STREET RAILWAY APPEALS TO PRIVY COUNCIL

Trustees Demand Ban On Use of Schools For Propaganda

His Majesty's Privy Council Will Have Next Say on the Question of Whether Londoners Shall Pay Five Cents or Not For Ride on Cars, R. G. Ivey Announces.

NO ORDER AFFECTING RATE IN MEANTIME

London's steet railway problem is to be carried to the privy council in England for a final decision, according to an announcement by R. G. Ivey, vice-president of the London Street Railway Company, this morning.

"We have decided to appeal the decision of the appellate court," said Mr. Ivey, "which will mean that the case will go to the privy council in England."

Mr. Ivey pointed out that under the statutes this is the only course open, since the act governing the operation of the Ontario railway and municipal board distinctly states that when an appeal relates to the construction of an agreement between a railway company and a municipality, "the appeal shall lie from the divisional court of the appellate division of the supreme court, to his majesty in his privy council."

To Highest Court.

Thus the highest court in the British empire will be asked to decide whether Londoners shall pay a five-cent fare for a street car ride or whether they shall ride for seven and nine tickets for a quarter.

In the meantime, according to the road's vice-president, the company will maintain the best service possible on a 5-cent fare. "It is needless for me to say that we're not making money at the present fare," Mr. Ivey added, "and it is impossible for us to operate at seven and nine tickets for a quarter."

While the appeal to the Privy Council is pending, which may be for a considerable period, the whole question of fares in London presents several interesting angles.

The appellate court, on a point of law, has said that the company must revert to the old rate of fares. But no order has been made either directly or through the Ontario Railway and Municipal board to compel the company to take such action. Presumably the company's notification of it's intention to appeal the decision will automatically suspend any action to put the finding into effect. If this is true, there is nothing more to be done but to await the decision of the Privy Council.

Order Is Sought.

But it is also argued that the railway board should issue an order compelling the company to revert to the lower fare until they have established or failed to establish in the Privy Council their right to a higher fare. Vice-Chairman Ingram of the railway board stated Saturday that the board could take no action in the matter until a request was made of it to do so.

The only party interested in making such a request would be the city council of London. Mayor Wenige stated this morning that he had not yet decided whether or not to call a special meeting of the council to decide on the city's course of action.

Meanwhile, the company is continuing to charge the five-cent fare, and Mr. Ivey stated this morning that up to the present there had been no cases reported of passengers refusing to pay this amount.

May Lift Tracks.

In connection with the report that the company has decided to remove its tracks on Richmond street from the city limits to Brough's bridge, Mr. Ivey stated that while such a move had been under contemplation for some time, no definite decision had been reached.

There is nothing in the city's agreement with the company which would prevent such action, as the agreement relates only to trackage within the city limits. The line to Brough's bridge was built originally, as far as can be learned to provide access to the London Hunt and Country club, but the advent of the motor car has made it largely unnecessary.

The company enjoyed considerable revenue from the transportation of students to and from the university, but the introduction of the buses which now run to the university bridge has seriously cut into that, and as pressure is being brought to bear to have the company move its tracks to the center of the roadway to permit finishing the paving on that portion of Richmond street it seems altogether likely that the company will cease to operate north of the city limits although Mr. Ivey did not care to make a definite statement in this regard this morning.

THEY WANTED BABY, PARENTS OF GIRL KIDNAPPER ADMIT

Toronto Couple Tell Court of Previous Visit to Infants' Home—Case Adjourned.

GIRL BREAKS DOWN

Case Will Be Probed to the Limit, Judge Declares Before Parents.

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Ebenezer MacMillan and his wife appeared in women's police court today to answer a charge of abducting 4-months-old Bobby Muldoon, who disappeared Friday afternoon from a downtown store, and was returned to his parents Sunday morning. Their daughter Annie, who admits taking the child, appeared in the juvenile court. An adjournment was made and bail of the parents was renewed.

"Did your daughter give you any reason for taking the baby?" asked a reporter before the hearing.

"No, she just hangs her head and will say nothing," was the reply. "She spoke yesterday to her pastor, Rev. Mr. Love of Holy Trinity church, I think she told him all about it."

In court, proceedings were exceedingly brief. The case was called and A. G. Slaght, K.C., for the defence, asked for an adjournment until Nov. 24, which was at once granted. The MacMillans left the court after bail was renewed.

Adjournment Requested.

"I am acting for Mr. and Mrs. MacMillan," he told the court. "The little daughter is in juvenile court this morning before Judge Mott. Perhaps it is desirable that this case should stand over until the daughter's case is disposed of, or it is decided what is to be done.

"I am asking for two weeks' adjournment until Nov. 24, on account of appointments of my own, which the crown knows of."

The adjournment was granted.

Bail for each was furnished in $2,000. James and Mary Jameson furnished the property securities.

"Mr. MacMillan and myself went to an infants' home about two months ago," Mrs. MacMillan related. "We wanted to look over the babies."

Mr. MacMillan said that they were looking forward to having a baby of their own about a year ago, but that fate intervened, leaving them with only their 14-year-old daughter, Ann.

Ann MacMillan appeared in juvenile court and her case was adjourned until Nov. 18, by Judge H. S. Mott.

Kiss Their Daughter.

The girl's parents kissed their daughter before she was removed to the detention home. Judge Mott remarked to the parents:

"I do not know what training this girl has had or what has been done to bring her up properly, but it is quite evident that she was not satisfactory.

"I do not know who is to blame.

SCHOOLS NOT FOR ADVERTISING FADS, TRUSTEES ASSERT

Commercialism of London Public Schools To Come Under Ban If Committee Has Way.

RESOLUTION PASSES

Temperance Lectures, Distribution of Blotters, Pamplets, All Come Under Ban.

Commercialization of London schools is to be strictly under the ban in future if the board of education approves of a recommendation passed by the executive committee of the board this morning.

Requests from the G. W. V. A. for 50 girls for poppy day, and from the anti-cigarette league for permission to give lectures to teen age boys in the school regarding the poisonous effects of tobacco, were denied by the committee, and the resolution anent commercialization as introduced by Trustee Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt, was unanimously adopted by the committee.

"We have just started school," observed Mrs. Hunt, "but already the Western Fair, the I. O. D. E. and the Kiwanis club have wanted to commercialize the schools. I am not in favor of throwing open the schools so that the public can go and have their fads strung out ever so often. Our schools, I think, should be kept as schools, and nothing else. I would like to move that a resolution be put on our books against commercializing the pupils and the schools, so that, when anything like this does come up we will be able to dispose of it at once."

Many Would Lecture.

Other members of the committee referred to the fact that there have been requests in the past to give temperance lectures in the schools, to distribute blotters with different kinds of advertisements, to distribute pamphlets advocating health insurance, and other similar schemes to secure free advertising or make free use of the pupils of the schools.

Administrator G. A. Wheable explained that the lectures proposed by the anti-cigarette league were "purely educational with chemical demonstrations of the poisonous effects of tobacco on the teen age boy." From 10 to 25 lectures, it was stated, would be given for a fee of $25, which would be paid, not by the board, but by private subscription. Mr. Wheable stated that Principal H. B. Beal of the technical and commercial high school, and Principal E. A. Miller, M.A., of the collegiate institute, had both expressed the wish that the lectures be given.

It was finally decided to recommend to the board that though the schools should not be commercialized by having the lectures given during school hours, that the league be given the free use of two or three school auditoriums after school hours, and that the attendance of the pupils be entirely voluntary.

Assistants Approved.

The committee approved of the recommendations made by Dr. E. W. Fuller, chief dental officer, for lady assistants at the different school dental clinics, to be paid at the rate of $1.00 for three and one half hours each morning, as follows: Miss Gladys Elliott, 91 Ridout street, Aberdeen school; Miss Etta McDougall, 190 Cromwell street, Riverview school; Miss Doris Massey, 16 Marley place, Lorne school; Miss Jean Meek, 296 Wolfe street, Trafalgar school. It was stated in answer to a question as to the age of the girls that "they are all over 32 and beyond the flapper stage."

The committee decided to recommend to the board that Roy E. Dewar and Miss Freeland be appointed as teachers of the two new adolescent auxiliary classes being organized at Alexandra school ,and that the two teachers be allowed railroad transportation to go to Toronto to visit simila rclasses there.

A communication from the London trades and labor council asked that the council be notified of the board's next meeting in order that a deputation might wait on the board relative a "a fair wage resolution" and "the tenders for the new collegiate." The secretary was instructed to inform the council of the regular board meeting on Thursday afternoon of this week.

NOTICE IS POSTED FOR NOMINATIONS

SYSTEM IS SIMPLER

Dr. H. A. Stevenson Mentioned as Possible Aspirant For the Mayoralty.

Public notice regarding the nomination of candidates for the coming municipal election on December 7 was posted this morning at the city hall.

The fact is a reminder that nomination day is only 13 days distant.

A public meeting for the nomination of candidates for mayor, public utilities commissioners and hospital trustees will be held at the city hall from 10 to 11 a.m. on November 23. Nominations for members of the board of education will be received between the hours of 12 noon and 1 p.m. on the same day, while nominations for aldermen cannot be made until the evening between the hours of 7:30 to 8:30. All nominations must be made in writing.

Procedure is simplified to some extent this year by the fact that aldermen are to be elected from the city at large so that it will only be necessary to hold one nomination meeting instead of one in each ward as formerly.

Voting December 7.

Voting will take place on December 7, the polls being open continuously from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. The advance poll for railwaymen, commercial travellers and others whose occupations may take them out of the city on election day will be held on Thursday, December 3 and also Friday and Saturday the 4th and 5th, from 9 a. m. to 7 p.m.

With Mayor Wenige already definitely in the field for a fourth term, a contest for the mayoralty looms with the persistent rumor that Dr. H. A. Stevenson, a former mayor of the city for three consecutive terms, would again allow his name to be placed in nomination. The Advertiser was unable to reach Dr. Stevenson up to press time, but should he decide to allow his name to stand, a decidedly interesting contest would result. Names of J. A. E. Braden and James Granger are also mentioned as possibilities for the mayoralty contest, but friends of both state that neither is likely to stand, although Mr. Braden may become an aldermanic candidate.

Contests for Aldermen.

In the latter field there seems every possibility of interesting contests for the eight positions to be filled.

Members of last year's council definitely in the running so far are Ald. Carswell, Ald. Ashton, Ald. Doig and Ald. Edwin Smith. In addition to these, John A. Croden has announced himself a candidate and ex-Ald. Gordon Drake has publicly stated his intention of running on a wet platform. This injects a new issue into municipal politics, where up to now temperance has never been an issue. It may have the effect of decidedly increasing the number of votes cast on election day as the introduction of a moral issue is sure to bring out a strong vote of members of the men's brotherhoods in the various churches of the city.

TREATED 'LIKE SERVANT,' WOMAN SEEKS ALIMONY

Mrs. Ruth Stinchcombe Tells Court Her Husband Asserted He Had "Married the Wrong Woman"—Woman in Case To Be Called as Witness, Counsel States.

In spite of the best efforts of Mr. Justice Lennox to effect a settlement in the alimony action of Mrs. Ruth Stinchcombe against her husband, Arthur A. Stinchcombe, city eamser, he warring parties refused o make up. The case is now proceeding at the court house with Mrs. Stinchcombe on the witness stand telling how badly her husband treated her and her two little boys by a previous marriage. Stinchcombe has been married three times.

The alleged "woman in the case" has been called as a witness, counsel for plaintiff informed the court.

"This is an action that involves a lot of nasty charges," declared the court in a preliminary effort to avert evidence being taken. "The defendant seems to be willing to take his wife to live with him once more, while she says while living with him he made villianous charges against her."

On Road To Happiness.

"If the parties could live together, it would be the best for all concerned. These people were on the road to happiness when they were married. Six children by previous marriages should have bound them together."

J. W. G. Winnett, councel for Mrs. Stinchcombe, one of the prettiest women who has ever asked for alimony in a Middlesex court, declared that it would be quite impossible to effect a settlement on the basis of living together again.

"I offered to take a certain amount but my learned friend's offer was so small, I couldn't think of it," said Mr. Winnett. "Stinchcombe makes $100 a week out of his teams.'

Wm. Proudfoot, acting for defendant., declared his client was simply a teamster working hard for a small wage.

Mr. Winnet stated that he was willing to take $2,000 in settlement, while Mr. Proudfoot only offered $300.

Get More in Alimony.

"I think it a disgrace to offer $500," said the judge. "She will get more than that alimony if I come to the conclusion that she is right."

"The thing is exaggerated," declared Mr. Proudfoot.

"Everything is colored, as is usual in such cases," replied the court. "If the defendant is ready to offer a substantial sum, we will discuss it. If she is entitled to anything she is entitled to more than $500."

Mr. Winnett then offered to settle the case for $1,500, with $500 to be paid ti cash, the balance in three years, Mrs. Stinchcombe taking a second mortgage on her husband's property in the meantime.

Mr. Proudfoot then consulted with his client once more and announced that $1,000 was the best offer he would make.

"If you gave him a few minutes more to consider, he would pay more," observed the court.

Not an Auction Sale.

"Well, I don't want to conduct an auction sale here," declared his lordship. "I invite counsel to my chambers to discuss the matter further."

The discussion resulted in no settlement, the judge asking Mr. Winnett to produce his first witness.

Mrs. Stinchcombe stated she had married her husband in Port Huron Jan. 2, 1923. It was her second marriage. She had previously lived in

ITALY IS ROUSED OVER JUGO-SLAVS

ROME IS GRIEVED

Associated Press Despatch.

Rome, Nov. 10.—The Italian government has asked "fitting satisfaction" from the Jugo-Slavian government for Sunday's anti-Italian demonstrations and the defiling or destruction of Italian flags in various cities of the Serb, Croat and Slovene state. Announcement to this effect was made today in an official communique.

The newspapers, especially the Fascist Popolo Di Roma and Il Trevere, express regret that incidents should arise to disturb the atmosphere of tranquility between the two peoples, brought about by the treaties signed in July at Nettuno by Premier Mussolini and the Jugo-Slavian minister.

They point out that Rome has been playing the part of a gracious host to the Jugo-Slav football team, which is scheduled to play the Rome team tomorrow, and also refer to the enthusiastic address delivered by General Yetchmenitch, the Jugo-Slav military attache, at the dinner in honor of Commander Di Pinedo, Italy's long distance flying ace.

Precautionary Measures.

Associated Press Despatch.

Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 10. — The Jugo-Slavian authorities are taking every precaution to prevent further anti-Italian demonstrations such as those which occurred throughout the country on Sunday. A great mass meeting, called for Thursday at Agram, has been forbidden.

The foreign minister faced interpellations in the Skupstina (national assembly) today on the subject of the Fascist treatment of the Jugo-Slav minority population in Trieste, which caused Sunday's outbreaks.

BELGIUM FEARS DUMPING IN GERMAN COAL TRADE

Associated Press Despatch.

Brussels, Belgium, Nov. 10.—Because Belgian consumers can obtain coal direct from the German producers at a price cheaper than it costs the German government to bring reparations payments into Belgium, the government has decided to suspend further shipments under the Dawes plan pending measures to prevent dumping.

According to the newspapers 90,000 tons have already been rejected for which under the existing arrangement Germany must be paid one gold mark per ton. Negotiations regarding the matter are reported to have been opened between Brussels and Berlin.

POLAR PARTY REVOLT DENIED; CANADIAN IS STILL LEADER

Worsley Repudiates Report That He Was Named to Algarsson's Post.

SHIP'S CREW LOYAL

British Expedition's Photographer Claims Dissension Story Not Stretched.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 10.—Commander Worsley and Grettir Algarsson, the Scandinavian - Canadian explorer, both of the British Arctic expedition, in an interview in Edinburgh published today by the London Daily Press, deny that the latter was deposed from the leadership of the expedition to the north pale, and Commander Worsley appointed in Algarsson's place, as reported a few days ago in the Daily Express, and denied yesterday by telegram from Worsley and other officers of the expedition.

Commander Worsley, according to the interview, has expressed his willingness to go north with Algarsson again, and the crew also has expressed a similar willingness.

The published story of the "revolt" in the expedition and the substitution of Worsley for Algarsson as leader of the exploration party, was furnished by the cinematographer of the expedition. Beemason, who maintains that his story in the Express was completely true, and he declares that the ship's surgeon bears him out therein.

GRETTIR ALGARSSON,
whose reported removal as leader of the British Arctic expedition is denied by Commander Worsley and himself. The entire crew of the polar ship is willing to again accompany the Canadian explorer into the northland.

Some members of the ship's company, however, consider that Beemason exaggerated a slight dissension in the exploration party into a revolt against Algarsson, and that it was not really a revolt, as originally published.

U. S.-ITALIAN DEBT PARLEY FAILS TO REACH AGREEMENT

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Members of the United States and Italian debt commissions put in three hours yesterday in another effort to iron out disputed points which thus far have held off an agreement for funding Italy's war debt.

While they failed to reach a conclusion, the official view later expressed was that no reason appeared why there should not be a satisfactory solution for the problems over which differences existed last night.

Kaiser's Failure To Man Gun Made Monarchy Crash Sure

Associated Press Despatch.

Munich, Nov. 10.—That former Emperor William should have gone into the trenches in November, 1918, and thus saved the monarchy, is the opinion expressed by General Wilhelm Groener, who, during the closing days of the world war, succeeded General Ludendorff as quartermaster-general.

'I told the emperor's adjutants at that time," said General Groener, "that his majesty should leave immediately for the front, not merely to review his troops or distribute iron crosses, but to fight. It was to be no dash for death, but his majesty should go into the trenches like any common soldier, leaving it to chance whether a bullet should find him. If he fell, I said, it would constitute a beautiful death; if he was wounded, national sentiment would have reverted in his favor."

General Groener added that his advice was not heeded. He further said that Ludendorff told him on September 25, 1918, that peace must be signed by Christmas of that year as the German army could not hold out any longer.

CALGARY WOMAN THOUGHT TO HAVE TAKEN OWN LIFE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Calgary, Alta., Nov. 10.—Evidence that Mrs. Stanley Jones, who disappeared from her nome in South Calgary a week ago, has committed suicide was obtained yesterday, when her coat, hat and pair of gloves were found on the river bank near Shaganapple Point, some miles west of the city. In the pocket of the coat was a six-ounce bottle of strychnine partly filled. The articles of clothing were found by small boys, who immediately telephoned the police.

Detectives motored to the scene, but although they searched the river bank for several miles, no trace of the missing woman's body was found.

NO WILD ANIMALS AT LARGE IN WEST ONTARIO, SAYS MINER

HUMAN RACE WILD

Elgin County "Wolf" Was a Police Dog, Kingsville Bird Man Asserts.

The apparent epidemic of deer and other wild animals running at large in Western Ontario is no epidemic at all, according to naturalists.

Jack Miner, of Kingsville, who runs the most famous bird sanctuary on the North American continent, laughed heartily when told that St. Thomas now had a wild deer running at large in place of the ferocious "wolf" that kept the farmers of that district from obtaining their beauty sleep a few weeks ago.

"There are no wild deer over at St. Thomas or within 100 miles of that city," said Mr. Miner. "I have just received a beautiful little deer from Chalk River. That deer might get frightened and jump over my fence and right away people say it is wild. Soon as a bird flies over a fence from captivity, it becomes wild too, according to the public.

Probably From Zoo.

"You will likely find that the St. Thomas deer has escaped from some zoo. It was tame in the zoo, but once it got away it immediately became a 'wild animal.'

"Now this little deer I received last night is as tame as any little kitten ever was. Any man seeing it would wonder how a person could go into the woods and shoot.

"The birds and animals are not wild; it is the human race that's wild. We make the wild animals shun us. They fly from us for self-preservation only.

"Any bird that's intelligent enough to fly half a mile from us for self-preservation will fly clear across the North American continent for food and protection from anyone who has been kind to it.

Thinks "Wolf" Was Dog.

"That St. Thomas wolf," continued Mr. Miner, "was most likely a police dog. If I saw a police dog in the woods, trained and all as I am, I would likely believe it was a wolf at first sight.

"A wolf is only a wild dog any way and you will no doubt find that the St. Thomas wolf was a police dog that the owner was not anxious to claim after it had chewed up a few sheep."

Referring to his own pet hobby of caring for wild geese, Mr. Miner stated that they were quite plentiful this fall, over 1,000 still resting at his ponds.

"We have had several flocks of snow geese from the Arctic circle pass over us," said Mr. Miner. "They didn't stop with us, just merely circled overhead as much as to say, 'We won't stop with you now, Jack, but we'll be back again next year and pay you a protracted visit.'"

JACK MINER,

MILD WEATHER SEES BIG POTATO EXPORT

The lowly potato, which last year could be purchased for anything from 60c to $1 per bag, is now selling at $2.50 per bag at shipping points in Middlesex, R. A. Finn of the department of agriculture, states.

The demand for potatoes at district points in unabated and dealers are taking advantage of the mild weather to ship cars of "spuds" to the United States markets. Once the cold weather sets in in earnest, there will be few shipments till spring, dealers predict.

Potatoes sold on the London market today from $2.50 to $3 per bag.

NEW YORK RACING PAPER NOW BARRED FROM MAILS

The New York Press is to be barred from Canadian mails and all letters addressed to it, or coming from it, are to be returned to their destination, according to a notice received at the postoffice this morning. The paper has been supplying racing tips, a practice which is illegal in Canada.

R. J. Duggan has a new name and address, according to the latest issue of the postal bulletin. It is A. G. Anderson, 376 Lagauchetiere street west, Montreal. Mr. Duggan makes a business of conducting lotteries and changes his name and address periodically in an attempt to evade the postal laws against lotteries. Mail from or to the new addres is to be returned to the point of origin.

NO FAILURES OF LAUNDRY FIRMS

W. R. Jarmain Tells of Deliberations of Laundrymen's Association.

Not a solitary instance of a failure of any laundry business in Canada during the past year, was a noteworthy feature of the reports heard at the annual convention of the Eastern Canadian Laundrymen's association, held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week in the Chateau Laurier at Ottawa, according to W. R. Jarmain, president of the Forest Citl Laundry, London, and head of the association for the past year.

At the closing banquet of the convention, in the presence of one hundred and fifty delegates and their wives, Mr. Jarmain was presented with a large silver salver as a token of the appreciation of the laundrymen's association for his work while in office, while Mrs. Jarmain was the recipient of a beautiful bouquet.

On Thursday, W. J. Barkey, superintendent of the Forest City Laundry here, addressed the convention on "Collection and Delivery Charges."

Serving the Public.

Mr. Jarmain, speaking this morning, stressed the fact that the underlying purpose of the convention was to seek methods to serve the public better and in that way to increase their own businesses. In line with this attitude, the convention on Friday heard an informal talk from Mrs. Muldrew, prominent Ottawa clubwoman, who spoke from the viewpoint of the housewife. Mrs. Muldrew told of the kind of service the housewife appreciates and offered constructive criticism of laundry methods as they affect the home. Her remarks were discussed by the delegates and solutions of the problems were offered. In connection with sending linen to a laundry, marking the various articles has been an item of bother to the householder, and to eliminate this difficulty, laundrymen have been perfecting an efficient system whereby laundry may be sent unmarked and yet be returned promptly to the owner.

C. A. Clarke of Clarke, Hueston & Co., chartered accountants, spoke on "Cost Accounting for Laundrymen." The policy of progressive laundries has been, according to Mr. Jarmain, for all the members of the trade to use a uniform system of accounting. In this way, should a business in one city find that a laundry in another town is able to collect and deliver goods at a lower cost than themselves, they are enabled by a comparison of accounts to make an immediate checkup on their delivery system and to revise it.

Many Delegates.

Delegates were present at the convention from other associations in the Canadian Northwest and from Ohio and Iowa in the United States. Accredited delegates belonging to the association proper, came from as far east as Halifax and Windsor, Nova Scotia, from Windsor, Ontario in a southwesterly direction and from as far north as Sudbury.

Wives of Ottawa laundrymen entertained the ladies of the visiting delegates during their stay in the city. On each of the three days luncheon and afternoon tea was served, and the rest of the time was taken up with visits to the mint, the Ottawa museum, the parliament buildings and theatres. A visit was paid to the experimental horticultural gardens to view chrysanthemums, which were in the height of bloom during the convention period.

CHURCH ADVERTISING IS UNDER DISCUSSION

Council and Ministerial Association Will Confer on the Matter Shortly.

Church advertising, at least for the United churches of the city is to be the subject of consideration by representatives of the council and ministerial association of the United church.

Representatives of these two bodies will meet soon "to discuss plans for improved and more uniform methods of advertising the Sunday services of the United church in the daily papers."

Having noted the discussion raised in the ministerial association by Rev. J. E. J. The committee consists of John Stuart, First church, W. T. E. Wrighton, Beecher church, and Henry Pocock, Dundas Center.

The council, which has adopted a budget of $750 to carry on the work of the organization this year, will hold regular meetings on the first Friday of each month.

PEAT STANDS BETWEEN CITY AND FUEL FAMINE

Industry To Be Put On Production Basis Before Long—Dr. McWilliam and W. J. Chapman Confident Bogs of Western Ontario Will Solve Big Problem.

Extensive peat bogs, according to two well-known Londoners, stand between Western Ontario and any real fuel famine. Peat is Ontario's best substitute for United States anthracite coal.

Such is the statement of Dr. J. McWilliam and W. J. Chapman of this city, who claim there is enough peat in this district alone to supply the needs of the inhabitants for an indefinite number of years.

Both Dr. McWilliam and Mr. Chapman have for a score of years been actively interested in this matter, and it is their belief that peat will ultimately provide the settlement of the fuel problem of Western Ontario. If the proper steps are instituted and financial backing is forthcoming, the development of this substance as a Canadian fuel will prove a decided success, and the average man would be able to heat his home as cheapiy as he did before the war.

During the past ten years, these Londoners point out, freight rates have taken a big jump, and the cost of transportation has consequently been exceedingly high. As long as the people of Ontario continue to bring their coal from Pennsylvania and Alberta they are paying not only for the fuel they use, but also for the excessive rate of transportation.

Not a New Fuel.

For hundreds of years the people of Ireland, Russia, Italy, Germany and Sweden have relied almost entirely on peat for heating their homes and factories, but America has thus far allowed this valuable resource to remain undeveloped to any great extent. In Canada alone there are some 37,000 square miles of peat, averaging 8 feet in depth and 20,000 tons to the acre, according to the latest reports of the dominion government.

Of this seemingly infinite supply, Ontario and Quebec have been most richly endowed and surely here is the opportunity for a gigantic new industry and a chance to relieve to a certain extent, at least, the unemployment situation which has prevailed so long. With the discovery of a small vein of coal in the mining district of Northern Ontario, hurried reports are flashed throughout the province, while we remain blandly ignorant of the presence of a valuable fuel on our own doorstep, a fuel which can be developed and delivered at a maximum of $12 per ton, whereas we are paying from $16 to $19 per ton for anthracite coal, even when it is most plentiful.

Lacks Hydro Power.

For the past 25 years, Dr. McWilliam has been experimenting with the production of peat from the bog on his farm at Dorchester. In the past, he has been hampered in his work by the absence of hydro power and the lack of proper machinery and facilities. During the summer months, however, Dr. McWilliam has developed and offered for sale in London some 500 tons of peat, for which there have been ready demands, with many of them repeat orders.

Next year it is hoped that a company will be organized, with sufficient financial backing to develop peat in large quantities in the London district. With a perfected system of development it is expected that some 3,000 tons of peat will be taken from the bog at Dorchester next season. Thousands of acres are also to be found about the vicinity of Stratford, and the establishment of an up-to-date plant with modern machinery would guarantee an output of 1,000 tons of peat a day. During the last four years the development of peat has been analyzed by the dominion government and tests have been made with varied success in the bogs of Alfreds, near Ottawa.

Aside from the commercial value of peat, it offers an interesting study in its production and use. Wherever there is an extensive growth of bulrushes or huckleberries a peat bog is invariably found. After being dug with a specially-shaped spade the peat is placed in a wooden trough, which extends some 400 feet into the bog. Along the trough the peat is carried to a macerating machine, where it is broken up into a wet pulp

Mostly Water.

Peat, when first taken from the bog, is 93 per cent water and only 7 per cent solids, whereas milk contains 14 per cent solids. This seems at first incredulous, but when put under a glass it may be readily seen that peat is made up of an infinite number of small cells of water.

Having passed through this process, the peat, in almost a liquid form, is run into pillettes 8x30 inches in size, into which form the finished product is finally molded. The pillettes are then set on a cable conveyance and taken out some 600 feet, where they are placed in the open field to dry. They are left here for three days and are then placed in piles and allowed to dry for six to eight weeks. In the process of drying no artificial methods are employed, the sun and air being all that are used.

When it has been thus thoroughly dried the peat is ready for delivery and immediate use. One ton of peat, it is claimed, is equal to one cord of the best maple in heat calories. While there are 33 cubic feet in one ton of anthracite coal, a ton of peat contains 60 cubic feet. Consumers agree that two cubic feet a day will heat the average nine-room house quite easily. Peat requires little draught in burning and provides a very bright glow. No cinders are left, the peat burning entirely to ash.

Peat has many other varied uses. It may be used also as feed and fertilizer. Six years, ago the Motherwell Company of Dundas, stock food manufacturers, purchased 60 carloads of peat to fatten their hogs on that year. Peat is used for this purpose in many places throughout the United States.

CINCINNATI GIRL'S ROYAL HUSBAND IS GIVEN JAIL

Prince Murat Is Sentenced to Eight Months in Jewel Tangle.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Nov. 10,—Prince Michael Murat, who in 1913 married Miss Helene MacDonald Stallo of Cincinnati, today was sentenced to eight months in jail, and ordered to repay 93,000 francs to Countess Salverte. Sentence was passed by a Paris police court in default of Prince Murat's disappearance, his present domicile being unknown to the court.

The prosecution charged that Countess Salverte loaned the prince a quantity of jewelry to help him conclude certain financial operations. She stipulated that the gems should be placed in the Paris municipal pawnshop. Later she learned, according to the testimony, that the prince had disposed of the gems in London, and then sold the pawn tickets. The countess eventually was able to buy back most of her jewels, but spent 93,000 francs in the process.

CANADIAN IS CHOSEN NEW OXFORD MAYOR

Rev. John Carter Is First University Representative to Get Mayoralty Honor.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 10.—Rev. John Carter, 64 years of age, son of John Carter, Toronto, Canada, has been elected mayor of Oxford. Mr. Carter has been a member of the Oxford town council as a representative of the university since 1901 and is the first of the university representatives to be honored by being chosen mayor.

The practice heretofore has been for the Conservative and Liberal parties, from which university members as such have stood aloof, to nominate a candidate for the mayoralty in alternate years.

Rev. Mr. Carter was born on Nov. 7, 1861, and was educated at Upper Canada college and Trinity university, Toronto, and at Oxford university. He was curate of Limehouse parish church from 1887 to 1889, assistant chaplain of Exeter college, Oxford, 1890-95, honorary secretary of the Christian social union, 1889-1910, and afterwards vice-president-editor of the Economic Review, 1891-1914.

Bands Raid Irish Theatres And Steal Patriotic Films

Armistice Day Disturbances Attributed to Undying Anti-British Sentiment Among Extreme Sinn Feiners—Prince of Wales Picture Also Seized by Armed Raiders.

Associated Press Despatch.

Dublin, Nov. 10.—To undying anti-British sentiment among the extreme Sinn Feiners, which seems to have been especially aroused by the preparations to revive the armistice day scene which surprised and angered them in 1924, is attributed a series of armed raids on two moving picture shows and the headquarters of the armistice celebration committee.

The moving picture shows raided were The Battle of Ypres and a film showing the doings of the Prince of Wales on his recent tour of Africa and South America. The films were seized and taken away by the raiders.

At the cinema house where the battle picture was being thrown on the screen the raiders acted so swiftly that the operator did not realize what was happening until the job was nearly completed. Seven men, all armed, did the work. At the point of revolvers the manager was compelled to return the money of the spectators, after which the men made their way out of the theatre. One of them, however, lagged and was seized and turned over to the police. Later he was remanded by a magistrate for the theft of the film and for carrying arms.

Film of Wales Stolen.

It was at Kingstown that the picture of the Prince of Wales was stolen. Here the job was done in five minutes. This film had aroused opposition on two previous occasions, when ink was thrown on the screen on which it was being projected. The gang which seized the film paid admissions to the show. They donned masks, then drew their guns and made a rush to the operators' room. They quickly overawed the staff of the theatre and made their escape through a back door.

The raid on the offices of the British Legion succeeded through the same methods. The men entered in a group, pointed their guns at a clerk, seized the office books containing names of the collectors of the "Flanders poppy fund" and made their way out of the building without molestation.

Yesterday Patrick Shean, once a supporter of Eamon De Valera but who now is a member of the Free State prisons board, was kidnapped and held for an hour in protest against the treatment meted out to republican prisoners. Mr. Shean said he was not ill-treated by his captors but that he was soundly berated for alleged ill-treatment of the prisoners and threatened that he would be shot if conditions in the prison did not improve.

Only One Man Caught.

Notwithstanding the fact that civic guards searched throughout Dublin and suburbs for the malefactors last night, the only person apprehended was the man made prisoner in the movie house where The Battle of Ypres was being shown. The Republicans held a meeting last night to protest against "the imperialist spirit which is about to manifest itself on Armistice Day."

Mrs. F. Sheehy Skeffington, in a speech, said the Republicans would not tolerate the streets of Dublin being desecrated by such a procession as that of last year, nor would they allow the Union Jack to be flaunted in the faces of Dublin's citizens. She appealed to all those present to co-operate in preventing the procession. "If the flag of serfdom is flaunted in the people's faces Wednesday," said Oscar Traynor, a former member of the Dail Eireann, "there will be turmoil."

Sean Lamass, a Republican deputy, declared that he meant no disrespect to Irish survivors of the war who desired to honor their dead comrades, "but this display is an attempt to use Ireland in the interests of the British Empire."

COUNCILLORS FAVOR LIGHTS ON VEHICLES

Request From Motor League to Come Before Middlesex Body at Final Session.

Members of the Middlesex county council are more than likely to look with favor on the request of the Ontario motor league to pass a resolution asking the government to enact legislation making lights on all vehicles and bicycles at night compulsory.

County Clerk John Staurt stated that the request would come before the final session of the year in December.

High Constable Wharton expressed himself as being heartily in accord with such legislation, pointing out that with the heavy traffic on the township and conuty roads today, it was most dangerous for a farm vehicle to travel after dark without a light.

HOLIDAY REVELLERS PAY FINES IN COURT

All But One Plead Guilty and Court Conviction Makes It Unanimous.

Liquor flowed freely in London over the holiday, and ten drunks graced the police court with their presence this morning. All but one pleaded guilty, but the evidence of four constables that this last one was unsteady on his feet, and talked "crazy things," convicted him, and he paid ten and costs as did the other nine.

The one who pleaded not guilty was represented by counsel, J. M. Donahue, who wished the constables to define when a man was drunk and when he was not. The sum total of their evidence was that he was unsteady on his feet, and said foolish things. They agreed that he might have got home all right, but Magistrate Graydon said that made no difference.

In his own defence, the accused claimed that he met a friend, who was drunk on Richmond street, and was going to assist him home, when the policeman arrested them both. He had had nothing to drink but 4.4 he told the court. He didn't even know the man he was going to help had a bottle till the policeman took it out of his pocket.

SOAP FLAKES CAMPAIGN AROUSING INTEREST HERE

If there are any Londoners who don't know about the excellent cleansing qualities of the new but already famous Palmolive Princess Soap Flakes by the end of this week, it won't be the fault of K. C. Balfour, district manager of the Palmolive Company of Canada, and his associates who are leading the advertising campaign in London and district.

In conjunction with the newspaper advertising campaign, the many good qualities of Palmolive Princess Soap Flakes are being broadcasted by radio and the first 100 people who reply to requests so broadcasted will receive a large box of Princess Soap Flakes free. Everyone who replies will receive a small box of flakes, Mr. Balfour declares.

In addition to this part of the campaign four trained advertising specialty men will arrange full-size window displays for grocers and it is expected that 150 windows will be dressed by these experts brought to London by Mr. Balfour.

Rev. J. H. Slimon of Adelaide Street Church Elected To Presidency of Unions.

A declaration for total prohibition was passed unanimously at the annual rally of Middlesex and Lambton Baptist Young People's unions, held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Talbot Street Baptist church, here. Those in attendance also pledged to use all possible power to bring the resolution into effect.

Dr. Mark Sanborn, of Detroit, was the special speaker for the convention. His remarks were centered on the learning of the Bible, and he gave many suggestions to the young people for learning its contents book by book. He urged the members of the B. Y. P. U. to read it and know it.

The election of new officers was an important item of the business session, and Rev. J. H. Slimon, of this city, was elected to the presidency of the organizations for the Middlesex and Lambton districts. The other officers include: Rev. J. H. Moore, Arkona, vice-president; Mrs. W. H. Smith, Kensall Park, secretary-treasurer; Miss Jackson, Sarnia, Miss McKay, Petrolia, Mrs. Branton, Lobo, and Rev. J. L. Stones, Wyoming, counselors. W. L. DAY OF THANKSGIVING SPENT AFIELD, AT HOME, IN CHURCH, AUTUMN WEATHER GLORIOUS

CHURCH SERVICES

Union Service Held at Metropolitan Church Attended by Hundreds of Citizens.

Favored by crisp, cold weather and glorious autumn sunshine, Londoners spent an ideal Thanksgiving yesterday. Not losing sight of the true significance of the day, a large number of citizens attended the Union Thanksgiving service in Metropolitan church, and Thanksgiving services were also held in order in the majority of the city churches on Sunday.

Ever since the close of the great war, the day has had a double significance for Canadians, and this aspect of the national day of thanksgiving, which has come to the recognized also as a commemoration of the anniversary of Armistice Day, was also kept in mind in practically all the services held.

The fact that Thanksgiving Day is practically the last national holiday on the calendar on which outdoor excursions can be enjoyed, has made it also one of the most popular of holidays, and citizens of London enjoyed it in many and varied ways. Hard frosts having put the country country roads in excellent condition, motoring was very popular. But the same condition, coupled with the absence of snow, made the day unsuitable for hunting, and although many local sportsmen went out for a tramp in the woods and fields armed with a gun, bags of game were slim.

Golf enthusiasts grasped the opportunity to have a farewell tour of the links. A number of equestrians attended the Thanksgiving Day run of the London Hunt and Country club. Both in the afternoon and evening theatres reported record attendances.

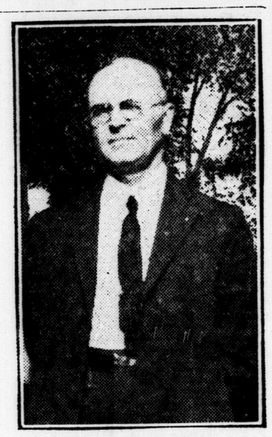

Family gatherings, with the usual accompaniment of a big Thanksgiving dinner, were a feature of the observance of the holiday.

The weather was considerably colder than last year, but this does not seem to have detracted from the enjoyment of the day, which was not marred by any serious accident or other untoward happening.

Thanksgiving Service.

A large congregation was present at the United Thanksgiving service held in the Metropolitan church at 10:30 in the morning. Rev. A. R. Orton, B.A., of Chatham, was the special preacher for the occasion, and assisting him in the service were Rev. Herbert Uren of Colborne Street United church, Rev. Col. William Beattie of First United church, and Rev. Mr. Miller, pastor of Becher United church. The hymns and the special music by the choir were all of an appropriate nature, the splendid work of the choir, under the leadership of Mr. George C. Carrie, contributing greatly to the service. Miss Iva Smith presided at the organ.

Col. Beattie, in making the announcements, took occasion to comment on the large number present at the service. There had been some misgiving in the minds of many, he stated, when the government saw fit to have Thanksgiving day fall always upon a Monday, that the religious significance of the day would be lost sight of, and that it would become merely another public holiday. The large turnout at the Union Thanksgiving service showed that London citizens, at least, were not forgetful of the true purpose of the day, and he hoped that future union services would find the largest church in the city filled to capacity.

REV. C. F. CLARKE,
pastor of North street church, Goderich, and chairman of the district, who was for five years pastor of Parker street church in Sarnia, and for four years pastor in Brussels. His home town is St. Thomas.

Speaks From Isaiah.

Rev. Mr. Orton based an inspiring discourse, suited to the occasion, on the experience of the Prophet Isaiah, as set forth in the sixth chapter of his prophecy. Isaiah experienced a vision of God and went out from the temple a changed man, but he went into unchanged streets, where vice and greed and oppression still held sway. And yet they were not the same to Isaiah, for a great reality had gripped his heart and stabbed his spirit broad awake. God was in the world. He saw Him everywhere, and because of this the whole complexion of life had changed for him. A changed heart brought about a changed outlook.

Men of God everywhere, the preacher pointed out, see more and more of God's goodness in the world as they grow in grace. There isn't a single tract of human experience that is bare and bereft of the goodness of God, he affirmed. Everywhere in the universe there is evidence that God is very much alive and that He is tremendously active as a generous benefactor and friend of man. God's goodness is seen in the realm of physical nature. His is much the larger and harde rshare in producing the harvest for which especially thanksgiving is offered at this time. The beauty of the physical universe is further evidence of God's goodness, when we reflect that the world might have been created dull and drab and ugly.

Faith Is Challenged.

There are other aspects of nature so aesthetical as to challenge our faith, he continued, such as the struggle for existence among the lower animals. But even in this we see that each in dying serves another's good, and thus dies a sacrificial death. "Even your Thanksgiving dinner is signed with the cross," stated Mr. Orton. "It is a sacramental feast. Another has died that you may live." The inscrutability of nature has led people to ask: "Is she indifferent to us?" but human experience in scientific discovery, which is constantly diminishing the harshness of life, has shown that down in the depths of nature is a heart that is for us, a channel by which the love of God flows out to his children.

The glory of God is seen also in the kingdom of little things. It appears often in the most trivial, insignificant things in the daily lives of men and women. People who have been called upon to endure great suffering have found in that the presence of God.

All the evidence, stated Mr. Orton, in summing up, led him to conclude that there is no tract or region of human experience in which God's goodness does not appear, and we need not fare forth in life alone, but trusting in the encouragement and assistance of God. Forget not all His benefits he urged, in closing.

EMINENT SURGEON WILL SPEAK IN CITY

Sir Arbuthnot Lane To Address Canadian Club Thursday.

The Canadian club will inaugurate its winter program on Thursday evening, when a dinner will be held at the Tecumseh house in honor of Sir Arbuthnot Lane, the eminent British surgeon, who came to America to deliver the John D. Murphy oration at the recent meeting of the American college of surgeons in Philadelphia.

Sir Arbuthnot Lane is a man internationally known, both in science and the world of affairs, and will speak on "Medicine in its relation to the progress of man." It is expected that there will be a large attendance, particularly as the Western Ontario academy of medicine is meeting here in the afternoon, and those who wish to attend will be advised to secure their tickets in advance, either from the Tecumseh or preferably through the secretary of the club, Miss A. Taylor, Dominion Savings Building, phone 775W. The dinner will commence sharp at 6 o'clock, and will be concluded in good time.

LOCARNO FAILURE, SAYS COMMUNIST

Editor of Worker Claims Conference Dominated by Capital.

The world diplomats and capitalists at the Locarno conference made a secret realignment of their threatened armed attack upon Soviet Russia, and this was the crux of the parley, Maurice Spector of Toronto and editor of the Worker, Canadian Communist organ, told a gathering of London Communists in the Labor Temple Sunday night Frank Crockford of this city acted as chairman.

"Menaces of war were not alleviated by the Locarno confab," Mr. Spector declared. "Neither was the problem of colonial competition aided, nor those of international trade and the working classes. "But secret cunning plans were laid to take advantage of the world at an unguarded moment. Then will battalions of the capitalists be thrown across Germany in an onslaught upon Soviet Russia."

Surveying Russia on the eighth anniversary of the revolution which placed the "boorish proleteriat" in charge of the country's affairs, the speaker exclaimed. "If Soviet Russia, after eight years of the most gruelling difficulties, after periods of famine and nerve-wrecking reconstruction, is still able to defeat the capitalists at their own game of diplomacy and can look toward the future with immeasurable confidence, then it is because of organiation. And it is only the start of a movement that will sweep the world; the ultimate victory of the working classes is inevitable."

The powers fear Russia, Mr. Spector declared, because, having won their fight against capitalism, they are now aiding workers in other countries to do the same. He pointed to recent outbreaks in India, China, Syria and Egypt as indications of the coming emancipation of the working classes. Revolution will hit the United States some day, he asserted, and the workers will then find out that they have been denied a just share of the prosperity of the country.

TRAVELLERS HOLD SPLENDID MEETING

London Council, No. 630, of Travellers of America, Honor Charter Members.

London council, No. 630, United Commercial Travellers of America, held one of the best and most enthusiastic meetings in its history at the council chambers on Saturday evening.

It was charter members' night, with the charter officers in the chairs. Past Grand Counselor F. W. St. Lawrence presided, with Past Counselor E. R. Dromgole in the junior station, R. S. Macgee, conductor, Senior Counselor, F. S. Oakden, page; James Mackenzie, sentinel; Chairman Grand Executive Committee George W. Price, past counselor, and J. C. Doidge, chaplain. There were about 100 present, many of the "old originals being there for the first time in many months. This splendid turnout, following so closely on the splendid social evening put on last week, augurs well for the future of London council. Such interest as is being displayed will surely keep London in the leadership of U. C. Tison of Ontario-Quebec.

The council came to order at 8 p.m. sharp, and after the reading of the minutes immediately proceeded to the election and initiation of candidates. There were several applicants, but only one was present for initiation, Leonard Smith, with Tucketts, Ltd.

Initiation Good.

The initiation ceremony was put on in splendid style by the old-timers, the "Ray of Hope" lecture given by Geo. W. Price being wonderful, and an inspiration to all who heard it. This was the first "goat initiation" ever attempted in any Eastern Canadian council, and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the members. W. L. Coldicott's goat sometimes loses his temper and sometimes does not charge in the exact manner specified in the ritual, but he is always sure to create a laugh. Of course, the brothers who unfortunately got in the way of one of these charges and had the seat torn out of his trousers was not in any condition to attend the meeting of the ladies' auxiliary, held immediately after the council closed, naturally was somewhat peeved, but when the executive committee agreed to buy him a new suit his usual good nature was restored and he enjoyed the unfortunate incident as much as anyone else. Sid Douglas says he does not go on any more degree teams unless he wears overalls.

Welcome Visitors.

Glen Pulling, junior counselor of Border Cities council and a former member of No. 630, was an interested visitor and received a warm welcome from the London travellers, as did Mr. S. E. Secord, a charter member of Brantford, who is now making his home in London, and will no doubt affiliate with No. 630.

To Hold Big Social Evening.

R. L. Stevenson, chairman of the entertainment committee, reported a most successful euchre which was held a short time ago, and outlined his plans for the big social evening to be held at the Winter Garden on the evening of Nov. 20. The Kiwanis, Rotary, Lions clubs and the chamber of commerce are all to be asked for their co-operation on the night of the 20th, as this is the first big proposition being put on by the local council to assist in the building of a U. C. T. home in London. It is felt that all the service clubs will be glad to help in this way.

E. R. Dromgole, chairman of the new quarters committee, reported that Mrs. Morehead was erecting a splendid building on the site of the old sulphur springs, which would be available to the council as a meeting-place, and his committee was instructed to go into further details of the proposition and bring in a full report at the next meeting.

The meeting closed at 10 p.m.

AT THE THEATRES

CAPITOL THEATRE.

Johnny Hines.

Capacity crowds greeted Johnny Hines in his latest and best screen comedy, The Live Wire, at the Capitol yesterday. It is spontaneously funny and kept even the "standing-room-only" crowd in good humor.

The Live Wire starts out with a bang and continues its 60-mile-a-minute clip until the final fadeout. Opening with the circus sequences, in which Johnny is cast as "The Great Marinelli," who features his daring head-slide down a 60-foot wire, thrill surmounts thrill right at the beginning, and then begins a series of comic sequences that are perfect laughs from beginning to end.

The Live Wire has been dressed sumptuously, the highlights being the tremendous circus set, in which over 1,500 people were used; the scintillating ballroom scene, in which more than 800 gorgeously costumed people appear and a complete street set. Hines is supported by a cast that includes Edmund Breese, Mildred Ryan, J. Barney Sherry, Bradley Barker and Flora Finch. The picture was adapted from Richard Washburn Child's novel, The Game of Light, and was directed by Charles Hines.

Shown in conjunction with The Live Wire is a roaring Mack Sennett comedy, The Rainy Knight, and Pathe News, which is most interesting.

The Capitol Little Symphony orchestra, under the leadership of A. S. Gesensway, gave a specially arranged musical program that was greatly appreciated. The entire performance will be repeated today and tomorrow, continuously from 1:30 p.m.

LOEW'S THEATRE

The Siamese Twins.

A reception such as few other theatrical people have ever been accorded in London was offered Violet and Daisy Hilton, America's Siamese twins, when they made their premier appearance in this city at Loew's theatre.

Long before the first show of the afternoon opened the theatre was crowded to the doors, and this condition prevailed until the last performance began in the evening. The personality of the Hilton sisters and their fresh charm captivated every audience and each skit they presented was greeted with resounding applause.

Violet and Daisy played the saxophone, sang, imitated an act of the famous Duncan sisters, exchanged carefree banter with the announcer and even danced, showing that they are drawing from life just as much fun and just as much happiness as the healthiest of normal people. Their freedom of movement, despite the fact that they are joined at the base of the spine, was a surprise to everybody.

It was when they danced with two men from the preceding acts that they displayed their ability to frolic as happily as other girls of sixteen. And the public showed its appreciation of the talents of the twins by bursting into a round of applause that lasted for a full minute.

Curry and Graham, with their splendid singing and Scotch dancing, and Jim Reynolds with his naive patter make up the rest of the vaudeville program, and both turns were well received.

Optimistic St. Thomas Hunter Pursues Jack Rabbit On Foot

Publicity and Advance Party of Shotgun Artists Result in the Conley Army Securing Smaller Bag Than Anticipated in Belmont District.

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 9. — The big Thanksgiving Day jackrabbit hunt has come and gone, but as yet there is no definite count as to the number of rabbits secured.

Sergt. Ketchabaw, one of the lieutenants in the chase, persists in claiming that he shot four jacks, and that Archie Baines, chairman of the board of education, had three jacks and three cottontails. If these bags can be classed as an average, then the hunt resulted in approximately 300 jacks being removed from the Belmont territory, but the sergeant says: "They aren't all as good shots as Baines and I."

At 12 o'clock the hunters were lined up in front of the Hotel Talbot, where The Advertiser photographer took their pictures, and by half-past 12 the party was away in autos headed for Belmont, with Albert Conley in the first car.

The report is current that one of the lieutenants of the expedition, who was not fortunate enough to possess a rifle, surprised a big jack eating beechnuts, and immediately gave chase. When last heard of he was passing through the main street of Kingsmill just one jump behind the rabbit. He is expected to make a report tomorrow.

The original scheme was to circle around a concession and then to "pot" the jacks when they came out at the other concession road. The idea was capital, but other facts interfered. Some of the hunters, however, were well repaid for their trip. Amongst those who played a leading part were: Roy Siddall and J. A. McCallum of Glencoe, D. Ferguson and A. D. Ferguson of Chatham, C. Pearson, Harry Jones and C. Jones of Tillsonburg, William Rennie and Joe Johnston of Mosley, George Redmond, Archie McCallum, Robert and Matthew Skelley of London, Ernest Lee of Bayham, Hugh McVicar of Poplar Hill, R. Fitchett of Belmont, Bert Young and Sam Logan of Aylmer, A. W. Baines, Dr. Bennett, "Capt." A. P. Conley, Sergt. Ketchabaw, ex-Fire Chief Alex. Henderson, W. K. Sanderson and others from St. Thomas.

There were other successful hunts in other directions, in which large bags were secured. Jack Taylor, line foreman on the L. & P. S., accompanied by two companions, had a bag of 31.

Constables Harry McCart and Sam McKeown, Arthur McKeown, H. E. Price and Grant Morton went out on Monday morning. They got six big jacks in the Belmont area, but unintentionally rather spoiled the "hunt" for Captain Conley and party, as they swept the area which the larger party visited in the afternoon.

FAMOUS SURGEON WILL SPEAK HERE

Sir Arbuthnot Lane Will Address Meeting of Academy of Medicine.

On Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock Sir Arbuthnot Lane will address a meeting of the academy of medicine at the medical school. Sir Arbuthnot is one of the world's greatest surgeons, and is, without doubt, the greatest in the British Empire. He is very well known by all the members of the medical profession both in Canada and the United States. At one time chief surgeon of Guy's Hospital and the Children's Hospital in London, England, Sir Arbuthnot is making his first visit to Canada, and subsequently to London.

With deductions from a vast experience, Sir Arbuthnot has written a number of books, and is considered an authority on medical literature of every description. Some of his most outstanding works are contributions to the knowledge of the medical profession, and ranking highest among these are his method of fracture by platting, and his method of treating persons deformed by a hair-lip or castalitte.

In 1919 he demonstrated in Chicago, and since then has been recognized as a very skilful surgeon. Since that time he has been a very frequent visitor to the United States.

Sir Arbuthnot also has established the main cause or possible factor in abdominal diseases. He is a very broadminded man, and upholds the amalgamation of British and American ideals, which he claims would be only for the distinct advancement of the entire world.

Sir Arbuthnot will stop for a short time at Toronto after his visit here, and will then proceed to New York. He arrives at 1 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon from Cleveland.

DRAMA, COMEDY PLEASES PATRONS

William Faversham Presents Splendid Comedy in Foot-Loose at Grand.

APPLAUSE HEARTY

William Faversham has always been a favorite, a dramatic artist who lends grace and beauty to everything he does. It is quite some years since he last played in London, and so a warm welcome awaited him at the Theatre last evening. The welcome was for his past accomplishments, an appreciative display for an outstanding actor, but the applause which was his at the conclusion of Foot-Loose was an enthusiastic tribute to work well done, for William Faversham is his old debonair self in Foot-Loose—graceful, polished and fascinating.

Foot-Loose is a comedy-drama by Zoe Atkins. It is billed as a play of intrigue. Were it not for Mr. Faversham and Sarah Truax it would still probably be in manuscript form, instead of a rather flimsy play with insipid moments dexterously saved by these two capable actors, who, with the support of a talented cast, make it excellent entertainment. Both carry the show, and its plausibility or failure depends on them. But Foot-Loose, as it was presented last night, is plausible and was a success—one of the most pleasing offerings shown in London in many months.

The play concerns an adventuress, the Marquis de Mohrivart, a lady of notorious character in Paris some years before the story opens. She wishes now to enter respectable society, and to that end bargains with Mrs. Verney, who sojourns in Rome, she holds a secret belonging to the young Madame de Brissac, sister of Mrs. Verney. On the scene comes Sir Horace Welby, an old sweetheart of Alice Verney's, and he "fixes" things so that the unwelcome visitor gladly leaves Rome.

The story told in Foot-Loose is unconvincing, and although the play ended logically, sympathy was really more with the Marquisse than anyone else. The young widow, Rose de Brissac, was seen as a shadowy creature; Alice, her strong-minded sister, revealed herself as snobbish and cold, quite as ruthless as the woman she detested.

Sir Horace Welby, hmiself a rounder in days past, had now grown smug and self-righteous, and lacked that saving sense of humor which might have saved him from priggishness. The chief characters are, of course, the Sir Horace and the Marquisse.

The part of Sir Horace Welby is one which such an artist as Mr. Faversham virtually "toys" with, but his impersonation is effective, and in his own inimitable manner, with his very presence on the stage, he enhances what light and shade there is to the piece.

Sarah Traux as the Marquisse was delightful. It wasn't exactly a charming role to play, but her convincing versatility, rich voice and infectuous good nature, made pronounced appeal.

Other roles were more or less minor. Miss Edith Campbell played Edith Verney, a statuesque woman with fine voice, who moved through her performance with due statelinesss. Miss Bernice Vert was seen as Rose, the young widow, and a fussy Englishwoman, much interested in charities, was played by Miss Ann Warrington. Dennis Cleugh added lightness to the performance by his portrayal of Prince Malleotti.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use for only 75 cents. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Advt.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1925.

Political Ingratitude.

Political ingratitude is as bad as any other kind. It is running its course now in the columns of some Conservative papers because the Patenaude-Conservative plan of securing seats in Quebec failed to function.

When Mr. Patenaude's name was first mentioned it was received with loud applause; there was even stamping of the feet on the floor, and in another corner someone whistled. The Free Press declared he would be a tower of strength to the Conservative cause, and that he "was ready to throw himself into the fight as a lieutenant of Hon. Arthur Meighen." What he was going to fight or who or how made no difference—he was against Mr. King, and that was sufficient.

Mr. Patenaude failed, and the Conservative papers are critical to the point of political cruelty. The Toronto Telegram analyzes the Quebec situation and blames everyone, from Sir Robert Borden to Mr. Patenaude, for the present state of the Conservative party in Quebec. The management of the party, according to the Telegram, is centered in St. James street, the financial stronghold, and from there it takes its direction, and from the same source were charted the movements of the Patenaude-Conservative campaign.

Since the scheme fell flat in Quebec the Telegram is moved to say:

> "St. James street entered the recent campaign with high hopes. It expected to put Patenaude at Ottawa with a group of goodly size."

This is interesting evidence from a Conservative newspaper. It bears out to a letter the charge made during the election that the one and only idea of handing the Conservative campaign in Quebec over to the Patenaude group was to secure an anti-imperialist, anti-C. N. R. following from that province. It was reported with pleasure that Mr. Patenaude was going to get twenty Quebec seats. Had he been successful his following would have been received as simon-pures by the Conservative party.

Why is the Conservative press so anxious to bludgeon Mr. Patenaude now? If, as the Telegram says, his sword was found to be only a slapstick, why was there such a gleeful expectation that by it he could win twenty seats in Quebec? The crime they are urging against Mr. Patenaude today is that he failed to perform according to his advance notices. Had he succeeded, with the aid of Montreal's financial district, there would be no criticism today of the methods he used, and we would never have had the admission from a Conservative paper that "St. James street entered the campaign with high hopes, expecting to put Patenaude at Ottawa with a group of goodly size."

Mr. Patenaude failed to carry out his part of the agreement with the Conservative party, and that is why he is being attacked so bitterly now.

Tillsonburg's Thanksgiving.

To Tillsonburg goes the distinction of having given tangible interpretation to the new meaning of Thanksgiving Day in Canada—combining a sincere tribute to the Canadians who fought or fell in the great war with the idea of public rejoicing to mark the declaration of peace.

The plan first took form in the mind of Mr. Arthur Trusler, principal of the public school; from him it went to the children; they carried it home. The result was a day that will be memorable in local history as one where, with very little organization, the town and countryside demonstrated its approval of the idea. It is probably the first celebration of its kind in Canada.

The method employed showed how clearly Mr. Trusler had sensed what was in the minds of the people. The morning program was a public service to impress particularly upon the young the sacredness of the occasion; the afternoon full of life and innocent amusement, to depict the joy with which the news was received that hostilities had ceased. Leadership of this calibre, coupled with a community spirit to give it voice and form, such as Tillsonburg contributed, has given a valuable suggestion as to how best to employ a day that might otherwise have been less worthily observed.

The Passing of T. H. Preston.

Mr. T. H. Preston of the Brantford Expositor is dead. Making final preparations for a trip to Atlantic City following a few days' illness, Mr. Preston went back to his desk at the Expositor office, and that effort is blamed for the final attack to which he succumbed. That was typical of Mr. Preston. His newspaper was the center of his existence, and few men have succeeded in so impressing the stamp of their own clear-cut personality on the columns of a paper and on its general conduct as T. H. Preston and the Brantford Expositor.

Mr. Preston gave largely of his time and means to public service. In the provincial legislature labor problems, particularly child labor, attracted his attention, and the Liberal leadership could have been his had he been free to accept. In his own city, it was the general hospital, the board of education and other public enterprises that made the strongest appeal to him, while his work on the parole board gave scope for a mind that was not only just, but sympathetic and human.

Mr. Preston died in the harness, and that is exactly as he would have had it. On more than one occasion he had given expression to the desire to maintain to the end an active part in journalism. He has had his desire. The citizens of Brantford will be the poorer for his passing; men who knew him, and those who have been associated with him in past years, feel that in his death they have suffered a personal bereavement.

Potatoes and Labor.

A city purchaser writes saying that when on the market on Saturday he could not get potatoes from the man he generally dealt with because he was keeping them on his farm in the expectation of getting better prices later on. The buyer considered this was the equivalent to a hold-up.

It is easy to imagine how that conclusion might be arrived at, because the purchaser in this case sees the idea in operation, and stands in danger of having his pocket touched.

The farmer in this case was merely trying to get the highest possible price for what he had to sell. Last year, if he were in the potato business to any extent he would have found, had he kept books on his production yields and costs, that he did not make any money. If he has a chance to make that up this year he is simply following the rules of business.

We find this in many other lines. A farmer near London told The Advertiser a few weeks ago about his experience with his hired man. A road was being built past his place, and the hired man quit when the harvest was on because he could get more money working on the road. The hired man had only one thing to sell, his power to work, and he was doing exactly the same thing as the farmer who seeks a high price for potatoes.

It is a situation in which the potato grower would do well to profit by past experience, not only in potatoes, but in everything else. There is always a degree of danger in attempting to extract the last cent from anything. The wiser course is to determine a selling price representing a fair profit on the operation, and then sell at that price. When the seller of any produce or manufactured article goes beyond that he is on dangerous ground. There is always the chance that the buyer, feeling that the price is being placed at too high a figure, may find some substitute. Such things have happened before, and there is no guarantee that they will not happen again.

Not So Unanimous.

There is not a Conservative paper that has not been excited over the claim that Mr. King has a mixed following in the house, including protectionists from Ontario and Quebec and low tariff representatives from the west.

By the same token they infer that Mr. Meighen has a following all of one mind on matters of policy, a compact group all tuned to the same belief. Mr. Meighen has twenty-three members from the maritime provinces, where high tariff was not the issue in the election. These people want wider markets for their produce and better transportation facilities. He also has eleven western Canada members, where there is no sentiment for high tariff. From Ontario he has followers from districts where the British preference has been working a direct benefit to producers of natural produce, and they will not be interested in Mr. Meighen's attempt to do away with the preference. He also has supporters from districts where lower rates for cattle to the Old Country markets is a pressing need, and they cannot satisfy their constituents with Mr. Meighen's negative attitude on the ocean shipping combine. And, finally, Mr. Meighen's own frame of mind is not clear. In 1920 he declared that Canada could never have a high tariff.

Both Liberal and Conservative sides of the house are a mixture of opinions. It is probably well that it is so.

Those having Santa Claus outfits will be called upon as frequently as ever to loan them without any charge.

Otherwise Christmas arrangements will proceed as usual.

Uncle "Happy"

By ARK.

Uncle Happy lives back home, he's been there eighty years or more, and always earned his board and keep by drivin' for the village store. He knows most everyone about, and likewise most of folks know him, they wonder how he keeps about and always wears a tidy grin.

I met with Happy yesterday when I was home to spend the day, and asked him how he kept so spry and always seemed so glad and gay.

Well Uncle Happy says to me, "I'm goin' on now to eighty-four, I made my mind up years ago I wouldn't worry any more. I used to stew and fuss a lot because I wasn't goin' ahead, I fussed when I riz in the morn and stewed when I was goin' to bed.

Editorial Opinion

BYNG IS RIGHT.

(From the Montreal Star.)

THOSE people who seem to think that Mr. Mackenzie King should not have been permitted to carry on are quite wrong in their views, and those newspapers that seem disposed to instruct the governor in his duties are not only wrong, but imprudent and impertinent.

Lord Byng is a constitutional governor. He is prudent and courageous, and may be depended upon to do the right thing in any crisis, none the less in the grave issue of the present hour.

Fault may be found with Mr. Mackenzie King in the course he is pursuing. It does not seem the manly, straightforward course, and his conduct is a legitimate subject of criticism, but it will not effect any purpose, and may work mischief, to bully the governor or to attempt to teach him his duty, with which he is quite familiar, and which he may be relied upon to perform with wisdom, courage and resolution.

WE TOLD YOU SO.

From the Montreal Herald.

WHEN in August last, Mr. Arthur Meighen and his associates were clamoring for a general election, the Herald appealed to Premier King not to accede to this demand. We said:

"It is a golden rule on the field of battle, in the law courts, and above all in the political arena, never to do what your opponents are trying to make you do. And that rule might be applied by Premier King to the strategy of Mr. Meighen. Mr. Meighen wants an election now because he fears one later. He cannot afford to wait. Premier King can."

However, the clamorous challenge of Mr. Meighen was accepted and the result is seen in today's returns. That the government exercised mistaken judgment in appealing to the country at this time is apparent. It could have remained in office for another year.

MODERATE TARIFF THE SOLUTION.

(From the Winnipeg Free Press)

FROM self-interest, Ontario went in favor of tariff stability of the upward variety. And the west, if it followed pure self-interest, would demand a slashing reduction in the customs duties. Perhaps it will some day sink home to Canadians east and west that the only practical and fair thing to do is to compromise on a moderate tariff, and that this must be the ultimate settlement of the tariff issue.

"They are not idlers," explained his friend soothingly. "Here's a doctor who wants to look you over, a lawyer ready to bring suit for you and a producer of comic films who would like to sign you up."

The Gentle Art of Advice

BY "SODBUSTER."

Henry is nearly all better again. He has not been very well for nearly a month; not very bad, but just ailing; nothing very serious, only he seemed to be fearfully hungry for gasoline. On Sunday, he took a decided turn for the worse, and on Monday, when we started to town, he stopped short and decided not to go again until we performed an operation on the differential joint.

During his recent illness I have received a lot of advice, mostly free, and several times expert advice which was not free, but the best advice was to run him into the barn, and a neighbor who has had experience with crippled cars came in and we went at it.

If there is a rest in a change of work, well we just got a rest, but I've had holidays that I could keep my clothes cleaner at, but, although it was not a clean job to work at, it had one redeeming feature, it was interesting. Then when everything was assembled and in working order, I got some expert advice, and found the seat of the trouble, and had it put right, and now Henry is well again, and happy.

Free Advice For Sodbusters.

Did it ever occur to you that the Sodbusters receive a tremendous flood of advice, not only from people who know nothing about the business of the agriculturist (to give him his full name) but from what must be almost like an army of men who are supposed to know something? We get books and circulars and great gobs of advice all free, with the exception of the taxes we pay to keep these advisers in their jobs.

Of course there is a catch in it; there mostly is in free advice. These fellows find so many jobs the farmer can do, and tell him the easiest way to do them, that it keeps the whole family on the hump from early morning till late at night. That is our weakness. We all have such unsatisfied appetites for advice, and we all have a weakness that we like to give advice, so I would imagine the men who are in the government employ, handing out advice to farmers must have a very happy time, especially if they think we take it all in, but it unfortunately they must know we don't, for no man could possibly live long enough to read it all, even if it were all interesting.

We All Love Advice.

We seek advice in everything. We have problems of social life, business, financial, home, religious, intellectual, friendship, health, entertainment and no end of things, and there are always new problems cropping up, and there is most always somebody kind enough to give us advice.

The unfortunate thing seems to be hat the advice is not always good. A man consulted a quack doctor about removing wart, the doctor gave him the cure, and advised him how to use it. A few weeks later he sent in his testimonial which stated that "after using two bottles of your most valuable medicine the wart is gone, also my nose." I'm sure most of us have accepted advice that turned out about as well.

Most every man, if he only would admit it, has a nicely engraved bunch of stock certificates, which he bought at an ill-advised time, when he had visions of wealth rolling in on him, and of the time when he'd only work for fun, and it often takes two and sometimes three to make us realize that our nose is gone.

It's a Deeply-Rooted Habit.

But the habit of taking advice is deeply rooted in us all. In our earliest childhood it is ingrained in us—our politics, religion—and moral standards are largely acquired, and if you don't believe it, try voting for the party that has the opposite policies to the one in which you were brought up to believe was right.

We may call ourselves progressive or independent, but deep down in us the advice of former years crops up. We all pass through a time when we feel we won't take advice from anybody, not even dad and mother. We wonder how they ever get along at all, and as we grow older it gradually dawns on us that they do know some things, and by the time we are really facing life we wonder how we could ever get along without their advice.

Most everybody gives advice which he has no notion of taking himself, like a bald-headed barber advising a man to use hair restorer, or the man who says, do as I say but not as I do. And did you ever notice how hurt some people are when we don't take their advice? It sometimes causes fights at election time, but I guess your advice to me will be "whoa."

To the Editor

Liberalism Needed.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir.—The recent vote shows Ontario still Conservative, i.e., Conservative, but not still.

The tariff question, featured as it was in only a general way, can hardly be credited with such vote-getting charms, particularly when it has been a political football for years, and also when it was a thing Mr. Meighen carefully avoided when he was in power.

The U.F.O. and the prohibition question split the Ontario Reform party to an extent with which the federal Liberal machine could not cope.

Throughout their existence Liberals have had to take the affirmative side of their cause and prove their case conclusively ever since they questioned the divine right of kings.

Liberalism may at times be a Jonah which the Conservative whale completely swallows, but there is ample justification for Liberalism,—no one ever heard of a Jonah that stayed down. Jonah has another advantage, he gets all the sympathy, for it is not written where anyone sheds pity on a whale.

All Canada, Ontario particularly, needs a strong Liberal organization in each riding, capable and competent to advertise Liberalism and its history. Then, if at election, the results are as we find them today, we can amuse ourselves at least with this question: If it be true, vox populi, vox dei, then what are they up there, Grit or Tory?

November 7. LA SALETTE.

Buying Potatoes.

Editor of The Advertiser:

Sir.—I was at the market on Saturday, and among other things, wanted to get potatoes. I inquired of a farmer there if he had any, and he told me he was not selling any this week. Upon further questioning he told me the reason was that the price was on the way up, and he expected that in a short time he would be able to get more for what he had. This struck me as funny, because it is the one thing the farmers are always complaining about themselves, that people in the cities are banding together to hold up prices, and yet this man was doing exactly the very thing.

Mrs. Knowall took a great interest in the doings of all the neighbors. It was a great day for her when a new arrival came to the house on the opposite side of the street, and she watched with interest as the furniture was removed from the van and carried into the house.

"Well," said her husband, when he returned from business in the evening, "have you found out anything about the social standing of the new folks across the street?"

"Not yet," was the reply. "They have no car.

"No?"

"Yes, and they have no pom, no phonograph, no radio, and not even a grand piano. I can't imagine what they have got."

"Humph!" remarked friend husband, sardonically. "Perhaps they have a bank account.

"YES" IN FOUR WORDS.

A young man in Barrington, Mass., couldn't get up courage enough to pop the question to his girl, so he sent his offer by mail. He got a postal card in reply, briefly saying: "Fetch on your preacher."

ONE BIG RAIL-ALLIANCE MOVE HALTED BY NATIONAL UNION

Special to The Advertiser.

London, Nov. 9.—Plans for forming all the leading trade unions into one big industrial alliance, with the power of calling a general strike, have been checked by the opposition of the National Union of Railwaymen.

It is clearly recognized that the railwaymen occupy the strongest strategic position for striking purposes. Other industries may stop work for wages without exercising any pressure upon the government, but a railway stoppage causes an immediate and national standstill. The majority of the engineer drivers, however, are not in the National Union of Railwaymen, but in another union which is strongly attached to the industrial alliance, and it may be considered that this union is sufficiently strong to make a railway strike effective.

A great many union leaders think that the alliance would, in any case, be too large to function.

It is absurd to suppose that millions of workers would bring upon themselves and their country the catastrophe of a general strike simply at the call of a committee of leaders. If any issue arise which could justify the calling of a general strike, such a strike would take place spontaneously under the leadership of the general council of trade unions, and there would be no need for the laborite machinery of the industrial alliance.

RIVER TRAFFIC SURVEY IS NEAR COMPLETION

C. N. R. Engineer Studies Detroit-Windsor Bridge Possibilities.

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Windsor, Nov. 9.—The independent survey of the cross-river transportation situation is rapidly nearly completion, under the direction of Col. C. N. Monserrat of Montreal, and a report will be forthcoming tomorrow or Wednesday, according to an announcement by Wallace R. Campbell, vice-president and treasurer of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, chairman of the special bridge committee.

Col. Monseratt, who is consulting engineer of the Canadian National Railways, was retained by the committee to conduct a special survey and consider plans for the contemplated Detroit-Windsor bridge as presented by Joseph Bower of New York. He is expected to arrive here within the next day or two.

The special bridge committee, which represents all the border municipalities, proposed a vote on the bridge question at the coming municipal elections, and the mayors of Sandwich, Riverside and Ford already have predicted sweeping majorities for the proposition.

POLICEMAN KILLS SELF AS SHOTGUN EXPLODES

Detroit Officer Accidentally Shoots Himself While About To Question Negro.

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, Nov. 9.—A policeman accidentally shot and killed himself with his shotgun Sunday, as he was leaving his scout car to question a negro at Illinois and Orleans streets.

Patrolman Herman M. Jolly, 25 years old, with Patrolman Berry, saw Robert Cook, the negro, standing on the corner.

Berry leaped out to question the man and Jolly followed. Two shotguns were leaning against the front seat. In his haste Jolly knocked one of the guns to the floor. The full charge went into his head. He was no more than two feet from the muzzle.

Patrolman Berry rushed with his partner to the Receiving hospital, where Jolly died a few minutes later. The negro and policeman said they were not looking when the gun went off, and could not explain the accident.

DUTCH ANDERSON, CRIMINAL, DIED ALMOST A PAUPER

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, Nov. 9.—Dutch Anderson had $120 when Detective Hammond killed him at Muskegon last week. That was all he saved through 15 year of law defiance and violence so spectacular as to place him in the forefront of his terrible trade.

The story ran that he had amassed a fortune. Like other tales that tend to glorify the outlaw, it proved to be a legend. "Crime doesn't pay" is a trite saying, and the career of Anderson adds another proof that it is not mistaken.

"Not a criminal in the last half century has made a dollar out of his stealings," said a federal operator. "They all die poor, some of them on the gallows, many in the poorhouse, most of them in jail. It doesn't pay."

YORK COUNTY TRIO WIN DOHERTY CUP IN STOCK-JUDGING

Twenty-Seven Counties Have Teams in Contest at Guelph Fair.

MANY AT EXHIBIT

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Guelph, Nov. 9.—The 42nd annual Ontario provincial winter fair opened under auspicious circumstances today, the attendance being large despite the fact that there was a counter attraction in the Guelph cross-country run and Road Race association meet, which drew an attendance of several thousand during the day.

The judging of livestock got under way in the arena tonight, when several classes of Herefords, Ayrshires, Holsteins and Aberdeen Angus cattle and Percheron horses were placed. Manitoba, which is largely represented both in cattle and horse classes, captured the purple ribbon for the best Hereford junior bull calf, Masquerade Fairfax, owned by Hysop & Son, Killarney, carrying off the award, Braedale, a chunky beast, shown by McNeill & McNeill, Dutton, Ontario, was reserve champion. The animals shown in the opening night's classes were an excellent lot, and the judges had their work cut out for them in making some of the placings.

Capture Cup.

York county stock-judging team walked away with the inter-county judging competition championship for 1925. Incidentally the victors take possession of the Doherty cup, which goes to the team winning the highest number of points three times at the provincial show.

The contest opened in the arena in the morning and continued all day, with 27 counties represented in the contest and four others from the Ontario agricultural college competing in a students' judging event. The York team, which was coached by R. J. Rogers and H. K. McCharles, was composed of Donald Petch of Newmarket, Clarence Graham of Richmond Hill and Fraser Gee, Victoria Square. The winners scored 2,276 points out of a possible 3,000. Peel county was second with a score of 2,173, Perth third with 2,120, and Wellington fourth with 2,098. The York boys were champions in 1921 and 1922, while Wellington won in 1923 and 1924.

As a win for either meant possession of the Doherty trophy, the rivalry was very keen, and the competition created much more interest than in former years. Petch of the winning team was high man in the judging, with 857 points out of a possible 1,000. Middlesex was sixth with 2,008 points. In the Day trophy inter-year competition, fourth year O. A. C. came first with 4,977 points out of a possible 6,500; third year was second, second year third, and first year fourth.

MITCHELL'S DEFENCE MAKES GOOD HEADWAY

Only Overruled Once in Yesterday's Testimony—Incompetency Charges Continue.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—Another bombardment of the administration's aviation policies, accompanied by the lowering of bars to admit testimony intended to justify Col. William Mitchell's previously published attacks, marked the opening of his defence yesterday before the general court-martial trying him on charges specifying conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline.

From the time the court met until it recessed last night, the defence had its way, being overruled just once, and then on a minor objection. It thrust a 22,000-word statement into the record without opposition, supported the air office's San Antonio declaration that the war and navy departments were incompetent, criminally negligent and almost treasonable in their conduct of the national defence, and put the first of its witnesses on the stand. The latter were permitted to testify on air service controversy issues.

CONDUCTOR REWARDED FOR RETURNING JEWELS

Special to The Advertiser.

New York, Nov. 9—Two years ago James Andrew Fuery, a junior bacteriologist at Ellis Island, wearied of watching "bugs" under a microscope, and got a job as conductor on a Fifth avenue bus.

Soon after a well-dressed woman left his bus Thursday, Fuery found a small leather bag on an inside seat. He gasped when the bag revealed diamonds glittering in rings, a bracelet and a wrist-watch. At the end of his run he turned the bag in. The company found its owner was Mrs. Peter Van Vlanderen, wife of a textile manufacturer of Patterson, N. J., who said the jewelry was worth $10,000.

Now she has sent Fuery a check for $500.

ORIGINAL ARMISTICE CARNIVAL RE-ENACTED IN TILLSONBURG

Public Thanksgiving Service in Morning Begins Notable Day For Town.

CHILDREN LEAD

"Mad Parade" in Afternoon Creates Carnival Spirit in Which All Join.

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Tillsonburg, Nov. 9.—"It is a good thing to leave landmarks in the lives of children, and today we wove together those natural play instincts of the child, and an opportunity of impressing on them the importance of peace," commented Arthur C. Trusler, principal of Tillsonburg's public school, and originator of the great peace celebration held here today. While the celebration was intended primarily for the children, the whole town joined, and the streets were lined with cars that brought thousands from adjacent points.

Special Service.

While the carnival spirit predominated in the afternoon and evening, a sacred service of praise and thanksgiving opened the day. Promptly at 9:30 over 500 school children, carrying flags and banners, who had gathered at the school, marched to the public square, where they were joined by hundreds of citizens anxious to join in the service. The parade was led by the Brantford Salvation army band of 36 pieces, which provided the music for the whole day.

At the square addresses were given by prominent citizens, and all the clergy participated in the service. Rev. W. H. Dunbar, of St. John's church, presided. Capt. Bowers of the Salvation army, led in prayer. Rev. G. C. Mitchell and Rev. Albert Carr gave addresses. The community singing of hymns, suitable to the occasion, was particularly inspiring, and was led by Pastor Fred Emmons of the Gospel Tabernacle.

The speakers stressed the fact that though the children were celebrating an armistice in the war of nations, the war for righteousness, and the fight against those things which abase a nation, never ceased. They exhorted the children to carry the spirit, which had made the celebration possible, into their daily lives, and reminded them that the best mode of thanksgiving was to lead a life worthy of themselves, and one which would leave its impress upon their community and their country. A note of pride that Tillsonburg was the town to give the whole nation leadership in a proper celebration of such a great day, was also sounded.

Patriotic Parade.

At 10:30 the children again assembled at the school for a patriotic parade. Many of the scholars were dressed in fanciful costumes, and almost every child carried a flag. Some twelve floats, beautifully decorated, were also in the parade. Led again by the Salvation army band, now playing martial airs, the parade went to the square for another series of addresses. This time the note of patriotism was foremost. Mayor Geo. Collier presided. Addresses were given by J. VanLoon, chairman of the public school board; R. A. Patterson, school inspector for South Oxford, and Dr. R. E. Weston.

The chief speaker here was Dr. R. W. Rankin, president of the Lions' club, the members of which gave considerable assistance in directing the celebration. He minded the children that they were commemorating a great event in the life of the empire, and told them if a man lost his memory he became a derelict. The same was true of a nation, he declared, and told the children to always strive to keep alive memories of Armistice day. He hoped this celebration would be a landmark in their lives.

At 11 o'clock the assemblage observed two minutes silence with bowed heads. The bell of the school tolled, while from the other end of the town came the sounds of another bell tolling, as if in echo.

At 1:30 the celebration re-commenced with the distribution of more than 1,000 gas-filled balloons by the Lions club. The merchants of the town provided prize numbers for certain of the balloons to lend interest to the chase.

The "Mad" Parade.

Promptly at 2:30 the chief fun feature of the day got underway. The mad parade was even "madder" than its title would indicate. Every child in town was there, and children from far off China vied with miniature "Charlie Chaplins" for a place in the parade. Father Time was there, too, in the person of little Marjorie Watts, to lend an air of dignity to the parade. Hilarity, harmony in discord, comedy, surprises and all sorts of unexpected innovations, helped the parade to be a real success. The Oddfellows' clown band, a maximum of noise with a minimum of harmony, helped things along. Candy and popcorn donated by the merchants of the town were lavishly distributed amongst the children. The rest of the afternoon was given over to pure carnival, with everybody indulging their love for fun.

Evening Concert.

In the evening while the children were still making merry in the streets, the band of the Brantford Salvation army gave a concert in the White Star theatre. The theatre was filled. During the intermission, Mima Dennis, selected by the pupils of the public school for the honor, gave a speech. Patriotism was her theme, and she did full justice to her subject.

The remarkable fact of the whole day was that the celebration was spontaneous. There were no committees to organize parades nor to arrange decorations. In a way it was a replica of the original Armistice celebration; everybody in town joined in, without urging. Everybody in town imagined himself or herself master of ceremonies, and proceeded to do their best in that position.

The idea was first given to the children of the public school by the principal, Arthur C. Trusler. From there it went into the homes and bore fruit. Mr. Trusler was highly complimented for originating the idea.

Londoners Holds Office In Christian Endeavor Union

Rev. J. H. Versey Elected a Pastoral Councillor of Ontario Body at Kitchener Convention.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kitchener, Nov. 10. — Important changes in the constitution of the Ontario Christian Endeavor union were decided on at the annual convention here yesterday when the report of the constitution committee was unanimously adopted as presented. One feature is the provision for an advisory council of experienced businessmen, who are to study the annual budget of the society and make any suggestions they think advisable. This step is considered necessary in view of the expansion of the work undertaken by the organization, which is assuming larger proportions every year and which naturally requires more funds. The second new feature is the providing of a general chairman in connection with graded Christian endeavor work, who will co-operate with the junior, intermediate and senior superintendents.

President E. G. Taylor of Toronto, in referring to the success that the younger members of the church have had in the past, said that they had handled the finances remarkably well, despite lack of experience in business. However, as the work of the organization had to go forward on a larger scale from year to year, a growing budget had to be assured. For this reason it had been thought advisable to ask some experienced businessmen and former workers of the Christian Endeavor association to form an advisory council to assist the young men and women and to check the budget.

Campaign to Raise Funds.

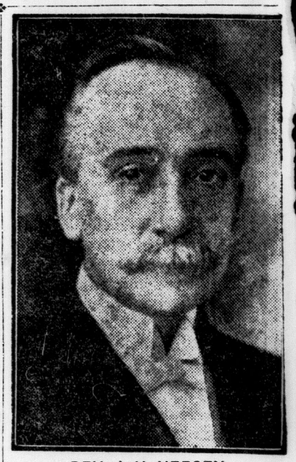

A campaign to raise $5,300, the amount required according to the budget submitted to the convention, was started following brief addresses by Carlton Sherwood of Buffalo and A. Russel Hewetson of Brampton. Several contributions received from individuals ranged from $300 to $100, and many smaller amounts were also promised by both members of the organization and the respective societies represented at the meeting.

This noon a Thanksgiving banquet was held at the Y. M. C. A., when Robert H. Treneer of Kingston spoke on "How About You," and at which Dr. Daniel A. Poling, pastor of Marble Collegiate church, New York City, president of the United society of Christian Endeavor, brought greetings. The latter also addressed a mass meeting at the closing sitting, when he spoke on "What Is Success?"

In the afternoon, Rev. H. C. Priest, general secretary, Toronto, addressed the convention, speaking on the missionary education movement. Dr. Daniel also spoke, his subject being the need of a spiritual awakening in the church rather than organization. Dr. Poling urged every young man to be his best, to do his bit, and to take as his motto: "I will serve others."

Officers Elected.

The officers for the year are as follows: President, E. G. Taylor, Toronto; president associate, Miss Hannah MacBean, Toronto; first vice-president, Mac Veale, Kingston; second vice-president, Ray Horn, Hamilton; recording secretary, Miss Vera Kitching, Kitchener; treasurer, Paul Wishart, Toronto; departmental superintendents, Quiet Hour, Miss Myrtle Sargent, Toronto; stewardship, Miss Ada Mistele Rodney; missionary, Miss Grace Versey, London; recreation, A. E. Garwood, Sarnia; publicity, Gordon McCulloch, Hamilton; citizenship, H. D. Huber, Kitchener; progressive and expert, Miss Alda Van Mere, Hamilton; editor Herald, R. H. Treneer, Kingston; committee on graded Christian Endeavor, chairman, Miss Ethel McCulloch, Toronto; secretary, J. C. Cotterell, Toronto; senior superintendent, Miss Aileen Ratz, Elmira; intermediate superintendent, Miss Etta Lewis, Toronto; junior superintendent, Miss Hilda Hamel, Waterloo; pastoral councillors, Rev. W. A. MacTaggart, Toronto; Rev. W. H. Barraclough, Kitchener; Rev. W. H. Normanvin, Hamilton; Rev. J. H. Versey, London; Rev. C. E. Fockin, Keswick; Rev. J. A. Wilson, Cayuga; Rev. James Faulds, Cornwall; Rev. M. G. Gell, Kitchener, and Rev. H. Perry, Newmarket.

REV. J. H. VERSEY, pastor of the Church of Christ Disciples, who was elected a councillor of the Ontario Christian Endeavor union at Kitchener convention.

SAD STATE OF GERMAN WORKER IS TOLD HERE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—American workers are at least twice as much better off than German workers, according to Franz Wendel and Fritz Tarnow of Berlin, German delegates to the recent congress of the American Federation of Labor. They are here to confer with Tom Moore, president of the trades and labor congress of Canada.

In comparing the conditions of workers in the United States and in Germany, Mr. Wandel stated he did no know a single German worker or trade union leader, who like so many American workers possessed an automobile or a telephone in his home. As for pay, he remarked that the American worker gets four times as much wages as his German comrade.

In his opinion, taking living conditions and pay into consideration, American workers were twice as much better off than the German workers. The two delegates leave tomorrow for New York and will leave for Germany on Nov. 17.

German Ambassador Drinks From English Loving Cup

CHEER CHAMBERLAIN

Brilliant Company of World Diplomats Attends Historic Banquet.

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 9.—The ancient ceremonies attending the induction of London's new lord mayor, including a long, symbolic procession through the streets, which from time immemorial has been a feast for the eyes, were carried out today in wintry but bright, sunny weather, and attracted the customary great crowds.

The new lord mayor, Sir William Robert Fryke, is 78 years old, but is still so sprightly that he is referred to by the city recorder in his speech as "like Peter Pan."

The procession itself was on this occasion a sort of miniature Wembley exhibition wheels—a pageant of empire trade. The feature was Australia's giant plum-pudding, guarded by a kangaroo and a nodding cow, with six white horses driven by Father Christmas with a bobbed beard.

Distinguished Audience.

A distinguished audience, including the American ambassador, representatives of other nations and prominent British notables, was aroused to enthusiasm when Mr. Chamberlain, foreign secretary of the empire but a few years ago at deadly grips with Germany, drank from a huge loving cup and then handed it with a gesture of frankness and courtesy to the German ambassador, who then turned to him and pledged him.

Both men seemed profoundly touched by the incident.

There was a hint of Locarno in another Franco-German gesture, the French ambassador, M. Flueriu, making it a point of specially greeting the German ambassador, Dr. St. Hamer, and chatting with him for several minutes at the reception preceding the banquet.

In passing the loving cup, Mrs. Baldwin on the one side, and Austen Chamberlain on the other, drank with Dr. St. Hamer. After the royal toasts were honored, Mr. Chamberlain toasted "The Ambassadors and Ministers."

Conclude With Banquet.

The ceremonies culminated with the historic Guild Hall banquet, with its great baron of beef and turtle soup, its city trumpeters to welcome the important guests, and other ancient rites of London's city father.

The banquet is a traditional occasion for political oratory, and there was a brilliant company of ministers of the crown, diplomatic representatives and prominent men in all walks of life. There was a hint of Locarno in another Franco-German gesture, the French ambassador, M. Fleuriau, making it a point of specially greeting the German ambassador, Dr. St. Hamer, and chatting with him for several minutes at the reception preceding the banquet.

Among the guests were the United States, Spanish, Portuguese and Brazilian ambassadors. Admiral Lord Beatty, the archbishop of Canterbury and Dean Inge. In passing the loving cup, Mrs. (Mistress) Baldwin, on the one side, and Austen Chamberlain on the other, drank with Dr. St. Hamer. After the royal toasts were honored, Mr. Chamberlain toasted "the Ambassadors and Ministers."

Tells Locarno Events.

Expressing the belief that peace prospects were better than a year ago, the foreign secretary devoted himself to the events at Locarno. He was convinced that what was done there responded to the conscious need of the whole world and would be ratified by every country, for, he added, "no statesman would dare assume the responsibility before history of dashing from our lips the cup of hope that Locarno has presented, and no nation dare face the obloquy which would follow denial to the world in the hour of its greatest need and its deepest and profoundest hope."

Mr. Chamberlain continued: "But it is not the written treaties of Locarno which alone will work the changes we desire. It is the spirit of Locarno that the world needs and must cherish.

"My lord mayor, thanks to your hospitality, I have drunk tonight a loving cup with the German ambassador. What he and I have done this evening may our nations do tomorrow. We will work to the spirit of Locarno that the peace of our world may be kept and civilization recover from its wounds."

Hopes for Good Will.

Mr. Chamberlain concluded with the hope that the same spirit of mutual good-will would hover over the treaty powers' conference at Peking, hinging new fellowship between the east and the west. He coupled the toast with the name of Senor Merry del Val, the Spanish ambassador, dean of the diplomatic corps, whom he described as "the representative of a sovereign closely allied with our royal house, well known and admitted in our country, and of a nation with a great history and a great future."

AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN,
British foreign secretary, who was hailed "hero of the banquet" by Premier Baldwin at the historic feast of the lord mayor of London yesterday. Chamberlain was given a rousing reception when he told of the recent Locarno peace conference.

The Spanish ambassador, responding, paid high tribute to the city of London, which, he said, "amid all storms, political and other, stands serene and immovable a pledge to humanity of all most sacred and precious in life, a guarantor and trustee of peace."

He paid high tribute also to Mr. Chamberlain's accomplishment at Locarno. It was not only at Locarno that Great Britain evidenced her will for peace, but she had sent the Prince of Wales half around the world as a messenger of peace, who had journeyed indefatigably in many countries and among many races, bearing in the folds of his mantle that "pax Britannica" founded less on force than on the power of justice.

Children's Colds

Are quickly, pleasantly relieved by Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

If children's colds are got rid of promptly there will be less tendency to pneumonia and consumption in later life. It is the neglected, hanging-on cold that weakens the lungs and develops into serious trouble.

No treatment for coughs and colds was ever so popular with the children as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It is so pleasant to the taste, so delightfully soothing and healing and affords relief so quickly that children soon turn to it instinctively when choked up with a cold or annoyed by coughing.

It is mother's favorite treatment for croup and bronchitis, for she knows it will bring relief when the midnight coughing spasms set in. It is wise to always have a bottle at hand for prompt use in emergency.

TEAMSTER'S WIFE SUES FOR ALIMONY

Cleveland. Mr. Stinchcombe had promised her before marriage that he would provide for her two children until they could take care of themselves.

Witness said they all lived at 74 Rectory street after marriage until April, 1923, when her husband refused to povide any further for her boys, and she left him, returning three months later, and leaving again for good in April of this year.

"For the first month he was perfectly lovely and after that abused me terribly," said Mrs. Stinchcombe. "He neglected me and called me vile names continually."

Witness declared her husband left the house on the night of Feb. 22, 1923, stayed out late, and told her next morning he had married the wrong woman. Mrs. Stinchcombe stated that when he refused to keep her children, she rented two rooms in Dobinson hall, her sister paying the rent for a month. She had a nervous breakdown and was sick at her sister's house for two weeks. Her sister was married to Stinchombe's brother William, but was not living in London now."

"I gave up my rooms when my husband asked me to come back," said witness. "That was in July and we lived peacefully for three days. Then a woman came between us. She called him up three times and he made an engagement to meet her at Springbank."

"It's not necessary to mention her name just now," said his lordship.

Called As Witness.

"Shes been called as a witness anyway," informed Mr. Winnett.

Questioned by his lordship, witness said she knew who the woman was because she recognized her voice over the phone.

"My husband didn't keep the appointment and the next night she called up and wanted to know why," continued witness. "I asked her what she wanted with my husband and she told me that if I wanted to save trouble he had better meet her. I told her she would have to see him at his residence, which she did the next night.

"I mean that she came to the house, but my husband, though she was on the premises, wouldn't meet her. She tried to clear herself of any blame of coming between us.

"After she went, Mr. Stinchcombe came in and said, 'Now you see how I treat you. After this you'll take just what you get.'"

Like a Servant.

"He treated me just as if I were a servant in his house," declared witness. "You have to treat servants very well if you want to keep them," observed his lordship, amid a titter from the interested spectators.

Continuing, witness said she had to get her husband's breakfast every morning at 4:30, and often helped him with the stable work. She took care of the horses on Sundays when her husband was absent.

Stinchcombe treated her eldest boy in a mean manner, witness said, and wouldn't buy him anything.

"Once he threw a baseball bat at him, narrowly missing his head," stated Mrs. Stinchcombe. "After that I sent him to Cleveland."

Mrs. Stinchcombe was still on the stand when court adjourned for lunch. The case is continuing this afternoon.

HASHEESH GROWN IN GOTHAM PARKS

HARVESTED AT NIGHT

Seeds From Which Narcotic Is Derived Came From Mexico, Says Prisoner.

New York, Nov. 10.—That a drug ring actually has under cultivation good-sized patches of public park property and private woodlands in the city of New York and its environs and is growing the outlawed narcotic hasheesh was the amazing story told yesterday by a Mexican boy, who was sentenced to prison after having been arrested with a quantity of the drug in his possession.

Some time ago, the boy told investigators, a group of Mexicans came to New York with the seeds of the cannabis indica, from which hasheesh is derived, and secretly planted plots of it in Astoria, Queens, along the Boston Post road in Westcheste county, and in various secluded spots in Central, Bronx, Van Cortlandt and Prospect parks. Tucked away in obscure corners, it escaped notice and grew to maturity. It was then clandestinely harvested at night, prepared for the illicit drug market and disposed of at immense profit.

Room Full of Dope.

The prisoner, Andres Huerta, who gave his age as 24 and his address as the Seamen's Church Institute, 25 South street, had a grip full of the dried leaves in his room, sufficient for 10,000 cigarettes of the drug. He was selling them for 25 cents to $1 a smoke, and expected to realize from $2,500 to $10,000 on his stock in short order. It is understood that he was only one of the peddlers that the ring had out.

Huerta, who was sentenced to an indeterminate term in prison by Justices McInerny, Herbert and Edwards in special sessions for unlawful possession of the drug, told Jacob Lichter, probation officer, that his stock came from a patch in Astoria, and that he knew that tons of the plant were being cultivated there.

Hunting Gardens.

Dr. Carleton Simon, special deputy police commissioner in charge of the narcotic squad, said last night that he had detectives out searching for the hasheesh gardens and as soon as they were found they would be destroyed by the health department.

Dr. Simon had investigators busy since Oct. 24, he declared, when Louis Rameriz, of the narcotic squad, caught Huerta offering a hasheesh smoke to a man in Jeanette park, opposite the seamen's institute.

A year and a half ago police found a patch of the plant growing in Battery park. How it got there and who had been plucking its leaves at night never was discovered. It was uprooted by the health department.

It was then reported that similar plots had been discovered growing wild, it was supposed, on the meadows in New Jersey and on stretches of land in Westchester county. The police now believe these plots to have been planted by the same drug ring.

No Law Against It.

Cannabis indica, explained Dr. Simon, is also known as Indian hemp, and in Mexico and the southwestern states of this country where it has been more widely used, it is called marahuana. The American variety, because of differences in soil, is weaker than the Indian grown plant. Although it is the oldest of all habit-forming narcotic drugs, its cultivation and sale, says Dr. Simon, are not prohibited by the federal Harrison drug act. Except for medicinal purposes, however, its distribution is forbidden by ordinance in this city and some other states and localities such as Massachusetts, California, and Dallas.

"That it is a great danger," commented Dr. Simon, "is fully recognized by the Mexican government, which has legislated against it, but strangely enough, not by our own. In the Mexican underworld and throughout our southwest the dried cannabis indica leaves are used in the form of cigarettes, a few drafts of which will stupefy the unaccustomed. It produces a feeling of lightness and puts the addict into a sort of ecstacy. This is followed by hallucinations and then comes a sleep of a dozen hours. After this the hasheesh user awakes with a dreadful headache, nausea and a desire for more of the drug.

"A variety of effects follow each other rapidly then, so rapidly, indeed, as to produce a sense of great prolongation of time. Ten minutes, for instance, will seem to the addict like a long hour filled with agreeable sensations. It produces a sort of double consciousness, and gives small spaces the semblance of tremendous proportions. The habit of taking this drug is very quickly formed and it is specially productive of criminal tendencies. Confusion of thought and abnormal inclinations appear, ultimately driving its users insane."

SLINK VEAL DESTROYED BY HEALTH INSPECTOR

Slink veal was found being offered for sale in a local butcher shop the latter part of the past week by Inspector Richard Sanders of the department of public health, accompanied by Veterinary Inspector W. F. Tamblyn. The questionable meat was promptly confiscated and destroyed by pouring coal oil over it.

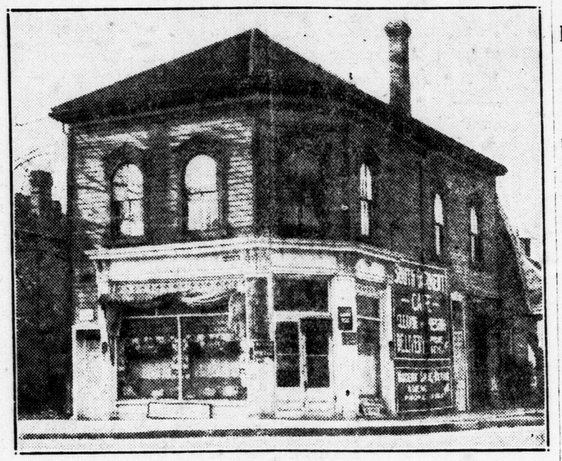

Proceedings against both the butcher and the producer from whose farm the veal was supplied are under consideration and police court cases may result, Mr. Sanders stated this morning.

Corner Store Under Dispute Was Once City Political Hive

Building at Corner of Wortley and Bruce, Soon To Be Altered For Filling Station, Has History That Goes Back to the Victoria Disaster.

Now another landmark is passing and in its passing there comes back to the minds of the "old-timers" of the city many an interesting reminiscence of the closing days of the 19th century when London was just emerging from its swaddling clothes and was about to don the mantle of a growing city.

This landmark is the structure that was once known as Trebilcock's Hall at the corner of Wortley road and Bruce street, which will soon be altered for the erection og a filling station. For many years it housed the London South Liberal association, the body which was one of the main factors in the continued success of Hon. C. S. Hyman at the polls.

The building was sold to George Trebilcock in 1881 by a family named Smith, who had operated a store there, but who were unable to continue when a son and a daughter were drowned in the Victoria disaster of that year.

Grocery For 20 Years.

For the next 20 years Mr. Trebilcock conducted a grocery and general store there, the building being sold on his death to John Goodge.

London South at that time was strongly Liberal and as the organization grew in strength and numbers the need of some regular meeting became pronounced. Mr. Trebilcock, along with Edward Parnell, Sen., F. B. Leys, John Marshall, and Daniel Macfie, all now deceased, and John Macpherson, a local barrister, were the leaders in the movement which resulted in Trebilcock's hall becoming the headquarters of the association.

The South London Liberal association first became a definite body about 1881, when meetings were held in a tiny cottage next to the present Bruce street fire hall. As the need for more room became greater they then moved to the site of the present south end postoffice at Craig and Wortley and later located in the Trebilcock hall, where they carried on with marked success until the erection of Hyman hall, when their activities were transferred to the downtown building.

Becomes Part of City.

It was during this time that South London became part of the city proper. Up until 1890 all land south of the river was part of Westminster township, but in this year it was annexed to the city.

When the Trebilcock family first located at Wortley and Bruce, the only means of transportation was a horse-drawn bus, which ran from Hunter's livery stable to the market on an hourly schedule. At that time the Trebilcock establishment was a busy trading center, and farmers from miles around brought their wheat, hay and eggs to exchange for groceries and similar necessities.

And now the structure, between whose walls many a scheme was laid by the political workers of "the good old days," and whose floors often shook from the jollifications consequent upon the more or less consistent Liberal victories of those days will soon be no more. A petition is in circulation, however, to prevent establishment of a gasoline pump at this point.

PETROVA MUST PAY $7,500 FOR STEALING PLAY IDEAS

New York Court Sustains W. H. Roberts, Former British Naval Officer, in Claim That Stage Star Used "The Red Wig" Without Consent—Valentino Drops Into Trial Room.

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 10.—Mme. Olga Petrova, stage and screen star and playwright, yesterday lost the damage suit brought against her in supreme court by William H. Roberts, former British naval officer, who charged her with drawing without his consent upon his play The Red Wig in fashioning her drama The White Peacock.

After deliberating an hour and a half the jury, which for four days had listened to the presentation of testimony, including the dramatic recital by the actress of part of her plays, returned a verdict of $7,500 for the plaintiff. Damages of $35,000 had been asked. Upon motion of Nash Rockwood, counsel for Mme. Petrova, that the verdict be set aside, Justice O'Malley gave both sides ten days in which to file briefs on the motion.

The last hour of the taking of testimony was enlivened by the brief attendance of Rudolph Valentino, screen star. Making a low bow, Valentino kissed the actress' hand.

Valentino was dressed in gray tweeds and reddish tan shoes with gray suede tops and wearing a gold "slave chain" on his right wrist.

Roberts charged that Mme. Petrova purchased an option for one year on his play and rejected it before that time had expired.

MORAL BACKING IS NEED OF PEACE

World-Wide Movement of the Churches To Be Launched Today.

MUST BACK LEAGUE

Associated Press Despatch.

Detroit, Nov. 9.—"Moral backing" for the work already done in the cause of world peace thfough the league of nations, the world court and the treaty of Locarno, is the purpose of a world-wide movement of the churches to be launched here tomorrow.

This announcement was made today at a meeting of 200 clergymen of all the leading denominations, preliminary to the gathering tomorrow of delegates to the world alliance for international friendship through the churches. Speakers who outlined the plan for this world-wide church movement included officers of the alliance and others who have only recently returned from Europe and the east.

"A sense of insecurity among nations caused the world war," Dr. Frederick Lynch, educational secretary of the alliance, said today. "We believe in getting security for the nations in just the same way we have obtained it for individuals—by organizing ourselves into community life. If nations insist upon living by the old barbarous, pagan individualism, they are sure to have war."

The program agreed upon at this conference during the next three days willl affect 28 councils in as many countries.

TWO CHURCHES OPPOSE NEW GASOLINE STATION

Claim Proposed Establishment Wlil Disturb Sunday Life of Community.

Threefold will be the protest lodged with the city council against the consruction of a gasoline filling station at the corner of Wortley road and Bruce street.

Rev. Malcolm McArthur, newly-appointed pastor of Knox church, asked on Sunday that the members of his congregation sign the petition of protest which was being circulated. Members of the Wortley road Baptist church have also signed a petition of their own in equally large numbers.

Though the permit for the station has been approved by the council no work has actually commenced as yet in connection with the construction of the station.

HAS "HUSK" SOUL, IS DEBATED TODAY

"Mercy Murderer" Loved His Imbecile Child, Daughter Tells Court.

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Littleton, Colo., Nov. 10.—Testimony today in the trial of Dr. Harold E. Blazer, charged with the "mercy" murder of his imbecile daughter Hazel, is centering around the question of whether or not an imbecile may be an automaton without a soul.

Medical and scientific experts resumed their evidence at today's sitting of the court, which was jammed to overflowing with people.

During Monday's session, Dr. Blazer was himself on the stand. He told the jury that he remembered nothing of the poisoning of Hazel and his own attempt at suicide. Alienists expressed their belief that Blazer was insane when he administered the poison to his deformed and suffering daughter, but could not agree as to the specific nature of the insanity.

"I loved her better than any of my other children," testified Dr. Blazer. "She was a mis-shapen mass of pitiable humanity, her frail little body could not withstand the ravages of illness."

Mrs. Frances Bishop, daughter of the physician, corroborated his evidence as to his devotion to Hazel.

Although he was cross-examined mercilessly, the prosecution was unable to shake Blazer's evidence as to his failure to recall the incidents of his daughter's death, and what happened afterwards. He professed to have firm belief in the immortality of the soul and of the commandment, "Thou shalt not kill."

It is believed that the remainder of the evidence will be largely of a technical nature. The trial will be adjourned on Armistice day, and will likely be finished up on Thursday.

but I want to find out. I want to know the whole background of this case.

"I would advise you to look into the situation very carefully. I don't know what steps you have taken to look after your child, but if other children did what your daughter has done, what a terrible state our city would be in."

Judge Mott inquired into the birthplace of the girl and both her parents. He also asked them how long she had gone to school, and what progress she had made.

He warned them that it was a serious charge. The little girl admitted taking the baby and broke down and wept.

"Yes, I took it," she admitted to the judge.

MRS. B. H. HART SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Women to Know How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cornwall, Ont.—"I am now giving your medicine a fair trial and it surely is doing me good and I am going to keep on taking it. I used to feel so tired in the morning that I didn't want to get up, but that feeling is leaving me now. I also sleep better and feel more like working. For seven or eight years I have had headaches, tired feelings, pains in my back and across my body. I read letters in the newspapers saying what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done others. My husband says I quit too soon, but I am not going to stop taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine until I am better and haven't an ache or a pain. Isn't that the right way? I have great faith in your medicines. They must be good when those who take them speak so highly of them. I am recommending them to my friends and I will gladly answer letters from women asking about them."—Mrs. B. H. Hart, Box 1081, Cornwall, Ont.

Mrs. Hart is willing to answer letters from sick women asking about the Vegetable Compound.

HOPE PINCHOT WILL END COAL STRIKE

Associated Press Despatch.

Philadelphia, Nov. 10.—A determination to bring about a renewal of the wage conferences between operators and miners was seen here today in Governor Pinchot's request to John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers' of America, and Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' wage committee, to meet him separately to discuss the anthracite suspension.

The governor expects to see Mr. Lewis here on Wednesday and Major Inglis in Harrisburg the next day. Mr. Pinchot brought about a settlement of the anthracite controversy two years ago, and many observers of the present situation expressed the opinion that he would make a strong effort at least to bring the two sides together again in the conference room.

Governor Pinchot has been in daily touch with the suspension since the 158,000 miners laid down their tools on Sept. 1. He has conferred several times with Rev. J. J. Curran, rector of St. Mary's Catholic church, Wilkesbarre, who figured prominently in the settlement of previous years coal strikes, and discussed the situation with both Mr. Lewis and Major Inglis in September.

Recently, optimistic statements regarding the end of the suspension were made by both the governor and Father Curran. Interests outside of the anthracite industry affected by the shortage of coal are known to have been active in urging the state executive to take a hand in the situation. After a conference last week with President Lewis, Father Curran said there was hope that the suspension, which today entered upon its eleventh week, would soon be ended.

LONDON RESIDENTS MARRIED IN CITY FIFTY YEARS AGO

W. J. Laskey, Great Grandson of Laura Secord, and Mrs. Laskey Mark Golden Wedding at Their Home on Central Avenue.

An interesting event of recent date was the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Laskey, who, for nearly 60 years, have been residents in this city. Messages of congratulation came from their children and friends, wishing them joy on their golden wedding day.

Fifty years ago a quaint young bride, Miss Grace Louise Guymer, daughter of Mrs. Harriet Guymer of this city, became the bride of W. Y. Laskey at St. James' Presbyterian church, always referred to in those days as the Pepper Box. Rev. Davis Camelon was the officiating clergyman.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Laskey took up residence on Clarence street and have continued to live in London since that time. Both the principals of the occasion had interesting adventures before taking the great adventure, which they have declared many times was the greatest and happiest of all. Mrs. Laskey had crossed the Atlantic with her parents from her birthplace in Norfolk, England, as a small child, and her husband had a whole series of adventures.

Mr. Laskey was born at Lundy's Lane, of United Empire Loyalist stock, being a great-grandson of the beloved Laura Secord. As a youth of 17 years he joined the northern army in the American Civil war and fought under General Thomas; marched in General Sherman's army on the famous march to the sea, and was finally wounded at Nashville, Tenn. Later Mr. Laskey, still thirsting for new experience, joined the American army fighting in Mexico; remained in that country for four years, and was within a short distance of where General Custer was massacred.

When this interesting Canadian finally returned to his own country he settled in London, where he met Miss Guymer and the wedding of 50 years ago resulted.

The union was blessed with a family of 11 children, six sons and five daughters, including W. J. Laskey of Yakima, Wash.; R. M. Laskey of Cleveland, Ohio; C. L. Laskey of Detroit; George Laskey of Cleveland; one son, F. A. Laskey, deceased, and Mrs. Robert Noble of Talbot street; Mrs. H. C. Tull of the Allan apartments; Mrs. D. L. Hoover of Windsor; Mrs. Hiram Stillson, Oxford street, and Mrs. E. J. Dewan, Blackfriars street. There are besides 344 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren in this interesting connection.

Another noteworthy feature of the history of this family is that a daughter, Mrs. Robert Noble, then Miss Pheobe Laskey, is the original of the bust which now marks the grave of Laura Secord. Mrs. Noble was found to be the nearest relative of the heroine who bore strong enough resemblance to make possible the modeling of the figure. The work was done by Miss Peel, formerly of this city, and sister of the famous Paul Peel.

In early life Mr. Laskey was an employee of the Bank of Monteral for 35 years and was recently superannuated. All the members of the family kept the anniversary with Mr. and Mrs. Laskey, and reminiscences were the feature of the gala occasion.

Uncle Wiggily AND THE COPY CAT

By HOWARD R. GARIS.

"Nurse Jane and my wife will hardly believe me when I get back to my hollow stump bungalow, and tell them about the green rain," said Uncle Wiggily to himself. The rabbit gentleman had found a little cave in the side of the hill, and into this hole he jumped to keep from being pelted with the round, green things that were falling in the forest.

"It must be green rain—it can't be anything else unless it's green hail, and that's worse," said Uncle Wiggily, rubbing his pink nose where one of the round, green objects had struck it. "And someone else must be getting pelted by the green rain," went on the rabbit gentleman as he heard the shouts in the woods. "But they seem to like it!" chuckled the bunny, who was no longer afraid, now that he was safe in the shelter of the cave.

For the shouts he heard were:

"Oh, joy! Isn't this fun! Hurray! This is just what I wanted!" and then through the trees came scampering Johnnie Bushytail, the squirrel boy, and behind him was a cat boy.

"Well, I'm glad none of the bad chaps were doing that shouting," said Uncle Wiggily. "But why are you so glad about the green rain, Johnnie?" he asked the squirrel boy.

"Green rain!" chattered Johnnie. "Green rain? Where do you see any green rain?"

And the cat, who was following the squirrel boy, mewed:

"Green rain! Where do you see any green rain?"

"All about us," answered Uncle Wiggily, pointing to the ground, and wondering why the cat repeated what Johnnie said.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Johnnie. "That isn't green rain. Those are green hickory nuts that are falling from the trees!"

"I heard Johnnie the first time," spoke Uncle Wiggily, looking sideways at the pussy lad.

"Don't mind him," whispered Johnnie. "He's a copy cat! He does everything I do and says what I say."

"Um! Quite remarkable!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, and the copy cat did the same thing. Then Mr. Longears looked more closely at the green things on the ground, and, surely enough, they were hickory nuts in their green shells. Hickory nuts grow inside a sort of green envelope, just as do chestnuts, only the hickory nut outer shells have no stickers on them.

"Im glad there are so many hickory nuts!" chattered Johnnie, "for they will be food for us this winter."

"Food for us this winter," repeated the copy cat. Uncle Wiggily was just going to tell the pussy chap it wasn't polite to do this sort of thing when, all of a sudden, through the bushes came jumping the Fuzzy Fox, yowling and growling.

"Oh, dear! Can I be dreaming or do I see Uncle Wiggily!" barked the Fox, and he rubbed his eyes with his paws to get the dust out so he could see better, for he wanted to make no misake.

"He's a copy cat!" whispered Johnnie.

"Oh, dear! Can I be dreaming or do I see Uncle Kiggly?" mewed the copy cat, and he stuck out his paw, with the claws in, only, instead of rubbing his own eyes, the copy cat rubbed the eyes of the Fox! Ha! Ha! And the copy cat rubbed the eyes of the Fox very hard.

"Stop! Stop! You're scratching me!" howled the Fox, and away he ran as fast as he could go, while the copy cat snickered and said, mocking the Fox: "You're scratching me! You're scratching me!"

"Well, copy cats are of some use in this world after all," spoke Uncle Wiggily, and this time the copy cat was polite and didn't repeat. Soon after that he went away.

The rabbit gentleman was helping Johnnie pick up the hickory nuts which he had thought were green rain when, all of a quickness, along the path came running a queer, old monkey gentleman, with a large hack on his back.

"I have them! I have them!" he chattered. "Oh, I have them in my sack!" Uncle Wiggily and Johnnie were quite surprised. They wondered what the monkey had in the bag. And you shall be told tomorrow night—that is if the crabapple tree doesn't pinch the sugar cookie and squeeze out the raisin.

SPINDRIFT

An Adventure of the Great Lakes

By HAROLD TITUS

INSTALMENT 33.

For a long interval after John made that declaration the old man stood watching him silently. Then he asked:

"And then what, John? Even if you can make it, then what?"

The other was watching with practised eye the action of the other tug in the seas, the lurch as she took the waves, the upward swing and twisting roll of her stern as the hills of water flowed under her.

"That's another thing," he said, finally. "I don't know yet. I'll settle that when the time comes. But Janet's there; she needs somebody. I'm the one to go, and getting there is all that bothers me!"

Yes, he was the one to go. Not because of his love for the girl but because of the three aboard the Wanderer, his was the only strength which would serve to combat that of the girl's captor. A struggle was to be taken for granted; nothing else would follow his boarding of that floundering craft.

But he was not thinking of what he would do. He was merely considering how he could put himself in a position that would make it possible for him to meet whatever was to be met aboard that other tug.

Years before, when he went up to take examination for his master's papers, he had had a problem put to him which involved the following situation: A ship, helpless, with no power, is rolling in the trough of the seas. It is impractical to launch small boats. How would the commander of a rescuing ship put men aboard to give aid?

And the answer to that had been simple: He would run up the seas, at right angles to the length of the disabled craft, put his rail against her bow, and the men aboard.

The thing before him now, though, was different from that or any other problem he had ever encountered. This craft he must board tonight was under way; her commander would want, of all things, to keep him off. The seas were tremendous, the darkness absolute. First, he must move without betraying his presence, and second, he must manoeuvre so as to board her over the stern, the only possible place where he could put the Wanderer near enough and yet avoid disaster. At that, the risk of touching and at least betraying his plan was great.

Even then, he could not run directly up to the stern, for his own deck at the bow was not open. Nor could he go outside, cling to the housing and drive through those seas until he could grasp the North Star's rail, because every comber encountered sent enough water rushing over the curving structure to carry him off.

Until then the Wanderer's speed had been no more than a match for that of the craft she followed, but now Goodheart signalled for full speed, put his wheel to port, and swung out and away.

Ezra did not speak. Unconsciously and naturally he had surrendered his ship, his responsibility to this man who, after he had functioned here, must go back to the confinement which the law had prescribed for him. The cap'n was helpless, he had not the imagination necessary to meet this situation. Alone, or with a less alert man beside him, he would have followed Haines and awaited daylight, and now he stood appalled at the determination and the courage of the man he knew to be Carl Garrison.

Away to starboard they swung, rolling frightfully, leaving Haines to the northward, running so until the green of his starboard light was visible. Then the wheel went over sharply and the Wanderer reared as in surprise, shipping tons of water in against the pilot house as she made that sharp alteration in her course.

They stood back, holding well ahead of the green light, driving across Haines' course at forced speed. She shivered in every rib; it seemed as though the stout white oak must give with those tremendous impacts, but the screw beat feverishly, unfalteringly, driving the Wanderer on in a smother of spray.

The other craft became discernible again, once more a gray, pitching blob in the night. The green light went out of their vision. They were bearing straight at her, their bow on the North Star's rail amidships, and it seemed as though they must——

"You'll ram him!" Ezra croaked.

One of Goodheart's hands twitched as though he would let the Wanderer fall off, for it did seem as if collision were inevitable. But the wheel did not move. They did not strike. They slipped past, climbing to the crest of a comber, while the United tug rolled her stern toward the black sky, and not a fathom of water was between the two tugs when their courses crossed.

"Too slow!" grumbled John, as he rang to check the engine and brought her up again. "A man couldn't jump in that sea. I've got to get her close enough to step across in this!"

Another trial: Again the Wanderer rolled away at an angle, staggering, protesting with creaks and groans at the punishment between screw and seas. The green starboard light came into view, but Goodheart held on, going farther away than he had on the first attempt, and when he swung back it was not with the sharp turning he had tried before. He circled slowly about, holding his own, perhaps gaining a bit on Haines with the manoeuvre.

Once more they charged through the tossing water and the blackness. Again they saw the gray, heaving blob which was the runaway tug appear where nothing but the green light had been. Again Goodheart's arm muscles knotted as he held her steady, and for the second time old Ezra cried out that disaster impended. And it did!

That starboard light seemed to go out. Straight at the pilot house where Haines and Janet stood, they swept. The North Star seemed to do no more than crawl, while the Wanderer appeared to be flying straight at her, straight on to ram and sink her and perhaps send themselves to the bottom as well.

But Goodheart knew what he was about. He knew the responsiveness of his tug and when there was less than a length to go and collision seemed inevitable, he let the wheel off with a spin and sprang to the starboard window of the pilot house, pressing his face to the glass.

They swept past with the rails less than a foot apart! A man could have stepped there!

He brought her up and smiled grimly at Ezra.

"That'll do, Cap'n. Can you hit the bull's-eye?"

Until then the old man had been unsteady, hesitant, bewildered by all that had happened in so brief a time, but when the smile faded from John's face, Ezra felt new responsibility descend upon him. It was up to him to go through that crazy manoeuvre. No one else was aboard who could handle the wheel, and he had a feeling as though new blood were flowing into his veins. It was a transfusion of strength, of courage, of purpose seeping into him from this younger man, this outcast, this lad who was called a murderer and a convict by other men!

The old cap'n squared his shoulders and stepped to the wheel.

"It's nothing that's ever been done afore," he said, flatly . . "It's something that's got to be done now, I guess. We'll do it, Johnny!"

Goodheart stood beside him while they swung into the seas, regained speed, and again quartered away from the other boat.

He spoke: "Of course, it may not work out. Something may happen. If it does—follow him until morning and—may God bless you! If whatever I have to do gets done, a long blast means all's well and homeward bound. S'long, Cap'n. Good luck!"

So they parted, Goodheart sliding the pilot house door shut behind him.

He found the deck thickly coated with ice and had to cling for support to hold his footing. He had not reckoned on that, and so, as they held off to make that trial again, he slipped and slid back to the engine-room, opened the door on the starboard side and called to McNabb, who was watching his water gauge.

The engineer jumped as though startled.

"Good work, Mac! You're givin' her all she's got. Pass me up a bucket of ashes. Can't take time to talk it over now."

The ashes came up and McNabb, eyes dancing with excitement, called:

"Thanks."

John went forward cautiously, passed around the pilot house, looked out into the night, and shook his head doubtfully. The tug was careening as though she would go over and bear him down beneath her hulk. The froth of a frustrated roller gleamed indistinctly out there, licking in toward the rail, trying to reach the vitals of the craft that had split and mocked it, and water that had mounted the for'd housing roared down on the deck just beyond him.

He could beat that sea! He could beat that lake! He had beaten it on many occasions, but perhaps he was exercising his supremacy for the last time now. The thought swept through him like a heavy, sudden sickness. He could beat the lake, he was willing to risk anything that awaited him on that other tug, but in his mind, deep there in his brain, was the little something which made him a pawn in the hands of fate, which made him a convict instead of a free man.

A convict!

That feeling of despair lasted only a moment. They were swinging back into the seas again, and the sturdy Wanderer shook and shivered as her propeller bit the depths and drove her onward.

John hooked his arm about a stanchion by the lifter and leaned out over the rail. Nothing but the night. Then the flash of that emerald eye, holding a moment, disappearing as a sea tossed up to shut off his view.

He looked upward at the pilot house and could just make out the shadowy figure of the old cap'n. He knew how the old fellow was standing, feet spread, hands gripping the spokes, chin drawn in, eyes unblinking. . .

They boiled on, wind tearing at Goodheart, seas pounding madly at the tug. The gray ghost behind that green light took shape.

The man's heart was racing until it seemed as though its pulse would suffocate him. He drew off his gloves and groped about the lifter for a brail, a short, stout stick used to spread gill nets. He did not know what waited but it was better to go with something more than empty hands. He picked up his bucket of ashes and scattered the gritty flakes along the ice-sheathed rail. Then, buttoning his jacket close, holding his simple weapon in one hand, he mounted to the rail, arm hooked around the upright, and looked ahead.

With other hands than his on the wheel up there he felt sharp misgiving. It was delicate work, involving ships and lives. He wished he might do it all instead of only a part. The green light was half visible; now only a faint reflection against the screen remained. That died in the darkness.

The gray ghost of a ship seemed to be rushing toward them instead of they charging it. It came on with dismaying swiftness. They were closing that distance between the two with a burst of speed such as John had never thought the Wanderer had in her.

He swung far outward to see better and gasped as old Ezra altered his course sharply. The after housing of the North Star appeared to be directly under their bows. It seemed as though the Wanderer never could slip past without ramming the other craft with a crushing impact, but the cap'n was swinging her, swinging her off as she sidled up the sea that the North Star was just then surmounting. The bow would clear the North Star's stern now. In another second Goodheart would be put down at the exact point he had decided on and his heart sank because a trick of the sea had that stern rail which was his objective above him, as high as his breast. Between the tugs was no more than three feet, but a man cannot take off from such footing as was his and leap upward and outward with confidence!

He heard the rattle of the steering gear even above that mad hubbub. He felt the Wanderer swing up again—up, closer.

And then water boiled about his feet, reaching up his legs as the broken crest of a wave came aboard. The North Star had left that crest behind; that rail was even with his feet now, perhaps below him.

He jumped!

It was a crazy, floundering leap, and as soon as he went off balance he felt a chill sweep over him, as decided in effect as would have resulted from a plunge into water. His feet, despite his care, had slipped as he took off. He was not jumping; he was falling! Falling outward—downward.

And then his forearms struck emartly on the stern rail of Haines' tug his fingers clasped beneath the inner edge. He swung down, feet dragging in the water, his hip crashed into the counter, and for a moment he held there, swinging with the roll of the boat, dangling over eternity!

But he worked his left elbow over. He held his hip hard against the counter. He swung one foot up, hooking the heel over the rail, and with a twitch and a gasp rolled up and over and flopped breathless on the deck!

Blackheads Go Quick

By This Simple Method.

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.—Advt.

MILADY USURPS CHILD'S LEGGINGS

Finds New Fad in Johnny's Winter Leg Coverings.

New York, Nov. 9.—Something different. That is what close followers of the styles are constantly agitating for. In response, couturiers have originated a new trimming for coats and dresses. Instead of banding these garments with fur, the latest vogue is to trim them at hem, collar and cuffs with bands of self material. These bands, however, always are in a lighter color. For example, a dark brown dress will be trimmed in light tan or a navy blue costume in royal blue.

It is regarded as a fatal social error for a man to wear a red flannel undershirt. But that isn't a circumstance to the undie the Russian needlewomen in Paris are making for women. The newest lingerie of Russian influence is vivid Bolshevik red. Sometimes these have Pompeian frescoes embroidered athwart them in green gold or orange, while occasionally these figures are replaced by dancing Cossacks or birds in purple and magenta.

The day of overtight gloves and shoes is past. Women nowadays realize that hands should be in proportion to height and weight and seek proportion rather than tininess. Many of the new hand coverings are of suede, which fit snugly but not tight, and which have reversible cuffs which come smartly over the sleeve or are turned back over the wrist. These cuffs are embroidered on both sides in contrasting colors.

It is more profitable for a dress designer to discover a new cape than for an Arctic explorer to do likewise. The latest cape discovered by the former is seen on the cape coats now being worn on the avenue. On some of these the cape forms the sleeves of the coat, and on all the edge of the cape and the collar are heavily banded with fur.

Taking candy from a kid is taboo, but it is all right to take leggings from one. That is what has happened this winter. No sooner did snow and frost make their appearance than out-of-doors women began to don leggings and spats with a zipper fastening exactly similar to those the youngsters will use to coast and snowball in.

WEDDINGS

GREENFIELD—PATTERSON.

Embro, Nov. 9.—A quiet wedding took place last Wednesday at 2 o'clock, when Miss Pearle Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson of West Zorra, became the bride of Mr. George Greenfield, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Greenfield of Cody's corners, Rev. W. P. Lane officiating.

The bride looked charming in a black satin-faced canton gown with scarlet and gold trimmings and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Addie Patterson, who looked pretty in a cocoa tan canton crepe gown and brown hat. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Walter Greenfield.

After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, where they partook of a sumptuous wedding breakfast, the dining-room being prettily decorated. Later the happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes on a motor trip to Toronto, Hamilton, Buffalo and points east, the bride travelling in a tan coat with hat to match. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm on the third line of West Zorra.

McVITTIE—DOUGLAS.

Southampton, Nov. 9.—An interesting wedding was solemnized in Chicago on Saturday, when Miss M. Douglas of that city became the bride of Robert McVittie, prominent businessman of Southampton, reeve of the town and ex-warden of Bruce county. Mr. and Mrs. McVittie will spend their honeymoon in Florida.

FARRAH—RIVERS

St. Thomas, Nov. 9.—A quiet wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Farrah, 29 William street, when Miss Sarah Catherine Rivers of Lawrence station became the bride of Charles Harold Farrah of this city, Rev. J. E. Newnham, pastor of Centre street Baptist church, officiated. After a short wedding trip the young couple will reside at Lawrence station.

BURGUA—FENNACY.

Wallaceburg, Nov. 9.—One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place on Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fennacy, on the Fisher road, Chatham township, when their eldest daughter, Mary Abigail, was united in marriage to Frank H. Burgua, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burgua of Sombra. The bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father, and looked lovely in a canton crepe dress of sand shade, wore a gold bandeau and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The wedding march was played by Miss Catherine Howard of Wallaceburg. Miss Mary Early of Chatham attended as bridesmaid, and wore a pretty dress of blue canton crepe and carried a bouquet of yellow 'mums. Mr. Ernest Smith of the Rev. A. C. Campbell of the First Baptist church, Wallaceburg, and during the signing of the register Miss Hilda Wenige of London sang sweetly, O Promise Me. The house was a bower of beauty with its pink and white floral decorations.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served, which was followed by toasts and several vocal selections. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Burgua left on a short wedding trip and on their return will reside at the groom's farm in Sombra township.

The bride travelled in a suit of brown canton crepe with a separate coat of blue with fox fur. The groom's gift to the bride was a brown leather bag, to the soloist a ring, to the bridesmaid a silver pickle fork, and a pair of cufflinks to the best man.

The ceremony was attended by a number of guests from out of town, and included Mayor and Mrs. G. A. Wenige and family of London, Thomas Scarff of Detroit, Mrs. R. McLean and Mrs. Fred Gonyou of Chatham.

On Saturday, Nov. 7, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sharpe, second line, Sarnia township, when their eldest daughter, Jessie, was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert Haemar of Southampton. Rev. J. J. Mons of Petrolia Presbyterian church officiated, the marriage taking place at 11 o'clock.

While Mrs. Robert Clarke of Pontiac, Mich., played the wedding march, the bride entered on the arm of her father. She was gowned in white crepe and satin, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bride's mother wore a black silk crepe dress with a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses. The house was decorated with mauve and yellow chrysanthemums.

After the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served. The bride's travelling dress was navy blue with a black and gold hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Haemar left on the noon train for Chicago and points west. After their honeymoon they will reside in Southampton.

ALLEN—MOLLARD.

An autumn wedding of much interest to the people of Parkhill, McGillivray and the surrounding community took place on Wednesday, Nov. 4 at 2 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mollard of McGillivray township, when their elder daughter, Cora Bernice, was united in marriage to Mr. Leonard Ambrose Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Allen, also of McGillivray. The bride was attended by Miss Ida I. Whiting of Sarnia and by the Misses Elda Mollard and Vivian Allen, sisters of the bride and groom respectively, who were beautiful little flower girls. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Wesley Allen. Rev. G. W. Rivers, B.A., B.D., of Jubilee United church, Parkhill, was the officiating clergyman, while Miss Laura Pickering presided at the piano, playing the wedding march and wedding music during the signing of the register.

After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was served in the spacious dining-room. Four cousins of the bride acted as assistants. About 80 guests were present, and the numerous and beautiful presents testified to the esteem with which the bride and groom are held in the community in which they live. At about 5 o'clock the bridal couple left, amid showers of confetti and good wishes, on a honeymoon motor trip to Sarnia, Port Huron, Detroit, Windsor, St. Thomas and other points.

QUIGLEY—McGREGOR.

A lovely Thanksgiving wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Noel Mason, Edward street, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when her sister, Miss Kathleen McGregor, daughter of Mrs. Clara McGregor, became the bride of Mr. Russell Quigley, Phm. B., son of Mrs. Isabel Quigley of Wiarton.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of the Wesley United church, before a bank of ferns in the drawing-room, attractive with many autumn flowers. The wedding music was played by Miss Helen Fountain, niece of the bride.

The charming bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her uncle, Mr. George McGregor. Her becoming gown was of palest mauve georgette, fashioned on straight lines with a flare of silver lace; a silver bandeau, silver shoes and silver hose were worn, and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Her only attendant was Miss Marjorie Mason, her little niece, who made a winsome flower girl in a dainty frock of pale blue crepe de chine and carrying a basket of baby 'mums and roses. The pianist was smartly gowned in yellow organdie with corsage of valley lilies.

Following the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served in the prettily-arranged dining-room, Mrs. McGregor, mother of the bride, presided in a becoming canton crepe gown of red roses.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Quigley left on a wedding trip to Toronto and points east. The bride donned a cloak of crushed plush, with fur trimmings and chic cloche hat of taupe satin for travelling. On their return they will take up residence in Owen Sound.

Mr. Percy Quigley of Wiarton was an out-of-town guest at the wedding.

WILLIAMSON—WESTON.

The Wellington street United parsonage was recently the scene of a quiet wedding, when Miss Della Fern Weston, of West Nissouri, and Mr. George James Williamson, of East Nissouri, were united in the holy bonds of marriage by the Rev. J. W. Hibbert.

The young couple were attended by the bride's sister, Mrs. McBain, and Mr. McBain. The bride was lovely in her gown of white satin crepe and flowing veil arranged with Juliet cap and orange blossoms. Her flowers were a bouquet of roses.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Williamson left on a wedding trip to Detroit. The bride travelled in a cloth coat and fox fur and wore a smart velvet hat. On their return they will reside in East Nissouri.

THOMSON—WILLIAMS.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Trinity Anglican church, Port Burwell, at 1 o'clock on Nov. 4, when Miss Grace Williams, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams, Port Burwell, became the bride of Mr. James Thomson, son of Mr. Robert Thomson, Edinburgh, Scotland. Rev. Deihl, rector of the church, officiated.

The bride looked charming in white Bengaline and satin gown, with tulle veil caught with orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of white carnations. Miss Florence Woodham of London, in pale pink georgette and carrying pink carnations, accompanied the bride. Mr. Norman Williams of Detroit, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

Miss Louise Dumford played the wedding marches. Miss Gladys Drake sang O Promise Me while the register was being signed.

The happy couple will leave for Niagara Falls, Buffalo and London before taking up permanent residence in Windsor. Many and beautiful were the gifts received by the bride and groom, showing the high esteem in which both were held.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. George McFadden, Miss Florence Woodham of London, Mr. Norman Williams of Detroit, and Mr. David Thomson, brother of the groom, of Windsor.

BRISK CROSS-COUNTRY RUN FINISHES BACK OF KENNELS

Forty-Three Riders and Sixteen Hounds Take Part in Successful Chase On Thanksgiving Day, Led by Col. Ibbotson Leonard.

Thanksgiving Day offered ideal weather for the cross-country run arranged by the London Hunt club. The sun shone brightly, albeit there was a sharp tang in the air to give zest to the chase. At 2:30 o'clock about 43 riders left Medway farms, home of Mr. and Mrs. John Smallman, riding to a drag.

The hunt, led by Col. Ibbotson Leonard, master of the foxhounds, mounted on Tellme, proceeded north across fields on the west side of the Proof Line road. As the riders took the fences after the M.F.H., within view of the road, a procession of cars made its way north on the Proof Line road, to watch the run. The hounds, eight fine couples, and the horses all seemed in excellent trim for full enjoyment of the chase.

The riders crossed the Proof Line just this side of St. Johns, and continued south again on the east side of the road, finishing at the back of the kennels about 4 o'clock. Of the 43 riders, 32 took the whole course.

Prior to the run, the riders had luncheon at the club house, and many remained on after the chase, for the tea dance. Among those who rode yesterday were Col. and Mrs. Ibbotson Leonard, Col. and Mrs. Claud Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. John Smallman, Capt. and Mrs. Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. Verschoyle Cronyn, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brickenden and their guests, Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Mr. Charles Hunt, Mr. Arthur Johnston, Mrs. Webster, Mr. Ernest Weld, Mrs. Archie Becher, Miss Watson, Mrs. Norman Howden, Mrs. E. S. The enemy of teeth and gums

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums; a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth and gum troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the million breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

Once More Danny and Nanny Enjoy Hospitality of the Big Straw Stack

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse lived quite contentedly in Farmer Brown's cornrib for a while. They were sure that never in all the Great World had there been two such rich Meadow Mice before. There was so much corn that if they should eat they couldn't eat it all up, even though they should live to be twice as old as most Meadow Mice get to be. So they looked forward to winter without a worry of any kind.

Then one day Farmer Brown's Boy moved the board by which they got in and out of the cornrib. It happened that both of them were at home at the time. They didn't know what had happened until Danny that night started to go outside. Then he found there was no way of getting out unless he jumped down to the ground. If he did that there would be no way of getting back.

But Danny and Nanny decided that this didn't matter. They would spend their time eating, sleeping and exploring that cornrib. This they did, and were happy for a while. But at last they began to grow tired of nothing but corn to eat. First Danny lost his appetite. He grew peevish. Then Nanny lost her appetite, and she grew even more peevish. They quarreled, and they really didn't know what they were quarreling about. Both had been fat—very fat indeed. But now they began to grow thin. One day Nanny noticed this. It set her to thinking.

"I know what's the trouble with us," she cried.

"What?" squeaked Danny.

"We have too much of a good thing," said she. "We have too much corn. We need a change. We have lost our appetites because we need something besides corn. Corn for breakfast, corn for dinner, and corn for supper is altogether too much corn. I am getting so I hate the sight of it. If we could get outside and get something else for a change we would be all right."

But they couldn't get outside. At least, they couldn't get outside and get back again. And though they hunted and hunted and hunted they could find nothing in that cornrib for a change. It was a case of eat corn or nothing. Beyond a doubt it was a case of too much of a good thing. Danny began to think of that barn they had planned to make their home in before they had found the cornrib. There would be plenty of change of food there. To be sure, they wouldn't be quite so safe as they were here. Here no enemies could get to them. But even safety and plenty of food were not the only things to be considered. There was not enough happiness, and, after all, happiness was the most important thing.

"I'm going to leave this place," said Danny one evening just after the Black Shadows had come creeping out. "Are you coming with me, Nanny Meadow Mouse?"

"Indeed I am," replied Nanny.

"You know we can't get back if we want to," said Danny.

"I'm glad of it," replied Nanny. "Just now I feel as if I don't want to see another ear of corn as long as I live. When do I start?"

"Now," replied Danny. "You follow me."

So Danny led the way. It was a long jump for such a little fellow, but he landed in the grass unhurt, and Nanny followed him. Once more they scampered for the big straw stack in the barnyard, for under that they knew they would be safe. There they could plan how to get over to the barn.

Balmy Beach Handed First Loss By Loop Tail-Enders

SENIOR O. R. F. U.

	W.	L.	F.	A.
Balmy Beach	4	1	57	31
Camp Borden	3	2	39	24
H. R. C.	2	3	36	64
Varsity	1	4	37	50

Toronto, Nov. 9.—The Balmy Beach club of Toronto suffered its first defeat of the season in the O. R. F. U. senior series when Varsity Seconds, tail-enders, defeated them, 16 to 14, at Varsity stadium this afternoon. It was Varsity's first win, although twice they tied the Hamilton R. C., but lost in the overtime. The Beachers, however, still top the league, and Camp Borden with two losses, is second. Balmy Beach and Varsity play again next Saturday, and Camp Borden plays Hamilton R. C. It is only by Camp Borden winning and Balmy Beach losing that the league can be tied up. Otherwise the Beachers win the championship and the right to meet Queen's University in the play-offs.

The O. R. F. U. teams have provided good games this year with plenty of passing, end runs daring plays, the kind of football the fans like, and there were only about five thousand present, the game being deserving of a capacity crowd. The final result was always in doubt, but the students set the pace in scoring from the start, leading by five after the first period, while at half time the score was 9 to 4.

Add Eleven to Total.

In the third quarter the Blue and White added eleven to their total, while the Beachers counted five, the students entering the final frame with a lead of seven. Balmy Beach reduced the margin to two, and finished the game battling for the tieing points, which the students prevented.

Backfield errors caused the Beachers' downfall, but all credit must be given the students for their alertness to take advantage. Twice when the Beach backs fumbled catches behind their own line, Varsity smothered the ball for touches. Cawkell's consistent returning of punts in the last period was one of the features of the game.

Both teams were well supplied with tacklers Keith, the Beachers' outside wing, being about the best. Keith was under almost every punt and generally stopped his man with dives at the ankles. Daly, the Varsity flying wing, and Ponton, the Beach rover, were also prominent in the tackling. Robertson and Smith on the Beach back line, juniors of last year, although they showed flashes of good football, were not consistent, and with Varsity playing such a good game their slips were fatal. Robertson kicked well for the Beachers, but his punts were not as hard to catch as the high twists of Burns, the Varsity left-footer.

The teams:

Varsity—Flying wing, Daly; halves, Wright, Creighton and Burns; quarter, Roos; snap, Ingram; insides, Merritt and Gray; middles, Hill and Hutchinson; outsides, Snyder and Stewart; subs, Bentley, Cash, Beuls, Tesky, Ross and Stringer.

Officials—Reg. DeGruchy and Ronnie McPherson.

TAMMANY TIGERS TAKE TITLE.

Winnipg, Nov. 9.—Tammany Tigers captured the Manitoba senior rugby championship by blanking Varsity, 11 to 0 in the final game here this afternoon. In all probability Tigers will travel to Regina to meet the Rough Riders for the Western Canada title next Saturday.

LOCAL JUNIORS ARE BEATEN IN PETROLIA

Special to The Advertiser.

Petrolia, Nov. 9.—The London juniors were defeated here today by a score of 10 to 0 on a field which was not in the best of condition, being very slippery.

In the first quarter Petrolia scored five points on a fake play. Churchill of London did some wonderful running and tackling. He made a 35-yard run in the first quarter on a fake kick, and was only stopped when he stepped over the side line. During the whole game he made many such runs. Wong was the best tackler on the London team. He made several beautiful tackles during the game.

Bryant and Madery of Petrolia were the best defensive men, nailing the visitors in their tracks most of the time. McHattie was the outstanding offensive player for Petrolia. Petrolia's other five points were made by Braybrook, who recovered a fumble behind the London line. Neither touchdown was converted.

The line-up:

Officials—Wilson and Peat.

WOODSTOCK SQUAD MEETS ST. THOMAS

Special to The Advertiser.

Woodstock, Nov. 9.—Woodstock collegiate rugby team successfully passed out of the second round of the junior Wossa series by defeating the Kitchener collegiate team this afternoon in the second game of a home and home series 7 to 3.

The game was a keenly-contested one and the locals were somewhat lucky to win, six of their points coming from a touchdown after a fumble near the Kitchener line by one of the visiting rear guards. The locals had the edge in weight on the line and consistently gained ground on plunges, but the brilliant backfield runs of Vaughn for Kitchener were the outstanding features of the game.

He was easily the outstanding player on the field and had hard luck in not scoring touchdowns after 50 and 60-yard runs. Twice the Kitchener team had only a yard to go with three downs to make it, but the Woodstock line held firm and danger was averted.

Kitchener scored first, Sinclair being forced to the deadline. Before half-time, however, Woodstock got a lucky break, and Lockhart plunged over for a touchdown which Sinclair converted from a difficult angle. A kick to the dead line by Sinclair and a kick into touch in goal by Vaughn completed the scoring.

The Woodstock team wins the round by 10 points to 4, having won the first game in Kitchener on Saturday by a score of 3 to 1, and now meet St. Thomas in the third round.

The teams:

Woodstock—Flying wing, Milburn; halves, Allan, Lockhart, Scales and Atkinson; quarter, Sinclair; snap, Grant; insides, Brooks and Paggi; middles, Geddes and McLeod; outsides, Braund and Art Lockhart; spares, Carrigan, Vogan and Smith.

Kitchener-Waterloo — Flying wing, McNaughton; halves, C. Weber, Vaughn and F. Weber; quarter, Shantz; snap, Schnarr; insides, Dunker and Millman; middles, Bender and Clark; outsides, Merritt and Lackner; spares, Lockhead, Fernie, Lockie, Lehnen, Rieder and Beaupre.

Umpire—Hood.

Referee—Croal.

WALKER CAN LOSE TITLE ONLY BY FOUL OR K.O.

Welterweight Champion's Crown Will Be at Stake When He Meets Friedman.

Associated Press Despatch.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 9.—Under a new ruling by the New Jersey state boxing commission, compelling all champions as well as their challengers in bouts here to enter the ring within their class weight limit, Mickey Walker's welterweight title will be at stake in his bout with Sailor Friedman of Chicago at the Newark Armory, Nov. 25.

Walker and Friedman must scale at or under 147, the welter limit, on the afternoon of the fight. Since no official decision is handed down, however, Walker can lose his crown only by a foul or a knockout.

OWNER WINS $3,660.

Fimlico Race Track, Md., Nov. 9.—The colors of J. Edwin Griffith of Baltimore were again considerably added to when his colt Singleton took the Nov. 2 of the Fimlico serial weights-for-age race. The race netted the winner $3,660. Big Blaze ran second and Wise Counsellor third. The time for the mile was 1:40 3-5.

BUNNY'S THANKSGIVING.

I'm thankful for the weather yesterday,
Scent was hard to follow,
For as the dogs gave longue an angry bay,
I watched 'em from a hollow.

I'm thankful also that there was no snow,
'Twould give my tracks away,
Who leaves no tracks, you all must know
Runs still another day.

I'm more than thankful—pardon my snicker,
A close call I'd forgot—
I'm thankful that that city slicker
Was such an awful shot.

Humans celebrate Thanksgiving;
I do, too, as I'm still living.

A FROSTY BREATH.

A man with a frosty breath suggested the other day that the toboggan slide at Western could be much improved by a little grading before the snow came. It was suggested also that this was not an exclusive opinion, but that many lovers of this branch of winter sports would welcome improvements to the best tobogganning hill in the district. It was suggested that if the Western U. authorities could see their way clear to having the humps graded out and a platform erected, a small fee charged townspeople would more than pay the cost.

THE CRADLE OF HOCKEY.

It took a long time for junior O. H. A. hockey to make a niche for itself. Since it is now the custom for juniors to jump from that division into senior in one year, the fans have reached the point where they appreciate a game between two closely-matched junior teams as much as they do one between two senior crews. In fact, there have been times of late in Toronto when the juniors outdrew the seniors.

The London Junior Hockey association starts out tomorrow night with three games. Most of the players are of junior O. H. A. age, and are all aspiring to make O. H. A. teams at some time in the future. It would be indicative of real hockey interest were the youngsters, in their first games tomorrow night, to play before a jammed house. Nothing is a conducive to the quick development of athletes as encouragement.

As most of the teams represent different sections of the city, there should be quite a bit of rivalry come out of the league race.

This league is going to be the cradle of hockey in London. Better get out and help rock it.

Guelph, Nov. 9.—Guelph's Thanksgiving Day race meet, the premier event of its kind in North America, proved to be the most successful since its reincarnation three years ago. The prize list, which is unparalleled anywhere, attracted over two hundred crack runners from different parts of Canada and the United States, track men being present from Toronto, Hamilton, Woodstock, Detroit, Rochester, Galt and many other places. The day's card consisted of eight races and occupied the time from ten-thirty in the morning until after four in the afternoon.

The weather was very favorable for the runners, clear but slightly cool. The spectators of which there were many thousands present, were slightly uncomfortable on account of the wind, which hit through those standing on the curbs and sidewalks.

The outstanding surprise of the program was the defeat of some of Canada's outstanding long-distance runners in the 15-mile run by Cliff Bricker, the clever Galt athlete, who set a terrific pace along the entire route, and covered the distance in the record time of 1:17:37 4-5, about seven minutes faster than the same course was made in last year by Charlie Morton of Hamilton.

Bricker left such well-known men as Morton, Cuthbert, Dellow, Wyer and Moy in the background, and flashed across the tape over three minutes ahead of A. Lewis of Woodstock, his nearest rival. John Cuthbert of Guelph, Canada's representative at the Olympic games was third, with Morton of Hamilton fourth; May of Monarch A. C., Toronto, fifth; Jimmie Dellow, Toronto, sixth, and Percy Wyer, seventh.

Mahon Takes Walk.

In the ten-mile walk, which provided one of the prettiest finishes of the day, Joe Mahon of St. Michael's college, Toronto, won a great victory, when he defeated Charlie Foster Detroit's crack heel and toe artist, by a few paces, doing the distance in 1:17:47. Foster, who had battled it out with Mahon from start to finish, was alongside the Toronto athlete 200 yards from the tape, and when the two put on a great burst of speed as they dashed home, Mahon beat the American out by three seconds.

Harry Leask of Central Y., Toronto, was third. The walking event this year was operated under the sealed handicap arrangement, and while the three walkers mentioned won the finish prizes, the first time award went to Lionel Stansfield, Central Y., Toronto Harold G. Carter and Henry Cleman of the same club, winning second and third, respectively.

Art Scholes, who has competed in the Guelph races for a good many years, and who has won the 10-mile cross-country run on many occasions, added another victory to his list in the same event today, when he romped home first in a field of nineteen starters in the splendid time of 1:04:06. Scholes, who finished strong after covering the difficult course, had a good lead over G. K. Newton of Hamilton, who was second, while Orville Garbutt Gladstone A. C., Toronto, was third, and F. A. Banks, O. A. C., fourth.

Record in Five-Mile.

What is probably a new record for Canada for five miles was set by Harold Webster of Guelph, in the five-mile open event, which he won in the remarkable time of 24 minutes and 17 seconds. Of twenty-six runners who started, twenty-three finished, the race proving one of the most interesting of the card. Billy Reynolds of Galt was second, and Charles Snell of Gladstone A. C., Toronto, third.

Four local races comprised the program in the morning, the distances being one, two and three miles for boys, and five-mile factory, the Collyer trophy, donated by Bert E. Collyer of Chicago, being up for competition in the last mentioned race. This year the cup becomes the temporary property of the Northern Rubber Co., Jack McGibbon, an athlete wearing the firm's colors, winning out in a field of fifteen starters. There were fifty-four contestants in the one mile and about twenty in the two and three mile.

Western To Get Open-Air Rink

A movement is now under way to build an open air rink at Western University. Now that the school has begun to move up into the higher circles of intercollegiate sports, the officials have found it necessary to plan better facilities for purple and white athletes.

The ice surface will be used for interfaculty hockey games, and it is altogether that a league will be formed to serve as a recruiting ground for the Western intermediate squad.

Although no definite steps have yet been taken to build the rink, Professor Hart, president of the university directorate, states that there are no serious obstacles in the way, and he added that he felt sure that operations will be started as soon as freezing weather sets in.

TIGERS TAKE MEASURE OF ARGONAUTS 11 TO 7

Hamilton, Nov. 9.—Tigers and Argonauts, both with makeshift squads, provided the thanksgiving attraction at the T. A. A. field this afternoon, a rather interesting affair for an exhibition tilt, which Tigers won by a score of 11 to 7. Anyone went into action minus Vear Breen and Jimmy Douglas, a trio of stars, while the Tigers had many regulars away.

Although weather conditions were much more suitable than on Saturday, the field was slippery and treacherous, and both sides, the back men especially, suffered in consequence.

The Tigers opened the scoring when Traynor dropped a field goal over the bar from 20 yards out. But Argos were in front at quarter time.

The second quarter saw Tigers add a single point, but the third session told a different story. Tigers added seven points, an unconverted try and two single points bringing their total to 11 points, while Argos were held scoreless.

CATARACT STARS MAKE PRO DEBUT

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Making their debut with a professional hockey squad, Kitchen, Stewart and Seibert worked out this morning with the members of the Montreal hockey club before a crowd of over 500 fans at the Forum. The members of the team of last season who were in uniform were Dunc Munro, Reg Noble, Punch Broadbent, Sammy Rothchild, Dutch Cain and Lowrey. The players were kept going at top speed for the full period by Manager Eddie Gerard, who served as referee.

Outstanding among the forwards was Nelson Stewart, who has played for the last five seasons for Cleveland in the United States amateur hockey league. He created a good impression by his work.

Seibert, who played on the opposite wing to Broadbent, also worked well. Stewart, Broadbent and Seibert were lined out against the regular defence of Dunc Munro and Reg Noble. They worked in close and shot from almost all angles.

On the opposite line Lowrey, Rothchild and Kitchen were worked together, Kitchen showing to good advantage on the defence as well as on the line. The only absentees from the workout were Benedict and Dinsmore. They will arrive in Montreal this week.

Work of Karn and Perry Brings Defeat To Aggies

WILSON STANDS OUT

Sarnia, Nov. 9.—Guelph Aggies couldn't stop Karn and Perry in the third period, and the Sarnia intermediates surged through to a 6 to 2 win over the smart O. A. C. squad before a big crowd at Bayview Park this afternoon.

Wilson's kicking had the Sarnia team on the defensive most of the game, but a pretty 50-yard run back of one of Wilson's punts by Karn put the blue and white five yards from the Aggie line, and Perry on three straight plunges, just squeezed over for a touch, which was not converted, but which salted the game away for the Sarnia team.

The Aggies, playing a much improved game over their showing against St. Mikes Saturday, gave the blue and white the toughest argument they have had all season. Their defensive play halted most of the Sarnia plunges, while they plowed through for long gains. Outside Karn's long run, Pugh made the biggest gain when he went 30 yards around the Sarnia end on a run before he was hauled down. Wilson, whose punting and all round work featured the O. A. C. attack kicked for two points in the first half.

Sarnia gained the lead in the third period, when McPhedran punted to Wilson, who was forced to rouge, and Perry got his touchdown. The game was a ding-dong battle with honors fairly even throughout the rest of the game. Pugh for forced out with an injured ankle, and Manore had his shoulder dislocated stopping an Aggie buck. Wilson retired in the third period, and Sarnia spurted after that. The defensive work of the Aggie line and the tacking of the Sarnia ends featured the game.

Referee—Donohue, St. Mikes.

Umpire—Sinclair, Sarnia.

They put the Speed in Hockey

YOU'LL see hockey games this winter. Once again you'll marvel at the speed of the players. If you get a chance, after the game, go to their dressing rooms. Examine their skates, and you will generally find they are C.C.M.'s. Speed is so vitally important to good hockey. That is why hockey champions choose C.C.M. Skates. That and because C.C.M. Skates are strong enough to stand the hardest knocks hockey can give them.

Ask any dealer for C.C.M. Skates. Ask especially to see the NEW C.C.M. Olympia Tube Skates for hockey. There are C.C.M. Skates for all purposes, hockey, pleasure, figure and speed skating. Skates for children, too.

GUELPH SQUAD REPEATS OVER OWEN SOUND 27-2

Special to The Advertiser.

Guelph, Nov. 9. — After swamping Owen Sound Collegiate, 22—0, on their home grounds Saturday, the Guelph Collegiate interscholastic senior rugby team repeated their performance today, taking the second play-off 27 to 2 and winning the round by 47 points. The victory will likely place Guelph in the finals, with Sarnia as their probable opponents.

The match today attracted a large crowd, despite the counter-attraction in the Thanksgiving Day road racing meet, but, as Guelph had things practically their own way, it was a rather uninteresting argument. At the close of the first half the locals were leading by 11 to 0, while in the second half they broke away worse than ever, and increased their count by fifteen points against two scored by the visitors.

While the whole Guelph team played good rugby, Atcheson, Brohman, Hull and A. Doyle were outstanding, while Black and Middlebro were Owen Sound's best.

The teams:

Owen Sound—Halves, Robb, Patterson; flying wing, Crawford; quarter, S. Legate; snap, McQueen; insides, Middlebro, Edmunden; middles, G. Legate, Groves; outsides, Davidson, Bray; subs, Brass, Ross, Garvie.

GOALIE OF HIBERNIANS MIGRATES TO ARENSAL

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 9.—Rumors at the beginning of the season had Harper, the international goalkeeper of the Edinburgh Hibernians, on the transfer list and these were then denied. That they had some foundation, however, is assured by the fact that today Harper has followed many brother Scots this season and has migrated south. The Hibs' net tender has signed on for Arsenal at a figure which has not been disclosed.

Another transfer has gone through, whereby Newcastle United lose their fine center forward, Neil Harris, who will henceforth play under the colors of Notts County. It is stated that the transfer bounty was a record one.

SHAGMEN COME BACK TO SWAMP MONTREAL

Winged Wheelers Are Thrown For 15 to 2 Loss by McGill Gridders.

Montreal, Nov. 9. — Undeterred by their weak showing against the University of Toronto squad here last Saturday, McGill came back to the gridiron this afternoon in their annual Thanksgiving Day game against Montreal, and with a speedy, mobile attack in the final quarter, swept the local Big Four [illegible]

Five thousand spectators witnessed the McGill players in a display which was exactly the reverse of the exhibition they gave against Varsity. While there was some loose work by the collegians, for the most part they showed an open attack, built on Coach Shaughnessy's system of speedy, deceptive thrusts.

BOND TRADE LISTLESS ON NEW YORK MARKET

Associated Press Despatch.

New York, Nov. 9.—In a listless trading session bond prices merely marked time today. Buying was restricted by uneasiness over the money situation, follwing a rise in the call loan rate and the extensive calling of loans by banks to correct a deficit shown in last week's claring-house statement. This feeling was intensified after the close of the market when the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston announced an increase in its rediscount rate to 4 per cent.

The only showing of strength today was given by the investment rail issues, some of which attracted institutional buying orders. Gains, however, were limited, and losses were correspondingly narrow. Profit-taking accounted for the reactionary appearance of the copper, rubber and motor issues, which lately have followed the upward trend of stocks. Oil company liens, on the other hand, maintained a fairly firm tone.

Foreign and United States government obligations moved within narrow and irregular limits.

SMELTERS DROPS SIX POINTS TODAY

RAILROADS ARE TAXED BY HOLIDAY CROWDS

Unprecedented Thanksgiving holiday crowds necessitated putting on extra trains on Friday and again last night, when those who had been enjoying the brief Armistice vacation were hastening back to desks in offices and schoolrooms Tuesday morning.

Friday evening an additional C. N. R. train arrived in the city from Toronto shortly after the regular International Limited came in at 9 o'clock. Both trains were crowded, and a considerable number of the holidayers were students from Kingston and Toronto universities, Royal military college, and from the prep schools in the eastern part of the province, all looking forward to entertainment and parties.

Two trains left the city at 7:30 Sunday evening, packed to the doors with the returning merrymakers, as was also the series of coaches that pulled out at 4 o'clock this morning. Most of the students held on until this last train, that they might be able to enjoy the last dance at the Thanksgiving celebrations throughout the city, and to catch even this trains involved many wild dashes and near misses, so late did the gaiety continue, and so loathe were the guests to leave.

When at last the cars did pull out waving hats and handkerchiefs and shouts of "See you at Christmas," foreshadowed the next holiday season.

DOLLY SISTERS FILE SUIT AGAINST MUSICAL HALL

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, Nov. 9.—The Dolly sisters, well known on the Canadian stage, have brought suit against the direction of the Moulin Rouge musical hall for breach of contract, asking 550,000 francs damages.

They claim they were engaged to take a stellar part at the Moulin Rouge this winter, but that Mistinguette, the Parisian favorite, has become the headliner and they have been relegated to secondary roles. They assert the sum they ask was the forfeit stipulated in their contract.

LUGGAGE IS STOLEN.

Boston, Nov. 9.—Five minutes after the Duchess of Rutland, mother of Lady Diana Manners, arrived in Boston last night, her hand luggage was stolen, and two of her daughter's friends were robbed of several hundred dollars.

MORE THAN 200 NAMES ADDED

Special Court Held to Hear All Complaints Over Voters' List.

For the purpose of hearing all complaints against the voter's list for London for 1925, court was held at the local court house on Saturday last pursuant to the provisions of the Ontario voter's lists act.

Only four persons appeared before the judge to have their names added to the list, but over 200 names were added on application of the city clerk and 200 other names changed.

"I don't think you'll find another voter's list in Ontario where the clerk took that trouble," commented Mr. Baker this morning. "We have gone out of our way to make the London voter's list as complete as possible, and in this we have had the assistance of the assessment department. The voters themselves display very little interest. We had this office open four evenings recently for the express purpose of receiving changes and additions to the voter's list and less than a dozen people came in.

"Many people have the idea that because their names are on the list for federal elections they must necessarily be on the municipal list, and vice versa, but that is not at all certain. However, we have done everything that we possibly can to make the list as perfect as possible for the next municipal election."

NORTHLAND TO KEEP REMAINING BALLOT BOX

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 10.—J. B. Lockhart, representing the returning officer of the Springfield constituency has returned from a trip into the northland to collect ballot boxes from outlying polls. Some of the hardships encountered by those entrusted with such tasks are graphically described by Mr. Lockhart.

During the trip in canoe and agsoline launch the party was repeatedly halted by ice. They tramped ten miles after on ballot box. Ten nights were passed in the open air, and the trip concluded with a two-day trip across Lake Winnipeg, during which the steamer Bradbury had to make its way through heavy ice. Some of the polls were north of Fort Alexander. The trip was begun a month ago, with the distribution of the ballots and ballot boxes.

Mr. Lockhart reported that it had been impossible to reach the Berens Landing poll because of ice, and that the ballot box would not be collected.

SHOPS TO OBSERVE SILENCE.

The railroads will join in the general observance of two minutes silence tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. All work will cease in the shops. Trains will not stop, however, as about five minutes would be lost in stopping and starting again.

LAPOINTE TO BE LEADER WHEN COMMONS MEETS, NAME NINE FOR CABINET

Premier Decides Against By-Election in Bagot For Defeated Ministers Before Parliament Opens—Generally Assumed That Lapointe Will Lead.

SUPPORT FOR KING FROM WEST PROMISED

Grain Growers' Guide Declares Truly Liberal Policies by Prime Minister Will Bring Sufficient Votes To Support Ministry —Wants Reductions in Tariff.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—It is assumed here that Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, will lead the government in the house of commons at the opening of the approaching session. The minister of justice will be the senior cabinet member in the house, and has been a member of the cabinet since 1921, and a member of the house of commons since 1904. Mr. Lapointe represents the constituency of Quebec East, which was held by Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the time of his death.

The minister of justice will have with him in the house eight other ministers, making an unusually small cabinet of nine. In the senate, Hon. Chas. Murphy will be acting secretary of state, as well as postmaster-general, while Dr. H. S. Beland will probably continue as minister of health and soldiers' civil re-establishment.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice.

Hon. J. A. Robb, minister of finance and trade and commerce.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture.

Hon. Lucien Cannon, solicitor-general.

Hon. George Boivin, minister of customs.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, minister of marine and fisheries.

Hon. E. M. Macdonald, minister of national defence.

At the opening of the session, Premier King, holding the portfolio of external affairs, and Hon. G. P. Graham, minister of railways, will not be in the house, unless it is decided that Mr. Graham should contest the one vacancy in the Quebec constituency of Bagot. This, however, is most unlikely, as the time in which the necessary by-election could be conducted would almost preclude the presence of a new member by Dec. 10.

With the approximate date of the opening of the fifteenth parliament only five weeks distant, a vast amount of work faces the cabinet. It is anticipated that cabinet meetings will be held almost daily to prepare the estimates and to make ready for the general work of the session.

SUPPORT FROM WEST.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Nov. 9.—Commenting editorially on the political situation created by the recent federal election, the Grain Growers' Guide, official organ of the United Farmers of Manitoba, has the following to say in the latest issue of its weekly publication:

"If, in this crisis in Canadian politics Premier King can see his way clear to pursue a genuine Liberal policy, there is reason to believe he will be assured of sufficient votes to support his ministry and policy.

"First, as of primary importance, it will be expected of the prime minister that he will proceed to arrange for moderate and practical reductions in the tariff, which amounts to a direct tax on most of these western provinces. It should be accepted that in a house where the high tariff party will be aggressive, new reductions in the tariff will be sharply challenged. Let it be so. There can never be a better time to try conclusions than in 1926 on the issue which presses for a settlement more conclusive than was given in the recent election.

"The Progressives could reasonably expect that Mr. Mackenzie King will be agreeable to adopt the alternative vote as a government measure in the approaching session of parliament. On the basis of the support he received on the prairies, it is also reasonable to hope that if the Liberal party remains in power, that, at least, a few miles of the Hudson Bay railway will be built.

"The future of the Progressives is the main feature of the present political speculation. The one certainty is that the Progressives must decide whether or not the Liberal party will carry on. Another certainty is that the future of the Progressive party depends in great measure on the actions of the Progressive group in the next house of commons."

BEAUBIEN, PROGRESSIVE, ELECTED IN PROVENCHER

Canadian Press Despatch.

Winnipeg, Nov. 9.—L. A. Beaubien, Progressive, was elected in the constituency of Provencher, Man., by a majority of 80, according to the official announcement of A. Herbert, returning officer for the constituency. The result in this constituency had been continually in doubt since the federal election. The announcement tonight followed an official recount of the vote. Mr. Herbert announced he would make the official vote public tomorrow.

FINAL SUMMARY.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—With Provencher, Man., now definitely in the Progressive column, the standing of the parties by provinces in the general election follows:

Province	Lib.	Cons.	Prog.	Ind.
P. E. I.	2	2	0	0
N. Brunswick	1	10	0	0
N. Scotia	3	11	0	0
Quebec	60	4	0	1
Ontario	12	68	2	0
Manitoba	1	7	7	2
Sask.	15	0	6	0
Alberta	4	4	8	0
Br. Columbia	3	10	1	0
Totals	101	117	24	3

The above table includes the riding of Bagot Que., in the Liberal column. The membel-elect for that constituency, J. E. Marcile, Liberal, has died since the election.

PAINLEVE AND CHAMBER CONTINUE DEADLOCKED

Associated Press Despatch

Paris, Nov. 9.—The deadlock between Premier Painleve and his majority in the chamber of deputies on his measures for financial restoration has created a situation closely resembling a cabinet crisis. The issue tonight seems squarely defined between inflation, with a sinking fund commission, and forced refunding of short-term bonds, with a capital levy as an accompaniment.

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, announced that he would tomorrow morning force a decisive vote before the delegations of the different groups of the majority. The finance committee partly forestalled this move today by a vote on counter-proposals presented by Vincent Auriole, Socialist, which resulted in a tie, 15 to 15, this being considered a Socialist defeat.

BAGGY PANTS NOT SHABBY ENGLISH TAILOR CLAIMS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 9.—Assertions that London is shabby so far as the dress of men is concerned is denied by Philip J. Ryan, secretary of the National Federation of Merchant Tailors. Recent critics have charged that "London, judging by Hyde Park on a recent Sunday morning, was the worst dressed place in the world, and most of the trousers were baggy."

Said Mr. Ryan: "We tailors do not admit the soft, but sweeping impeachment. Hyde Park is not in London, and baggy trousers do not necessarily mean shabbiness."

TWO BRITISH OFFICERS WIN RACE WITH HYDROPHOBIA

Special to The Advertiser.

Paris, Nov. 7.—Capt. Nicholl and Lieut. Cartwright, British officers stationed at Calabar, Southern Nigeria, Africa, have reached the Pasteur Institute following a 4,600 mile race against hydrophobia.

The officers were bitten by a dog said to be suffering from rabies. Capt. Nicholl was attacked first, and when Lieut. Cartwright went to his superior's assistance, the animal also attacked him.

After such first aid as the station afforded, both men were ordered to Paris. The first leg of the journey was made by motor, a distance of 500 miles over rough roads. During this trip their luggage lorry plunged into the River Niger and two servants were drowned.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT WITH OWN GUN WHILE HUNTING

Canadian Press Despatch.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 9.—Gordon Kennedy, Port Colborne, is in the local hospital with a gunshot wound in his left side, as the result of being accidentally shot with his own gun while hunting rabbits at Queenston. Kennedy and a companion, Bruce Gilmore of Wainfleet township, were walking along the road, when the former tripped and fell on his gun, and one barrel was discharged. Gilmore carried his companion about two hundred yards to an automobile, and rushed him to the local hospital. Doctors say that Gilmore's act probably saved the life of his companion.

PROMINENT ATTEND PRESTON FUNERAL

Canadian Press Despatch.

Brantford, Nov. 9.—The remains of T. H. Preston, proprietor of the Brantford Expositor, and widely known newspaperman, who died suddenly on Saturday last, were laid to rest in Farrington cemetery here this afternoon. Prominent citizens from various parts of the province, including many newspapermen, attended the funeral. Among them were Sir John Willison, Dr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, deputy minister of education for Ontario, Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C.; Dr. P. D. Ross, proprietor of the Ottawa Journal; Geo. Scroggie, president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association; J. R. Bone of the Toronto Daily Star; Arthur Partridge and Dr. J. B. Taylor of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association; W. J. Taylor and John Markey of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review; A. R. Kennedy of the London Advertiser; J. I. McIntosh and R. M. Hamilton of the Guelph Mercury; L. H. Dingman of the St. Thomas Times-Journal; Major H. B. Burgoyne of the St. Catharines Standard, and J. F. B. Livesay, general manager of the Canadian Press.

Public services were held in Brant Avenue United Church and were largely attended, the majority of the organizations being represented. Rev. Dr. McCall, pastor of the United Church, conducted the services and was assisted by Rev. A. E. Lavelle, secretary of the Ontario parole board and former pastor, and Rev. Dr. Rutledge, who was Mr. Preston's pastor in Winnipeg.

The pallbearers were Hon. Newton Wesley Rowell, K.C.; E. E. Cromption, Christopher Cook, Major E. Sweet, John Muir and George A. Scroggie.

Three automobile loads of flowers bore silent testimony of the esteem in which Mr. Preston was held. A statement issued by Rev. Dr. A. E. Lavelle, concerning Mr. Preston, says in part:

"The death of Mr. T. H. Preston, coming as it does so immediately after the passing of the chairman, Hamilton Cassels, brings a great shock to the board of parole and its staff. Mr. Preston has for some years been the vice-chairman of the board, and in the long illness of the chairman has borne the responsibilities of that office. When the board of parole was formed in 1910 the late Hon. W. J. Hanna appointed him a member. Mr. Preston's record on the board more than justified Mr. Hanna's faith in him. He had earned and kept the utter confidence and esteem of every member of the board and its staff. He was a shrewd judge of human nature, cautious, with a high respect for law and order; with great sympathy toward those unfortunate or erring ones who needed assistance; a most intelligent and well-informed man, of long patience, and yet full of energy and devoted to the interests of the board which he served without remuneration."

Deputies Renew Mager Search

Special to The Advertiser.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 9.—Sheriff's deputies today were to renew the search for Harold Mager, 25, reported to have slain his father, William, 58, a farmer, yesterday morning, held off a farmhand with a pistol, and then escaped with the body in his car.

The only trace of the slayer and his victim's body so far was at McCormack Lake, where he hid the body in the bushes for a short time, later returning and taking it away again in his car.

Tracks in the mud and snow show this. After taking the body from the brush the slayer drove southeast toward Plymouth, but the tire tracks soon were lost in heavy traffic.

CAUGHT IN QUICKSANDS, N. S. BOYS ESCAPE DEATH

Canadian Press Despatch.

Truro, N. S., Nov. 9.—Two school boys, James Taylor and Bertram Hoskins, had narrow escapes from death when caught in the quicksands in a stream near their home in Stewiacke, about sixteen miles from here, on Saturday afternoon. The two lads, while walking on the bed of the stream began to sink, and being unable to extricate themselves called for help. A villager, Wilbur T. Breton, hastened to the rescue and freed the boys from their perilous position, but not before they had sank to their necks.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Much-Alive Deer Usurps Realm Sovereigned By Ill-Fated Wolf Which Terrorized Elgin County

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Reporter.

St. Thomas, Nov. 9.—A deer that has no fear for human beings or ordinary farm stock, but possesses all the grace and fleetness of its much-hunted brothers in the north lands, is the latest wanderer of the wild to migrate to the woods of the Western Ontario peninsula.

The deer was first seen on Friday morning by James McCord, a farmer living two miles and a half southwest of Belmont. Mr. McCord was startled by a commotion in his barnyard, and on investigating, saw a deer, which would weigh about 150 pounds, placidly wandering around the barnyard, while the frightened cattle were scamping to every corner of the yard. The animal did not seem to be disturbed by Mr. McCord's appearance, and he had a splendid opportunity to study it. There were four prongs on the antlers, which led him to believe that the animal was four years old. It was a buck, and showed no signs of being abused, on the contrary, it was well fed, and quite contented to be with the stock.

Some idea of its fleetness was given to Mr. McCord in the afternoon when it was chased by George Doan's dog, a big collie. It ran across the meadow, clearing the fences with fraceful bounds, soon leaving the dog in the rear.

It was next seen by Clifford Dale, two miles west of Belmont, late the same afternoon. It stayed with Mr. Dale's cattle for some time, and later in the evening went north. Saturday morning it was seen on the Cochrane farm, south of Glanworth, and is now believed to be in Brodie's or Fisher's woods.

FOUR ARE ARRESTED ON THEFT CHARGE

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Windsor, Nov. 9.—Two men and two women were arrested this afternoon by Windsor police in connection with the theft two weeks ago of $2,000 worth of clothing from the Palzier Tailoring Company of Ford. The men are believed by police to be members of a band of alleged blackhanders rounded up here last week, seven of whom with three women associates are now in Sandwich jail awaiting hearing.

The quartet taken into custody today gave their names as Patrick Bordo, 29, alias Pasquale Borreda, said to be proprietor of the Rome Cafe on Mercer street; his wife, Elizabeth, 25, Jack Alexandra, 25, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Laura Alexandra; his wife, alias Smith, alias Wilson.

Several suits of men's clothing said to have been in Alexandra's possession, were identified tonight as part of missing loot taken from the shop at Ford. Alexandra, they charge, was attempting to dispose of 100 suits at $15 each. The recovery of the remainder of the stolen property is expected within a day or two the police say. Bordo's automobile, bearing a New York license plate, is held pending the outcome of the investigation.

AMPLE ROOM PROVIDED ON PROPOSED BRIDGE

Replying to a criticism that the proposed new bridge at Ridout street, a sketch of which was published in The Advertiser on Saturday, seemed too narrow, City Engineer Near stated that the plans specify a thirty-two foot roadway with provision in the center for a single street railway track. Allowing ten feet clearance for the passage of street cars, which is considered ample, there will be a roadway on either side eleven feet in width, quite sufficient to provide for the passage of the biggest trucks. The only thing that might brush against a passing street car would be a load of hay, in the engineer's opinion, and even this is a somewhat remote possibility.

Asked if a single track would be sufficient for the operation of cars over the bridge, Mr. Near said that it had been figured out that this would permit of a three-minute service over the bridge, in view of which there would be no necessity of a double track.

CHURCH OF CHRIST PASTOR PASSES AWAY AT TORONTO

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Rev. D. H. Jackson, pastor of the Church of Christ, Strathmore Boulevard, Toronto, died at his home here today, aged 46 years. He had been confined to bed for the last five weeks, and last week his condition became critical. Born in London, England, he came to Canada as a boy of 13 years. As a young man he became a minister of the Church of Christ, and held a charge in Jordan, Ont., for twelve years before coming to Toronto to be minister of the Fern Avenue Church of Christ, where he remained seven years. Last March he assumed the charge at Strathmore Boulevard Church of Christ. He is survived by his widow and four children, Jean, Gordon, Robert and Barbara.

DETROIT BANDITS MAKE BIG HAULS

Special to The Advertiser.

Detroit, Nov. 9.—Three robberies today and last night netted the thieves $39,435 in cash and gems.

An armed bandit, apparently working without accomplices, robbed the Detroit Savings bank branch at Hamilton and Collingwood avenue of $4,200 today, after ordering the teller and two other employees, at the point of a gun, to stand with their faces turned toward the wall.

Two armed bandits escaped with $235 at noon today when they held up the Beyer Coal Company office at 6400 Palmer avenue east. John F. Beyer, 1735 East Grand boulevard, the proprietor and two clerks, Gladys Cousins, 71 Seven-Mile road east, and Margaret Thompson, 5731 Iroquois avenue, were in the office at the time.

Between $33,000 and $35,00 worth of diamonds and jewelry constituted the loot obtained by burglars who wrecked the safe in the office of the United Hebrew Free Loan association in the United Hebrew Schools building, 609 Kirby avenue east, Sunday night. The safe was forced open with crowbars. The robbery was not discovered until the offices were opened today.

Thomas Ryan of Stephen township was lodged in the county jail last night by High Constable Wharton on a charge of assaulting his wife occasioning actual bodily harm.

Ryan, it is alleged, struck his wife in the eye Sunday afternoon. The high constable arrested him yesterday and brought the prisoner before Magistrate Zapfe of Parkhill, who remanded him to jail for a week. Ryan was not asked to plead.

INCOME TAX APPEAL IS DISMISSED BY LORDS

Associated Press Despatch.

London, Nov. 9.—The house of lords as a judicial body has dismissed the appeal of George Ricketts, recorder of Portsmouth, who raised the question of whether he was entitled to deduct his expenses from his official salary in making a return of his income tax.

Recorders in England correspond somewhat to the county court judges in Canada, and are usually appointed from among the barristers who can reasonably hope eventually to receive full judicial honors.

ITALIAN LADY SUES HUBBY FOR ALLEGED DUAL FRAUD

Associated Press Despatch.

Vienna, Nov. 9.—Lady Georgina Douglas, divorced wife of Lord Sholto Douglas, son of the eighth Marquis of Queensbury, is suing her husband, Prince Burhan, son of the late Abdul Hamid of Turkey, for the return of £500 and 500,000 francs, charging that the prince committed fraud when he married her.

TWIN CITIES NAMED AS BOOTLEG CENTER

TELLS OF WET'S PLOT

Associated Press Despatch.

Chicago, Nov. 9. — St. Paul and Minneapolis were named today by William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson as distribution centers for liquor bootlegged into the United States.

Johnson made his assertion in a report given out by the World League Against Alcoholism and in which he charged that a "European plot is forming against the United States prohibition law." The "plot" is to be launched, he said, at a "wet" gathering at Washington on Dec. 16.

The temperance lecturer's report continues:

"Finance committee is now at work gathering funds for this purpose. The committee is made up of Wilhelm Rosenkranz, Franz Braum and Wilhelm Kieseche of Berlin, but the liquor dealers of all the central European countries will combine their funds for this great drive into America.

"The leading brewery interests behind the scenes are centered around the Schultzis brewery concern of Berlin. Mr. Fritz Schultzis, director of this concern, and his nephew Otto, have engineered several bootlegging enterprises in America, some of which have come to grief recently.

"Otto has made frequent trips to America recently, but never gets farther than the Atlantic coast, though his real disposing agents are chiefly in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

ELGIN COUNTY SOLDIERS UNITE IN BIG REUNION

Special to The Advertiser.

St. Thomas, Nov. 9.—Nearly five hundred and fifty returned soldiers of Elgin county and surrounding district, together with members of the Elgin regiment, participated in the soldiers' reunion in this city today. Perhaps the biggest feature of the day was a get-together banquet tonight at the armouries, where the returned men were brought together to renew old acquaintances and reconstruct old scenes, nearly forgotten in their civilian callings.

Mayor Sloggett, W. A. Coulter, representing the hospital board, and Col. Gerrard were the speakers this evening. Jack Bentley furnished the comedy features.

A memorial service, trooping of the colors, and the placing of the tribute on the soldiers' statue at the Memorial hospital, marked the events of the afternoon. At 2:15 this afternoon the regiment and returned men paraded at the Horton market, from where they were led by the regiment band to the granite rink for services, presided over by Mayor Sloggett.

The service was brief. Dr. Martin read the Scripture lesson, Rev. 7, 9-17, Canon Andrew led in prayer, and Rev. Newnham gave the address. Rev. Hammond pronounced the benediction. The services in front of the Memorial hospital were brief and impressive.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO STUDENTS HIGHLY LAUDED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Nov. 9. — Deprecating the use of nomenclature in vogue in the United States in describing classes in Canadian universities, and urging Canadian students to cultivate something that would brand them as belonging to this northern country of North America, Professor George Urong, historian and educationist, addressed the local alumni of Toronto university here Saturday. Professor Urong lauded the high physical and moral standard of students at the university of Toronto, as these qualities were disclosed by the last presidential report, and pointed to the increase in donations to that institution as indicative of the high esteem in which it was everywhere held.

WARTIME WOODEN VESSELS ARE BURNED ON POTOMAC

Special to The Advertiser.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Stripped of their internal equipment and bound into a massive junk heap, 31 remnants of the mammoth war-time government fleet of wooden ships vanished in the flames of a salvager's torch early Saturday on the Potomac river.

It is estimated that 300 tons of metal will be saved from each of the vessels by the Western Marine Salvage Co., which still has 209 of the wooden craft awaiting a similar doom.

Associated Press Despatch.

P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine; E. E. McNary of the United States lines, and Sir George McLaren Brown of the Canadian Pacific Railway, were among those in attendance.

U.S. FIRM ADVERTISEMENT IN CANADA RESULTS IN FINE

Special to The Advertiser by Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, Nov. 9.—Labor advertisements of the Detroit Motor Bus Company, inserted in Canadian newspapers in violation of the alien contract law, resulted in a fine of $100 for the organization and another fine of $25 for Frank McGough, employment manager, in the federal court here last week. The advertisements were printed in newspapers at Hamilton and London, Judge Simons was told. Frank Dandy of London and David Affleck of Hamilton answered the advertisements, received application blanks and started for Detroit. They were intercepted by immigration officers at the border.

Wellington F. Evans, president of the Detroit Motor Bus Company, who pleaded guilty for the organization, informed the court that the Canadian advertisements were a deplorable error, due to unfamiliarity with the law. Soon after they had been printed, he said, he was informed the advertisements were illegal, and promptly took steps to prevent their repetition.

Because the violation was unintentional, Gregory H. Fredericks, assistant United States district attorney, recommended a minimum fine.

Indictments against the motor bus company and the employment manager were among the group of suppressed true bills returned last Monday by the federal grand jury.

LADY BYNG OPENS NEW RESIDENCE AT QUEEN'S

Canadian Press Despatch

Kingston, Nov. 9.—Ban Righ hall, the women's residence, was opened this afternoon by Lady Byng with a golden key given her by the Queens alumnae association through Mrs. Ross, Toronto. The hall cost $183,000, and is paid for. The cost of the furnishings, amounting to $15,000, has to be met. The girl undergraduates in two houses and in Ban Righ are in the care of Miss Hilda Laird, well known in secretarial work in Ottawa and in Geneva, and in library work at Albany, N. Y. The alumnae worked 25 years in bringing about the erection of the hall.

A special feature was the holding of convocation at Queens, presided over by Chancellor Sir Robert Borden, when Lady Byng was presented with the honorary LL.D. degree, the fourth lady honored in the life of the college. The deeds of the new hall were passed on to Hon. W. F. Nickle, chairman of the board of trustees, who acknowledged the gift and paid tribute to the devoted and unceasing work of the women graduates whose accomplished success was seen in the new residence.

YOUTH SERIOUSLY INJURED IN PANIC AT THEATRE FIRE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 9.—John Dagg, 12, suffered injuries to both eyes, burns about the face, a crushed thorax and general bruises, and six other boys were slightly injured when fire in the projection room of the Boulevard Theatre, St. Hubert street, spurted into the spectators' quarters and caused a panic among the children near the booth.

SULPHUR CLEARS AN ITCHING SKIN

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ-destroying properties, seldom fails to quickly subdue itching, even of fiery eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are healed right up. Rowles Mentho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a jar from any good druggist.—Advt.

ARMED RAIDERS AT DUBLIN SHOW AGITATION BY ATTACKS

Associated Press Despatch.

Dublin, Nov. 9.—Three raids by armed men were carried out in Dublin today, these being attributed to a recrudescence of republican activities brought on by the preparations being made to celebrate armistice day. The Republican agitators believed a pro-British color may be given to the celebrations.

Seven armed men this afternoon entered a motion picture theatre where a film of the battle of Ypres was being shown, and seized eight reels, the manager being forced to refund the audience's money. Six men raided the offices of the British Legion, an organization of ex-service men, and seized some books, presumably with the intention of obtaining the names of collectors for the "Flanders Poppy Fund."

This morning Patrick Sheehan, once a supporter of Eamonn de Valera, but now a member of the Free State prisons board, was kidnapped and held for an hour as a protest against the treatment accorded republican prisoners.

Civic guards are scouring Dublin and its suburbs, but so far have made no arrests.

CRIPPLED VESSEL BATTLES BIG STORM

Canadian Press Despatch.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 9.—While the salvage steamer Salvage King is rushing to her assistance, the British freighter Poleric, crippled by the shifting of her grain cargo, tonight is fighting the worst storm of the season, 500 miles out on the Pacific.

Messages received by the Pacific Salvage Company here from the Poleric said that, with a bad list to port, she was heading back to the coast in the teeth of a 50-mile southeast gale.

King's Resolve To Carry On Both Wise and Warranted, Declares Glasgow Herald

Eminent Scottish Paper Says Prime Minister Has Constitutional Precedent For Remaining in Office—Is Only Means To Avoid Stalemate—Need Tariff Verdict.

Associated Press Despatch.

Glasgow, Nov. 9.—The Glasgow Herald considers that Premier Mackenzie King's resolve to remain in office is a wise expedient that is warranted by constitutional precedent. It is, in fact, the only way in which a situation approaching a stalemate can be met, the Herald says.

Continuing, the Herald says the position is extremely unfortunate for Canada. It means that constructive legislation is at a standstill, and it illustrates the difficulties arising from the variety of conflicting economic and racial interests in the dominion since the development of the west and northwest.

"The lack of a national verdict on the tariff question," the Herald says, "is perhaps in the meantime not injurious to Canada's real interests, but it is unfortunate inasmuch as it delays much-needed measures regarding taxation, the National Railways and immigration."

The Herald notes that a conspicuous feature of the recent political history throughout the empire has been the decline in the three-party system. In Canada, according to the Herald, the future of the Progressive party is very doubtful.

Were the Progressives to merge with the Liberals and their leaders put forth a strong program bearing directly on national issues, the Herald concludes, the virtual deadlock at Ottawa would be ended.

India Resident To Settle Here

Special to The Advertiser.

West Lorne, Nov. 9.—Mr. Davidson of Simla, India, was in town last week, and, in company with W. H. Bole, inspected farms with a view to settling in this district. Mr. Davidson, who has been in Canada nine weeks, had visited the Okanagon Valley in British Columbia, but decided to locate in this part of Western Ontario.

Bowling

ON ARCADE ALLEYS

Probably the outstanding performance of the week's bowling at the Arcade was the six-game win of the Hi Flyers in a league double-header played Friday night. This puts them six full games in front for the first series. The Hi Flyers' scores were very high, considering that this is purely a shop league. Single games of 1,041 and 1,019 were played, and the three-game totals were 2,947 and 2,948. The attack was led by Hussey, who rolled two series of very fine games. He averaged 242 for the six games, having totals of 695 and 758.

The highest set of league games rolled this week was played by Martin Smith of the Underwood team in the Arcade industrial league. He got games of 233, 264 and 273 for a total of 770. Other 700 scores were: Wilson, 761; Haynes, 758; Burt, 747; Myers, 732; Drake, 713, and Carter, 703. The highest league single game was played by Pendleton, 344. Other 300 scores were: Wilson, 300; Ironsides, 304; Myers, 301; Hussey, 207.

The turkey for Thanksgiving was won by John Speirs, 58 Ada street. Speirs and Mac Wellman were tied for the turkey, and on the toss of a coin Speirs won, Wellman winning second prize, a box of cigars.

The highest girls' score for the week was made by Miss Payne of the Advertiser team with single games of 251 and 262, her total being 637. This is a very notable performance for girls' bowling, and Miss Payne is being congratulated on her performance.

The sweepstakes are growing each week, plenty of interest being shown, as every bowler has a chance in this event on account of the handicap system being used. High this week were J. A. Nash and L. Falconer with 2,401 pins for five games. L. Falconer had an average of 251 for the five games, getting 1,253, with a single game of 347. Second prize was won by Marley and Martin with 2,305.

The dinner decoration, donated by Dicks & Son to the girl bowling the highest single game on Saturday was won by Miss Gough with 267.

This week all bowlers scoring the total of 563 in three consecutive games will draw for first and second prizes on Saturday night at 10 o'clock. This is a new inovation, and a great deal of interest is being shown, as it is a very hard matter to get the exact score in a three-game total.

MONTREAL PAPERS INJURED PATENAUDE

ENDS MONTREAL RULE

Carrot of Power Held Before Patenaude's Nose Did Not Fool Quebec.

The Toronto Telegram publishes the following remarkable despatch from its Montreal correspondent, attacking the Patenaude campaign in Quebec, which had been the chief hope of the Conservative party, and abusing two outstanding Conservative newspapers, the Montreal Gazette and the Montreal Star.

Montreal, Nov. 6.—The reputation of St. James street as the final source of political wisdom collapsed with the failure of the Patenaude campaign. Out of the wreck and ruin of that failure, the Conservative party may arise with new fighting power in this province.

The Conservative party in Quebec has many enemies. Its greatest peril always threatens from the enemies within its own household. Real Conservatives played little part, if any, in the Patenaude adventure. Loyal Conservative leaders have had nothing to do with the fortunes of the Federal party in this province for more than fifteen years.

Sir Robert Borden is the man blamed by Quebec's Conservatives for starting the process which ended, they hope, forever, when Lord Atholstan's Patenaude Armada crashed on the rocks of the St. Lawrence on October 29th last. From Borden and Union Government came the coterie of St. James street financial dabblers in politics, whose activities were to spell unending failure for the Conservative party in Quebec.

The St. James street type of Conservative is incapable of loyalty to party or principle. He has two allied attachments, one to his bank account and the other to the Taschereau government at Quebec. In looking back over the Patenaude campaign, it is important to keep that Taschereau attachment in mind.

These Manage Party.

When he was Conservative or union premier in 1911 and afterwards Sir Robert Borden appointed to the senate and initiated into the Conservative party Messrs. Lorne C. Webster, Smeaton White, Geo. G. Foster, (not to be confused with George Eulas), C. P. Beaubien and O. Lesperance. These are the gentlemen who have since been credited with directing the destinies of the federal Conservative party in Quebec. Webster and Foster are Grits. The latter is Lord Atholstan's solicitor. Senator White, head of the Montreal Gazette, is chief apologist and press agent for the Taschereau government of Quebec. Add to this group Lord Atholstan, C. C. Ballantyne and Sir Lomer Gouin associated with them, stir and serve and you get the unsavory political mess that has composed the federal Conservative leadership in this province.

Naturally, the party got nowhere. The party was never intended to get anywhere. It would be idle to pretend that Meighen is popular in Quebec, but the Pope of Rome himself could not have led the Conservative party forward under the handicap of this St. James' street leadership.

Orval J. Strachan. b 197 Dundas St.

HON. E. S. PATENAUDE,
leader of the Conservative party in Quebec, whose movement met with crushing defeat in the federal elections. The campaign is now being strongly criticized by Conservative newspapers.

Borden blew up the party's prospects when he foisted this clique upon it.

Never Dangerous.

Ontario has heard much of the Patenaude campaign. The picture has been painted mainly in the awesome phrases of those who were impressed with that ill-starred venture as a menace to popular rights. What is the truth? The truth is that the Patenaude campaign never menaced anybody or anything, but its architects. Quebec never took it seriously, any more than did Ontario.

Nothing is so funny as an amusing attempt to be serious. When Lord Atholstan, of the Montreal Star, who for years has been unable to move Montreal, undertook the task of overturning all Quebec, the spectacle was so ridiculous that its very audacity kept the public breathless. The complete failure of the Montreal Star and Gazette's ballyhoo campaign to get results on October 29 released the floodgates of feeling. One day's voting revealed the sword of Patenaude naked as a slapstick. Quebec is still a-chuckle. If there is one paper which has less public influence than the Montreal Star, that paper is the Montreal Gazette.

Never Loyal.

Each one has no legitimate part or place in political affairs. With all its defects, party politics proceeds on loyalty to association and principle. For years the Star and the Gazette have lived on disloyalty to the Conservative party. With the St. James street clique aforesaid, they have prevented the people of Quebec from finding in Conservative principles those solid advantages with which the party is identified in history. The only way to build a party framework is to appeal to the people on the constructive merit of the Conservative program. That appeal has never been made in recent years in Quebec. It has been prevented with studious care.

St. James street entered the recent campaign with high hopes. It expected to put Patenaude at Ottawa with a group of goodly size, and it felt sure that Meighen would not display any great strength in the country. It entered into negotiations with certain men outside of Quebec, who might be drafted to replace Meighen as leader of the Conservatives and the Patenaude followers. The carrot held before Patenaude's nose was that he might become Premier of Canada himself. Such was the mirage which fooled nobody but its creators. But there was another feature to the undertaking. If Patenaude lost out, as he did, he would be removed as a thorn in the side of Taschereau at Quebec.

St. James street would bet something, win, lose or draw. And thus it proved itself incapable of loyalty even to Patenaude himself.

SPELLS AFFLICTED BLAZER'S MEMORY

TELLS OF DAUGHTER

Associated Press Despatch.

Littleton, Colo., Nov. 9.—For four long, gruelling hours today an old, wearied father occupied the witness stand and defended himself against the charge of slaying his 34-year-old daughter, Hazel Blazer, the first born and a helpless cripple and imbecile almost from birth.

When court opened Dr. Harold Elmer Blazer was sworn as a witness and for the major portion of the court day continued his testimony before a crowd.

"I believe in immortality; I believe my daughter had a soul, and I did not slay her," the elderly country doctor declared on direct examination by H. W. Spangler, of his staff of defense counsel.

In the face of cross-examination by Prosecuting Attorney Joel E. Stone, Dr. Blazer maintained his composure, although often admitting that "he didn't remember," when confronted with apparently conflicting statements made by himself during the cororner's inquest several months ago and in direct examination today.

The courtroom was jammed as Dr. Blazer walked to the stand. In a low but distinct voice he answered the questions of defence counsel, H. W. Spangler.

"Hazel was born at Dillonvale, O., in May, 1891," he testified. "At six weeks she was stricken with spinal meningitis, that left her a hopeless invalid—without a mind, as near as I could tell," he said. He spoke with visible emotion as he described his helpless, imbecile daughter.

"She couldn't walk, talk, feed or help herself. She could roll about the floor—that was all.

"She couldn't even indicate if she was in pain. And often I couldn't discover where it was.

"She could rattle a piece of paper, and occasionally would amuse herself by tearing the paper to pieces. Although she weighed 90 pounds, she was as helpless as an infant of two months."

Child Often Ill.

Typhoid and pneumonia were numbered among the many illnesses that beset the "child-woman" from infancy, the witness said.

While her father was testifying, Mrs. Frances Bishop, a younger daughter, sat with her head bowed, shielding her face with her hands as occasionally her body shook with sobs.

"We came to Colorado in 1910, settling at Montevista," he said. "We moved to Englewood, Colo., in December, 1924, several months after the death of my wife. After Mrs. Blazer's death I cared for her by myself.

"I though often what might become of Hazel when I died. I never talked the matter over with my wife before her death.

"Once when I was away on business, Hazel was stricken ill and other doctors said she would die. When I returned home she looked at me and almost laughed. She was almost well within 24 hours.

"I stopped practicing in April, 1924, when I had spells of numbness, which made my head feel heavy and I couldn't see very well. I could think at these times, but I could never be sure my conclusions were right and I was afraid I might make a mistake in prescribing for patients. These spells started coming on six or eight years ago. They were the same as those I suffered during the last two years, but not so pronounced. They got worse after Mrs. Blazer's death, and occurred oftener. Sometimes they lasted for a day and a night and I was unable to articulate, think or see. I have a cataract over one eye and do not see well anyway.

"When I was 23 years old, my skull was fractured by a falling limb, but I apparently recovered.

Suffered Spells.

"In the year prior to Hazel's death, I had eight or ten spells—several after I came to Englewood.

"I don't know, whether or not I ever lost my mind during these spells. I rarely ate during these spells.

"I'm not sure I remember anything about it.

"I don't remember when they came home."

While Dr. Blazer was telling of his "spells and numbness," the state's attorneys took notes on his testimony, and the prosecution injected its first objection—about the witness' loss of memory after the slaying. Attorney Spangler changed his questions to conform to the desires of the state's attorney.

"Do you recollect giving Hazel any drugs?" Blazer was asked by Spangler.

"No," he replied.

"No."

Recalls Little.

"No."

"Do you recollect Dr. H. H. Alredge waiting on you?"

"No, sir, I do not."

"Do you recall locking the doors of the house?"

"No. I recall seeing some of my friends there after this thing happened, but I couldn't say when."

The accused man said his mind was "almost an absolute blank" ever since his son-in-law came to the house on the day of the crime until several days later.

The witness said he was a member of the Presbyterian church, and that Hazel was baptized in that church.

"Do you believe in the immortality of the soul?" Blazer was asked.

"Yes, sir," he replied.

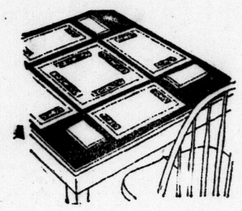

"Do you believe in the Ten Commandments, and the commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill'?"

"Yes, sir," he declared with emphasis.

"Did you kill your daughter Hazel, to your own knowledge?"

"No, sir," Blazer said.

GERMAN FEMINIST URGES BEER INSTEAD OF OPIATES

American Women Come In for Criticism by Doctor.

Berlin, Nov. 9—"If American women drank a stein of strong beer before going to bed they would need less opiates," writes Dr. Grete Schueler-Helbing, a well-known woman physician, in the Taeglische Rundschau. "It is far less harmful to drink beer, which in most cases has a quieting, soporitic influence, than to get used to opiates. Almost always opiates after they have been employed once or twice lead to a regular habit."

SUNDAY URGED AS REST DAY.

Consantinople, Nov. 9.—The government organ advocated the adoption of Sunday, instead of Friday, as the day of rest in Turkey. The idea is to bring Turkey in line with the western powers, and also avoid the loss of two days weekly, as at present both Friday and Sunday are rest days.

BUCKS FOUND WITH HORNS LOCKED AFTER DEATH-DUEL

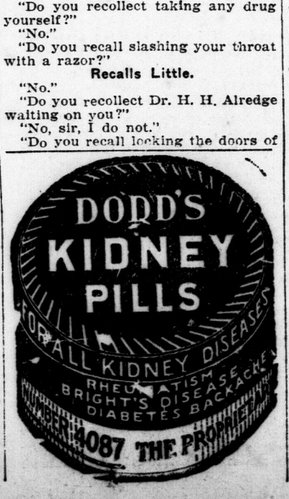

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 9.—Two big bucks that fought a duel to a finish were found in the woods in Dickinson county on Sunday by Fred Hutchinson, of Marinette, a woods superintendent for the I. Stephenson Company.

The battle had taken place a few miles from the company's camp. The bucks lay with their horns interlocked, one dead and the other so weakened it fell back to the ground when it attempted to arise upon the approach of the woodsman.

Hutchinson was unable to release the interlocked antlers until he severed the horns of the dead deer with an axe. The winner of the duel staggered away into the thickets.

INTERVENTION OF BRYAN SAVED DARROW FROM JAIL

New York, Nov. 9.—Judge Raulston, who presided at the famous Dayton, Tenn., "evolution trial," told an audience in New York last night that only the intervention of William Jennings Bryan prevented him from sending Clarence Darrow, defence attorney in the trial, to jail for contempt of court. "Mr. Bryan stepped to the side of the bench," said Judge Raulston, "and whispered, 'Judge, be merciful.'"

YOUTH CONFESSES MURDER AFTER PARENTS ARE HELD

Ovilla Fleury, 14-Year-Old Duclose, Que., Boy, Admits Slaying Grandmother, But Declares Killing Was Accidental—Autopsy Revealed Aged Woman Had Been Shot.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hull, Que., Nov. 9.—Honore Fleury, farmer of Duclose, Que., and his wife will be arraigned in Hull police court tomorrow morning and formally charged with the murder of the former's mother, Mme. Mathilde Fleury, aged 63, who was shot to death at their lonely farm-house in the Gatineau Hills on Friday.

The police are skeptical over the alleged confession of 14-year-old Ovilla Fleury, son of the accused, and are of the opinion that the statement made by the boy was to shield his parents. At the inquest Sunday, the lad testified that he entered the kitchen on Friday afternoon and saw his grandmother lying on the floor and that he called for his parents to render assistance. After the arrest of his parents, he is alleged to have confessed to the police that he had accidently shot his grandmother with a .38 calibre revolver belonging to his elder brother He is being held by the police as a material witness.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Hull, Que., Nov. 9.—Ovilla Fleury, aged fourteen, has confessed, police officers state, to having accidentally shot and killed his grandmother, Mme. Matilde Clouthier Fleury, aged 63, at their lonely farmhouse near Duclos, twenty miles from Wakefield, Quebec, in the Gatineau hills district on Friday afternoon. No details of the fatality were known until the arrival here late today of Detective J. F. Dalpe of Monreal, who investigated the accident. Honore Fleury and his wife, together with their son, Ovilla, are under custody, charged with being criminally responsible for the slaying.

Young Ovilla Fleury, according to the police officers, after seeing his parents arrested, and being prompted by his father to tell the truth, admitted that he had accidentally shot his grandmother. He had taken the revolver, he is said to have told the police, and went out to shoot at the birds, but the gun would not go off. In returning to the kitchen, the revolver had accidentally gone off and killed his grandmother.

At the inquest in the farmhouse, which terminated at an early hour this morning, it was shown that Mme. Fleury was shot with a .38 caliber revolver, said to be owned by Telesphere Fleury, an elder brother of young Ovilla, who was away at the time of the shooting.

According to the story told at the inquest, Ovilla entered he kitchen in time to see his grandmother sinking to the floor. He called his parents, but she was dead by the time that they were able to assist her. It was not until the inquest, when Dr. Wilfred Derome, provincial medico-legal analyst, who arrived with the coroner and police officers, had been able to make an autopsy, that it became known that the woman had been shot.
