The care of the teeth is now recognized as a necessity. In fact the large hospitals all over the world examine the patients' teeth and where it is possible put them in good condition before attempting a surgical operation. Experience has shown that the patient has a better chance for recovery with a clean healthy mouth than without it. This ought to convince the most skeptical that care of the teeth is requisite to health.

The Will

There comes a time in the life of every man when he must leave his worldly possessions to the care of another. In anticipation of this, therefore, the first obligation resting on an individual who is possessed of property is the making of a will, and this should be done before the capacities become impaired by time or the ravages of disease.

"Flowers of the Valley,"

MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

CHAPTER XVIII. THE NEW SINGER.

"Ah, I forgot you have been away, dear," said the other. "Well, he is our latest sensation, and we are all mad about him."

"But why?" asked the elder lady, with a little yawn.

"Well, because he is not at all mad about us, for one and the principal reason," said the first, laughing. "But really, my dear, you must have been living in a wilderness not to have heard of the wealthiest, and, by many degrees, best part of the season. You see, he has come upon us so suddenly, like—what was the name of the health-god who descended on tiptoes? I am so very bad at classics! He only came into the money—there are heaps and heaps of it—quite lately, and in the most romantic manner! And he is not only rich, but as handsome as—well, oh, he is really very good-looking. We see, as I said, half mad about him, and the dressmaker man doesn't care a button for the best of us!"

"Rich, handsome, and—sensible! No wonder he is a sensation!" Her companion laughed.

"How sarcastic you have grown, I must use that as my own; it is so very good—rich, handsome—and sensible!" But it isn't quite true, though; for no man is sensible who is in love, is he, dear?"

"You ought to know!" retorted the other. "But you said just now that he would have nothing to say to any of you!"

"Neither will he! That's just it! He is not in love with any one in our set; in fact, no one knows who the girl is. But there is somebody, for certain!"

"Who would think he had lost a fortune instead of having just come in for one, and he is as absent and pre-occupied as a prince; indeed, people say it is as difficult to get him as it is the prince himself. I'll be bound, if he comes here this afternoon, he won't stay ten minutes; and all the time he is here he will look around the room as if he were searching for something, and if you talk to him, he will look over your head or right beyond you, as if he could see through!"

"I'm quite anxious to see your rare artist!" said the other, laughing. "I expect he will turn out a very ordinary kind of individual, after all! I have seen so many heroes, my dear!"

"Ah!" exclaimed the girl. "He has come! Here he is! Now then, was I not right in the instance? Isn't he good-looking enough?"

"Yes, he is handsome," replied the elder lady, after a moment or two; "and better than handsome; there is something of the prince about him, as you say."

"I'm quite anxious to see your rare artist!" said the other, laughing. "I expect he will turn out a very ordinary kind of individual, after all! I have seen so many heroes, my dear!"

you said. That young man has got some secret trouble!"

"Exactly!" she exclaimed. "I am enchanted at your agreeing with me! Some secret trouble! That is just what I say. And see, he is looking round the room exactly as I told you he would do! He scarcely listens to the duchess. Do you see the little sensation his entrance has caused? Oh, dear, I wish he'd come up and ask me to share his million or two!" and she heaved a mock sigh.

Iris looked round the curtain, but the new arrival of whom the girl had raved was out of her range of view, and she drew back again.

"It gives him just ten minutes," said the girl. "Look, he is going toward the door already; presently you'll see him disappear!"

At this moment a footman came up to the corner.

"Her grace's compliments, and will the young gentleman play, please?" he said.

Paul rose, pale and trembling slightly.

Iris had arranged to play the piano accompaniment to him, and she rose and, putting her hand on his arm, more to encourage him by her touch, led him rather than was led into the saloon. The piano stood a few paces from where they had sat, and, with downcast eyes, she reached it quickly, and unaided, save by those who happened to be near the instrument.

"Mabel," whispered poor Paul, as he stood beside her, "I am so nervous that I can scarcely hold the bow! Why is it?"

She gave him a steady, encouraging look, and struck the keynote, and at the sound the boy's nerves settled themselves instantly, and he began to play as firmly and unhesitatingly as usual.

The crowd was somewhat silent for a second or two, then went on talking and laughing as hard as ever. But Paul neither heard nor heeded them. He was deaf and insensible to all but his beloved music, but presently the power of his genius began to tell. The noise grew less and less, and then died out altogether, and the sight was presented of a throng of great people standing silent and wrapt before the little cripple, who was, in one thing, greater than all of them put together.

When he had finished, and the long-sustained harmony of the last note floated away, a murmur of applause and gratification rose and reached him. With a startled look, he seemed to awake, and, flushing hotly, shrank nearer to Iris.

"Bravo, Paul!" she whispered. A footman came up. Her grace's compliments, and would the young gentleman play again, please?

"You must play again, Paul!" whispered Mabel. As she spoke she raised her eyes and saw a lady whom she knew quite well standing near her. She turned and looked at her, and her heart sank with dread and foreboding, but the lady's eye gave no sign of recognition, and she passed on.

Iris drew a breath of relief, and held her head low over the piano as she played Paul's accompaniment. His second piece drew forth a sharp, sudden burst of applause, and, as she shrank back, he whispered:

"Sing now, Mabel, while they are in the humor; don't wait."

Iris scarcely knew whether she ought to do so without being commanded, but, longing to get the thing over and escape, she played the prelude of Paul's song and began to sing.

The people had begun to talk again, and there was so much noise that the first notes were swallowed up in the chatter; but presently those near the piano grew silent. Others followed their example, and in a stillness that was even more intense than that which had been accorded Paul, Iris' exquisite voice rose and filled the saloon.

Paul, a musician, had been surprised at her singing, but the crowd of fashionable butterflys was astounded.

"Who is it?" ran from lip to lip. "Miss Alfred!" "Nonsense, that's not Miss Alfred, I know her well, the Lyric singer! That is not Miss Alfred! Who can she be?" "What a magnificent voice!" "By Jove, the duchess has made a discovery, indeed!" "Where's she come from? No body seems to have heard her before!" These were fragments which reached Iris' ears, and quivering with suppressed excitement, but, outwardly calm and self-possessed, she rose to leave the piano; but, as she did so, the duchess came up to her.

"Thank you very much," she said; "that was a very charming song, beautifully sung."

"It was composed by Mr. Paul Foster," said Iris, quickly.

The duchess looked at Paul. "Yes! He is very young to compose so admirably," she said.

"Mozart was young, your grace," said Iris, in a low voice.

The duchess looked at her curiously, for, in her eagerness to befriend Paul, Iris has forgotten her assumed role, and spoke as to an equal.

"That is true," said the duchess. "Your young friend has a great future before him, Miss Alfred, and you, also, unless I am very much mistaken," and she smiled graciously. "You have set all my friends talking about you. Will you sing again, please?"

Iris went back to the piano, and Paul placed the song on the rack for her.

"Oh, Mabel!" he whispered, "such a success! If you could only hear them! Let them wait a minute or two—I play a long prelude. Oh, Mabel, Mabel, I am so happy!"

Iris smiled at him gratefully, and touched the keys with her fingers softly. As she did so she heard the duchess say to some one who had just come up:

"I am so glad you have come in time. Beautiful voice, has she not? I am doubly fortunate this afternoon."

The gentleman made some response, and the duchess, as she moved away, said:

"The best testimony to the excellence of the music is the fact that it has kept you from running away."

Then Iris began to sing. Paul had chosen Sullivan's "Will He Come?" and the people listened spellbound at the plaintive melody rose and floated through the room. It was a favorite song of Iris', and she sang it with all the expression which only a woman of culture, who has suffered and can sympathize with suffering, can give to a song. The tears stood in Paul's eyes, and, turning his back to the audience, he fixed them on her beautiful face.

Other persons also were looking at him, for his handsome face had gone very pale, and there was an anxious, eager look in his eyes which was attracting attention. Iris turned her back toward him and caught Paul's arm.

"Let us go now, Paul," she murmured, almost inaudibly.

Then Lord Coverdale bent forward. "Miss Knighton," he said, in a low, unsteady voice, "will you let me speak to you a moment—no word only?" he pleaded.

Forcing her eyes to meet his, though only for a second, she said, in a low voice:

"That is not my name. My name is Mabel Howard!"

A quick flush suffused his face.

"Call yourself what you please, but listen to me!" and his voice sounded almost harsh and stern in its intensity.

Before she could reply the duchess came up, and, after glancing at Lord Coverdale rather curiously, said:

"Oh, Miss Alfred, are you going? I was about to ask you if you would favor us with another song; we are all so charmed with your beautiful voice. Lord Coverdale, I am sure you will second my entreaties."

He regained silent and bent his eyes on the ground.

"I—please excuse me," murmured Iris, pale and trembling. "I am very tired!"

seemingly thrilled or moved. But Iris neither saw nor heard any one but the man at her side—the man to whom she had surrendered Knighton Revels and the Knighton millions.

Other persons also were looking at him, for his handsome face had gone very pale, and there was an anxious, eager look in his eyes which was attracting attention. Iris turned her back toward him and caught Paul's arm.

"Let us go now, Paul," she murmured, almost inaudibly.

Then Lord Coverdale bent forward. "Miss Knighton," he said, in a low, unsteady voice, "will you let me speak to you a moment—no word only?" he pleaded.

Forcing her eyes to meet his, though only for a second, she said, in a low voice:

"That is not my name. My name is Mabel Howard!"

A quick flush suffused his face.

"Call yourself what you please, but listen to me!" and his voice sounded almost harsh and stern in its intensity.

Before she could reply the duchess came up, and, after glancing at Lord Coverdale rather curiously, said:

"Oh, Miss Alfred, are you going? I was about to ask you if you would favor us with another song; we are all so charmed with your beautiful voice. Lord Coverdale, I am sure you will second my entreaties."

A Worn-Out King.

Henry III. was only ten years old when, in 1216 he became king on the death of his father, John. He was crowned at Gloucester, with a plain gold circlet, for the crown had been lost in the waters of the sea, and all true Englishmen were at the time commanded to wear around the head, for a month, a white fillet, in honour of the coronation. The brave and wise Earl of Pembroke was appointed Protector of the realm and guardian of the king, but he died in the second year of the regency, and was succeeded by Hubert de Burgh, the chief justice, or judge, who, with the aid of Langton, the primate, set himself vigorously to curb the feudal barons, and to restore order in the country. Henry was declared of age at seventeen, and then began to reign in person. His sympathies were entirely with the party at Court, which desired the restoration of English influence in France. He married Eleanor of Provence, and Provençal flocked into England to the ill-concealed disgust of the English barons. His desertion of his royal brother-in-law, together with his fondness for foreign favourites, added to troubles with the Church, shook the throne, and raised the hopes of its enemies. At last a civil war was kindled, and riot, the pillage of foreign merchants, and the murder of unhappy Jews followed. But when this war over, and Edward, his son, had joined the Crusade of St. Louis, Henry died at Bury St. Edmunds on November 16, 1872, and was interred in Edward the Confessor's chapel, in Westminster Abbey. He was worn out, it is said, by the troubles of his long reign (66 years), the longest in history except those of George III. and Queen Victoria.

A Beautiful Tribute.

Six hundred British mothers volunteered to bring to the United States the British wreath which is to be placed on the grave of an unknown American soldier. Of these, 300 had lost two sons and 400 had lost one son. The woman who was chosen for the honor is Mrs. Amelia Emma McCudden, who lost three sons, a son-in-law and two nephews in the war and whose husband was accidentally killed at the very time the Armistice ended the fighting. She arrived in Washington on Monday, having landed at Quebec from a Canadian steamship, the Metagama, and will take to the Arlington cemetery, where the unknown soldier is sleeping, the wreath which is the tribute of British mothers. Before sailing Mrs. McCudden said:

"The wreath I bring is built of flowers from every part of the British Empire. It will be laid on the grave of but one American lad—the American Unknown—but it is intended to represent the heartfelt desire of every British mother to place a token of homage on the tomb of every brave American mother's son who gave his supreme all."

The wreath is six feet in diameter, and contains "roses for England, blue violets and forget-me-nots for Wales, heather for Scotland, shamrock for Ireland and white chrysanthemums for the overseas Dominions." With the wreath is a chest carved out of a great block of seasoned oak from the old British three-decker frigate Impregnable. The chest contains a parchment bearing the signatures of thousands of bereaved British mothers, and on its silver cover are engraved the following lines by Arthur Newberry Cloyne:

"There were no leagues so weary but he came, This son of thine; nor any seas too wide, Let me remember it and how he died, Lo! such as this lay down by Mars' porch; And none who keeps their souls proud company, And brings the brave the fragrance of thy name, Who tells somewhere how liberty lives on, Crye one seal more on Liberty's fair page, Oh, splendid be this unknown that is gone, America on such high empassage.

Commenting on the "beautiful sentiment" which inspired Mrs. McCudden's mission, the New York Herald says that the simple words she spoke before she sailed on the Metagama will "go straight to the heart of every war-stricken American mother. They will go straight to the heart of every American man, sea or woman, worthy of the name."—Mass. Recorder.

Are Used to Smuggle Liquor in The United States—Limousines Carrying Handsomely Dressed Women Were Also Utilized.

New York, Nov. 7.—(By Canadian Press)—Prohibition conditions along the Canadian-United States boundary line were discussed at length in Washington last Saturday night by Edward Taylor, Canadian Commissioner of Customs and Excise, Ottawa, and United States national prohibition Commissioner Roy C. Haynes, with a special campaign to be mapped out to check the evil.

In information obtainable was that over the 160 roads leading into Vermont across the Canadian border highly-powered limousines, oftentimes carrying handsomely dressed women, are constantly bringing liquor into the United States. In some cases, it was said, these automobiles are equipped with a special body and tank so designed as to attract no attention from casual observers, yet arranged for carrying a large quantity of liquor. Even spare tires of the machine, it was said, are often filled with liquor.

Technical Committee of Powers Appointed.

Admiral Beatty Represents Britain -Balfour Outlines Position of Empire--Ulster Will Only Recognise Imperial Parliament.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. At the close of the first closed session of the Committee on Limitation of Armaments, Secretary Hughes issued an official communique saying, "A sub-committee, composed of one technical adviser for each of the five powers, was constituted to take under immediate advisement questions raised by the American proposals for limitation of naval armaments and to report to the committee from time to time, the progress of their deliberations. The sub-committee is composed as follows:—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary American Navy; Admiral Beatty, Vice Admiral Denon, Vice Admiral Action, and Vice Admiral Kato, with full powers of substituting for each adviser."

BRITAIN AND JAPAN APPROVE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. In union, the spokesmen of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, today, accepted Hughes' proposals for limitation of naval armament in "spirit and principle," making only reservations for the suggestion of modifications of detail. Mr. Balfour, referring to the far flung nature of the British Empire said, "you will understand why it is that every citizen of the British Empire, no matter where he lives, never can forget that it is by it he cannot live. Taking the battleships as a basis," said Mr. Balfour, "we think the proportions between the various countries acceptable. We think the limitation of armament is reasonable. We think it should be accepted. We believe, thoroughly, it will be accepted." Mr. Balfour suggested that submarine tonnage might well be reduced, and that possibly the construction of large submarines should be prohibited. Suggestions for changes in the proposals, Mr. Balfour said amid applause, would not affect the main structure proposed by the United States. When Mr. Balfour promised the full, loyal and complete co-operation of the British nation toward Secretary Hughes' plan, the audience rose and applauded for half a minute. Baron Kato, speaking for Japan, said, "Japan has no desire for a fleet equal to the United States or Great Britain. Japan is ready to proceed to a sweeping reduction in naval armaments, but wants to propose a few modifications in the United States plan." The conference adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman.

CONGRATULATIONS FROM LLOYD GEORGE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. Mr. Lloyd George called the following message to Mr. Balfour: "The Government have followed the proceedings at the opening session of the Conference with profound appreciation, and wholeheartedly endorse your opinion that the speed made by President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes, were both statesmanlike utterances, pregnant with infinite possibilities. Nothing could augur better for the ultimate success of the conference. Please convey to both my most sincere congratulations."

ULSTER'S REFUSAL.

BELFAST, Nov. 15. U. M. Andrews, Minister of Labour in the Ulster Cabinet, on his return from London to-day, issued a statement as follows:—"Disgraceful betrayal of Ulster has been attempted by the British Cabinet. A suggestion has been made that we should agree to a Parliament for all Ireland with Dominion Powers. We have informed His Majesty's Government that we are not prepared to admit the ascendancy of any Parliament, other than the Imperial Parliament over ours, or to agree to its reserved services being transferred to a Parliament for all Ireland. Our Premier and colleagues have pointed out to His Majesty's Government that any discussion, based on a Parliament for all Ireland, must prove fruitless, and we have asked that this proposal be withdrawn. In the interests of peace we accepted a Parliament of our own as a compromise and final settlement. It is for our opponents, if they desire peace, to accept and work their Parliament in Southern Ireland, in the same spirit, with the object of as-surting a happy, prosperous and loyal Ireland."

IMPERIAL WIRELESS.

LONDON, Nov. 15. The Post Office scheme for an imperial wireless chain has collapsed; being doomed from the outset by the aloofness of the Dominions, according to the Westminster Gazette.

DR. MACPHAIL SHOT.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15. Suffering from monomania in the form of a hallucination that some terrible monster was following him, S. Ogulnik, son of a prominent tailor, shot Sir Andrew MacPhail, Professor of Medicine at McGill and well known publicist, through the shoulder in the latter's office this afternoon. Ogulnik thereupon shot himself, dying immediately. Dr. MacPhail evaded two shots from the monomaniac's revolver, but was struck by a third. His wound is not serious.

STEAMER SUNK.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15. The French Line steamer Maryland, 3905 tons, was rammed by the Japanese steamer Fukuyū Maru, and sunk here to-day in thirty feet of water.

ALARMIST CALLED TO BOOK.

EDMONTON, Nov. 15. The statement of Miss McCallum, Assistant Secretary of the Canadian Council of Agriculture to a Toronto audience that thousands of western farmers will starve this winter, has caused great indignation in Southern Alberta and is branded as an absolute falsehood.

SUGAR PRICES.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15. Refiners to-day reduced the price of sugar twenty-five cents, making the new price $7.75 per hundred, but retail prices are unchanged.

MILK STRIKE BREAKING.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. The first break in the ranks of striking milk handlers in New York metropolitan area, came to-day, when 400 voted to return to work.

ANIMALS TAKEN OVER TO ENGLAND FROM CANADA.

Experts Believe That the Ranches Will Succeed in the Old Land as Well as in the Dominion—Furmen Have Been Made Very Rapidly by Men Who Started the Industry.

An interesting experiment, which is expected to lead to the establishment in the British Isles of an important new industry, has just been begun in East Rosshire, Scotland. A number of silver foxes have been taken over from Canada to form a nucleus of a farm devoted solely to the breeding and rearing of these valuable animals. Unlike most experiments, this one will not be regarded entirely with indifference by the majority of people. The woman who hitherto has been precluded from buying silver fox furs on account of their high price will be keenly interested.

The capitalist who is always on the look-out for new investments will watch the venture with a favorable eye. The experiment's greatest claim to attention lies in the fact that it is likely to be successful. Experts say that there is no reason why Scotland and certain parts of England should not have their fox farms, just as they have their dairy, fruit, and poultry farms.

For the stock they look to Canada, where within the last seven years or so fur farms have become an industry of great importance. This is proved by the recently-published official figures, which show that there are no fewer than four hundred and thirty of these farms in this country.

The value of the land, buildings and stock on these fox farms exceeds $5,000,000. Every year thousands of foxes are born in captivity, while many thousands are killed. In the first days of the industry investments yielded dividends of 1,000 per cent. Since then

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY DO WE DO IT?

"If only that letter had come last night as it should have," a woman said to me the other morning, holding out a letter she had just been devouring. "I should have saved a terrible night of anxiety. I knew I ought to hear and I was sure there was something awfully wrong."

"I don't suppose your letters ever are delayed here?" I ventured.

Every Reason to Expect Delay. "Heavens, yes," she said, "The mail service is perfectly wretched."

"Then why—?" said I suggestively, feeling sure she would know how to finish.

But she didn't. And I wouldn't tell her. But you, who see the thing from the outside, know what I was going to ask, of course.

Why Look to the Least Pleasant Conclusion?

Why do we do it? Why do we spring to the conclusion that something must be "awfully wrong" when the letter does not come, or the husband is late getting home, or a telegram or Long Distance call comes—when there are always plenty of commonplace pleasant explanations.

Why, when over and over again we have seen our past fears look ridiculous in the light of after events, don't we think that these present fears may also be ridiculous?

Why can't we save ourselves suffering? Do we like to suffer? We certainly act as if we do.

We Can Lie Down Or We Can Fight.

Can one help this instinctive fear of loss or misfortune when through our affections and our ambitions we are all so very open to unhappiness? No, not altogether, but one can either yield to the instinct and always let it run away with one, or one can form the habit of summoning one's common sense and courage to fight it.

the returns have naturally declined, but even so the profits are enormous, and big fortunes are being made.

One fox farmer in Canada has made $90,000 clear profit in five years. He started with a capital of not quite $500. Prince Edward Island, where there are over two hundred of these farms, can boast many romances like this.

Fox-farming, however, is not a game for the novice to play. Foxes are fickle creatures. To rear them in close confinement you need to understand them thoroughly. Mother foxes are extraordinarily timid; they will frequently carry their young in their mouths for days, depositing them first in one place and then in another, until the little ones die of exposure and exhaustion.

For this reason the fox farmer must keep a strict watch on his charges. Keepers often have to sit up for nights on end during the breeding season in order to protect the young from the restlessness of the mothers. The actual breeding of the animals, it is to be noted, is attended with few difficulties; it is the rearing that occasions most anxiety.

What are the foxes fed on? Their diet is a varied one, ranging from mice to birds, and from insects to wild berries. Meat is given in considerable quantities, together with table scraps, dog biscuits, and milk. The danger lies not so much in the kind of food given as in the amount. The fox is a prodigious eater.

The silver fox in captivity is inclined to be treacherous towards its owner or keeper. A fox rancher in Nova Scotia not long ago lost his left hand through being bitten by one of his animals. They do not like being handled. Often they will fight among themselves, the strong ones combining to stamp out the weak. A fight in a pen of silver foxes frequently means the loss, in a single half-hour's combat, of hundreds of dollars' worth of animals and fur.

Fox farmers have one great enemy to guard against—the fox poacher. This individual goes to work in an original fashion. Instead of stealing a fox straight from the pen—a difficult matter—he contrives to release, generally at night, one or two of the animals, and then shoots them when they reach the open. In doing this, he is fairly safe, as it is naturally not easy to prove the ownership of an escaped fox in a country where wild foxes are fairly numerous.

An instance of this, and of the amusing manner in which the thief was discovered, is given in the following true story: "A fox rancher recognized a fine pelt in a Hudson Bay Company store as being that of a fox which had mysteriously disappeared from his farm some time before. He communicated his suspicious to the storekeeper, at the same time inquiring the source from which the company had obtained the pelt. In the interests of common honesty the storekeeper agreed to co-operate in a scheme to trap the thief.

A live fox was secured and placed in the drawer where the pelts were usually kept. The suspected person—a ne'er-do-well trapper—was then sent for. He arrived on the scene, fuddled with drink. The storekeeper then explained that a remarkable thing had happened. The pelt which the trapper had sold him, he said, had disappeared, and a live fox had taken its place. It looked as if the skin itself had come to life!

Completely bewildered, the superstitious trapper went to the drawer. Opening it, and seeing a wide-open jaw and two eyes flashing at him from the darkness, he rushed yelling out of the store. The local parson happened to be passing, and to him the terror-stricken man at once confessed his guilt.

Celery tops should be served for perfect salad. Dainty dryness is an essential of a perfect salad. In a small room use curtains of a small pattern. Fish should be thoroughly cooked to be wholesome. Botted leeks are delicious with Hollandaise sauce. The baby's underwear should be ironed on both sides. A little sage and onion improves the chicken dressing.

Take Care of Your Battery

Take good care of your battery this winter and it will more than repay you in service when you begin to drive again next spring. "Good care" if you are using your car through the winter means keeping it fully charged and having water put in when necessary. "Good care", if you are not driving, means the removal of the battery from the car, and storage where it can have the regular attention it requires. This service costs surprisingly little and adds greatly to the possible life and service of your battery.

Why not call up a Willard Service Station NOW before the winter sets in, and have your battery called for. It will be delivered and put on your car again next spring.

Municipal Contest.

Some excitement promises to be forthcoming in the Municipal Elections set for December 15, and campaigning will therefore not be so dull and prosy as anticipated. The fight for the Mayoralty, according to prospective nominees up to the moment of writing, will be waged between two candidates, both of whom have every eligibility for the position of Chief Councillor. In incorporated cities, Mayors are styled Chief Magistrates. In St. John's they are given the courtesy title, and do not sport any chain of office. That a warm and friendly rivalry will eventuate from the nominations of those gentlemen who have consented to seek the Municipal franchise, will add to the amenities of the election, and the friends of both will have to be up and doing in order to secure a majority for their favorite. The qualifications of the two prominent citizens in the running so far for the Mayorial Chair need not be recapitulated just now. They are both well known to the city voters, and will doubtless make a pronouncement of policy when the proper time arrives. Supporters of both are numerous, and may be expected to put in some good work in furthering the civic ambitions of their favorite candidates. This is as it should be. Without a contest the enlightenment accompanying elections would be missing; neither would there be any inducement or incentive to boost the solitary individual nominated, who would be elected by acclamation, thereby depriving the male and female ratepayers within the Municipal boundaries of the pleasure of hearing the exposition of a policy calculated to benefit the future welfare of the city. With a contest there must necessarily be a campaign, and with a campaign there has to be a clear declaration of policy and a clear-cut enunciation of a programme for the future. Electors may expect then, within the course of a few days to have the platform of the rival aspirants made known, and then it will be left to them to make their choice, and cast their ballots accordingly. It is perhaps a good thing for the city that there are two candidates in the running for Mayor. At least it will make for a definite pronouncement from both as to how they purpose conducting civic affairs; and to the man who has the clearest cut policy, without any extra strings or frills or impossible promises, to that man will the taxpayers rally and by their support place him in a position to devote his best efforts to the welfare and well-being of the capital city of Newfoundland. The full tally of Councillors have not yet been made public, but so far as those of them who are soliciting the civic suffrages of their friends go, there promises to be an interesting contest for the six chairs which adorn the Council Chamber in the City Hall. Of the persons of these aspirants for minor municipal honors, we shall have somewhat to say later.

Tragic Happening.

MAN FOUND DEAD ON TORBAY ROAD.

At 7.30 this morning a resident of Torbay Road named Robert Kelly reported to Inspector General Hutchings that near Trico's house, which is 4 1/2 miles from town, a man dressed in oil skins lay face downward in the drain, apparently dead. The Inspector General and Supt. Grimes immediately proceeded to the scene and they discovered that the man was Richard White of Torbay, and that he had been dead some hours. The man evidently had sat on the roadside in the shelter of a small tree and when he expired, fell in the drain. The body was removed to the Morgue, where Dr. Tait was called. He pronounced death due to heart failure. The deceased, who is a butcher, was in the city yesterday and purchased several head of cattle, which he started to drive home during the evening. He was on the Beach at about 5 p.m. in company with his cousin. It is presumed that becoming exhausted in following the cattle the man succumbed. The wife of the deceased was also in town yesterday, and stayed with relatives for the night. The sad news was broken to her by one of the clergymen from the R. C. Cathedral. Much sympathy is felt over the tragic happening as the deceased leaves a large family.

Opened Memorial School.

Dr. W. W. Blackall, C. of E. Superintendent of Education, and Sergt. T. R. Vicketts, V.C., arrived from White Bay by the Prospero to-day. They went north some time ago for the purpose of attending the opening of the Ricketts Memorial School which was erected in the settlement of which only V.C. was a native. The school was built with money raised by public subscription some time ago.

Had Rough Passage.

The Spanish schooner Andervalo, Capt. L. Arreta, 32 days out from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, salt laden to Laso & Co., arrived in port this morning with some of her canvas carried away. The vessel met very stormy weather and last night anchored under Cape Race. Owing to a heavy sea and strong E. wind, the vessel could not hold the ground, and the captain had to make for sea, not, however, before he lost chain and anchor. Through good navigation and seamanship the vessel was kept off the rocks and port reached. The captain also reports the loss of one of his small boats.

Claiming a Fortune.

Efforts are being made by some members of the Baldwin family to establish their claim to about two million pounds, which is now in chancery. The money was left by a resident of Jersey, in the Channel Islands, who died some years ago. The Baldwin, quite a number of whom are resident in Ponch Cove, originally came from Jersey. If the relationship can be traced there is no doubt but a huge fortune awaits the claimants.

K. M. A. At Home.

The Kirk Men's Association held an "At Home" last night in the Presbyterian Hall. There was a large attendance. The Vice-President, Mr. W. Angus Reid, outlined the aims and objects of the Association. A concert was held which was greatly enjoyed. Games of various kinds were indulged in during the evening, and an excellent supper was enjoyed.

Kyle Delayed.

Up to press hour to-day as Kyle had not arrived at Port aux Basques, and it is presumed that she has been delayed by the storm now raging on the West Coast. No report has been received of the Kyle leaving Sydney, but she should have left some time last night. The express, which is awaiting the Kyle's arrival, will naturally be several hours late in arriving here. The Kyle will make one more trip to Sydney and will then proceed from there to St. John's direct; she will go on dock for a general inspection and so that small repairs may be effected. These will probably take about a week.

WEST COAST STORM.—A heavy gale has been raging since yesterday along the South West and West Coast, and as a consequence the Kyle has been delayed in crossing the Strait and the Perla has had to shelter at Channel.

A Grand Dance will be held in the Empire Hall to-night. Tickets 75c. Don't miss it. nov16,21

One Splendid Hour of Glorious Song.

LAST NIGHT'S RECITAL IN THE COLLEGE HALL BY MISS ELSIE HERDER.

Despite the inclement weather which prevailed last night, a capacity audience, attracted by the musical treat in store, turned up at the Methodist College Hall, where for an hour or more they were treated to a feast of vocal and instrumental delights. The recital was for the purpose of furnishing funds in aid of the Methodist Orphanage, and right nobly did patrons respond, braving the storm of wind and rain in order that they be privileged to contribute, no less than to show their appreciation of the talented young lady under whose principal management the programme was arranged. We are indebted to "Viator," in the Daily News of this morning for the annexed tribute to Miss Herder and her efficient aides, to all of whom general thanks are due for one of the most successful musical treats of the season.

"The talented principal, Miss Elsie Herder, presented an attractive programme, every item of which was thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated. Miss Herder's well merited reputation in musical circles justified the expectation that her Recital would add to her laurels. In every song she pleased, in some she excelled her best efforts, and it was noteworthy that despite the heavy strain to which her voice was subjected, the closing number was a triumphant finale to a series of successes. There was a pleasing variety in her selections, Sanderson's "Friend o' Mine" was the opening number. Other songs in the first part were "After" touchingly rendered; Elgar's "Like to a Damask Rose"; Homer's Requiem; Spross's "Will o' the Wisp," as dainty as delightful, and Burleigh's "Little Mother o' Mine." A storm of applause followed and in graceful recognition Miss Herder responded with another number. The second part commenced with Burleigh's "The Sailor's Wife." There are times when a Recital loses its attractiveness because of its sameness. Throughout Miss Herder maintained interest and admiration, not alone by the excellency of her singing, but by its variety. She alternated from grave to gay, from "Penseroso" to "L'Allegro," from the rippling song of lightness to melodies which whispered life's tragedies and sorrows. "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal" was followed by Quilter's "O Mistress Mine." "Blow, Blow, Winter Wind" was realistic, and appropriate to the weather. The closing numbers were in admirable contrast, English, Irish and Scottish: "The Banks of Allan Water," a delightful ballad, with a charm all its own; "Killarney," a song whose sweetness is as the voice of Erin itself; "The Young May Moon," exquisitely sung, with "Angus MacDonald," a Scottish lament closing in an outburst of joyful welcome. "Yes, Angus, my own coming home from the war." Here and there throughout the programme Miss Herder's renditions suggested dramatic power. In Angus MacDonald the suggestion gave place to reality. It was a triumphant conclusion to a well selected programme, and evoked a spontaneous outburst of applause.

In the Recital Miss Herder was assisted by Mrs. John Murphy, Mrs. Herbert Outerbridge and Mr. Liofi Woods. As a violinist Mrs. Murphy has won golden opinions, and last night proved no exception. She is a violinist of exceptional merit, and won the applause and admiration of her audience. Mrs. Herbert Outerbridge's improvisations were clever. She made two appearances, the first calling for a double encore, and the second a triple re-call. To charm and vivacity Mrs. Outerbridge adds elocutionary power, and the joy de vivre. The power she cannot confer, but joy begets joy. Mr. Lloyd Woods is always a favorite. His contribution was a song of the Spanish Maid followed by another in response to an insistent encore. Mr. Gordon Christian was accompanist, and added much to the general success by his masterly manipulation of the keys. Mrs. Walter Rendell effectively and gracefully accompanied Mrs. John Murphy in her violin contributions. To Miss Elsie Herder and her assistants, the Methodist Orphanage Committee are willing and grateful debtors, and so, too, are those whose good fortune it was to be present at last night's recital.

Coming to Newfoundland.

GOVERNOR GENERAL OF CANADA TO VISIT ST. JOHN'S.

Lord Byng of Vimy, Governor General of Canada, informed Mr. Arthur Mews, C.M.G., Deputy Colonial Secretary, who has recently returned from Canada, that he hoped to be able to visit Newfoundland shortly to see the place and the people. Mr. Mews left here about the first week of October to attend the session of the General Board of Missions of the Methodist Church, as lay delegate from Newfoundland. The other Newfoundland delegates were Rev. Dr. Fenwick and Rev. Dr. Saint. The conference which was attended by representatives from all over Canada, met in Toronto. The chief question raised was that of finance. Last year, the expenditure totalled $1,290,000 and the revenue amounted to $1,100,000, the greatest in the history of the Board. The increase in expenditure over revenue was made good from surpluses and savings in expenditure, which had accumulated during the past ten years, but the Board is financially sound as it has a reserve of $300,000. For next year, the estimated expenditure was assessed at $1,250,000 and this will mean that the revenue will be about $150,000 short. The only method of reducing expenditure was to cut down salaries of Home and Foreign Missionaries, but this was not considered wise and it was decided that the excess expenditure should be left to the people of the Methodist Church to make good.

Bishop Usako of the Japanese Methodist Episcopal Church addressed the conference and said that his church was raising $300,000 for a forward mission. He further stated that Anglicans, Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists in Japan had united in the cause of Education. Satisfactory work is being done in China and soon the first native Christian church will be formed under its own constitution and officers.

A school for the training of Missionaries has been formed in Toronto under the supervision of Rev. Dr. Lowell Murray. It has the support of many important colleges.

MEETS LORD BYNG.

Mr. Mews, who was accompanied on his trip to Canada by Sir P. T. McGrath, met Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Canadian Prime Minister, on the journey. Mr. Meighen was electioneering at the time and was accompanied by Minister of Works McCurdy, Minister of Customs Baxter, Solicitor General Fausch and C. G. Canby, head of the Nova Scotia Steel Co. The Newfoundlanders were invited to join the Prime Minister's special and had the opportunity to hear him and his companions speak. Mr. Meighen impressed Mr. Mews as a man of great ability and force of character. He had a clearly defined policy and neither he nor those with him appeared from their speeches, to be extremists. Meighen appeared frank and fearless and the progress he made as he passed through Canada was noticeable. It is yet too early to attempt to determine the result of the Canadian elections but there are three parties in the field and it is expected that none of these will get a working majority and a political adjustment will probably be necessary later. The entrance of Sir Lomer Gouin into the fight should have an important bearing on the result. Mr. Mews met Lord Byng at a luncheon at the Canadian Club where Sir P. T. McGrath delivered an address on Newfoundland. Lord Byng said he was specially interested in Newfoundland because pur regiment served under him in the 29th Division during the Great War. He knew of their work in Gallipoli and France and he had been proud to have such men under him. He then said he was coming to Newfoundland as soon as he could, to see the place and the people. In his address, Sir P. T. McGrath assured Lord Byng of a hearty welcome when he does come here as our DC had a kind remembrance of him. Lord Byng is very affable and has already won the hearts of the people of Canada, despite the short time he has been here.

Mr. Mews attended the great McGill reunion at Montreal and was also loud in his praises of the Canadian civic and educational systems. He saw many former Newfoundlanders during his trip, all of whom were anxious to hear news from the land of their birth.

The Storm on the South West Coast.

A medical man writing from Rencontre West, H.B., to his father in the city, describing the damage done by the recent storm, says: "The new church at Francois, which was partly finished, was blown down. This is the second time that this church has been destroyed by wind. One man's house at the same settlement was turned over three times, and a small shop that was near it, together with a stage, were pitched in the water and later were found on the other side of the harbor. Another man had ten panes of 14 x 20 glass broken off his home. One of Webb's schooners, the Globe, went ashore early during Sunday morning with about 200 qts. of fish on board. Men worked all day and succeeded in removing the fish and afterwards they salvaged the schooner. Another fisherman's house was tilted far enough by the gale to make the kettle fall off the stove. Nearly all the boats in the harbor were filled with water or turned bottom up." The writer said there was not much damage done at Rencontre West.

The regular monthly meeting of the Nfld. Life Underwriters' Association was held yesterday at 1.15 p.m. at the Green Lantern, Theatre Hill. A very dainty lunch was served to the members by the management of this popular cafe and the catering was all that could be desired. At the conclusion of the regular business, the President of the Association introduced Mr. E. B. McInerney, the newly appointed Manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, who was present as a guest. Mr. McInerney addressed the members on "The functions of a bank," and in a very able manner traced the history of exchange banking and banking from the early ages to the present day. In the course of his address Mr. McInerney discussed the subject of Life Insurance from a Bankers point of view and the prominent part that business and corporation insurance was taking in the financing of all business enterprises of to-day. Mr. McInerney is a graceful and polished speaker and made a big impression on the members of the Association. During the past year the Life Underwriters have held many meetings and were addressed by some of the best speakers in the city notably Rev. Dr. Jones (late Rector of St. Thomas), Rt. Hon. Sir R. A. Squires, Prime Minister, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C. and Hon. Dr. Campbell.

Own Your Own Home for Less Than You are Paying Rent.

For $600 cash down we build a nice plain 6 room $1,800 house and give 10 years to pay the $1,200 balance. Payments in principal and interest will average $14.40 per month for the 10 years, when payments cease and buyers own their own homes.

We build up to $3,500 house on this plan. We accept $900 on a $2,700 house; the monthly payments for 10 years to own this averages $21.60 per month.

The actual rent on the $1,800 house is $4.40 per month, as $10.00 per month or $120 per year applies to paying the principal.

On the $2,700 house, payments on principal is $15.00 per month or $180 per year, rent therefore only $6.60 per month. See the $2,500 bungalow we are now erecting on Mount Royal Avenue—$800 down and $20.37 per month for 10 years is the price to own this beautiful home. We are in a position to give good service and value; we operate our own saw mills on the West Coast, also our own factory on Plank Road. We have one million feet of splendid sound, clear lumber of all kinds now in the city, including clear Fir Clapboard.

To parties wishing to build their own home, we supply lumber on 10 years' credit, taking first lien on the building.

Purchasers of lumber of all kinds will find our retail prices low. Stock sound and extra well sawn. Our clear West Coast Fir Clapboard is not equalled by stock sawn in any other part of the Colony.

BARRON-OXLEY.

The marriage of Miss Mary Eugene Barron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Barron and Mr. Harold Oxley, son of Mrs. Oxley of Halifax and nephew of Colonel Oxley of the same town, took place yesterday at the Oratory of the Sacred Heart Convent at 3.30 p.m. At the time the wedding took place, it was snowing heavily and Mrs. Oxley has therefore the distinction of being the first snow bride of the season. The bride, looking charming in a dress of white chamoisee trimmed with orange blossoms and Irish lace. She wore a coronet veil, also trimmed with orange blossoms and carried a beautiful bouquet. The bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Bearns who wore blue and silver with a Dutch hat. Mr. Gordon Bearns was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. J. Gibbs and R. Bearns. The bride entered the chapel on the arm of her father who gave her away. The bride's mother who was present, was gowned in mole velvet. After the ceremony which was performed by Monsignor McDermott, the wedding party drove to the home of the bride's parents where the reception, to which several guests had been invited was held. The health of the bride and groom was duly honoured, and later the happy pair left for the railway station where they took the evening train for Holyrood in which town the honeymoon will be spent. The numerous and valuable presents received were a splendid testimony to the popularity of Mr. and Mrs. Oxley, to whom the Telegram offers its best wishes for a felicitous married life.

New Invention Results in Disaster.

BAKU, Azerbaijan. (Associated Press)—A new Russian invention for propelling railroad cars by the use of airplane propellers has just resulted in a smash up. Captain Simolov of the Soviet army had rigged up a flat car with a motor to drive a big airplane propeller and built a little triangular house on the car. At a railroad junction outside of Baku, he tried to induce a conductor of a train to hitch his airplane car on behind. The conductor refused and the train went on for about three miles and halted. As the passengers in the rear coach were making tea, the airplane car came around a curve going at about 60 miles an hour. Most of the passengers got out of the rear car by way of the windows, and the captain and a girl companion leaped from his flat car which banged into the rear coach, doubled itself up and jumped the track, a mass of wreckage. Nobody was hurt, but the proud inventor of Bolshevik land had gone to smash. The captain said he did not see the train in time to stop but, he added, "anyway the brake does not work." The Russians have been applying this airplane propeller device to push trains, automobiles and boats.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LABOR LEADER'S COMMENT.
LONDON, Nov. 15. Commenting on general principles of United States naval proposals, George H. Barnes, Labor member of Parliament, and former member of the Cabinet, in a letter to the London Times, sets forth the position of labor respecting proceedings at Washington, United States, he says, has taken the place left open for it by the timidity of the League of Nations, and has struck a chord which will find ready response in the mind and heart of labor throughout the world. Secretary Hughes' way is the way for which the masses of the world have been waiting since the termination of the war, he declared, and argues that the United States proposal must be supported against interests, which may presently be raising their voices in protest.

LONDON PRESS OPINION.
LONDON, Nov. 15. Modifications to United States disarmament proposals, suggested by Arthur Balfour, met with a varied reception by the British Press. The Westminster Gazette says Balfour's statements give cause for grave misgivings and disappointment, and condemns the suggestion that the programme of battleship replacement should be carried on from year to year to save the armament works from total destruction.

"This suggested reservation," the Gazette adds, "amounts to a proposal to keep alive, not only vested interests in war, but the whole spirit and tradition of naval competition as a sacred flame, ready to burst into full blaze the moment the holiday is over." The Daily News referring to the suggestion that replacements be permitted continuously on a fixed scale, says: "This seems a dangerous breach of the whole conception of a naval holiday, which might well prove fatal to the American plans. The Daily Telegraph thinks Balfour interpreted the sincere aspiration of the British people, and approves the banning of submarines."

NOT MUCH DOING.—Police Court proceedings were rather dull this morning a few minor cases were dealt with and an action under the Customs Act was postponed. Yesterday afternoon's motor case was adjourned for further hearing.

Live to be One Hundred

Ills That Are Fatal to the Majority of the Race Should and Could be Abolished.

Do you know that under favourable conditions people should live in comfort and health to the age of one hundred years or more, useful and in full possession of their faculties.

Many of the ill that are fatal to the majority of the human race should and could be abolished. There is too much illness, too much suffering, too many premature deaths. It is natural to be healthy—yet nearly all suffering from some ill which deprives them of a part of their power. If you could read through the thousands of books written on hygiene and health, you would realize that in the mass of technical information they contain, the one vital rule that underlies all the precepts of medicine is: Keep the stomach functioning normally.

If people would see that their digestive organs are in good order, most of the ill affecting humanity would disappear. It is easy to prevent stomach troubles—"Gastronol" the new specific for all troubles of the digestive tract is sold everywhere. Its cost is cheap; (each Gastronol bears its name to protect you against dangerous substitutes.)

If you have gas in the digestive tract, or sour stomach, or heartburn or a badly coated tongue, or bad taste in the mouth, or pimples, or a muddy skin—take one or two "Gastronol" after meals. You will be amazed at the wonderful improvement in your health.

If your dealer cannot supply you, address your order with remittance to Dr. J. O. Lambert, Limited, 395 St. Antoine St., Montreal.

Prospero From North.

HAD VERY STORMY TRIP.

After one of the stormiest trips since she has been on the Northern Coastal Service, S.S. Prospero, Capt. Field, arrived at 5 a.m. to-day. The round trip, which is usually accomplished in 10 days, took nearly double that time. The ship left here on Oct. 28th, the day of the big storm. She struck the gale in Trinity Bay and stayed all night at Trinity. She then proceeded to Catalina where she had to lay up for two days. When the Prospero got there, four schooners were seen piled on the rocks. One of these was the Earl Grey which the steamer, later, made an ineffectual attempt to pull off. The havoc caused by the storm was to be seen all along the coast. King's Cove, Seidmore, Keels and Broad Cove were swept clean, Keels suffering more than the other places. Further north the storm was not felt so much. Ashbourne's at Twillingate suffered heavy losses. The lot of the people along the coast is not too good and in many places, particularly in White Bay, immediate assistance is required. Last night the Prospero had to lay up at Bay de Verde on account of the storm. Over 150 passengers were brought along this trip.

The following are the cabin passengers:—Messrs. Dr. Blackall, Ricketts, V.C. Brothers, Dower, Hillier, Clark, Gaulton, Sutton, Foster, Fitzgerald, Hunt, Parsons, Murrell, Yates, Adams, Budden, Bragg, Stantford, Kearley, Baker, Dowser, Coffin, Harriet, Howell, Atwood, Miles, Parsons, Rev. 1920 versus 1921, Overheard, on Water Street, discussed by two respectable ladies, re the difference in money value of 1920 and 1921. Mrs. B. stating to her friend of a coat she purchased last fall at BOWRING'S for $42.00, describing at the same time what a good coat it was, etc. but regretted she had not waited to purchase until this fall, as the VERY SAME COAT can be bought to-day at BOWRING'S, including a nice stylish Felt Hat, 1 pair Ladies' Lace Boots, 1 pair Ladies' I. R. Shoes, 1 pair good Cashmere Hosiery, 1 pair Spats, 1 pair Corsets, 1 Suit Ladies' Underwear, 1 pair long wrist White Wool Gloves, and a fine large kitchen Apron, all for the $42.00—the amount paid last year for the coat only. The discussion resulted in a visit from Mrs. B.'s friend who found her statement absolutely correct, and the $42.00 purchase has convinced her that Value for her money at BOWRING'S is hard to beat. —nov15.31

Wreaths From King George.

From Canada and other British dominions—Placed on the casket of the U.S. unknown-soldier.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Great and small folk moved in endless procession to-day through the rotunda of the Capitol to pay tribute to the Unknown Dead lying in such state there as only martyred presidents have known.

Hour by hour the heaping flowers about the casket grew mountains high and spread about the vast chambers. Among the most formal of the pilgrimages to this shrine of patriotic valor was that of the delegations representing Great Britain and the Dominions. From the British Embassy building there was arranged a parade headed by Arthur J. Balfour, head of the British delegation to Washington and former Premier. Sir Robert Borden, Canada's delegate to the conference, was one of those who accompanied Mr. Balfour.

A wreath from King George was among them, Lord Cavan acting for the King. It bore the legend: "As unknown and yet well known. "As dying, and behold, we live." The inscription on the wreath from Canada read:

"But that what put the glory of a grace into
"All that he did was that he died of pure love to his Country."
"That from Premier Lloyd George said:
"Nameless, yet his name liveth evermore."
And that from India said:
"They never die who die to make life worth living."

There were wreaths also from Australia and New Zealand and all of these except that from India, were made of flowers grown in England and brought over as living plants.

From the Grand Army of United Veterans of Canada, came a wreath placed by Sergeant Richardson, oldest living wearer of the Victoria Cross.

There were flowers from Newfoundland and from the Army and Navy War Veterans of Canada, came a memorial vases of poppies that bloom in Flanders fields.

And beside all the dignitaries Great Britain and the Dominion sent to pay homage, went Earl Beatty, admiral of the fleet; Air Vice Marshal Higgins and others whose roles in the war in which this unknown soldier died, were great.

The flowers actually were handled by his comrades of many armies of the British service, men who also fought in France or on the sea in the great struggle.

Food the Drawing Card.

MOSCOW, (Associated Press)—In cities the size of Petrograd and Moscow scores of street markets have lately been opened. Food is the drawing card. People who haven't money to buy white bread go to the markets to look at the large tempting loaves, and they generally take something with them to sell or barter. They wander from market to market. It is the best way to meet one's friends and hear the news. The wide streets and boulevards of Russian cities, and the great circles and squares afford ample space for markets which, however casual, are confined to the market spaces of imperial days, because of the lack of shops and the universal necessity for barter and sale.

The Peoples' Manifesto.

On Municipal Reform—More Candidates Required.

You folks who love your native town who have both grit and learning; who love to bring her true renown, whose hearts for her are burning, come out, come out, don't hesitate. She surely needs some live men, if not in health; I beg to state she cannot long survive, manly. She needs some help to clean her drains. Their stench is most appalling. To scour her sewers and ditch lanes for such aid she is calling; from off her streets to shift the mud and to make clean her hoppers. Their looks would nearly turn your blood.

In ugliness these whoppers; And to "unhorse" her trot cars An evil most unsightly. As dangerous as the God of Mars The gods they give out nightly; To formulate some modern plans, To make her look more gaily, And to dispense with "ashes cans" Which "crackles" cadence daily; Some dwell in mansions high and wide And dress in silk and satin, Theirs' cheeks reside You wouldn't put a cat in;

'Tis time, God knows to alter this, To alter their condition. Some promised, on it came "na" When they got in position; Reforms are what she sadly need And that is what she "axes"; They should be had, she says, indeed, Without leaving heavy taxes. Dead lies on men who can't be bought, Who know no creeds nor factions; Honest men, and men self-taught; Despising crooked actions; Shall praise such men both day and night.

From honest and from steep, To water their condition. And not forget the PEOPLE. Nov. 16, 1921.

Obituary.

CATHERINE BRODERICK.

There died at St. Brendan's, B.B., on Nov. 8th, a highly respected resident, in the person of Catherine Broderick, wife of Mr. Patrick Broderick, planter of that place. Deceased lady suffered for a considerable time with an internal malady, and all that spiritual and medical aid could accomplish was done for her, but without avail. Her death, though not unexpected, comes as a severe blow to her husband and family, and her loss will be keenly felt. During her illness she was attended by the Parish Priest Rev. Fr. Walker, who did all in his power to alleviate her sufferings. Left to mourn are a husband, four sons, and one daughter, besides numerous friends and relatives in the city, who will be sorry to hear of her passing. Her remains were laid to rest in the family plot, and was accompanied to the graveside by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends. May her soul rest in peace.—S.J.C.

Housing Shortage in Germany.

BERLIN. — (Associated Press).—More than 1,000,000 dwellings, apartments or rooms are needed in Germany to relieve the housing shortage which has been steadily increasing for the last six months, especially in the eastern cities which are crowded with Russian refugees, says an official statement of the housing office. In Prussia alone 555,000 rooms are in demand, an increase of 50,000 in three months and reports from every large city in the republic declare the housing situation is growing serious with the advance of the winter. The need in 62 of the larger cities is described as urgent. The government had indicated its intention of abandoning the "rationing" of rooms within a short time, but the fact that building operations, abandoned during the war, have not caught up with the demands has necessitated a continuance of control of dwelling space. Families, as well as individuals, are permitted to occupy only such rooms as are absolutely essential. This regulation has forced many families with large houses to take in lodgers, fix the charges and make such "living" regulations as are deemed essential. The space, however, must be occupied, and so it has come about that home-owners have invited relatives, friends, or acquaintances to share their houses, many being averse to give accommodations to strangers. On the other hand a number of house owners, formerly wealthy, have found the increasing cost of living so burdensome that they are making an active effort to secure foreign tenants, particularly Americans, English, Hollanders and Scandinavians who are able to pay well. State and city governments and civic organizations are co-operating to solve the problem by a general and energetic construction programme which would comprehend the erection of nearly 1,000,000 homes.

NOTE OF THANKS.—Mr. M. L. Parrell wishes to express his sincere thanks to Drs. Keegan, Cowperwathe and Wilson, Miss Taylor and assistant Superintendent Miss Scott for their attention to him during his recent stay in the Hospital; also to record his appreciation of the kindness received from Sisters Sinyard and Lerner and nurses Chamber, O'Neill, Tucker, Sheppard, Parsons, Hogan, Goss, Hodinot, Hoskins and Sister Long of the Electro-Therapeutic Department and nurse Jones; also to Miss Cotner of the telephone Department. ### A BOOM IN OIL!

Quoting from our New York correspondents, "all signs indicate that an oil boom of enormous proportions is in the making just now, with the likelihood of the recurrence of two years ago, which witnessed the greatest bull market ever seen. We are about at the end of a long depression; production has been lessened and present stocks of crude and refined oils are rapidly being used up, the result of which must be a gradual advance in the price of oil shares."

We especially recommend Midwest Petroleum, Pacific Oil, Texas Company, Middle States and Pure Oil—all consistent dividend-payers, and certain to advance in the immediate future. We are fully equipped to trade on margin in these issues.

A Plea for the Soldier Candidate.

We have come at last to a period where our returned men—both sailors and soldiers—refuse to stand by and see the rights which are theirs by a double claim infringed by those in authority. Politicians and business men, small and great, seem alike in refusing to recognize the obligations to find employment for our ex-service men, in exchange for all those years of comradeship in the hell of the trenches with mines under them and shots over them. God knows, they never turned their back to the foe, and we all of us know that many of those who survived out of the horrible crash and general ruin called war are not only crippled in body but also crippled in efficiency because that they are illiterate and untrained. There are about six hundred of ex-soldiers and sailors, and it is rumored that owing to being unable to pay their taxes one half of these men will be disfranchised at the coming municipal election, and this brings me to my real purpose in writing this short article. Soldiers in this country are scarcely represented in spite of the growing strength of the G.W.V.A. Few or none of our returned lads have applied their energies in the direction of government. It is therefore an encouraging sign to find that one—Mr. Charles F. Garland—has offered himself as a contestant in the coming municipal election of councillors, and I think he is entitled to the support of this town, if only on the grounds that he is a war veteran, one of our Blue Puttees who served in Gallipoli and France, who was twice wounded, who fought nobly beside those other gallant lads of ours, who in 1914 signed on for the biggest job the world has ever engaged in. Apart from which Mr. Garland is one of the people and also one who has had a most excellent training for public work in that very up-to-date night school of journalism—The Daily News Office, where, under the tutelage of the chief of staff he has most surely acquired a fairly good working knowledge of civic and social life in St. John's, though he may never have mastered the intricacies of the highest education; yet very few of our successful men are any better off in that respect, and when all is said, an ex-soldier who is a veteran of Gallipoli, a Blue Puttee, is entitled to set up his claim for any post which he feels himself capable of filling. Can any one asperse the claim of the soldier? I think not. By backing Mr. Garland this town will show that there exists a desire to release our soldiers from the dead hand of unemployment which is at present a heavy burden to the G.W.V.A. Hence and therefore vote for returned soldier Garland when the date comes round and thus by assisting one individual soldier you will promote the welfare of all the members of our greatest organization, each member of which has gone through his own special purgatory.

Electric Wires Down.

Several large trees which blew down near Smithville last night broke the electric wires in their fall. The road was blocked off for a while and as the wires were heavily charged nobody cared to clear a passage way. The Reid Company were notified and some linemen were dispatched to make repairs.

BACK OF THE BLUNDER.
He blundered, and the foreman came And burned his soul with words of shame.
High in the office sat the chief Whose speech was always sharp and brief.
And all he learned was that a man Had spoiled a very careful plan By careless work. In all the place None read the anguish in his face.
He blundered. That was all they knew. A man who had a task to do, Had stumbled and the day was lost—The chief in gold could count the cost. The superintendent fumed and cursed And saw the error at its worst. But not one tried to understand The reason for the careless hand.

He blundered, but not one could know Why he had chanced to falter so; That all night long beside a cot, He'd sit to cool small temples hot And watched, with pulses throbbing wild, The suffering of his little child—That everywhere about the place He saw his baby's fevered face.
He blundered, and men cursed his name And on his shoulders heaped their blame. Yet had they known, who stood to sneer, They would have spoken words of cheer. And had they sought to look behind His blunder and his lapse of mind, And tried to understand his case, They would have seen a sick child's face.

Taking Furs on Labrador

AN OLD TRAPPER WRITES.
An old trapper from Saguare Island Labrador, writing under date of October 21st, says as follows: I have arrived here again and am waiting for the mail boat. It is glorious weather with not a cloud in the sky, although summer has past and the fall has set in. All my family are up to winter quarters and the furring season is near at hand. The cod fishery in this neighbourhood was good. Since I was 10 years old my trade has been that of a trapper, beginning with small furs such as squirrels, weasels, mink and muskrats. I remember well when I caught my first martin how proud I sold the skin and bought two heel traps. There was no small traps then, about 60 years ago. Well from small furs I went on to the larger such as foxes, lynx, otter, blue bear and wolf. Of the latter I have only shot and trapped three. I have however taken 107 bears some small, others very large. A few years ago during a November day after visiting my fox traps I went to my tilt to put up for the night, but when I entered a bear was in possession, having made it his habit for the winter. As I had no gun with me I had to make my way home against very stormy weather. I am now seventy years old and my furring days will soon be over. However I have two sons who carry on the trade here. I have also two daughters in Newfoundland, two on Labrador and three in Canada. They have all wandered away from the old homestead.

OLD FRIENDS.
As down the slope a pilgrim wends, where every brave score scores him, he rather dreads to meet old friends—their conversation bores him. Few gaze upon him and exclaim: "You're looking hunkydory!" You have the same old stalwart frame, your locks are far from hoary! Your step is bold, your back uncurved, you still are spry and handy; you certainly are well preserved, you surely are a dandy!" Few talk in such a pleasant strain when on the pile they meet you; your aspect seems to cause them pain, and with a sigh they greet you. "And so you're bald," they grimly say, "who once had raven tresses; and your complexion, sallow-gray; your breaking-up confuses. And you are bent, or Gaffer Jones, you're doped with pills and lotion; we hear the creaking of your bones when they are set in motion. When last we saw you, years ago, you were the living wonder, and you could lay the fighters low, and pin the wrestlers under. You hobble o'er the paving stones, your face is most forbidding; your knees are spavined. Grocer Jones, your feet are always skidding." The pilgrim, in his weary walk, would have no old friends present, for that's the way old comrades talk, and it's a way unpleasant.

After Going Down Hill Four Years Halifax Citizen is Restored To Health.

"Tanlac made a brand-new man of me and I'm strong for it," said T. J. Long, 78 Maitland St., Halifax, N.S. "I had been going down hill steadily for some time, in fact, four years. I got so weak and nervous I could hardly stand on my feet, to say nothing of doing a day's work. Tanlac straightened me up in a hurry and I eat, sleep, and work better than I have in years."

The above statement by Mr. Long was given about eighteen months ago. When seen recently Mr. Long said "Tanlac certainly did a good job for me, for I'm still in the best of health. It is truly a wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Newfoundland First.

At the Ecumenical Conference of the Methodist Church, the Rev. Dr. G. J. Bond said that "Newfoundland was the first mission-ground of Methodism. It was introduced there by the Rev. Lawrence Coughlan, an Irishman, who had been one of John Wesley's preachers. That was in 1766 one year before Philip Embury introduced Methodism into what is now the United States. So the first Methodist conversion in the New World was in Newfoundland. The first Methodist class meeting was in Newfoundland. Mr. Coughlan formed it within the year of his arrival. More than that, in 1817 there was sent from Newfoundland the first contribution to the Wesleyan Missionary Society outside of Britain, preceding indeed any from Ireland. That contribution amounted to some one hundred and fifty dollars. Last year Newfoundland's contribution to Methodist Missions amounted to about thirty-five thousand dollars. This is the Book of Genesis of Methodism's great world-work from which I am quoting. Newfoundland was first in its first chapter. That is a bit of our church's history which some have forgotten, and very many never knew."

But Newfoundland has other firsts in her history. She is the first colony—the most ancient colony—of the great British Empire. John Cabot discovered her in 1497, and Henry the Seventh has this entry in his munificence in his privy-purse account book: "To himme that founde the new isle £10." My native city of St. John's was the first town in the New World. Sir Humphrey Gilbert planted the Royal Standard there in 1583, and took possession of town and island in the name of his sovereign—good Queen Bess. And he speaks of the settlement as being even then a well-known and popular place. That was in 1583. Where was New York then? Where was Montreal? Where was Melbourne? And there are other significant firsts which Newfoundland claims with pride. To her shores was laid the first Atlantic cable, when, as Whittier puts it, "the lonely bay of Trinity, the virgin shores untrod stoops down beside the silent sea to hear the voice of God." And only a few years ago, William Marconi flew a kite carrying an aerial on the slopes of Signal Hill above St. John's and listened in faith at his receiver, till, at the appointed moment, the symbol of the letter S carried by the waves of the mysterious ether, came to his ear—the first wireless message whispered from Europe to America.—The Wesleyan.

Church of the Redeemer Holds Jubilee Service.

Following the celebration of the Jubilee of the Church of the Redeemer, Avenue Road, a preaching mission is being held this week, with Dr. Edgar Jones, formerly of St. John's, Newfoundland, and now of Newark, Delaware, as missionary. Dr. Jones preached at both services yesterday, the church being filled to hear the great preacher. He was assisted by the pastor, Rev. Canon James, A. F. Barr and Rev. W. F. Wallace. At the morning service Dr. Jones emphasized the necessity of Christians rebuilding their altars and consecrating themselves afresh to the living God. In the evening his subject was from the text: "But God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of Our Lord Jesus Christ." The cross of Christ was the key to Paradise, while the cross of Christ was to the Greeks foolishness, and to the Jews a stumbling block, it was the power of God unto those who believed. A man might be religious, the speaker thought, yet not godly. The heathen who offered prayer after prayer were religious, but not godly. Those who came to church Sunday after Sunday were religious. "But are you godly?" he asked.

The week-day services are to be held at four in the afternoon and eight in the evening, except on Saturday, while a service will be held for children on Friday afternoon.—Toronto Mail.

Brigade Week.

GREAT GYMNASTIC EXHIBITION.

The C.L.B.C. Armoury was filled to capacity last night when the third Brigade Week event, the Gymnastic Exhibition, took place. The exhibition was undoubtedly the finest of its kind ever seen here and our amateur acrobats, who owe a great deal to the help received from Superintendent Holmes, of the Seamen's Institute, should compare favourably with many professional. Amongst those present at the show were His Lordship Bishop White, Battalion Chaplain, J. Britton, Battalion Chaplain, Lieut. Colonel R. F. Goodridge, and several others prominent in Brigade Circles. The C.L.B.C. Band was in attendance and rendered several excellent selections during the evening. The work on the parallel bars was very good, and the "feet must" have severely tried the endurance of the performers. The same applies to the pyramids, both bar and ground. The C.L.B.C. Pyramid squad made a name for itself at various sports and garden parties last summer and were always in demand. Last night they excelled themselves and were greeted with rounds of applause. Their work on the vaulting horse was not the least praiseworthy of their many accomplishments. The events in which the Girl Guides of Bishop Spencer College took part were greatly appreciated by the audience and reflected great credit upon the girls themselves. In the club swinging, even the most difficult exercises were performed in perfect time and rhythm. The sword dance, was capably demonstrated by Misses Muriel Barle, Marion Wood, Mary Rogers, Cynthia Marshall, Florence Pitcher, Jean Hutchings, Erelia Blandford and Ruth Davidson, and was a feature of the exhibition. The last item on a most interesting programme was "Three Crazy Clowns." Fitz, Spitz and Gasp were the names of the comedians, and their ludicrous antics were productive of much merriment. Some of the "stunts" were exceptionally clever and extraordinarily difficult. The hand balancing was wonderful and it is doubtful if anywhere, there could be found acrobats to compare with the Crazy Trio.

Those who took part in the various gymnastic events were Major Fred Marshall, Capt. Snow, C.S.M. Rendell, Sergt. Instructor, Thos. Hammond, Pte. Hammond, Lance Corporal Martin, Lance Corporal John Bartlett, Keats, Bryson, Bee, Arthur Currier, Pte. Donahue, Corporal Leslie Hookey, Sergt. Stone, Lance Corporal Harry Mitchell, Pte. Carson.

To Lieut. W. R. Moty, President of the C.L.B.C. Athletic Association, Secretary Colton, C.S.M. Rendell and all who assisted them, great credit is due for the success of the show. Superintendent Holmes of the Seamen's Institute is also deserving of great praise. For some time past he has been acting as gymnastic instructor at the Armoury and the results of his work were to be seen last night.

The C.L.B.C. Athletic Association has been in existence for some years. Nearly every member of the Brigade, irrespective of rank, belongs to it, and it has accomplished splendid work on behalf of the Battalion.

The officers of the Association at present are:—
Hon. President.—Lt.-Col. R. F. Goodridge.
Hon. Vice President.—Major G. R. Williams.
President.—Lt. W. R. Moty.
Sec.-Treas.—C.S.M. B. Colton.
The Athletic Council consists of Capt. F. Miles, J. Smith, R.M. Williams, C.S.M. Rendell and Sergt. Stone.

The following telegram was received yesterday by Lt. Colonel Goodridge from C. E. Russell of Bay Roberts whose regimental number was 116:—"Please convey to the Brigade my hearty congratulations and best wishes for success of various events during this thirtieth Anniversary Week." This shows that the old Brigade spirit still exists in those who were members in the early days of the organization.

Over eight tables have been sold for to-night's Bridge which means that about 250 people will be present. The Ladies' Auxiliary are responsible for this event.

MIRTHFUL MARRIAGE MISHAPS.

Humors of the Wedding-Day.

"Take a wife, Tim take a wife," Sheridan advised his son.

"Whose, sir?" Tom replied innocently.

The advice to Tom, although that hopeful pretended not to understand it, was good—good, despite "Funch's" immortal "Don't" to those contemplating matrimony.

The serious nature of the matrimonial venture cannot be disputed, although there would appear to be an even more serious aspect of the case—according to the story told of a farmer's daughter. She was about to be married, and her father was talking to her on the gravity of the change of state.

"It's a very solemn thing to be married, Janet," she said.

"Yes, father," she replied, "but it's a main solemn thing 'no' to be married."

And Janet was quite right; but "there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip," and quite a number of upward incidents would seem to conspire to hinder the triumphal march of the young couple before the knot can be securely tied.

Not a few of these wedding-day mishaps arise through nervousness on the part of the bridegroom—he is generally frightfully furred—but his bride pilots him through. For instance, when the groom has to put the ring on the finger of his bride, he is often very awkward, but she is prepared. She carefully doubles down all her fingers but the important one; she makes a dart for the ring with it, and thrusts it through, while the poor man gropes about with trembling hand and bungling fingers.

The Elusive Ring.

The ring seems to be the bete noir of the bridegroom, and has probably caused some awkward moments at the marriage ceremony than almost anything else. It was the cause of the union of two fond hearts being consummated in a curious manner in a Border church some years ago. The groom could not find the golden symbol that was to pledge the solemn vows of the all-important wedding ceremony. He put a nervous finger in the pocket of his vest, shook his handkerchief, felt in the opening of his glove, but the magic circlet was not to be found. As already some time had been lost, the sexton produced the key of the vestry door, the ring of which was slipped over the confused girl's finger, and the two were proclaimed man and wife. If report be true, this is by no means the only instance of the kind.

On another occasion the ring would not go on the finger, owing to a mistake having been made in the size of the ring. The bride was distressed, but the groom, a rather rough individual, said to her—"Suck your finger, and don't act so soft." She moistened the finger, and the ring slipped on.

The Bride's Slip.

That a recent rustic wedding nearly developed into a scream of laughter was entirely due to the bride, who was apparently a great favourite with the villagers, judging by the numbers assembled and the many packages of rice and confetti which they carried. At the critical moment, when the ring should have been slipped on the finger, the high heel of the bride's new shoe caused her to lose her balance, and in her effort to restore her equilibrium she fell "in a heap," as the rustics said, at the bridegroom's feet.

A most awkward accident, truly, the maiden being of somewhat portly build, and requiring the assistance of two individuals to lift her to an erect posture. After this she appeared anything but calm, and when the party turned away from the altar she stooped to pick up her shoe—which had come off during the occurrence—and walked, like the nursery rhyme hero, with "one shoe off, one shoe on," to the vestry, amid the highly amused titters of the onlookers.

Missing Partners.

When either of the contracting parties, however, fails to appear at the appointed hour the humor of the situation becomes less evident. What, for instance, are we to say of a case like the following—we may smile, but what of the twice-disappointed bride? The curate in a London church had received the usual notice to marry a couple on the Sunday morning. When the time arrived, however, only the bride was there. After waiting some time, and no man coming, she reluctantly withdrew. The following Sunday the woman turned up as before, but again no bridegroom was in evidence. After waiting about an hour she became furious, and exclaimed, as she had once more disconsolately retired—"Drai him! 'tain't his trousers this time, 'cause I bought him a pair!"

Another marriage mishap occurred in the Episcopal Church on an Aberdeenshire town on Christmas Day. The party had all gathered, and promptly at five o'clock, the appointed hour, the worthy rector of St.—— commenced the marriage service. Everything, to the rector's mind, seemed to be all right, and he proceeded without interruption till he reached the crucial question—"Do you, John Scott, take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife?"

You might have the bulky rector visibly shrink with consternation when the bridegroom, with a despairing glance towards the door, groaned—"No! I'll be hanged if I do; this is the bridesmaid!"

It was true. The bride had not arrived, and nobody had had the presence of mind to stop the rector, whose thoughts had evidently been filled with pleasant anticipations of his Christmas dinner, and who had been hurrying in consequence. It was beginning to look like a repetition of the story of the lady who fled with Jack o' Hazzard, when the minister's bride turned up a quarter of an hour late, and the knot was firmly tied at last.

Clergyman Surprised.

Officiating at a wedding in Yorkshire a curate had an equally extraordinary experience. He put the same question to the bridegroom, but received no answer save a stare of astonishment. Then the blushing bride nudged her backward groom with her elbow, and said, "Yo mun speak, lad!" Once more the question was put, "Will thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife," etc. And the lad answered in a tone of the greatest surprise—"Why, minister, that's what I comed here for."

At a marriage service celebrated in a little country church in Berkshire, when the minister said in a solemn tone, "Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" instead of the bride answering for herself, a man's gruff voice answered, "O! will." The minister looked up, very much perplexed, and paused. He repeated the sentence, and again the same gruff voice answered, "O! will." Again the minister looked up surprised, not knowing what to make of it, when one of the men at the end of the row said, "Er be deaf. O! be answerin' for er."

A Matter of Degree.

The late Rev. Dr. Hunter, of Edinburgh, has probably one of the most amusing of the wedding-day humors. Early one morning he had a call from one of his many parishioners, who said he had come to ask a favour.

On the worthy minister requesting him to specify its nature he replied—"Well, sir, it's to marry me." "Very good, John," the minister said; "let me know the place, day, and hour, and I shall be at your service." "But, sir," the bridegroom answered, "it's the noot!" (the bride was waiting outside).

"Fishes and untidy as you fare! No, no; go home and wash and dress yourself, and then I shall be prepared to perform the ceremony." "Bless ye, sir, ye should see her!" was the response of the dirty and disappointed applicant.—Scottish Paper.

Navy Men's Medals.

The Dominion Secretary of the G.W. V.A. has received an official communication from the Admiralty, London, stating that the war medals for all men who served in the Navy are now ready for distribution, and applications for same, giving all information regarding period of service, numbers, etc., may be made to the Accountant General of the Navy Branch, Cornwall House, Stamford Street, London, S.E. In the case of those entitled to the 1914 Star, or 1914-15 Star, these are also ready, except those whose surnames commence with the letters B, G, H, J, M, N. There has been considerable complaint regarding the distribution of our ex-Navy men's decorations, and all will be pleased to know that they are now able to secure their well merited honours.

Wedding Bells.

MERCER-MAHER. A very pretty wedding took place yesterday morning at St. Joseph's Church, Holytown, when Miss Carmine Mercer was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Thos. Maher. The bride looked charming in a suit of pearl grey and hat to match and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums and asparagus fern. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. E. L. Mercer of the R.N. Co. Miss M. Dunn acted as bridesmaid. The groom's present to the bride was a set of furs, the bridesmaid a gold piece, and to the best man gold cuff links. The toast of the bride and groom was proposed by Mr. W. S. Sparks and responded to by the groom.

Clothes Closet Fire.

Last evening whilst Sergeant John Nugent was using a lamp in a clothes closet at his residence, Water Street, some clothing caught fire and the blaze quickly spread to the surrounding woodwork. The Sergeant quickly applied several buckets of water and quenched the fire, not however before nearly one hundred dollars' worth of damage had been done.

Presentation at Grand Falls.

On Friday night last a very pleasing function took place at Grand Falls, when Mr. W. Scott, General Manager of the A.N.D. Company, was presented with an address and a handsome silver salver, from the Veterans of the paper town as a slight token of appreciation for the many kindnesses shown by Manager Scott, both to those who went overseas and their dependants left in Newfoundland. The presentation took place in the Parish Hall, which was filled to capacity. The address, which was a work of art, was read by Capt. L. R. Cooper, who also presented the silver salver. He paid a special word of praise on behalf of the returned men and their families and all concerned for the manner in which Manager Scott looked after the welfare of those who took part in the great conflict. It was indeed a privilege to be working under such a gentleman as their General Manager, whose splendid ideals, big heart, and above all his splendid patriotism, was so well demonstrated when the call came, and Grand Falls in common with the rest of Newfoundland, went forward to do its bit. Mr. Scott feelingly replied, thanking the Veterans for their splendid gift, which would always be prized as his most treasured possession. He felt it a high honour indeed to be able to do something for the brave lads who responded so nobly to the call

Municipal Candidates.

The Evening Telegram.
 Sir—Now that the time is approaching when the citizens will have the opportunity of selecting a committee of men to govern our city affairs on the occasion of the next municipal election, it is of interest to you to know that the interest in the matter is being exhibited? Is not the best being exhibited? Is not the best man who will be our city governor after Dec. 15th of more importance than some of the light matters that have been keeping some of our citizens awake at night? Are they not the things that we are going to realize that this old town wants the best man available to take care of it? Is it not a chance to improve with its neighbors along modern lines? Do you realize that there has been a change in the attitude of the people? Do you realize that there is no other to use it for a while and that it is for sunny slopes, but there is to be enough of interested sons of the soil get together and satisfy themselves that the candidates from the city will be the best obtainable and that they are announced to the public as such that they will try and make some policy that this city should be governed by. If they cannot do that, they should realize that the people of this city are fed up on useless and wasteful experiments. I am convinced that there can be found in this city a committee of patriotic men who can make of this town what we all should feel proud to say young men advisedly as I do not too much faith in a man's word after he passes 40 years and his "city fathers" should be formed. What we want as councillors are young men with visions of the future and who will not leave all the running of the city to nature, but will speedily devise ways and means of scrapping the ancient ideas and adopt those that are modern and right now is a mass meeting of citizens at which candidates should be nominated and to back up a nominee an outline of the qualities that he possesses should be given, that those from whom he solicits support would have a guide when making their ballots. It is to me that I am concerned in the least of getting any of those who are offering to make those suggestions, that we all as citizens avail of the best opportunity of taking an interest in the matters that affect even some of us.
 Yours respectfully
 GEO. TUCKER.
 Nov. 15, 1921.

Praise of Mr. Lester.

The Evening Telegram.
 Sir—Since Saturday a rumour has been abroad in the city that a man is on foot for the reinstatement of Mr. Charles Lester in the office of the Truckmen's Protective Association, as well as hundreds of others. I, as well as hundreds of others, know that Mr. Lester is a man who is known popular with all classes. I know him intimately for the past 15 years and since he went into the contracting business I've been frequently a witness of his kindness to men working under him and his making unostentatious efforts to help the poor in the matter of debts of coal. Each winter, no matter how bad the weather, no matter how remote the location, if a poor man required fuel Mr. Lester would spare the valuable horse flesh of his team, but cheerfully risked it to supply to impoverished homes. It must be said that his men generally were in his charitable hands in this respect. Last winter the stormy in our annual well demonstrated this, when in serving the poor in distant localities on the high seas he lost in the drifts some of his horses, and notwithstanding great loss cheerfully risked other means in the same generous effort.
 In connection with picnics the various organizations each summer have been the beneficiaries of his liberality. It was in the busiest season he has ever known and motor and other means for the conveyance of teachers and children, while his grounds on Wall Avenue and elsewhere have been placed freely at the disposal of picnickers. The same applies to patriotic demonstration or parades.
 Mr. Lester employs some 140 men, and I know for a fact that these men regard him with the warmest feelings for often in times of depression when there was little to do Mr. Lester kept his help and paid them their weekly wage, especially the married men who had families to support. In cases of mishap or misfortune he was always the sincerest sympathizer and liberal helper. I am not by no special motive in writing this do of Mr. Lester, except to bring an effort to do justice to a fine man. The Truckmen's Association and support, but I imagine that the premises—even Mr. Lester's ability of a far greater assistance that attributed to him—less than that of Mr. Lester, who has been exonerated from the T.P.A. Hoping that Mr. Lester will soon be reinstated, with thankful anticipation.
 Yours truly,
 LABOURER.

GYMNASTICS (concluded)

The Rings—Combined rings give a varied course of movement, similar to those brought about on the trapeze. The rings should be each five inches in diameter, and suspended some five or six feet from the floor, and about eighteen inches apart.
 First.—The pupil, standing between the rings, straps one in each hand, lowers his body till the arms are fully extended, extends his feet, and holds his legs in a horizontal position.
 Second.—He then throws both feet upward, turning a somersault between the rings, the arms and legs being held straight throughout.
 Third.—A slow descent is then made to the ground completing the circle and relinquishing the grasp.
 The Horizontal Bar.—The exercises upon this gymnastic appliance are very valuable for the distinct reasons: First, on account of their own intrinsic merit, and second, from the circumstance that they are capable of being executed by an entire class at the same time, all obeying the same word of command.
 First, travel along the bar with the arms bent, the right hand leading; second, passage along the bar with the legs bent at the knees; third, springing from the ground and grasping the bar on its right and left sides with both hands, passing the left leg over the bar, and assuming the position with hands and left leg supporting the body on the bar.
 The Inclined Ladder.—This appliance not only improves muscles but bestows a courage which may become useful in case of fire. A regular exercise is ascending with the right hand leading, and descending with the right foot leading. A second is ascending by means of the hands only.

 Having thus given a fair amount of space to gymnastic exercises, we now draw the line and begin on another series.

CALISTHENICS.

Nature.—Under the title, calisthenics or graceful movements, are classed those light exercises, having in view the same object as heavier gymnastics, also to delicate adults, especially females, and can be practised in large classes under the direction of an instructor, or alone in private. They can also be practised in an open porch, near an open window, or out in the air, in such a way as to secure the greatest amount of vitalizing oxygen. Again there is economy in calisthenics, for there is no expensive apparatus, the only need being a few inexpensive appliances.
 Suitability.—They are better suited to children than heavier gymnastics, also to delicate adults, especially females, and can be practised in large classes under the direction of an instructor, or alone in private. They can also be practised in an open porch, near an open window, or out in the air, in such a way as to secure the greatest amount of vitalizing oxygen. Again there is economy in calisthenics, for there is no expensive apparatus, the only need being a few inexpensive appliances.
 Variety.—Of the simple forms of apparatus, dumb-bells are among the more ancient and popular. There are many varieties of dumb-bells—heavy, light and middling. They also differ as to substance—iron, wood, etc. The value of each variety depends on the mode in which it is used.
 Rules for Beginners.—A good rule is to begin with dumb-bells each one equal to one-fiftieth the weight of the body for males, and one-twentieth for females. After a few weeks, if implements of this size are not found to call forth a sufficient amount of muscular energy, they should be substituted for heavier ones. It is advised to increase the weight of the dumb-bells about fifty per cent. every time a change is made. The best way of all is to make such alterations of the resistance to be overcome only under the direction of a medical man or an instructor in physical education. Before proceeding with dumb-bell exercises here are some more Physio-Physical Exercises:
 (1) Heels together, hands resting one on each thigh at top. Now press on thighs as hard as you possibly can, at the same time allowing the hands to slip downwards until they reach the knees, and the back to bend slightly, and the body shrink up as it were, leaning back slightly all the time. Return and repeat. Expand chest on rising erect again. For Rectus abdominis.

 (2) Hands behind back as low as possible. Shoulders forward, chest contracted. Expel the air from the lungs, then press backwards as hard as possible with the elbows and shoulders, expanding the chest as much as possible and grinding the muscles of the back well together. Return and repeat. For straightening round shoulders and improving flat chests. Trapezius, rhomboids, etc., lung and chest expansion.

The Loveliest Women in Europe.

On November 16, 1866, was born Aurora of Koenigsberg, daughter of a Swedish count. She was considered the loveliest woman in Europe, with a figure perfect in grace, hair black as jet, and a skin of dazzling whiteness. One day this girl presented herself to Augustus, Elector of Saxony, the King of Poland, to crave his help in recovering the fortune of her late brother from the hands of the bankers, who refused to part with it. It was a fateful meeting. At the first sight of Aurora's beauty, Augustus became a slave, and from that moment he was caught in her toils. He asked her to become his guest, and she found herself installed at the Dresden Court, surrounded by homage and luxury. Touched by her lover's unyielding loyalty, she at last began to listen with an unwilling ear to his vows. Then followed for both a few golden years, a time of unclouded splendour and happiness for the woman in whom pity for her lover was now replaced by a passion as ardent as his own. She was now Augustus's queen in all but name, receiving universal homage. The end of Aurora's queenship came when Augustus, who could not always remain true to any woman, however beloved, was caught in the toils of another enslaver, the beautiful Countess of Esterle. Realizing that her sun had set,
