested, has revaled the existence of a far-reaching plot against the dictatorship. Over 700 bombs have been seized and the police have made eighty arrests. The machine which exploded was intended for use in the San Carlos Theatre here.

Popular excitement is growing as a result of the revelations. The censor-ship is most strict, and several newspapers have been entirely suppressed.

CHAPTER XXI.

"We understand," said the local paper the ambassador to France."

Such was the fact, and after an affectionate parting with "sweet Maud," for whom Mrs. Hunter possessed an allconsuming love, the new ambassador and his wife set sail for Europe. Several years pased before the child and the lady again met. Indeed, the child and the lady never met again, for in the years of absence, the child became the woman. Had either at the moment of their parting suspected the length of time that should separate them, scarcely could they have borne to say "good-bye." But hope buoyed them up at their leavetaking; and hope attended them, proming fairly through all the years of absence, until seven years glided away, and brought near the period when they should meet again.

She tore it open and devoured its contents with a countenance that grew brighter and brighter as she read. She finished it with an exclamation of iov:

After the death of Ellen, Sylvia kept the cottage. The lovely child had bloomed into a lovely woman, a maiden whose supernal beauty must have immortalized her in the old heroic times, or defied her her in the old heroic times, or defied her in the ancient Olympic ages. It is seldom in these matter-of-fact days that a maiden, however beautiful, wins a nomme-de-fantaisie for beauty; yet Sylvia did gain such a one. The poetic taste of Mr. Bill Ipsy baptized her "The Star of Silver Creek," and as such, through mountain and valley, the peerless maiden was known. Falconer considered her as his own dear sister, he said. ered her as his own dear sister, he said But surely never was a sister leved with such a fierce, jealous, vigilant affection. Even at church, if a youth stole a glance of admiration at the maiden, it threw Falconer into passion; and at the village, if the handsome clerks were unusually polite to her, it was sufficient to destroy her brother's epace for a week. Ther life at the cottage was rather a singular one; some changes had also taken place in that little family besides the death of its gentle mistress and the growing up of the children.

But as the moth-er had done; so did the son; he trusted entirely to the simple, ignorant negroes while he shut himself up in a room he called his studio, and busied with clay models and plaster casts, at all times and seasons, except when there was an election pending, and then down went the chisel and hammer, copy and model, and the artist would become the orator, and stump the whole district, making fifty flaming speeches in half as many days. Poor as he was, poverty had not taught Falconer the value of time and money; he threw both reck-lessly away in the direction of his "gen-

With a sound between a sigh and a grunt, Falconer tossed his hat from him and strode up and down the floor in great excitement. She watched in perplexity his most unreasonable agitation, and after a little while inquired in a gentle, sad tone:

"Falconer, are you not pleased because Mr. and Mrs. Hunter are coming home? he exclaimed, pausing his hasty walk. "No! you "Pleased!" abruptly in his hasty walk. "No! you know I am not pleased! You know I hate, detest, abhor the very name of that man, and you ask me if I am not pleas-

He started and flung himself out of the house, banging the door behind him with a force that shook the rafters. And what became of him for the next two or three hours no one knew but his own evil demon.

Sylvia was knitting when Falconer came back. "Yes. Falconer."

"Selfish, heartless, designing woman!
She has some evil purpose in that!"

"Falconer!" exclaimed Sylvia, and choking before she could utter another word, she burst into tears.

"Forgive me, Sylvia! forgive me! I am mad when I get upon the subject of the Hunters and miserable when I think of losing you! I dread—I know not what—from their arrival—from their influence over you! I know how it will be; they will interfere between us; they will tell you that I am a mad fellow, a ringleader of mobs, a radical, moonringleader of mobs, a radical, moon-struck maniac, doomed to get his fiery brains blown out, if he comes to no worse fate! She gave a sudden bound, clasped his hands tightly, and then grew still.

He continued, speaking rapidly:
"There! there! that was my shame!

That made me your oppressor, Sylvia, for I loved you madly! madly! and with that shameful secret kept from you! Yes, my father was hanged! Every one in the county knew it but you! That was the reason why I debarred you from all young society, lest you should learn it from them! I feared to tell you, lest I should lose you, for I loved you so madly, so selfishly, that it made me a coward and a hypocrite! I, who could lead a multitude which way I willed—I was a very slave or netty tyrant in your presence! slave or petty tyrant in your presence! Thank God. I have been able to tell it at last! And now, Sylvia, while my good angel is strong within me, I release you from your promise! You are free, Sylvia." And he began to rise from his knees.

But she clasped his hands and detained him, gazing with her heavenly eyes upon his troubled face. And her words fell like heavenly blessing on his soul. "I do not now even ask you whether rour father was innocent or guilty. But tell you that, to-morrow, if you please,

I will go to church with you and become "Sylvia! Sylvia! are you crazy?" ex-claimed Falconer, starting up, and, in a tone of voice indescribable from its blending of doubt with unutterable joy.

"She did not wish to exact a promise. She said she hoped I would not marry until she got home. I offered to bind myself by a promise not to do so; but, oh! mark the lady's goodness! she would not let me! She said she felt that in any case where her known wishes were not strong enough to restrain me, I ought not to be restrained at all!"
"Oh, my dear—my dear Sylvia! Can possible that to-morrow-to-r

On a fine evening in December, 18—, the pier at Baltimore was thronged with a multitude of people, all waiting in an-xious expectation for the appearance of the Winged Arrow steamboat from Norfolk.

The cause of this assembly was a newspaper report that Daniel Hunter, who had arrived from Europe at Norfolk by the United States frigate Liberty, would reach the city that afternoon. The sun had already set, but the full moon poured a flood of splendid radiance on the water, making it shine like a sea of flowing silver.

on the water, making it shine like a sea of flowing silver.

The Winged Arrow was several houra due, and expectancy had reached its most anxious height, when a gentleman with a pocket telescope looking far down the river, discerned the coming And soon after, the handsome private carriage sent by the proprietor of the Eagle House, made its way through the throng of hackney coaches that crowded the wharf, and drew up as near as possible to the landing place.

Swiftly, yet not swiftly enough for the impatience of the multitude, passed the half-hour that brought the steemboat near enough for the crowd of passengers to be seen upon its burdened deck. And there in the midst stood the desire of their eyes.

deck. And there in the midst stood the desire of their eyes.

Daniel Hunter, with his noble head un-covered, his fine countenance irradiated with the joy of coming home to friends, to native soil, and to fellow-citizens. There he stood with a presence so princely, so majestic, so inexpressibly sovereign and gracious, that all, even his bitterest enemies, must have been struck with admiration. A lady of imperial mien hung upon his arm, and another younger pair stood behind him, but no one noticed them. But as soon as the boat touched the quay, and Daniel Hunter stepped upon the wharf, a thousand heads were uncovered, a thou-

The basic and arms waved aloft, and a thousand voices shouted:

"Welcome! Welcome, Daniel Hunter!"

"Welcome, heart of oak!"

"Welcome to native land!" The shout was repeated, it was reiterated, until the very erated, until the very heavens rang back the joyous greeting!

The great statesman had long before been accustomed to such enthusiastic popular demonstrations. But never had the people's love thrilled him with so much heartfelt joy as now that it wel-comed him on his return home. His bo-som was full, was overflowing with emosom was full, was overflowing with emotion. He must address them. As the third shout died away he lifted his hand in silence, and in an instant all was still as death, waiting in reverent expectancy for his first words. And as he slowly turned his commanding glance over that multitude, and recognized here and there with unutterable emotion, some dear, old faithful friend, or zealous partisan, he propts. He had you have avoing that his spoke. He began by saying that his heart was at the flood, and must find its utterance as it could.

"Daniel Hunter and Democracy" rolled in thunder over the heads of the multitude, and quite overpowered all other cries, until, in a lull, a single voice shout-ed out in derision: "Daniel Hunter and diamond studs! Away with him! Those that wear rich clothing dwell in kings' houses!" And then the shouts arose "Away with the aristocrat!" Away with the courtier!' "Falcor O'Leary and Freemen's Rights forever!"
until from shouts and yells they took to cudgels and brickbats, and a general

BABY SMILES.

One mother happily expressed her opinion of Baby's Own Tablets when she said "There's a smile in every dose." In homes where the Tablete used there are no cross, fretful, sickly children. The Tablets make children well and keep them well. They cure indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, teething troubles and all the other minor ailments of childhood. They can be given with absolute safety to the new born child, for the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that the Tablets do not contain one particle of opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Isn't such a guarantee worth something to you, mother? The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 25

A Distinguished Painter's Bohemian Characteristics.

"Elihu Vedder." said a New York illustrator the other day, "is as Bohemian as ever. Fame has not spoiled him. I visited him last year, and his Bohemian ways were delightful. GROWING DWARF THEES

Regulres Much Time and Patience, Says a Japinese Horticulturalist. Exactly how these tiny trees are produced is known only to a score or so of individuals. But S. Eida, a Japanese fellow of the Royal Horticultural Society, was good enough to supply the writer with some interesting facts relating to the methods employed.

It would seem that the quality essential to the successful dwarf tree grower is patience, infinite patience, backed by a fund of calm resignation unknown to the western mind. Firey years is named as the shortest period in which a really good and saleable dwarf tree may be good and saleable dwarf tree may be grown, while a lifetime is not long enough to produce the highest examples of the art. The tree artist merely makes the beginning; his son, or even his son's son, reaps the reward of his labors.

Dwarf trees are produced from seeds, or in cases where this is not practical from carefully selected cuttings. When the young plant begins to grow it is tended with ceaseless care, and from the commencement of its career its natural commencement of its career its natural tendencies are subjugated to the will of its master. Each twig, each leaf, as it its master. Each twig, each leaf, as it makes its appearance, becomes the object of the closest scrutiny. Shall it be permitted to grow, and if so, in what direction? May it not be advisable to cut it away altogether and encourage growth elsewhere? These and a dozen similar questions occupy the mind of the Japanese artist, and upon their correct solution depends the ultimate value of the tree, for to be perfect the dwarf must possess a shape and balance equal to the best life-sized models.—Windsor Magazine.

THE SHEEP INDUSTRY.

Important Bulletin Issued by the Department of Agriculture.

The Ontario Department of Agriculcure has just issued a bulletin on the heep industry of the Province, the first publication of its kind by the department. It contains the result of an exhaustive inquiry into the industry and the reasons for its decrease in Ontario. These are given as lack of profit owing to low prices for mutton and wool, losses from disease and at lambing time. It is pointed out in respect to the first that prices are now such as to make the that prices are now such as to make the sheep industry a profitable one, pro-vided the other drawbacks can be offset. Suggestions with this in view are given, including proposed amendments to the sheep protection act. Among the tables in the bulletin is one showing that tables in the bulletin is one snowing that in the last year for which figures are obtainable, 1905, the aggregate of sheep in the Province was 1,324,153, and that since 1901 there had been a yearly average decrease of 109,411

The Winter Garden. A new European fad has introduced the winter garden, in which tea is served, and in some of the larger cities in this country, where one meets many foreign ers, the idea has already been adopted and seems to have met with great success. The winter garden is not unlike a summer garden. Instead of being an outdoor enclosure it is walled in with a summer garden. Instead of being an outdoor enclosure it is walled in with glass, and there are shrubs, potted plants and flowers to ornament it without giving it too much the air of a conservatory. The furniture suggests cosiness and warmth rather than coolness, and, if one likes, a fireplace may adorn one of the sides. In fact, the winter garden is a den well supplied with daylight and arranged with a strict garden effect when the shaded lights are turned on. These are cleverly concealed beneath flowers and vines. The tea table is an essential feature of the winter garden if it belongs to the mistress of the house. Her friends delight in running in for a cup of fragrant tea, and if the garden is large enough she gives semi-informal afficiently and the core of the ecrew conical (similar teacure of the kind ready wound on, but with a steeper pitch, so as to leave wid-

Many who have heard Gordon College spoken of continue to regard it as only a vague aspiration—a scheme that float-ed for a time on Gordon's name, but a vague aspiration—a scheme that Hoated for a time on Gordon's name, but which neither had nor was ever intended to take actual shape and become a living reality. But it has become a fact; one which is described by a writer in the Cornhill Magazine as the seed plot of the future prosperity of the Sudan. The building itself is an imposing mass of dark red brick flanked by square towers. It is entered by a broad staircase leading into a spacious hall.

There are primary classes, classes for training teachers, classes for training dovernment employees, classes for notive magistrates, classes which are to serve as a Sandhurst for native officers of Sudanese regiments. There are also workshops of engineering and of carpentering, electrical laboratories and a school of biological research which has done wonders for the health and sanitation of Khartum and which has confident hopes of conquering the scourges that

We pass through the cool and spaciox, corridors and view the busy classrooms and workshops; we see the students at work and at play, with all the orderly fashioned methods of an English college; we watch their pride in their institution and visit the well arranged dininghalls and dormitories and it becomes well night impossible to realize what was the regime on this very site not ten years ime on this very site not ten years

Standard Remedy In the 17th Century a wave of excitement swept over England and France when the medical profession iscovered such wouderful curative dements in the cod's liver.

In the 18th Century cod liver oil was imported and used extensively by physicians in this country, but it was found to be adulterated to a great ex. tent, and the useless heavy oil which enveloped the medicinal elements, a great hindrance to its medicinal value In 1855 a famous physician from the Hague went to Norway and after two years of experiment and research pro duced a light brown oil from the cods' livers which was said to be more valuable than the pale yellow oil, but the taste and odor was so repulsive that it prequently caused such nausea that it made it unpopular.

The most valuable discovery, how ever, was later made by two eminent French chemists who after years of research discovered an extractive and concentrating process, by which all of the medicinal healing and body building elements of the cod's liver are sep arated from the nseless and nanseating oil. These recovered medicinal elements combined with peptonate of iron make Vinol the most scientific and valuable cod liver preparation which the

VALUABLE MEDICAL PRESCRIPTION

Recommended by a Well-known Toronto Doctor, Whose Love for Humanity is Greater than His Prejudice Against Pro-prietary Medicines.

The following very valuable prescription, by an eminent and successful physician, will be appreciated by any who are suffering from la grippe, cold, cough, pneumonia, or any throat, live or stomach trouble, or run-down system, as it is a certain cure, and will save many a doctor's bill. It is almost a certain preventive as well:—"When you feel that you are taking cold or have chilly feeling or aching in any part of the body or head, or feel weak, tired, dizzy, unfit for work, pain in the head or back of the neck, do not neglect these dangerous symptoms, but send immediately to your druggist and get a bottle of Psychine (pronounced Si-keon), and prepare as follows:

"Psychine, 2 teaspoonfuls.
"Sherry, whisky or water, 2 teas spoonfuls.

'Choice of the latter can be made according to the judgment and preference of the patient.

'Mix thoroughly and take regularly before each meal and at bedtime.'

This prescription has been used in thousands of cases and has been so universally successful that a number of leading physicians regularly premise Psychine in their practice for any of the above troubles, or any rundown, a ing or constitutional difficulty. It is the most reliable and valuable home remedy. It tones up the entire system, giving a feeling of youthfulness and vigor, adding many years to the life of these who use it.

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bong growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without the last ingredient, I successfully traped many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now at last, it this loyally cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood. seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away sunder the action of this remedy and pass away sunder the action of this remedy and pass away sunder the action of this remedy and pass away sunder the action of this remedy and pass away sunder the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy and pass away under the action of this remedy are the action of this remedy are the action of this remedy and pass and the cause of this here.

When Bishes Walker, of the Episcopal, Church was travelling in Siberia in 1837 he noticed one Sunday morning that an extra har was attached to the train. A Greek Catholic serious held mass in the car an route. He learned then that, it was a special cur used as a place of worship.

The Bishop, when he returned to Minneapolis. Minn. is 1839, had constructed what was said to be the lirst car of its kind in America. In order to make the first capel car appear he much like a church as possible Bishop walker had a small cupols constructed on one end. But this feature was found to be impracticable. One day when the train was passing under a low bridge the cupola was knocked off.

The inhabitants of small villages where there are no places of worship are surprised sometimes when they learn that during the night a church and a preacher have come to town and that a revival meeting is to begin at ones.

town and that a revival meeting is to begin at ones.

After the chapel car goes to a town the first meeting usually is held for the benefit of the boys and girls who are sure to collect shortly after the arrival. The children are entertained with the graphophone and their they are told to go home and spread the news that a "meetia" house" has eome and that religious services are to begin to-night. Children make a good advertising medium and frequently there is a large audience at the first service.

The first Sunday that the chapel car is in a town a Sunday school is organized. The travelling missionary carries a full supply of cong books. Sunday echool literature and Bilales.

After a successful revival meeting has been held in the chapel car the preacher suggests that a permanent church should be built, and he takes the lead in formulating the plane. Very frequently the chapel car remains until the church building is completed which generally requires from one to six months.

The Rev. J. P. Jacobe, now secretary of the Western district of the Baptist Publication Society, went to Novinger, Mo., near Kirkville, with the "Messenger of Peace" several years ago. He held a protracted meeting for six weeks and preached every night during that time. At the end of the period he persuaded his converts to take up the work of huilding and maintaining a permanent church. The citizens held a mass meeting and elected a building committee.

That committee was composed of one Methodiat and three men who had never professed relixion. But these committeemen showed at once that they were in earnest by each giving $50 toward the building. Later one of the committee gave a lot and another the raw timber to make the lumber for the chruch. Seventeen men volunteered to go into the woods and cut the timber. Others with teams hauled it to the sawmill free of charge, where it was sawed without cost.

The chapic cars performed an important work also in going to towns where churches have been built but are not in a prosperous condition or have been discontinued completely. One of the cars was sidetracked one in a town where there was an abandoned church.

Thousands of railroad employees who never have an opportunity of attending a regular church have heard sermons in the chapel car. When the car is taken to a railroad division point it is placed on a side track near the shop doors, so as to be convenignt to the workmen. Short services are held at the noon hour and at midnight when the shiftst change,

"I had no difficulty in securing congregations of railroad men at the division points," the Rev. Mr. Jacobs said. "The men were encouraged to enter the car in their working clothes and sit by the windows and smoke while I talked. It was not necessary for them to deny themselves their noonday smoke in order to attend the services.

The provision with regard to tramps is most stringent. A person found roaming about and endangering the safety of others is liable to detention in the same establishment for three and up to six years. The course is clear and effective. The individuals are first watched by the police and then warned that they must get a fixed residence within a given time, and if they do not they are taken in charge. Some oxion is reserved to the pxisce as to whether they will send a lasy person to the workhouse or to his legal home, should they find out where it is; but the decision rests with the police, in this connection it is important to know that the police have certain judicial functions unknown to such officers in this country. It is quite possible, and even probable, that some will be found who are unable to settle because too poor, and in these circumstances they are to have a house found for them, the funds for this purpose being provided from money set apart for the purpose. The place in the first instance is considered by the police; but there is reserved the right of appeal to a higher court.—From the Poor Law Officers' Journal.

Mniard's Liniment Cures Distemper,

GREAT ARTIST'S KINDNESS.

Ellen Beach Yaw, the young prima donna, who is to visit Canada shortly, while crossing the Atlantic a few months ago, went forward one day to the ship's bow, that she might better observe the effect of the sun's rays upon the water. To do this it was necessary to pass a number of steerage passengers, coal heavers and servanta, mostly Italians, engaged in playing and singing for their own amusement. Upon the approach of the famous singer, these poor people, recognizing her, immediately ceased their music, and made room for her to pass, music, and made room for her is pass, standing in respectful silence as she did so. Observing this, she addressed them in their own language, the Italian, requesting them not to allow her to disturb their diversions, saying she was very fond of their music. On returning, al found of their music. On returning, are found them again engaged in playing and singing, in the original, a selection from an Italian opera. Without a mo-ment's hesitation she joined in the sing-ing, and immediately she was engaged in a heart to heart and hand to hand touch with these swarthy sons and daughters of Italy.

Nothing can describe their apparent joy at this sudden good fortune, and as the world-renowned artist finally withdrew, bowing her thanks and acknowledging her gratitude, these joyous creatures filled the air with heart repetitions of their favorite "bravos.

Riddle of Mars. There is a specially favorable chance of observing Mars at present, and science is again hoping to ascertain more of the mystery of the so-called "canals." Mr. Lowell, the American Mars enthusiast, has gone to Arizona, the very best place on the globe at present to observe Mars, which will be well up in the sky there. The atmosphere at this high elevation is very clear and still, and definition is enormously improved.

Telegraphing to the Daily Mail, Mr.
Lowell states that he has obtained photographs showing both the double canals and the cases in Mars.

Dash tracks

Dark streaks converging from the polar cap of the planet and joining the canals, appear on the photographs. These streaks, Mr. Lowell explains, are rivers of melting snow. This supports theory that the canals are dependent on water let loose from the polar cap for their origin and office.

The main question to be s The main question to be settled is whether the channels or canals, which the Italian astronomer Schiaparelli discovered thirty years ago, have the mathematical regularity which he and Mr. Lowell have ascribed to them. For some time Schiaparelli's canals were regarded with scepticism, but in 1905 one of Mr. Lowell's assistants, Mr. Lampland, obtained actual photographs of them which prove that they do undoubtedly exist.

The conditions this year are much more favorable for photography than they were in 1905, and better results should be obtained. If the canals prove to have the regularity of Schiaparelli's and Lowel's drawings, it will be difficult to resist the conclusion that they cult to resist the conclusion that they are the work of intelligent beings, and the overwhelming probability that life evists on Mars will be established.—

Past fresh green fields and farms,
And with what joy my heart explodes
As I bless the thank-you-marms!

strew the ways with butter and eggs When I hit a grocer's cart, and once in a while the grocer's legs and once in a while the grocer's legs And the grocer came apart. Fo smash bang into a load of hay, And scatter it left and right, With a Yeave-ho- ho, and Tara-di-da, Is a source of sheer delight.

No cares have I of the sort that chills
The man who is soon to "bust."
Whenever I note my unpaid bills,
I go out and raise the dust.

Phillips Brooks once presched a ser-mon from the taxt, "Who passing through the valley of weeping make it a well." He said that there were two through the valley of weeping make it a well." He said that there were two ways of treating sorrow. One may say, "This that I have to bear is hard, but the clouds will break and there will come better days. Compensation is in store for me. It may not be in this world, but some time it will all be made up to me." Or he may say, "I will do just what Scripture tells me to do. I will make of my valleys of weeping, well-springs of joy. I will turn sadness into occasions for rejoicing." The apostite says, "In everything give thamks." Assuredly we cannot be thankful for everything, but in every experience that comes to us we may find some reason for giving thanks. When Jeremy Taylor's house had been plundered, all his worldly possessions aquandared, his family turned out of doors, he congratulated himself that his enemies had left him "the sun and moon, a loving wife, many friends to pity and relieve, the Providence of God, all the promises of the Gospel, my religion, my hope of heaven, and my charity toward my enemies." One man on our train knew the reputation of the place, and when he laid his cravenette coat over the back his seat he ran a little chain around the arm of the seat and through one sleeve of the coat and fastened it with a padlock. Then he moved back to another seat to await results. In a little while a well dressed young man passed down the sisle rapidly and grabbed up-the coat as he went by. A Pembroke despatch: To-night at the Town Hall Crown Attornew Metcalf and Coroner Josephs opened an inquest into the death of one of the victims of the Moorlake tragedy on the C. P. R. a few days ago, by which seven lives were lost

Conductor Wright, of Ottawa, who has been through six wrecks, but escaped injury in every case, gave evidence re-lative to the running of his train, the "Soo" passenger, that had the right of way. He said that the rules had been rigidly observed by himself and the train crew, and said: "I had the right to run on schedule time, and was doing it were on regular time, had the right to go ahead, and inferior trains had the right to look out for us. Berry in fact seemed to feel that the insanity of the criminal murderer and of the hangman or "legalized murderer," for as such the ex-hangman regards an executioner, are of much, the same de

There have been at least two fatal collisions during the past two months through risks being taken by engineers in such cases, and the commissioners are of opinion that more stringent rules should be adopted.

It is likely that the railway companies will be ordered to require light engines to stop for specific orders at stations, in the same manner as regular trains are now required to do.

criminals and assisted at the execution of some 500. His experiences have made him a strong opponent of capital punishment and reduced him, to use his own words, to a mere bundle of nerves, though he is only 50 and a man of powerful build.

How a man comes to take up such a calling as that of public hangman is a natural question to ask. Berry seems to have drifted into it much as men drift into other and more common occupations.

His father was a rug and blanket maker in a comfortable position at Hectheaton. James Berry was the thirteenth of twenty-five children, and before he was out of his teens had tried his hand at several things. He then joined the Brad-stream of the streets. G. Moren, a Fur Trader, Had an Eventful Trip Down.

Edmonton, Nov. 25.—G. Moren, an independent trader from Lesser Slave Lake, has arrived in the city with a pack of furs. His trip down was an eventful one.

"I came down all alone," he said, "and made the whole journey in a wagon over the new Government road. I followed the north side of the river all the way, and the second day noticed signs of wolves, on making camp that night I heard them, and immediately built a great fire to keep them away. It was only a short while till heard their growls, and, from the restlessness of my horse, knew they were near at hand. The horse I had tied with a strong piece of rope, but it was not strong enough to hold the animal, for he snapped it as if it were a shoestring, and immediately I saw if I did not secure him I would be minus a horse, so I put a chain around his neck and chained him.
