At 3 o'clock Mr. Ross' Industrial Schools Bill was reported to the House, and the Attorney-General's bill to regulate the charters to loans ampanies was passed through committee, and another bill standing in Mr. Ross' name, improving the law relating to conveyances to trustees, went through with one or two amendments submitted by the Minister. REPARE TO MEET THY GOD.

BY LYMAN ABBOTT.

mos is the Carlyle of the Hebrew hets. Like Carlyle, rugged, with an se scorn of shams and false pretenses, an intense faith in God, but always in od of absolute righteousness—his hecies sound like an alarm bell in the tof a great prosperity, and are the unring of a great falsehood underneath all pretenses of religion. Into the midst he religious festivities going on at el, where the worship of the Golden set up by Jeroboam is still carried on mongrel priesthood, appears this rude herd from the southern kingdom.† his startling prophecies of coming he Idolatry had brought in its train ry, self-will, licentiousness, and every of immorality. In these the keen eye rural prophet discerns the foretokens evitable death. This people imagine they are safe because they are God's ide. "Faith in Jehovah as the God Israel was a faith that he innes on behalf of his people in the stall enemies, against the whole if precisely in times of danger was reashown by staying oneself upon this. Jehovah might indeed of course, his face for a time, but not definitively; end he ever rose at last against all sing powers." * Against this superm, always a superstition in whatever it is innumerable forms it appears, always a superstition in whatever of its innumerable forms it appears, its innumerable forms it appears, declares himself with terrible asis. "Thus saith the Lord," he declares himself with terrible asis, yea! for four, I will not hold my wrath from it." The people listen and applaud the two denounces the sins of their hoors and warns of inevitable doom wing unrighteousness. One can ince how, caught and carried along by fervor of the orator, Sthey were led, shocked, and held their breath, n, having awakened their conscience kindled their indignation against the of others, the prophet suddenly turns hot flame against themselves:

Thus saith Jehovah! Because Israel thrice offended, aye! four times, I will hold back my wrath from it." The tous and lawless rich sell as a slave the ght debtor for money; the honest po ge the helpless even the dust they have ton their heads in their grief, and take living of the wretched." It is in the light of this denunciation of sins of his time that the words of our on are to be read. This people that lated the simplest laws of righteousness e scrupulously religious. Against an ighteous religiousness the prophet breaks. It is not the truth of the truth gent of a great soul, who sees and we the truth of life, because the truth God, to awaken a people given over to schood. Amos is the Old Testament presor of him who denounced the scribes of Pharisees that devoured widows' houses of for a pretenes made long prayers. But you will be very religious, will you, of thus avert your doom? Yet what is ar religion? Go then to Bethel, and sin sinst God in doing so; to Gilgal, and add your guilt. Bring your offerings every orning to your unholy altars; a portion your tithes, not thrice a year at the eat festivals of the law, as required, but ice a week. Burn leavened bread as ank offering, not unleavened, as the law mands, and publish and spread far and ide your liberality in free gifts to your tests and altars; for you love to do this, children of Israel, saith the Lord torship, says the Lord, by the punishments have already sent on you."

Theorem of Asian, and think of such worship, says the Lord, by the punishments I have already sent on you."

These punishments, in which the prophet sees rather merciful warnings than just penalties, he recalls to the recollection of the people: Famine, drought, rust, and blight; locusts, plague, war, earthquake. Alas! all has been in vain. "Therefore thus will I do unto thee, O Israel; and because I will do this unto thee, prepare to meet thy God, O Israel"—when he comes, as the prophet goes on to foretell he will come, in an overwhelming assault by the Assyrians on Israel, and Israel's universal expatriation. The day of the Lord! Is it for this there are waiting? "We ento you that noverwheiming assault by the Large in Israel, and Israel's universal expatriation. The day of the Lord! Is it for this between a waiting? "Wee unto you that desire the day of the Lord! To what end it for you? For such the day of the Lord is darkness and not light." In view of this exposition of the lesson, we may perhaps see three possible interpretations of what I have chosen as the text, and would have chosen as the Golden Text: "Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel." These three interpretations are perhaps intengruous, though not absolutely inconsistent. Each one, rightly taken, leads us to the following one.

We may regard this summons as the language of a bitte lirony. God is your snemy: prepare to meet him; your judge: prepare to plead before him. Could you repare for famine, when he sent you cleantess of teeth? for drought, when he held ack the rain? for blight, and locusts, and ire and sword? for earthquake? amid a rent carth and falling houses, had you a refuge ready? Yet these were but presages and prophecies of the day of the Lord. How will you prepare for it?

So taken, the cry, "Prepare to meet they God," comes as a shock to the conscience. It is a cry to be taken almost by contraries, like Christ's "Sleep on now, and take your God, "comes as a shock to the conscience. It is a cry to be taken almost by contraries, like Christ's "Sleep on now, and take your rest," to the sleeping disciples, when he would rouse them to the danger close at hand. But so taken it leads on to a second meaning. Because God is a righteous God, he will not destroy the repentant. As Nineveh prepared for the day of the Lord, and so averted it; as Sodom and Gorograh might have prepared for and aver all the day of their doom a righteous men in the Cities of the Plain to meet its God, if by equipping itself for the conflict, nor by eaking an escape from it, but by repent can a better life. "The Advertiser" advocates Continental Free Trade, and as early as possible after, free trade with the whole world. The British trade model cannot be improved upon.

"The Advertiser" looks forward with hope to Canada's future as that of an Independent Ganadian Nationality, believing that such a status would be best for Canada, best for Great Britain, and promotive of the best attainable relations with the United States.

"The Advertiser" advocates prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor.

"The Advertiser" is an advocate equal rights women, whether as regards the franchise, or equal wages for equal work.

"The Advertiser" is a believer in Christian Union, and considers the time has come when the various Christian denominations should come closer together. Those bodies which are now nearest should unite first. Under the present system there is an unjustifiable waste of men, means and effort. The ADVERTISER will endeavor to promote the movement for Christian union not alone by direct appeal and argument, but by seeking to present the best rather than the worst side of each

SENATOR CARLING AND SENATOR LEONARD.

Since Mr. Carling became a Senator our local contemporary has acquired a new veneration for the Senate. It even rebukes the Advertiser for not equally reverencing the Upper House, taking the ground that our non-reverence is among other things a reflection on Senator Leonard, who is a

If our contemporary's real motive is not to help Senator Carling over Senator Leonard's shoulders—if our contemporary really wishes to pay a deserved con to Senator Leonard, it will find the ADVER-TISER in hearty accord.

The ADVERTISER does not, however, believe in non-elective Houses of Parliament of any kind whatever; but there is this significant difference between the position of Senator Carling and that of Senator Leonard, that the latter was credentialed to the Upper House by the electors, while the latter was placed there by the Government of the day.

A CANDID PETITIONER.

One protest against a Liberal M. P. is likely to fall to the ground. The man who was prevailed upon to sign the petition against Mr. Burdett, the member for East Hesting, her made add not that he did not be a sign of the petition has made add not that he did not be a sign of the petition has made add not that he did not be a sign of the petition has made add not that he did not be a sign of the petition has made add not that he did not be a sign of the petition has made add not be a sign of the petition has been added not be a sign of the petition. This is a proper course to pursue. If all he signers of petitions were as conscientious as is this man there would be more than one withdrawal of petitions against Liberal members, or we are much mistaken.

FORWARD MOVEMENT IN DAIRY-

The warning from British cheese pur chasers to Canadian producers recently published in the ADVERTISER, is acting as a stimulus towards the production of more uniformly high class goods, beginning with the early make throughout the cheese districts of this Province.

We have noted the decision of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association executive to appoint four inspectors, whose business will be to see that the factories are supplied with honest milk in proper condition, according to the provision of the On tario Milk Act. Mention has also been made of the important step taken in the establishment by the association of a dairy school at Tavistock, where, without charge, makers can go and further improve themselves in the latest and best practice They will also enjoy the privilege of becom ing familiar with the use of the new and efficient Babcock method of testing milk, in which the inspectors are also to be thoroughly drilled before starting on their rounds for the season. The Tavistock institution is under the direction of Mr. Adam Bell, an old and skillful cheese dairyman, who may possibly visit other central points for purposes of instruction later in the season, if thought advisable. A special effort is being made to improve the quality of the early make, but we hear that there is a disposition on the part of some factory-men to rush forward their cheese in a very unripe or uncured condition, about whic complaints were made last season. T me extent the keen demand may be resome extent the condemned practice.

In addition to the above measures Prof.
Robertson, the dairy commissioner, has inaugurated another movement of a mor general character, and was in Western On ario last week completing details of the work, as it relates to this section of the country. The lines along which he pro-poses to work are chiefly instructive and experimental, and to carry out his plans the following dairymen have been se-lected as "Superintendents of Experimental Dairy Work": For Western Ontario, Mr. T. J. Dillon, of Ingersoll, formerly of Bluevale; for Eastern Ontario, Mr. J. A. Ruddick, of Lancaster; for Que-bec Province, Mr. C. C. Macdonald, of Martintown; for Prince Edward Island, Mr. J. W. Wheaton, formerly of Middle sex, now of Toronto; and Mr. John Robertson, of Gladstone, for Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. One for Manitoba and the Northwest is yet to be named. Prior to going to the Maritime Provinces, Mr. Joh Robertson, who for several seasons has been inspector and instructor under the Western Dairymen's Association, will spend some ix weeks in the Western Ontario cheese districts along with Mr. Dillon. A dozen central factories are being selected at which demonstrations in the most ap-proved art of cheese-making and the use of but on the care of cows and milk.

the Babcock tester will be given and ad-dresses delivered not only on factory work, boring makers and all patrons will be invited to be present on these occasion the dates and places of which will shortly be announced. Several factories within easy access of London will be chosen. It is expected that three days will be spent at each factory by the experts early in the season in order to improve the character of the first make of ent degrees of temp erature in "setting and "cooking" and with different quanti ties of salt and rennet, and also from milk containing different percentages of butter fat, say 3, 3½ and 4 per cent., the qualities of which will in due time be properly tested and results published. The maker in these factories will also undertake certain experimental lines of work, having a practical bearing upon this important in-To assist him in his work at the Central Experimental Farm Dairy, Prof. Robertson has secured the services of Mr. J. W. Hart, an Ontario Agricultural College graduate, and a farmer pupil of his own, who has latterly been professor of dairying at the Alabama Experiment Station. He will enter upon his duties about May 1. Butter making at the experimental farm is in charge of Mr. Chris. Marker, a thorough-bred Dane of acknowledged skill in that

The factories permanently chosen for exerimental work in each of the Provinces will, after the cheese season closes next fall, be fitted up with all appliances requisite for butter-making to be carried on therein for export purposes next winter.

In the meantime everything indicates that unprecedented activity is likely to characterize Canadian cheese dairying this season, and with the present prospects of good prices (several April sales for at least 10 cents being reported), together with the determined co-operation of patrons, makers and factorymen to excel each in his own de partment, the season of 1891 ought to be about the best in the history of the business in Canada.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE. Though Parliament opened Wednesday virtually no business was done, the tim being occupied in swearing members and in the election of a Speaker. Yesterday the speech put into the nouth of the Governor-General by his responsible advisers was delivered. It is otable chiefly for the paucity of its contents. With one statement in it few will be inclined to cavil. The crop outlook is represented as giving promise of better times. We hope so. Almost everything in Canada depends upon the success of our farmers, and if we have good crops we must all be benefited.

If the speech had contained an assurance that the taxes would be reduced so as to enable the farmers and the mass of the con sumers, including the independent man facturers, to make the most of the receipts from the earth's yield, it would have been more acceptable. Instead of that, we are told that the boaste surplus, which during the election paign the people were asked to believe lay treasured up in Ottawa, is to be expended on "capital account." That is all the ountry will receive from the unnecessarily heavy taxation which has don somuch to depress trade and make times dull in every department of industrial life.
Reference is made in the speech to the sarily alleged reciprocity negotiations, but it will take a good debate in Parliament to extract from the restrictionist Cabinet the true inwardness of its recent extraordinary oubling and twisting on the trade ques-

FISH BUTCHERS.

The 1st of May is the legal beginning o trout fishing. Shortly after that date the ewspapers are apt to be full of items oasting that so and so caught so many hundreds, and in some cases so many housands of trout.

Last year similar boasts were made by orontonians who had been bass fishing in the Georgian Bay and elsewhere.

Such fishing is in no sense true sport.

It is simply fish butchery. Under a proper law such wasteful and destructive would find themselves, not in complimentar paragraphs, but in jail.

-The Seaforth Expositor reaches the conclusion that the Dominion Senate is now so useless that the sooner it is wiped out the better. "It should at all events," remarks our contemporary, "be made elective so that the people, and not the politicians alone, could have some voice as to its constitution. As it is now being used it is kept as an asylum for those whom the people reject, and an expensive asylum it is, too."

Tree-planting is good in itself, and the effects of a wide-spread interest in it is better still, as it may lead to a revival of interest in forestry among older heads. "Plant a tree" was the advice of the Scotch laird to his son; "it will grow whan ye're sleepin'." W 5 1111

-"A woman cannot keep a secret" is ommon saying, but it seems to be a good deal of a slander. A writer in the Scottish-Canadian tells us that the Baroness Nairne wrote "Auld Robin Gray," the melody which immortalized her name and fame in 1771, but notwithstanding that the song became immensely popular, and was trans-lated into every European language, the fair authoress never divulged the fact that she was its writer to anyone but her sister afterwards Lady Hardwicke, till 1823. Then she told Sir Walter Scott, who had introduced the heroine of the song into "The Pirate." Thus the great secret was kept by these two ladies for the long period of 52 years.

Anti-Treating Movement. Anti-Treating Movement.

To the Editor of the ADVERTIERE.

This is a step in the right direction. As one who knows some of the many evils of this system of treating I hall with satisfaction the efforts that are being put forth to arouse public opinion against it, and wonder why such a pernicious habit to commercial life should have remained so long unchanged. A cheering feature and an augury of success is that the commercial travelers are taking hold of this movement, for they above others see the evil and demoralizing effects upon all concerned. Whole-sale merchants and every business man in the city should rally to their support in so commendable an undertaking. Yours truly, Sarsaparilla is different from and superior to any other medicine.

Peculiar in combination, proportion and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom.

Peculiar in its medicinal merit, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown.

Peculiar in strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses one follar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's Sarsaparilla. Peculiar in its "good name at home"—there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers.

Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time. Do not be induced to take any other preparation. Be sure toget

The new Tory paper to be published by H. T. Butler at Wiarton will be issued in a few days.

A deputation waited upon Hon. Mr. Hardy, Commissioner of Crovn Lands, Tuesday in Toronto, urging that aid be extended for the purpose of promoting the Saugeen Valley Railway, which it is proposed to build from Mount Forest to Walkerton, thence through Greenock township to Tiverton and the port of Inverhuron. The following gentlemen strongly urged the claims of the road for Provincial aid: James Rowand, M.P., R. Truax, M.P. H. P. O'Connor, Walter M. Dack and David Porter, M.P.P.'s for the three ridings of Bruce, and Aaron Wenger, of Ayton. It was urged that the petition of the Saugeen Railway directors, which asked leave to purchase the unpatented lands in Greenock and at Inverhuron at a price not exceeding $2 per acre, on condition that the road be built, be acceded to. At present these lands are of little value, but it is believed that the construction of the read would increase the value so that a handsome sum could be realized for railway purposes. The quantity of land unpatented in the districts referred to is in the neighborhood of 2,000 acres. The Commissioner of Crown Lands made fall inquiries as to the prospects of the Saugeen Railway Comipany, the position which the company occupied at the present time, as to whether the necessary stock had been subscribed, and other matters pertaining to the road, and said he would bring the petition and the views of the deputation before the Government, when the 'matter would be carefully and fully considered.

The Nugents of Carriconna

An Irish Story, By Tighe Hopkins, author of "Twixt Love and Duty," "For Free-dom," etc.

"A few things I'm to get in town, that's all," said Anthony, unfolding and glancing down a big sheet of paper, on which he had written out a score or two of items. "I kave ye in better hands than mine, Arthur, lave ye in better nands than mine, Arthur, me boy. Get Mrs. Lytton to take ye up the tower and give ye just one lesson, and yell think that every day of your life has been wasted till now."

hen wasted till now."

As he was driving out of the gate Anthony had a letter put into his hands by the postman. It was an Australian letter in the handwriting of his late brother's solicitor, and he put it in his pocket to read on the train. When there he opened and read it. The chief interest of the letter was contained in the following sentences:

letter was contained in the following size thences:

"The surprise you express at being left sole legatee is natural. I have learned only within the last few months that my late client, Mr. Kedagh Nugent, had a daughter living at the time when he made his will. But, as I am given to understand his daughter married in direct opposition to her father's wishes, leaving Australia immediately afterwards with her husband. It is believed that they went to Europe, but none of their former friends have heard anything of her orof him since they quitted this country. The husband's name was Lytton, and that is really the only information I possess."

CHAPTER XVII.

More of anthony's surprises.

Anthony's tardy brain did not at the first reading lay hold on any special meaning in thisletter. Buthe was sufficiently impressed to read it a second and a third time. Then he began to be puzzled, and ended by being uncomfortable mystified.

Climbing slowly from inference to inference, Anthony at length satisfied himself that his brother's daughter was living, that she had run away with her husband to Paris, that her husband had died there, and that she was now herself at Carriconna. When he had arrived at this point Anthony was fairly petrified.

Had his niece's coming been accidental, so to speak, on her part—a mere affair of chance? No, it could scarcely have been that. She must have known, or at all events have suspected, from the first, by whom she was being engaged. What had been her motive? Anthony's suspicions were fired in a moment. Was it her father's etune that lured her to Carriconna? What could it have been else? On the other hand why go to work in such a crooked fashion? Anthony was bewildered, stupefied.

could it have been else? On the other hand why go to work in such a crooked fashion? Anthony was bewildered, stupefied.

It was well that he had no companions in the railway carriage. The more he worried over the matter, the more excited he grew. He rolled about in his seat, he stamped on the floor, he got up and shook himself. A sudden greed of money, such as he had here felt before, gnawed at him. He made clutching, motions with his hands, as though holding in them the gold itself. It had been easy to talk of responsibilities Bugwards his niece while he felt certain that new had no niece at all. Now that she had peared, now that she was actually an inmate of the house, and by her mere peesence asserting her right to a share, his too-ready generosity transformed itself into a fierce belousy and over-mastering desire to cling other, where he had been accustomed to make his inconsiderable purchases; and taxing the resourses of those shops by his munificent commissions. He had thought the how different the town itself would look to him on this occasion. He had fancied a himself standing in the middle of Sackville street, gloating over the thought that he could buy up everything around him. These splendid thoughts were dashed, shattered and dissolved. He had hoped to pick up some old acquaintances and take them to the dissolvent. He slung along the streets dreading to meet anybody. He felt as though he had been robbed of all his riches. He paid his visit to his solicitor, and made some half dozen out of the score of purchases he had contemplated; then went and took a solitary lunch at an inferior hotel, and was ready to go home again.

Meanwhile it had been vaguely shaping itself in his mind that the knowledge he had thus strangely arrived at would be best in his own keeping. Along with this thought he considered how oddly it had chanced that the letter from Australia had been put into his hands on that particular morning, and in circumstances which enabled him to keep its contents to himself. But for his visit to Dublin he would have had his letter at the breakfast-table, and Barbara would immediately have shared it with him.

Returning home in the train, he finally decided that the secret should be his own. Hard upon that decision he resolved that the letter itself had better be destroyed. He felt in his pocket for a match, although he knew quite well that he never carried such things. Then he took out the letter, tore it into small pieces, and scattered them along the line, at intervals of twenty yards or so.

But he was still undecided what course to adopt with regard to Dora herself. Of

But he was still undecided what course to adopt with regard to Dora herself. Of this only was he certain, that she must know no more than Barbara what curious ntelligence her uncle had become possessed of respecting her.

John Maher drove him home and could not twist a word from him. At the "grand" gate Dora and Arthur were awaiting his coming. They were in animated talk, and Anthony observed them. On the instant his problem was solved. Dora should have her share in her fater's fortune by marrying Arthur.

Soveral Resignations.

At a meeting of the Union Congregational Church held Wednesday evening Deacons Ashton and Kemp, with their wives, asked for letters of dismissal, as they intended to close their connection with the church on May 13. Mr. Harwood did the same for himself, as well as for his wife and daughter. Mr. Trafford also resigned as treasurer and asked to be dismissed as he had fully made up his mind to leave, but in his case an amendment was carried that he allow his name to stand. The pastor then stated that he and Mrs. Carr had simply waited till that night to see if these officials and members really meant to withdraw at the end of the church month—May 13—and as that was the case they also would do likewise, as they declined to be associated with the church after these and others had withdrawn. They would then understand that instead of closing his pastorate at the end of May he would do so on Sunday, May 10.
