> THE DEATHS ON BOARD THE MONTFORT. Montreal, April 30.-Trooper J. W. Low, of the Baden-Powell police, writing to his father in Westmount, tells f the death of three men on board the troopship Montford prior to the arrival of the ship at Cape Verde. The letter was written a day before the arrival of the ship at that place, and was dated April 8. The men who died were Staff-Sergt. THIS IS DIFFERENT. Toronto, April 30 .- The report sent out from Ottawa that Esnest H. Patton, of Toronto, one of the Baden-Powell police, had died on the voyage, is incorrect. Mr. Patton, of this city, received a letter last night from his son, posted at Cape Verde Islands. The letter told the story of three deaths. Sergt.-Major Purdon had been in South Africa with the Canadian Mounted Rifles. E. H. Patton's letter says Purdon had contracted galloping consump-tion while in Ottawa, just before his departure with the constabulary.

BURIED AT SEA. St. Thomas, April 29.—Judge Ermatinger has received a letter from his son, Lieut. Percy Ermatinger, of the Baden-Powell police force, written on April 8, on board the Montfort and mailed at Cape Verde. In the letter he states that that was the first day for three days that they had not buried a man at sea.

A postscript of Tuesday, which would be the 9th, stated that another man had died, making four in all. Geo. A. Barrett had been made a corporal, and Lieut. Ermatinger expected Har-mon Couse would also be raised to that position, though it had not been officially announced. All from St. Thomas were well. It will have been noticed that the Montfort reached Cape Town on the 26th.

drowned. None of the bodies have yet been recovered, but according to police reports satisfactory evidence is at hand that the crime was committed. A policeman found a horse hitched to a buggy, wandering about in the vicinity of the Marshall avenue bridge, Thursday. In the buggy was a dog that had been a pet of the children, but no other trace of the occupants has been found.

CARNEGIE IN BAR! FEET. Paris, April 30. - Andrew Carnegie, who left Antibes and is now spending three weeks at Aix les Bains, had a curious experience there. He had started early with three companions an English woman and two French women — to explore the Savoy hills. When it was time to return one of the women found her shoes too tight. Her feet had been badly blistered, and she declared herself unable to go home. The spot was deserted, and night was approaching.

"Do you think you could for once walk four miles in your bare feet?" asked the girl of the millionaire. Carfinally induced him to give her his shoes, which, though tremendously large, enabled her to proceed slowly. Carnegie at first accepted the ordeal in a spirit of fun, but the stones and thorns often made him cry out. Halfway down he was compelled to dis-card his socks, which had become too tattered and filled with pebbles and sand. When the sedate Carnegie, somewhat ahead of the other three, was seen to enter the fashionable ho-tel in bare and bleeding feet, carrying a pair of dainty ladies' boots swung on his alpenstock over his shoulder, there was great excitement.

Rescuers Reach the Imprisoned Aurora Miners-Two Rescued Alive.

Aurora, Mo., April 29.—Rescuers reached three of the five miners who had been entombed in the Rosebud mine since last Thursday, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Two were rescued alive, one was found dead, and the other two are supposed to be lifeless. Grant Shard had been mangled by falling rocks and earth, and undoubtedly died instantly.

Faint taps on the iron rails announced that two others were still alive. They are W.mam Shane and George Foster. A large stone boulder had Foster pionioned by the foot, and in that position he had remained for a day. He was nearly famished when reached by the workers, but was revived with the aid of stimulants.

At 10:30 p.m. the rescuers were near William Shane, who was pinioned by the foot, with a dead man underneath him. Shane was scarcely able to talk. His arm is broken, and it is feared that he may lose his mind. He was removed at 11 o'clock, after an imprisonment of 60 hours and 50 minutes.

The other two are probably dead. Five thousand persons were about the shaft all day and night.

Lessons From Amsterdam.

In the city of Amsterdam, Holland, you will find a large area, three or four acres, certainly, in the midst of the entrancing public park, set apart exclusively for the amusement of child-

Here are swings, merry-go-rounds, tables, sand piles, bricks, play-houses, simple gymnastic apparatus, and above all the thick foliage of magnificent trees. the children of the city can come here and play and romp to their heart's content. The city provides everything, even to the attendants, who see that nobody gets hurt or overdoes the playing. The wholesome Dutch housewife, the most careful of mothers, can let her children go to the park for an outing with perfect conence in their safety as well as in their happiness.

The city of Amsterdam does all this and has done it for years in addition to maintaining of free admission two of the most magnificent art galleries in Europe, a system of beautiful parks, clean streets, and, best of all, admir-able schools of all grades.

Most of us are accustomed to think of the city of Amsterdam, Holland, as a slow old place, the metropolis of an effete monarchy, in the grip of the slumbrous European methods, and all that sort of thing. Some of us have probably thought with pity of the unfortunate Hollanders compelled to live so far from the blessed centers of Am-

Yet to tell the truth there is not one city in America that can compare for a moment with Amsterdam in intelligent care for the interests and welfare of its people.

There is not even a city in America, so far as we know, that has a children's playground. In every great city of this country thousands of children grow to maturity, with all its sordid and indurating cares, and never know an hour of childhood, a breath of fresh air or a

These are good facts to remember whenever we feel a certain tendency to swell the chest and draw up the chin over the superiority of our proud native land.

It is, therefore, all the more interesting to note the young Mr. Palmer, the new alderman from the Twenty-first Ward, has taken this matter in hand, so far as his ward is concerned, with intent to better conditions.

Recognizing the forlorn and hopeless state of poor children in all American cities, and particularly in this city, he has obtained from his father two vacant lots which he purposes to turn into free playgrounds.

For this is the worst part of the sitution, that while the children have no place to play half of the territory in the city limits is unoccupied and use-

We are very glad to see that Mr. Palmer has begun so early to justify the good opinion the American expressed of him before his election. It is evident that the people of his ward made no mistake in their choice. Here seems to be an alderman with other ideas than those of a ward politician. We shall go further and venture the prediction that if Mr. Palmer will observe closely the results of his benevolent enterprise he will become a strong and indefatigable champion of similar enterprises by the city. For the city should do all these things and a great many more. It is not less the city's duty to provide fresh air and healthful exercise for the children than to provide schools. not less the city's duty to care for its citizens than to protect them.

That is what civilized cities are for. -Chicago American.

There are many lessons this country can learn from older ones, and no lessons it would be wiser to follow than those contained in the foregoing. We are glad to notice that Chicago is being stirred up. The Toronto Globe is vigorously pressing for playgrounds and squares for Toronto. New York city at an expense of millions, is making spaces at various points on the East Side, and along the East River, where children and the poor can breathe. It is very sad to try and pick your steps along the crowded streets of the poor on the East Side on a hot summer's night: men, women and children by the thousands sleeping outside and on the sidewalks. Surely fresh air ought not to be so scarce that the poorest may not easily obtain it in abundance. But in these crowded places humanity is cheap; as Dr. Parkhurst says, the supply is greater than the demand. It is the plain duty of the municipal rulers of every place to provide parks and playgrounds for the people.

We agree heartily with the article quoted. We hope the ideas will be carried into effect. Towns and cities in England Scotland and Ireland have their cricket fields, their parks, their common haughs, and the people are fond of out-door sports.

We have on several occasions pointed out what our municipal rulers should do in this respect. We hope Mayor Rumball will not let his term expire without securing several of the places still available for such purposes. It is a phase of public education to which too little attention has justify the condition of affairs here. To the extent that the same conditions blameable. There is no excuse for be made an ideal city, and parks and norance is dangerous. playgrounds are an absolute necesity If it is to be even tolerable. We hope the mayor will take the matter up.

Good Old Days. [Washington Star.]

"The Queen's Birthday."

In the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced that THE LEADING DAILY IN WESTERN ONTARIO Dr. Horsey's bill, declaring the 24th of May a permanent public holiday, be transferred to government orders. This was agreed to without dissent, and the bill will be put through as a Government measure. In taking this action the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier are embodying public opinion. For all time to come Victoria Day will be celebrated in Canada in memory of the great and good Queen. By about the 24th of May people are fairly ready for a holiday, and the time of the year ends itself to outdoor enjoyment. There used to be a good deal of argument against too many holidays, but with the increasing pressure of a rapid age, the argument today seems rather to lie on the other side. As for the King's birthday, that will doubtless be celebrated in some sort, though the season is not so favorable for outdoor enjoyment. Perhaps Thanksgiving Day might be combined with the King's

Col. Leys and Fishing in the Thames.

Col. Leys' threatened resignation has been the subject of several articles in the papers, and the fact that he has vigorously protested against what he thought had been done has been the subject of some adverse critdoes not seem to be open to the slightest doubt that the facts and right are on the Colonel's side. The old dam is the seat, he makes his notes and apan illegal structure, and ought to be removed. Those at the dam have no right to a corner on all the fish in the Thames, and if the Colonel's suggestions are carried out the Thames may rises, but he does not always rise after be a good fishing ground some day; he has made preparation. He never as good, perhaps, as the farmer told about who said he had spent his lifetime in clearing the farm. In his early days when he was young, he could That is the picture of a man who go to the river and catch in a few minutes all the fish needed for the cleared, and the sons grown up, if they rushing to their feet in any deliberever took a notion to have some fish, ative assembly, very soon destroy the boys might take the whole day at what little influence they may have it, and in the end bring home two or three suckers no bigger than his thumb. If the fishing in the Thames is as poor as this man describes it, and if by removing the dam what is claimed will occur and good fishing be restored all along the river, the people owe the Colonel a debt of gratitude.

We do not suppose the Colonel desired anything other than the public rights, and as there appears to have been misapprehension as to the facts, we believe there will be no difficulty with reference to the threatened resignation. Col. Leys has been a very valuable member of the House many ways; no member is personally more popular; no member with a better all-round knowledge of the requirements of the people of his Province As member for London, he brought to the work of the Legislature a long and varied experience, which, with his unquestioned ability and acknowledged large-heartedness, has been very valuable to his constituents and to the

We are glad the fishing difficulty was due to a misapprehension of the facts, and that all the Colonel contends for will be accomplished.

Drumtochty In France.

It is interesting to note that in the March number of one of the most im portant French reviews-Revue des Deux Mondes-there is a story entitled "Lachlan," which, upon examination, turns out to be one of the most striking chapters in Ian Maclaren's "Beside that this is not by any means the first contribution of that kind. The name of the English author is given and also of the translator. This is not the place for minute linguistic criticism, but the impression made upon us is that the translator has done his work well, and that the intelligent French reader can catch the real atmosphere of the story. The stern Lachlan Campbell; his defense of orthodoxy; his sorrow over his daughter, at first bitter and then tender; the young monitor, Carmichael, plunging into the heart and heat of pentateuch controversy, and shocking old traditions; Margaret Howe, thoughtful, kindly, discreet, all these are as real here as in the English orgiinal. We are glad to note this, as by means of a good, wholesome story, French and other continental people will get a better insight into English and Scottish life, and they may learn that it is essentially the same life as their own. Circumstances are different, and the outward assumes many forms, but the great problems and the real struggles of life are the same. There would be less petty jealousy, and less likelihood of war, if the different nations of the world learned to look at been given. We quite understand that that which is best and deepest in each conditions exist in large cities that do other's life. It seems strange that in not exist in London, but that does not these enlightened days, two nations separated only by a channel about 21 miles wide, should, notwithstanding all prevail, it is wrong, and our rulers are their commerce and travel, know so little of each other, and as we have been their existence in London. Parliamentary Speakers.

The British Weekly parliamentary correspondent has evidently watched the speakers in the House of Commons very closely. He can tell how the different orators make their pauses and transitions. "There are many conparliamentary phrasesstiles to enable the debater to pass from one argument to another, or resting places where he can collect his thoughts. For example: Mr. Dillon, 'I say, sir, and I say it deliberately; Mr. John Redmond, 'I confess, sir, for my part;' 'There is no question about it,' declares Mr. John Ellis, with an air of sagacity; 'I have yet to learn,' says Capt. Norton, 'of what is not worth knowing in military matters;' 'And season." now, Mr. Speaker,' is a very common phrase, while 'I venture to say, sir,' is frequently on the lips of members. Mr. Lloyd George uses, 'I say with confidence, Mr. Speaker,' before many a sharp assertion. The following picture may be commended to young men who wish to command influence in Parliament or any other important assembly: 'Take Mr. Lloyd George as a type. Is he likely to be in the next Liberal Government? He is industrious, his special study is politics, he attacks the strongest opponent of his party whenever possible, he has a good voice, a clear style, and a biting Boys' Heavy Ribbed Cotton Hose, tongue, and he goes straight at the vulnerable point in the Government position. The Speaker recognizes him as one of the principal debaters of the House. Sitting at the corner of the second bench below the gangway, and resting his manuscript on the arm of parently writes whole sentences. His strength is shown by the fact that he does not always use his notes. The Speaker usually calls on him when he says 'ditto,' and he never addresses an empty house. There are few who compete with him below the gangway." knows his business and who does not trifle with others, or mean to be trifled breakfast; but now that the farm was with himself. The Late Governor Cameron Cannot Answer.

[Toronto Globe.] It ought to be distinctly understood that the vindication of Sir Richard Cartwright does not depend on any theory which asperses the character of the late Mr. Cameron. HE shoe of choice upper feather, with fine appearance, and poor insole or outsole, is only as good as its worst part.

The life of a shoe depends as much upon the invisible portion—the hidden material and labor-as upon that which is visible and showy.

Yet all shoes are made primarly to sell, and the manufacturers' temptation to add to selling effect, by subtraction from wear is great, and rarely resisted.

A direct responsibility from Maker to Wearer is the only check upon this extravagant tendency.

That responsibility is easily crept out of, unless the Maker (not the Dealer) sets the price, and stamps it on the sole, with his trade mark.

Thus priced, it is a distinct "promise to pay" so many dollars worth of shoe value, and pledges shoe-balance, uniformity of material, wear, permanent satisfaction.

No Canadian shoe but "The Slater Shoe" is thus pledged. When you buy "Slater Shoes" you can rely on their being just as good as they look—inside and outside.

The Slater Shoe Makers dare not make superficial "window" shoes. Goodyear welted, and priced on the sole, in a slate frame.—

Buffalo, April 29.-Yesterday's attendance at the Pan-American Exposition was a record breaker for an exposition crowd. Fully 30,000 people passed through the gates, about 75 per cent of them paying for admission.

Dr. Gray, the incumbent of St. George's, in Albemarle street, has instituted special late services for fashionable people, who profess that dinner engagements prevent their going to church evenings. Many women attended in decollete dress, with theater wraps. Dr. Gray found it necessary to explain that it was not, as supposed, an evening dress service, but still there was no reason why people should not attend in evening dress if it was convenient for them to do so. It is possible that the innovation will become fashionable, especially while it is a novelty.

St. George's is the chapel where Thackeray immortalized the Rev. Mr Honeyman in "The Newcombes.

THE CHINESE RUN. Wallmerich attacked and dispersed, April 23, a far superior force of the enemy in a strong position east of the breach of Hae Ho, and effected a junction on the battlefield with the battation on the battleheld with the battle-lion under Major Muelmann, from Tsing Ching, which, taking up the pursuit, overtook the enemy in a fresh position to the south. This was captur-ed, and the enemy were pursued as far as Ka Kuan. Wallermich followed them thither.

The enemy suffered severely. Eleven old and two new quick-firers were captured. On our side one man was killed and three were severely wounded and nine slightly. The enemy are everywhere in retreat.

THE FIGHT FOR THE PASSES. In carrying the passes leading into Shan Si Province, the only approaches were steep mountains tracks, and the Chinese held commanding positions, from which they rolled huge rocks down the mountain sides on the advancing Germans. Berlin, April 30.—It is stated by officials here that the main German expeditionary force in China is now withdrawing to its former position, leaving a garrison at the pass at the Great Wall. The non-participation of the French in the battle was not due to orders received from Paris, but to their failure to arrive in time. Further expeditions are not projected, and will depend upon whether the Chinese make such expeditions neces

AN AWFUL CHARGE

Brantford, Ont., 30.—This morning the coroner's jury, which has been holding an inquest upon the body of Charles White, who died suddenly on Sunday, April 14, under circumstances that led to the belief that he had died from poison, brought in a verdict finding that "Charles White died from being poisoned with strychnine, administered, the jury suspected, by the wife of deceased."

Mrs. White was immediately placed under arrest by the police on a charge of murdering her husband, and removed to the county jail, where she spent the night.

WAS NEARLY A CENTENARIAN

Death of Mrs. Rebecca Hewitt, Who Lived Under Five British Sovereigns.

Mrs. Rebecca Hewitt died in this 99th year. She was born in England in 1803, and had thus lived under the third and fourth Georges, William IV., Victoria and Edward VII. She did not leave the old country until she had passed her 70th year, but in the time she lived in London she made many sincere friends. Some nine years ago she suffered a paralytic stroke, but while she could not stand afterwards she regained her faculties n a remarkable degree. Her memory of events that made history early in the last century was remarkably clear. Mrs. Hewitt was the mother of Mrs. F. Keene, of this city, and before her death she saw five generations of her decendants. One son also, Rev. William Hewitt, of North Ontario, survives her. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Whisperings of the Wires.

There is considerable excitement at Bermuda over the expected arrival of ,700 Boer prisoners.

A series of Conservative political meetings throughout the Province of Ontario is to be arranged. Up to March 31, 1891, the United States war revenue act of June 13, 1898, has produced $289,504,447. The steamer Ashanti, that has been ashore at Blanche River for some days has been floated and towed to Que-

Lake, the only steamer now out, is 20 feet thick.

The New York Herald says: Italy is still making of the United States a dumping ground for her criminals and paupers. This fact has been forcibly called to the attention of the local authorities by the arrival in this port of three Italian brigands.

Lieut.-Col. Wadmore, of the 3rd R. C. R., at Halifax, accused of contempt of court in connection with the case of Sergt. McPhee, of the same regiment, has been acquitted. The judges found that there was no intention on the part of Wadmore to commit any contempt. They held that any man wearing the King's uniform would be above anything of the kind.

"I am, indeed, fond of everything that rows," Shirley returned, drawing in a long breath of the perfumed air; "but I was not thinking so much of these rare and beautiful things just then," she concluded, with a sweet upward glance and a quiver of something like reverence in her tones.

of all this beauty devotes it."

The young man's color deepened at this niooked-for reply.

"I am afraid that someone has been giving the owner more praise than rightly belongs to him," he quietly remarked after a moment of hesitation. "It is true that I give away nearly all my flowers," he added, "but I fear that I am not so ungelish in the matter as your commenne added, "but I fear that I am not so unselfish in the matter as your commendation seemed to imply, for I take the greatest pleasure in floriculture, and, to tell the truth, I do not know what to do with the enormous results, except to send them broadcast among those who love them, but cannot get them in any other way."

love them, but cannot get them in any other way."

"It is certainly a lovely thing to do, and it must require much time, thought and judgment to carry on such a mission," said Shirley. Then she added gravely: "It shows a tender sympathy for the poor and those who suffer on the part of the donor."

"Yes, it does take a great deal of time,"
Lord Wallace answered; "that does not count, however. I believe I am sympathetic, too, but," an expression of pain flitting over his face, "it requires suffering to appreciate the sufferings of others, and I believe that I have had my share of that."

There was a tenseness about his tone which told Shirley that his was a nature keenly sensitive, and she knew something of his sad history. So she stood quietly beside him, and after a moment he resumed, while his voice grew tremulously tender:

"I have been called upon to witness the suffering of one who is dearer to me than my own life, Miss Livingstone and that is a great deal harder than to bear pain onesal?"

He conducted his companion towards a beautiful spot where three magnificent beeches cast broad shadows upon the velvet turf, while as they approached nearer Shirley caught sight of the gayly-colored tent, and presently they came upon a white-capped, white-aproned nurse, who was wheeling a costly chair, in which was seated a beautiful but delicate-looking boy, with great pathetic eyes, which almost moved the young lady to tears.

in which was seated a beautiful but delicate-looking boy, with great pathetic eyes, which almost moved the young lady to tears.

Shirley knew that he was at least five years old, but he looked much younger, although his face was bright and the counterpart of his father's in miniature. He gave vent to a cry of joy as he caught sight of his visitors, and clapped his little hands gleefully.

"Papa, Papa!" he shouted, "take me, please—take Ray."

With a face of infinite tenderness the young father stooped and lifted his child, kissing him softly on the lips as he did so, while Shirley's heart ached as she noticed the poor little crippled feet would never walk.

"I have brought a lady to see you, Ray. Will you shake hands with her?" Lord Wallace asked, as he stepped towards Shirley with the boy in his arms. The child gravely turned his great eyes upon her, surveyed her with inquiring earnestness for a moment, then putting out his tiny hand to her he remarked as he again lifted his glance to his father:

"She is a pretty lady, papa."

Lord Wallace glanced quickly at the young girl, who had clasped the little hand and caressingly touched her lips to the and smiled to see her color deepen at the boy's innocent compliment. Then, to turn to his subject, he gave him the orchid he had plucked.

"Oh, papa, another flower-bird," he eagerly cried, as he grasped the wonderful blossom and studled it earnestly with his expressive eyes.

"I am sure that Ray inherits all his

"Yes, and he never destroys a blossom," Lord Wallace returned. "He will keep whatever I give him until it is withered past recognition and has to be thrown away. What you said about pansies and orchids awhile ago made methink of Ray, for he seems to regard all flowers as friends, and will often hold long conversations with them."

Shirley glanced down upon some pansies which she held in her hand and sies which she held if her hand and smiled.

"I wonder if Ray ever heard the pansy story," she said, while her eyes began to twinkle roguishly.

"No." said the child, lifting a very interested face to her; "tell it., pretty lady." Shirley selected a lovely blossom from her bunch.

"Lord Wallace, will you pardon me if I destroy one of these perfect flowers?" she inquired.

"I will pardon anything that serves to please my boy." he responded with a fond glance at the little figure in his arms.

is a great deal harder than to bear pain oneself."

"That is very true." Shirley returned, "and I suppose I know to what you refer for Madame Marton has told me about you dear little child, Lord Wallace."

"Yes, my boy will never walk, he will never be free from pain, and that is a terrible grief to me," the young father resaid, with a heavy sigh. "Raymond is a very bright child, too. Are you fond of children, Miss Livingstone," he inquired, with unusual eagerness. "Would you like to come with me to see my little one?"

"Indeed I would," Shirley answered, in a tone that left no doubt regarding her love for children, although she did not reply to that query.

Lord Wallace hastliy plucked a choice orchid, which gleamed like a bright bird prochid, which gleamed like a bright bird prochame to a function of the first here

"Well," said Lord Wallace, laughing heartily, "that is a very ingenious story to make out of the intellectual pansy, and Ray looks as if he had enjoyed every word of it," he concluded, with an amused glance at the child's absorbed face, "But," he added, "I imagine that Madame Marton and my mother will wonder what has became of us, and so. Master Ray, you will have to go back to your chair."

"And is the pretty lady going away?"
Ray questioned, with a wistful glance. Will she never come again?"

"Yes, indeed, I will come again to see you if you wish," Shirley returned, with a smile.

"Papa, I like the lady; I wish she would come again," said the boy, too bashful to address her directly.

"Then, if you like me, I am sure you will give me something before I go," the young girl remarked with a musical laugh, as she lifted her ripe lips to him.

HIS EMINENCE WON THE DERBY Louisville, April 30 .- The Kentucky Derby has passed into history, and not one of the 25,000 people that saw it can saw aught except that it was a race from the flag until the good son of Falsetto passed under the wire a winner in the good time of 2:07%. Had the day been made to order, it could not have been more propitious, and there was not the slightest thing to mar the most successful occasion in the history of the new Louisville Jockey Club. The track was When the Stomach Does Not Do Its Work Properly, Suffering and Misery Result.

Toronto, Ont., April 30.—Mr. W. T. R. Preston and his solicitor, Mr. Louis F. Heyd, K.C., are arranging for the issue of a writ of $10,000 for libel against the Ottawa Journal. The alleged libel is contained in a letter published by the Journal, in which Mr. J. E. Rochester, Mr. Preston's coushin, made several reflections on the latter's character and on his evidence before the senate committee in the Cook investigation. "Til spend my last dollar," said Mr. Preston, "in following up this case."

TOWNS TO GAUDAUR. London, April 29.—George Towns re-fuses to row Jake Gaudaur, the champion oarsman of the world, at Rat Portage, unless £50 expenses are allowed, but is prepared to row on Toronto Bay without any allowance for his expenses. Sullivan, Towns' backer, is of the opinion that Gaudaur is not anxious to row.

FISTIC.

Louisville, Ky., April 30.—Jack McClelland, of Pittsburg, was knocked out in the 20th round yesterday by Dave Sullivan, of Brooklyn. The fight throughout was one of the most scientific and vicious ever seen in Louisville, and when McClelland got the knockout, nine out of ten men in the house thought Sullivan did not have steam enough left to knock out a child. For a dozen rounds the Pittsburg boy had inflicted the severest punishment on him, and at least four times the gong sent Sullivan to his corner very weak and groggy. Throughout, however, he fought like a bulldog, and took punishment that would have put out many another fighter a dozen times. In the 20th both came up apparently fresh. Mc-Clelland led off with a right swing. Sullivan clinched, and, stepping back, uppercut twice: then led a hard right, which sent McClelland to the floor for eight seconds. McClelland got up and clinched Sullivan, trying again to get in the knockout blow. McClelland landed right and left lightly. Sullivan then uppercut him twice, and McClelland was out, falling heavily to the floor, his head striking first. Before the fight it was announced that one month from tonight Terry McGovern would meet the winner of the Sullivan-McClelland contest before the Southern A. C., under whose auspices last night's fight occurred. A KNOCK-OUT.

The Latest Dining Cars.

The Pullman Company have just completed three dining-cars for the New York Central, which are the They were recently placed in service on the Lake Shore Limited, and are as beautiful and as complete in their furnishings as it is possible to make a car. With these cars, the New York Central now has twenty-one dining-cars in use wholly on its line east of Buffalo. This is in addition to its various buffet cars and the coaches fitted with the empire kitchen, which now furnish all the meals on the Empire State Ex-press. This, with the seven restaurants, makes the dining-car depart-ment of the Central, which is now a part of the passenger department, quite a hotel business.

In the evolution of passenger transportation, the dining-car has become a necessity, and is looked for now on first-class through trains, and without it the fast time now demand-ed by the public could not be made, as the time lost in stopping for meals between New York and Boston, or Chicago and St. Louis, would materially increase the time of the journey and the American business man of today, in his competition with the world, needs to save every minute he can. Therefore, every improvement made in the dining-car service of any great railway is an aid to the expansion of American commerce.—From the Commercial Advertiser, New York.

POWLEY'S LIQUIFIED OZONE CURES MOTHER AND DAUGHTER.

C ROBINSON, 30 Bicmarok Avenue,

I gladly give you my testimonial to the wenderful virtues of your new system of treatment, Ozone. I had a very bad attack of menuments and bronchitis. Also with that I had terrible distress in my stemach. I tried every thing I could hear of, both the drug share and an excellent family physician prescribed for me, but nothing second to give me the least relief. I could not sleep, and any position I get into I was misstable. I was advised to try Come, and from the very first I got relief. The Come leasened the philegm in my bronchial inbea, and brought large chunks of rotten matter from my lungs. I had also nervous prostration so badly that I thought nothing would ever help me. Ozone cared all that.

Powley's Liquified Ozone is the new system of curing disease. It supplies oxygen to the system in concentrated form, and renders it healthy, so that the disease germs cannot operate. In this way Powley's Liquified Ozone destroys the germs of sickness. In all lung or bronchial troubles it cleans off the foul mucus, destroys the germs and stimulates the membranes. Ozone is antiseptic. In dropsy or kidney trouble it destroys the uric acid poisoning, soothes the irritations of the kidneys and kills the germs. The oxygen in Powley's Liquified Ozone neurishes the entire system. It is nature's method of curing humanity's ailments.

The audience at the London Opera House on Friday night last, however, had little idea, as they filed out and down the stairs, that behind the scenes there was taking place such an incident as they had momentarily fancied as following the quarrel in the play. How the quarrel originated the evidence yesterday of the crown witnesses against Mary Emily Baldwin and Lillie Smith, charged with is not known, though professional jealousy is believed to be at the bottem of it; but between the acts a disagreement arose between Lionel Adams, who played John Storm, and Frederic Conger, who played Horatio Drake. MARRIAGES OF A YEAR

Three Hundred and Fifty Brides Promise to Love, Honor and Obev.

Widowers and Widows Who Dared Again-Ages of the Wedded Ones-Their Nationalities and Religious Beliefs.

For a reason that will ever remain a deep and hidden mystery, an undying hatred for modern-day humorists arose in the heart of a certain man, and after much painstaking research he proved, to his own satisfaction at least, that their stock in trade was simply a variation of the waggish whimsicalities indulged in in the days of fig-leaf apparel. He showed particularly that the funny men of that far-away period, like those of today, had made copy of the sacred sentiments of marriage, of love-sick youths and maidens, and, the omnipresent mother-in-law. It would appear from his study that the public perpetrator of puns has always considered that he had here an inexhaustible well of inspiration; and the world has laughinspiration; and the world has laughed—and kept on marrying. This much in passing, for it was not intended to write a dissertation upon the subject of marriage. Indeed, it was simply intended to show that there were just 750 people in this city last year who were willing, anxious, determined to abjure the fleeting joys of single bless. abjure the fleeting joys of single bless-edness and aspire to the felicity of Darby and Joan. Having told so much, it might not be uninteresting to let other facts be known concerning the people, young and old, who became one bone and one flesh in the year

Let it be known, therefore, that among the number were 33 widowers, who, being anxious to have the breach mended, espoused a second wife. The women were less venturesome, only 22 essaying a second time to find happiness while yokemated with a man. One couple, each 70 years of age, being bereft of their former helpmeets, decided to trudge the rest of life's weary pathway, hand in hand. Theirs was a record case, but other amorous ones who wedded nearly equaled them in age. The contracting parties in two marriages were 68 and 50 years old, in another, 61 and 62 years. Several grooms were over 60 years, and blushing brides of 50 or more were not un-common. Five grooms did not know their mothers' maiden names, and one poor lonely bride knew neither her

Of the 375, 56 were between 20 and 22 inclusive, 71 between 23 and 25, 130 between 25 and 30, 65 between 30 and 35, 21 between 35 and 40, 16 between 40 and 50, 7 between 50 and 60, and 8 were over 60. One deluded youth married when he was 17. There was no exception to the rule that women marry younger than men. Their most favored age is from 20 to 22, and between these years 87 accepted the nuptial benediction. Though only one groom was younger than 19, 45 maidens between 17 and 19 were sufficiently sure that they were encosing wisely. Between 23 and 25, 68 were married; 85, from 25 to 30; 49 from 30 to 35; 10, from 35 to 40; 16, from 40 to 50; from 50 to 60, only 3; and 2 had passed their 60th year.

The great majority of those married were born in Canada. Still, there were 53 grooms and 41 brides born in Eng- for 75c. land; there were 13 Irish grooms and 3 Irish brides: 9 of the men were born in Scotland, and, odd to say, only on Scotch-born lass was married in the year. Of Americans there were brides and 18 grooms. One groom was born in the East Indies, and another

Fourteen different religious denominations were represented-211 Methodists, 180 Church of England, 146 Presbyterians, 86 Roman Catholics, 83 Baptists, 18 Congregationalists, 9 Christian Workers, 4 Lutherans, 4 Salvationists, 3 Latter Day Saints, 3 Church of Disciples, and 1 each of Dutch Reformed Church, the Seventh Day Adventists and the Plymouth Brethren. One groom recorded himself simply as

LIEUT. CARSTAIRS WAS WOUNDED

Gallant London Officer in West African Force Slightly Injured.

London, April 30.-Information received here from Uromi, West Coast of Africa, and dated March 25, is to the effect that the punitive expedition, under Major Heneker, composed of 250 men, and which had penetrated to the northeast of Benning City, and there seized an important town, was being attacked in force. The natives were collecting from all parts of the country. Up to the date of the report Major Heneker's command had had 32 casualties. Lieut. W. F. W. Carstairs, of the Canadian militia, had been slightly wounded. He was the only white officer injured.

The above dispatch verified that published in The Advertiser the other day, in which it was stated that a Canadian officer had been wounded. The Advertiser called attention to the fact that Lieut. Carstairs, of London, was besides Major Heneker, the only Canadian with the Benin column, and that he was probably the victim. The brave lieutenant has a host of friends in the city who will anxiously await news of his recovery.
