STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE AND REVENGE

CHAPTER I.

"This white one is called 'Queen Marie,' she said, 'and the red one is 'Eria's Pride.' Which will you have, Sir Karl?"

Sir Karl had been piqued and hurt; he thought only of giving a passing thrill of vexation to the girl whom he really loved, but by one trivial act he decided her destiny and his own. Dolores watched him with wistful pain. If he took the white rose, she would know that he loved her best; if not—

Lola looked with great, shining eyes into his face.

"Take your choice," she said; and he took from her hand the deep-crimson rose, "Eria's Pride."

No one saw that the fair, young face grew deathly white, that the golden head drooped for a moment. Then Dolores raised it with proud, careless grace.

"I will sing now, Sir Karl," she said, "if you still wish it."

"Certainly I do," he replied offering her his arm.

CHAPTER V.

It was all over now, Dolores told herself. There was an end of her dream. Some one else had taken her place at the piano, and a beautiful voice was filling the room with melody. Just then she was hardly capable of a clear thought. She did not know that Sir Karl stood watching her with wistful eyes, eyes full of pain and wonder, that last "good-bye" ringing in his ears and stirring his heart. He could not help seeing that she had sung it with a purpose; and that purpose was to bid farewell to him. "Too late!" Ah! it was indeed too late! But if it would be for her happiness, he must be content.

"She does not look like a girl who would sell herself for money," he thought. "She has the face of one who could give her life for the man she loved."

"She might have said 'good-bye' quietly," he thought, "and not have sung it in words that must haunt me until I die. She sang them reproachfully, too, as though it were my fault that I am her last friend. I should have been her friend until death, but she is marrying for money and not for love."

The miserable night came to an end at last. Sir Karl went away first, and Dolores was driven home in madame's carriage. The girl was thankful to be alone, to be where she was not compelled to smile, and talk while her heart felt ready to break.

people. I am too young to have thought of such things. No one cares for me; believe me, papa."

If he had been more shrewd and worldly, he must have noticed that, although she repeated her statement that no one cared for her, she never once said that she cared for no one. The Squire went on.

"I was a coward yesterday, Dolores. The idea of poverty frightened me. I could have cried like a child then; but now that I look at you, Dolores, in the light of another day, I feel braver and stronger. In the course of nature I cannot live many years. What does it matter, if only you are happy, dear?"

There was a faint quiver on her lips; and then she said—

"I am quite happy, papa. In the years to come, when you think about this, and about my marriage, always remember that I was quite happy, that I had no regrets, and that I was most grateful to the generous man who rescued us."

He listened attentively.

"These are pleasant words, Dolores; but they have not the right ring."

"You may believe me," she said.

"You must always remember that I am perfectly happy. If ever you see a cloud on my face, tell me about it; if you find my spirits flag, then you may believe that I am not happy. Kiss me, papa, and tell me you believe me."

He kissed the sweet face and laid his hand caressingly on the golden head.

"I believe you, my darling, and I am quite happy too, in the belief."

Then she rose from her knees and busied herself in arranging his papers.

"I will write to Lord Rhysworth today," she said; "and perhaps he will come over. Papa, grant me this favor; if he comes, see him for me this once. I will see him to-morrow."

"This the old Squire promised to do."

"Dear Lord Rhysworth," Dolores wrote—"I have been thinking well over the question you asked me, and I have come to a decision. I thank you for your generous offer, and, in accepting it, assure you that it shall be the one endeavor of my life to make you a good and faithful wife."

"I am, dear Lord Rhysworth, yours very sincerely,

"DOLORES OLIEFDEN."

It was not a very enthusiastic love-letter, but honest and true.

She meant just what she wrote, that she would endeavor to be a true and good wife to him as long as he lived. In her own heart there was an unuttered prayer that her life might not be a very long one. She was not quite aware of it herself.

Lord Rhysworth received the letter, and was transported with delight after reading it. He went at once to White Cliffe, where the Squire received him with heartiest welcome. He did not see Dolores. She was fatigued, the Squire said, with her long evening at Beaulieu. If he would ride over on the morrow, Dolores would see him then.

Without having gained a glimpse of the fair face he loved so dearly, Lord Rhysworth went away. That same evening from Deeping Hurst came a magnificent bouquet for Dolores; and never a day passed afterward without presents of fruits and flowers finding their way to White Cliffe. The old Squire seemed to grow young and strong again under the new influence.

Next day Dolores saw Lord Rhysworth. He kissed her hands with old-fashioned gallantry.

"You have made me the happiest man on earth," he said, "and the devotion of my whole life shall repay you."

"I will do my best to make you happy," she answered.

And that was all the wooing that ever passed between them. It was enough, perhaps, for reason and common sense; but, alas, for the girlish dream of love and romance! How would it end?

Treasures of Humble Plants
UNLOCKED BY NEGRO SCIENTIST.

TUSKINGEE, Ala., June 14 (A.P.)—With magic touch Dr. George W. Carver, negro scientist who for the past 30 years has been a member of the faculty of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute here, has opened a treasure trove of nature, hidden for centuries.

Concealed under the guise of a sweet potato, a peanut and a pecan, nature had hidden a myriad of useful products, and these have been disclosed by Dr. Carver, who was born in a slave home on a Missouri farm.

The record of this scientist-to-day stands: More than 100 commercial products from the sweet potato, 200 from the peanut, and more than 60 from the pecan.

Not stopping with that, Dr. Carver has transformed a lump of southern clay into beautiful colors, one of which is the Egyptian blue, the secret of which was believed to have died and been lost to the world with the ancients of the Nile valley.

This worker with the soil also has been given a Fellowship in the Royal Society of Great Britain, and in 1923 was awarded the Spingard medal which each year is given to the male or female of African descent, and American citizenship who shall have made the highest achievement in any field of human endeavor.

Uncommon Sense
By JOHN BLAKE.

OVERSTOCKED.
It is as useful to know what to forget as what to remember.

People with phenomenal memories are rarely phenomenal thinkers.

On the other hand, many gentlemen who have great difficulty in remembering where they left their hats or how much they paid for the last umbrellas they bought are very often of great intellectual capacity.

Recently a young man has astonished beholders in some of the big cities in Europe and America by reading over pages of logarithms—which are long strings of figures—and repeating them all accurately a little later.

One would as soon expect keen, analytical thought from this youth as to expect to find the junk stored away in an attic lumber room to be all docketed with a card index system.

There are many things that we need to remember—among them being the words of a foreign language we happen to be learning, or the vital and needful facts concerning our particular business.

There are other things which are not worth remembering at all.

We know of a young man who spent hours every day learning in alphabetical order the names of every county in every State in the United States.

Had he been a sales manager, with agents in all these States, the knowledge he thus acquired might have been useful.

But he was a bookkeeper in a small store, and consequently the strain he put on his memory did him no good whatever.

Anything that can be found easily in reference books which are close to hand, is not worth storing away in the brain, if that storing away requires special effort.

Observation will train the memory sufficiently for all purposes if it is actively employed while acquiring knowledge.

The student who thinks about the book he is reading, the man who listens attentively to the words of a lecturer, will take away all the knowledge he needs to take away.

The most tiresome people in the world are those who remember every detail of every event that ever happened to them, making no distinction between the important and unimportant, and thereafter insist on repeating their stories to any one who will listen.

Treat your memory as you would treat your body. Keep it active and alert and ready.

But don't overload it. Half the things it now retains will never be of any possible use to you on this earth.

The record of this scientist-to-day stands: More than 100 commercial products from the sweet potato, 200 from the peanut, and more than 60 from the pecan.

Not stopping with that, Dr. Carver has transformed a lump of southern clay into beautiful colors, one of which is the Egyptian blue, the secret of which was believed to have died and been lost to the world with the ancients of the Nile valley.

This worker with the soil also has been given a Fellowship in the Royal Society of Great Britain, and in 1923 was awarded the Spingard medal which each year is given to the male or female of African descent, and American citizenship who shall have made the highest achievement in any field of human endeavor.

English Experts Labor
TO IMPROVE ALUMINUM.

London, May 28.—In the confident belief that aluminum is to be the metal of the future, a big staff of research chemists is investigating the metal at the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington-on-Thames. Several valuable discoveries have already been made. One of the chemists, J. D. Grogan, had this to say to a reporter:

"We have found how to make this metal, hitherto a somewhat poor conductor of electricity, of good conductivity. Aluminum has been slowly replacing copper in electrical undertakings, particularly for high-tension cables, and our discovery will help it to replace it much quicker. This alloy is both cheaper and of higher conductivity than copper, weight for weight."

IN THE RIGHT
How stately is the officeholder who sternly says, "Kerchoo! I always am prepared to shoulder the blame for what I do. The right is always what I'm after, and it's a leadpipe cinch, that neither threats nor scornful laughter can move me half an inch. You say if I support this measure, which I consider right, constituents will take a pleasure in bidding me good night. If I oppose this other measure, which I consider wrong, I'll lose the job you think I treasure, and join the lame duck throng. Ah, well, gee whis and gonner-wetter. I am a stubborn wight; and how can any gant die better than for eternal right? I do not fear your red hot brasses, the grisly threats you sling; good day, you all may go to blazes—I'll do the honest thing." How stately is the officeholder whose conscience is his guide, whose eyes grow colder still and colder when tawdry tricks are tried. He does what's right, while pliers wonder, and say, with seeping sob, "We'll surely shoot him all to thunder when next he seeks a job." But when the righteous guy goes gunning for office once again, the voters to his aid come running, in blocks of five and ten.

She stated that she had succeeded in cultivating animal tissue outside the body, and exhibited a spinal cord, heart, and other matter from embryos and grown-up guinea-pigs, which had grown for some weeks in a salt solution.

Dr. Erdmann's work is described as an advance on that accomplished in America by Professor Carrel, who kept the heart of a chicken alive for twelve years in a similar solution.

100-Mile Walk Without Eating.

It is Ellason's contention that a man in good health can fast and at the same time subject himself to a severe physical test. While on the trip he will take nothing except The Hollywood man will fast for four days and then start his hike, which will take, according to his schedule, twenty days. This calls for walking twenty-five miles a day.

FRENCH PRESIDENT'S FIRST MESSAGE.

PARIS, June 17. Gaston Doumergue, France's new President, in his first message to Parliament to-day, declared that Germany, before the Reparation Experts' report was put into effect, must prove her good faith. Such proof, he insisted, must come "from facts and not from mere engagements without previous assurance of fulfillment." "France's conciliatory spirit, which is sincere and indisputable," he continued, "cannot go so far as to null her vigilance and make her forget the lessons of haste." The President laid stress on the statement that France could not renounce her own force nor control which the treaties give her the right to exercise over Germany.

A Fallen Idol

One of the outstanding points in connection with the recent Newfoundland election is that polling showed that the power of Sir William Coaker has greatly weakened. Sir William Coaker, as head of the Fishermen's Protective Union, has been a dominant force in Newfoundland politics for some years past. A man of limited advantages in early life, he is a man of unusual ability. He built up the Fishermen's Union wonderfully, and in some ways, no doubt, helped the fishermen a great deal, but of late years he has used the organization for his own political purposes. His influence over the members of the Union enabled him virtually to dictate Newfoundland politics. But in the latest election there was a change. The fishermen did not follow Coaker as they had done in the past, almost en masse. Some constituencies which had taken his lead in former contests went against the candidates he had approved. The fishermen will continue to be a chief factor in Newfoundland political affairs, naturally, but Sir William Coaker is not likely to be a dominant figure any longer.—Sydney Record.

Many Score Ships to Fight Rum Row

75-FOOT PATROL BOATS FOR LAKES AND ATLANTIC.

Detroit, Mich., June 12. (Star Special).—Plans are being made to rush to completion new coast guard vessels on the Detroit River and the great lakes for the enforcement of Volstead and other laws against smuggling. It is expected some will be ready by fall.

A force sufficient to cope with rum runners is to be installed on the lakes though the situation, it is stated, is not nearly so urgent as along the Atlantic coast when men are enlisting for the prohibition navy at the rate of $5 a day.

Twenty-five of the 75-foot patrol boats are being constructed in lake waters. It has not been definitely settled whether all will be used there.

All told, 150 of these patrol boats are being constructed on the lakes and the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. They will be of high speed and efficiency. Contracts have also been let for building seventy 38-foot picket boats. Ordinarily they would require an entire year, but by apportioning the work to a number of concerns it is hoped to complete the construction in three months.

The rum navy will be augmented by a large number of destroyers, which will be used for big operations, chiefly along the Atlantic coast.

Winter is expected to find the lake vessels fully manned and equipped.

Prohibition Which Does not Prohibit

Why prohibition does not prohibit in the United States is suggested by conditions in a typical American community. In an alleged clean-up of Princeton, Kentucky, where they boast of their undiluted 100 per cent. American Anglo-Saxon blood, five of the chief prohibition agents were arrested for violations of the law. City Judge R. F. Dorr, describing the conditions which led to the clean-up, said: "Last week it was possible to get a drink in most any church, and it was nothing unusual to see a bootlegger teaching a Sunday school class." When the leaders of prohibition set an example of evil-doing, the hot pot will naturally follow suit. Prohibition and anti-saloon leaders are going to jail every day for graft and corruption, which explains why Uncle Sam continues thirsty and wet. —Catholic Register.

Easier, Quicker Shaves for every morning

You can't very well go wrong, in making this slight effort to find better shaving. A million men have made the test we ask of you. They will tell you that we have succeeded in improving shaving—in 5 distinct ways!

To save sensitive skin, and to save time every morning, we ask that you try Palmolive Shaving Cream for 10 mornings—at our expense.

What 1,000 men told us
 We have been experts in soap-making for 60 years. And we knew that a real shaving cream could be produced.

So we determined to produce it. We started out by asking 1,000 men what they wanted a shaving cream to do. Then we asked well-known experts what they thought a perfect shaving cream should do. All this before we started the actual work. The job took 18 months. We made and tested 130 formulas before we were satisfied.

Then we asked a million men to test Palmolive Shaving Cream—just as we are asking you, now. At our expense.

It meets every demand
 Results have been amazing. Men who were wedded to other creams, powders, sticks, the old-fashioned mug-and-brush method—millions of men switched to Palmolive Shaving Cream. And they never switch back!

Because it gives them quicker shaves—easier shaves. And leaves faces soothed, comfortable, cheerful for the day.

There are 5 distinct reasons for this! They are given elsewhere in this ad. Qualities you get only in Palmolive Shaving Cream.

Now you test them, please
 We do not ask you to be convinced by even this overwhelming mass of evidence. But we do request the courtesy of a test—at our expense.

There is nothing for you to lose—and everlasting shaving-comfort to be gained. Simply send the coupon, filled in. We will supply you, at once, with a free, 10-shave tube.

Do it today—right now.

When Wembley Sleeps

KEEPING THE SWITCHBACKS FIT. Actually, Wembley never sleeps. But, when the last visitor has been ushered out of the gates, it just dozes off a little and snores, as it were, with one eye open, until ten o'clock comes along next day.

It is when the last visitor has gone that the great night work at Wembley is started. The three million lights go out as if the man at the switch were really one of those pantomime magicians who turn kitchens into fairy palaces. The trial minarets of India lose all their rose light and might be ordinary factory chimneys for all you know. Canada looms out like a great ship asleep, a gardener trails a hose along the park, like a swishing serpent.

In the Amusement Park, there is an army of men carrying spanners. They climb over every inch of the forest of scaffolding in the Great Racer and the Switchback and test and prove every bolt and screw. You can hear them climbing—tapping—and then climbing on again. The Felix man and the Skee Ball man who have nothing to do. They just put up their shutters and go home.

The Fireman, all of whom know the merry mudday days of France, sit around their barbed scarlet and brass engine and tell tall tales of "other days." One remembers playing golf on "this very spot" forty years ago. Great heaps of orange skins, paper, cigarette packets and rubbish are swept from the paths... glistening empty bottles are rudely dragged into the limelight, from beneath trees and seats. Down by the Palace of Arts, the 300,000,000 year-old wishing stool, a fossilized tree trunk from Midland mine is the centre for a veal and ham pie supper party and the inevitable "George" sits on the wishing stool and wishes for a "dozen bottles of bubbly and a couple of turkeys."

But the Wishing Stool is in the union and it doesn't work after five o'clock. It is in the Amusement Park that the great work is done. During the day, Priests, butchers, bakers and candlestick makers are whirled this way and that on the scenic railways and racers and the bewhiskered mechanics must see that all is inspected and safe—a fact that is re-assuring to the confirmed "Switchbackist."

The Coal Mine is dark and still and you know that, far down, the pit ponies are sleeping. The girl who falls out of bed if you hit the bull's eye above her head has gone home and one only hopes that her real bed time is not disturbed by dreams of the eager youths who buy "four shots at the bullseye for sixpence" for the Despicable Tactics of the Opposition Organ.

In yesterday's issue of the Evening Advocate a futile attempt was made to undermine the confidence which the public showed in the Prime Minister in such an unmistakable manner at the polls, and to insinuate that he was not the moving spirit of the Party and the Leader in fact as well as in name.

Whatever effect the Advocate formerly possessed to influence the public was completely destroyed by its own actions during the recent campaign, and before any reliance will be again placed in its utterances, the indications that the severe lesson which it was taught have caused it to reform will have to be more apparent than they are at present.

For the moment it is sufficient to say that the man who lead the party to victory against the Hickman-Coaker combine, who showed in such an unmistakable manner the qualities of leadership and fearlessness in carrying the fight to the Coakerites in their own stronghold, and in administering a defeat that will ever be remembered, is not of the type who shirk responsibilities or share their command with anyone. The occasion found the man and the country relies implicitly upon the integrity of Walter S. Monroe and upon his ability to make full and proper use of the opportunity afforded him.

We take this opportunity to remind the Advocate that not long since it was compelled, reluctantly, we admit, to retract a statement which it made to the effect that the Editorials in the Evening Telegram were written by a gentleman who was not connected in any way with the journalistic staff of the office. It repeats the statement in yesterday's issue, and it gives us much pleasure to categorize the assertion and altogether in keeping with the policy of mendacity which it adopted during the campaign, and which caused even the most credulous of its supporters to disassociate themselves from it.

The tone adopted by the Advocate since the elections makes it obvious that the welfare of the country is only a secondary consideration as compared with its own selfish interests. Already there is every indication that the confidence of the outside world has been regained with the return to power of a stable Government. On all sides there is a brighter outlook in our industries, business firms have taken on a new lease of life, and the future gives every promise of a return of prosperity. This does not appear to appeal in the least to our opponents, who in their chagrin because of their defeat resort to the most despicable tactics in the hope of embarrassing the Government.

Their efforts, however, are a useless expenditure of energy which might be better employed. The country to-day is even more solidly behind Monroe and his Party than it was on June 2nd, and with that support and the mandate received from the people, the Government intend

Violent Assault by Escaped Lunatic

On Thursday evening last, a male patient of the Lunatic Asylum escaped, and made his way home towards North Arm, this morning, at that place a year old boy named Kelly, attracted his attention. The lunatic, so it is stated, badly maltreated the child, seizing him by the stomach in his powerful grasp, he attempted to disembowel him. He then took the child by the arm and smashed the limb. The authorities were notified of the lunatic's escape and Constable Constable Grouchy rounded him up and brought him back to the institution. The child will recover from his injuries.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

June 17th.—A fair day, albeit not very warm in the morning. Most of the day at the office, being put to some trouble to decipher my income tax forms, and indeed the greatest hardship that the Government should make a man pay his tax, and with it cause him to solve a problem of mixed hieroglyphics and higher mathematics. To the Board of Trade, and hear some good discourse of Mr. Edgar of the Wembley Exhibition, which indeed, I would myself see were it not that my wife would deprive herself of none of those unnecessary to-do-ros which I must pay for daily. Mr. T. Ashbourne coming in, I to congratulate him on his election to the House, where he will sit in Opposition. So home, and with my wife to the Garden Party at the Mayor's place, and the greatest crowd there that ever I did see, all merry. So to partake of a dish of tea, and then to Povey's to discourse of divers public affairs over a bottle of good beer. He talks of Haig's coming, and the programme for the week he will be here mighty varied. On July 1st the Memorial will be unveiled after the troops have marched past, and on the following day there will be a review of troops, Brigades, and Guides. Both afternoons will be given up to sport. Among others, Mr. Victor Gordon, the new High Commissioner, comes for the ceremonies, but Mr. Kipling will not be here.

"The Cowboy and The Lady"

STAR MOVIE TO-DAY.

The music loving people of the city, as well as the thousands of patrons of the popular Star, will learn with regret the departure yesterday of the talented Hawaiians, who have been filling a most successful engagement at this theatre, and in learning of this we feel sure they will have the sincere sympathy of all. A telegram received on Monday evening contained the sad news of the death of their father, with the result that they left yesterday's express for New York City, to attend the burial of their beloved parent. It was indeed a sad case for them as they were so well admired both socially and professionally and as stated they will have the heartfelt sympathy of all.

The show to-night is a most appropriate programme, with Mary Miles Minter in the feature picture, and funny Jimmy Aubrey producing the laughs at the rate of one a second in his comedy "Mates and Models." The management wishes to draw the attention of their patrons to the change in the admission price, from now on it being twenty cents.

Ethel Clayton in Brilliant Role

ALL SHOULD SEE "CAN A WOMAN LOVE TWICE."

Radiantly beautiful and brilliantly capable in a role that gives her full play for her exceptional ability to register emotion, Ethel Clayton again adds to her claim for a foremost place in the movie hall of fame through her work in "Can a Woman Love Twice?" her second starring vehicle for Film Booking Offices which was screened in this city at the Nickel Theatre yesterday.

As a cabaret entertainer forced to work as such to support herself and her little son, Miss Clayton is enabled to show pictorially the struggle of a good, clean girl against an environment from which her whole being shrinks. Her emotional transitions, from portraying the cabaret girl with a song on her lips and an ache in her heart to depicting the character of a young mother fighting for the future of her child, are some of the finest bits of emotional acting ever seen in the screen.

To detail the story in this review would spoil many of its surprising twists. Suffice it to say that it's a picture that no one who loves excellent dramatic entertainment can afford to miss.

Miss Marjorie Hutchings, the city's talented Contralto delighted her hearers last night by her beautiful and well rendered selections. To-night she will be heard in a repetition of yesterday's programme.

Ambrose Small's Will Probated

THE ESTATE IS WORTH OVER TWO MILLION DOLLARS. TORONTO, June 13.—The will of Ambrose J. Small, which a consent judgment fixes as the legal will of the missing millionaire, was to-day admitted for probate in the Surrogate Court at the City Hall by Judge Costworth.

The document, dated September 6, 1918, as filed a year and a half ago contains an inventory showing the estate amounts to $1,087,031. This did not include other amounts credited to the estate, close upon a million dollars being in dispute.

A bond of $250,000 has been filed to secure the balance of succession duty. By the consent judgment a sum of money was to be paid into court for the maintenance of Misses Florence and Gertrude Small, sisters of A. J. Small.

Tunnel to Link England and France

WILL MAKE PARIS A SUBURB OF LONDON.

By MILTON BRONNER.

London, June 17.—Just as soon as the British premier, parliament and war department sanction it, work will be started on the greatest engineering enterprise since American genius connected the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans at Panama—the construction of a 36-mile tunnel under the sea, to connect England with the continent of Europe. It will be the greatest tunnel in the world—far longer than those through the Alps and the Andes and in underwater extent making the Hudson tubes in New York look like toys. It has been the dream of engineers, railway men and financiers for nearly a hundred years and the dream has always been blocked by British fears of military invasion.

Sir Wm. Bull, a veteran member of parliament, a distinguished lawyer and chairman of the parliamentary commission on the Channel Tunnel, is urging upon Premier MacDonald that the present government smooth the way for the tunnel project. I asked him to tell me all about it. "It looks," said he, "as if nature had specially prepared things to make it easy for man to build the tunnel and to build it at the points where the distance between England and France is the least. That point is between Dover on our side of the English Channel and Sangatte near Calais on the French side. The tunnel would be 36 miles in length, of which 24 miles would be under the sea.

"General Foch estimated that had this tunnel been in existence, the war would have been brought to a conclusion in our favor two years earlier, due to the facilities for unimpeded transport of troops, munitions and supplies. One of the main objections to the tunnel in the past has been that it might serve as a means of invading England. But this tunnel would be so constructed that in time of war, by pressing a button in Dover or in London, the tunnel could be flooded in a small section near the Kentish coast, forming an effective water lock. This dip in the tunnel would fill up with water in a few hours.

"It has been asked whether a submarine or an airplane of a hostile country could not destroy the tunnel by dropping a heavy bomb on the bottom of the channel in the line of the tunnel. But our engineers do not think this is possible. Not only would the tunnel have 180 feet of salt water above it, but it would be 130 feet below the bed of the sea.

"From borings that have been taken at frequent intervals, we know exactly the geological composition of the strata in which the work would have to be done. Below the sea there is a bed of chalk. Below that is a bed of chalk marl which lies upon gault clay. The chalk marl roughly 60 feet in thickness, is of such nature that it is virtually impervious to the percolation of water. For that reason, it lends itself admirably as the most suitable material through which the tunnel would be driven. We could do without steel or iron work, the tunnel being lifted with reinforced concrete.

"It is really proposed to build two tunnels, one for each line of railway. In this manner the size would be kept within reasonable bounds and the difficulties of ventilation would be lessened. It is estimated the entire project would cost $29,000,000 and that it would yield a profit of 5 per cent. on the investment. There will be no trouble about finding the money. One half will be supplied here and the other half by French financiers. But the chances are that the French would let the Belgians and the Italians take a share of their holdings. Once the government gave its consent to the project, the British tunnel company and the French tunnel company would supply the needed money within a week. It will take five years to build. But the possibilities of such a tunnel are simply immense. Through trains without change could be run from London to all the great capitals of Europe, and vice versa. The time of travel between London and Paris would be cut at least one hour. British manufactured goods could be sent abroad without the present transshipment from train to boat and from boat to train and vice versa. And its military value would be immeasurable.—North Sydney Herald, June 10.

Relics of Roman England Found

London, June 7.—The excavation of the Roman site at East Cliff, Folkestone, has revealed the bones of a man's foot, and right through the bone is a clean hole the size of a thick nail. It is suggested that the hole was caused by crucifixion.

The cookhouse of two apartments found previously has been further investigated, and there is evidence that there were eight hearths in it. Adjoining the apartments is a vestibule, entrance to which is obtained by two clearly cut steps.

POSTAL OFFICIALS POSITION.

TORONTO, Ont., June 17.

"We regret that there appears to be no other course to take, but telegrams have been received from all parts of the country demanding urgent action and unless the authorities at Ottawa can offer some speedy solution, we will be forced into tying up the mail service in the Dominions with the consequent inconvenience and economic loss to our fellow citizens." This statement was made late this afternoon by the Press Committee of the Canadian Federation of Postal Employees composed of the President of the four branches of the Service—Postal Clerks Association, the Association of Letter Carriers, Postal Porters, Transfer Agents, and the railroad service. "The postal employees have shown as much patience during the prolonged negotiations as could be expected of any body of men, and feel that their only recourse now to secure justice is to go to the extreme limits of calling a country wide strike," said the spokesman for the committee. "We feel particularly grieved at the attitude of the Deputy Ministers in endeavouring to reduce the maximum of the letter carriers $120 below the already low maximum provided by the Civil Service Commission and the further attitude of the Deputies in suggesting that all salary maximums recommended by the Commission be reduced to $120. This attitude is taken in view of the fact that very recently the Deputy Ministers' salaries were increased by $2000, a greater increase than any maximum provided to postal workers," the statement continues. At yesterday's session of the Canadian Federation of the Postal Employees' meeting held here after considering the report of the Commission and the Committee of Deputies appointed by Parliament to report on the salary question, a vote of want of confidence to deal with the question was moved. The executive of the Federation of Postal Employees of all post branches is meeting to-night to receive the final result of the voting and decide on what action shall be taken in view of results.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 17.

The tern schooner Minas Princess, which grounded when towing out of Advocate Harbor Sunday night with a cargo of pills for New York, was reported still hard and fast in the advices reaching here to-night. Her cargo was being taken out and hopes were entertained that the hull would be floated. The schooner touched on a bar outside the harbor and when the tide dropped listed and opened up several beams. At the next tide she filled.

S.A. ELECTION RETURNS.

CAPE TOWN, S.A., June 17.—(Via Canadian Press cable, via Reuter's)—Early returns in the general election in the South African Union to-day showed gains for the Nationalist-Labor Opposition. In Pretoria Central, Edward Booth, a member of the Smuts cabinet and chairman of committee in the last House, was defeated by 53 votes by the Nationalist candidate, Labor scored a victory in Germiston (Johannesburg) where their candidate Brown defeated by a narrow majority H. S. McAllister of the government party. The returns indicate a greatly increased vote compared with the 1921 elections. The state of the parties to-night showed Ministerialists, 32; Labor, 7; Nationalists, 3, or ten for Nationalist Opposition; Independents, 1. The result of the 1921 election was Smuts or South African Party, 65; Nationalist, 44; Labor, 11, and Independent, 10; total, 134. Bye-elections and resignations, however, had reduced the Government's majority to six, just before the present elections was called. The Assembly membership is being increased in the present elections to 135.

Bishop Feild-Cathedral Scholarships

Two Choral Scholarships are offered for competition for the boys of the Cathedral Choir who will be attending Bishop Feild College during the next twelve months.

Candidates must be either already members of the choir or accepted for the choir by the Cathedral Organist.

The Scholarships are of $25.00 in value, paid monthly at $2.50 the month for ten months, as long as the holder is a member of the Cathedral Choir and of Bishop Feild College.

The Scholarships are granted for one year only, and will be vacated at the end of each school year, but the holder of a scholarship will be eligible for re-election for the next year. The object of the scholarship being two-fold: to encourage boys to offer their voices in the service of God, and to assist in their education. Candidates will first be examined by the Cathedral Organist who will then send his recommendations to the Head Master of Bishop Feild College, who will either confirm the recommendation, or should more than two candidates be presented, will subject them to a short eliminating examination. Candidates must present with their applications a testimonial of character from their Parish Priest, and state their age.

The Scholarships may be forfeited through misconduct generally, or lack of application to work, or bad attendance at the Cathedral services or at the College. The scholarships will be known as the Bishop Feild Cathedral Scholarships, and will be tenable from September to June inclusive. Applications should be forwarded to the Rector of the Cathedral and will not be received after July 31st.

The award of the Scholarships will be announced in the daily papers. June 18-19 news-17, 19

Utilization of Power Resources

The growth in the utilization of Canada's water-power resources has been truly spectacular. The total installation at the beginning of the present century of 150,000 h.p. had grown in 1914 to almost 1,000,000 h.p. and in 1923 to more than 3,235,000 h.p. By 1925 this total will have reached 4,000,000 h.p. and by 1940 it is estimated that the figure will be somewhere between 7,000,000 h.p. and 8,500,000 h.p. The present investment in hydro power development amounting to some $687,000,000 will have grown to 1940 on the above basis to a figure between $1,500,000,000 and $1,800,000,000.

The water-powers of Canada now awaiting developments are in almost all cases either the property of the Dominion or of the province in which they are situated, consequently rights for their development are obtained directly from the Crown. Usually the Crown grants a lease or license authorizing the development for a fixed period varying from ten to twenty-nine years, generally with renewal privileges. Canada is fortunate in that these sources of hydraulic energy are favorably situated to serve with low-priced power the principal centres of population and to assist in the development of the other natural resources of the country.

The growth of hydro-electric power utilization has been chiefly in connection with the following industries:—

The Central Electric Station industry, the agency through which electric power is generated and sold for commercial and domestic use, is almost wholly dependent in Canada upon water-power; more than 97 per cent. of the output being derived from this source. With the exception of a few cities situated principally on the western prairies, practically every large centre of population in the Dominion is served with hydro-electric power. The total hydro-electric installation in the industry of 2,411, 700 h.p. together with transmission and distribution facilities, represents a capital investment of some $600,000,000.

The Pulp and Paper industry, which is outstanding among Canadian industries and is based upon widespread forest resources, is almost entirely dependent upon water-power for its motive energy. More than 497,000 horse-power in water-power installation are developed directly by the industry and an additional 229,000 horse-power of hydro-electric energy are purchased from central electric stations, making a total of 726,000 horse-power derived from water-power. It is a most fortunate circumstance that wherever timber resources are found throughout the Dominion ample water-power resources are also available for their exploitation.

Mining, with Allied Chemical and Metallurgical industries, is very largely carried on with the aid of water-power in Canada. This is especially true in the mining and refining of the precious metals, gold and silver, of nickel, copper, asbestos, and others. Water-power has made possible the tremendous development of gold and silver mining in Northern Ontario where supplies of native coal are entirely absent. Mining, textile, and many of the other important industries of the Dominion are also very largely dependent upon hydro-power.

LEAGUE FOOTBALL

Saints 2 Goals—Feldians 1.

Before a large attendance of spectators, the Feldians went down to defeat at the hands of the Saints in last night's football game, by a score of 2 goals to 1. The exhibition was only fair, the wretched condition of the playing field, coupled with the strong westerly breeze, kept the ball out of control, thus making good football entirely out of the question. The Saints won the toss and decided to take advantage of the wind and sun. The first few minutes saw a very poor exhibition, the ball repeatedly going over the line. The Saints tried hard to get behind the Feldian defence, but without success, although they kept the ball well in Feldian territory. As the game progressed, play improved somewhat and gradually the Feldians cleared it from the danger zone and into the Saints lines, where a scrimmage occurred, resulting in the first goal being scored. This had a good effect and for a few minutes play was of a brisk nature. The Saints were determined to equalize, and after about five minutes did so through Sawyers.

Both teams put on an extra spurt but no further scoring resulted in the first period. The teams changed without delay and the Feldians immediately brought the ball into the Saints defence lines, but were unable to lodge it in the desired spot. In this period many times the Feldians brought the ball down but were always weak on goals. The Saints played well against the wind and after about 25 minutes Young registered a goal on a pass well outside the penalty line. This completed the scoring although both teams tried hard to increase their tallies.

Although at times the game was good it was on the whole very uninteresting and not at all as good as was expected. Mr. T. W. Sparkes refereed the game. The Guards and B.L.S. will be the contesting teams in the next game.

FOOTBALL SIXES.

The preliminary sises for the M.G.C.A. Sports were run off at St. George's Field last night. The C.L.B. defeated the Star; Guards defeated C.E.I.; Feldians won from B.L.S.; while the Cadets triumphed over the Saints. The fixtures for this afternoon will be—(1) C.L.B. vs. Feldians; (2) Cadets vs. Guards. The winners of (1) vs. winners of (2) will compete in the finals.

FOOTBALLER INJURED.

Whilst Mr. Stan Ryan of the B.L.S. football team was playing in the Sixes at St. George's Field last night, he wrenched his knee and had to be assisted off the field. It is quite probable that Ryan will be compelled to remain out of the game for the balance of the season.

Organizing for Deep Waterways

CANADIAN OFFICIALS TO MEET U.S. ENGINEERS IN MONTREAL.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 11.—(Canadian Press)—An organization meeting of the National Advisory Committee on the St. Lawrence waterway project was held in the rooms of the International Joint Commission here this afternoon. Hon. George F. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, occupied the chair, and explained the objects for which the national committee had been formed and outlined correspondence which had passed between the United States and Canada resulting in the formation of this committee, as well as the inter-departmental committee, which has been gathering information in regard to the project.

Mr. Graham also outlined the order in which it was proposed the work of the advisory committee would proceed. He said that the two technical officers appointed by order-in-council, O. O. Lefebvre, chief engineer of the Quebec Streams Commission, and Brig. Gen. C. H. Mitchell would probably meet officials of United States section of the joint engineering board at Montreal on June 17.

Beautiful Scotch Theme in Maritime Production

LAST SHOWING OF CANADIAN FILM AT MAJESTIC TO-DAY.

There is a reliable touch of Scotch in the big Canadian film, "The Stranger of the North" which flashes its run at the Majestic Theatre to-day.

In a dozen ways these points are illustrated in the picture, some amusingly and some otherwise. They begin when Donald MacGregor, a stern parent of the old school, forbids every man in his employ to speak to his daughter Mary. His reason for this is his desire to shield her from the world and it takes him a long time to learn that it can't be done in that way these days.

When an old friend writes that he is sending his son, a veteran of the war, to Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, to make a fresh start, MacGregor has his misgivings. "If he's nae guid in the auld country he'll be nae guid here," he remarks dolefully. "but I'll gi' him a welcome for the sake o' auld lang syne."

This is but the beginning of a story which yields no end of amusement, interest and thrills, and is also valuable as a study of Scottish character. The violin and singing act by Misses Habel and McShane contains the popular Scotch numbers, which have been selected to harmonize with the theme of the picture, "The Stranger of the North." Here these talented artists to-night.

Wembley Wonders.

The Coal Mine, in the Amusement Park, extending for a quarter of a mile, is a perfect replica of a coal mine, with miners and pit ponies actually working.

The Stadium is awe-inspiring even when nothing is happening within its vast amphitheatre. It is twice the size of the Coliseum and it holds 110,000 people.

Over twenty tons of music are being used by the massed choirs in their concerts. Ten thousand singers perform under Dr. Harris.

Tropical trees, transplanted to the Wembley gardens, are heated by electricity beneath the earth to counteract the severe London climate.

The Aquarium in the Amusements Park uses 50,000 gallons of water brought specially from the Dogger Bank.

Harry Carey Film Finishes To-Night

LAST CHANCE TO SEE "CRASHING THRU" AT CRESCENT.

Harry Carey easily equals all previous records in his newest screen triumph "Crashing Thru" which has been delighting large audiences at the Crescent Theatre since Monday. There are thrills of a lifetime, besides a refreshing sprinkling of good wholesome comedy closely intermingled. Above all "Crashing Thru" contains that one element that the spectator seeks, namely, entertainment. There are two solid hours of enjoyment in watching this exciting story. To-night, however, will be the last showing.

If you would like to sing your old favourite songs, come to the Crescent to-night and sing them with the film entitled "Memories." Last night's audience caught the idea immediately and the singing was whole-hearted. The comedy end of this programme is a Christie two-act comedy, "The Busher." It's a scream from start to finish.

On Friday night the usual weekly Amateur Contest takes place. Quite a few names have been handed in already. A big entertainment is in store for all who attend.

YOUR GIRL

Will take a real interest and make a success of the fine art of cooking if you provide her with the necessary equipment at home. Just because her grandmother used an old-fashioned coal stove is no reason why the young generation should be burdened down with it. If your kitchen is equipped with a "SMOOTHTOP" VULCAN GAS RANGE, fitted with a Modern Heat Regulator, perfect results are certain.

Try this recipe for NUT BREAD: 4 cups flour, 6 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup English walnuts, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add the chopped nuts. Put in two buttered pans and let stand 20 minutes. Set your oven heat regulator at 375 degrees and bake for 20 minutes. Estimates and full particulars gladly furnished by AVOID SUNBURN AND REDNESS. The daily use of Pond's Two Creams during the hot summer season keeps one's skin in that delicate and softness of touch which every young woman should retain. Don't trifle with inferior creams or the best results cannot possibly be obtained. Your chemist highly recommends Pond's as the best.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

HOW DO WE EVER DO IT!

How in the world do we ever do it? Don't you wonder yourself sometimes when you are driving through a bit of particularly wild traffic, how it is that you can sit there so calmly in all the confusion and do the necessary things at the necessary time—you who when you were learning to drive that car trembled if you saw another car coming and felt almost paralyzed when two were heading for you at once from different directions.

What The Motorist Must See.

And now we come into a busy square with streets going out in four directions, and without any great sense of effort we manage to see everything that is going on that concerns us. A woman is just going to dodge out from behind a parked car. Must look out for her. Another parked car is about to back out, but there will be time to pass before it gets started, as the driver has only just put his foot on the starter. The conductor of that trolley car is winding up his car, is he going to start or not? He is, must get off the track. Does that boy on the bicycle see us coming? He does, there is no need to blow, and blowing would only confuse him. Is there going to be a traffic cop at the crossing? Yes, there he is? Now we shall have to watch both him and the eight pedestrians and the lady with the baby carriage who are very likely not to pay any attention to his signal and to rush into the middle of the street just as he motions us on. That is a little more difficult than if he weren't there at all and we only had the pedestrians to watch, but we have done it before and we can do it again. . . . So we swing safely past

Girl's Long Ride

BELLEVEILLE, Ont., June 16.—(Canadian Press)—Miss Owen Lazier, who recently reached the City of Washington, D.C., after riding 900 miles on horseback from the City of Belleville, had some wonderful experiences on the trip. She passed through 75 urban municipalities, including the large cities of Philadelphia and New York, travelling over crowded State highways and through congested city streets in safety. Once her horse "Tip," while "feeling his oats" too much as a result of the generous care he received, threw his rider, but she was not hurt. On another occasion he ran away with her for several miles but the road was good, and he gradually tired out. The hundreds of people she met officially and personally all treated her with extreme kindness and courtesy.

Miss Lazier delivered invitations from Mayor W. C. Mikel of the City of Belleville, to the President of the United States, the British Ambassador at Washington, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and the President of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, to attend the celebration of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada, to be held at Belleville June 18th, 17th, 18th and 19th.

What is the Use of Living

What is the use of living when a woman gets up in the morning as tired as when she went to bed at night with headache, backache, dragging-down pains, nervous, irritable and despondent? These are all symptoms of ailments peculiar to her sex which makes life a burden. Every woman in this condition should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a good old-fashioned remedy made from roots and herbs. It contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and for fifty years has been restoring women to health and strength and the joys of living.

Have you a Suit or Overcoat to make? We make a speciality of making up customers own goods at prices that are absolutely the lowest for first class work. FARRELL THE TAILOR, 310 Water St.—nov17,24

Mushroom timbales are sometimes served with cream sauce. Grated cucumber rind gives a nice flavor to loganberry punch.

Ramsay MacDonald's Candor

It is not likely that Ramsay MacDonald's term as Prime Minister of Great Britain will be a very lengthy one, but he has one quality which on a recent occasion seems to have temporarily saved the life of his Government—his saving grace of candor. Fighting with his back against the wall on a want of confidence motion, ensuring his Government for having failed to keep pre-election promises to solve the unemployment problem he disarmed his critics by saying:

"In regard to our pledges and their fulfillment, why should I not confess we were a little innocent in this matter? Things which seemed very simple to carry out when we were without experience became very complicated and difficult when we became members of a Cabinet responsible for them."

So naked a confession, though it seemed indecent to the hard-bitten politicians of the House of Commons and subversive of time-honored traditions; but out of the mouths of babes and sucklings we shall learn the truth. It took the veterans of the Liberal party so much by surprise that it apparently changed the resolve of some of them to vote the Government out of power. Perhaps the morning after they commenced to realize that the child-like ingenuousness of Ramsay MacDonald's confession was rather curious coming from an old stager like the Prime Minister. Both he and his right-hand man Philip Snowden have long been members of the House of Commons immersed in public affairs, and in a technical sense brilliant parliamentarians. Long before they were in the House they were political journalists. Many of Stanley Baldwin's followers are juniors compared to them.

The confession of "innocence" and "inexperience" by MacDonald, Snowden and other prominent members of the Ministry who have been before the public for three decades is less candid than it seems at first blush. If they did not know that Cabinet responsibilities are complicated and difficult and that the nature of pledges should be considered in all their phases before they are made, who should know? Let it be granted that politicians never do learn this lesson; but when we recall how the creators of the Independent Labor Party have sacrificed other political leaders for their failures to carry out rash promises to the electorate; this confession by the Prime Minister that he and his associates are human just like other politicians seems to have been received with extraordinary tolerance. It is the old story; the fault admitted, is already half forgiven.—Saturday Night.

How the Rum-Runners Work

(By AN EYE-WITNESS.)

While on a recent business trip to New York I was for a time the guest of America's most famous rum-runners—bootlegger "kings," as they are called.

Now in this country we hear a deal about America's prohibition both for and against it. We are that as a result of its total banishment America is a land flowing with milk and honey. On the other hand we're told it's a flowing land of death, but flowing with other kinds of refreshment. So I think an account of what prohibition is like in practice may interest you.

I can tell you exactly how the business is worked. I'm not going to mention any names, but I'm not being a single confidant, anyway—all done pretty openly.

My first introduction to prohibition was when I first landed in New York was thrusting into my hand a huge stack of leaflets urging me to support prohibition tooth and nail.

My second introduction followed a question put to me by the hotel boy who carried up my bag when he gave him a "quarter" tip—just over a dollar.

"What do you want?" he asked. "Think I'll have some coffee," I said.

"He said he in surprise. "Coffee? Then what did you give me a quarter for? Don't you know a dime is the usual tip and you give a quarter when you want a bit of something fetched."

"The lad went on to say that I did want a bottle he recommended the Scotch—real English stuff costs 5 dollars and 50 cents—twenty-five shillings—a time.

"I had introductions to a dry goods store, but more was to follow soon. The same evening I the guest to dinner of an American business friend. We dined in one of the best hotels in New York—a place equivalent to the Cecil or the Waldorf in London.

"The menu, after a list of the varieties, I observed this notice: Average claret—3 dol. per bottle. "Beverage" drink is a tea or "soft" drink, and an American drink is the limit! But there a little star against the entry, and small words at the bottom of the card were printed: "You want a proper drink—order Scotch for the above."

"The friend smiled when I commented on the just part of the farce," he said.

Healthy babies thrive on Eagle Brand and doctors recommend it in stubborn feeding cases. It is the natural food when mother's milk is not available because it is pure country milk with sugar added. Always uniform, digestible, nourishing.

But within twelve hours that ship is back again.

The whisky is loaded up once more, and off she sails with papers made out probably for Nassau, in the Bahamas, though she doesn't go there! No doubt it is required at Hamburg, and so far as the people there are concerned the ship can go where it pleases.

What happens when the ship approaches American waters is astonishing—unconvincing, if you like—till you see it for yourself, as I did.

The rum-runner (all liquor comes under the general heading of "rum," by the way) drops anchor just outside the "limit," which is an hour's sail from harbour. Naturally, the boat is expected and everything is planned beforehand to the last degree.

Out from the harbour—it is New York I'm speaking of, of course—shoot a number of fast motor-launches, most of which were built during the war for use as submarine-chasers, and they can move! And out of the harbour, too, dash a number of revenue cutters.

On the special occasion of which I am writing I was on one of the launches with my acquaintance, the bootlegger "king." Our launches went straight up to the liquor ship and, under the eyes of the revenue people, were loaded up with cases of whisky.

The revenue authorities could not have interferred, even had they wished to, for all this took place just outside the "limit."

Then, when the launches were loaded up ready for running into port they just stood by and waited an opportunity to slip the stuff in. Don't ask me how they got it in—the fact remains that they do.

Can you beat it?

The stuff is run ashore, dumped in to a warehouse, and sold by travellers in much the accepted way in which travellers do their work anywhere. And that is the business as it is run on thoroughly organised lines.

There is another side to the industry, run on independent lines by small men who run out a cargo of stuff and sell it how they can.

Ships from all parts of the world sail along to America with cargoes of liquor, pull up outside the limit, and then—

Why, they just hang boards over the side saying what they've got aboard and how much they want for it.

And the smaller fry of the illicit dealers come out in their small boats and row round the ships comparing the prices—just as you and I might stroll round a market, looking for the man who's selling at the lowest figure.

Sometimes these little men get caught taking the stuff in.

But any stuff that gets confiscated going in isn't wasted. It's put into a Government warehouse. A little while afterwards the prohibition officers arrive to destroy it, but by the time they arrive the stuff somehow has turned into plain cold water.

I told you just now that my first introduction to prohibition was the thrusting into my hand of a sheaf of prohibition pamphlets.

My bootlegging acquaintance asked me if I'd had a "leete packet of booze dope" when I landed. I allowed that I had.

"Ah, I guessed so," he said complacently. "I paid for that dope. Sure. I spend twenty-five per cent. of my profits on propaganda in favour of prohibition. Got to. If prohibition fell through, where'd I get my living?"

As a result of my vague talk of "doing a bit of business," I received two letters before I left New York. News

THE LAST TO LEAVE.

The ways of women, I profess, are far beyond the mind of man; Too deep are they for us to guess, And have been so since life began. And this I've learned beyond a doubt, A truth which I have come to know: For her I have to stand about Long after it is time to go.

When with a company of friends A pleasant evening we have spent, And finally the laughter ends And 'tis high time that home we went.

I get my coat and rubbers on And watch the other guests depart— Down stairs she'll be the final one, We always are the last to start.

Now other men have wives who can Pick out their bonnets and their shawls, And hurry down to join the man Who waits below and loudly calls. But I must stand around and sigh Till every guest has taken flight; We wait, the weary host and I, For wife to come and say good night.

I've helped him hustle chairs about And stack up tables by the wall, I've seen the last bright light put out Except the beam in the hall; Though others seem to break away This is an art she can't achieve, "Goodbye!" she knows not how to say, We always are the last to leave.

TANGIER, Morocco, May 23 (A.P.)—Raisuli, the Robin Hood of Morocco, who inspired John Hay's "Pardner's alive or Raisuli dead," which provoked wild applause in the Republican National convention at Chicago 20 years ago, has ceased to be a great international issue. He has become almost a legend. Raisuli has quit kidnapping prominent Englishmen and Americans for ransom, and is living in retirement at Tazrut, in the heart of Morocco, surrounded by faithful followers whom he supports from the proceeds of his years of brigandage and the funds Germany supplied to him for the purpose of keeping the anti-French native tribes in a state of ferment during the great war.

Ian Perdicaris, the wealthy American whom Raisuli kidnapped from his villa in Tangier and carried into the Atlas Mountains, died in the United States several years ago. Sir Harry Maclean, the English chief of the sultan's bodyguard, whom Raisuli kidnapped and held prisoner for seven months, has been forgotten by newspaper readers. But Raisuli is such a picturesque figure that even in retirement he is not forgotten.

There are frequent rumors that the former bandit may be induced to enter the morris. Foreign women make pilgrimages to Tazrut in the hope of seeing a sheik in real life.

Political differences between Spain, France, England and Germany as to which should have the whip hand in directing Moroccan affairs played into Raisuli's hands. He was clever enough to capitalize the international rows and because of his great influence with the mountain tribes has managed to escape death.
