CHAPTER LV.
A VILLAIN'S COURAGE.

"No, that is impossible," he said. "Believe me, Lucille, I heard it from undoubted lips. The count returns to Rome within a few days. And now, prepare, my own Lucille, for still further suspense, surprise—nay, indignation."

"Speak on," she said, hurriedly. "Can you guess why he returns so hastily to the city against which he has rebelled?"

"She shook her head thoughtfully. "It is—oh, I shame to utter the words, true they are!—to purchase safety and favor of the court."

She turned pale, but did not speak. "Be calm," murmured Reginald Dartmouth. "More, Lucille, remains to be told. He goes to regain his old position, to give his allegiance to his old enemies, and to heal the long-opened breach by wedding his niece, Lucille, Countess Vitzarelli, to the young Count of Naples!"

At this climax she started to her feet, her face dyed an unearthly crimson, her eyes flashing with fire.

"Hush!" he cried, catching her arm. "For Heaven's sake do not utter a word or all is lost! Lucille, be calm; be seated, I beg, I implore you!"

And he drew her to the couch, she submitting with the air of a person lost in a dream or trance.

A few minutes passed in death-like silence, the countess still cold and marble-like, the plotter chuckling in the inner-most recesses of his heart at the success of his scheme.

Then he said: "Lucille, you are calm enough now for me to show you the proofs—not that I would think you need them—but, well, see here."

And he held out a dispatch which had cost him three sleepless nights to forge.

She took it, but her eyes refused to follow the closely written lines.

With a gesture of impatience, she pressed it back on him.

"I—I can not read it—tell me."

"It is a dispatch from my secret agent, who keeps me informed of the slightest event; his dispatches are forwarded by secret messengers. This reached me last night. It contains but a few paragraphs, concise and formal, but proven to the uttermost. Listen: 'Count V. will start for Rome within a few days. A diplomatic arrangement has been entered into. The alliance will be strengthened by the union of Count V. with Lucille, Countess of V. State papers have been prepared, which I have seen.' Thus far the statement. The proofs—see, Lucille, are here. Here in my hand I hold a copy of the draft my agent speaks of. See!"

She waved her hand. "Enough!" she exclaimed, with tightly-drawn lips. "I see it all—oh, the abhorred villainy! Oh, Heaven! in whom can one trust? Santa Maria! A Vitzarelli play traitor! Who, then, can be true?"

"I—I, Lucille," he breathed, drawing her cold, stately form to him. "I can—I am true; trust in me! I would give my life to save you from this dishonor, for dishonor it is, base and terrible. Trust in me, Lucille, and I will turn the tables upon them all."

"Listen," he continued. "Last night the dispatch came upon me like a flash of Heaven's lightning. Lucille, it nearly drove me mad. But I crushed the sheets within me and set down to think a way out of the terrible danger."

There was but one way, and that was our immediate and secret marriage. I said to myself: the count will keep his intention, even of the journey, close until nearly the hour of his starting. He will then frame some plausible excuse to dismiss Lucille's suspicions, will probably tell her that Rome has fallen into our hands, and that he is going into it victorious. He may not go for a fortnight—he can not go for a week because there are matters connected with the society here in London which he can not neglect without danger of awakening its suspicions. I said he had planned all—be certain of that, and now it remains to frustrate his plans by more astute ones. I set myself the task, Lucille, and I accomplished it. It needs only your consent to foil this treachery and circumvent it. I have arranged everything, have left nothing unthought of—no emergency unprepared for. Our marriage must be consummated secretly, and almost at a moment's notice. The count must know—nay, suspect—nothing.

"Once married—once you are mine in deed as well as in name—we can laugh him to scorn and leave him to the punishment his treachery deserves. Then, Lucille, hand in hand, we will commence the search for which you are eager."

CHAPTER LVI.
A CHANGE OF PLANS.
Stand not upon the order of your going. But go at once.—SHAKESPEARE.

Captain Dartmouth's secretary was an observant young man, and happening to be in his room as his master passed through it after his return from Grosvenor Square, he saw, with a sharp glance through the dark spectacles, that the handsome, daring face wore a slight smile of triumphant satisfaction and pleasure.

"This set him wondering. 'Some fresh villainy,' he thought, 'or a step further in the old. Ahem! I must glean what I can.'

Accordingly he rose and followed the captain a few steps, coughing behind his hand as a hint that he wished for attention.

"Well, what is it, Stanfield?" asked Reginald Dartmouth, stopping short and facing him with the pleasant look upon his face still—"what is it? I wish to Heaven you would pluck up a little spirit and speak out instead of coughing like an asthmatical apple-woman! What is it?"

"I fear I disturb you, sir," said the secretary, apologetically. "But I wished to ask what reply you would like sent to the Duke's steward; he writes requesting to know your intentions as to the house for the autumn months."

"It was such a pertinent homethrust of a question that Reginald Dartmouth almost started, but a glance at the expressionless face before him reassured him, and he said:

"Ah, I promised to tell him! Well, I don't know, Stanfield. Suppose you say that he had better prepare for a month hence—then it will be ready."

These last words were spoken musingly and with a peculiar intonation that sharpened the hidden eyes wondrously.

"Ready for what?" he wondered. "Very good, sir. A month hence. One more question. There is an invitation from the duchess for this day fortnight."

"Refuse," said Reginald Dartmouth, curtly. "Say I shall be from town."

Then he turned on his heel and, humming his favorite opera-air, entered his own room, shutting the door after him and locking it.

The secretary likewise returned to his, but set the door ajar a little way. "Ready for a month hence," he mused, with his little white hand up at his brow. "What does that mean? Refuse the duchess, refuse the invitation for which he has been fishing. Will not be in town. This is a fresh move. Two days ago he had decided to remain in London for two months. Let me think—let me think. What can be his intentions? He is going away before a fortnight and intends returning to Dale for a month or so. Now, to discover why and wherefore."

While he thus mused he heard Reginald Dartmouth's door open, and, listening, caught the sound of his footsteps receding, and Reginald Dartmouth's door was relocked.

Waiting a few moments until he heard the wheels of the chair as it was drawn up to the table, the secretary, taking a paper in his hands, as if he wished to refer to some book for information concerning some matter in it, walked down to the library and, standing in the middle of the room, looked carefully round upon the closely-packed shelves.

It was a good-sized room, and well furnished with a capital selection of standard and popular works.

She remained silent, with her eyes fixed on the floor for a few moments. Then she raised them and very slowly, calmly said: "So be it, I trust you."

"Lucille," he breathed, with passionate rapture, "you consent to let me save you? My own, my queen, my noble Lucille!"

A shade of impatience crossed her brow, and she interrupted him, almost sternly: "Your plans?"

"Are these," he said, hastily resuming his old manner. "You must hold yourself in readiness to meet me at any moment I may appoint. A portmanteau must be kept packed and ready. Not by sign or word must you rouse the suspicions of the court. Remember that he will be unusually watchful, and keep a guard on every look—every gesture. I will postpone the ceremony until the latest moment that it will be safe to do so, and in all things, Lucille, I shall not forget that necessity, necessity alone, compels this course, and try to place my bliss in the background until your peril is passed. I shall keep a lookout, a keen watch, upon the count's movements, and immediately he announces his intention of starting for Rome will arrange for the marriage. You will hold yourself ready, Lucille?"

"I will," she said.

He rose, fearing to lose by staying one tithe of the advantage he had gained.

"I must tear myself away, my own, for much remains to be done. Farewell, for awhile."

She gave him her hand and allowed him to kiss her forehead in the same dream-like way; then, as if with a start, stopped him by a gesture, and said:

"The locked—has anything been done to recover it?"

"Yes," he murmured, his hand upon the door, for he heard the count's voice in the hall, and wished to get away without meeting him. "Yes, I have offered a reward, dear Lucille, but it has not been found. I say not been found, for had it been the largeness of the reward would have caused its restitution. Do not fear," he added, in a whisper; "it will be restored; then, with another low-breathed farewell, he was gone.

U.S. GIFT TO BRITISH PEOPLE.

LONDON, July 28.

Elihu Root, former United States Secretary of State, to-day formally presented to the British people St. Gauden's statue of Lincoln in Cannon Square as a gift from the United States and later the statue was unveiled. Premier Lloyd George abandoned pressing official business to deliver the speech of acceptance. The presentation was made in the presence of a distinguished audience in the Central Hall of Westminster with Viscount Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, presiding. The event was widely heralded in the British press as a further cementing of Anglo-American friendship.

"CANADA AHEAD OF HERSELF."

HALIFAX, N.S., July 28.

Nothing But the Truth—Without Fear or Favour.

CUBS REID TROPHY.
All eyes were attracted to the old reliable Reid trophy which was successfully won by the Wanderers at Mount Cashel yesterday, and they secured the absolute ownership of the Reid trophy.

This magnificent silver cup (which is considered the most handsome ever presented here), was handed to Mount Cashel in 1914 by Mr. H. D. Reid for annual competition of baseball the day of the Garden Party, and the conditions were that it was to be won three years, not necessarily in succession, before becoming the property of any one club.

For seven years it has been won by one club and another as follows:—
1914—WANDERERS;
1915—RED LIONS;
1916—WANDERERS;
1917—RED LIONS;
1918—CUBS;
1919—CUBS;
1920—CUBS.

Clandine's victory is all the more remarkable when it will be noted that he has won it three years in succession, and this mainly through the excellent results he produces from his old right fin.

The game was much enjoyed by the large concourse present, and resulted in the Cubs notching up 4 runs to their opponents' 1, which they scored in the last inning.

The Wanderers' infield work was poor and they seemed decidedly on edge, though Donnelly in the box did splendid work.

DeMers was right there with the big stick, and MacFarlane's hits were timely.

The one winners were—

Umpire Cheaman and Hartnett hadn't a hitch right through.
In the Junior exhibition the Mount Cashel lads made the St. Bon's bite the dust by 8 runs to 6. Both teams played good ball, but in the third the trolleys blew up and the Cashels scored 5 runs. MacFarlane for the victors pitched a very fast ball and was most effective even against such heavy sluggers as Kilin Carey and Rory O'Moore. The winners lined up as follows:—

Duggy French umpired to the kids' satisfaction. The prizes awarded were a catcher's mitt and bat.

The big double header in aid of the Church of England Orphanage will be played to-night. Sharp at 7 o'clock the Wanderers and Cubs will go over the top, followed immediately by the B.L.S. and Red Lions. Both clashes will be 5 innings each so that anyone attending is assured of snappy and interesting ball games.

Favoured with such a fine evening we feel sure all will be anxious to help the baseballers in making a very welcome addition to the C. of England Garden Party funds by attending in large numbers.

WARNING TO PROFITEERS.
TORONTO, July 28.
An attack on profiteers was made by President Gamber, of the State Fire Marshals' Association, in an address before the Fire Chiefs' Association here to-day. "During the last year incendiary fires have been very few," said Gamber, "and business has been too good for incendiary because of high price levels. I need hardly tell you there are hundreds and thousands of firms and individuals, who cannot stand a sharp break in prices, because their profits are built on inflation. They include many factories, which were equipped during the war or since, and they exist to-day only because of commodities of every sort being bought at unheard of prices. Many merchants are said to be overstocked also, and we know that warehouses are stocked to bursting with food and clothing. But information trickles out that speculators have overplayed their game, and thus will be the victims of their own greed, and will be obliged to disgorge at a loss. But will they? Fire insurance for the year past has been written on inflated valuations, and insurance companies are frankly disturbed. Let us prepare to meet the emergency. Every suspicious fire should be scrutinized more closely than ever before. Conservation must be encouraged and prison doors left open for those deserving them."

THE IRISH SITUATION.

BELFAST, July 28.
Unionist workers at a meeting to-day at Bainsbridge, County Down, decided as the result of an appeal from the local clergy, to modify the drastic attitude they previously had taken regarding Catholic workers. Bainsbridge was the native town of Colonel Smyth, Divisional Commander of the Royal Irish Constabulary in Munster, whose assassination, recently in Cork, gave rise to serious trouble between Unionists and Sinn Feiners in Bainsbridge. Donegal to-day was making frantic appeals to Londonderry for food supplies. These, however, could not be delivered, because train crews refused to move trains with military on board, and the military insisted on occupying trains. A train which was stopped at Letterkenny Monday by Sinn Feiners, because it was transporting troops, was still there to-day with the military guarding it. Manned armed men early this morning held up the Belfast-Dublin train at Newry, and took away mails.

TROUBLE NOT SETTLED.

PARIS, July 28.
If the Turkish delegates are not detained in their journey from Constantinople, and arrive in time, it is probable that the Peace Treaty with Turkey will be signed at Sevres, tomorrow, as planned. There is a possibility, however, that Greece may withhold her signature from the treaty for the present, because of the controversy between the Greeks and Italians over the islands of the Dodecanese, in the Aegean Sea. The Greeks are understood to have decreed that unless they received a favorable reply from the Italians previously, they would not sign the treaty.

Dominion Cafe Opened. Will Finance the State of Palestine.

LUNCHEON SERVED TO MANY GUESTS.
To initiate the opening of the Dominion Cafe, 218 Water Street, the proprietors, Messrs. Kim Lee and Co., gave a luncheon to some fifty invited guests, at 1 o'clock, among those present being representatives of State, Commerce, Law and the Press.

The Light of a New Day.

The arrival of Sir Herbert Samuel in Palestine a few days ago marks the opening of a new era for the Holy Land. It is the real beginning of the exercise of the mandate of Britain under authority of the League of Nations and the transition from the military occupation which has lingered on since the Great War to a civil government that is full of promise. One of his first official acts has been the appointment of a Council for the Community of Jerusalem and the composition of this council shows the spirit in which the authorities are approaching their task. The president is a Moslem, the vice-president a Jew, while two Christians are included in its personnel. The message of Britain to the Zionist conference, which is now sitting, is a clear indication that it is her policy, as the mandatory power, that Palestine should become a home for the Jewish race and that while the interests of the non-Jewish minorities will be respected, immigration of Jews will be encouraged. Palestine has urgent need of more people. The Arabs are not an agricultural race and there are immense opportunities in the development of every branch of the industry. With the tremendous resources, the ability and the racial enthusiasm which the Jews of the world over have at their disposal, there is not the slightest reason why in a short time they should not be the most numerous and the best organized element in Palestine. Their future rests in their own hands, for in spite of traditional and historic associations a minority race cannot continue to rule forever in that land. The advent of the best element of Jewish life in large numbers will mean the rise of a western civilization on Asiatic soil and the importance of such a development it is impossible to overestimate. Sir Herbert Samuel brings to his great task a spirit of high endeavor combined with zeal and integrity and that native imagination without which he could not hope to achieve success. —Montreal Daily Star.

A "Corner" in Storms.

If you want to study storms go to Java. That island owns up to an average of ninety-seven a year, or approximately two a week, the world's record. The good, old-fashioned storms of which our forefathers used to tell have apparently vanished into thin air, for our contribution to the world's fury is but a meagre seven annually. Sumatra stands beside Java, with eighty-six per annum, Borneo and the Gold Coast have fifty each, Rio de Janeiro fifty-one, Italy thirty-eight, Buenos Ayres, Canada, and Austria twenty-three. Coming nearer home, France and South Russia, the colder regions, have sixteen apiece, Spain and Portugal fifteen, Sweden and Finland eight. East Turkestan gets off very lightly with a total of—none!

Scarlet vs. Khaki.
London Daily Express: The practical reason for going back to scarlet and blue is that a khaki-clad Army can never be maintained by voluntary methods. Superior persons profess to sneer at the idea that modern men are attracted by a showy uniform. But it is so. The chief objection to scarlet is based on grounds of economy. The public are asked to believe that a pure waste of money. The suggestion is false; soldiers must wear something, and a difference in the color of the cloth means very little difference in the cost of it. Indeed, one scarlet coat will outlast several khaki ones, because the soldier, being proud of it, will take care of it. Besides, it is not proposed to make scarlet the only wear. Khaki will still provide the working kit.

Letting in the Light.

Evidence given yesterday in the deportation proceedings against Ludwig Martens, Soviet "ambassador" to the United States, gives the outer world an insight into the activities and the mental attitude of those who would overthrow existing governments and set up the rule of the proletariat everywhere. This self-styled "ambassador" has as little regard for the diplomatic usage as he has for the ordinary amenities of life in a civilized community. He claims immunity from legal process on account of his ambassadorial status and at the same time he utilizes every weapon at his command to overthrow that government whose protection he claims. He defies the courts of the country to which he claims to be accredited and with a few associates of the same evil disposition as himself he sets up his own courts of jurisdiction and gives judgment on intricate cases brought before him. These revelations of the workings of the Bolshevik mind and of the standards of Bolshevik ethics are invaluable. Whatever harm this adventurer Martens may have done in stimulating the dissemination of propaganda and in being the springboard and the dynamic force for the spread of anarchistic doctrine, it is probable that it is balanced by this evidence. Bolshevism has found favor with a number of drawing-room devotees who are attracted to the new creed by their ignorance of its real aims. Such disclosures in all their sinister meaning cannot fail to open the eyes of the sentimentalists who have flown to its flame like moths to a candle. The greatest enemy of Bolshevism is daylight. If the searchlight of knowledge is thrown upon it by Martens and the other Leninists who honor this continent with their presence its crudities and its savagery will be revealed. —Montreal Daily Star.

DID GOOD WORK.—Constable Simmonds, of the detective force, did some good work along the line during the week, and succeeded in rounding up a number of boys who had been smashing the insulators from telegraph poles at Northern Bight and Clarendville. The cases were tried before Magistrate Tulk, at Shoal Hr., and convictions were secured.

CATTLE AUCTION.—At the auction sale of cattle held at Neal's wharf to-day, three cows from one of the Government institutions fetched $190 for a 6-gallon milker, $192 for a 4-gallon cow, whilst the third a smaller animal, sold for $171. Calves about 10 weeks old sold for $25 to $35 each. The Toronto cattle fetched big prices, one animal selling for $220.

Nothing to Worry About.

Through the darkness the powerful car sped at a terrific rate. "What road have you taken, James?" cried Mrs. Hodge, as the car jolted, and she was jerked high in the air. "The regular one, ma'am," returned the chauffeur. "But I never noticed all these rough places and bumps before," protested the lady. "Oh," laughed the chauffeur, "those were not bumps, ma'am. They were just a few people who couldn't get out of the way." Whereupon Mrs. Hodge laughed, too. What a dull mistake it was, to be sure.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

CLOTHES THAT COST TOO MUCH.

A friend of mine who is a private secretary, was a visiting us in our country home recently. I had a little sports frock that I had bought for garden and general outdoor wear. My private secretary friend admired it greatly. (I rather fancied it myself.) "Why don't you get one?" I asked her. "It would be very becoming to you." "I don't think I'd better afford it," she said. "Why, they aren't at all expensive for the wear you get out of them," I said.

Inexpensive But a Bad Buy.

"That's just it," she said. "It isn't a bit expensive for you because you can get the wear out of it (for various reasons my life, for the last few years, has been led mostly in the country and a great deal in the open air) but I wouldn't, and so it would be expensive for me. It's a great temptation. I'd a good deal rather buy it than the frock ought to get for the office—and it would cost less—but it's too expensive."

This woman, as I said, is a very successful business woman. It is easy to see one of the qualities that has made her that—the habit of weighing values and putting thought into decisions, even about small things.

Many a woman who needs to get every cent's worth out of her clothes appropriation, will buy garments that are good enough in themselves but not good for her purpose.

Tries to Visualize Herself.

A woman with a small appropriation who manages to appear well and suitably dressed everywhere she goes, told me that when planning her year's wardrobe she always visualizes herself going through the days and weeks, and sees pictures what things she would want most.

The thing which makes buying clothes a job requiring not merely taste but infinite judgment, is that the majority of us cannot buy what we need and want, but what we need and want most. To dress successfully in-

More Mysteries To Be Solved.

Although every one knows now that Dvorsky is Josef Hoffmann, that Mme. Wesendock is Isolda, and that Beehoven was a Belgian, many more musical mysteries remain to be solved, and we recommend that the vacationing tonalists spend some of their leisure hours trying to supply answers to these problems:

Why was Mendelssohn afraid to put words to those songs?

Suppose one played Rubinstein's melody in G instead of in F?

Would Brahms' music sound different had he never worn whiskers?

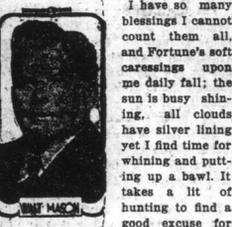

Did Liszt's hair turn white during his first hearing of the second rhapsody as played by a young lady amateur; or was it after he counted up how much money he had lent Wagner?

BLESSINGS.

I have so many blessings I cannot count them all, and Fortune's soft caressings upon me daily fall; the sun is busy shining, all clouds have silver lining yet I find time for whining and putting up a bawl; it takes a lit of hunting to find a good excuse for waving crape-hued bunting and weeping like the deuce; but I am most persistent; though sorrow may be distant and almost non-existent, I'll rope it with a noose. I've all a guy could wish for, I've health and roubles, too; the fame I used to fish for now spreads to far Wahoo; done are the strife and straining, sweet boons are on me raining; and still I sit complaining, and raise a howdydo. My car is out of kilter. It seems to lack the power; the milkman ought to filter his juice—it's turning sour; the man who sells me berries and pies and pink canaries—his system never varies, he stings me every hour. For these and other reasons I sob beside the sea, although, throughout the seasons, the gods are good to me; their gifts they are bestowing, their goodness ever growing; and still, my teardrops flowing, I moan, "Oh, hully chee!"

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

THE FAILURE.

I'd rather be a failure than the man who's never tried, I'd rather seek the mountain top than always stand aside; Oh, let me hold some lofty dream and make my desperate fight. And though I fail, I still shall know I tried to serve the right.

The idlers live the ways of life and they are quick to sneer, They note the falling strength of man and greet it with a jeer. But there is something deep inside which scoffers fail to view— They never see the glorious deed the failure tried to do.

Some men there are who never leave the city's well worn streets, They never know the dangers grim the bold adventurer meets. They never seek a better way nor serve a nobler plan. They never risk with failure to advance the cause of man.

Oh, better 'tis to fall and fall in sorrow and despair, Than stand where all is safe and sure and never face a care; Yes, stamp me with the failure's brand and let men sneer at me, For as I've failed the Lord shall know the man I tried to be.

A Village Sleeping in Shifts.

So acute is the housing shortage in Hamilton, Scotland, and other parts of Lanarkshire that families are using beds in double shifts. As a result Labor and Socialist agitators have drawn attention to the untenanted condition of Hamilton Palace and there has been a popular clamor that the Duke of Hamilton should be invited to sell the historic building and its adjoining offices to relieve the home shortage. Since the sale at the palace some months ago, the state rooms have been stripped of their costly panellings of oak and their rich gildings, and experts agree that with little expense the palace could accommodate scores of homeless families. It is stated that the provost of Hamilton has made an offer for the purchase of the palace. In the stables alone nearly one hundred people could be comfortably housed.

Lipton--Sport.

With a grim determination to yet succeed in taking America's Cup across the Atlantic, Sir Thomas Lipton, whose yacht Shamrock IV, almost gave him the coveted trophy in the series of races finishing Monday in a victory for Resolute, the New York Yacht Club's defending boat, is said to have made provision in his will for the continuation of attempts to lift the Cup, should he be unsuccessful during his life time. This most surely means that the Irish baronet has not yet abandoned hope that his designers and builders may yet produce a craft that will beat anything the Americans can put on the waters. Should their efforts fail during his life time then so great is Lipton's determination that the prize shall go back to England, that he has devoted a portion of his wealth to be used in the construction of a challenger after he has passed away, in order that, if possible, the ambition of his life will be achieved. The sportiness of the man is phenomenal, and if ever yachtsman deserved to win against impossible conditions, Lipton should be a favorite of fortune in this instance.

The disappointment, when victory seemed almost in grasp, must have been great. Shamrock had two wins to her credit and needed but one more to clinch the cup. But the smiles of the gods and goddesses of ocean were withdrawn and the defender carried off the last three contests, though in the third Shamrock crossed the finish line first, losing on the time allowance which she had to give Resolute. The conditions with which the holders of the cup have surrounded the race competition, make it well nigh a sure thing for their boat to win. The challengers have to sail across the Atlantic under their own canvas, a condition making it impossible to build a flimsy racing machine such as is used for the defence on this side. As the defenders, too, have the making of all the rules, they are not at all likely to miss or leave out anything that might lose them the famous old trophy won by the schooner America so many years ago. But so long as there is a possibility of winning--be it ever so remote--so long will true sportsmanship of the Lipton type refuse to remain contented while a British trophy remains in a competitor's hands, especially in a foreign land. Hopes were high in St. John's that Shamrock IV, would break the American stranglehold this time, and possibly the fourth race would have gone to the challenger but for an error in judgment on the part of her skipper at a crucial moment. The hazard of chance intervened and the race was lost. In losing, Lipton is great. In winning he would have been greater, though perhaps no more honor would have accrued to him--excepting that of being the fortunate contestant. If good wishes had had any effect then Sir Thomas would have been now in possession of the battered silver to which his qualities and persistence entitle him. Here's better luck to you next time, Sir Thomas. Another Shamrock may do it.

Prohibiting Publication.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has issued instructions to the Press that it is not to publish any fish prices in future, without the approval of the Department. This communication, signed by G. E. Clouter, Secretary, a recent appointment, we presume, reads: "I am instructed by the Minister (Marine and Fisheries) to ask you not to publish any fish prices in future unless approved by this Department."

The significance of such notice is plainly apparent, and is obviously with the purpose of keeping all knowledge of prices from the fishermen. We do not promise to acquiesce in this, until more urgent reasons are given than those contained in the order quoted, and reserve the right to make such comment as may be deemed fit and proper, at any time, on the price of fish and other products, as well as on this last official act of "hoodwinking" the toiler.

G. Gilbert Scott, A.R.A.

GRANDSON OF ORIGINAL ARCHITECT OF CATHEDRAL WILL COMPLETE THE EDIFICE.

The distinguished Architect G. Gilbert Scott, A.R.A., will shortly arrive in St. John's in order to inspect the Anglican Cathedral and prepare designs for the completion of the tower and spire. Mr. Scott is regarded as one of the most accomplished Ecclesiastical Architects which England has produced for many years. Although he is not yet 40 years of age, he has already made a deep impression on the Gothic Architecture of England. His work shows that he is not bound by the old traditions. He does not aim at mere repetition of mediæval art, but has sought to develop a truly modern and national style; and yet in his Modernism there is always a feeling of effective restraint and dignity.

When Liverpool decided to erect a new Cathedral an Architect of outstanding genius was sought, capable of designing a noble structure which would be the pride and glory of that great city which already rejoiced in many beautiful public buildings. The leading Architects in England were invited to submit designs, and amongst those who participated in the competition was the youthful Gilbert Scott, then barely out of his teens and unknown in Architectural circles except amongst those with whom he was intimately associated. His design was so magnificent in conception and displayed such conspicuous originality that he was immediately appointed Architect of this Cathedral, which when completed will be the largest in England and worthy to be compared with those other gems of Architecture which were erected during the "Golden Age of Gothic Art."

Next to the Liverpool Cathedral, Mr. Scott's best known Ecclesiastical works include the restoration of Chester Cathedral; St. Paul's Church, Liverpool; Northfleet Church; the Church of the Annunciation, Bournemouth; St. Joseph's Church, Norfolk; St. Maughold's Church, Ramsay, I.O.M. and the Chapel of the Visitation, Harrow. His contributions to English domestic Architecture include many notable examples, the most recent being the new Star and Garter Home in Richmond. It is interesting to note that Mr. Scott is the grandson of Sir Gilbert Scott, who originally designed the Cathedral and we feel sure he will take a special pleasure in completing the work which his illustrious grandfather commenced in 1847.

Commission of Enquiry.

The commission of enquiry into the Woodford Amisvill charges held a session at the Tower Room of the Court House this morning. The evidence of Mr. Barron, law partner of Hon. M. P. Gibbs, was taken. He stated that Mr. Meaney employed his firm in connection with the case, and that he had no knowledge of what took place at the interview at Woodford's house on the night of March 19th. The session adjourned at 11:30 to sit again to-morrow.

Big Undertaking.

A gang of men under the supervision of Contractor Mr. George Quigley will start work during next week laying a six inch main from Petty Hr. Long Pond to the Sanatorium. The undertaking is a big one as the cut will be 3 miles long and in places a lot of rock has to be blasted. At the outlet the cut will be nearly 20 feet deep through solid rock. The pipes will run over the Southside Hill and pass near the Lunatic Asylum which institution will likely be supplied with water from this source. Mr. Quigley is at present engaged blasting for the foundation of the Royal Stores' extension on Duckworth Street.

Police Court.

A number of cases held on remand were up for hearing to-day before Judge Morris. The first a seaman residing at King's Bridge was sentenced to 12 months in prison for obtaining money under false pretences. A laborer who has served several terms in jail was sent down for 12 months with hard labor, for obtaining goods under false pretences.

The lad who stole a lady's vanity-box at St. George's Field Sports was ordered to be given 5 lashes of a birch rod. The two young men who broke into woods East End restaurant last week and stole some candy, fruit, etc., were each sentenced to a fine of $20 or 30 days.

A young man who does not work was charged with stealing $15 from another boarder at the Salvation Army Shelter, George Street. Some articles of clothing, a tin of boot shine and a tube of tooth paste were put in evidence as purchased after the robbery. The defendant accounting for where and when the goods were bought, the case was dismissed.

Regatta Jingles.

The Fishermen's Race, about which there was a hitch, has been arranged, and four crews will enter.

The tin cans and broken bottles near the bank on the bottom have all been removed, and boats can land there now without fear of a scratch.

Jupiter Pluvius even is favorable, and the recent rains have raised the waters of the Lake to a desirable height.

To-morrow night at the committee meeting all will be finalized. If you do not enter your crew, then you can't enter at all.

The collectors are meeting with great success, but there is not quite enough of money in yet. It takes twice as much to run the races now as it did in 1914.

The band stand will soon be completed, and it is likely that the suggestion to give two or three concerts there in the evenings before Regatta Day, will be complied with.

Mr. A. McNamara is putting his best efforts into the medals and all who have seen them aver that they are "beauties."

Young lady, don't worry about the dancing platforms. They will be there all right, all right; so will the swinging boats.

Practice is going on regularly every evening. Yesterday, in spite of the other attractions, the head of the pond was crowded with enthusiasts timing the boats with the hope of being able to pick the winners on Regatta Day.

Haig Beer is about the best we can promise you as a thirst killer, but you never can tell, as Councillor Mullaly says, "Littera Scripta Manet."

The "Judges" boat will do its duty, but you must remember that "it is not a judicial court."

Martin Cashin got a husky crew of Amateur for the Nellie R. Well done, Martin, you have the blood of three generations of rowers in your veins.

President Hiscock says there is no doubt that this Regatta will excel all previous ones in its success, and that the preparations are more elaborate and perfect than ever before.

The shades of the old familiar figures can easily be imagined as hovering round the tent. Capt. Perez, John Syme, John Harvey, Edward Rawlins, T. J. Edens, Dr. Harvey, Von Stein, James Bates, P. C. O'Driscoll, John Harris. Alas they are all gone, but they live in memory amongst the middle aged on Regatta Day.

We hear that there is to be a private tent on the South Side of the Lake, admission by password only. Beyond all doubt the quality is above criticism, so we hear, but that is poor consolation to you and me, brother.

What about the greasy pole? We have some good climbers amongst us now, and a good ham and a pair of boots are higher in the stores than on the greasy pole. Come on, Bobby, show your agility as in the good old days of yore.

NO BAND CONCERT TO-NIGHT.—The weekly Band Concerts by the C. C. C. Band set for to-night, Thursday, at Bannerman Park, and to-morrow, Friday, at Victoria Park, are cancelled, owing to the extra work of the Band at Mt. Cashel and the Corps Dance last night. The Band will, however, give a Band Concert at the Lakeside to-morrow (Friday) night at 8.15, for which the Regatta Committee have kindly erected a Band Stand.—Jly29.11

The First Wireless.

Mahlon Loomis, who lived in West Springfield, Mass., is credited with having sent the first aerial message in 1865, thus antedating Marconi, who did not begin his experiments until 1895.

In 1872 Loomis obtained a patent for the system of aerial telegraphy, and would to-day probably have been heralded as the discoverer of wireless telegraphy if he had been given the proper financial support and encouragement from the public, instead of being ridiculed. As it was, Congress passed the "Loomis aerial telegraph bill" in 1873, appropriating $50,000 for further developments, but the sum never reached Loomis. Loomis made the first public demonstration of wireless possibilities in 1866 from the peaks of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Virginia, fourteen miles apart. A kite was raised from each mountain with a copper wire attached to a telegraphing apparatus, and the message sent by Loomis was received at the other station as though the two had been connected by wire. Loomis also made successful experiments communicating between vessels in Chesapeake Bay. The vessels were stationed about two miles apart, and on each was a telegraph apparatus. Wires were attached to the instruments with their other ends thrown into the water at a moderate depth. Another insulated wire of much greater strength was thrown into a colder stratum of water. These two strata connected with the same battery made a complete circuit.

Religious Ceremonies.

The Annual Retreat of the Sisters of Mercy, conducted by Rev. J. Prendergast, S.J., closed on the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, July 15th, with the impressive combined rite of Religious Profession and Reception in the beautiful chapel of St. Bride's, Littleisle. His Grace the Archbishop officiated, assisted by Right Rev. Monsignor McDermott, V.G., the celebrant of the Mass, and Rev. J. Rawlins, P. of Kilbride and Chaplain of the College, the Master of Ceremonies.

The Sermon—an eloquent, practical and instructive one—was delivered by Rev. Father Connell, S.J. In it the preacher clearly set forth the high ideals to be aimed by those who embrace the practice of the Councils and Rules of the Religious State, designated by Our dear Lord and Master "The Better Part." The Chapel was artistically decorated, and the singing worthy of the occasion.

It must have been a source of joy and gratification to His Grace the Archbishop, and all present, to see twenty young aspirants present themselves in the Sanctuary—nine to renew the entire consecration already made of themselves to serve devotedly the King of Kings; six for the first time to pronounce the solemn vows, thereby pledging themselves to the same final service for one year; and five joyfully to exchange the trappings of the world for the sombre garb of a Sister of Mercy. The following are the names of the newly professed and received:—Professed—Sister Mary Loretta McIsaac, Sister Mary Emeria Gillis, Sister Mary Brendan Murray, Sister Mary Bernadette O'Rourke, Sister Mary Laurentia Murray and Sister Mary Camillus Dunphy; Received—Miss Amelia Abbott, in religion Sister Mary Olivera; Miss Mary Carter, in religion Sister Mary Gabrielle; Miss Mary Lundrigan, in religion Sister Mary Vincent; Miss Clara McDonnell, in religion Sister Mary St. Joan, and Miss Gertrude McDonald, in religion Sister Mary Alacoque.

Yesterday's Outings.

CATHEDRAL AND ST. MICHAEL'S.
 The children of the Cathedral and St. Michael's Sunday Schools to the number of 600 enjoyed a splendid treat at Hafey's Farm, Pennywell Road yesterday. At about 10.30 the children, accompanied by Canon Jeeves, Canon Field and the teachers, left the Synod Hall and St. Michael's Sunday School in cars and vans supplied by friends. Shortly after arriving at the grounds a lunch was served and the usual games were started. At 4.30 the children sat down to tea and thoroughly enjoyed the good things provided. Games were kept up until sunset, when all turned homeward voting the treat the best ever held by the schools. The committee in charge are grateful to those who loaned their trucks, slovans and motor cars, as well as to others who in any way helped to make the outing successful.

SALVATION ARMY, NO. 2.
 The children of Salvation Army Citadel, No. 2, Schools, numbering about 300 held their picnics at Duder's Farm, Robinson's Hill. The children and teachers left town shortly after ten o'clock by carriage and motor, reaching the journey's end about 11 o'clock. Lunch was served at noon, which was followed by the usual children's games until 5 o'clock, when all sat down to an abundantly supplied supper, which needless to say was heartily enjoyed. During the afternoon Col. Martin and staff visited the grounds and assisted materially in helping the children enjoy themselves, which they did to the fullest. Return was made at 3.30 o'clock.

GEORGE STREET.
 About noon yesterday 600 children and their teachers of George Street Church arrived at Kilbride by train, to hold their annual outing. When the merry crowd reached the picnic grounds a lunch was served to which full justice was done. The customary games were then indulged in until tea was served, after which the games were kept up until the arrival of the train. The children spent a very pleasant day, and returned to the city well pleased with their outing.

WESLEY.
 Wesley Church Sunday School children also held their annual outing yesterday afternoon at McDougall's Farm. The youngsters were driven countrywards by bus and motor car, kindly placed at their disposal by friends, and thoroughly enjoyed the drive. Immediately on arrival sports were engaged in and later the little ones were served with tea, to which they did full justice, their appetites being sharpened by the country air. The teachers and pastor and other friends saw that every child was provided for. After tea games were indulged in again until after 7 o'clock when return was made to town after a most enjoyable afternoon.

Had Good Sport.

His Excellency the Governor General of Canada arrived on the yacht Hochelaga at Humbermouth from La Poile Tuesday. The Duke was fishing at Harry's River yesterday and had some excellent sport.

Says Poles Forced to Fight Bolsheviki.

Now that their country is a free and independent nation once again, the Polish people are determined to see that she remains so for all time. Such is the conclusion of the correspondent of a London paper, who has been in Poland investigating conditions there. While in Warsaw he met one of the men who have played a prominent part in the events which have led up to the freeing of the country from the foreign yoke, and he gave a most interesting story of Poland as she was and what she hopes to be. Few questions of vital importance for Europe have been, he said, more misunderstood and have provoked less interest than the Polish question. The reason for this is to be found in the fact that Poland ceased to exist as an independent state 125 years ago, and that the European equilibrium had been maintained during that time without her co-operation. It is realized only by a few that the lack of a strong Poland was one of the causes of the Great War which could not have been brought about by Germany had she not been able to avail herself of the national resources (chiefly agricultural products and coal) of the rich Polish provinces which formed Germany's share of the partition of Poland. Poland's Great Role in the Past. He dwelt upon the great role Poland had played in the past history of Europe by acting as a bulwark between the East and the West. It was, he said, on the plains of Poland that the Tartar invasions of the thirteenth century were checked. It was Poland who saved Vienna and central Europe from the great Turkish invasion of 1683, and it is impossible to imagine the changes which the absence of Poland during that period would have wrought in the geography and civilization of Europe. But besides being a bulwark to the "drag nach westen" of her Eastern neighbors, Poland was in those days a bulwark to the "drag nach osten" of the Teutonic race which has even dreamt of world domination with the help and resources of a vassal Russia. To-day, now she has been re-established by the Allied Powers, she is once again acting as a bulwark. Germany, crushed in the West, saw in Russia the means of her future "revanche." Poland was the insuperable barrier. At the end of 1918, when forced to evacuate the territories of the former Russian Empire, the Germans conducted this evacuation in such a way as to let in the Bolsheviki forces in their wake. At the beginning of 1919 Poland was faced by the fact that territories with strong Polish majorities and strong Polish minorities were in Bolsheviki hands. There was also a direct threat of Bolsheviki invasion. Dramatic appeals of the population suffering from Bolsheviki rule were addressed to the chief of the Polish state, Diet, and Government. Poland Had no Choice. The patriotic sympathies of the whole nation responded. The Polish authorities had no choice. A policy of non-interference would have caused immediate revolution. It was a case of rescuing Polish nationals from certain doom and of defending Polish ethnographical territory from the horrors of Bolshevism. Moreover there was the imminent danger of the peace of the world being menaced by the Bolsheviki of the East joining hands with the unjust militarism of Prussia intent on wreaking vengeance on its western conquerors. This is why Poland felt herself compelled to draw the sword. And so far she has succeeded in saving Europe from the meeting of the "drag nach westen." This has been rendered possible through Polish enthusiasm and self-sacrifice. In conclusion he remarked that Poland fully understands the needs of the pacification of Russia, which is not only a need for Europe, but a vital necessity for Poland. The Poles, however, having suffered under the Russian yoke for 125 years, know the fallacy of attempting to trade with the Bolsheviki, and this is one of the reasons which dictated them to listen to the appeals of the Ukrainians. The pacification of the Ukraine will mean the opening of a great part of the granaries of Russia to the world, and the firm establishment of a free Ukraine means the death blow to Bolshevism, and what is of equal importance, to the possibility of German "revanche" with the aid of a vassal Russia.

Boy Prisoner in the Forbidden City.

A pathetic boyish figure is hidden from all curious eyes in the mysterious fastnesses of the Forbidden City. He is the deposed boy emperor of the old China.

His Majesty Pu-Yi (or Hsuan-Tung), the last "son of heaven," came to the throne a baby of two years in 1909, when the aged empress dowager died, or, as the Chinese say, "ascended on the dragon to be a guest on high." With the revolution in 1911 the boy became virtually a prisoner in the central palace. He has never moved out since.

This boy emperor is now a bright little fellow of 14. Only one Englishman has ever seen him since 1911, Mr. R. F. Johnson, who in 1918 administered the government of Wei-Hai-Wei, and has recently been appointed Pu-Yi's tutor. The emperor is a strong and well built boy, very keen on the lessons given him by Mr. Johnson, the first Englishman to go right into the heart of the Forbidden City, to which he now has access.

Pu-Yi is very diligent at his English lessons, at which he gets two hours a day. He writes a boyish letter in beautiful English handwriting. Although not permitted to pass outside the Forbidden City, where he is looked after by imperial eunuchs and old women, the lad is very much interested in the great outer world. He is a very pathetic figure. He would probably love to travel. He is always asking questions on geography, the people and customs of other lands, and also about the world's prominent men.

The republic of China has undertaken responsibility for him and his upbringing. They feel it a duty. The first thing Yuan Shih-kai did when the monarchy was overthrown was to provide for the imperial family. Quite friendly relations are maintained between the republic and the palace.

There are movements in favor of restoring the monarchy, but the boy emperor has never given them any countenance. He is understood to be engaged to the daughter of the president of the republic, Hsu Shihchang. Where but in the flowery land could happen such a romance? The deposed monarch to marry his republican successor's daughter! The latter is being educated in the United States. It is believed the boy has never seen her. That is the Chinese old-style of arranging marriages between children.

NOTES OF TRAVEL: And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

L. C. MORRIS,
CHAPTER XXXV.

GENERAL REMARKS OF THE CITIES.

On leaving Boston we considered our tour of the cities finished; and what we saw afterwards was mostly of a rural character. We had seen the great cities under different conditions, and were thus in a position to form certain conclusions as to their numerical, and financial, and moral standing. The difference between city life and rural life is very marked, and the problems of the former are such as call for the best administration. Numerically the city implies hundreds of thousands of people; these people represent "all ranks, classes and conditions of men," and they all claim the right of citizenship; and citizenship in big cities is a big thing.

The cities are populous; and it is the populace that really creates the cities, and makes them what they are; and whatever their chief industry may be there is a "sense" in which they really create their own industries, and establish their own independence. There must, of course, be a staple industry upon which a state or a city depends; and which is looked upon as the main body of trade; but as a supplement to this, the wear and tear of everyday city life, is a very great factor. Of itself, this factor of wear and tear provides employment for tens of thousands of citizens, so that one person is imperceptibly helping another in the great workshop of the industrial world. For instance, a man wants a house built, and to accomplish his purpose he engages builders; these builders must have tools to work with, hence the services of the great hardware industry are called into requisition. The builders and the hardware staffs must have clothing for themselves, hence the great city dry goods and tailoring establishments are kept busy. These establishments in their turn must have stores and workrooms in which to manufacture their goods; hence the builders and mechanics are in demand; and then as a basis of it all, the entire industrial fabric must get supplies from the producers. This at once affects the farmers, and the miners and the fishermen, so that by the co-operation of all, the wheels of industry are set in motion, and the necessities of one industry really support the investments of another. Thus the entire order of trade is affected, and capital and labour are united in the growth of the modern city. On the sea, fast ships carry merchandise, and on the land swift railways transfer goods; and by these agencies the great manufacturing centres of the cities are supplied, and millions of operatives find work to do —and yet it is mostly for the city's direct use that all these commodities are necessary; therefore we see that the city largely creates its own source of industry.

This means that the greater the population of any city the greater its industries must necessarily be. This is what we found in our tour. We wondered how all the people lived, and how they all found employment; but our enquiries solved the problem, and we found that as one branch of trade really depends upon another, so one branch creates another, and thus the cities grow and the wear and tear of every day keep the wheels of industry revolving. This of course means that at the bottom of it all there must be capital; for without capital labor is limited, and expansion cannot take place. But it is a notable, as well as an agreeable fact, that there is a great deal of capital in all the cities, and what is even better, this capital is lavishly invested, and the capitalists seem to be bigger than their capital. They believe in their country, and they help to make it great by investment and speculation. Thus they build their country, and thus they see about them the beautiful homesteads of the people, and the highways of city life.

Let us now apply this principle to our own land or to our own city. We have capitalists, and therefore capital. Our city needs to be improved and extended, and at the present time some two hundred houses are wanted. There are several large areas suitable for new streets, and for civic convenience. The rental of all our tenement houses has been advanced twice and thrice its former value; and what was at one time a doubtful investment, is now a very safe proposition. Why not then invest in this direction? Why not begin and make St. John's the city it ought to be? Why not prepare her for an increased population, and for increased trade, by building homesteads worthy the age, and worthy the capital city of the country? The investment of a million dollars would relieve the present tie-up in the housing problem, and at the same time re-organize our civic problems. Why should other cities out-strip us? This is our city; the city of our fathers, and it will only be what we make it. Our policy so far has been too limited, and our vision too restricted, and we have held back when we should have gone forward. There ought to be a wider policy. Would that we could see it. (Continued on Saturday.)

Small Superstitions.

There are several superstitions about the tingling of one's ears. It was once commonly believed that if it was the right ear it meant that a friend was speaking well of one. The tingling of the left implied the opposite. Sir Thomas Browne, the famous author of "Vulgar Errors," ascribes the idea to the belief in guardian angels, who touch the right or the left according as conversation is favorable or not to the person.

There are many curious beliefs, too, about the itching nose. Dekker makes one of his characters say:—"We shall ha' guests to-day; my nose itcheth so." In the North of England it was reckoned a sign that the person will either be "cursed, vexed, or kissed by a fool." An old writer has remarked:—"When a man's nose itcheth, it is a sign that he shall drink wine."

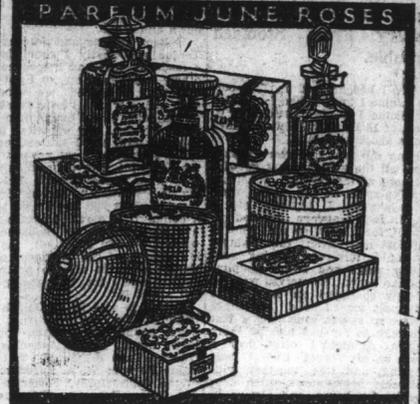

The eyebrows, too, have their lore. "It's a good thing to have meeting eyebrows," it has often been said, as such a person will never know trouble. But meeting eyebrows are not usually considered lucky. Trust not the man whose eyebrows meet. For in his heart you'll find deceit.

And there are curious fancies about teeth. To dream about teeth was held to be a warning that sorrow was at hand, and it was still more unlucky to dream of one's teeth falling out. Many people still throw an extracted tooth into the fire for luck, and this is observed specially in the case of young children to ensure that the remainder of their teeth will come properly. Teeth wide apart is said to be a sign of future prosperity and happiness.

A Ghost for Fish Bait.

Siamese fishermen do most of their fishing by means of what is known as a ghost boat. This consists of a long board, painted white, and arranged in position in the water. The top must not be too high above the surface of the water for the fish it is desired to capture to leap over. When in position the ghost resembles very much the white side of a boat or punt. The fish, seeing this white board, become frightened, and in fear they leap over the board. At the back of the board, however, nets are arranged in such a position that those fish that succeed in leaping the board land in the nets and are caught. The amount of fish caught by the employment of ghost boats is very large indeed, and the method has the advantage of preventing the smaller fry from getting into the nets, as they are unable to leap over the board.

Girl Who Caused a War.

The discovery that Mary Winchester, who when only six years of age was the cause of the Lushais war, is still alive, has aroused the greatest interest. She was abducted by the natives of Northern Assam, and when the fighting was over it was found that the chiefs of the Lushais had almost defied her, and they pleaded with the British officers to be allowed to keep her to become the head of the tribe. Mary's father was a native of Elgin, and belonged to one of the leading county families in Morayshire. When the story of the Lushai outrage reached Elgin it caused great consternation, and the M.P. for Moray and Nairn raised the matter in the House of Commons and took it further—even to Queen Victoria herself.

So it came about that the punitive force was sent against the Lushais. On receipt of the news that Mary Winchester had been rescued and was alive and well, Elgin gave itself up to a riot of rejoicing, and later still, on her arrival at her grandparents' home, the whole town made holiday to welcome her. Prior to travelling north Mary had the honor of being received by Queen Victoria. The little maid, despite the fact that she had changed her native dress for European attire, was then and for some considerable time afterwards of a dark almond color wherever her skin had been exposed to the tropical sun of Assam.

Elephant Executioners.

It was in the year 807 that the Caliph Haroun al Rashid presented the first elephant seen in France, to Charlemagne. It was not until 1228, however, that this well-known and sagacious animal came to England, and it was in that year that the King of France made King Henry III. a gift of one ten years of age. It arrived at Sandwich, and was then taken to the Tower of London, where, by the King's command, a house had been built for it. Ten feet high to the top of its back, England's first elephant lived to the age of forty-one years. Its keeper was John Goch. An elephant's skin is generally of a deep ash-brown, but sometimes it is white or cream-colored. The latter variety is very valuable and highly prized, being one of the attributes of royalty in Siam. One of the titles of the King of Siam, by the way, is "Lord of the White Elephant." Whilst on the subject, it is interesting to find that in many parts of India elephants have been appointed official executioners of justice. They will break limbs of a criminal, trample him to death, or pierce him with their tusks, according to their master's instructions.

Enjoyable Dance.

The C.C.C. Dance in the Cadet Hall last night was one of the most enjoyable events of the season. Some 14 dances made up the programme and the music by the Cadet Band was all that could be desired. About 130 couples attended the dance.

SAYS TANLAC MERITS ALL PRAISE GIVEN IT

Mrs. G. S. Cook Tells How Master Medicine Overcame Her Five Years of Misery From Stomach Trouble.

"Before I had finished my first bottle of Tanlac I knew I had found just the medicine I needed," said Mrs. G. S. Cook, of 18 Hurd St., Halifax, Nova Scotia, a short while ago.

"During the past five years I have endured all the miseries that go with a bad case of indigestion. I had no appetite to speak of, and there were many days when I scarcely ate a thing. In fact, I always dreaded to eat at all for I knew so well what it would cost me. Even the lightest foods would ferment, causing gas, cramping pains and severe palpitation of the heart. My nerves were so completely shattered the least noise would upset me. I had headaches that were so severe sometimes I just had to take to my bed and lie there for hours. At night I often had a pressure on my chest like I was smothering, and this, together with my extreme nervousness, often kept me awake for hours, and always in the morning, I felt almost too weak and listless to move. I just had a weak, drabby feeling all the time, and the least exertion would tire me out so completely I would have to lie down and rest.

"I kept hearing and reading about Tanlac and finally I concluded that a medicine that had helped so many others might help me, so I got a bottle. Well, it helped me from the first, and now that I have finished my fourth bottle I feel better than I have felt for years. My appetite is just splendid now, and I can eat just anything I want and am never troubled the least bit with indigestion. I am free from those terrible headaches, my nerves are calm and steady and I sleep at night just like I used to when a child. It is a real pleasure for me now to attend to my household affairs, for I feel good all the time. My experience has convinced me that Tanlac deserves all the praise it is getting, and I am only too glad to tell about it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fermeuse; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renew's.—adv't

Sons of England Banquet Supreme President.

Supreme President T. H. Carter of the Sons of England Benefit Society, has had a busy but enjoyable time since his arrival in Newfoundland. Shortly after landing from S.S. Sable I. on Monday morning, he was whisked off to Harbor Grace by motor car, accompanied by a number of the brethren, at which place he received the freedom of the city, and after being shown around, officially visited Diamond Jubilee Lodge, the members being as much delighted to receive their Supreme President, as he was to become acquainted with them. Return to town was made on Tuesday, stops taking place at several of the beauty spots in Conception Bay. On Tuesday night Bro. Carter officially attended Dudley and Empire Lodges, and very pleasing sessions were held, resulting in much pleasure and profit to the fraternity.

Last night, in Victoria Hall, a banquet was given by the City Lodges in honor of Bro. Carter and as a fitting tribute to his visit. Under the capable hands of the Committee in charge appropriate and handsome decorations were festooned and trailed from wall and ceiling, and the tables were spaced so as to give a maximum of seating and comfort. After the good things provided had been disposed of, the Chairman of the Committee, Bro. W. P. Butler, Past President, assumed the chair and the toast list was taken up. As will be seen by the annexed programme the speakers were all well known orators, and consequently their addresses were worthy their efforts and the cause. Replying to the toast of the evening, Bro. Carter referred at length to his visit and to the wonderful efforts of the Newfoundland Brethren in building up such a strong trinity of lodges, ample proof that they were closely adhering to the principles of the order. Thanking the brethren for the presentation of a white coat rug as a souvenir of his visit, the Supreme President further wished to express his gratitude to all those who had contributed so much to the success and enjoyment of his first trip to Newfoundland. He particularly wished to emphasize the reception given him by the Hr. Grace members who came in cars as far as South River on Monday to meet him and party. The cars decorated with flags were given for the occasion by Messrs. F. Archibald, H. H. Archibald, A. Thompson, F. MacRae, Dr. Goodwin and Rogers, and the honor showed the organization was a high one and will be duly recognized.

The toast to the Chairman was replied to by Bro. W. P. Butler, P.P., who thanked all for their co-operation in making this event a record in S.O. E. annals, and for the unanimity with which everything had been done. To the Prime Minister and Bro. N. Andrews, P.P., he tendered special thanks for their kindness in placing their cars at the disposal of the Supreme President and party on the Harbor Grace run, and to Mr. Bert Cousins for giving the distinguished guest a series of motor drives around the city and suburbs. The Toast list and address of welcome follows:—

Yesterday at Mt. Cashel.

Yesterday's Garden Party at Mt. Cashel was attended by the largest gathering on record, and the success of the affair was beyond the expectations of the promoters. The weather was ideal, and long before the usual hour, hundreds had entered the grounds, keeping the table holders busy selling ice cream, drinks and candy. It is estimated that fully 7,000 people visited the place during the evening. The affair was under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency the Governor and His Grace the Archbishop. Among those present were Rev. Frs. Renouf, Wilson, Nolan, Kelly, Pippy, Ashley, Thibault, Carter, St. John, and the Brothers from St. Patrick's, Holy Cross and St. Bonaventure's, as well as many prominent lay citizens. The C.E.B. and C.C.C. Bands rendered excellent music and together with the regular sports attractions such as dancing by the lads of Mount Cashel, gun drill, ball pitching and other amusements were afforded and greatly enjoyed. At the conclusion of the sports programme, the prizes were presented by Mr. W. J. Higgins, M.H.A., who on behalf of Mount Cashel, extended hearty congratulations to the recipients. After the presentation the Committee were entertained by the Brothers. Mr. J. L. Slattery, chairman, announced that the proceeds would exceed that of last year. Mr. W. J. Carroll, in proposing the health of Rev. Bro. Conway, predicted great advancement for Mount Cashel in the future, and in reply, Bro. Conway thanked all under God, for the progress made in the affairs of the institution. Particularly he thanked those who in conducting the sports, etc., had made the day successful. Rev. Bro. Ryan, of Mt. St. Francis, paid eloquent tribute to the Sports Committee whom the Brothers were fortunate in having associated with them. Mr. W. J. Higgins replied, pointing out that his, and the work of others interested in the Garden Party programme, was looked upon by them as a duty, but the great tribute to the work of the Brothers was the gathering of all classes on the occasion. It gave him pleasure to see old Mount Cashel workers present, and to Messrs. C. E. Hunt, C. Trapnell, W. H. Herder and others he extended hearty welcome. To Messrs. H. Macpherson, T. Curran and O'Flannigan, he also paid tribute in conducting the day's sports. Messrs. P. J. Shea, N. J. Vinnicombe, J. L. Slattery, C. H. Hutton and M. Smythe spoke in praise of Mount Cashel and its aims, and Rev. Bro. Ennis, in response to the toast coupled with his name, reviewed the history of the institution and heartily thanked those of all denominations whose assistance was an appreciation of and incentive to the Brothers in their work.

In the Sports, the Junior Baseball game was won by St. Patrick's Hall team, the following being the players: McFarlane, P.; Holden, c.; Duffy, lb.; Hunt, 2nd; Chaplin, 3rd; Norman, s.s.; Breen, lf.; Morrissey, cf.; Smith, rf. In the Boys' Race (under 15) Slattery and Rogers won out. In the first round of the football five, the Highlanders won against the Collegians through the latter falling to put in a team; the Saints defeated the C.C.C., the Britons the B.I.S., and the Stars the Felidians. In the second round the Britons defeated the C.E.L. and the Stars won from the Highlanders, and in the play-off, after the Saints defeated the Britons, they beat the Stars by a goal and a corner to nil. The Baseball game between the Cubs and Wanderers for the H. D. Reid Cup, was one of the big attractions. The Cubs won by 4 to 1, and are now the undisputed owners of the Cup, having won it three years. The successful team was: Hall, p.; Clouston, c.; DeMers, lb.; Gosse, 2b.; Sawyers, s.s.; Manning, 3b.; F. Phelan, cf.; T. Duggan, rf.; O'Donnell, lf. Messrs. Chesman and Hartnett were umpires and Messrs. Merner and Skinner scorers. The Pony Races were run in three heats and were followed with greater interest on the part of the spectators than perhaps any other item on the programme. There were 13 entries and four heats run, the competing in the first, 4 in the second and third, and six in the fourth, the first and second place winners in all three competing in the final, when Kirby's pony won, with Marshall's second and Morrissey's third. This year the race was run over a new and better track than before. A thoroughly finished course is promised for next year.

C. of E. Garden Party,

FOOTBALL SIXES. The football sixes set for to-night have been postponed, owing to the double header baseball game being on. However two games will be played on Friday night. The Felidians vs. Highlanders at 6:45 and the Collegians and Stars at 7 o'clock. The remaining three preliminary games will be played on Tuesday commencing at 6:30. One game before the baseball match, two after. 6:30, H.M.S. Briton vs. C.E.L. after the baseball game, B.I.S. vs. C.C.C.; Saints vs. Collegians or Star. The remaining three games will be played at the C. of E. Garden Party at Shannon Munn Memorial Farm on August 11th.
