A FORMER LONDON LINEMAN ROASTED ON 70-FOOT POLE

Chas. Henderson Is Dying as Result of Accident in Saginaw.

WIRE CARRIED 500 VOLTS

Wife, Who Resides on Pall Mall Street, Has Gone to Her Husband's Bedside.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Saginaw, Mich., April 19. — Charles Henderson, aged 35, an employee of the Saginaw Power Company, is at St. Mary's Hospital suffering from burns that are likely to prove fatal, received when he came in contact with a live wire at the top of a 70-foot pole.

Henderson, who came to Saginaw a short time ago from London, Ont., was working on the pole when he lost his balance. He put out his hand to catch himself and struck the wire, which was carrying 500 volts.

The hand was burned nearly off, and he pitched forward, striking the wire with his neck.

A life belt held him on the pole, and he hung unconscious fifteen minutes before three companions could obtain a block and tackle and lower his body to the ground. There is no chance for his recovery.

He has a wife in London who is on her way to Saginaw.

Henderson, while in London, was employed as a lineman for local companies, but left this city about three or four weeks ago for Saginaw, where he was injured. He boarded, with his wife, at the home of Mrs. Taber, 417 Pall Mall street, Mrs. Henderson being notified last night of the accident. She left on the first train for Saginaw.

The couple were strangers in the city, it is said, coming from Stratford some four or five months ago. They stated that they had been married for the past nine years, and that their homes were in Michigan, in the vicinity of Flint.

The wire received by Mrs. Henderson was very brief, merely stating that her husband had been injured, and was in St. Mary's Hospital there.

THE OXFORD GRAFT CASE

Upwards of Sixty Witnesses To Be Called by Crown and Defence.

[Canadian Press.]

St. Thomas, April 19.—The grand jury has not yet reported on any of the charges of graft against M. T. Buchanan and B. B. McCarty, of Oxford, though it is learned that they have found a true bill against Buchanan on at least one charge, connected with the purchase of a toll road. Meanwhile the court is proceeding with civil cases.

There are upwards of sixty witnesses to be called in the graft cases, about equally divided between the prosecution and the defence. Crown Attorney Ball, of Oxford, is conducting the cases before the grand jury.

The widow of Thomas A. Johnson, a Pere Marquette brakeman, who was killed at West Lorne in January, is suing the company for $5,000 damage. This case will take most of the day, and it is possible that the graft charges will not be reached until tomorrow.

EAST END PLUMBER FOUGHT A POLICEMAN

William J. Green Gave P. C. McCrae a Real Fight.

William J. Green, a plumber residing in the East End, was found guilty this morning by Deputy Magistrate Graydon of assaulting P. C. Malcolm McCrae last night, and remanded for a week for sentence. According to the policeman's story, Green's wife complained about her husband's conduct, and when P. C. McCrae went up to see Green, the prisoner said the officer couldn't arrest him.

"No policeman can arrest me," said Green. "You are all a bunch of farmers working for $1 25 a day."

P. C. McCrae started to take Green away, and Green then jumped at him and fought so fiercely that the constable's new tunic was completely ruined. The coat is valued at $16 50.

"You will have to buy a new tunic, any way," said the court. "I might send you down for two years on this charge. I will remand you for a week to see what I will do with you."

JUVENILE IS A BOLD THIEF

Police Place Under Arrest a Lad of 13 Who Is Accused of Various Crimes.

COOL THEFT OF CIGARS

Took Nine Boxes Off the Lucan Stage, and Was in No Hurry About It.

Detective Nickie last night placed a 13-year-old North End lad under arrest, and from what the detectives have been able to learn the lad is one of the most daring youthful thieves that has operated locally for some time.

Yesterday afternoon it is known that he went into the stall of Mr. Ben Learn, in the basement of the Market House, and stole a 40-pound crock of butter. It is thought that he sold it.

The day before, it is said, he went down and secured nine boxes of cigars from the Lucan stage by coolly walking up to the driver, and telling him that "Mr. McNee" had told him that he had put too many boxes in one of the parcels, and sent him down to get them.

The lad, it is claimed, calmly untied a big parcel, and after taking out the nine boxes, went away with them.

The detectives are still working on the case, and expect to bring home a number of other thefts to him. The boy has been in the juvenile court on different occasions, and on various charges. He will appear again before Deputy Magistrate Graydon tomorrow morning.

A DARING DEED.

Agua Prieta, April 19.—Shortly after daylight today a daring band of insurrectos, numbering only half a dozen or so, stole into Agua Prieta and set fire to the Nacosani railroad station, which was destroyed, with its valuable contents. The federals fired on the invaders and two were killed.

SALARY BOOSTS RECOMMENDED FOR THE CITY HALL EMPLOYEES

Finance Committee Willing to Grant Some Increases, But On the Whole, the Salary List Remains Pretty Much the Same as in 1910.

Few salary increases were recommended for city officials last night by the finance committee.

All told, they netted $675, and of these $150 must be charged to the board of health.

Some Increases.

"We made some increases last year, and we could not do any more at this time," explained Ald. Eckert, chairman. "I think we have done fairly well by the officials, and there should be little complaint."

It is quite probable that some of the salaries will be boosted tonight, in the council.

THE ST. JOHN'S VESTRY FAILED TO CUT THE RECTOR'S SALARY MOTION RULED OUT OF ORDER

Rev. Rural Dean Hill Last Night Refused to Resign Position.

TWO SALARIES WERE REDUCED

Organist and Sexton Cut Down to a Ridiculous Figure by the Members.

WHAT THE VESTRY DID.

Introduced a resolution to the effect that the vestry would not be responsible for the rector's salary. Ruled out of order.

Introduced a second resolution to reduce the rector's salary to $1 a year. Ruled out of order.

Brought in and carried a motion to reduce the salary of the organist from $600 to $20 a year, and the sexton's salary from $350 to $10.

Passed a motion regretting the departure of Prof. Jeakins from the city, and expressed appreciation of his services.

In spite of the determined efforts made by a majority of those attending the Church of St. John the Evangelist annual vestry meeting, held last evening in the schoolroom of the church, Rev. W. T. Hill refused to resign. Attempts were made to bring both sides together, Hon. Adam Beck and Mayor Beattie both lending their influence to accomplish that end. However, the parties were too far apart, and it was an impossible task to bring harmony from the discord that now exists.

Several resolutions were introduced to force the hand of Rev. Mr. Hill. The first was that stating that the vestry would not be responsible for the salary of the rector. Mr. Hill ruled that out of order, stating that it was against the canons of the church.

Immediately a second resolution was launched, reducing the salary of the rector to $1 a year. This Mr. Hill also ruled out of order, giving as his reason that the question of salary was in the nature of a threefold bargain between the congregation, the rector and the bishop. It could not be broken without the consent of all parties, and he refused to allow the motion to be put.

An appeal from his ruling would have to be made to the bishop.

The Climax.

Then followed the climax of the evening. A motion was made, reducing the salary of the choirmaster and organist to $20 a year, and the sexton to $10.

"I feel more than sorry that any member of a Christian church should try to wreck it in this way," declared Mr. Hill when the motion was made. "That is the only purpose of that resolution. Nevertheless, I will abide by the decision of the commission and I will not resign."

The motion was put, carrying by 22 to 16. A large number did not vote on the question.

Hon. Adam Beck offered to pay the sexton's salary and gave it as his opinion that a volunteer organist could be secured to serve the church.

Later the resolution of appreciation to Rev. Prof. Jeakins was carried by a large majority.

The meeting was characterized by several outbursts of feeling. On one occasion, some of the friends of Mr. Hill hissed the actions of the others, while Mr. Hill's opponents were not slow to show their disapproval of the rector's action. He was openly accused of taking refuge behind the canons of the church, instead of discussing the question openly.

Against Commission's Finding.

The vestry put itself on record as not agreeing with the finding of the commission named to inquire into the trouble. There was no doubt as to their attitude on that question.

Bishop Williams was not present. It was his intention to be on hand, it was stated at the meeting, but at the last minute he found that he could not attend, and Ven. Archdeacon Young was sent to act as his lordship's commissioner. He, too, made an effort to heal the breach, but with indifferent success.

There was a large attendance of the male members of the church. About 75 of the prominent laymen were on hand and great interest was manifested in the neighborhood as to the outcome of the difficulty.

The meeting was opened with prayer and closed with the benediction.

Rev. Mr. Hill Presided.

When the vestry assembled, Rev. Mr. Hill took the chair, and read a letter from Bishop Williams to explain the presence of Ven. Archdeacon Young at the meeting.

"I have authorized Rev. Mr. Young to act as my commissioner at the vestry meeting," wrote his lordship, "so that I may have accurate information as to whether or not the congregation of the Church of St. John the Evangelist accept the findings of the commission appointed recently by myself to inquire into the difficulties that have arisen between Rev. Mr. Hill and a portion of his congregation."

The debate opened instantly.

"Why is this not a congregational meeting as provided by the canons of the church?" asked Mr. Henry Mackenzie. "It is customary to hold that meeting prior to the session of the vestry."

"It is all due to the appointment of (Continued on Page Twelve.)

HON. JAMES BRYCE

The Hon. James Bryce, D. C. L., LL. D., who will address the Canadian Clubs of this city on Saturday afternoon in the Normal School, distinguished himself in early life by publishing, at the age of 24 years, the "History of the Holy Roman Empire." He was born in 1838, and is a son of the late Dr. James Bryce, of Glasgow. He was educated at the high school and University of Glasgow, going from there to Oxford, where in 1862, the same year in which his epoch-making history was published, he was made a scholar of Trinity College and a Fellow of Oriel College. Entering the bar of Lincoln's Inn in 1867, he practiced law till 1882. He was appointed regius professor of civil law at Oxford in 1870, which honor he resigned in 1893. He was first elected a member of parliament for Tower Hamlets in 1880, and in 1886 he was appointed Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. In 1892 he was made Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, with a seat in the Cabinet, two years later becoming president of the board of trade. In 1894, he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, and later to membership in the national institutes and academies of France, Belgium, Italy and other foreign countries. He has also been showered with honorary degrees by the universities of Edinburgh, Michigan, Glasgow, St. Andrew's, Buda Pest, Trinity (Toronto), Victoria and Cambridge.

"The American Commonwealth," issued in 1888, is probably his greatest literary work. More recently he has published "Impressions of South Africa," 1897; "Studies in History and Jurisprudence," 1901, and "Studies in Contemporary Biography," 1903. He became a member of the present British Government in 1906, holding the post of Irish Secretary, which he resigned three years ago in order to become ambassador at Washington.

HOUSES WIRED IN A SLIPSHOD WAY

Three Places Found in West London With No Insulators Put Up.

TELEPHONE WIRE USED

Niagara Power Men Made a Unique Discovery Across the River.

It is a wonder that there have not been many serious fires in this city on account of bad wiring.

The other day the staff of the city electrical department found three houses in West London where the wiring had been done with telephone wire, and with practically no insulation whatever. The wire was passed through the wood partitions with nothing but small pieces of cloth between the wires and the wood.

The property-owner, not knowing what was required in the matter of wiring, thought the job was all right, but when Superintendent Glaubitz and his staff discovered the sort of work that was done, they promptly informed the owners. There certainly would have been some trouble had the underwriters discovered the condition of affairs.

A Great Danger.

"It is a wonder that many serious fires have not resulted from such wiring," Superintendent Glaubitz informed The Advertiser. "There was absolutely no protection for the houses in West London. Three of them were wired by one man, and it was the worst job imaginable. The property-owners ought to consider themselves very fortunate that their houses were not destroyed. We are keeping a close watch for defective wiring. It is a serious matter, I can tell you, and we want to prevent fires as much as we possibly can. There should be a regularly appointed inspector to look after this work. We are doing our best, but we should have more authority so we could prevent it altogether."

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO MURDER CHARGE

Sensational Revelations Expected in the Peterboro Mystery.

[Canadian Press.]

Peterboro, Ont., April 19. — Before Judge Teetzel this morning Hugh Deline, charged with the murder of his wife on the night of Sept. 15, pleaded not guilty. W. M. Meredith is crown prosecutor, and Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon are defending the prisoner. In brief, the details of the crime are that the domestic life of the Delines had been troubled, that Mrs. Deline had complained about her treatment by her husband, and on the night of Sept. 15 her dead and partly nude body was found in a back room, showing marks of violence. Revelations are expected.

GRAND TRUNK EARNINGS.

The Grand Trunk Railway System traffic earnings from April 8 to 14, 1911, were: 1911, $891,154; 1910, $824,890, an increase of $66,264.

JOHN BARLEYCORN DEFEATED REBELS

Drank "Firewater" Found at Agua Prieta Instead of Destroying It.

SMALL FORCE FOUGHT

Six Mexicans and Three Americans Were Left to Stop Federal Advance.

[Canadian Press.]

Douglas, Ariz., April 19.—The rebel defeat at Agua Prieta was attributed to the over-indulgence of the insurrecto soldiers in intoxicating liquors found in the saloons and stores of the captured city, according to Col. Juan Medina, commander in charge of the rebel forces, who fled into the city and surrendered to the United States troops. He says that instead of carrying out his orders to destroy the liquor in the town, the men drank it, and only 400 were really fighting. Garcia's men were in even worse condition, and only six Mexicans and three Americans remained in the trenches. When Garcia found this out, he rushed back to the city to bring up more men, but before he got back, the federals had seized his position.

"Informed of this," continued Colonel Medina, "I gave orders for our troops to mount their horses and prepare to evacuate the city. At this point a man with a shattered hip appealed to me for help. I picked him up and started towards the line. The United States patrol had been moved to the border line. Just beyond this line American soldiers arrested me. From this time on I hardly know what happened."

BRASS MERGER IS NOW MOOTED

Montreal Capitalists Plan to Take in All Canadian Industries.

A "REP." WAS IN LONDON

Local Manufacturers Say That They Have Not as Yet Been Approached on the Matter.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Montreal, April 19.—It is reported here that a big merger of leading brass manufacturers in this city, Toronto, Hamilton, London and other parts of Canada, is in process of formation, and that Mr. D. Lorne McGibbon is behind the move.

Local manufacturers, when asked by The Advertiser, stated that they had not been approached as yet. It is known, however, that a representative of Mr. McGibbon's was in the city recently and it is understood that he was here in connection with the formation of the merger.

RESIGN THEIR POSITIONS IN ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Organist and Sexton Will Not Continue Under Present Conditions.

Organist F. L. Willgoose and the sexton, Mr. Edward Elliott, will resign their positions as a result of the action of the vestry of the Church of St. John the Evangelist in reducing their salaries.

"Yes, I am forwarding my resignation," declared Mr. Willgoose. "One cannot well do otherwise. Affairs have reached such a climax that I will have to retire."

"I want a leave of absence, anyway," Mr. Elliott declared, in his philosophic way. "I would like to get away by the 1st of May, and take a long holiday. I may be gone six months, perhaps a year, maybe forever. The motion last night means my dismissal, or practically so, but if matters are settled satisfactorily, I might come back after my holiday."

CANUCKS RUN WELL IN BOSTON MARATHON

Corkery and Sheridan Well Up in Front Nine Miles From Start.

Boston, April 19.—The Boston Marathon was run today. With the starting pistol the field dashed across the railroad bridge and down through Ashland Centre, passing the railroad a mile from the start, with Alexis Ahlgren, of New York, and Stanley W. Root, of Philadelphia, running side by side in the lead. Just behind and also together ran Frank Masterson, of the Manhattan A.C., New York, C. L. Carr, of Boston, and James F. Carr, of Lowell, while F. McCormick, of Toronto, was a good sixth.

The rest of the field was close up to the leaders. The time at Ashland was 4 minutes and 47 seconds.

By the time Natick Centre, nine miles from the start, was reached, the field was stretched out for more than two miles behind the leaders. Ahlgren was well ahead, 15 yards in front of Masterson, while Madden still held to third place. Then came Bob Stone, of Boston, Corkery of Toronto, Brazill of New York Maguire of Providence, and Sheridan of Toronto. The time was 44 minutes and 13 seconds.

Later.

Flash—Demar wins the Marathon.

FIVE CENTS FOOT FRONTAGE TAX

People Will Now Have to Pay This for Street Cleaning in London.

THE STREETS AFFECTED

A Big List, Which Will Result in Pouring More Money Into the City's Coffers.

The price of street cleaning has been fixed at 5 cents in residential districts and 7 cents a foot for the downtown, or business section.

At the meeting of the finance committee last evening, it was decided to recommend this price for the work.

Deputy Engineer Wright had a voluminous report on the subject, and he explained that the work could be done for that amount of money, provided the city took care of the intersections.

The work will be done by "white wings" throughout the whole city, or rather throughout the district covered by permanent pavements.

"It has been demonstrated beyond question that this work can be done just as cheaply and much more satisfactorily by day labor, or 'white wings,' than by machinery," Ald. Stevenson explained. "I think we should adopt that scheme. It is done everywhere, and has been shown to be most satisfactory. Then we will have the work done properly. The people will not object to the expenditure, but they want the work done well."

The rest of the committee agreed with him, and the suggestion was adopted.

Streets Affected.

The streets to be charged at the rate of 7 cents a foot are the following:

Queen's avenue—Talbot to Wellington.
Carling street—Ridout to Richmond.
Dundas street—Adelaide to Rectory.
King street—Ridout to Wellington.
Talbot street—York to Queen's.
Richmond street—G. T. R. to Oxford.
Clarence street—York to Queen's ave.
Wellington—King to Queen's avenue.

Those to be charged at the rate of 5 cents a foot are the following:

Ridout street—York to Dundas.
Talbot street—Queen's ave. to Oxford.
Richmond street—Horton to Bathurst.
Waterloo street—Queen's to Dufferin.
Peter street—Queen's to Dufferin.
Adelaide street—King to Dufferin.
Rectory street—Dundas to G. T. R.
Queen's avenue—Wellington to Adelaide
Dundas—Rectory to Queen's Park.
King street—Maitland to Adelaide.
York street—From bridge to Wellington.
Bathurst street—Talbot to Richmond.

A Satisfactory Way.

"There is no question to my mind that this will prove to be the most satisfactory way," declared Ald. Richter. "We will have a bylaw prepared to submit to the council tonight, and I have no doubt that it will pass. It is the only proper method of doing business."

A BIG ADDITION

Factory in East End Requires More Room.

Hourd & Co., Limited, furniture manufacturers, located on Quebec street, commenced the erection this week of extensive additions to their present factory building, which will increase the capacity of their plant by at least 50 per cent. This will also mean a corresponding increase in the number of men employed. They have recently given large orders for new machinery, and are making other improvements to their present manufacturing plant.

They are about to install an electric power plant, in addition to their steam plant, which will be retained.

IRISH BENEVOLENT SOCIETY OFFICERS

Dr. Claude Brown will Be President, and Mr. Geo. H. O'Neil, Secretary.

The annual meeting of the Irish Benevolent Society will be held this evening in the board of trade rooms.

Mr. Samuel Stevely, retiring president of the society, will preside. Dr. Claude Brown will be chosen as president, and Mr. Geo. H. O'Neil has accepted the position as secretary.

Dr. A. V. Becher will probably be made third vice-president.

Deputation of Ladies and Citizens Waited Upon Chief and P. M. Graydon.

CRUELTY TO BE STOPPED

People Decide to Put a Stop to the Viciousness in London.

At the conclusion of the police court this morning, a deputation composed of Mrs. S. F. Glass, Mrs. (Judge) Macbeth, Miss Boyd, Miss Thornley, Sheriff Cameron, H. E. Gates, Rev W. L. Steeves, Fred Heath and William McGuire, waited upon Deputy Magistrate Graydon and Chief Williams, and besought them to do everything they can to awaken in the members of the police force more zeal for the protection of animals.

Mr. H. E. Gates, who introduced the deputation, explained that a number of those interested in the Humane Society are enthusiastically extending the work.

"We are taking up the matter of the protection of animals enthusiastically," said Mr. Gates. "We had the hearty sympathy and co-operation of the late Magistrate Love and Chief Williams has been with us always. There have been some cases, however, come to our notice that we think have not perhaps received the attention they might have. What we would like is to have the police assist any of our members if we ask them to interfere in any cases."

Work in St. Thomas.

Mrs. S. F. Glass told of the work that is being done in St. Thomas.

"There they have systematized the work splendidly," said Mrs. Glass. "The chief of police has given every assistance, and has recently permitted chloroform to be kept in his office, so that now as soon as any horse gets in bad shape, or a dog or other animal gets hurt, it is not necessary to run all about the city to get someone to hit it on the head with an axe or shoot it. Only a short time before the present system was put in operation a dog was run over by an auto and practically cut in two. Some one was going to kill it, but it was pointed out that no one could lawfully do it, as it might be insured, being a valuable dog.

An Unfortunate Animal.

"The poor animal was placed in a wheelbarrow and for a long time suffered from its injuries until Miss Brierley, one of the workers, came along and took upon herself the responsibility of chloroforming it. We are glad to see that in Toronto good work is being done, and that there were 758 prosecutions last year, as compared with about 500 the year before. In St. Thomas recently a novel means was taken to educate the boys who had been driving horses in an inhuman manner. Mr. Darrach got them together and gave them a talk on the care of horses and their duty toward dumb animals. The society recently purchased a poor old horse from an inhuman driver, who was using it to haul ashes. It may be seen on the street now with a big covering over it, bearing a sign: 'Saved by the Humane Society from an Inhuman Driver.'"

Chief Will Co-Operate.

Chief Williams, replying to the deputation, said that at all times he was only too pleased to assist in any work to protect animals.

"I have a great love for animals," said the chief, "and if I should happen to be present myself when anyone is abusing them, it would not be well for the party. All the constables are instructed to strictly enforce the law regarding cruelty to animals, and they all do. The great trouble that I find is that people will not assist us as they should. There are any amount of people ready enough to telephone in about something, or tell us about things, but when we want them to come up as witnesses, they refuse absolutely, and we can do nothing.

"In regard to the killing of animals, we used to use strychnine on them, but found that shooting is far more humane and much quicker.

Buying Old Horses.

"Miss Boyd asked if it were true that junk dealers can purchase poor horses on the way to the bone yard and use them?

"There is nothing to prevent it," said the chief. "We cannot interfere in a case of that kind." The question as to whether a poor, lean-looking horse is unfit to be worked or not is a very hard one to decide."

"I am glad indeed that you came," said Deputy Magistrate Graydon to the deputation. "Your work is along the

CANINE MASCOT OF MEXICAN TROOPS

Found Dead Beside Body of Master After All-Day Battle.

El Paso, April 18.—The battle of Bauche was fought all day Saturday and the federal dead and some wounded were left on the field until late this afternoon. No effort was made to assist the wounded during the battle nor after the battle until two automobiles bearing the Red Cross visited the field today and removed two dead bodies and one wounded federal soldier, who still lived, but had ceased to suffer. The wounded returning to Juarez last night were compelled to walk or ride their horses.

The rebels who defended their position in a canyon 10 miles south of Ciudad Juarez, removed their killed and wounded before retreating. The federals and rebels both retreated at the fall of darkness, after fighting since 9 o'clock in the morning, with an intermission of only two hours. The federals officially announce six killed, including two lieutenants and 12 wounded. The dead and wounded of the insurrectos cannot be learned.

At Bauche, before the arrival of the Red Cross party, was found the evidence of the battle. By the side of a road lay a federal soldier, his body shattered by a dozen shots. At his side lay a dead dog. The dog mascot of the battalion was shot through the neck. The animal's body lay so that the man's hand could have patted the shaggy head.

Horrors of the War.

A wounded soldier was found under a railway bridge, shot in the arm and leg. The man could not speak, but moved his eyes about in a pitiful fashion. He was loaded into the automobile with the two dead and packed to the city, after lying on the ground all night and most of the next day without food or water.

At Bauche a huddle of adobe section houses were remnants of the rebel camp. Blood-smeared clothing was strewn about, and there were evidences that a physician had been at work. A plank had served as an operating table, and human hair soaked in blood lay on the board, as if a scalp would had been dressed. Three rifles and three saddles and outfits had been abandoned, indicating that three of Madero's soldiers had been killed. Not a soul inhabited the place, and a careful search found no rebel dead or wounded.

Fearing that the rebel train would be run into Juarez, as was done in the attack of Agua Prieta, the federals last night burned a bridge 10 kilometers south of Juarez. The rebels' train was wrecked by a mine, placed at Bauche, but no damage was done. The cars bearing the insurrectos and their horses were preceded by three box cars loaded with lumber, and these cars were wrecked by the blast. The train returned south, leaving the wreck as a reminder that the insurrectos are not to be caught by trap.

It is believed the 50 rebels who fought at Bauche expected Madero's main command, which has not come within striking distance of Juarez. There is no well at Bauche, and after the day's fight the insurrectos took to the hills, where ranches give water. The train had been sent south to find out why the other train had not arrived.

TRAINS WITHOUT DRIVERS.

Germany possesses a miniature, but most useful railway, of which the chief peculiarity is that its trains have no drivers. It is used for carrying salt from the salt mines at Stassfurt, and the trains consist of thirty trucks each carrying half a ton of salt. The engines are electric, of 24-horsepower each. As the train approaches a station, of which there are five along the line, it automatically rings a bell, and the station attendant turns a switch to receive it. He is able to stop it at any moment. To start it again he stands on the locomotive, switches the current, and then descends before the engine has gained speed.

THE DARK DAYS OF STOMACH TROUBLE

OBSTINATE INDIGESTION CAN BE CURED BY A FAIR USE OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

No trouble causes more widespread suffering and discomfort than indigestion. The ailment takes various forms. Some victims are ravenous for food; others turn sick and faint at the sight of meals; but as a rule every meal is followed by intense pains in the chest, heartburn, sick headaches, dizziness and shortness of breath. Indigestion assumes an obstinate form, because ordinary medicines only subdue its symptoms—but do not cure. So-called predigested foods only make the digestion more sluggish and ultimately make the trouble take a chronic form.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure indigestion because they go right to the root of the trouble. They make new, rich blood, that invigorates weakened organs, thus strengthening the digestive system so that the stomach does its own work. That is the Dr. Williams' way—the rational way—to cure indigestion and the ailments that may arise from it. This has been proved time after time in the published cures wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Miss Blanche Wallace, Dartmouth, N.S., says: "I suffered greatly with my head and stomach, and often took fainting spells. I could not retain anything on my stomach, and while I naturally craved food I really dreaded mealtime with the pain and discomfort that followed. I tried a number of remedies, but got no relief. My mother was using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at the time with so much benefit that she induced me to try them. The result was that soon the trouble had passed away, and I have since enjoyed the best of health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent for 62 50 by writing the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

LIVES AS HERMIT ON HIS YACHT

One of Picturesque Persons of United Kingdom.

SILENT ON OWN HISTORY

Myrah Bayard Brown Noted for Generosity to Beggars in Colchester Harbor.

London, April 18.—There is no more picturesque person in the whole United Kingdom than Myrah Brown, the wealthy hermit yachtsman of Brightlingsea. For twenty-two years he has lived aboard a palatial yacht, anchored in the same place in Colchester harbor, and has kept his identity a profound secret.

All that was known about him was that he was an American, wealthy, prodigally generous and eccentric.

So a reporter journeyed to the coast of the North Sea to learn what sort of a man he really was.

But this strange man refused to tell anything about his history. At all references to America or New York he would shut up like a clam.

"Only Liars Doff Hats."

The reporter had taken off his hat. Brown noticed it, and removed his cap. After a few minutes he slapped it on his head again, saying as he did so:

"Better put on your hat. Only liars take off their hats."

As they walked the reporter unconsciously twiddling his thumbs.

"I don't know that signal you're giving me," he said, "so I can't answer."

And so for half an hour he talked in the same wandering, incoherent strain. His voice was pleasant and carefully modulated and his language that of an educated person.

Meanwhile eight rowboats were prowling around the vessel's side. Their occupants were there simply to beg of Mr. Brown's bounty without any reason for so doing except that they wanted the money. Twice while we were talking he went to the rail and tossed over coins. One was a sovereign, the other a silver piece.

Begging Not Unusual.

This begging was nothing unusual. It goes on all day long and every day in the week. Twenty-six boats had been out to the yacht that day carrying beggars.

Although Mr. Brown would say nothing about himself plenty of persons in the village gave information about him. The inhabitants are about equally divided in their opinion as to whether he is a nuisance or a blessing. Those to whom he has made presents are warm in their praises of his openhanded generosity, while others say that his indiscriminate and lavish giving of money has demoralized the village.

It is not considered humiliating to beg from him, and persons of all classes do it. His presents vary from a pound to a thousand pounds. He always has money with him in abundance. Once a month a man comes down from a banking firm in London with a large package of bank notes, gold and silver. This Mr. Brown carries in his clothes. He always pays in cash and never writes checks.

Scattered Gold Coins.

In former years Mr Brown was accustomed to go to London and bring down the money himself. On his return to Brightlingsea he would scatter a bag of gold coins along the streets on his way to the pier. This resulted in his being so violently mobbed each time that he gave up the habit, and now rarely leaves the yacht oftener than once in two or three months. Of course, he is the victim of all sorts of hard luck tales to extract money from him. They always seem to work, too, no matter how transparent or silly.

Last week a neighboring farmer, who is fairly well to do, rowed out to the yacht, and told Mr. Brown that he wanted to buy 300 sheep, but hadn't the money.

"How much will they cost?" asked the victim.

"Three hundred pounds."

Hands Out the Money.

"All right, here's the money," and he counted it out.

Two days later the farmer returned and said the sheep he bought had turned out bad; they all had foot-and-mouth disease.

"Oh, that's very unfortunate. You'll have to get some more. Here's the money," and he handed over another three hundred pounds. This is only a sample of many similar incidents. One of his crew took a hundred-pound note he found in Mr. Brown's locker. When accused of theft, he said, "I saw it there, and, of course, I had to take it."

"Oh, well, so long as you have confessed, it's all right. I won't prosecute you. Keep the money and take a two-weeks' vacation."

Another man stole a leg of mutton from a butcher shop, and when arrested was fined five pounds. Mr. Brown paid the fine.

Mr. Brown believes strict discipline should be maintained aboard his vessel. One of the crew told me that for any breach of the rules the boatswain was instructed to whip the offender with a rope's end. The crew is only too willing to be whipped, for the boatswain only made a pretense of doing it and when the farce was over Mr. Brown invariably gave the whipped one a five-pound note to soothe his feelings.

Mr. Brown is 59 years old. His home is in San Diego, Cal., although before coming to Brightlingsea he lived in New York.

CLAIRVOYANT CLUE LOCATES TREASURE

Occultist Aids in Hunt for Spanish Galleon Sunk in 1588.

London, April 18.—Within a week or so those engaged in the long search for the mysterious and treasure-laden Spanish galleon sunk in 1588 off the northwest coast of Scotland, in Tobermory Bay, expect to be rewarded with success. For a long time divers have been bringing up occasional coins, cannon, swords and various other relics which go to prove that the ship was the ill-fated Florencia, captured and blown up off the Isle of Man when beating desperatly for the north, after the defeat of the Spanish Armada.

The latest clue to the position of the main hull has come out in a queer and uncommercial way, for it owes its origin to the efforts of a clairvoyant. The seer was consulted by Lieut.-Col. MacKenzie Foss, the chairman of the Pieces of Eight syndicate which is conducting the search. Chiefly out of curiosity, he went to her with a piece of wood about the size of a man's finger nail that had been recovered from the wreck. Though knowing nothing of the circumstances, the woman closed her eyes and declared she felt very keenly the sensation of being under water.

She followed this disclosure with the announcement that the wood belonged to a sunken vessel which lay to the left of where it was being sought. Lieut.-Col. Foss, being a Scotchman, had his doubts, but after a careful search according to her directions, located other portions of the hull in a quite unexpected and unexplored direction. He was totally won over, however, by the fact that on his arrival at the diving headquarters he found a buoy had been placed near the wreck. This was not there when it went away, but the occultist insisted that she could see it bobbing up and down. Sure enough, when he returned, his assistants had placed the buoy to mark the position of a gun that had just been hauled up.

A large amount of treasure is confidently expected to reward the efforts of the searchers, who have been hard at their task for many months.

BRITISH ARCHIVES LURE FOREIGNERS

Other Countries Furnish Ninety Per Cent of Record Students.

London, April 18. — Interesting facts are still coming to light at the sittings of the royal commission on public records. It appears that "the inhabitants of this bright little island" lack zest for historical research, for last year nearly 90 per cent of the students in the search room were Australians and foreigners. More photographs of ancient records, too, were taken by Americans and Frenchmen, than by Britishers, who seem to be superlatively indifferent to their national archives.

Some years ago a large quantity of documents supposed to be worthless were handed over to the stationery office for destruction. Some of the documents were not properly mutilated, and a few of them found their way to the United States through the medium of a second-hand bookseller. Later on, an indignant American citizen wrote to the record office asking if Britain had become so poor that it was necessary to sell public records. This protest woke the officials to the fact that a little private graft had taken place in regard to the documents that had been set aside for destruction.

The aged historian, Dr. James Gairdner, for many years the assistant keeper of the public records, probably knows more than any man living about Britain's national archives. As a result of recent inspection, he says, the records are well arranged now, so that students can study the materials for history at any time. Only if they need copies are they called upon to pay fees. It requires more than average scholarship to decipher the old Latin documents.

And, in this connection, Dr. Gairdner speaks of a young man who asked to see a fourteenth century manuscript. As he was trying hard to decipher it, the librarian offered to assist him. The stranger declined and the courteous librarian replied that he had no desire to interfere with any student's liberty, but he would like to point out that the stranger was looking at the manuscript upside down.

Splendid Comedy.

"The Man on the Box," to be presented at the Grand next Friday and Saturday, and Saturday matinee, April 21 and 22, is one of the most delightful plays of the present day. Bubbling over with high-class comedy, at times bordering on melodrama, then with a touch of pathos, to be followed with a scene of exceptional strength, is a brief outline of this most enjoyable play. The plot of the play revolves around Lieut. Robert Worburton, a young army officer, who, returning from a trip abroad, falls in love at first sight with the daughter of Col. Annesley, who, unknowingly to him, is his sister Nancy's dearest friend. To play a practical joke on his sister, he shaves his beard, borrows a livery, bribes the coachman, and supposedly takes his place on the box of his sister's carriage, thinking to drive her home from a ball at the British embassy, and at the end of the drive, frightens her by jumping down from the box and giving her a good, sound, brotherly kiss. He makes a mistake in the carriage number, however, and instead of driving his sister home, drives the carriage containing Miss Annesley, who, in the end, receives the kiss intended for Nancy.

While numerous funny incidents are arising contiuually as the result, a more serious aspect runs through the play. Seats selling.

A Star Performance.

The management of the Grand Opera House have offered the public very many fine attractions during the season of 1910-11, and can congratulate themselves upon the splendid patronage accorded these productions. Nevertheless, the star performance of the season, "Lady Huntsworth's Experiment," will be presented on Monday evening, April 24, and judging from the enthusiasm with which the tickets are being applied for, the production promises to be even a greater success than it was two years ago. Londoners will appreciate the fact that the cast, which comprises the leading local talent, will in this way boost this city, not only in Ontario, but in the prairie province of Manitoba, where, on April 28, the company play before his Excellency Earl Grey, in the annual dramatic competition.

The proceeds of the London performance will be given to the Victorian Order of Nurses, which, as everyone knows, is a most worthy charity. Seats on sale at the box office on Thursday, April 20.

New York Points of Interest

Hundreds of Them Within Comparatively Short Distances of the Hotel St. Regis.

The length of the Island of Manhattan—from the Battery to the Harlem River—varies from eight miles on the east to twelve miles on the west. The average width is one mile. Fifth avenue is the central dividing line between the eastern and western sections. On Fifth avenue, at Fifty-fifth street, is located the Hotel St. Regis, five miles from the Battery and an equal distance from the Harlem River. This location is practically the geographical centre of the city, insures the shortest distance and the least travel for guests of this hotel to the many points of interest to be found in Manhattan Borough, Central Park and the Metropolitan Art Museum are within a few blocks, the Natural History Museum requires but a five minutes' ride, while the great shopping and theatrical districts can be reached in even less time. The St. Regis—it will be remembered—was fitted up and furnished with an exquisiteness that knew no stint, yet it is the farthest removed from the ostentatious. Its atmosphere is one of homelikeness and refined comfort. The St. Regis restaurant has no superior in all the world in quality of food, skill in preparation and perfection of service; while the charges are no higher than those of other first-class hotels. Transient guests coming to New York and stopping at the Hotel St.Regis will find accommodations of the very highest grade in every particular and at standard rates. Single rooms are $3 and $4 a day; the same with private bath for $5 a day (or $6 for two people); while for a parlor, bedroom and private bath the rates are $12 a day and up.

STRANGE EXPERIENCES IN A WELL.

While tramping over a field the other day to make a short cut to his home at Sharon, Pa., George Hoven stepped on the boards of an abandoned well and fell through. He was able to grab hold of a crossbeam and succeeded in linking his arm about it. Then he screamed for help, but his cries were not heard. After clinging to the crossbeam for about two hours, Hoven began to grow weak. He offered a prayer and then allowed his arms to relax, expecting to fall many feet and be killed or drowned. Instead, he fell only six inches. The fright at finding the moment while he hung suspended in the air completely unnerved him, and it was many hours before he was able to crawl out and make his way home.

In Three Accidents

It would seem that Zam-Buk, the famous healing balm we hear so highly spoken of everywhere, is particularly useful in the family circle. A report sent by Mrs. E. Davey, 786 Ellice Avenue, Winnipeg, will illustrate this. She says: "My little boy of three, while playing, fell from a high verandah to the ground, cutting his forehead badly. Instead of calling a doctor who would undoubtedly have put in a number of stitches, I bathed the wound well, and applied Zam-Buk. The little fellow, although suffering keenly, soon had relief from his pain. In the course of three weeks, by applying Zam-Buk daily, the wound was nicely healed.

"Since then I have also used Zam-Buk for a boil which came on my cheek, and which proved very painful and looked unsightly. Zam-Buk soon drew the boil to a head, and it then quickly banished it.

"Another time my baby was scalded on her left thigh and calf of leg with boiling water. Directly it was done I thought to use Zam-Buk, and spreading some on lint I wrapped up the baby's limb. Next morning she rested much easier and I applied a fresh bandage with Zam-Buk. I kept this treatment up daily, and was rewarded by seeing a great improvement each time I dressed the wound. In a very short space of time the scalds were all nicely healed.

"I cannot recommend this wonderful healing preparation too highly for family use, and I have such great faith in its healing powers that my house is never without a box."

For all skin injuries and diseases, piles, eczema, salt rheum and face sores, Zam-Buk is absolutely unequalled. Fifty cents a box at all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Company, Toronto, for price. Try Zam-Buk Soap, too' Only 25c tablet.

RIOT LEADER ARRESTED

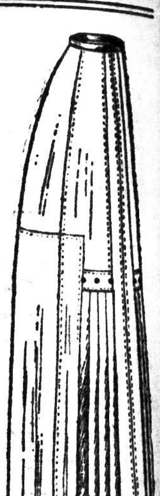

Bold Stroke of French Authorities to End Champagne Troubles.

Ay, Department of Marne, France, April 18. — The judicial authorities, escorted by cavalry, today arrested Le Cacheux, vice-president of the Wine Growers' Federation, on the charge of inciting riots. Le Cacheux was immediately conveyed to Rheims by train, where he was placed in jail.

The bold action of the authorities appears to have nonplussed the wine growers, as up to the present they have not attempted the violence which was threatened in the event of the leaders being arrested, and the few isolated attempts at demonstrations have been easily broken up by the troops.

DOG A FAITHFUL GUARD.

On the ranch of Henry Mathews, near Husum, Wash., a little girl of the family, while playing in the yard with her pet dog, put her mittens on a large flat stump, and told her playfellow to "watch it." Forgetting the dog and mittens the child returned to the house. Not until after dark was the dog missed, when a search among neighbors was made for the pet. The next morning the girl suddenly remembered of leaving the dog on a stump in charge of her mittens. The faithful animal was found still guarding his charge.

REFUSED APPLICATION FOR CONSTRUING WILL

Judge Decides There Is No Trouble in Understanding It.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, April 18.—Miss Selina Gilbard, of Cobourg, who died on Nov 19, 1910, left an estate of $24,493.97, to be divided among twenty-five legal heirs. A dispute has arisen as to the meaning of the will and this morning an application made before Justice Meredith for an order appointing parties to represent the different classes of litigants under the will to appear in court on a motion for construing the will.

"I will make no order for representation in a simple case of that kind," remarked the chief justice, and dismissed the application. The will presented no difficulties that the court need be asked to solve.

Opening of Convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

LIVE SALARY QUESTION

Minimum Should Be $1,000 Through the Province, Says Speaker, and Hearers All Agree.

Toronto, April 18.—This morning's great gathering of teachers from all parts of the province to the halls of the university introduced the Ontario Educational Association to its first jubilee, the fiftieth milestone in its history.

Since the "Teachers' Association of Canada West" congregated in the court house, Toronto, in 1861, the changes brought about in the educational machinery of Ontario make the present convention a unique and instructive lesson in the complexity of modern education, and in the broad basis upon which the association conducts its work.

Four hundred names were placed on the register by Secretary Robert W. Doan this morning, and before tomorrow has passed several hundred more will be added. Indications point to one of the most successful conventions yet held, many features being attached to the programmes which have appealed to teachers from all parts and of all divisions of interest. The departure of Toronto members for New York leaves a vacant space in the attendance annually, and in some degree forbids local participation in the papers and discussions.

Reunion of Friends.

As the membership of the association does not fluctuate to any appreciable degree, the reunion of friends about the halls and in meetings partook of many happy features, and the hand-shakes and inquiries from ten to eleven o'clock threatened to postpone the serious business for which all were gathered. By eleven, however, the meetings were well under way and continued to the noon hour. This afternoon the various sections go forward with their papers, and at 6:30 the jubilee banquet will, it is expected, attract about the tables many hundred members and ex-members of the association to help celebrate the jubilee birthday.

Salaries to the Fore.

The question of "salaries," which is a perennial upon the teachers' programme, drew a crowded hall, and the statements of the speaker, Mr. Charles G. Fraser, that the minimum was due for a hearty increase, met with applause and resolutions of appreciation. That arithmetic should be replaced upon the high school examinations and taught during the year preceding them, was Mr. C. L. Crassweller's view of "General Aspects of Recent Examinations," and Prof. W. J. Paterson amplified this contention in an interesting way. The high school principals placed themselves on the side of industrial in the high schools, but were convinced that it should be under guidance separate from the staff of regular teachers. Other papers contained a fund of information and elicited eager discussion, which filled up every minute until adjournment.

Officers Elected.

The classical section elected these officers this morning:

Honorary President—Mr. W. C. Michell, Riverdale High School.

President — Prof. J. C. Robertson, Victoria College.

Vice-President—Mr. A. E. Coombs, St. Catharines.

Secretary—Mr. J. H. Miller, Parkdale High School.

The following are councillors: Messrs. E. O. Sliter, Kingston; Prof. A. Carruthers, University of Toronto; E. W. Hagarty, Harbord Street Collegiate; Mr. Glass, Midland; Dr. H. I. Strang, Goderich, and P. F. Munro, Jarvis Street Collegiate.

Mathematics Too Hard.

That the standard in the mathematical papers set for the Part I. of the faculty entrance was too high for those not qualifying for teachers, or pupils not of abnormal capacity, was expressed in a paper by C. L. Crasswaller, Sarnia, in the mathematical section.

The general character of the examination papers had been good, though an occasional question had been given which practically no candidates could solve.

Ontario's Superiority.

The special course in Ontario high schools is much superior to those offered by German, English and Scotch continuation schools, according to Mr. G. M. Jones, who read a paper in the commercial section on "English for Commercial Classes." The reason was that it made good provision for instruction in English history and art.

Value of Examining Board.

In the high school principals' section, the president, Mr. S. Martin, of St. Marys, spoke of the examining boards associated with secondary education. He claimed that these examinations had done more in stimulating pupils and teachers to their best work and in "discounting boastful incompetence" than either the approved school system or the system inspection.

UNION DEPOT FOR HAMILTON

Reported That Grand Trunk and the Canadian Northern Will Join Hands.

Hamilton, April 18.—The city has an ambitious scheme for a union station here and will take the matter up with the officials of the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern. In view of the Canadian Northern changing its route through the city and buying a lot of north-end property the controllers favor a union station at the corner of Burton and James streets, with the entrance there and running back to Stuart street two blocks. Their idea is for the Grand Trunk to come in underground and the Canadian Northern above.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19.

A NOTED VISITOR.

The Women's Canadian Club has caught a lion in James Bryce, who has kindly consented to break a western journey for the pleasure of the citizens of London.

An American journal the other day referred to Mr. Bryce as the most learned man in the English-speaking world. This may be true, but Mr. Bryce has never been a closet philosopher. His theory of life makes no division between thought and action. His whole career has been a miracle and pattern of industry and achievement. His weight of learning and of years he wears as lightly as a flower. Witness his mountain-climbing feats after he had passed three score years and ten.

Born 73 years ago, Mr. Bryce leaped into fame at the age of 24 with an historical classic, "The Holy Roman Empire," which today holds its place as a standard work. He won success at the bar, and for 23 years held the great chair of regius professor of civil law at Oxford, his alma mater. He entered public life in 1880, with a brilliant reputation for scholarship, and showed such aptitude for parliamentary work that he was given a ministerial post six years later. No member of the House of Commons in the last quarter of a century, except Mr Gladstone, has spoken with more authority or been heard with more respectful attention. A series of prolonged visits to the United States resulted in 1888 in his magnum opus "The American Commonwealth," a sympathetic study and analysis of the institutions and tendencies of the republic. It has never been approached by a native writer, and today it is the text-book on the subject in most of the American universities and colleges. It was his interest in the American democracy which led him to resign the Irish secretaryship a few years ago to become ambassador at Washington, an appointment that delighted the American people. It is proof of the freshness, vigor and versatility of this great man that he could break new ground in his old age by entering a highly-specialized branch of the public service and achieving what the London Nation recently described as "the most brilliant diplomatic record of the past twenty years." Canadians owe him a debt; he is the first British ambassador at Washington who has troubled himself to regularly visit this country and endeavor to acquaint himself thoroughly with Canadian interests and the Canadian point of view. He has been a real ally of Canadian negotiators in their dealings with the United States, and to him is due much of the credit for the wiping out of long-standing arrears of disputes and differences, thus paving the way for the Anglo-American entente cordiale which seems about to receive the seal of a treaty of perpetual peace. When that treaty is consummated Mr. Bryce will probably sing his nunc dimittis. He has been the chief modern interpreter between Great Britain and the United States, and it has been the passion of his later years to see them drawn together in the manner now proposed.

ANOTHER BRITISH REFORM.

The new trades board established by the British Government continues its warfare in the cause of the toilers. Attention having been called by certain journals, and by "The National Anti Sweating League," to the condition of the paper-box makers, the board lent a ready ear and a willing hand, as already in the case of the chain-makers and lace-finishers, to fix a reasonable wage. The chief warfare waged by the former government was in South Africa. At home they "let all sleep." Their answer to the cry of the sweated and the unemployed was, "Nothing can be done; these things must ever be." But the Asquiths and Churchills and Lloyd Georges and Burnses are men of another stamp. Some of the privileged people who bawled against the chancellor of the exchequer and the home secretary were about as much interested to inform themselves on the conditions of female and child labor as a lion nuzzling and purring over the last bones of a feast cares to exercise his mind with a nature study of the victim's life habits. But the present government, which embraces beyond any doubt the greatest constellation of practical talent and wisdom ever assembled to direct British affairs, will soon be able to say of the old disgrace of sweating unemployment and famine, "we have changed all that."

The women employed in paper-box making have been receiving commonly about 3 cents (1½d.) an hour for their labor, or $1.50 to $2 per week, about one-fifth what an ordinary worker of the same trade makes in this country. The trade board has fixed the minimum legal wage for women paper-box makers at 2¾d. per hour from July 1, 1911, 3d. from Feb. 1, 1912, 3¼d. from Feb. 1, 1913. Most workers will thus earn twice as much as before, and the gradual advance will give the trade time to accommodate itself to the new conditions.

The rates fixed are universal rates, not varying as between district and district. In low paying areas like Bristol and Birmingham the increase of wages should, therefore, be particularly marked. The better class of employers themselves will in the main welcome the Government's action through the trades board, because they also will be protected against the sweating manufacturers who would be in a position to undersell them.

In order to limit the exploitation of child labor which has been one of the blots upon the box making trade, the board will allow only a certain proportion of learners to adult workers, refusing to issue certificates to learners over and above the number considered to be proper for any particular factory. How the old time economists, Tories and Whigs alike, would have held up their hands at the idea of such governmental interference with prices and "freedom of contract!"

THE FAVORED-NATION TREATIES

The Dominion is bound by British treaties, which it had no hand in framing, to concede to Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Colombia, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Russia, Switzerland, and Venezuela, the tariff favors extended to the United States in the reciprocity agreement. Some of these treaties date back to the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Only two—those with Japan and Austria—have been made since Confederation. These were assented to by the Canadian Government, but it is obviously unfair that Canada should be bound by the others. The Laurier Government took this view of the German and Belgian treaties, which stood in the way of the British preferential tariff, and cut the Gordian knot by simply proclaiming the preference in defiance of the treaties. The British Government took the hint and terminated them.

It is reported that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will raise the question at the imperial conference by asking that Canada be released from the obligations of treaties which fetter her commercial independence. Sir Edward Grey, replying to a member of the House of Commons, said the other day that Canada could not free herself from the consequences of these treaties unless the Imperial Government ended them by denouncing them. No doubt the Imperial Government will, if Canada asks it, seek such a revision of the treaties as will give Canada a free hand without prejudicing the trade interests of Great Britain herself. Great Britain lost nothing by denouncing the German and Belgian treaties, and it is not at all likely that the other countries now embraced in the favored nation conventions would seek to penalize so good a customer. These restrictions upon Canada are the inheritance of a time when Canada had an inferior status in the Empire and are not consistent with her power and position today. In the meantime no injury will be inflicted by the operation of the treaties. The countries named above are too remote to ship any appreciable quantity of farm products to Canada, but even if they did it would not follow that the Canadian farmers, who would have the United States market as a new string to their bow, would suffer from the process. It is the principle of the treaties that is objectionable, not their operation.

The word rector is derived from the Latin word "rego," I rule. The rector of St. John's evidently believes in living up to his title.

The Ottawa Opposition cannot dictate to the Canadian Parliament, but it may spoil the imperial conference by keeping Laurier home.

The anti-veto bill is passing by stages through a thinly-attended and sleepy House of Commons. The British people have become bored by the cry of revolution, and even Lord Rosebery's dithyrambics fall on languid ears.

"The chief fomenter of the free trade agitation in the west is the British radical," says the Toronto News. This is a change. The cry has been that the newcomers from the United States are behind the reciprocity agitation. But the News professes to know the disloyalists are British and born in Britain at that!

Several hundred Toronto teachers journeyed to New York wearing Union Jacks. It is bad manners to flaunt one's flag in a foreign country. This is a habit for which people of other countries are always rebuking our American cousins, and with good reason. The Toronto teachers should have set a better example.

THE DIFFERENCE.

[St. Louis Republic.]

It is very important that the pupil learning to extract square roots should comprehend principles instead of "taking twice the trial divisor regarded as tens"—if that is the way of it. Here the principle is everything; the particular form of the expression nothing. But in the study of literature this law does not apply. Take an illustration: Wordsworth says:

But she is in her grave; and O,
The difference to me!

Suppose we express the same thought in slightly different language: "She's buried now; and I tell you it makes a difference!" There is no travesty here; the second form might be the honest and heartfelt utterance of a manly spirit. But it lacks just that union of the body of speech to its soul which is the essence of poetry.

"Aye, mon, the morrn," said Sandy. "I'll go ye a round on the links in the morrn."

Giving the school girl ideas on the value of food and its proper preparation under sanitary conditions is augmenting the health of the nation. THE NAVIGATION MERGER

Reported at Toronto—The Deal Is About To Go Through.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, April 19.—There was a persistent report from Toronto today that the R. and O. deal was nearing completion.

Asked if he had heard anything about it, a director of the Richelieu said: "The interests in the west know where we stand in regard to making the Inland Navigation Company a party to the deal. If it is reported that everything is settled, that means that the western people have come to our terms." R. and O. stock was much stronger this morning, selling up to 121 1-2. Later it reacted over a point when weakness hit the general markets.

CREATE YOURSELF OUT OF THOUGHTS

Dr. H. A. McCallum's Address Last Night in the First Methodist Church.

A TALK TO THE BOYS

Anger Kills, Worry Destroys—Cultivate the Moral Sense—Laws of Nature Made Up of Habits.

"Thoughts are things," said Dr. H. A. McCallum, before the Young Men's Club of the First Methodist Church, last night. "Belief is creative, and ideas tend to go into action. If you are going to be great, you have got to create yourself out of thoughts."

In an intensely interesting lecture on "Mental Achievement," Dr. McCallum gave to the young men who sat before him, and drank in his every word, the message of the new psychology, with its gospel of success and efficiency.

"The mind is like an orchard," he said, "and like a tree needs to have its dead and superfluous branches cut out. Don't plant too many things in your mental soil.

"Mind is an indefinable subject. It is as large a thing as you can think of. Mind has existed from the very beginning of the universe, and life has probably been on this earth for 100,000,000 years at a conservative estimate. All science practically accepts evolution, and, after all, it is the best conception of God to believe in evolution.

The Human Brain.

"The 200,000,000 cells in our brain, we have when we are born, and their number is never increased, but on the other hand some of them die.

"If parasites tend to prey upon your mind, spray them in the blossom stage. It will be too late when the fruit has formed. The pre-human emotions, anger, hatred, worry, envy, and jealousy, were splendid things for the wild beasts of the jungle, but they are exceedingly bad for you.

"There is a world below motion, there is a world above motion. There is a world we cannot see, hear, taste, or smell. And the mind is growing to attain this world. It has probably taken 300,000 years to grow color on the brain. Man is largely the result of his environment.

"If you use the animal passions they will destroy you. Anger kills, worry destroys. Experiments have shown the brain cells of rabbits subjected to worry to have developed a state of 'rotting.'

"Cultivate the moral sense. If a man would heal himself, he must develop his moral sense.

The Laws of Nature.

"When we travel away from hope, confidence and trust, we destroy our efficiency. The laws of nature are made up of habits. Character is habit. Don't enter extremes on any subject. The radical of youth frequently becomes the conservative of old age, and the saintly young man often becomes the profligate in later life. Excess of anything is weakness. Total abstainers are the greatest eaters. Follow a middle course.

"All things are habits, and the pre-human emotions if not indulged will die. Cultivate their opposites. Cultivate love, faith, hope, the moral sense, believe in everything, love everything, have courage, but use right kind of courage.

"Efficiency depends on self-control. Self-control depends on the abolition of selfishness."

Cause of Insanity.

Here Dr. McCallum quoted the late Dr. Richard Maurice Bucke to the effect that insanity has its rise in selfishness and self-suspicion.

"Aim at concentration, not diffusion of effort," continued Dr. McCallum. "Have at least one ideal statement and live up to it. Many men have been saved by a saying. Work, for work is the greatest thing in the universe. A high state of nutrition is necessary for efficiency, for on this depends a strong personality. Be careful of your speech, for half of self-control lies in the control of speech. Above all, don't be discouraged. It takes two years to change a man's mental system. I don't believe in people being cured suddenly of strong drink or evil habits. If you want to be free you have got to build so high that evil will not reach you. Learn to minister unto yourself. It is useless to teach people unless you teach them to help themselves."

Man's Moral Nature.

Quoting in part from "Man's Moral Nature," by Dr. Bucke, Dr. McCallum concluded his lecture by stating that morality, religion, happiness and health were four names for one thing, moral uplift. "Love all things because they are worthy to love."

BANQUET AT WINDSOR.

Windsor, April 18.—The annual banquet of the board of trade was held at the Crawford House this evening. Mr. O. E. Fleming, the president, occupied the chair, and on his left were seated Hon. Judge Doherty, of Montreal; A. H. Clarke, M. P., O. J. Wilcox, M. P., while on the right were Hon. A. G. MacKay, K. C., M. L. A., and Hon. J. O. Reaume. "The Ontario Legislature," proposed by Mayor Hanna, was responded to by Hon. A. G. MacKay, while "Windsor and Walkerville Boards of Trade" was replied to by Mayor Hanna, of Windsor, and Mayor Chater, of Walkerville. Other speakers were Messrs. Doherty, Wilcox and Clarke.

CLARKE AGAIN FOR SOUTH ESSEX

Once More Selected to Carry the Standard for Liberals.

AULD FOR LOCAL HOUSE

Big Gathering Listens to Stirring Address by Hon. A. G. MacKay.

Kingsville, Ont., April 19. There was a splendid attendance of South Essex Liberals here yesterday to select a candidate for the Dominion and Provincial Houses, and listen to an address by Hon. A. G. MacKay. Mr. MacKay's speech was a searching criticism of the Whitney Government's administration, particularly as to its blunders in regard to the schools. He pointed out that Dr. Pyne had finally come around to the Opposition's views and restored the model schools. His defence of the reciprocity aroused great enthusiasm, especially when he showed that beyond a doubt South Essex would benefit greatly by the pact.

The morning session dealt with the nominations. Enos McCausland, Essex; John Campbell, Mersea, and John Auld, of Amherstburg, were the names mentioned for the Ontario House. Mr. Auld, who was defeated in the last election by Dr. Anderson, was finally chosen, his nomination being made unanimous.

The name of the present member, A. H. Clarke, M. P., of Windsor, was the only one brought forward for the Federal House, and although he announced that he had definitely decided to drop out he has taken the matter under consideration, and will announce his decision later.

Resolutions favoring reciprocity and expressing confidence in Leaders Mackay and Laurier were passed with great enthusiasm.

The following officers were chosen: Hon. presidents, Lewis Arner, Malden; Robert Lamarsh, Mersea; president, C. E. Naylor, re-elected by acclamation; first vice-president, H. S. Irvison, Leamington; second vice-president, J. M. Kay, Gosfield North; third vice-president, James Howie, Colchester South; secretary-treasurer, L. J. Wright, Leamington. Almost all the former district chairmen were re-elected.

At the close of the meeting the following resolution was adopted unanimously: "Moved by Mr. J. J. Ryan, and seconded by Mr. Robert Atkin, that this convention strongly approves of the reciprocity agreement, and believes it will be of incalculable benefit to the agricultural community and to the workingmen, without injuring the manufacturing interest, and that it will therefore be of great advantage to all sections of the community."

Resolutions of confidence in Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. A. G. MacKay, were also passed. The old officers were re-elected, the only change being the appointment of Mr. L. J. Wright, of Leamington, to replace Mr. Hugh McSween as secretary-treasurer.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH AND EMMANUAL CHURCH

Annual Reports Read at Vestry Meeting Were Very Satisfactory.

The vestry meeting of St. John's Church, London Township, was held on Easter Monday evening, Ven. Archdeacon Richardson, rector, in the chair. Much interest was shown in the proceedings.

After opening prayer, Mr. George McComb, vestry clerk, read the minutes of last meeting. The church wardens presented their financial report, showing all expenses paid, and a net balance of $46 55. The report of St. John's Guild showed a good year's work done—a memorial window to late Archdeacon Marsh had been erected in the church chancel, and other parish improvements made.

The Women's Auxiliary reported their annual contributions to the missionary cause.

The cemetery report showed satisfactory financial results, and a net balance of $83. The rector reported his pastoral work in church services, baptisms, marriages, burials and other duties.

A proposal to erect a schoolroom within the church grounds was well received, and will be carried out if practicable.

The rector nominated as his warden Mr. Wm. Graham, and the vestry elected Mr. S. Newcombe.

Sidesmen elected were Wm. Cary, T. B. McComb, Charles Lecky and Leigh Farncomb.

Mr. R. A. Powell was chosen lay delegate to synod.

Votes of thanks were tendered Miss May Newcombe and members of choir for faithful services, also to St. John's Guild for help in church undertakings.

Emmanuel Church.

The vestry meeting of Emmanuel Church took place last evening, Ven. Archdeacon Richardson presiding. There was a large attendance. After opening exercises Mr. William Shoebottom was appointed scrutineer, vestry clerk and read the minutes of the past meeting.

The financial report of the wardens showed a net balance of $131 and all liabilities discharged. The rector nominated Mr. J. Walter Shoebottom as his warden, and the people elected Mr. Richard T. Shoebottom.

Sidesmen—Russel and Earl Shoebottom.

It was voted to replace the church fence with a substantial one on the north and east side.

Mr. F. Fitzgerald, the retiring warden, was thanked for his services by resolution, as follows: "We, the members of Emmanuel Church vestry, desire to place on record our sincere regret at the removal from our parish of our church warden, Mr. F. Fitzgerald, and to express our high value of the good service he has rendered to the church from the time of its opening to the present. He has held the office during the principal part of this term, and by his faithful work in that capacity, and as a member of the congregation, has accomplished very much toward the advancement of Emmanuel Church."

Mr. James Shoebottom was elected delegate to the synod.

BLENHEIM YOUTH FACES SERIOUS CHARGE

Hero of Wild Yarn at Colborne Placed Under Arrest.

Colborne, April 18.—Leslie Burke, aged 21, whose sensational story of the origin of the Colborne fire of Sunday night startled the people of this section, is in Cobourg jail, charged with firing the buildings.

His claim that he was bound and gagged by burglars and left in the burning building, was not borne out by the investigation of Provincial Inspector Jonn Miller, of Toronto, and High Constable Jarvis, of Bowmanville, and the young man's arrest was ordered. He was given a hearing today, and formally remanded for eight days to give the crown officers time to secure evidence.

The prisoner says his home is at Blenheim, Ont. He came here six weeks ago from Welland after a trip to Vancouver and other places in the west. The police officers say he is excitable, and has been reading stories of adventure. Since his arrival here he made the acquaintance of a young woman, and was a good deal in her company. The loss by the fire is estimated at $35,000. All the buildings were insured.

The fire, the police say, started in a corner of the pressroom of the Express office, and spread from there to the other buildings.

Provincial Inspector Miller is still here. A physician who examined Burke today failed to find any traces of burns. Burke's description of how he was bound by burglars first aroused suspicion, and led to his present predicament.

NOT A GOLD MINE

Hamilton Stret Car Company Claim to Have Lost Much Money.

[Canadian Press.]

Hamilton, April 19.—The street railway officials at the conference yesterday afternoon to discuss extensions with the city, dropped a bomb by telling exactly how much money the company lost in the last nineteen years since it secured its franchise. Instead of being the gold mine it is generally pictured, the system has lost $375,000, while the city has derived in mileage and percentage from the returns, $404,000. With the city's fast growth, however, the earnings are rapidly growing, as indicated by the fact that last year the company carried 9,844,000 people. A financial and electrical railway expert will come here at once to go into the matter of numerous extensions planned to meet the rapidly-growing needs of the city.

Suffered for Years From Constipation and Sick Headache.

Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief. The most frequent of ill are bilious or sick headaches, and are caused by some derangement of the stomach or bowels, or both.

Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the digestive and biliary organs, removes acidity of the stomach, improves digestion, regulates the constipated bowels, and promotes a perfect circulation of pure blood to all portions of the body.

Mrs. C. Meadows, Tarksburg, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with sick headache and dizziness, and was also constipated. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I only took three bottles of the medicine, and now feel like a new person as am completely cured. I can truthfully testify that B.B.B. is the best medine I have ever used."

Burdock Blood Bitters, has, during the last 35 years, built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for all troubles arising from a constipated condition of the bowels.

Itching Scalp Falling Hair

To prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove dandruff, allay itching and irritation of the scalp, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, frequent shampoos with Cuticura Soap, assisted by occasional dressings with Cuticura Ointment, succeed when other methods fail. Cuticura Soap and Ointment have been equally effective in the treatment of torturing, disfiguring scalp humors and the alarming loss of hair which so often results. For example, read how George E. Jefferson, 1518 Reed St., Philadelphia, tells of his remarkable case:

"My disease started with a little pimple on my head. Then it began to itch. The more I would scratch, the worse it grew until it spread all over my head. So I went to the doctor. But my head grew as raw as a piece of beef and my hair commenced to fall out in bunches. So I changed doctors. My head at this time was so sore I could not touch it. Then I decided to go to the hospital. They began to treat it but it improved very slowly. For over three years I was a sufferer from this disease. I thought all hopes of a permanent cure were impossible. A friend upon seeing the condition of my head—which was a mass of running corruption—asked me if I had tried the Cuticura Remedies. I told him nothing would do me any good; but being very anxious to be cured, I decided to try them. The first treatment brought immediate relief. My hair became alive and stopped falling out, all the scale left and now I am perfectly well and have a full head of hair. I can truthfully say that it was entirely due to the use of the Cuticura Remedies."

Green Soup.—One pint green split peas, one pint fresh green beans, one carrot, one medium sized potato cut in cubes, one large tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon of flour, one teaspoon of chopped olives, a little chopped parsley, pepper and salt to taste, water enough to make a moderately thick soup. Wash peas and put on fire in cold water with a pinch of soda. When it boils pour off water and add fresh warm water. After one hour add beans and carrots cut in pieces. After half an hour add potatoes cut into cubes. When latter are soft blend butter and flour over fire, and add to soup. Then add seasoning and boil up.

Correspondence

Edited by Cynthia Grey.

Dear Miss Grey—(1) When two boys are walking together and meet a girl only one of them knows, should they both tip their hats? (2) What is the birthstone for February? ANXIOUS.

A.—(1) Yes. (2) Amethyst.

He Pays.

Dear Miss Grey—When a young lady asks a young man to go to a dance or a supper, please tell me who pays the way? RICO.

A.—The young man, but a better way would be to let the young man ask the young lady.

A Pickle Pointer.

Dear Miss Grey—Why do my cucumber pickles always turn soft? I put them up very carefully. HOUSEWIFE.

A.—The vinegar either was not pure cider vinegar, or else was too sour.

To Remove Warts.

Dear Miss Grey—What will remove warts? BOTHERED.

A.—If not tampered with, warts will often disappear; if irritated, they may become permanent. Excellent wart and corn cures are put up by most druggists.

Simple home cures will remove most warts. Kerosene applied twice a day has proved successful. Castor oil, applied patiently once a day, for a month, has also removed warts, and left no scar.

Persistent warts are often treated with salicylic acid, one dram of which is mixed with one ounce of collodion, and applied with a tiny camelhair brush.

All Around the Home

CYNTHIA GREY.

House plants, such as aspidistras, should be put out in warm rain occasionally. Bring them in while still wet and wipe each leaf with a soft duster to remove every particle of dirt.

Dates stuffed with walnuts and then dipped in melted chocolate make a delicious bonbon. Among a saucerful of such dates have, for variety's sake, a few that are stuffed with raisins and dipped also in chocolate.

Silver dress trimmings which have become discolored may be cleaned by covering them with dry powdered magnesia. Leave it for three hours, then rub it well with flannel and brush off with a perfectly clean plate brush.

Mint may be grown in winter in the kitchen, and be at hand quite fresh at all times to pluck for sauces, soups and the like. Put a dozen sprays of mint in water in a stone jar, and add water from time to time to keep the jar filled. Pick sprigs often from the tops, and new shoots will grow on continually.

A good way to wash woollens is to half fill a tub with warm water and add to it a little ammonia and enough soap shavings to make a lather. Squeeze the articles bewteen the hands, but do not rub, until they are perfectly clean. Rinse in lukewarm water, fold and pass through wringer several times. Shake and hang out to dry.

After an umbrella has been used for a short time put a drop of oil in the center of the top about once a month. This prevents the ribs from rusting.

The kitchen cupboard should never be permitted to get untidy, and should be scrubbed out at least every fortnight, the lower shelves oftener.

MARY'S COOK BOOK

Rhubarb Jelly.

This vegetable is not made into jelly as often as should be done. Rhubarb makes a delicate pink fine flavored jelly. Cut one large bunch into fine pieces without peeling, add a large chopped apple, peel and seeds included. Cover with hot water, and cook until done. Mash fine and strain through jelly bag. To every cupful of juice add one cupful of hot granulated sugar. Boil juice until it begins to jell or about twenty-five minutes. Turn into scalded jelly glasses and seal with paraffin.

Roast Beef.

The roast beef of Old England is presumably the finest in the world, and has been celebrated in both song and story, but we seldom hear of the many other excellent ways in which English cooks prepare this meat. One of their most pleasing dishes is beefsteak stewed without the addition of water or any other fluid. To prepare this have three or four pounds of rump steak cut about an inch thick. Put one tablespoonful of butter in the frying pan and let it melt, without browning. Wash the steak quickly in cold water and put it in the frying pan, cover closely and let it slowly become hot. As soon as it is thoroughly heated add one teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of white pepper, then keep it just simmering (never allowing it to boil), until perfectly tender. It should be closely covered all the time. It will require about an hour and a half to cook it just right. When done place the steak on a heated platter, and add half a teaspoonful of walnut or tomato catsup to the gravy in the pan; let it get hot and pour over the steak. Sometimes a slice or two of onion or carrot is added to impart a delicate flavor to the steak, but it is quite delicious without.

Lemon Butter.

Grate the rind and squeeze the juice of two lemons, one-quarter pound sugar, one-quarter pound butter, five eggs, beaten; cook in double boiler till it thickens. This quantity makes two glasses delicious filling for cakes.

Date Pudding.

One cup white sugar, two eggs beaten, one cup dates, seeds taken out, one cup English walnuts cut in half, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoonful vanilla. Steam one hour. Serve cold with whipped cream.

AN AFTER SUPPER JACKKNIFE TRICK

"Dad," said Bobbie, one night after supper, "I can drop a knife from the ceiling so that it will come down and hit a marble on the floor. I bet you can't do that."

"Oh, you're fooling, Bobbie. No one could tell just exactly where the knife would fall, and when it comes to predicting that you could so place a marble that the knife would hit it——"

"I'll show you," interrupted Bobbie decisively. So he got the stepladder and stuck the blade of his jackknife into the ceiling—just lightly, enough so that it would be held in equilibrium with the handle pointing down. Then he got a cup of water and held it up against the knife, immersing the handle in the water. When he took the cup away a few drops of water that had collected on the handle fell to the floor. Bobbie put one of his marbles in the exact spot where the drops of water had fallen, and, climbing back up the ladder, struck the ceiling with his fist. The knife was jarred loose and fell, striking the marble, just as Bobbie had predicted.

Try the trick tonight after supper, and see if you can't show daddy something.

THE CABLEMAN

BY WEATHERBY CHESNEY.

"Elsa," he cried, almost fiercely, "you say things which I find it hard to understand. You refuse me, and then qualify your refusal with a 'probably,' you say that you feel a rush of shame when I call you by your father's name, and you ask to be only Elsa to me. What does it all mean?"

"It means, Horace, that I want a friend," she answered simply.

"Are you in any trouble?" He thought of the cablegram, and added, "or danger?"

"I am in trouble. I don't think I am in danger."

He came to her and took her hand again.

"Forgive me," he said gently. "I'm a brute to bully you. I will ask no more questions. Tell me as much or as little as you like, but let me help you if I can."

A look of relief passed across her face, but immediately afterwards it vanished, and she shrank back from him. For a brief moment she seemed to struggle with herself. Then she looked into his eyes.

"On my conditions?" she asked gravely.

"On your conditions," he answered.

She rose and went to the window. The night was dark and she could see nothing, and the cold mist rolled in and made her shiver again. She turned suddenly to the young man.

"Will you take me tomorrow to see the circus which has come to Ponte Delgada?" she asked.

Scarborough thought again of the cablegram, and he feared for he feared for the danger which she could not tell of, but which seemed, in spite of her denial, to threaten tragedy, ominously.

"Why do you want to go?" he asked.

"You said you would ask no more questions," she reminded him. "I cannot tell you my reason."

"I beg your pardon. I forgot. Yes, I will take you. I have already booked two seats."

"Thank you," she said, and rose, added simply: "I must go back to father now. He is waiting for me."

Scarborough accepted the dismissal. She stood with him to the door and stood watching him as he rode away. She had said that she must return to her father, but instead she stood looking out into the night, and a great sense came upon her to call the young man back to her side and bid him tell his love again. For she loved him. But no one thing she, too, might have avowed her love, and there been a shame. But there was something which he did not know, a secret in her life, which made that impossible; and her love, which had come out with a great bitterness against the fate which denied her thus the right to love.

Two years ago she had been a happy and careless child. Then the cloud came suddenly, and darkened everything. She had come out to the islands with her father, who was, so she could add, a fugitive from English justice. But she believed then that the world was wrong.

She had landed in San Miguel, arriving with a general reception at the injustice and with a full of enthusiasm for the flight which she and her father would undertake together. The cloud which had come on the brightness of her young life was black, but she believed that it would soon be dispersed, and that all would be known and honorable explanation to a girl of seventeen.

But two years had passed, and the cloud showed no signs of lifting. Moore, over her father, as she knew, had made no effort to escape from under the shadow, had been contented to live in the gloom, and seemed to have lost all longing for the light of day and truth.

It was this, with seeming content, to the role of outlawed invalid, nursing his gout and spending his days in profitless study of the philosophy of Herbert Spencer—pointless and even criminal; for meanwhile he did nothing to remove the stain which lay upon his name.

It was this, with the sympathy which it aroused in Elsa, that had led to the latter—which Elsa did not understand. It was this which almost, in spite of the loyalty of her love, caused her to doubt. The facts, as she had been told them, were these:

The firm of stockbrokers in which her father was the junior partner had failed, and failed disastrously, for its operations had not been honest. Its bankruptcy was fraudulent, and a criminal prosecution followed. The junior partner was out of the country at the time, touring in Portugal with his daughter. An attempt was made to secure his return by extradition, but the proceedings broke down upon a legal technicality. He waited in Lisbon until the clamor of the crime had died down, and then changed his name and went quietly to the Azores with his daughter. He posed so long as there was need for posing as the innocent victim of an unscrupulous partner. He never denied that the bankruptcy was fraudulent, but he asserted that his hands were clean of the fraud. That the active management had been out of his hands and in those of the junior partner, for the last two months before the crash, was a point which told strongly in his favor. Many people, therefore, whose commercial standing made their opinions of value, believed him, and considered him to be what he said he was, an innocent victim.

There were some, however, who declared that the truth was exactly the opposite.

Elsa had known all this and had waited at first patiently, but latterly with a growing impatience, for the time when her father should have all the necessary proofs in his hands, and should return to face his accusers and vindicate his innocence. That he no longer seemed anxious to do so was a thing which she could not understand. But lately the conviction had been slowly forcing itself upon her that he never meant to go back, and for that weakness she almost began to scorn him.

She was thinking of these things now, as she stood at the door of her father's house in the Azores, and looked out into the darkness of the night, a darkness no darker than the despair that filled her. She stretched out her hands and cried aloud:

"Horace, I love you! And even when you tell me of your love, I have to lie to you and play a part!"

A great sob shook her. She turned and went slowly to her room. Her father wanted her, and was waiting; but she could not go to him tonight.

CHAPTER III.

A Martyr to Gout.

"You quite understand, my dear," said Mr. Page, signing to his daughter to shift the cushions, so that his left foot should rest more easily, "you are to bring me a careful description of every member of this circus troupe. You are a keen observer, and it is essential that you should make the best use of your talent now. It won't be an easy task, because you will have to penetrate the paint and tinsel and describe the human being underneath."

"How am I to do that?" asked Elsa, and added, as she gave a caressing pat to the cushion which supported her father's gouty foot, "is that more comfortable?"

"Yes, thank you, dear. How are you to do it? Why, observe them when they are performing. Speak to some of them, if you can. The members of a travelling circus are not generally exclusive, and in a foreign country particularly they will welcome advances made by those who speak their own language."

"But I can't go and begin a casual conversation!" she objected. "Even in a foreign country people would think that queer."

"You can't," said her father, "but young Scarborough can. Tell him you are interested in the people, that you think their life romantic, and that you would like to see it a little closer. He's not the man I take him for if he doesn't manage somehow to gratify your whim."

Mr. Page laughed, and his daughter flushed slightly.

"I will do my best," she said.

"Yes, my dear, I know you will, for your father's sake," said Mr. Page. "I leave the method to your own woman's wit, and to circumstances, which your woman's wit will tell you how to turn to profit. If, however, an introduction to Mr. Val B. Montague, the manager of the troupe, is one of the circumstances, I should suggest that you give yourself the trouble to be charming to him. He is probably a cad."

"Then why am I to be charming to him?" demanded Elsa.

"Because, my dear, if he is a cad—and his name suggests that he can hardly be anything else—he will be all the more impressed by your condescension, and will probably offer to show you over his schooner. If he doesn't——"

"If he doesn't," Elsa broke in quickly, "I am to give him a hint that I want to be asked, and to continue the process of being charming until he takes the hint. Are those my instructions?"

There was a note of scorn in her voice, and if her father was amused. He laughed loudly, and then winced with a sharp indrawing of the breath. A shooting pain in his gouty foot had cut his merriment short with a gasp. His daughter stood before him waiting for his answer, but the sight of that spasm of pain cooled her anger at the laugh.

"I want to know exactly what I am to do. Are those my instructions?" she asked again, but in a gentler tone.

"The spirit of them, yes. But don't think, ask straight out, or get Scarborough to ask, and back him up in his request."

"I will ask myself," said Elsa, quickly.

To Be Continued.

HUSBAND WINS ALIENATION CASE

Secures Damages of $1,250 and Defendant Pays the Cost.

St. Thomas, April 18.—At the spring assizes, which opened today before Justice Middleton, the first case taken up was that of Melissa Jeffrey, mother of Thomas Jeffrey, a former brakeman on the Michigan Central Railway, who was fatally injured in a collision at Waterford a year ago. His mother asked for $5,000. The company alleged contributory negligence. The jury so decided, after being out two hours.

Albert V. Young brought action against A. N. Moore, a farmer near Calton, Norfolk County, for alienation of his wife's affections. Young and his wife were employed by Moore, and the latter and Mrs. Young left to go to the United States. Both were turned back at Detroit, and later made a second attempt to cross at Port Huron. There Moore was arrested and held in custody for a time, but afterwards returned. The jury, after fifteen minutes' deliberation, awarded the husband $1,250 damages and all the costs.

BRIDE MADE THEM WAIT

Jury Room Utilized by Her as Dressing Chamber.

Kansas City, Mo., April 19.—After a license had been issued at the Wyandotte County court house to Daniel Allis, 25 years old, of Cabool, Mo., to wed Alma Ross, 18 years old, also of Cabool, the bridegroom hastened away, but he returned presently with the picture Mrs. Allis. She carried a package. Everything was being made ready in the office for the marriage when the bridal pair stopped the proceedings.

There were a few whispers from the bride to the groom. Then he whispered in reply. Finally he said:

"You see, my wife doesn't want to be married until she has on her wedding clothes. She went to lots of trouble fixing up for this wedding. We'd be married right now if she was wearing her wedding dress."

"The jury room on the third floor is not in use," H. P. McPherson, license clerk, said. "If the wedding dress is here, the lady might put it on up there."

So Miss Ross and her bundle retired to the jury room. A guard was placed at the top of the stairs, and everyone waited. Presently she emerged in a dainty wedding gown and descended the stairs to the probate court office on the arm of her Daniel. No one played a wedding march, but, with that exception, it was a regular wedding procession. John T. Sims, probate judge, performed the marriage, and Mr and Mrs. Daniel Altis, of Cabool, left the court house.

BABY ATTRACTED ATTENTION

People Stopped His Mother On The Street.

"Our eldest boy, Maurice, was born at Cheddar, Somerset, England. We put him on Neave's Food when one week old, and he never tasted anything else until his first birthday. When he was 15 months old, we came to Canada, and we kept Maurice chiefly on Neave's Food until he was nearly two years old. And he is one of the bonniest boys I have ever seen. Hundreds of people have remarked on his size. When he was a big baby, people stopped me on the street and in the stores to ask how old Maurice was and what he was fed on. He is very bright and intelligent, and has never had an illness.

Our youngest child, Douglas, is two years old and we put him on Neave's Food when he was a week old and he did just as well on it as Maurice, and is a fine, strong, healthy boy."

EX-ALD. DAN FERGUSON CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF CANADIAN LEAGUE

Popular Londoner Unanimously Elected at Last Night's Gathering of Magnates.

SEASON EXTENDED FOR FAIR WEEK

London's Fall Exhibition Should Attract Baseball Fans to City—Schedule Out May 2.

The Canadian Baseball League was given a flying start at the organization session held at the Tecumseh House last evening, when representatives from each of the six clubs on the circuit gathered and proceeded to business in a manner that removed all doubt as to the possibilities of the new association.

Mr. Donald Ferguson, of this city, an ex-alderman of London and prominent businessman, was chosen president, and as Mr. Ferguson has interested himself in numerous successful sporting organizations, the Canadian League is assured of enthusiastic support.

The delegates to the meeting were "Pop" Williams, of Berlin, who acted as chairman; Chaucer Elliot, the well-known Montreal coach, who is in charge of the St. Thomas team; Abbie Johnson, from Guelph; W. P. Kelly, of Brantford; "Knotty" Lee, of Hamilton; John R. Minhinnick, of London, and Secretary Bobbie Robinson, of Hamilton.

The board of directors chosen consists of Mr. Minhinnick, of London; Lee, of Hamilton; Walsh, of Brantford; Elliot, of St. Thomas; Costello, of Berlin and Johnson, of Guelph, each team being given one vote.

Schedule Out in May.

The schedule was to have been adopted last evening, but the committee in charge of this announced that owing to difficulty in learning the home dates especially desired by local clubs for celebrations, etc., it was decided to allow the matter to rest until the next meeting, which will be held in Guelph on May 2.

London wants morning and afternoon games on June 22, Coronation Day, when several thousand Foresters will be in the city, and two or possibly three games a day during Old Boys' week in August. It was decided also to extend the season one week in order to take in the Western Fair in this city, as it is thought that there will be plenty of patronage during the exhibition. The season will open on May 16 in three towns, and two days later the others will be given a send-off. Playing will continue for four months even, and contracts will be made from May 16 to Sept. 16.

The league has not as yet secured the actual protection of the Association of Minor Leagues, but Secretary Farrell has assured the promoters that there will be no difficulty getting Class C as soon as the necessary deposits of $25 from each club are secured. These will be sent along to Treasurer Thos. Nelson, of Brantford, immediately, and the teams will proceed to sign up players.

Protection Secured.

Chaucer Elliot, of St. Thomas, declared that he had suffered slightly, as the league had no protection as yet.

He had three men from Rochester, but Ganzel, of the Eastern, secured them, and while they may not last in the Eastern, the Hustlers have a string to them that will cost a lot to sever.

Three clubs, St. Thomas, Hamilton, and Guelph, have playing managers, but the business affairs of the others are being handled by men who are not familiar with the ways of baseball. London has lines out for several men, and a manager will probably be roped in within the next couple of days.

The Spalding ball has been adopted as official, and the cork centre pills now in use in the National may be taken. The constitution, revised from that of the New York State League, was adopted with a few amendments.

Players of disbanded teams become the property of the league for redistribution purposes. No club may sign men during the last 30 days of the season; 48 hours' notice must be given by the home team should they desire to play two double-headers in a series, and opening day and all general public holidays will require an extra guarantee from the home team to the visitors. Clubs may set their own admission fees, and if they desire may have ladies' days on any day except Wednesdays and Saturdays. A free children's day may be held after school closes in June.

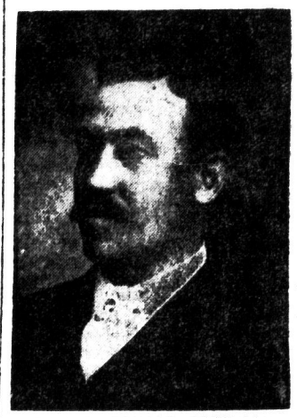

Not more than $1,300 a month must be paid by any club in salaries, and the pay sheets must be sworn to by players, managers and officials.

The Colors.

Hamilton will probably team white suits, with black and yellow, the colors of the Tigers; Guelph has an outfit of white, with blue trimmings; St. Thomas will select grey, with either green or blue stripes; London will have grey, with some color combination, while Berlin will have green and white. Brantford has not as yet selected colors.

Umpires will be chosen at the meeting in Guelph on May 2, when all arrangements for the opening of the season will be completed.

HARLEM TOMMY MURPHY OUTFOUGHT BY M'FARLAND

Packey Battered Opponent in Ten-Round Bout at New York City.

New York, April 18.—Another superb exhibition of ring science enabled Packey McFarland, of Chicago, to outpoint Harlem Tommy Murphy in a fast ten-round glove contest at the Fairmont Athletic Club tonight.

So pronounced was McFarland's advantage that the big crowd was never in doubt as to the result of the bout.

From the moment the gong clanged for the first time McFarland was the master of the situation. He outguessed Murphy in attack and defence, and on several occasions it looked as if he could have secured a knockout had he so desired.

Murphy found that breaking through Packey's defence was almost impossible. When it came down to fighting at close quarters, McFarland displayed the greater hitting power so much that Murphy was forced to clinch, cover up or break ground.

Murphy Battered.

McFarland jabbed Murphy's nose and mouth until they bled, and also raising a swelling under each eye.

McFarland tried for a knockout several times, and as a result Murphy was in temporary distress.

In the second round Murphy landed a heavy swing on McFarland's neck, and Packey went to the ropes. The crowd, believing that Murphy had put in a winning punch, went wild with excitement, but when McFarland came back to the centre of the ring with a grin, it was seen that he was not even rattled.

The Harlem boxer made a plucky rally in the last round, but he was simply outclassed.

PITCHES TWO NO-HIT GAMES.

Charlottesville, Va., April 18.—Pitcher Rixly, of the University of Virginia, is among the topnotchers of the college pursuers. Since the opening of the season he has pitched two no-hit games, his latest effort being against Fordham.

HOW TO PLAY FIRST BASE—BY HAL CHASE

I don't suppose I can tell anybody how to play first base. It is one thing to get in and play the game according to my own ideas, and a different thing to set myself up as an authority.

Let it be understood that these few words of advice are directed not to the men who have made good as first basemen, but to young players.

A youngster who wants to play first base—or anywhere else on the team—must have the natural ability. He must be able to play the one-handed part of baseball with ease.

A first baseman should be a left-hander.

This is not conceit because I am left-handed, but it is a clearly apparent fact that a left-handed man can handle first base more successfully than a right-hander. He has the entire infield "before" him, so to speak, and does not have to make the turns that a right-handed player is often compelled to make. Of course, there have been some brilliant first basemen who were right-handed, but they were brilliant in spite of this fact, and not because of it.

A first baseman must always make a specialty of handling thrown balls. He must be able to accept the throws of other players without regard to the man who may be coming down first base line from the plate at top speed. At the same time he must take the throw in such a way that he will be able to touch the bag and yet keep clear of the runner.

Let the youngster who wants to be a first baseman practice fielding his position constantly. Let him learn to take throws with ease and certainty.

Of course, a first baseman must field such balls as are hit to him cleanly. To do this he must learn to figure the manner in which different players hit, when they mean to swing on the ball, and when they mean to bunt.

The youngster can learn the peculiarities of players opposing him by close observation. Nearly every batter has some manner of betraying himself. Few use the same style in bunting and hitting.

I have found it good policy to play "deep" when there is a pitcher working who can be depended on to get to first ahead of a runner. Once I heard an old-timer say to a recruit who made a spectacular one-handed stab, "I'se both your hands—I signed 'em both." I should advise a first baseman to use both his hands in taking throws until he has become absolutely sure. A wide throw that gets away may mean a lost game.

If you want to succeed at baseball, learn every detail of the game. It is a never-ceasing source of new problems, new situations, new conditions. The process of figuring out a play should become second nature to the player.

Cultivate the acquaintance of experienced players and listen to them carefully.
Observe the rules of the game.
Never bait an umpire.
Behave like a gentleman.
Play hard to win, and never give up.
Keep regular hours.
Let "booze" strictly alone.
Don't smoke to excess. Better not at all.
Learn the inside of the game.
Practice all you can.

FLYING START WINS FOR DETROIT CREW

Tigers Have Record of Five Straight Victories and No Defeats.

NAP KALER IS COMMON

Was Slammed for Bunch of Bingles in Opening Session of Yesterday's Battle.

Detroit, April 19.—With five straight victories and not one defeat, the Tigers jumped to the front in the American League race yesterday afternoon, for they gave the Naps their second beating by the score of 5 to 1, while the Nationals made Hal Chase's Highlanders taste defeat for the first time this season.

It was an early start that enabled the Tigers to gain Cleveland another trimming. They got after Kaler so hard in the first inning that he did not last the full round. Before three Tigers had been retired in the first, four runs had been scored, and second and third were occupied by Tigers. Jake McGuire pulled Kaler and sent in Vean Gregg, the recruit from the Pacific coast. Score:

GYMNASTIC CARNIVAL BY BOYS OF ASSOCIATION

Y. M. C. A. Lads Show Unusual Development in High Class Acts.

The really marvellous physical development of a number of young Londoners was demonstrated to a large audience at the first night of the Assault-at-Arms and Gymnastic Carnival at the Y. M. C. A. last evening, when several "stunts" offered by professionals in vaudeville performances were handled in expert fashion.

The programme opened with a new dance step that is being adopted in all associations of the Dominion. It was taken by four of the class leaders, Maudsley, Wardell, Mallard and Percival. The boys' pyramid was especially good, the boys piling up on each others' shoulders four high. Those who took part in the event were Henderson, who handled the heavy work, Gregory, Tanton, Eastwood, Cline, Clark, F. Davis, C. Davis and Mills. Several funny stunts preceded the horse work of Maudsley, Percival, Burridge, Mann, Ross, Short and Thompson.

Farrar and Maudsley gave an exhibition of wrestling, following their demonstration with a twenty-minute bout, in which both failed to secure a fall.

Parallel Bars.

Maudsley, Percival, Burridge, Sovereign, Mann, Ross, Short and Thompson worked the parallel bars, after which the gym. was darkened and three of these, Maudsley, Wardell and Percival swung Illuminated Indian clubs. Thompson, Mann, Ross and Percival did some excellent work on the flying rings, while Physical Director Sovereign, Burridge and Thompson performed on the mat.

Fencing matches by a class under the direction of Mr. Markle, proved of interest to the audience. Later, Mr. Markle took Wardell on in a match, using a dagger himself, while his opponent wielded a foil. Tonight Mr. Markle will meet Walters, of Toronto, the champion fencer of Canada.

The horizontal bar acts were taken in fine style by Thompson, Burridge, Mann, Ross and Percival.

The concluding number consisted of artistic posing by Mr. Sovereign and Thompson, a 16-year-old youth, who is excellently developed.

Good as "Rube."

To use an absolutely new and strictly original expression, Gregg is some pitcher. He looked about as good as any left-hander that the Tigers have faced since Rube Waddell's palmy days for the seven innings of his service, and had he been sent to the centre at the beginning, there might have been sadness where now joy reigns supreme.

Thousands of burning words might be written in praise of the young southpaw, but the mere statement that he fanned Sam Crawford twice will convey an adequate idea of his prowess. Also he caused Davy Jones to beat the breezes on two occasions. His skill in baffling Cobb received no real test, for he couldn't get 'em over to the Peach on two of his three trips to the plate.

Has Lots of Stuff.

The golden west lad has a cross-fire that bothered the left-hand batters nearly to death, a quick-breaking curve and a good fast one. Beyond all this he has plenty of nerve, a fact that he proved on two occasions, when the Detroiters appeared to start another reign of terror.

BOSTON MARATHONERS ARE EAGER FOR CONTEST

Ready For Start in Field of 150 From Ashland to Boston—Weather Perfect.

[Canadian Press.]

Ashland, Mass., April 19.—Eager to unwind under their fast moving legs the ribbon of roads, 25 miles long, up hill and down, that lay before them to the finish in Boston, the starters in the Boston Athletic Association's fifteenth annual Marathon run awaited here this morning the word and shot which was to start them on their long grind.

Their legs limbered for the test, their nerves keyed up to a high pitch for reserve strength to be called upon when their limbs should begin to waiver, the great gathering of long-distance runners, comprising the best in Canada and the United States, were considered as being in condition to press closely Tom Longboat's record time for the course, 2 hours, 24 minutes, 24 seconds, made in 1907.

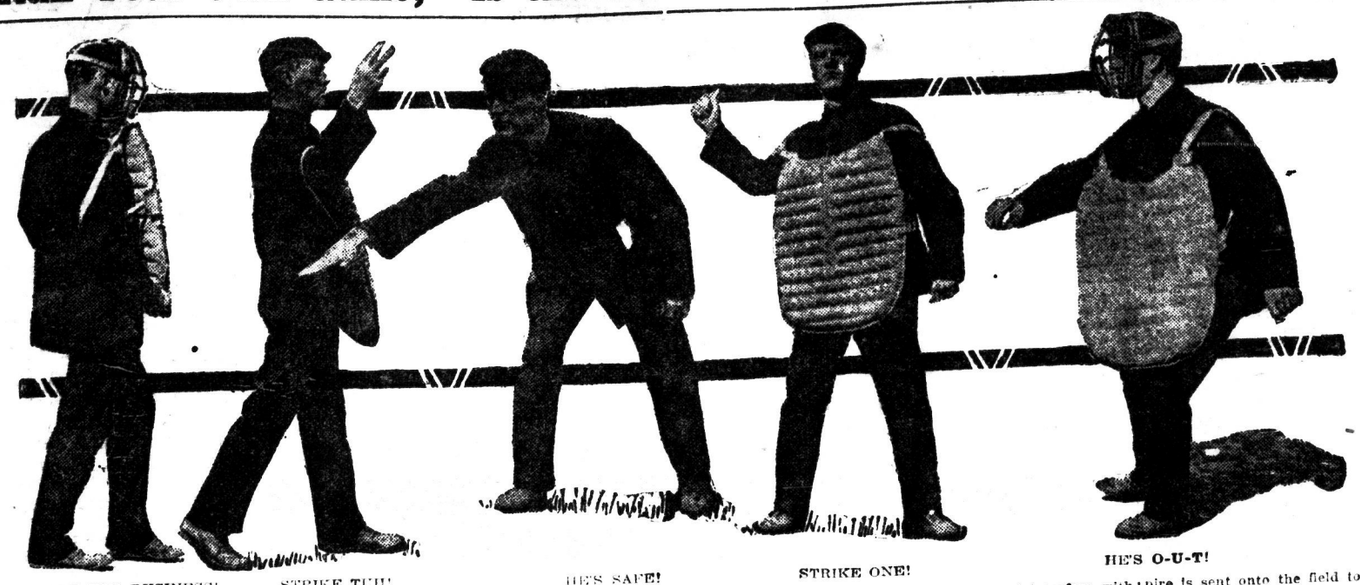

Weather Ideal.

"Fair and warmer," was the official forecast, together with "westerly winds." Such a wind would favor the runners, being almost directly behind their backs. The degree of warmth at high noon, and in the succeeding hours of the race was regarded as an important factor in the question of fast time, as great heat would make only for fatigue and a general slowing up.

How many of the field of nearly 150 entrants would appear at the post at Stevens Corner, a mile beyond this town, for the start was uncertain up to the last moment. To pick a probable winner was futile. Of possibilities there were almost as many as there were starters. But principal among them regarded as likely to hold a good position at the finish, were: The Four Indians, Michael Thomas, of Charlottetown, P. E. I.; Thomas Patten, of Caughnawaga, Que.; Louis Sockaledis, Oldtown, Me., and Charles M. Honeyoust, Oneida. The Canadian delegation is headed by Jas. K. Corkery, of Toronto, last year's third man; Henri Renaud, of Nashua, N. H., and Sammy Mellor, of New York both former winners.

Jerry Downs, former American Leaguer, is playing a swell game at first base for the Columbus American Association club.

"Run Your Own Game," Is the Advice of Silk O'Loughlin, Best Umpire

READY FOR BUSINESS! STRIKE TUH! HE'S SAFE! STRIKE ONE! HE'S O-U-T!

"Be boss of the diamond," says Silk O'Loughlin, famous American league arbitrator, whose name is a household necessity in most homes.

The "best umps" is a tyrant on the field—in the opinion of players who like to "start something." He rules with a hand of iron. He won't stand for back talk. The flippy belligerent is hustled to the bench or clubhouse, and is apt to hear "That will cost you $50."

And O'Loughlin's banishment and fines go, as many players have discovered. He is backed up in everything he does by President Johnson, the man who introduced the game to polite society and who insists upon keeping it there.

Not only does the big mogul support O'Loughlin, but every other man he employs as umpire. It wasn't always thus, however. Time was when an umpire was regarded as a nuisance and a fit object for the coroner every time he gave a decision in favor of a visiting team. If the decision affected a favorite player or turned the tide of the game, the arbitrator would be surrounded by a crowd of threatening players, whose talk would not be permitted in print. Incited by such actions, the crowds were not slow to toss things at the head of the unfortunate who had sunk low enough to act as judge of play.

The one act that put an effective end to assaults by spectators was the act of a St. Louis fan who threw a pop bottle at Umpire Evans and fractured his skull. Evans came within a thin blond hair of crossing the big creek, but a splendid constitution held him on this side.

The revulsion of feeling caused by the bottle-throwing carried wherever baseball was played and had its effect. Incidentally the war for clean baseball being waged by Ban Johnson and supported by the press taught the public to look upon reforms with favor and rowdyism was frowned upon.

The forcing out of the old type of hard-drinking, hard-fighting players helped in the right direction. Newcomers arrived when the public mind was being molded along new lines and naturally fell into the new way.

But it was the stern, unyielding attitude of the umpires that started the tide. Realizing the "big guy" was with them they ruled with rods of iron and made the players like it. The better class of patrons liked it, and when managers realized this they appreciated that their receipts would be larger and so fell into the new way.

"An umpire, like a player," says O'Loughlin, "must think in advance. He must know each man's peculiarities, his strength and weakness. He must so plan that he is in the most advantageous position to render instant decision upon every play and at the same time must not interfere with the play.

"He must plan what he will do, for instance, if when working behind the bat, with a runner on second, the batter hits the ball. With the two-umpire system he should hustle toward the base to decide a play should one be made at that station, his fellow umpire watching the opposite bag.

"He must study the delivery of every pitcher, gauge his curve ball and note the jump of the fast ball. He becomes, through experience, able to know instinctively where a curve ball or fast ball will cross the plate or skim by it. I don't mean by this that an umpire can look at the ball as it comes to the plate and tell where it will go, but he can follow its flight with accuracy because he has learned the little tricks the ball thrown by each pitcher will perform.

"Running his own game does not mean surliness. It means the umpire is sent onto the field to represent the league, to decide plays and interpret the rules. He may not tolerate interference; he may not permit a player to show him up. He must retain his dignity and not permit an argument. He should not make his decision too quick or he may have to change it. It isn't a good thing to have to change decisions, and earn a reputation for being premature.

"Ball players are human, and when they realize an umpire is stern, but just, they are less apt to kick over the traces even in the heat of a hotly-contested game than if they have reason to believe they can gain anything by attempting to bullyrag. Of course umpires make mistakes, not being infallible, but on the whole their decisions off the field, although sometimes they find it hard to do so when the battle are correct, as the players admit when is raging."

Representatives of the Jockey Club, who have been feeling the sentiments of the county fair associations report that there is a general belief that the so-called directors' liability law is so drastic that it will abolish the trotting meets in all county fairs. The racing associations believe they will get the support of the farmers in having the law repealed.

DAILY HISTORY OF BASEBALL

APRIL 19.

1890 The Brooklyn club played its first game in the National League, losing to Boston, 15 to 0. John Clarkson pitched for the Bean-Eaters, and "Parisian Bob" Caruthers and "Adonis" Terry for the Superbas.

1890 Opening games of first and only season of Players' League played, with these results: Philadelphia 12, New York 11; Chicago 10, Pittsburg 7; Boston 3, Brooklyn 2; Buffalo 22, Cleveland 2. Haddock, the Bisons' pitcher, gave 16 bases on balls. Among the baseball notables who took part in these games were Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago Americans; Hugh Duffy, manager of the White Sox; Jim McAleer, leader of the Senators; Connie Mack, boss of the White Elephants; Arthur Irwin, scout of the Highlanders; Ned Hanlon and John Montgomery Ward.

1890 The Atlantic Association opened its championship season, the games resulting as follows: Baltimore 18, New Haven 8; Hartford 15, Washington 13; Newark 20, Jersey City 3; Worcester 15, Wilmington 5.

1890 The Cincinnati club, re-entering the National League, played its first championship game and was beaten, 5 to 4, by Chicago, the pitchers being "Cyclone Jim" Duryea and Billy Hutchinson.

1897 The New York Nationals defeated Elizabeth in an exhibition game by a score of 40 to 1. George Van Haltren, of the Giants, procured seven safeties, one of which was a double and another a home run.

1900 Morris F. ("Doc") Arnold, of the Buffalo American League club, pitched a no-hit game against Detroit.

1900 The Philadelphia Nationals defeated Boston, 19 to 17, in a ten-inning game.

1902 The St. Louis Nationals made eleven errors in the game with Pittsburg.

1902 All the players except First Baseman Hazelton contributing miscues.

1903 Pitcher Bob Ewing, of Cincinnati, issued ten passes to the Chicago Cubs.

1903 Mordecai Brown pitched his first game in the National League. He then was with the St. Louis club, and, oddly enough, faced the team on which he made his great reputation. The contest, which lasted five innings, resulted in St. Louis' favor, 3 to 0, the Windy City troupe making one hit—a single by Bobby Lowe—whom Frank Chance later succeeded as captain.

1904 The Philadelphia and New York Nationals played a 15-inning tie, 1 to 1.

1909 President William Howard Taft witnessed the game between Boston and Washington, the Red Sox winning, 8 to 1.

A NEW IDOL FOR THE CUB FANS

FRED TONEY.

Cubville pennant prospects this year may depend upon the service of a kid pitcher, as they did last year, when a recruit from the South Michigan League, "King" Cole, led the league and held the Bearlets in the lead when the veterans were floundering like bewildered elderly persons in the maze of corner traffic.

Cole is in the hospital temporarily, but another kid, Fred Toney, who has been kept under wraps by Manager Chance, was given a warming up gallop the day the team struck Chicago, and against the fast Notre Dame team showed so much class that he is looked upon as another Cole.

Toney hails from Tennessee, and looks the part. He is long, lean, and as strong as some of the squirrel whiskey they make in the mountains of said state. What he did to the collegians was sinful. Nine men faced him. Six fanned, and weak infield offerings were the best others could do.

This Toney person has so much smoke that he almost hid the sun (shining for the first time in two weeks) from view. The fans had assembled in numbers, to look over the 1911 pennant pursuers gathered by Chance, Murphy, et al., and were so excited when Chance chased the elongated fox-chaser to the hill that they failed to pass upon the others. Even Zimmerman at third failed to attract notice.

HOLMER-QUEAL RACE IS THE LATEST PROSPECT

New York, April 18.—A match race between Bill Queal and Hans Holmer is today looked upon as a possibility of the near future of the result of Holmer's defeat of Gusta Ljungstrom at 15 miles here last night. Holmer, who was the winner of the classic Powder Hall Marathon in Scotland, led all the way and set a terrific pace in the last three laps, leading by 20 yards at the finish.

BATTLING HURLEY HAS POWER TO COME BACK

New York, April 18.—The Passaic boy is at least a garrison finisher, declare friends of Battling Hurley today. After being groggy in the first round of his battle with Benny Franklin last night, the battler came back with a smashing attack that at the end of ten rounds won the decision. During the latter part of the mill Benny saved himself from a knockout by hugging tactics.

IRISH WOMEN START CAMPAIGN

Aim to Teach Domestic Economy to Emerald Isle Girls.

AND KEEP THEM AT HOME

Ireland's Advantages Are Shown to Those Who Would Come to U. S. To Find Work.

Dublin, April 19.—An example of reforms women can bring about by other means than the vote is provided by the extraordinary success here of the United Irishwomen's movement. The chief interest of women is to wake up rural life, particularly the woman's side of it.

For instance, they are working tooth and nail just now to get the country towns over in Ireland to open centres for the teaching of domestic economy, horticulture, bee keeping, nursing and hygiene, and the dissemination of all sorts of handy information about poultry and live stock. The plan is on the order of the American Grange societies.

These are much more practical aims than are usually associated with the Irish temperament, particularly the feminine variety. But the United Irishwomen are very much in earnest; they profess to see in the present the building time for organization in Ireland. The Irish Agricultural Organization Society has 10,000 members, and here the concerted effort inaugurated by Sir Horace Plunkett has set rural reform firmly on its feet. Co-operative banks, for all the political opposition, have transformed farming from the desperate, hardscrabble business which Americans think of when they reflect how many of their Irish immigrants avoid settling again on the soil of the old country. Now, thanks to the Raffeisen scheme of agricultural banks, farming as a co operative affair is a safe investment.

Agricultural Colleges.

But all this needed the woman's finishing touch. There is a plenty of co-operation now among the Irish farmers. Agricultural colleges are supported to teach farming by book learning and manual instruction.

But, as the women who founded the society of United Irishwomen realized, there is a great need for co-operation, that will be just as helpful, concerning the common interests of farmers' wives. So, though founded at Plunkett House only a few months ago, and as a sort of offshoot to the Agricultural Organization Society, this little group of practical women has been very busy indeed.

Their activities are manifold. The hundreds of young girls who yearly come over to America and go into domestic service are their especial care. These girls are being taught now that Ireland is a better place to live in than any other. They are being taught a trade, especially the all-important trade of housekeeping, of which newly arrived girls' desperate ignorance is the daily amazement of so many American households.

Jolly Side to Reform.

On the lighter side, and in some ways the more effective, the United Irishwomen are aiming to make our native countryside a much jollier place to live in. Dances and concerts occupy a big place on their programme, and the singing and dancing contests, in which they will help the Gaelic League, bring back the folk-pleasures of a brave-hearted people.

The movement has taken a particularly firm hold of Irishwomen, as it represents a return of that prestige they exercised under the old Gaelic civilization. Then they were listened to as respectfully as men, their voice was backed in the clan by the very special powers of arbitration and public independence, they enjoyed. Not till the feudal system put Ireland under the landlords did they find themselves taking an inferior position in public councils to their men folk. But with the present revival, and above all, with the earnest, unflagging efforts of the United Irishwomen, the advocates of women's rights predict we shall see them presently raised to a wholly new plane of public service.

GREAT METROPOLITAN.

London, April 18.—Lord St. David's Kilbroney, ridden by Winter, won the race for the Great Metropolitan Stakes of 1,000 sovereigns at the Epsom spring meeting today. E. S. Watt's Ragotstown finished second, and Jas. de Rothschild's Clannish ran third. Sixteen horses ran. The betting was 6 to 1 against Kilbroney, 11 to 2 against Ragotstown, and 10 to 8 against Clannish.

In Search of Beauty

You Must First Win Health By Getting the Blood Rich and Red.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Every man and every woman has an individual idea of what constitutes beauty.

Is beauty skin deep or does it depend on the glow which health alone can give? Is it due to regularity of feature or to the gracefulness and elasticity which accompany health and vigor?

To win beauty you must first gain health. Rich, red blood is the secret. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is successful and popular because it forms rich, red blood, and in this way gives gracefulness to every movement, and a healthful, natural glow to the complexion.

Thin blood and weak nerves soon give one a tired, worn-out appearance. Worry and anxiety show themselves in wrinkles and care lines. Dr. Chase's Nerve food enriches the blood, restores vigor to the nerves, and drives away headaches and bodily pains.

By filling the arteries with new, red blood Dr. Chase's Nerve Food rounds out the form to healthful proportions, makes the muscles and tissues firm and strong, and gives vivacity to mind and body.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

LIBRARIANS WANT NATIONAL LIBRARY

And Would Have Teachers Direct Reading of Their Pupils.

Toronto, April 18.—Following a paper on the work of the children's libraries through the province, by M. Potter, of Dundas, the Ontario Library Association, in the closing session of its convention this morning, passed a resolution to ask the Ontario department of education to make it compulsory for school teachers to understand the work of helping and directing the children in the choice of books in connection with their studies.

A resolution was also passed asking the Dominion Government to appoint a royal commission on the establishing of a national library. The question of asking for a provincial library was referred to the executive to look into and report upon next year.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

President—J. J. Burpee, F. R. S. C., Ottawa.

First Vice-President—C. R. Charteris, M.D., Chatham.

Second Vice-President—W. H. Moore, Dundas.

Secretary—E. A. Hardy, Toronto.

Treasurer—Dr. G. H. Locke, Toronto.

Councillors—W. D. Carson, London; H. J. Clark, Belleville; Miss B. Mabel Dunham, Berlin; D. M. Grant, Sarnia; W. J. Hamilton, Fort William; David Williams, Collingwood; A. W. Cameron, ex-president, of Woodstock.

OFFER OF SHARES RUSSELL CAR CO.

A. E. Ames & Co. Offer and Recommend for Subscription $800,000 of Preference Stock.

In connection with their offering by advertisement in this morning's papers of preference shares of the Russell Motor Car Company, Limited, Messrs. A. E. Ames & Co. have sent out the following letter to their clients:

Russell Motor Car Company, Limited.

Inclosed herewith please find prospectus and subscription form relating to an offering, at par, of $800,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative convertible preference shares of the above-named company.

We strongly recommend purchase of these shares, for the following reasons:

The company has a large earning power, and is very capably managed.

The sale of this block of stock places it in a strong financial position.

If, as is expected, the estimates of earnings for the next four months are realized, there will, at the end of that time, not be a dollar of "water." In other the preference or common stock, the surplus of assets over liabilities being larger than the company's whole capital stock, without considering patents, trade marks, goodwill, etc., which nevertheless have considerable value.

The convertible feature of the preference stock is very valuable, in view of the common stock commencing dividends at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and having earnings and prospects to warrant the hope of increase in the dividend rate from time to time.

A comparison which is of interest in the present connection is that the F. N. Burt Company's preference convertible shares, which we offered for subscription in September, 1909, have for some time been selling around 120, with the common around 115. The Burt Company profits are not stronger in relation to its capitalization than those of the Russell Motor Car Company, and we do not regard the prospects of the Car Company as less favorable than those of the Burt Company. The Car Compan stock is going on a basis of 7 per cent. dividend on the common, while, so far, the Burt Company has not declared more than a 6 per cent rate. We think that the course of prices for the Russell Motor Car Company shares is likely to be fairly closely in line with that of the Burt Company securities.

Subscription books are now open at the offices of A. E. Ames & Co., 7 and 9 King street E., Toronto, and will close not later than 4 o'clock on the 25th inst., with the right, however, to close books at any time. Those intending to invest are advised to send in their subscriptions early.

ASSISTANT FOR McEVAY

Illness Makes Duties of Archbishop Too Onerous.

Toronto, April 18.—In Roman Catholic circles today it was rumored that an assistant bishop would be appointed for the Toronto archdiocese because of the illness of His Grace Archbishop McEvay.

In a large diocese like this it is necessary to have a bishop to perform the many duties required by the church that can only be performed by one who has been consecrated for such purposes.

SMALLPOX AT CAPITAL

Council Decides Against Compulsory Vaccination of Citizens.

Ottawa, April 18.—The Ottawa city council tonight decided by an overwhelming majority not to insist upon compulsory vaccination. The local situation, it was stated, did not warrant it. There are no serious cases of smallpox in the city, 47 mild only are reported. Nevertheless it is being reported tonight that some of the members of Parliament will move that "the House to adjourn until the danger is passed." There is little likelihood of this being taken seriously by the powers.

The city council decided to send the mayor, Charles Hopewell, to represent the capital at the coronation of King George V., and to present an address to his majesty on the occasion. The city solicitor warned them that the proposed expenditure was illegal. The Premier will likely be asked to present the address.

A WINNIPEG SUICIDE.

Winnipeg, April 18.—Mrs. Herbert Langston, member of an excellent English family, threw herself in the river and was drowned. Ill-health was the cause.

Had Severe Pains In His Back.

Could Hardly Work.

Mr. Alfred E. Davis, Gorrie, Ont., writes:—"For some years I suffered from severe pains in my back and could hardly work at all, and when I stooped down to pick up anything felt as if my back must break. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking two boxes I was entirely cured, and feel that I cannot speak too highly in their favor.

"This was nearly four years ago and I still remain cured."

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a specific for all kidney troubles.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

Price 50c per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

PROPHESIES RUIN FOR THE AMERICAN FARMER

A Michigan Congressman Says Reciprocity a Great Thing For Canadians.

Washington, April 18.—Congressman Hamilton, of the fourth district of Michigan, gave the stand-patters of the House a delightful treat this afternoon, by making an anti-reciprocity speech after their own heart, and a much better one than any of the stand-patters so far have made. For the purposes of his argument Hamilton confined himself almost entirely to the cereals and painted a very gloomy picture of what will happen to the American farmer when he has to enter into competition with the Canadian in the production of wheat and barley.

Overrun With Wheat.

"We are told," said the orator, "that wheat will overrun from Canada and the farmer will have to take less for what he raises to sell, but that the farmer will be all the better off. (Laughter.)

"We are told that bread will be cheaper to the people who live in cities, and the farmer is the only man of all the thirty-five millions engaged in gainful occupations in this country who is required to contribute to that result, and the farmer is expected to enjoy it. (Laughter.)

"But the President in his message says that inasmuch as we are linked together by race, language and geographical proximity, and because Canada has never cost us anything for gunboats or military equipment, therefore the farmer is invited to view this thing from a high plane and to recognize the equity and international comity of an arrangement that will injure him financially, require him to divide his home market with Canada and sell the balance of his crops abroad subject to the toll of the miller and the wheat buyer, and so with all the rest of his products.

"From a High Plane."

"Gentlemen, the farmer would be able to view this transaction from a higher plane if his view were not obstructed by the discrimination in favor of the brewer which permits or gives the brewer 45 cents a hundred on barley malt made from barley which he is permitted to buy of the farmer, by this transaction, free. The farmer would be enabled to view this transaction from a higher plane if his view were not obstructed by a discrimination of a cent and a quarter a pound on dressed meat in favor of the packer, the dressed beef from the carcases of animals which the packer is permitted to buy of the farmer free. (Applause on Republican side.)

Republicans Applauded.

"Gentlemen around on this floor here in debate for the last two days have been quoting all sorts of prices on wheat simultaneously. It does not stay, fixed, it fluctuates from day to day. It goes up with the report of an unseasonable frost, and it goes down with the report of a timely rain. But the farmer is invited to welcome Canadian crops and to market his own abroad. If Liverpool is a good market for us, why is it not a good market for Canada? Now, if this is not a better market than Liverpool, why should Canada want it? (Applause on Republican side.) And if it is a better market than Liverpool, why should we give it to Canada?

"Gentlemen, we have been telling the farmer that his welfare was vital to the welfare of our country, haven't we, Democrats and Republicans alike? For years we have been telling the farmer that the prosperity of our country depended in a great measure upon the prosperity of agriculture, haven't we? Were we hypocrites when we told them that? And if it was true, and it was, is it any less true now than it was in 1908 when we told him that in our platform? While yet the great fields of Canada were unplowed, we told the farmer that the more people there are employed, the bigger the town, and the bigger the town the better the market for the farmer and the better the market for the farmer, the more valuable the farm.

AVIATOR KILLED.

Versailles, France, April 18.—Captain Carron, of the French army aviation corps, fell with his aeroplane from a height of 250 feet today and was crushed to death.

The aviator had left Orleans this morning for this city, and was midway between Villacoublay and Versailles, when his machine plunged to earth, turning over as it fell. Carron was caught under the wreckage.

STILL AT WORK ON MURDER MYSTERY

Provincial Police Actively Engaged in Running Down Lobinsky's Slayer.

[Canadian Press.]

Berlin, Ont., April 18.—The apparent inaction of the authorities in attempting a solution of the Lobinsky murder case is causing severe criticism, particularly from Wellesley Township, the scene of the crime, which was the most brutal in the history of the country. The case, however, far from being dropped, gives promise of early development, as a result of the persistent work of Detective Boyd, of the provincial police. He was in Markham and Toronto yesterday on the case.

NAB ANARCHIST NEAR ALFONSO

Mingled With Crowd at Station to See Spanish Monarch.

Bordeaux, France, April 18.—The police arrested Fernandez Francisco, alleged to be a Spanish anarchist, at the railway station here, a short time before the arrival of the 7:13 p.m. train, on which King Alfonso was to leave the city.

Since the arrival here yesterday of the Spanish monarch, every precaution had been taken to secure his safety. In anticipation of seeing the king many persons had gathered at the railway station, and detectives who mingled in the throng had no difficulty in picking out Francisco. He was quietly taken into custody.

King Alfonso came here to see Prof. Abadie, who has frequently treated him for an affection of the nasal organs. The professor was occupied for two hours with his royal patient, during which time it is reported a polypus was removed from the nose. However, as on former similar visits, strict secrecy was maintained as to what transpired.

EXPECTS A RUSH OF HALF A MILLION

Donald Mann Says Canada Will This Year Have Great Influx.

New York, April 18.—Sir Donald Mann, whose firm, Mackenzie, Mann & Co., founded the Canadian Northern Railway, looks for a big year for immigration into Northwest Canada. There were 300,000 settlers in the three northwestern provinces last year, and Sir Donald says the number entering this year will reach 500,000, and possibly half a million.

"We let contracts last year for 140 miles on our main line," said Sir Donald today, "and we are now advertising for tenders for another 200 miles, which is chiefly rock work, through British Columbia. Going west our main line is built into the foothills beyond Edmonton.

"The country is opening up faster than the number of people there would indicate. Many wealthy farmers go there who use steam and gasoline plows. You can go further afield in a new country in two years now than you could in 10 when you had to walk with the plow."

THE GROCERS WANT ELECTRIC ROADS

Many Suggestions for the Betterment of London Were Made at Banquet Last Night.

PT. HURONITES COMING

Provided a Proper Rate Can Be Secured to This City—Mail Order Business Is Opposed.

Not for a very long time has there been a gathering held in this city at which so many ideas for the upbuilding of London were offered as were put forth by various speakers at the annual banquet of the grocers last night at the City Hotel.

Among the ideas advanced were the development of the London and Port Stanley road, the building of new electric roads, the bringing to London of several thousand Michigan people, the establishment of a juvenile board of trade, the organization of a retail merchants' association to include all merchants, and with the object of fighting the big mail order houses and city department stores, and the development of factories.

A Successful Affair.

The banquet itself was an immense success. The supper was excellent and the toast list filled with interesting speeches and fine musical numbers. Some days ago the grocers succeeded in arranging to bring Mr. C. H. Earl, a young traveller from Montreal, who has a magnificent voice, and who was here two years ago. Mr. Earl's numbers were the feature of the programme, and he was accorded enthusiastic encores.

Ex-President Summers opened the speechmaking in a brief address of welcome to all. He presided over the first part of the programme, and later introduced the new president, Mr. Norman McLeod, who occupied the chair for the latter half of the proceedings.

Canada and the Empire.

"Canada and the Empire" was responded to by Col. A. M. Smith.

"Canada," he said, "is attracting world-wide attention. When I was in Nassau recently the annexation movement was at its height, and the people were most eager for it. I am not a 'Canada First' man, but a British subject always. Our position in the empire is not the same as it was at the time of the accession of Edward VII. British statesmen are very empnatic now in calling Canada and Australia sister nations. I stand astounded at the attitude of many people toward defences. They say England will defend us. That might be a broken reed. It is a sacred duty to be prepared to defend one's country. There is a great peace movement going on at the present time, and I hope it may bear fruit. Only the strong and well-armed can advance peace best.

The Mercantile Interests.

Messrs. Wm. Turnbull and J. S. McDougall replied to "Our Mercantile Interests."

"This is a very large and very varied subject," said Mr. Turnbull. "One of the most important things from the grocers' standpoint is freight rates. The tonnage of groceries coming into London is greater than that of any other product. I want to tell you not to sell the Port Stanley railway, notwithstanding what some people say. Such a course would be a mistake. When it was tied up some years ago it made things cost from four to eight cents per hundredweight more. We have the cheapest freight rates in the world on the great lakes. The greatest thing Canada needs today is to deepen the Welland Canal and St. Lawrence. If this is done it will make every bushel of grain grown in the West worth two cents more. The day is coming when the greatest carrying trade in the world will be done down the St. Lawrence."

Mr. J. S. McDougall spoke regarding the recent war in sugar, and said in his opinion the wrong course had been taken when so many merchants followed what a couple did.

"The City of London."

"The City of London" toast was replied to by Ald. R. C. Eckert.

Speaking in regard to Mr. Turnbull's remarks, he said that we are all vitally interested in the welfare of the Port Stanley road. Many years ago, he stated, very large quantities of sugar used to come into London via the Port Stanley road. He thought it would be a good plan for the wholesalers to bring their sugar in that way now, and do the city good by patronizing the road, and taking away the business now done by trunk lines. Ald. Eckert quoted figures showing the steady growth of London.

Our figures are now abnormal, and our assessment is not inflated as is the case with many of the western cities," he said. "We are in a far better position than Toronto in that we have no fictitious values. On such values no adequate return from an investment standpoint can come. What we need here is to come to a realization of our own good points, which are very, very many, compared with those of other places. We are making steady progress, and we are holding what we get."

Toast to Manufacturers.

Messrs. J. I. A. Hunt and John Stevely replied to "Our Manufacturers."

"To my mind," said Mr. Hunt, "our resident labor is well employed, and we have no vacant factories in London. There is a class of manufacture that cannot afford to pay for high-class labor. We want to encourage that sort of manufacture, as we are short of that class of labor. We have not nearly as many empty houses as we had a few months ago. One way to increase our laboring population is to build more electric roads. There is a serious shortage of young men and women here. Electric roads, if constructed, would help solve this problem."

Mr. Hunt said the Legislature should have taken the chance they had recently and started the electric road.

"We have just lost a year by doing what we did," he said.

Mr. John Stevely said no city offers better opportunities for investments for manufacturers than London.

"We have, with our 7,000,000 population," he said, "as many immigrant coming in as the United States had when they had 30,000,000.

"We have in London four or five of the largest institutions of their kind in the British Empire. A gentleman recently told me that when in Yokohama, Japan, the most welcome thing he saw there was large quantities of goods bearing the trade mark of London manufacturers."

Mr. M. Masuret replied to the toast to "The Past and Future," and spoke in a reminiscent vein of the past.

"The grocery business has done more for the world than any other trade," he said. "It is a great and respectable business."

Speaking of the future, he thought it was very mixed, with women wanting to vote and other marks of progress or otherwise.

The Retail Grocers.

In introducing the toast to "The Retail Grocers' Association," President McLeod stated that Mr. J. T. Percival, of Port Huron, secretary of the Michigan Retail Grocers' Association, was present, and that he was arranging for a big excursion of the grocers, and their friends to London.

Mr. Percival urged the grocers to adopt the system now in force in Michigan and form a provincial association, similar to the state associations in the States, which meet once a year, and discuss matters of mutual benefit.

"The trouble with the grocers," said Mr. Percival, "is that they are jealous of one another. This ought not to be. We ought all to be one big family, and work together. Price cutting is a two-edged sword, and unprofitable. In our association we hold regular meetings and keep track of everything. You ought to meet often and learn each other's troubles, and adjust them. We have lists of those who forget to pay their bills, and get after them. We get after the man who buys too much out of town. He is the man who beats the whole town, and not any one merchant, and when he wants to get a line of credit he gets turned down. The merchant who wants to do all the business in the town and is jealous, loses out. The travelling man is your friend, and it always pays to treat him right. He can always give you good advice, and a lot of pointers. We believe that the newspapers and the public should know what we are doing. We always have the newspapermen present. They can help us a great deal, and can break us, too, if they want to. Co-operation always pays. We have found it so, and I am sure you will. Every merchant should keep abreast of the times by taking both the papers and trade papers.

The Port Huron Excursion.

"Now, in regard to our excursion. Some years ago some of our men came over here. I don't know what you did, but they all want to come again. And we are coming if we can get any kind of a rate on the railways. That is the only thing that can stop us, but I think we can manage it all right."

Mr. M. Mower, of Toronto, also spoke to this toast.

"We are learning more about doing business properly every day," he said. "There are many difficulties, but with a proper organization, we can surmount them. Our country is very prosperous, but the retail merchants are not getting the share of it that they should. The problem of getting this is one of the things we must work out. The plan of getting all trades organized is the solution.

"Quebec has a very active provincial association, but Ontario has been neglected for some years."

Trading Stamps.

The United States is still troubled with the trading stamps' curse, which is a wrong and unfair method of competition. In Toronto it wrought havoc in business until we got a law passed wiping it out. By doing this we have made for the retail merchants of this country hundreds of thousands of dollars. The trading stamp people, I believe, are behind the co-operative bill. They say the farmers are behind it. This is not so at least among those who know. We still have to fight this bill as they are yet trying to get it through.

The co-operative stores bill is one which is being tried to be put through by a Montreal promoter. By stopping the bill we will save the people and merchants hundreds of thousands of dollars. In Toronto we have succeeded in getting a charter, by which the merchants can organize from Halifax to Vancouver. It will bring about many reforms if we can carry out our plans. Ontario is the garden of the world, yet we do not realize it. Why do we let people go away out west? Simply because the people out there have been advertising. There is no land in the west that will produce anything like the land in Ontario. Under present conditions the country is losing in wealth, while the large centres are increasing. The consumer must learn to understand the retail man and the manufacturer. The people must have the wholesale and retail system to supply their needs. Public meetings should be held to educate the people in every town along this line. If the mail order business continues it will kill the small town merchant, and eventually the farmers. We ought to have farmers on our boards of trade. They need to be educated along business lines. Over $2,000,000 a year is lost in rotten eggs here because we have no system of handling them properly and getting a market for them.

Take in All Traders.

"Why not support and perfect and organize an association which will take in all trades and be of mutual help to one another? The man who cuts prices never made a success in business, because the principle is unfair and not right.

"One thing we need is a change in the law which will give us a cheaper system of collecting small debts. It costs us $3 now to collect $1. If any manufacturer had a machine which it cost him $3 for every $1 he got out of it he would soon throw it out, and that is what we need to do. We tried to get such a system, but were turned down by officers who are now making fat livings out of the present system."

Mr. W. J. Whiteside replied to the toast to "Our Trade Journal."

The Travellers.

C. W. McGuire replied to the toast to "Our Travellers."

Mr. McGuire urged the formation of a junior board of trade in London, such as have been organized in some Canadian cities. The rivalry between the two he thought would be of great benefit to the city.

During the evening musical numbers were rendered by Master Tommy Selby, and Messrs. Frank Webster, and M. McKeough, and were greatly enjoyed. Mr. F. L. Evans accompanied the singers.

CATHOLICS TO WALK IN CHAUCER'S PATH

One Hundred and Fifty Will Take Pilgrimage to Canterbury.

London, April 18. One hundred and fifty Britishers are planning a pilgrimage walk from London to Canterbury, following as nearly as possible in the footsteps of the pilgrims immortalized by Chaucer in "The Canterbury Tales." These wayfarers will form part of the annual Roman Catholic pilgrimage from Britain to Bruges.

The Londoners, cautioned with literary traditions, will meet at the famous Tabard Inn, and in the first day accomplish the 18-mile walk to Gravesend, and so on by easy daily stages to Canterbury. There will be no flaunting of banners or flags, but in nearly every pilgrim's pocket will be a copy of "The Canterbury Tales," the only similarity between the twentieth century pedestrians and the picturesque crowd of Chaucer's day being the observance of mass every morning.

Meanwhile a zealous Dickens lover, of Birmingham, F. Wells, is about to set out on a unique pilgrimage of his own in honor of the great novelist. His journey, to extend from the north of Scotland to the extreme southwest limits of Britain, is due in the first place to the discovery that in the whole length and breadth of the land there is no single inn bearing the sign of "The Dickens Head," although, says Wells, Dickens was the best friend innkeepers ever had. So to repair this neglect he has provided him with 1,100 two-cent Dickens stamps, one of which he intends to fix on every inn sign he encounters in his long pilgrimage, thus converting 1,100 places of refreshment into "Dickens' Heads" in honor of the novelist's centenary.

ESCAPES PRISON IN AUTOMOBILE

American Swindler Makes an Up-to-Date Getaway in Bavaria.

Berlin, April 18.—Max Schimank, a military "con man," who has done an extensive business in his line both in Germany and the United States by using the uniform of major in the American army, succeeded in breaking jail in Hellsbronn, Bavaria, today. The major had been landed in jail through a daring piece of work. With the help of forged papers which represented him to be Count de Passy and a general in the French army, Schimank had entered into possession of Schloss Stettinfield, near Hellsbronn. He was exposed and arrested and was in jail awaiting trial.

Schimank escaped by filing the bars of his cell and jumping into an automobile, which was waiting for him outside. He left a letter for the crown prosecutor in which he apologized for his abrupt departure, but said he was compelled to leave because of an urgent business matter.

USE OF SPYGLASS STOPS KIDNAPPING

Girl Sees Tattered Stranger Try To Steal Child and Runs To Foil the Attempt.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 19. — Dorothy Worthington, a quick witted young lady of Bloomsburg, by the aid of her father's telescope, today prevented 5-year-old Elizabeth Colley from being kidnapped. Sitting at a window of her home, amusing herself looking through the spyglass, she chanced to direct the glass at the Colley home some distance down the street. She saw litle Elizabeth playing on the sidewalk. Next she saw a strange man, shabbily attired and carrying a bundle wrapped in a newspaper, stop and speak to the child. Then she saw him take the little one's hand, and walk down the street with her.

Miss Worthington had no doubt of his intentions. She dashed from the house, ran down the street, and after a long chase overtook them.

"Your mother wants you," she called to the little girl. For an instant the man tried to induce the child to go with him, then he dropped her hand and walked rapidly away. The little girl said the strange man had promised to show her a pretty rabbit's nest.

OIL TOOLS FOR BURMAH

New York, April 19. — The biggest single order of what is called oil supplies will start to go forward Saturday on an ocean liner. The order represents a value of over $1,000,000, and its destination is Rangoon, Burmah. The consignee is the Burmah Oil Company, Limited, and oil men who know about the shipment say it indicates the British corporation intends to go extensively into development of oil in that part of the far east.

The first portion of the consignment will amount to 200 tons, and Capt. J. F. Lucey, head of the company making the shipment, estimates it will take 90 days to get the order all on its way. In the lot is everything required for drilling oil wells. One item is 100 carloads of iron pipe—2,000 tons.

A TEACHERS' JUBILEE

One Thousand of Them Sit Down to Banquet at Toronto.

Toronto, April 18.—Over 1,000 teachers and their friends from all parts of Ontario, with a number of provincial and local dignitaries attended the jubilee banquet of the Ontario Educational Association in Convocation Hall tonight.

The addresses delivered were expressive of the marvellous development of the country at large, with the affirmation, and facts to prove it, that education had played a large, if not predominating part in the fostering and stimulation of the unprecedented progress in every phase of the country's and province's interests.

Lieut.-Gov. Gibson, Sir James Whitney, premier of Ontario; President Falconer, of the University of Toronto; Archdeacon Cody and the president of the association, F. W. Merchant, and Dr. A. S. Y. Colquhoun, deputy minister of education, were the chief speakers.

WORKING THE CLOSURE

Unionist Amendments to Veto Bill Are Voted Down.

London, April 18.—The Government closured discussion of the veto bill early this morning after a long and wearisome session. There were several Opposition amendments offered, but all of them were defeated by substantial majorities.

The first clause of the bill was carried under closure, 143 to 78. This clause has to do with the powers of the House of Lords as to money bills.

CORRESPONDENCE

Schools and Holidays.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

What sense or reason is there in giving the pupils and teachers of both high and public schools a week of holidays just because we happen to have a day called Easter? It is only a few weeks since they had two weeks at Christmas and the New Year, and in a short time they will have two months more. One week at Christmas and one day at Easter and the month of July should be a superabundance of holidays. The pupils and teachers have very short hours for school work, with an hour and a half at noon (an hour should be sufficient), and all Saturday. The pupils are ready and weary to get back to school long before the summer holidays are ended, and I can assure you their parents are good and anxious to get them back, especially parents who cannot afford to take or give their children a holiday trip. They have only a small yard or the street to play in, and when they are not tearing the clothes off their backs they are breaking their necks or the neck of some other youngster. Less holidays and more school hours is what the majority of ratepayers would like to have for their children. Another thing, there are too many innovations and silly notions creeping into the schools. In appointing a nurse to inspect the pupils for some imaginary ailment or cleanliness is placing the mothers on the same level with the ignorant mothers of the slums, whose children are looked after by deaconesses, only the deaconesses require no pay, while the nurse's fee is another straw added to the burden that is breaking the ratepayer's back. A short time ago some school official was advocating for a girl and a boy to share the same seat, as the girl would be the means of reforming the boy. Now another official would have them separated entirely. A short time hence another wise one will bob up, and he will advocate for a King Solomon plan, place half a boy and half a girl together. I always believe in leaving well enough alone. A few years ago the minister of education took a notion that the model schools were not turning out competent teachers, and built Normal schools at great expense to the country, the result being a dearth of teachers and not any more competent. Now they see the error and are returning to the old method. A whole lot of frills and tommyrot should be cut out of the schools.

Preference share dividends will be payable quarterly, the first of such payments to be made on August 1st next.

Preference shares carry the right to the holder of exchange at any time, share for share, for Common Stock, and are preferential both as to assets and cumulative dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum.

The directors feel that the company's large earning power, coupled with this provision of additional capital, warrants payment of substantial dividends upon the Common Stock, and it has been arranged that such dividends will be payable quarterly, the first to be on August 1st next, for the quarter commencing May 1st next, the rate of such payments being 7 per cent. per annum.

The Company has no bonds, and there is no mortgage upon its real estate.

Application will be made in due course to have both the Preference and Common shares listed on the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges.

We offer for sale 8,000 fully-paid shares of $100 par value each of the above-mentioned 7% cumulative convertible preference stock at par, payable $20 per share on May 1st, and $20 per share on the 1st days of July, September, November and January next, with privilege to the subscriber of preparing at any time the balance upon his shares in full, with accrued dividend, receiving certificates for fully-paid shares, ranking for the full quarter's dividend at the succeeding regular dividend date.

The right is reserved to allot only such subscriptions and for such amounts as may be approved, and to close the subscription books without notice. Subscription forms are available on request.

The formal prospectus in connection with this issue is on file with the Provincial Secretary.

Russell Motor Car Company, Limited, is the new name of the company heretofore known as "Canada Cycle & Motor Company, Limited." When the company applied for supplementary letters patent authorizing the present issue of preference stock it was deemed wise to change the name, for three reasons, viz., that its motor business has been for some time its largest business, that the word "Russell" has become thoroughly identified with the company's motor cars, and that the new name is shorter than the old.

The high-class character of the cars manufactured during the last three years is thoroughly established, while exclusive rights for use and manufacture in Canada of the Knight Motor gives the company a commanding position in the market, and, with other important features, we believe, puts the company's higher-priced cars on a par with those of the world's best makers.

For the year ending July 31st, 1909, the company showed a clear profit, after payment of interest on all indebtedness, of $30,191.14. That year saw the company well started in prosperous business, and the net profits for the next year, ending July 31st, 1910, were $144,350.96, or 18 per cent. upon the stock. The letter of Mr. Russell, General Manager, which follows, indicates the net earnings for the current year, ending July 31st next (after paying interest on bank advances and other charges) as at least $175,000. This means a minimum earning for the current year of over 21% upon the common stock.

We believe that the company is particularly well managed and organized. Mr. T. A. Russell, who has been General Manager for nine years, has engaged with the Directors to remain in that capacity for a further period of three years, and insurance for $100,000 in favor of the company has been placed upon his life. It is expected that Mr. Russell will remain in charge of the company's business after completion of this special three-year period.

In pursuance of our general policy, where we make public offerings of blocks of securities, provision has been made for a representative of this firm on the Board of Directors, and Mr. J. W. McConnell of Montreal and Mr. Lloyd Harris, M.P., of Brantford are also joining the business, as Directors.

The placing of the $800,000 of preference stock has put the company in a strong position financially.

In view of the foregoing, we recommend the purchase of these shares, which, in addition to furnishing an avenue for investment with a high degree of safety, have the attractive and substantial advantage of being exchangeable at any time, share for share, for common stock. The relation of surplus assets to capitalization is unusually strong.

A. E. AMES & CO.

7 AND 9 KING STREET EAST, TORONTO

RUSSELL MOTOR CAR COMPANY, LIMITED

Our financial year ends on July 31st, and it is generally difficult to furnish an estimate of results at this season of the year, because the first eight months are largely employed in manufacturing goods which are sold and delivered during the last four months. This year, however, it is possible to forecast results for the remaining four months' business with more confidence than usual, because the business has followed closely the lines of last year, except that it shows a substantial increase in volume in almost every department.

Up to the end of March last our sales were $821,143, as compared with $715,958 for the same period in the previous year, being a gain of about 15 per cent. There is every prospect that this rate of increase will at least hold during the remaining months, and I expect that our total output for the year will exceed $2,000,000, as compared with $1,698,008 last year.

The bicycle business during the last two years has shown genuine improvement, and we expect a healthy increase in this department. The same remarks apply to the bicycle accessory and parts business, and to the motor accessory and parts business. With the view of holding the very substantial good-will we have in the bicycle and bicycle accessory business, the Directors have decided to continue handling that business under the old name, "Canada Cycle & Motor Co., Limited," as a separate department.

The motor car business is more promising than at any previous period in our experience. I believe the expansion in Canada of the motor car business will be still greater than it has been, because, up to the present, we have scarcely kept pace in this country with the development in motor car business that has taken place abroad. This company's control of the rights for Canada of the Knight Motor is, I believe, a most substantial asset, the value of which cannot easily be exaggerated.

We have just completed an addition to our factory which greatly increases our manufacturing facilities.

I feel safe in expressing the belief that our profits for the current year, after paying interest on bank advances and other charges, will be in excess of $175,000. If that expectation is realized we will, at the close of the present year, have surplus assets, at a conservative valuation, in excess of liabilities to an amount exceeding by some $40,000 the total of both the Preference and Common Stock, or for more than double the Preference Stock. This is without taking into account patents, trade-marks and good-will, which are nevertheless valuable assets.

T. A. RUSSELL, General Manager.

CHILDREN DIED BY SCORES ABOARD A PACIFIC LINER

Measles Ravages Emigrant Ship Bound From the Island of Madeira to Honolulu.

[Canadian Press.]

Honolulu, April 19.—The federal grand jury, which is investigating the death of 97 children on the steamer Oceric, visited the steamer yesterday and made an examination of the vessel. The Oceric, which sails under the British flag, reached Honolulu April 13 from the Portuguese island of Madeira, bringing 1,552 immigrants to Hawaii. The 97 children died of measles and other diseases. Representations were made before the grand jury that the efforts of the steamer disregarded international regulations regarding the maintenance of hospitals on board vessels.

TRUE BILL AGAINST BUCHANAN

[Canadian Press.]

St. Thomas, April 18. The grafu indictments against M. T. Buchanan and B. B. McCarty, of Oxford, went to the grand jury at 2.30 this afternoon. Mr. Justice Middleton, in addressing the jury, rather inclined to a view that the best interests of everybody concerned would be served by a return of true bills, so that the accused might either be vindicated or punished. Many officials and citizens are on hand as witnesses and spectators. A true bill was returned against Buchanan.

WORLD'S LARGEST DOCK AT BELFAST

Royalty Expected to Christen New Structure After Coronation.

Belfast, April 18. — The biggest graving dock in the world and the biggest steamship in the world—that is a fair record, even for this city of maritime eminence. The graving dock, moreover, which has just been finished at a cost of $1,750,000, surpasses any achievement in dock construction ever attempted. It is 850 feet long, 887 feet with the caisson gates on and 100 wide, so the 45,000-ton White Star liners Olympic and Titanic fit into it very neatly, with a fair margin to spare.

One of these leviathans, the Titanic, is in the big dock at the present moment, being touched up by an army of workmen for her final christening in the ocean-going service. She is floating in about 23,000,000 gallons of water, which could be emptied from this monster dock in the brief time of 1 hour and 40 minutes. Three huge engines, with a combined energy of 3,000-horsepower, make this possible, and a new principle of hydraulic machinery allows the caisson gate to be opened or closed in less than four minutes.

The dock has been seven years in building, and would have been finished two or three years ago but for falls of embankment in the nearby Alexandra dock. The whole excavation rests on land reclaimed from the sea by the municipal workmen of the Belfast harbor board.

The formal ceremony of opening the new graving dock will not take place till after the coronation, and the occasion is big enough to justify the popular expectation here that some member of the royal family will perform the ceremony.

In the modern irons of the leviathan fever, however, Belfast will not hold the palm long, for the world's biggest dock, as plans have been drawn up for still bigger ones both in Liverpool and Glasgow. And then, most likely, Germany will, as usual, top the lot. Still the canny men of Belfast are not unprepared for this, for the Irish dock can be made 100 feet longer at very little cost.

SAVANT CONDEMNS SMALL FAMILIES

Finds "Only Children" Are Rarely Normal Owing to Their Isolation.

Vienna, April 19.—After a study of the problem of the "only child" extending over several years, Prof. J. Friedjung, of the International Society of Medicine and Pediatrics, has made public the results of his observations.

He had under examination one hundred "only" children, of whom 45 were boys and 55 were girls. They range in age from 8 to 10 years. Each had been raised in a family where there were no other children and therefore had been subject to a kind of democratic isolation that accompanies those conditions.

Of the 100 children, 18 were severely neuropathic and 69 manifested less marked symptoms of nervous instability. Only 13 of the youngsters, according to Dr. Friedjung, were fully normal.

James Buxton, a farmer near Sparta, was kicked by a horse and seriously injured.

DISMISSED CASE AGAINST PRINCIPAL

Toronto Magistrate Refuses to Act Against Teacher Who Strapped Scholar.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, April 19. — John Shenck, principal of Kent School, was in court this morning on a charge of assaulting John Cameron. After hearing the evidence, Magistrate Denison dismissed the case.

"It is unfortunate that the boy was under 8," said the magistrate, "but he was obstinate. He should have been sent home to be dealt with by his mother, but I cannot convict."

Young Cameron was strapped by Shenck for misbehaving himself in the schoolyard by getting out of line and running after his cap. The result was the lad was black and blue from the punishment administered by Principal Kent.

Dr. Kerr was called to give evidence, and he said the lad's skin was not unduly sensitive, and the marks might have been caused by a slight blow. He said the marks must have been caused by severe blows, and he thought the child should have been sent home for punishment by his parents.

Dr. Hastings, M. P., said that the lad's skin was the same as the average child and that it would not easily mark. He thought the strapping was inhuman. He does not believe in corporal punishment.

"Well, I was always licked when I went to school, and it didn't hurt me any," said the magistrate.

SAYS SCHOOLS NOT AID TO PUBLIC MORALS

System in Ontario Criticised by Dr. White, of Lindsay.

Toronto, April 19.—At the teachers' convention Dr. White, of Lindsay, president of the School Trustees' Association, in his annual address criticised strongly the public schools for failing to help public morals and public health. He said:

"The schools are not the aid to public morals that they should be. Immorality is more prevalent in the schools, and consequently out of the schools, than it ought to be, and the time for education in this regard is not fully taken advantage of.

"The school, too, is not the aid to public health it ought to be. Teachers do not know enough about these matters, or, if they do know, they do not impart it to the young mind when it is most likely to receive and assimilate it."

Dr. White said further:

"I would like to say that the scarcity of male teachers in the public schools is not alone due to insufficient remuneration, but also to the fact that our schools' work lacks in breadth and interest to such an extent as to make life too monotonous to be endured."

REBELS MAKING MOVE FOR PEACE

Mexican Government Favorably Receives Proposal for Armistice.

DIAZ MUST STEP OUT

The Insurrectos Will Give Him Five Months to Resign Presidency.

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, April 19.—Dr. Vazquez Gomez, head of the Confidential Agency of the Mexican revolutionists here, admitted last night that a proposal for an armistice had been sent to the Mexican Government, and that a favorable reply had been received. It was learned that he had telegraphed the Insurrecto Junta at El Paso to communicate this information to General Francisco I. Madero Jun., in the field, and to obtain from him at once the definite conditions upon which he would agree to an armistice. It is said that the Mexican Government will permit couriers to pass through Juarez so as to facilitate the arrangements.

It is said that one of the conditions proposed by the revolutionists is that President Diaz shall retire within five months, and that Senor De La Barra shall become president. In the meantime it is proposed that the two parties shall preserve the status on the Chihuahua and Sonora treaties.

Danger of intervention by the United States was put forth as the main reason for arranging an armistice.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE FOR IROQUOIS CAPTAIN

Coroner's Jury Says He Did Not Make Every Effort to Save Passengers.

[Canadian Press.]

Victoria, B. C., April 19. — A verdict of manslaughter was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury against Capt. A. Sears, master of the steamer Iroquois, which foundered off Sidney last week, with a loss of twenty lives. Captain Sears is already under indictment on manslaughter charges, and a warrant having been issued before the coroner completed his investigation. The verdict was to the effect that Captain Sears, the first man to reach shore, deserted the ship while passengers were aboard and that he did not make every effort to rescue those struggling in the water. He will be arraigned Thursday.

MONEY FOR OLD BOYS HAS BEEN PROVIDED

Ald. Eckert Says the Necessary Funds Will Be Forthcoming.

The Old Boys will get $1,000 from the city council.

No reference was made to this grant at the city council meeting on Monday night, and it was rumored that the association would not get the money.

However, Ald. Eckert, the finance minister, informed The Advertiser that they had the money in the estimates for that purpose.

"It will not be paid out as a grant as we have no power to do that," he stated. "However, we have $1,000 a year for printing and advertising, and $700 extra for band concerts. We will pay the bills of the Old Boys' Association up to $1,000 for the purposes of advertising and bands. It amounts to the same thing. The grant will not appear in the minutes, but the Old Boys will get the money."

This news will be welcome to the Old Boys, and work will be commenced at once on the completion of the organization.

WARD APPROVES OF RECIPROCITY

Heartily in Favor of Trade Agreement With the United States.

New York, April 19.—Sir Joseph Ward, the premier of New Zealand, and his family, sailed on the Lusitania today to attend the coronation.

Sir Joseph said that seventeen years of votes for women had worked well in New Zealand, but that he disapproved of the militant suffragettes of the mother country. He made it plain that he is heartily in favor of reciprocity between Canada and the United States, and an arbitration treaty between Great Britain and America.

STRIKE AT GRAND RAPIDS

Seven Thousand Furniture Factory Workers Have Gone Out.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 19.—The long-expected strike of the furniture workers of Grand Rapids, which has been hanging fire for several weeks, while a committee of citizens has endeavored to bring about an amicable understanding, was officially declared unsuccessful today.

Between 6,000 and 7,000 union men, including varnishers and finishers, as well as cabinet-makers, carvers and wood-workers, went out.

DEMAND MORE THAN RECIPROCITY

Democrat Report for Farmers' Free List Bill.

BIG CUT INTO TARIFF

Want All Forms of Hides and Leather Placed on the Free List.

[Canadian Press.]

Washington, April 19.—The majority report of the ways and means committee on the so-called farmers' free list bill, submitted to the House today by Chairman Underwood, is a merger of Democratic political arguments and an analysis of proposed duty conditions.

They report that the bill would reduce the tariff revenue $10,006,495, based on the importations in considerable quantities of articles now dutiable.

Quoting President Taft's recent Canadian reciprocity speech, the report wishes to convey the impression that the administration is convinced that the protective tariff rates are too high.

Tariff Too High.

"In several public addresses," it says, "the President has admitted that the tariff rates are too high, that such rates have resulted in excessively high prices, especially in the increased cost of living, which now bears heavily on our people, and that they have not received the long-promised benefits of domestic competition under high protective duties."

Referring to the President's statement that the Republican party had modified its tariff policy so as to limit for purposes of protection the different interests here and abroad, the committee's report says:

"That is a confession, as was the Republican platform of 1908, that the theory of high protective duties, as put forth by the Republican party, has broken down, that combinations and trusts which prey upon the people have been fostered by the tariff, and that under high tariffs have forced unreasonable profits from the people."

Reciprocity.

The report declares: "The Canadian reciprocity agreement now before the House, is a recognition on the part of the administration of the injurious effect of the extreme protective policy which has so long been imposed on the country, and is an effort to mitigate its effects.

"The reciprocity agreement, the committee asserts, cannot afford the American people all the needed relief from high prices.

"Action on the agreement involves the necessity of further and immediate action in removing a number of duties on imports from other countries in order that add may come to the great army of the American people.

"The report takes up in detail the classified list of articles included in the free list bill. Regarding agricultural implements, it says they are manufactured controlled by trusts and combinations that have sold in foreign countries at lower prices than those paid in this country.

"Bagging and baling materials, essential in the transportation of agricultural products, the report says, cannot receive benefits of protection in home markets and duties on them, 'have annoyed and burdened the farmers, to add to the profits of exacting trusts and combinations.'

"The placing on the free list of all forms of leather from hides and skins, to boots, shoes, harness, saddlery, etc., the committee argues, will be of advantage and benefit to the great producers, as well as the general public.

"The beef trust is assailed in the discussion of the re-listing of fresh meats and meat products.

President Taft is again referred to, the report quoting from his speech of Feb. 26, 1911, in which he said: "By giving our own people access to Canadian forests, we shall reduce the consumption of our own, which, in the hands of a comparatively few owners, now requires the conservation of our available timber."

SON OF A KING BECOMES TRAMP

Milan Christie Is Arrested in Bucharest and Will Be Sent to Turkey.

Bucharest, April 19.—Milan Christie, a natural son of the notorious exking of Servia, has been arrested here as a tramp, without visible means of existence. He had hoped to find shelter with his mother, but was refused admission to her house.

In Servia his life is not safe, so he is being sent back to Constantinople, whence he came. Milan is now a middle-aged man and has already suffered detention for threats against King Peter.

PLEASANT FOR HAMILTON.

Hamilton, April 19. — Hamilton is threatened with a series of May Day strikes. The plumbers are the latest to make demands. They want an increase from 35 to 40 cents an hour, and will walk out if they don't get it. The electricians receive 30 cents, and are asking for 35 cents. The carpenters want an advance from 35 cents to 40 cents, and are almost sure to strike. It looks as if the brewery-workers would refuse to compromise on the offer of a settlement on the basis of what the rate in Toronto is, and the bosses are preparing for a fight.

SCOTCH JOURNALS OF 1748 AND 1801

Londoner Has Fac Simile Copies of the Aberdeen Journal —Belated News.

Mr. Robert Angus, of this city, has shown to The Advertiser some fac similie copies of early issues of the Aberdeen Journal.

The earliest copy, dated "From Tuesday, Dec. 29, 1747, to Tuesday, Jan. 5, 1748," is a three-column, four-page sheet, principally given over to the war with France, which is recorded by means of extracts from other papers, notably the London Gazette, the London Evening Post, the Whitehall Evening Post, and the Caledonian Mercury. An idea of the time required for the transmission of mail in these days is conveyed by the fact that some of these extracts have been dated as far back as Dec. 7 and 9. One paragraph in particular is interesting:

"As the Public may be alarmed with the Reports given in so currently Yesterday upon the Exchange, that a Contract is negotiating for the Delivery of 400,000 Quarters of Wheat to our mortal Enemy the French, we hope every Englishman will judge so tenderly of his Neighbour as not to believe it possible that any Merchant can entertain so pernicious a Thought, or be such a Traitor to his Country, at a Time when our Allies the Dutch have totally prohibited all Commerce with that perfidious Nation under the severest Penalties."

The increase in excise duties is set off neatly in the following quaint verse.

"No More Gambols.

"Twas merry at Christmas, when Money was Plenty,
And Taxes took off not above Five in Twenty;
But how is it possible Mirth should arise?
Now all that can make it is under Excise.
When Light is not free in the worst of dull Weather;
Wheels pay, if we ride; if we foot it, Shoe-Leather."

The news of the day is largely set forth in the form of letters which have been received from abroad.

Another issue of the same paper is entitled "The Aberdeen Journal and General Adveritser for the North of Scotland." It is dated Monday, Jan. 5, 1801, and appears as a four-page periodical, with five narrow columns to the page.

In this issue "Alex. Christie, Spirit Dealer, Lodgewalk," advertiser that:

"A. C. will deliver the spirits direct from the King's cellars, and the ankers full; to prevent trouble, the lowest price will be—Gin, £6 per anker; and Brandy, £7 10s Money.

"On account of the high advance on Spirits, very much against his inclination, he is under the disagreeable necessity to raise the price at the Spirit Shop, to 6s 6d per pint for Gin; 8s 6d for Brandy; 5s 6d for Molass Whiskey; and he would particularly recommend the Gin to the Public, being of excellent quality, and much superior in flavour to any Piece Gin whatever."

The entire front page is devoted to advertising.

Under the heading, "An Interesting Discovery," are found the virtues of "Asiatic Tooth Powder" dilated upon.

"Houses and gardens to let, corn and fodder for sale, tickets for a diamond lottery, "Dr. Waite's Celebrated Worm Medicine," and various other advertisements also appear in the form of condensed paragraphs, quite unpretentious so far as type and headlines go.

A great deal of space is devoted to the "Report of the Committee of the House of Lords on the High Price of Provisions."

On the last page appears the following advertisement:

James Murray, North Street,
Aberdeen,

Returns his most grateful thanks to his friends and the public for the encouragement he has met with since he has been in the way of LETTING CHAISES; and begs leave to inform that he still continues to keep Good Horses and careful Drivers, and hopes for a continuance of their favour. He has just now fitted up a very neat HEARSE.

Whole Dominion the Loser if Reciprocity Is Not Carried.

Paris, April 18.—The old town hall of Paris, now known as the opera house, and used for stage performances, was turned over tonight for the more important purpose of a public meeting, addressed by the Hon. William Paterson, minister of customs, and one of the negotiators of the reciprocity agreement. It was Mr. Paterson's first appearance on a public platform since the agreement with the United States was introduced in the Dominion House, and the people were alive to the importance of the occasion. Mr. Paterson was naturally made welcome in this his own constituency of Brant, but the reception he was given had an added warmth because of his recent prominent services on behalf of his country.

"We have been charged with selling our country, with being concerned in a plot to lower the flag to the United States," said Mr. Paterson, in one of his ringing periods. "I don't boast of my loyalty very loudly, but I feel it very deeply. I consider it an insult on the part of our opponents to question my loyalty, but I consider also where the insult comes from. I believe if you can make the farmer prosperous you will make all other classes in the community prosperous; and when you add to that the great fishing and lumbering interests, you have two-thirds, if not three-quarters, of the people of Canada almost directly interested, and if you benefit these you must naturally benefit the whole country. I believe it will be one of the greatest things that the Laurier Government has been able to carry through, if it is carried, and the whole Dominion will be the loser if it is not carried."

BREAKING UP FLAGSHIPS.

HAY PRICES STILL FIRM

$14.25 Per Ton Was Paid on the Local Market This Morning.

A SMALL MARKET TODAY

Grain Absent, With Demand Strong—The Quotations as Secured by The Advertiser Man.

Notwithstanding the fact that 40 loads of hay were sold on the local market yesterday, as high as $14 25 per ton was paid today. Only a few loads appeared on the square this morning, and these went off quickly.

The market was very small in size, largely owing to the dampness of the weather.

Grain of all kinds were practically a minus quantity today. Oats are still in good demand, and vary in price from $1 to $1 06 per cwt.

Other market prices remain unchanged, for the reason that very little of anything was offered for sale.

FINANCIAL.

[From Charles Head & Co., by private wire to J. J. Tearney.]

NEW YORK, April 19.—(Noon)—There were plenty of indications that the market had again become oversold as a result of better activity in the past two days. The demand for stocks in the loan crowd kept brokers busy for over an hour after the close yesterday, and in addition to the borrowing on the floor, many stock loans were made by phone. Some of the traders who had taken a position on the short side, started early to cover shorts, and the demand from thsi source alone was sufficient to cause substantial upturns from the low. London was a buyer of important international issues, the buying being large enough to determine the market tone in those issues. It is reported that foreign interests have buying orders in for Great Northern and Northern Pacific in anticipation of the reciprocity bill going through.

LONDON, April 19.—Money was easier today and discount rates were weak. Trading was quiet on the stock exchange. Profit-taking made easier prices in everything but gilt-edged securities and Mexican rails. The latter advanced on the more favorable reports from Mexico. American securities opened steady and about unchanged. Later prices advanced from ¼ to ⅜ on light covering, but realing in the afternoon caused recessions and an easy closing.

The market was unsettled and feverish, and there were wide openings in several of the active stocks. Wisconsin Central lost 1 1-4, and Chicago, Great Western and New York, Chicago and St. Louis, 1. U. S. Steel opened at a slight gain and on heavy sales quickly fell to below last night's close.

GLENDALE LADY FOUND WANDERING ON STREETS

Is Being Held at Police Station as Insanity Suspect.

A lady who claims she is Mrs Dowerick of Glendale, was brought to the police station this morning and is being held pending an investigation as to her sanity. She is of middle age, and wandered about the streets all through the night. She talked in a very incoherent manner at the police station today, and told a variety of stories. She carried a number of small parcels with her containing clothing of various sorts, and at the police station amused herself by untying them and then tieing them up again. Inquiry at the asylum brought the information that no patients had escaped from there.

TRUSTEES DISCUSS CHILDREN'S MORALS

Section of Ontario Education Association Demands Teaching of Sex Hygiene.

[Canadian Press.]

Toronto, April 19.—That the question raised by Mrs. Thornley, of London, as to the prevalence of immorality among children will not down, is made evident this morning when the trustees' section of the Ontario Education Association received a delegation from the public schools. After listening to some very sensational revelations made by the Rev. Lawrence Skey, Episcopal minister, and Dr. Jennie Grey, both of this city, the trustees unanimously passed a resolution favoring the teaching of sex hygiene in the public schools by "properly constituted authorities, the details to be left to the department of education."

Mr. Skey, speaking as a father, a citizen, and a clergyman, told of pitiable cases of girls of thirteen and fourteen. He personally knew that lads of ten and eleven were diseased. Bad habits were, to his knowledge, all too prevalent among the boys of Ontario.

"The schools must do what the homes have neglected to do," he said. "Either the parents could not or would not do their duty and tell their children all about the mystery of life, and the ignorance which has resulted has led to the prevalence of devilish half-truths instead of God's whole pure truths."

Mr. Tarrd, of Owen Sound, introduced a resolution, which was referred to a committee, providing that the Government be asked to set aside $60,000 yearly as a pension fund for a period of five years so that every superannuated teacher might have an annuity of $500. This proposal is said to be considerably in excess of what the department of education was considering.

BOARD WILL PUBLISH THE MILK REPORTS

People Will Know the Class of Lacteal Fluid Being Served Them.

The board of health will publish the milk reports from this time on.

Some time ago they published them, but for the past few years that practice has been abandoned on the suggestion of City Solicitor Meredith, who explained that the board of health were liable for damages if any person wished to take action.

At the last session of the Legislature, however, a new act governing the sale of milk was passed, and by the terms of that bill the board of health has the power to publish without incurring any penalty.

"There is no question now but that the board will publish the reports," said Inspector McCallum. "That should be done, as it is practically the only information the citizens have regarding the kind of milk they are getting."

MRS. THORNLEY WILL SUBMIT EVIDENCE

Regarding Conditions Said To Exist Among Children—Has Received Many Letters.

"The Advertiser has learned that in all probability Mrs. May R. Thornley will shortly present a large amount of evidence she has obtained regarding conditions among children throughout the Province, before a provincial committee. Mrs. Thornley, when asked regarding the matter today, said she did not wish to say anything, but intimated that such a course was not improbable. She will also lay certain local facts before a city committee very soon.

In the last few weeks Mrs. Thornley has been in receipt of a very large number of letters from all parts of the Province commending her for drawing the attention of the authorities to the evils that are alleged to exist among children.

"I have a great many letters of commendation," said Mrs. Thornley, today. "Out of all the letters I have received only one disapproval. That one came from London and was unsigned. In all the others not only were the names given, but in many of them most serious cases were mentioned."

THE SCHOOL INSPECTORS AND HIS OPPORTUNITIE

A Paper Read Before Teachers' Convention By Mr. C. B. Edwards.

Toronto, April 19.—C. B. Edwards, inspector of public schools at London, read an able paper on "Inspection as an Aid to Educational Efficiency" before the inspector's department at the teachers' convention today. He said the only ujstification for the employment of public school inspectors is that they are an aid to public education and can do a real and vital work in carrying out the educational policy of the department of education and assisting and encouraging the teaching staff to do better work.

Four Phases.

Four phases of an inspector's work were dealt with, viz.: 1. His duties as an officer of the department of education. 2. His relation to the local authorities. 3. His position as an educational leader in the community. 4. How he can cooperate with and stimulate the teaching staff.

As an officer of the department he should be prepared to give a loyal and intelligent support to its educational policy, sinking any personal prejudices he may have for the general good. He must remember that educational policy of the department represents the expressed public opinion of the province, and must be prepared to do his duty in informing the public in his inspectorate on various matters, concerning the education of the children on which they require information and explanation.

The inspector, as a co-worker with his fellow-workers, has his best opportunity for social service. In carrying out the rules and regulations of the department and the board he should constantly bear in mind that the "spirit giveth life, but the letter killeth." Only as one is touched with the true spiritual import of his work does he rise from the artisan to the artist. Visits to and work in the classroom is where the best work of the inspector can be done. He should be able to suggest variety in methods of instructions, to encourage the reading of helpful professional books, to inspire teachers with a love for and insight into their work, to invite attention to the fascination of child study. He can do much in his connection with the teachers to stimulate new ideas and higher ideals. In short, the last phase of his work can be summed up in the phrase, the personal influence of the inspector with his teachers."

EAST LONDON NEWS

NO MONEY TO SPARE FOR THE EAST ENDERS

Finance Committee Can Do Nothing Financially for the Progressives.

The East End Progressive Association will not receive a grant from the council for their fund for factory sites, etc.

Some time ago they wrote asking for a substantial grant. Tuesday night the finance committee disposed of the request.

"We have no power," commented Ald Richter. "There is nothing in the act that will allow us to make a donation for such purposes."

"Well, we will file the letter," commented Ald. Eckert, and that was the last of the grant.

The grants recommended for charitable purposes were little changed from last year. The subscription to the Victorian Order of Nurses was increased from $200 to $300. The grant to the Charities Organization Society was reduced from $200 to $100, and this money must be used for Humane Society purposes.

"I am of the opinion that all charitable work should be done through our own offices," said Ald. Richter. "The work of the society is largely duplication, and there is much confusion. The departments do not harmonize and there is friction. The sum of $100 could be used by the Humane Society in connection with the organization, and I move that this sum be granted for this purpose."

The motion carried.

The other grants to charitable organizations were as follows: Woman's Christian Association $200, Protestant Orplans' Home $500, St. Joseph's Orphanage $300, Salvation Army Rescue Home $300, Convalescent Home $100, Children's Aid Society $750, Humane Society $100, Y. M. C. A. $200, Seventh Rifle Association $250, Horticultural Society $200.

Mr. John M. Gunn appeared before the committee and asked that the grant to the Y. M. C. A. be increased to $325, but the committee thought that $200 was sufficient.

ST. MARK'S CHURCH

Vestry Meeting Was Heid on Tuesday Night.

The vestry of St. Mark's Church, London Junction, met last night, and the meeting was well attended. The various reports submitted showed the church to be in a flourishing and progressive state of growth and activity.

The following officers were elected:

Rector's Warden—Mr. Garratt.

People's Warden—Mr. Richardson.

Delegate to the Synod—Mr. Whittaker.

Substitute—Mr. Dunstan.

Sidesmen—Messrs. Morrison and Dunstan.

Vestry Clerk—Mr. H. C. Light.

THE PROGRESSIVES.

The East End Progressive Association will hold a meeting tomorrow evening in Society Hall for the transaction of general routine business. Reports will be submitted from the committees in charge of the investment scheme the labor bureau, and the property bureau. It is also expected that the question of the new city hall site will come up for some animated discussion.

BUILDING ACTIVE.

Building operations are particularly active at the present time in East London. The erection of half a dozen handsome new houses in the vicinity of Elias and Quebec street is being rushed forward not far from the C. P. R. property on which some 75 men are at present working, improving the ground and preparing for the erection of the new C. P. R. buildings for the East End.

A RECEPTION.

King Street Presbyterian Church will hold a reception for their new pastor, Rev. W. R. McIntosh, B.D., on Thursday evening.

BIBLE CLASS MET.

The Young Ladies' Bible Class of Adelaide Street Baptist Church met last evening at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Sid Read, as two of the members are leaving the city shortly. Miss Norah Parsons was agreeably surprised by a granite shower. Miss Sarah Kirby, by a shower of lovely handkerchiefs descending on her from an umbrella which was suddenly opened. Dainty refreshments brought a pleasant evening to a close.

C. P. R. WORK.

The C. P. R. has commenced work on the improvements that will be made in London this summer, and a gang of men are now putting in two new sidings immediately south of the present tracks from Adelaide to Quebec streets. This work is part of the plan of yard enlargement, and it was officially stated to The Advertiser this afternoon that word is expected from Montreal any day regarding the letting of the contracts for the new roundhouse and other buildings. There is nothing new in regard to the survey from Pottersburg to the southern part of the city.

BURN THE MORTGAGE.

On Monday evening a mortgage-burning reception will be held in Egerton Street Baptist Church, when the mortgage on the present church property will be burned, the debt on the church having been entirely removed. Under the pastorate of Mr. W. L. Steeves the church has made unusual progress. Only recently an important addition to the auditorium of the church has been completed.

PLEA MADE TO POLICE

right lines, and I have every sympathy with it. If people know that this society is looking after this work it will have a good influence. If you have the idea that the police are not doing their duty your are mistaken. They are very zealous, but the trouble Chief Williams has mentioned about citizens being unwilling to help is only too common. There are, I am sorry to say, men who look upon old, worn-out horses as a positive asset, and if you try to buy them will jump up the price and make it exorbitant. Chloroforming, as has been suggested, is a good method, provided it is carried out right, but shooting is quick and sure. There are, I am sorry to say, too many delivery boys in the city who use their horses most inhumanly.

Cruel Drivers.

"I constantly see boys jump into rigs and whip their horses. The horse naturally jumps forward and then they pull it in and saw at its mouth. This is a terribly cruel practice. In England many people will, if they see a driver merely chuck his horse's head, report him. People here should be more ready to assist in protecting animals from cruelty. I am sure you have my hearty sympathy in your work, and although I may not be here long I hope you will get the support of my successor."

Back in Court Refreshed and Ready for Fresh Flights of Oratory.

[Canadian Press.]

Viterbo, Italy, April 19.—After a respite during Holy Week, the band of shackled Camorrists trooped into the court of the assizes today and again faced their accusers from within the steel bars of the cages which occupy them.

The holiday has improved the prisoners physically and renewed their spirits. All of the thirty-six, with the exception of Bartolozi, were present. The latter, who suffered an epileptic attack a month ago, is still confined to the prison hospital. Genarro Ibeli, alleged to be the leader of the Camorrists in a Vesuvius village, has recovered from his illness. Giovanni Rapi, known as the treasurer of the Camorra, who wore himself out in protesting his innocence, is restored.

Pasquel Gargiulo and Luigi Arena, the latter of whom is said to have asked for the death of Genarro Cuocolo, both of whom had been excused from recent sittings on the plea of illness, appeared in the cage today.

Priest Is Cheerful.

The priest Cirovitozzi, whose flights of oratory and exhibitions of passion have enlivened the murder trial, is, perhaps, the most cheerful of the lot today. As he was led into court bound, but still wearing his priestly garb, he declared that during the Easter recess he had engaged in fervid religious exercises, which had given strength to endure the ordeals.

"I am," proclaimed he, "the guardian angel of the Camorra, spiritually armored against everything and everybody."

The conldence of Vitozzi appears to be shared by his associates and their lawyers, and so the trial of the alleged murderers of Genarro Cuocolo and his wife Maria was resumed.

Vitozzi's lawyer opened with a motion that the court order the production of the warrants for the arrest of his client and of Giacomo Ascrittore, who, the state alleges, entered into a conspiracy to denounce de Angelis and Amedo as the murderers of the Cuocolos in order to save the real assassins.

President Bianchi said that he thought that the production of these warrants was unnecessary. The lawyer, however, insisted, saying that he wishes to demonstrate that the carabineers had been furnished with orders of arrest in which the date had been left blank, and were empowered to make use of the warrants on any occasion that served their purpose.

BISHOP IS SILENT

His Lordship of Huron Will Not Discuss St. John's Church Matter.

"I have nothing whatever to say."

That was the only comment Bishop Williams would make on the difficulty at the Church of St. John the Evangelist last night.

No hint or suggestion was given as to what action would be taken in the matter.

THE STATUS OF WOMAN

Montreal Council of Women Launch a Series of Lectures.

[Canadian Press.]

Montreal, Que., April 19. — Miss Carrie Derrick was the principal speaker at Emmanuel Church last night, at the first of a series of lectures on the status of women, under the auspices of the local Council of Women.

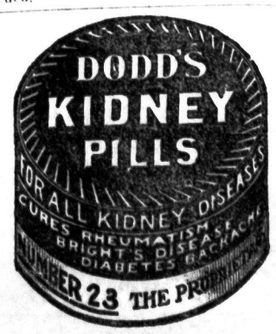

Miss Derrick was greeted with much applause from the women present, when she declared that the whole trend of evolution had been to bring women back to their present state of unrest. She said that women were suffering from the fact that the ideals of women had been created by men, and closed by paying a tribute to the writings of John Stuart Mill, Olive Schreiner and others, for their aid in molding public opinion on this subject.

There were but few men present, and nothing of a sensational nature occurred.

THE ST. JOHN'S VESTRY

Mr. Young as commissioner for the bishop," Mr. Hill answered.

"When was this appointment made?" Mr. Macklin continued.

"Before this meeting," was the reply.

Time's Changes.

The minutes of the previous vestry meetings were read. A touch of irony was given to the occasion, when in the minutes a motion was read, showing the appreciation of the services of the rector, Rev. W. T. Hill, and voting him an honorarium of $100. Many kind references were made to him in the address.

"Things are different now," commented one of the members. "That motion was passed a year ago, and shows we wanted to do the right thing by the rector."

The election of the various officers followed, little discussion taking place on that matter.

On the completion of that order of business, Mayor Beattie made a strong plea for peace and harmony in the congregation.

"This is the first privilege I have enjoyed of attending the vestry meeting of the Church of St. John the Evangelist," said his worship. "Some think that I should not be here at all, because, comparatively speaking, I am a newcomer. I would not be here if the circumstances were ordinary. But matters touching the rector are to be discussed, and as Mr. Hill is the chief attraction for me at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, I am at least entitled to a hearing when so important a matter is being discussed. I am not contentious.

Anxious For Peace.

"I am most anxious to bring about a happy solution to the unhappy difficulties surrounding us. The eyes of not only our own congregation, but of the city; yes, in fact, of the whole country round about, so wide has been the publicity given to our troubles, are upon us. Other denominations are watching the outcome, and they will judge whether the work being done here is Christian or not. I would like to see the unhappy divisions removed. I want to see harmony prevail. If we speak calmly, we can arrive at a solution. It is necessary to refer to the differences existing. I submit that they do not amount to a great deal. We should look at them straight. They have resulted, however, in advertising our church in no creditable way. I feel that as this was our trouble, the newspapers should not have given so wide publicity to it.

"The difficulty arose some time ago, when Professor Jeakins, the assistant, was given notice of dismissal. The rector in so doing was acting well within his authority. Many think, and perhaps rightly, that he acted hastily in not consulting his vestry. However, that was not done. That was the beginning. It grew somewhat, and then the newspapers took it up. A settlement might have been arrived at, were it not for this fact. I again state that the papers should have refrained from discussing the question. Much was printed that gave a wrong bias to the whole question."

Only One Question.

"Following this the trouble has grown and grown. There is only one question, and that is whether or not the vestry should have been consulted. That should have been done.

"Shortly after the difficulty I made every possible effort to bring about an amicable settlement. I tried to discover what would satisfy those opposed to the rector, and was informed that nothing short of a restoration of conditions prior to the dismissal of Mr. Jeakins would satisfy them. This is impossible. In the first place, if Mr. Jeakins had any self respect, he would not come back to this church. In the second place, the bishop would not allow him to come back even if he were willing. In the third place, Mr. Jeakins has been appointed to another parish. What is the use then in striving for something that cannot be attained? Would it not be better to arrive at some other solution of the trouble?

Would Have an Assistant.

"While I believe Mr. Hill is capable of looking after the needs of the parish, and performing the whole duty in connection with it, I am sure the rector would be willing to have an additional preacher here. As we cannot get Mr. Jeakins, let us unite on some other man. If we cannot pick the man tonight, let us pass upon the principle and secure the man later. No appointment must be made without consulting the vestry, nor can the assistant be dismissed without consulting us. I have advised Mr. Hill to accept that, and I feel he is willing. I have talked the matter over with Bishop Williams, and it is agreeable to him, in fact, he advises that course. It would be a great pity to go into the merits of the case tonight. Let us throw the mantle of charity over the past, and work together for the good of the church. Let us be charitable. Let us act up to the principles taught us. If we work together in harmony, the church will prosper as it never has before. I urge the solution offered to Mr. Hill from the bottom of my heart. I beg of you to accept it. We must have harmony."

Out of Order.

Mr. J. C. Butler and Mr. Ross Clarke then introduced the first resolution:

"Be it resolved that this vestry will not be responsible to the rect any stipend not now agreed upon by this vestry."

"What does this mean?" asked Mr. Hill.

"Simply what it says," answered Mr. Butler. "It needs no explanation."

"Does it mean that the vestry will not agree to pay the usual stipend to the rector?" asked Archdeacon Young.

"Precisely," answered Mr. Butler.

"Would it not be the proper time now to pass the wet sponge over the past?" suggested Mr. Young. "What are the highest interests of the congregation? I think they are for peace."

"Is Mr. Young in order?" asked Mr. Henry Macklin.

"I am not in order, but I want to suggest that we try and come together in some amicable arrangements," declared Mr. Young.

"The motion is ultra vires," Mr. Hill informed the vestry. "It is out of order. The vestry is empowered to deal only with the salaries of subordinate officers, and cannot deal with the rector's stipend. The amount of the rector's salary in a self-supporting congregation is a matter of contract between the vestry and the bishop, and cannot be abrogated without the consent of the incumbent. I object to that, and consequently rule the motion out of order."

Cutting the Salaries.

Mr. J. E. Johnson and Mr. G. Theobald then introduced the following resolution:

"That whereas the rector of this church has been served with a written request signed by 67 male members of this congregation (a copy of which was also sent to the bishop), asking for his resignation, and, whereas, the said rector has refused to comply with the request, and also in view of the fact that Canon 23 'On the Discipline of the Clergy,' makes it very difficult for the congregation to rid itself of a rector with whom it has no sympathy, and for whom it has lost respect, without resorting to the extreme measure of refusing to pay him we therefore fix the salary of the present rector, while he obstinately continues to hold the office, at $1 a year."

Hisses from one part of the room greeted this motion.

"I abide by the finding of the commission," declared Mr. Hill. "I have no intention of resigning. I rule this motion out of order for the same reason that I ruled the former motion out."

"I appeal against the ruling of the chair," insisted Mr. Johnson.

"There is no appeal except to the bishop," retorted Mr. Hill.

"Have we nothing whatever to say regarding the salary?" asked Mr. Henry Macklin. "It looks to me as if we had nothing to do but pay."

The Rector's Salary.

"I do not wish to enter into any discussion regarding this matter," answered Mr. Hill. "The salary of the rector cannot be reduced unless the bishop, congregation and the rector agree to it. You can go to the bishop with any proposition along that line if you like."

"Can the congregation pass any such motion?" asked Col. Fisher.

"No, the bishop must give his assent," answered Mr. Hill.

"There is no trouble increasing the rector's salary," was Mr. R. K. James' opinion. "You are simply hiding behind the canons of the church instead of discussing this question as it should be. That has been the trouble all along. That is the reason there is no chance of settling this difficulty. Mr. Hill constantly takes advantage of technicalities instead of meeting us frankly, and discussing every question on its merits."

"I have accepted increases, but always with the consent of the people," said Mr. Hill. "I was the first rector to have my salary reduced at my own request when the church needed the funds. That was made at my own suggestion, too."

"Yes, and it was more than made up to you after," explained Mr. Johnson. "You left the room when we suggested a raise of $50, but when we made it $100 later, you remained present, and put the motion."

As the motion was declared out of order, Mr. Oliver Ellwood and Mr. Henry Macklin introduced a resolution of appreciation to Rev. Professor Jeakins.

It was as follows:

Professor Jeakins.

"That this vestry desires to place on record its unqualified appreciation of the services rendered by the late assistant preacher (Rev. Professor C. E. Jeakins), during his connection with this church, and our deepest and most sincere regrets that the contentions at present existing between the rector and the members of the congregation, should have been precipitated during the term of his appointment, whereby he has been subjected to much unjust public notoriety and criticism, and further,

"That Rev. Professor Jeakins carries with him to his new field of labor the unbounded confidence and esteem of the members and adherents of the Church of St. John the Evangelist."

It was carried by a large majority.

A Lull.

A letter from Mr. E. C. Guillemont, people's warden, was read, saying that owing to the death of his brother, he was unable to attend the meeting. A resolution of condolence was introduced by Mr. H. B. Archer, and carried by a standing vote.

This caused a lull in hostilities, but they were shortly resumed, when Mr. T. F. Kingsmill, jun., introduced a resolution, refusing to accept the finding of the commission named to inquire into the trouble.

"Bishop Williams has sent Rev. Mr. Young to find out our sentiments with respect to the findings of the commission," explained Mr. Kingsmill. "When he hears the resolution I am about to introduce, there will be no doubt as to our feelings."

It was as follows:

Object to Finding.

That this vestry wishes to place on record its entire disapproval of and dissent from the finding of the commission appointed by the bishop to inquire into the difficulties between the congregation and its rector. We object to the finding on Clause 1: "That the rector, under his canonical right, was justified in dismissing the assistant," although he had given his promise to the church wardens that he would retain his services for another year. To the laity it seems to be more Christianlike to keep a promise than to contend for privilege. As to Clause 2 the finding is: "that is might have been expedient for the rector to consult his wardens and vestry, but he did not do it," so it seems to be presumptuous for the people to think they have any rights. Their finding on clause 3 is absurd when it says, "that the demand for the restoration of the assistant preacher is the ignoring of the canonical authority of the bishop."

The conclusion of the finding, "that the people were unreasonable in demanding the impossible, and that the rector had done nothing to lose the confidence, respect and affection of the congregation," was effectively answered by the men of the church who met as soon as the report of the commission was published and instead of accepting it, showed what they thought of it by sending another demand, signed by sixty-seven (67) men, asking the resignation of the rector before the 14th inst.

Mr. C. H. Elliott seconded the motion. It was carried by a large majority.

"The motion is not unanimous," explained Mayor Beattie. "I do not want the opinion to go abroad that it is."

Oil on the Waters.

Hon. Adam Beck endeavored to bring about a settlement of the difficulty. "I am a newcomer to the congregation," he stated. "I have retained membership here because you were rector. I have not been as closely acquainted with you as many others perhaps, but I as well as my family have admired you, and we still do so. I have had no reason whatever to change my opinion in respect to you and your work. The conditions existing here are deplorable. I regret exceedingly that any such trouble has arisen. I want it clearly understood that I am not for or against any particular party. I want to see harmony prevail. No matter what the outcome, I will remain loyal to this church, and will continue to support it in the future as in the past. However, we should be careful not to do anything that we would regret afterwards. Let us get together, and in some way try to bring harmony to this congregation. You have been for a long time rector here. You have visited the sick, and done many other good works among the people of this congregation. It might be that you have acted hastily. We are all prone to that. Let us not be hasty tonight, but may we calmly and quietly endeavor to come to some arrangement whereby harmony will be restored. Hastiness is a common fault, but we should be above that. Let us do our best to come together."

For Harmony.

"I agree with Mayor Beattie's proposal," declared Mr. Hill. "I am willing to do anything to bring about harmonious relations. I was hasty perhaps, but as Mr. Beck says, hastiness is a common fault. I will meet the congregation in any way possible to end the difficulty."

At this juncture, Mr. A. E. Ferte and Mr. Macklin introduced the resolution reducing the salaries of the organist and sexton.

It read as follows:

"That while the present rector remains, the salary of the organist and choirmaster shall be $20 a year, and that of sexton $10. This action is not due to the opinion of the vestry that either official has been overpaid, for their services have been highly efficient and appreciated. But pending reorganization of the church, we will not be responsible for larger salaries than the above."

"We can get somebody to volunteer to play the organ," declared Hon. Adam Beck. "I will guarantee to make up the difference in the sexton's salary myself."

"We are just as much interested in this church as you are," shot back Mr. Ferte. "We have been connected with it for many years. We have worked and spent both time and money to make it prosper. We have done quite as much as others."

Motion Carried.

The motion was put, carrying 22 to 16. A large number of those present refrained from voting.

"There can be no other object in that motion than to wreck the church," said Mr. Hill. "However, I still stand by the findings of the commission, and refuse to resign."

The election of officers for the year resulted as follows:

People's warden—Ross Clark.
Rector's warden—Stephen Grant.
