A very successful programme was given Wednesday evening in Easton St. Presbyterian church by the girls' and boys' organized classes, the "Always Ready's" and the "Lookouts." The program consisted of recitations, dialogues, choruses and a debate which was attentively listened to by a large audience. A neat sum was realized and will be used for patriotic purposes.

The closing meeting of the Donna Robinson Mission Circle of the Colborne Street Methodist Church was held last Tuesday at the home of the President, Mrs. R. Reid. There was an attendance of thirty. After a dainty supper was served, Mrs. (Rev.) Holling addressed the circle and presented life membership certificates, which were eight in number. Last evening, Mr. E. W. P. Jones and Miss Ina May Jones entertained the adult members of Sydenham street church to an informal lawn and house entertainment at their beautiful residence at Grandview Park. The affair was in the interests of the Sunday school and the entertainment was splendid. The grounds were a bower of beauty and many admiring expressions were heard. The younger section of the crowd played games on the lawn but later in the evening all turned inside to enjoy the following splendid programme: instrumental, Miss Whitney; musical bells, Miss Whitney and the Misses Williams; reading, Mrs. Benson; Miss Shultz; Highland Fling; Miss Whitney and the Misses Williams; solo, Miss Hammond; solo, Miss Shultz. The participants in the programme are well known, and each one lived up to their well-established reputation. Much interest was manifested in the clever work of the little Misses Williams. Their dumb-bell work and their exposition of the Highland Fling were splendidly executed. Mrs. Swartz of Woodstock, assisted Mrs. and Miss Jones in receiving their guests; Mrs. J. Laing poured coffee, and Mrs. Hewitson poured tea. The assistants were Miss Graham, Miss Turner, Miss Margaretson and Mrs. Ernest Anderson. The affair was a most delightful one, and appreciation was expressed on all sides for the thoughtfulness and interest shown by the host and hostess in the interests of the Sydenham Street Sunday school.

The cosy parlors of Wellington St. Church were thrown invitingly open on Thursday evening to a number of friends on the occasion of a strawberry festival under the auspices of the Young Peoples' League.

There was nothing stereotyped about the modes of entertaining that offered. The guests were at liberty to sit and gaze one at the other, or to contemplate reflectively the arc lights suspended from ceiling and walls; else might they wander at will among the empty tables of the refreshment rooms, inhaling the rare and elusive perfumes of bridal wreaths and geranium plants. Were one disposed to solitary musing, he might do the dolce far niente to his heart's content, while ever and anon strains of patriotic airs subconsciously inspired young hearts to dream of valorous deeds "on battlefields where thousands need to lift one hero into fame."

Three snapshots of conversation interrupted the sequence of one's thoughts now and then, when mixed foursomes, swell undercuts, low sets, and hints of prowess in ascending the ladder of fame by means of tennis tournaments, lent the touch of realism necessary to round out a perfect evening.

Taken all in all, those who were fortunate enough to be absent, are to be congratulated, while those privileged to be present will not readily forgive the happy evening at First Methodist Church.

TWO LETTERS FROM THE FIGHTING LINE

Corp. Hamilton and Corp. Bell Write Home.

The following letter from Corp. A. Hamilton of the Fighting Fourth is very interesting, and depicts the life things that cause heartaches on active service. A soldier is a very human boy, as his letters show.

My Dear Mrs. Sara: I have not heard from you for quite a considerable time, but I suppose my wandering around has quite a lot to do with it. I have heard from Steve lately quite a while, but I suppose he is too busy to write. I know he is alright, having met one of the boys from the front. The transport never lost a man so far. I am at present "batman" for young Gillen who arrived here yesterday from the hospital. He was wounded in the head, but not seriously, so will be going back next week and I expect to be going with him. He kept on fighting after he was hit for quite a while, and when it was dark helped to get in the wounded, one of the Brantford boys, Huggins by name, dying while being brought in. The lad I worked with at the Riocho, my tankmate, who I was about him, he was the lad who threw bricks during the riot, was killed. His name was Ellis. But you will know more about how the boys from Brantford went on better than I do. Well, I hope yourself and sister and baby are quite well, and I believe Pete is over here now. I don't know how I am going on the time, so please send that package to Ethel if I should catch in the next time. I was lucky last time, but my luck might not hold good twice. There is nothing important in that package except my mother's last letters to me, and a few photos. Now don't get the idea I am downhearted. I am not, but I realize what I am up against and think it is best to be happy about it. Steve is better off in not having to go in the trenches or take part in the attacks, but they are liable to attacks by shell fire. But the man who has charge of them is an old hand at the game, having done the same thing in Africa, and has a good head. I hope you are settled in your new house now and are comfortable. Give my Canadian nephew a kiss for me, and I hope he is well. I hear Pete's regiment is taking turns in the trenches, or is going to take turns in the trenches, but I reckon they will be alright. They are a good bunch.

I have no more to say at present. Best love to you all.

Yours, ALBERT

Dead men, dead horses and wrecked buildings, such are the daily scenes around Ypres, depicted in a letter from Corp. W. Bell to Mr. Raymond the Postmaster.

May 22 Dear Sir,—Just a few lines to let you know I am well and doing a well-cash in the next time. I was in the trenches for four days and it doesn't seem to be right where it is so quiet after those seventeen days of hell at Ypres and seven days at another place. It is remarkable how reckless a person you are. I guess they have been in action a few times. The first few days at Ypres I was very cautious but towards the last, when we heard the whistling of shells, we would try and locate which way they were coming when at first we would duck in a ditch or a hole of some sort and never mind the direction. Well, Mr. Raymond, the world will never know half what the dirty Germans have done, but you can see for yourself the Canadians will get back at them for the way they treated some of our boys; and they know it. I think they have an idea that we are savages, as some of the prisoners call our Scotch "wild women fighters." I guess they put up a great fight. The country around here is a great farming community and the people are very industrious. Of course when you are in the fighting zone everything is gone to ruin. Ypres must have been a very fine place before the war, but it is an awful looking place now; buildings wrecked, and dead horses lying around by the hundreds; also dead men; wagons blown to pieces, also wheels and motor bikes and motor cars. The Germans have a gun which we call the Ypres express. It must be a 15 inch or a 17 inch gun. You could hear the shell going through the air a mile away, and see the explosion long before you could hear the report. Nearly all the English troops tell us that the Canadian artillery are the best artillery out here as their marksmanship is perfect. They always put the shells into the right spot, and the Germans know that by this time. We went into action with with 12 eighteen-pounders, and came out with seven that were left. Of course we brought the other five out and they were overhauled, and are now O.K. It is rather exciting when under shell fire and also amusing at the way our boys take it. If a shell comes close to you you will hear them abuse the Germans, calling them all sorts of names; and if they are a long way off, they will laugh and poke fun at their poor shells, but as the country is full of them, it does not do much good, take them long to get our range.

Well, Mr. Raymond, I must close; remember me to all the boys around the office, and I hope soon we will be marching into Berlin, because it is a certainty they cannot lick us, and we will win in the end. Hoping to hear from you soon.

Why work like a machine for hours at a heavy washing - it's not profitable when you consider the very moderate charges for Brantford Laundry Service! And remember the Brantford Laundry is equipped with the finest machinery that money can buy - expert workers are employed in every department.

Right here in Brantford is a model laundry at your service. We can do your work better and cheaper than is possible in your home and save you many hours of hard, tiresome work. ## COUNTY COURT SITTING

The county council held another long session yesterday afternoon. A deputation from the Provincial Good Roads association in the person of Mr. Squire, was present and a long discussion ensued about the improvement of the county roads.

Mr. Evans read the report of the Buildings and Grounds committee concerning the new Registry Office. This was satisfactory and on motion of Mr. Evans was adopted.

Reeve Harris and Chairman Evans were appointed to interview Barber and Tilley and report to the Council, after which settlement was made. There was considerable discussion over the assessment of the various townships of the county, but this matter was left over until to-day's session, which promises to be a long and busy one.

TEN VESSELS ATTACKED IN THREE DAYS

Germans Were Very Active at Sea Last Week

By Special Wire to the Courier.

London, June 5.—Another German air raid on the coasts of England last night, coupled with the usual week-end activity of German submarines, are the war developments of the past twelve hours, which are today holding public attention. Discussion of the fall of Przemysl has been laid aside for matters nearer home.

Little is known as yet of the extent of the aerial attack, but it does not seem to have done much damage or been costly in lives.

German submarines have been very busy during the past few days in the North Sea, and in the British Channel. Ten vessels have been attacked in the last three days without loss of life, except in the case of the Przemysl, Victoria, four members of the crew of this boat and a boy passenger having fallen victims to shells fired by the attacking submarines. The big, best capture of the Germans was the 5,000 tons Liverpool steamer Inkarn.

Another important victim was the Cairn Liner Iona, erroneously reported at first as the Wilson Line steamer of the same name. The other ships sent to the bottom by the Germans include in addition to several trawlers four neutral ships, two Danish, one Norwegian and one Swedish.

The Austro-German forces have pushed their salient as far as Tulkha which is some distance northeast of Przemysl. Notwithstanding the evacuation of this fortress, the Russians have maintained an unbroken fighting front on both sides of the railroad to Lemberg. Thus far the Austrians and Germans apparently have made little progress since the taking of Przemysl although an official report states that the Russians have been driven east to the vicinity of Medyka.

British and French reports indicate hard fighting on the western front without much progress for either side. The Belgian frontier has again been closed to traffic. This tends to concentrate the German forces in the west, moving heavy reinforcements to their positions along the Yser canal.

Germans of Disease should be promptly excluded from the system, especially when the system is especially susceptible to them. Get rid of all impurities in the blood, purify your whole body and prevent disease.

Mr. A. D. He had acted as agent, not only for more than one English office, but for many individual clients and corporations, and I believe that the sums which Mr. Stanton had lent successfully, without a penny being lost, are many millions."

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen, and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.

THE SITUATION.

Petrograd refuses to admit that the withdrawal of Russian troops from Przemysl has proved a disaster. They state that the army of occupation marched out in good order from an untenable position, and that in any event the troops will be freer and more effective in the field.

Many more vessels have been added to the bag of the German submarines. Such events are taking place with great regularity, but it is quite easy to over exaggerate their importance. The record of craft thus far sunk totals some 500,000 tons, whereas the net tonnage of vessels registered at ports of the British Empire is over 5,000,000.

They deserve, and will receive, the very hearty thanks of citizens generally. To Mayor Spence and Ald. S. Pitcher and his committee the main portion of the credit is due. They hung on like bulldogs and as the final outcome the coon has come down.

diminished vigor and the disclosures have very much the appearance of six of one and half a dozen of the other, with a most undesirable state of affairs regarding each of the local parties. The Kelleys, who had the contract, are stated to have helped the campaign funds of both sides during the recent election with large sums in cash evidently with the idea that they would stand in pat, no matter what happened. This sort of thing is absolutely indefensible. A clean career for any man is the greatest of all assets and it is so with a Government.

The greatest strength of the late Sir James Whitney did not rest in his ability so much as in the absolute and the fearless honesty of the man. He would not stand for even the semblance of wrong-doing and everyone knew and appreciated the fact that under him, there was honest administration in all directions.

It has been a long and a severe fight with stand-offs at every turn until it finally came to the issue, "a proper supply or the city takes the franchise."

When that sulphuretted gas departs, it will be unwept, unremembered and unsung. With a name like that, Przemysl really cannot feel very much no matter what it suffers.

It is announced that Premier Asquith spent several days at the front looking at the condition of affairs at first hand. He is showing marvellous vigor under a tremendous strain, this man of 70 years.

ROSES.

Most of us became decorated at an early hour to-day with one of these flowers, and if not, it was certainly through no fault of the bevy of women and girls who were out bright and early to distribute these emblems in return for contributions to that exceedingly worthy object symbolized by the words, "Hospital Day."

The rose has from time immemorial been the favorite flower of many lands, and held in high esteem by many peoples. They are natives of all the temperate parts of the northern hemisphere, and of its colder regions, even to Lapland. It is a native of the Caucasus, of China, where it is used often for flavoring tea, and in fact has had a world-wide habitat, and was much cultivated by the ancients.

Its glories have been sung by Shakespeare and all the rest of the poetic immortals, and its sweet fragrance has permeated through all of human time. It is historic, even to the extent of "the war of the Roses," that memorable civil contest which took place in the Old Land for thirty years when the houses of York and Lancaster were laying claim to the throne and one side wore a white rose and the other a red. It has also had its place as the emblem of secrecy, sub rosa or under the rose, intimating without further ado that confidences so exchanged are to be kept absolutely private.

THE WINNIPEG REVELATIONS. When the Roblin Government recently resigned in Manitoba, the incident came as a great all round surprise even in Winnipeg. The statement was made that such a course had been decided upon in order to stave off revelations regarding the erection of the Parliamentary buildings. It was further alleged that because of withdrawal from office the enquiry would cease, but such has not in any sense proved to be the case. It is being pushed with un-dig, dug, till we were fairly buried in sand and bar. Thrice we had to man the guns, but the enemy weren't having any massed attack—contented themselves with sniping and trying to draw our fire.

At 4 a.m. we did some more touching up to our emplacements and had a few ship's biscuits and bully beef, when our general sent down to say we were in too dangerous a position and were to retire behind the crest again.

After all our digging we were loathe to do so, but orders are orders, and we dragged the guns by hand back over the crest and proceeded to dig again! In the evening we were back again! We had orders to open fire on some infantry that were troubling us, only to find that in our new position we couldn't get at them (couldn't pull the crew) and were just going to pull our guns forward again when we got fresh orders.

We got shelled all that day, but their shooting was ludicrous, and their shells only burst once every two or three times. One landed (and burst) about six yards from me, right between my two guns—no damage. I dug it out afterwards and kept the fuse for luck. We couldn't locate the enemy's battery at all. Scouts reported that the farm building was promptly demolished said building, but I doubt if they were there—nothing came out.

My section led the artillery and we had a pretty tough time. Barbed wire entanglements, trenches to be filled, two gun wheels got in trenches, and we had an awful job to get them out. One place we had to get forty men on to a gun for over one-quarter of a mile. Huge holes torn up by machine guns, horses and men dogged the officers in the worst of tempers (I was too sleepy to swear much). By 3.30 a.m. we had advanced about three miles, and suddenly found the bullets whistling about our ears, and returning a couple of hundred yards, and into action prepared for an attack. Nothing more happening, however, for half an hour, I gave the order, sit down, and a dead sleep.

My Major and the Major of the Howitzer battery, that was next behind us, had both gone forward to select better positions, so I was in charge behind. I very nearly came to an untimely end. Was wandering into my two revolvers shoving when I got two wide awake subalterns of the other batteries thought they had got a spy. They both said they very nearly fired, but thought they'd try and get me alive. A lesson to me to be more careful.

After twenty minutes snooze (for the men) we were ordered to advance again, and half a mile further halted in a wood, and had some more biscuits and another twenty minutes, during which the left section, under Gifford, rejoined us, they landed on Saturday evening but were cut off on their right) and then the whole battery took up a good position under cover, and at 8 a.m. we opened fire. The Major was ahead with the Colonel, observing; Gifford was attending to the ammunition supply and I was with the battery, with Brooke assisting.

We fired almost continuously all day, and I think we did very well. The discipline and drill were almost perfect, and I believe the Colonel was pleased with its effect. About 4 p.m. my section was ordered to advance to close support of the infantry. Away we trotted and came right into the open. I was too busy to be afraid—don't think it ever occurred to me, but the air fairly hammered me, and several of the men got hit, before we reached the major, who stood there to show us where to go. We were not unlimbered when a Turkish battery started pelting us with shells. My! how they buzzed and banged and splattered. Their shooting was rotten or I think we would have been wiped out. They must have fired hundreds of rounds at us, but never got a direct hit on a gun once. I got hit, but had fired two rounds, and was practically hors-de-combat thereafter. The Major was killed just after and as we couldn't get a blink of their guns, we stopped firing, and they did me all dead. My wound is slight, flesh wound only, and I'll be back again in a few weeks I hope. It was a bit sore and I was given morphia by an officer who came along. After dark I was put on a stretcher and carried off. Our fine weather broke and it simply poured all the way to the beach—pretty miserable trip—and worse for my two bearers, who were dead beat by the time we got there—midnight.

I was taken on board a hospital ship in the morning and came on to Alexandria, thence by train to Cairo and by motor ambulance to the Hotel Helopolis palace hotel—now transformed into a hospital with over 1,000 beds in it. I am quite enjoying the rest, and the doctor said I would be walking about in a week. I hope they'll let me go back soon. I'll get fit on the two days of steamer. Our night nurse is a very jolly girl—we have lots of fun with her.

There are seven in this room—Capt. Pike and Lt. Reilly of Inniskilling Fus., a Munster, Worcester, Lancashire, Fusilier, Middleton Rn., and myself. We're all doing well and are told we're the most troublesome lot in the hospital. The other fellows, who are hit in arms and shoulders,

CARRANZA WILL REPLY FAVORABLY TO PRES. WILSON

Washington, June 5.—Unofficial advices received from Vera Cruz saying that General Carranza would reply favorably to President Wilson's statement calling for the heads of the warring factions in Mexico to restore peace in the southern republic gave renewed hope to administration officials to-day of ultimate solution of the problem.

General Carranza is the first one of the heads of the contending factions to be heard from directly concerning the president's warning. Officials have heard indirectly concerning the president's proposal. General Carranza's reply, it was said, was being prepared by Jesus Urusta, Constitutional foreign minister, and would be delivered to John P. Silliman, President Wilson's personal representative in Mexico, probably by Monday. The reply, the advices said, would be "appreciative, friendly and serene" in tone. Carranza, it was said, intended to interpret the President's warning as a tacit hint that he was the best man to assume the "Custodian World," and other revolutionary literature. He is now in the hands of the police.

NAVY, POET AND SOLDIER.

Romance of Patrick McGill, the Irish Bard.

"Somewhere in France," with the London Irish Rifles, is Private Patrick McGill, navy, poet, novelist, and soldier, whose career is a veritable romance of self-help. Those acquainted with the life of Patrick McGill will recognize in his latest book, "The Rat Pit," which tells a tragic story of the ruin brought about by the subject poverty and oppression of certain Irish people, much of his own biography.

With bitterness in his voice Patrick McGill once told the writer, after he had led his pick and shovel in Scotland to become a Fleet street reporter, how, in his boyhood days, his mother was obliged to knit socks for a rich yarn merchant, and by working fourteen hours a day, summer and winter, she used to earn the princely wage of 1-1-4d. per day.

As a boy in Donegal McGill confesses that he was always hungry. When he was eleven he worked in the fields for 6d. a day, his work beginning at five in the morning and finishing at eleven at night. But even in those days, while suffering hardship and hunger, the passion for writing revealed itself. He relates how, when he had crept to his attic beneath the leaky roof which allowed the rain to come and saturate his blankets during the wet weather, he wrote verses to the stars, until his master caught him and threatened him with the sack.

From Ireland he went to Scotland, where he traveled from one farm to another with a gang, digging potato-tops, sleeping in byres and pigsties, ultimately securing a job as a navvy on the Caledonian Railway. It was while on this job that he wrote his first story on a greasy piece of paper. "I intended," he says, "to make a fair copy of the tale afterwards, but, not having the requisite peace for ink and postage stamps, I put the story by and promptly forgot about it." Five years later I came across it again, when examining some old papers, rectified a few grammatical errors, typed the story, and sent it off to the Pall Mall Gazette, where it was immediately published.

Naturally the publication of this story encouraged him to further literary efforts. He began to study English, although he laughingly recalls how, when he read a certain poem entitled "The Lady of the Line" to his fellow-navvies on the Caledonian Railway, some of them remarked (not at all unkindly) that he would end his days in a mad-house.

Less Crime in Britain. Since the war began there has been a marked decrease in the number of criminals in Britain. This tendency was clearly in evidence during the years immediately preceding, but the decline in the last eight months has been surprising. When charging the grand jury at the recent London sessions Mr. R. Wallace, K.C., said that the calendar for the lightest in the history of the county, the number of prisoners being only a fifth of what it was three or four years ago. This he attributes in part to the earlier closing of public houses, but also to the great restraint which people had shown since the beginning of the war. This is only another sign of the change that has passed over the British people at this greatest of crises in their history. All observers agree that a similar transformation has taken place in the case of the Belgian, French and Russian nations. They have all been moved to the very core of their being and the influences that have awakened them into newness of life will remain after war has given place to peace.

GOT HOUSE-WARMING.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moulie of the Brant Theatre, last night got a surprise—one of the greatest ever. On their adjoining for the evening to their new home on Chatham street, as they entered it was suddenly illuminated and a huge "Welcome Home" sign hung in the entrance hall flared up. Thereupon upwards of forty friends made their appearance from all over the house and a lively hotel was then thrown open, and displayed every convenience for hungry guests, tables, good cooking, etc., all of which had been done without the knowledge of the main parties concerned, who by this time were enjoying to the full this exhibition of the loyal feelings of their staff. A splendid evening was then passed, the vaudeville company lending their aid and with toasts for the "homesteaders" and much merriment making the evening was drawn to a close about three o'clock this morning.

ONLY FIVE SAVED.

It was ascertained this morning from Mr. A. Amikhanian, the local Armenian Missionary, that there were twenty-five Armenian volunteers bound for Russia, aboard the Lusitania. Only five of them were saved.

DONATED A COAT.

The police Commission decided yesterday, on the motion of the Chief Constable, to donate $50 from the emergency fund towards the cost of a coat in a Canadian Army base hospital, the coat to be named "The Brantford Police Coat." The chief submitted his report upon licenses and other matters pertaining to the good order of the city, and it was considered highly satisfactory by the commission. A number of accounts were passed and a quiet and short session was closed.

A NOVEL SENSATION.

Quite a bit of excitement was caused this morning among the youngsters on Dalhousie street by the toy balloons which were sent up by Robertson's Drug Store. These balloons were sent up every few minutes and were of all colors. After ascending some distance, they would gradually float down, as there was no wind to blow them any distance away. As each one came down there was a lively scramble among the kiddies, for each balloon had a tag attached to it, and these can be exchanged for merchandise to the value of from 25c. to $10.

WELL PLAC'ED

A very close game of softball was played between the Brants and Beavers last night at Recreation Park. Up to the eighth innings the score was a tie, each team securing one run. The Brants certainly surprised their opponents and it looked very much as if they would carry off the honors, but the breaks were against them, and the final score in the ninth was 3-1 in the Beavers favor. The Beavers have a strong line-up, but the Brants are going to keep them guessing before the season closes. The batteries were: Beavers, McQuinn and Stewart; Brants, Harry Fleming and Robbins.

NIPPED IN THE BUD

A fire which might have become very serious, was discovered in the Commercial Building about 1 o'clock this morning, and nipped in the bud by the firemen. A passer-by happened to notice smoke issuing from Doering's Electric store, and immediately notified Sergt. Donnelly, who turned in the alarm. The firemen soon appeared on the spot and broke into the store. They found the fire in the basement, and with their chemicals soon extinguished the blaze. Very small damage was caused by the fire, $15 or $20 easily covering the loss. This is another victory to be credited to the firemen, for if they had not caught the fire before it got started, a large fire might easily have resulted.

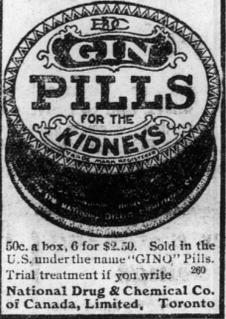

YOUNG PEOPLES' GUILD

The closing meeting of Zion Presbyterian Young Peoples' Guild was held on Monday evening, when reports from each department were read showing the society to be in a flourishing condition and the following officers for the season of 1915-16 were installed by Rev. T. E. Holling:—Honorary President, Rev. G. A. Woodside; President, Miss M. Mitchell; Secretary, Miss M. Gamble; Treasurer, Mr. A. Beattie; convener of social committee, Mrs. W. Carson;

A Neighbor Told Him To Take Gin Pills

FOR THE KIDNEYS. If you want to know what Gin Pills will do for you, just drop a line to Mr. D. A. Yorke, at Bellrock, Ont. He will tell you what Gin Pills did for him, after he had suffered with Kidney trouble for 15 years. Here is his letter:

"I suffered for about 15 years with my kidneys. I could get nothing to help me. The pain went all through my back and shoulder and down the calves of my legs. When I would sit down for a while, I could not straighten up again until I would walk a mile or more, the pain was so bad. I was advised to take GIN PILLS. I did so and six boxes cured me. It is about two and a half years since I quit taking them. My back is all right; no pain and no more backache. I can get up and go to it all—they are worth their weight in gold." D. A. YORKE.

COUNTY RETURNS

The well-filled little red boxes which have come in to headquarters from the collectors and returned in the county form a magnificent tribute to the sterling work accomplished by Mrs. J. J. Hurley, convenor for the county, in the great Hospital Rose Day effort. This morning she had received boxes from almost her entire district, which included those from Paris, Alford Junction, Parkdale, Governor's road, from St. George to Paris Middleport, Oakland and Burch. Mrs. Hurley and her workers have every reason to be gratified with the fruits of their good efforts.

RETURNED FROM SERVICE

There has returned from Toronto after a long illness of three months, Trooper R. Griffin, of the C. M. R., who left on Saturday November 21st with Lieut. Col. C. M. R. and the squadron of the 25th Brant Dragoons. His discharge explains the cause returned from service.

Toronto, May 15th. From the O.C. commanding C.M.R.R. To Whom it May Concern:

This is to certify that Trooper Robert Griffin was struck off the strength of the Canadian Mounted Rifle Regiment on 12th May, 1915, on account of his weak heart, caused from pneumonia. His conduct for the time he was in the regiment, was excellent.

completed (sometime during the month of June) it is intended to carry Tilbury gas to Hamilton by this line thereby relieving the line through Brantford entirely free from transporting or distributing this gas. The Companies interested then intend to resume the supply of Haldimand gas to the Brantford Gas Company, and intend to continue to supply that gas to Brantford, and to such an extent as they are able from the Haldimand field.

Yours truly, GEO. LYNCH-STAUNTON. I have much pleasure in congratulating yourself and the municipal authorities of Brantford, including the committee headed by Ald. S. P. Pitt. Your uncompromising refusal to allow this company to continue the distribution of sulphur gas in Brantford has been the means of securing the restoration of a supply of gas free from sulphur. In view of statements made to both of us whilst in Dunnville this past week by operators in the Seagriff field, who informed us that upwards of one hundred and twenty wells are at the present time shut down, the total output of which is available to the Gas Company if it chooses to purchase same, there is no reason to doubt the existence of an ample supply of gas in the Haldimand field sufficient for all purposes in the City of Brantford.

Yours very truly, W. T. HENDERSON I. Chauncey Martin died of heart failure as the Brooklyn baseball team got a home run which tied the game.

"Thank You" From the W. H. Aid

The Women's Hospital Aid wish to express their grateful appreciation of the many kindnesses extended to them in preparing their headquarters on Colborne street for occupation. Where so many have given willing assistance mention cannot be made of all, but thanks are especially given to Mr. John Colter for valuable assistance rendered. To Mr. Phillips, manager of the Woolworth store for flags, folders, etc., and for allowing his assistants, Messrs. Keating, Wall and Schuyler, to arrange the decorations in the windows. To Mr. Lindsay Spence for an ornamental sign. To Stedman Bros. for cutting out Red Cross signs, and to Pursell & Son for the loan of screens. Mrs. W. N. Andrews and Miss Eacrett's names were omitted from Mrs. Digby's list. Mrs. McKechnie and Miss Ripper will assist Mrs. Yates on Colborne St.

King of Greece is Seriously Ill Again

Special Wire to the Courier. Athens, June 5.—Announcement was made to-day that King Constantine of Greece has had a change for the worse and that another operation on his majesty will have to be performed.

The King of Greece has been suffering from pleurisy for several weeks and his condition has been far from satisfactory. He underwent an operation the latter part of May after which he suffered a relapse. The reports concerning his progress have been more or less contradictory, but recently his condition is said to have been critical. King Constantine's wife is a sister of Emperor William of Germany.

DAINTY FROCK.

Valenciennes Lace Profusely Trims Dress Made of Dotted Muslin.

LINGERIE CREATION.

The little kiddie has her lining in the little frock shown here. Nothing is ever more charming than dotted muslin and when combined with val is irresistible. The gown has a jacket effect bodice with an underlining of sheer batiste, to which the skirt is attached. The skirt is full, with insets of val insertion, outlined by ruffles of val edging. A blue satin sash and a blue satin hair ribbon contribute the touch of color to the costume, with which are worn white silk stockings and white kid buttoned boots.

SASH CURTAINS.

Materials For Making Them and Their Finishing. Sash curtains should be measured from the top of the inside of the window casement to the sill, allowing two inches at the top and bottom. The top is turned and stitched through the center, which allows for a small heading and the casing for the brass rod. The hem is turned in at the bottom, so that the curtains just escape the sill. The curtains may be perfectly plain or finished with a lace edging. A narrow gimp braid is sometimes used as a finish for sash curtains. The French striped net or brussels net is always nice. Scrim and a quality of voile made for certain purposes are also used, especially where a less transparent material than net is desired.

Is Meat a Fighting Diet?

Circumstances have brought to light again the question of man's need of red meat diet to make him a fighting warrior. An advocate of meat diet declared some time ago that the Belgians were losing their vital energy because they are a race of non-meat eaters. But, although they had done no fighting for a hundred years, they have given a good account of themselves of late. Modern scientists assert that meat makes a dog or a man irritable, but gives neither courage nor endurance, both of which are essential fighting qualities. Attention is called to the fruit eating gorilla as the most dread-ful fighter of the African forest. Not a lion is found in all the region where this great forest man reigns, untamed and untamable, a real king of beasts. The lion, the traditional king of beasts, fights when brought to bay only because he is short winded and cannot run away. Every experienced hunter has borne testimony to the ability of the grass eating bison as a most courageous fighter with few equals.

Herbs For Many Purposes.

Mint—For meat sauces. Angelica—For flavoring cakes. Lavender—For oil and distilled water. Sage—For sausage and meat dressings. Sweet Fennel—Leaves used in fish sauces. Dill—The seed used to flavor pickles. Borage—Leaves boiled as dandelion or spinach. Thyme—In gravies and dressings of stuffed meats. Chives—Used for flavoring soups and salads. Borage, balm and catnip—Useful where one has bees. Tarragon—Leaves useful in giving flavor to vinegars and pickles. Coriander—Fennel and caraway seeds—Used for flavoring stews and cakes. Among those having medicinal value are: arnica, hops, catnip, pennyroyal, marshmallow, sage, rue, horehound, belladonna, wormwood, hyssop and pennyment.

Bowser's Appendicitis

He Expects It Along Any Minute. By M. QUAD. Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

When Mr. Bowser awoke the other morning he heaved a long sigh. When he got out of bed he groaned as though in pain.

As he dressed himself he had visions of somber graveyards and weeping willows.

When he came downstairs he intended to tell Mrs. Bowser that the end of things for him was near, but some-thing happened to stop him. He saw her looking at him in an ironical way and without the slightest note of pity it cut him to the quick. She must know that he was suffering, and yet she could pitilessly look on and make game of him.

Mr. Bowser braced up like a bent bow springing back. He took his seat at the table as its master should. He ate with a dignity becoming a Bowser.

When he had finished the meal he rose and departed for the office without unbending. As he came home at the usual evening hour he sniffed and sniffed at the atmosphere of the hall and observed: "I should say you had a bolted dinner waiting."

"One of the best you ever ate," replied Mrs. Bowser. "That's very nice of you, I'm sure; but unfortunately for me, I cannot partake of it."

"I got a little warning today that I think best to heed."

"What sort of warning?" "Dr. MacCreedy was in the office on some business, and, hearing me utter an involuntary groan as I rose up, he began to question me. It wasn't five minutes before he announced that I would have to be very careful or fall a victim to appendicitis. He said I had all the symptoms of it."

"I DO WISH YOU WOULD VISIT MY GRAVE."

"I don't believe any such talk, Mr. Bowser! I haven't heard you groan, involuntarily or otherwise, for a year. Did he charge you a fee for telling you this?"

"He made no charge, but, then, naturally!" "Naturally you went and handed him over at least $5, while I am in need of a dozen different little things. You have no more cause to be afraid of appendicitis than I have of the Indian plague. Why do you let people work you like this?"

"Softly, now, softly," he said, as he led the way to the dining room, instead of shouting "Woman!" at her. "Mrs. Bowser, cannot be classed as an alarmist. Thousands of things have killed me, and I have never said a word to you about them. I wasn't going to say a thing in this case, but, being put on a diet by the doctor, I had to make some explanations. I have known for months and months that the appendicitis was after me. I have figured that when it overtook me at last I would make a sneak for the hospital and have the operation performed before you knew anything about it. That is the way with me. I do my own worrying and planning."

"Well, what symptoms have you felt?" she asked. "Pains in the back, roaring in the head, wakefulness and all that. There are days when black specks dance before my eyes. The other morning when I got up my teeth seemed too long."

"And that ass of a doctor made you believe those were symptoms of appendicitis?" "I knew they were before he confirmed me. I have been saved by just one week."

"How?" "I am going to follow the directions given me by the doctor."

"Did he tell you to sleep with your feet out of bed and breakfast, dine and sup on oatmeal?" "No, ma'am, he didn't. He told me to live on milk and water for the next four days. That boiled dinner smells to heaven, but I can't touch a mouthful of it. It's either milk and water or death for me."

"Look here, now," she said, determined on one last argument. "I have known of as many as five cases of appendicitis right around here, and not one of them had the symptoms you mention. All that ails you is a little biliousness or rheumatism. "I have got my warning, my dear. "But you haven't got it from your own doctor."

Male convicts in Ohio Penitentiary celebrated Memorial Day with a dance; the ladies had a separate hop also.

"One doctor is the same as another when it's a case as serious as this. I'm as hungry as a wolf but don't tempt me. One full meal would mean the ambulance and the hospital. I might possibly come out alive, but the chances are only one in a hundred. I seem to be fat and solid, Mrs. Bowser, but as a matter of fact I am too spiritless to stand much pain."

"Mrs. Bowser had to laugh. She would have had to had he been standing over her with an ax. She led the way upstairs and was for dropping the subject, but Mr. Bowser hadn't had his say yet.

"In case this milk and water diet doesn't stave off appendicitis and the results are fatal you will find all my business papers in the safe," he observed as he walked up and down.

"Very well."

"You will not be forced to marry to keep a roof over your head?" "No?"

"Naturally I would rather you would not marry at all, but I am not going to exact any promise. I do wish, however, that you would visit my grave once in awhile. I shan't know it of course, but it will help you not to forget me."

"I shall visit it once in two weeks during good weather," she replied as she saw his lip trembling.

"That is all I ask. The doctor assured me that milk and water would stave off the impending danger, but I have a presentiment, Mrs. Bowser—a presentiment that appendicitis will come and terminate fatally."

"And I have a presentiment that I shall some day meet that fool of a doctor and tell him what I think of him. It's just biliousness that ails you, and a dose or two of calomel would set you to singing. There are yellow streaks under your eyes, and those mean biliousness and nothing else."

Mr. Bowser shook his head and heaved a sigh that finally terminated in a groan and brought the cat out from under the piano. Then he started down the hall and put on his hat.

"Are you going out?" was asked. "I'm going after a quart of milk. I may wake up in the night and want a drink. I may also talk with the druggist if he isn't busy. I am sure he would help you about the funeral arrangements."

Mrs. Bowser was glad to have him go. She knew the druggist was a blunt spoken man and would diagnose the case pretty speedily. She therefore ran into a neighbor's for an hour. Mr. Bowser made his way to the druggist's, and not finding him rushed, he began:

"Doc, take a careful look at my face, will you?" "Cert. Thinking of trading it off for a new one?"

"Does my phiz tell you anything?" "Not much. It never did. The yellow streaks under your eyes show that you are bilious."

"What do pains in the back signify?" "Rheumatism, generally."

"And roaring in the head?" "A cold."

"And when your teeth seem too long?" "A little neuritis in the jaws. Why, what do you think ails you?"

"I was told by a doctor this morning that those symptoms heralded an attack of appendicitis."

"Herald your grandmother! Somebody has been making a fool of you again. You may have appendicitis some day, but it won't come on that way. What did the so called doctor tell you to do?"

"Drink milk and water," sighed Mr. Bowser. "You ought to be kept on that diet for the rest of your natural life. Didn't Mrs. Bowser say the fellow was a humbug?"

"Well—er—you know"— "Of course she did, and of course he is. Go home and eat a hearty dinner. Eat as much as you want tomorrow, and then take some calomel. Say, man, if you hadn't the wife you have somebody would get the socks off your feet."

Mr. Bowser didn't jaw back. He was too lated. Ten minutes later the cook was heaping the remains of that boiled dinner on the table, and he was eating like a Michigan lumberman. Mrs. Bowser came home and surprised him at it.

"Well, you saw the druggist?" she queried as he refilled his plate. "The druggist? What about?" "About your threatened appendicitis."

BRANTFORD'S GREAT NEW STORE AS IT WILL APPEAR WHEN COMPLETED

COVERING 1 1/4 ACRES OF FLOOR SPACE. EQUIPPED WITH A VENTILATING SYSTEM GIVING A CHANGE OF AIR EVERY 30 MINUTES.

A Brief Sketch of Brantford's New Store and What it Will Mean to the Shopping Community of the City and District.

That the old, leisurely ways of doing business have been relegated to the junk pile was never more forcibly illustrated than by the plans for the spacious new store of E. B. Crompton & Co., Limited, which will shortly materialize on their old site on the corner of Colborne and Queen streets.

It seems but yesterday that crowds of Brantford's citizens stood for hours in the chill March winds, watching the old, home-like store go up in smoke. It was not only the fearful fascination of the flames that held them there, but there was also something almost personal to each one in that loss. Hardly a woman there but felt that she was seeing her anticipated spring suit and summer frocks vanish before her very eyes. To the men it was one of the landmarks of our city gone, and loss of trade to one of our firms with many years' reputation for fair and square dealings.

However, before many days had passed, overcoming all obstacles, Crompton's were temporarily established in their present temporary premises in the old Y.M.C.A. building, and ready for business. They had taken to themselves the nation's war-time watchword, "Business as Usual."

And now, in an incredibly short space of time, plans are all completed for their wonderful new store which we illustrate, and which will be opened in time for the autumn trade. And truly, to the patrons of the Big Store, that dreadful fire will yet prove a blessing in disguise, for the new store will far surpass the old one in every way imaginable.

To make a repetition of the March disaster almost impossible, the building itself will embrace all the modern ideas in its construction, which will be of steel, stone, concrete and brick, rendering it as nearly fireproof as possible. Every detail in construction and interior arrangement which could possibly tend to the added convenience and pleasure of their thousands of customers has been incorporated.

Those familiar with the delights of shopping in the large stores of the loop district of New York and Chicago will gladly welcome the new departments that will make this store the Marshall Field's of Brantford. Others who have not wandered so far from home will be pleased to make their acquaintance. One finds it is no longer necessary to make shopping an "exertion after pleasure," as dear old Samantha Allen used to say.

The new Rest Room and Retiring Room will prove a boon to tired shoppers or travellers. There it will be quite easy, not only to freshen up one's outward appearance, but to give weary nerves and body a respite as well.

Every woman will welcome the new manicuring and hair-dressing parlors. A very small luxury, indeed, it is to have one's nails properly done, and one's hair turned into a real "crown of glory," but is there one woman appreciates more?

Of course there will be a dining-room for ladies and their escorts, and also—a take note—a grill room for men, in which the masculine sex may discuss the war or the suffragette question to their hearts' content.

A striking innovation will be the Roof Garden and playground for the kiddies, to be open from May 1st to October 15th each season. So Brantford will have a "castle in the air" as well as New York.

Other new features, which will be appreciated the more after constant use, are the Parcel and Checking Office, where wraps, parcels and bags may be left; the Information Bureau and Postal Station, and the Sub-Express Office, where parcels will be received for shipment to all points, and Money Orders may be secured.

In the big metropolitan stores these departments save miles of extra steps and all sorts of discomforts for their customers, and here they are for exactly the same purpose. They are for the service of the public. The porter on the train will tell you he knows which are the experienced travellers by the way they make themselves at home on the cars, and the same thing applies to the shopper in the store. Every convenience and every department are for her benefit.

Perhaps it will be of interest to give a sort of general directory of the new store, which follows:

BASEMENT SELLING FLOOR

Glassware, Toys, Parcel Room. Other Departments to be arranged.

FIRST FLOOR

Gloves, Hosiery and Goffer Department. Embroidery and Muslin Department. Neckwear, Trimming and Ribbon Department. Silverware, Jewelry and Cut Glass Department. Toilet Department. Stationery Department.

Butterick Patterns, Dress Goods, Silk and Umbrella Dept. Cotton Goods, Linen and Bedding Department.

The private offices and general offices will be located on a mezzanine balcony, where also there will be a room with equipment to take care of sudden cases of sickness that may occur in the store.

SECOND FLOOR

Ready-to-Wear Department. Furs, Millinery, Rest Room, Whitewear. Waists, Corsets, Kiddies' Department. Manicuring and Hair Dressing Parlors. Several other departments to be arranged.

THIRD FLOOR

Tea Room, Men's Grill Room, Carpets, Rugs, House Furnishings. Rest Room and Lunch Room for members of the staff.

FOURTH FLOOR

Manufacturing and Dressmaking Departments. With other departments to be arranged.

ROOF

Roof Garden and Playground

Those who were familiar with the old store will note a change of location in several departments, but all made with an eye to the greater convenience of the firm's customers.

Crompton's new store will not invite only those who have some definite article to purchase. It will well repay any woman who spends an odd half-hour there, learning the latest fads and fancies of Dame Fashion, looking at an exquisite piece of lace or linen, or perhaps admiring some smart creation in costume or gown, or the thousand and one interesting things that will be displayed.

The building itself will be a credit to the city of Brantford, and within the new store, as in the old, each customer will receive that free and sincere courtesy, prompted by a whole-hearted wish to be of real service to the thousands of patrons of The House of Quality and Good Value, which has characterized the service of this store in the past.

MAY GET TWO MEDALS.

In This War the Problem is Unusual and Complicated.

It is safe to say that of all subjects which form topics of conversation in the trenches during the moments which the enemy leaves the British soldier for social intercourse, none is more popular (unless the soldier has completely changed his character) than the great question: "How many medals shall we get for this war and what will be the bars?" That has always been, since the British army received medals, the one subject which has interested him more than any other.

In the argot of the barrack-room, the medal is a "gong," and it is the ambition of every soldier in the army that that "gong" should not be bare of bars (the little strips of silver across the ribbon inscribed with the names of the actions which mark the quality of the award), and the more bars there are to a man's medal the higher does he stand, not only in his own estimation, but in the estimation of his comrades.

It is curious how, when discussing the war, generally, with wounded soldiers, the topic of conversation invariably veers round to this medal question. The optimists think that there will be three. One given by France, one by Russia, and a third by Great Britain. Others believe that the medal will be of bronze, and will be issued in unformity by the five nations engaged. This would not be very popular with the soldier. In the Egyptian campaigns there were two, one British and one which was presented by the Egyptian Government. In the South African war there were also two, but that was due to the fact that the war was continued under two sovereigns.

What is probable is that there will be a British medal and one issued by the allies in conjunction, that is to say, the Russian soldier will wear the Russian medal and the allies', and the French soldier will wear the French medal, issued by the French Government, plus the allies', and the same decorations will be offered to the British soldier. It is said that the color of the new ribbon, made up of the national colors of Belgium and will either be a black ribbon, with red and yellow stripes on each edge, or will be a red ribbon, with a black and yellow edging, the exact pattern of which has not yet been decided upon.

Purple Pansy Brigade.

One of the latest war crazes in English society is the "purple pansy brigade." If you have an intimate friend or relative wounded at the front you wear a buttonhole of purple pansies. The result has been an unexampled demand for the purple pansy.

Now that there is almost no one who has not a friend among the casualties, practically all the women at fashionable gatherings wear a cluster of the sympathetic flower, and some of the men do the same. At some of the smart luncheons at the big hotels the effect is most curiously mournful.

But the purple pansy also serves as a useful conversation opener. "My dear, what friend of yours has been wounded?" leads to all sorts of interesting, mysterious, sentimental inquiries. The purple pansy, therefore, is a great relief, although it does indicate suffering on the part of somebody else.

In London the demeanor of the smart crowd is distinctly more cheerful as the war proceeds. Conditions, the mere prospect of which seemed unbearable, have now become a matter of nature. It would be wrong to say it is possible to get used to having one's relatives killed or wounded. But one is inclined to think that when bereavements come in mass, when more or less every one is suffering, the shock and horror diminish in intensity.

Old-Time Sealing-Wax.

Interesting results have been obtained by the Government chemist by making analyses of old wax impressions on documents in the Public Record Office in London. The seals examined date from the thirteenth to the eighteenth century, and differed but little from modern sealing-wax. Most of them consisted of a mixture of beeswax and resin, others of pure beeswax. Two seals, of the dates 1399 and 1423 respectively, were composed of wax the characteristics of which agreed more nearly with those of East Indian than of European beeswax. The wax composing an impression from the Great Seal of 1350 agreed, in chemical and physical characters, with pure beeswax of to-day. The pigment in the red seals was vermilion, while the green seals contained verdigris.

British Guns Wire Wound.

British guns still retain their supremacy. They are lighter and more easily handled than the German guns. This is due to the fact that German guns are solid while the English weapons are wire-wound. The Germans have never believed in the wire-winding; they have always regarded it as a piece of British stupidity. After the recent naval battles they now have their doubts.

To Seal Bottles.

Bottles may be securely sealed in the following manner: Melt together a quart of a pound of sealing wax, the same quantity of rosin and two ounces of beeswax. When the mixture froths stir it with a tallow candle. As soon as each ingredient is melted dip the tops of the corked bottles in the mixture. It will completely exclude the air.

Goggles For Troops.

Opening Day Ceremonies at Post Office

A committee meeting took place at the City Hall yesterday afternoon to arrange for the approaching visit of Postmaster-General Casgrain on June 17th to formally open Brantford's fine new public building. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Casgrain, Mr. W. F. Cockshutt, M.P., was among those at the gathering. It was decided to recommend that the event take place at 12 p.m. on the day named, when in addition to the Minister, addresses will also be given by Mr. Cockshutt and the Mayor. A luncheon will be given at 1 o'clock, where, has not yet been decided, and later the ladies of the Golf Club will be asked to serve tea at the club house.

Rose Day is a Big Success

"Rose Day" held under the Women's Hospital Aid, is proving a most abundant success. The pretty flowers were by noon to be seen on almost every coat lapel and at every corner, and the sale has been tremendous. Twenty-five thousand flowers were ordered and the indications are that about all of them will be needed for the County people have responded with the same generosity as the city folk. At headquarters on Colborne street, there has been a very busy scene all day, but no confusion, for when it comes to system, the executive of the W. H. A. are pre-eminent and unbeatable. The contents of the boxes will not be counted until Monday, and then the returns will only be given out after a most elaborate system of checking and counter-checking. The indications, despite the many demands on the public these days, are for a very satisfactory total indeed. Government returns show that there are 41,054 unemployed in the City of Philadelphia.

BRANTS WALLOP TWO HAM PITCHERS FOR SIXTEEN HITS

Get Revenge for being Held to One Hit on Thursday—Fried Again the Star With Five Hits in as Many Times at Bat.

Hamilton, June 5.—Brantford got revenge for being held to one hit on Thursday, by walloping the offerings of the Hamilton pitchers for sixteen hits yesterday, which, along with five runs, while the best Hamilton could get was three. The locals got an early lead, but could not stop the onslaught of the Brants in the fifth inning, when each of the visitors faced the plate and two of them were up twice. "Rabbit" Fried, the speedy second baseman of the Brants was in great form, and made five hits on his five trips to the plate. Some real clotting for the "kid," Buster Burrell and "Matty" Lamond each came over with three hits and Foran with two, one a mighty three-base wallop. Altogether the Brants bettered their batting averages somewhat, Deneau essayed in the role of a catcher for a couple of innings.

Barbers Meet in Hamilton

Will Seek Legislation to Enforce Sanitary Conditions.

The first annual convention of the Ontario Journeymen Barbers' Federation convened in the Labor Hall, Hamilton, on Monday, May 24th last, when the organization was formally instituted and started out on its mission to advance the interests of the craft. As will be seen below, Mr. Thomas Linscott, of this city, was elected Fourth Vice-President.

There were 24 delegates present, which was looked upon as eminently satisfactory, and they are representative of different sections of the province.

The meeting was a most enthusiastic one. Addresses of welcome were given by the delegates by His Worship Mayor Walters, Allan Studholme, M. L. A., R. O. H. Frost, president of the Hamilton Trades and Labor Council, and James Sullivan, of the Cigar-makers' International Union. All wished Godspeed to the newly formed body, and the Mayor announced that he desired the convention to be held in his guests at luncheon in the Strand

House. This invitation was accepted, and later was thoroughly enjoyed, a hearty vote of thanks being tendered.

In session, a motion was carried to give their support to the union labels of the various crafts, and buy only union made goods.

It was unanimously carried to endorse The Barber as the official organ of the Federation. The International will also be asked to charter all state and provincial barbers' organizations so as to have complete jurisdiction over their actions.

The officers elected for the ensuing term were—
President—H. J. Halford, Hamilton
First Vice-President—L. M. Jackson, St. Thomas.
Second Vice-President—T. McPherson, Guelph.
Third Vice-President—J. S. Macdonald, Ottawa.
Fourth Vice-President—Thos. Linscott, Brantford.
Fifth Vice-President—J. Gauntly, Toronto.

It was decided that the next convention of the Federation should be held in the City of Toronto.

Co-operators in Conference

Hold Successful Meeting in Peterboro. On Victoria Day, with Representatives Present From Various Sections of the Province.

A conference of the Ontario section of the Co-Operative Union of Canada was held at Peterboro on Monday May 24th, Manager Dickson of the Galt Co-Operative Society, presiding. Delegates were present from societies at Ottawa, Guelph, Galt, Welland, Preston and Peterboro. Resolutions were adopted making provision for the financing of the Co-Operative Union, the issue of a warning through the British Co-Operative Press against managers being deceived into acceptance of positions in fake societies in Canada, and drawing the attention of the Ontario Attorney-General, with the view of prosecution, of certain illegal conspiracies by wholesale houses to deprive properly incorporated co-operative societies of the goods of their trade.

Hon. Secretary Keen (of Brantford, Ont.) of the Co-Operative Union of Canada, gave an address on the organization and financial oversight of new societies in Ontario. He called attention to the rapid growth of co-operative sentiment, both in industrial and rural districts, during the last few years, pointing out that such sentiment in most cases did not crystallize into economic fact owing to the lack of organization machinery. Those societies which were organized suffered in the initial stages through absence of scientific direction. He proposed that an organization and auditing society be incorporated; that a common form of balance sheet be adopted; that the same with the auditors' report thereon, be periodically submitted by a committee of experts appointed by the Ontario Sectional Board, each society to abandon business or financial policies undertaken by them considered by the experts as undesirable, and to receive guidance from them as to the selection of skilled managers, under penalty of exclusion from the section in case of default. The proposals were referred to the Sectional Board for consideration and report at the next conference.

In the evening, Mr. Keen gave a public lantern lecture in the Trades and Labor Hall on "The British Co-Operative Movement—the World's Greatest Business Enterprise."

MANY DIED OF STARVATION.

Millionaire Club Woman Tells of Awful Conditions Among Unemployed Women in New York City.
Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, millionaire society woman of New York City, who spent thousands of dollars in maintaining a soup kitchen there for unemployed women during the past winter, declares that the scenes she witnessed simply beggar description.

No person, she claims, who is not conversant with the awful situation that existed could begin to form any opinion regarding it.

Fully one-third of the unemployed women who solicited relief early in January died as a result of a long season of neglect and hard work.

There was a consolation in knowing that the help they got at the soup kitchen relieved them in some measure, said Mrs. Belmont, who regretted the kitchen must be closed, now that the rigorous period of the year was over. More than twenty-five thousand destitute, however, had been fed at the kitchen. There were 20,048 meals given out, on Sundays, 22,022 quarts of soup given away, and 15,748 quarts of evaporated milk distributed.

THE ONE THING CERTAIN.
In the darkest hour through which a human soul can pass, whatever else is doubtful, this at least is certain. If there be no God, and no some meagre, even then it is better to be generous than selfish, better to be chaste than licentious, better to be true than false, better to be brave than to be a coward. Blessed beyond all earthly blessedness is the man who, in the tempestuous darkness of the soul, has dared to hold fast to these venerable landmarks.—Fred. W. Robertson.

A handsome gold ring was also presented to Retiring President Stevenson, both recipients making a suitable reply.

It was decided to hold a two instead of a one-day convention in 1916, and Peterboro was chosen as the convention city, the date for holding the same being set for June 9th and 10th. A vote of thanks was tendered the St. Catharines brethren for courtesies extended, also to members of the local Trades and Labor Council and the press.

A VETERAN STRICKEN

W. B. Prescott, ex-International President of the Typographical Union, Lies at Death's Door in New York City.

The many friends of W. B. Prescott, ex-President of the International Typographical Union, and a former resident of Toronto, Ont., will learn with regret that he has been laid low with a paralytic stroke in Chicago, and lies at death's door, his physicians holding out no hope whatever of his recovery.

Mr. Prescott has been one of the most able and prominent leaders that the labor movement has ever had; for years he presided with exceptional ability over the destinies of the I.T.U. and occupied the post of responsibility at the time when the introduction of typesetting machinery promised to develop a new shorter work-day.

It is generally conceded that it was largely due to his able generalship that the International Typographical Union was able to surmount the difficulty and assume control of the running of the machines.

Mr. Prescott was one of the many Canadians who have made good in the working class propaganda.

The news of his illness was first received by Hugh Stevenson, of Toronto, an old-time colleague, on Wednesday, through the agency of a telegram received from the International President.

In this city, as elsewhere, the sad news will be received with unconcealed regret.

Industrial Canada

FROM COAST TO COAST

When the Lusitania was torpedoed, G. N. Bartley, of Welland, a member of the Local International Association of Machinists, was among the lost. His wife, one child, and a brother also went down with the ship.

Jack Bruce, organizer of the Plumbers and Steam Fitters, is, from all accounts, stirring the boys up in Western Canada. It can always be taken for granted that wherever Jack shows up something is due to happen.

It is said that the Edmonton Central Labor Union will venture into the newspaper field and publish a weekly organ in the interests of the movement in that section of the country. It requires courage to engage in such a venture at the present time, and trades unionists throughout the Dominion will wish the boys the most abundant measure of success if they decide to make the plunge.

The Union Label, as usual, appears on the uniforms of the motormen and conductors of the Hamilton Street Railway Company. The Royal Tailoring Company turned out the work in a satisfactory manner. It is one of the clauses of the agreement between the management of the company and Division 107 of the Amalgamated Association that the Union Label shall be on the uniforms of the employees.

There will be a large number of representatives from the Canadian locals of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union at the general convention of the organization, which will convene in Buffalo, N.Y., during the month of June. The convention being held so near the border line and in a central locality, easy of access, makes it especially convenient for the delegates from this side of the border to attend. A large number of representatives have already been elected.

Every 10c Packet of
WILSON'S FLY PADS
WILL KILL MORE FLIES THAN $8<sup>00</sup> WORTH OF ANY STICKY FLY CATCHER

The Vancouver Trades and Labor Council are making great preparations for the coming annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, which will convene in that city on September 20th.

Naturally they are greatly pleased that the City Council has favorably considered their appeal for the grant of $1,000 to entertain the delegates. This will help out some.

The sessions of the convention will be held in the fine quarters of a million dollar Labor Temple, which is owned, controlled and managed by the organized labor movement of the city.

If things continue to go as they are doing at present there will soon be a serious shortage of skilled miners in Canada. Every boat on the way to Australia from the Pacific Coast carries a considerable number of Canadian miners from Vancouver Island, British Columbia, and the North Western Provinces, and now Government agents are in Ontario from South Africa to secure more help in Ontario. Already 30 men have left from across Haileybury, and many more are being engaged. The wages received are far higher than prevail here, and it is the best skilled operatives who are taking the plunge. It will be an injury to the Dominion if the class of these high-class workers are to be ultimately filled by lower-class foreigners, who are unacquainted with Canadian ideals. In nearly every case those who are leaving are going forth with the intention of making their homes in the country to which they are migrating.

The Monarch Overall Company of Winnipeg, a strictly union factory, which places the Garment Workers' Union Label upon its output, has been moved into larger and more commodious quarters, being now housed in one of the most modern and sanitary factories in Canada. The firm is now very busy, being fully engaged in making up its regular lines. Government contracts not figuring in any way in this scene of activity. The firm says they have orders for many weeks ahead, and that things were never better than right now. The staff of operatives has been added to and others are being engaged. This makes pleasant reading after such an extended period of business depression.

The whitefish industry in James Bay is expected to prove one of the most profitable in all Canada, and will ultimately give employment to many hundreds of hands. The fisheries of both Hudson's and James Bays are known to be immensely valuable, but hitherto they have been so far removed from the routes of travel that they have been useless for commercial purposes. With the opening of the new Hudson's Bay Railway these fisheries will become immediately available. Sturgeon exists in immense quantities in these waters also, as well as any other varieties of the finny tribe. As soon as the rails reach the shores of the Bay there will be a great rush of adventurous and prospective settlers to the spot and one of Canada's largest cities will probably grow up in this locality.

Although Canada produced 177,885,000 more bushels of grain in 1913 than in 1914, the price of the crop last year was more than thirty-nine million dollars in excess of that realized for 1913 output. During the present year the demand for grain will undoubtedly be greater and the prices higher than at any previous period in the world's history. As Canada will have an enormously increased acreage this year than she has ever had before, and as more favorable conditions for a large crop are reported from every province in the Dominion, prospects are that this year's increase from the export of grain will assume astounding proportions. A successful harvest will mean almost undoubtedly a revival of trade throughout the entire country. Crop prospects never looked so promising as they do at the present time.

When you get into a tight place and everything goes against you till it seems as if you couldn't hold on a minute longer, never give up then, for that's just the time and place that the tide will turn.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT

Sneezing in Public Places. As it is a common offense and a very annoying one, persons sneezing or coughing should make it a point to use a handkerchief.

END OF THE DEFIANCE. Defiance had the smallest lateral plane of any of the three aspirants for cup defense laurels, and yet was defeated.

NAVAL ARMOR PLATE. A Suggestion That Rubber Might Be Better Than Steel. If the present war has proved anything it has proved the inadequacy of the protection afforded by armor plate.

Great Britain and Herring. In time of peace there is no port in the world into which so many herrings are brought as Great Yarmouth, and Lowestoft is not far behind.

Streets of London. There is not a single man living who knows all London, who has been through every street or into every corner, square and terrace.

Longevity of Doctors. Doctors are notoriously their own most disobedient patients. Usually they eat and sleep irregularly, they are out in all kinds of weather, and they hesitate at no danger of contagion or infection.

Egypt's New Flag. The new Egyptian flag consists of three white crescents with their backs to the staff, each with a five pointed white star between the horns on a red field.

Canadas Best. "Canadas Best" of anything is good enough for Canadians. But insist on the best. Ask for PURITY FLOUR.

DISRAELI'S FASCINATION

Great Statesman Exercised Strange Power Over Women. More than one biographer has referred to the peculiar fascination which Disraeli exercised over women.

When he was thirty-five years of age he married the rich widow of Mr. Wyndham-Lewis, who had been his colleague at Maidstone, and with the fortune of this lady, who was passionately devoted to the statesman, and thought there was no man like "Dizzy," he was able to purchase the estate at Hughenden in Buckinghamshire, where he lived for many years.

Another romance of his life, which resulted in his being left a fortune of $150,000, is revealed in the third volume of his biography, which has just been published.

Further, although she had never seen Hughenden the home of her hero, she expressed in her will a desire to be buried there. And when she lies, with Disraeli and his wife, in the grave in the churchyard of the church among the lovely hills of Bucks.

Many arguments have taken place as to whether Disraeli, whose statue is decorated every year with primroses, really regarded the latter as his favorite flower, but the following authentic incident, in which Mrs. Brydges Williams figures, would seem to show that at any rate he had great admiration for these flowers.

When he visited Torquay in 1863 to call upon his friend, Mrs. Williams not only presented him with a bunch of primroses on his arrival, but also had the dinner-table decorated with similar flowers, and upon the statesman expressing his admiration for them, she caused a number of primroses to be sent to Hughenden, where they still bloom every season.

To Speak Japanese. Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless a fact (which was admitted in the House of Commons a short time ago) that there is not a single officer in the British army who understands the Japanese language!

Some time ago one of the assistant directors of military operations on the staff of the Army Council compiled a work or strategy, and the Japanese War Office authorities, perceiving its value, translated the work, and as is usual in such cases, forwarded the British author some copies of the translation.

The author, not knowing the language, turned over the leaves of the Army List, and found that not a single officer in the British army was qualified to act as interpreter in the language of our allies.

Arrangements have now been completed, however, whereby British officers desirous of learning the Japanese language can be sent to Japan, free of expense to themselves, for the purpose, and no doubt many will be ready to avail themselves of the chance.

Value of Marching Songs. The great value of singing on the march has always been fully recognized in every army, states the report of the British Naval and Military Union for 1913-14, and it is one of the objects of the union (of which General Sir H. L. Smith-Dorrien is president) to encourage such singing in every way possible.

At Aldershot Major-General S. H. Lomax has presented a cup for infantry companies, and marching songs are specially included in the competition. In certain battalions of the Guards regiments prizes are given to companies for the best performance of a marching song when passing a given point. There is no doubt that this part of the movement is steadily gaining ground. It has been decided to proceed forthwith with the preparation and issue of a small pocket-book of marching songs, and to bring this to the notice of every commanding officer.

Remembered Whole Books. Walter Savage Landor carried his library in his head. When he had read a book he always gave it away on principle, having, as he said, observed that with such a purpose in his mind he was sure to retain it. A book all that was worth keeping. In his old age Landor was furious if he did not at once remember any passage of a book or any name or date.

Serving Jelly. To serve jelly a spoon before using it to serve jelly you will find the jelly will not stick to it, and the serving is more easily accomplished.

"PURITY FLOUR" stands for all that is purest and best in flour milling. Insist on getting it.

New Jersey oyster fishers report the best prospects ahead for a long time.

Echo Place Will Apply For Charter

Echo Place Improvement Association meeting held Thursday night in Echo Place School.

It was announced by President Myers at the opening of the meeting that through the efforts of our Chairman of the Oil Committee, Mr. H. E. Craddock, that all arrangements have been made with the Board of Public Works of Brantford, whereby the Hamilton Road would be oiled this coming week. He also wished to give credit to those ratepayers of Echo Place and the Brantford Motor League who have so kindly subscribed for the purchase of oil and he felt assured that all the ratepayers would appreciate the oiling of the road that will do away with the dust nuisance. He mentioned the fact that through co-operation, results can be accomplished and the members of the Echo Place Improvement Association and officers are to be congratulated for the work that has already been accomplished by the Echo Place Improvement Association, which benefits the whole community, such as the laying of about 5 miles of cement sidewalks, and improved roads, and sufficiently signed petition for street lights which we hope we will have early this Fall, and the oiling of the Hamilton Road, etc. Others matters of importance to the Echo Place ratepayers and residents will follow later on.

Communications were read from the Brantford Municipal Street Railway, in regard to the extension of street railway service through Echo Place. The management stated that owing to financial conditions and the work already planned for the City of Brantford, nothing would be done at the present time, but the Board of Railway Commissioners would consider this matter at a later date. It was suggested at the meeting that the E. P. I. A. get a franchise from the Township Council to connect with the city service. This will be considered.

Officers present at the meeting—Morley Myers, President; F. T. Morrow, Vice-President; H. C. Thomas, Secretary; Alex. Edmondson, Treasurer.

SPRING MILLINERY MODES.

The Predominating Hat is Tiny, With a Hint of Larger Shapes. Styles in women's millinery have never been smarter nor of a more attractive type. The predominant hat is small, almost tiny, usually trimmed flat, yet we have it from good authority that the tendency is toward even smaller ones. There is some talk regarding larger shapes on the poke or picturesque order for midsummer. Particularly well liked are the small bonnet effects on the military order. Sailors, turbans and tricorns are leading rough effects are seen, milan being very prominent. Flowers, fruits and ribbons are used for trimmings.

Turbans suggestive of the military and called Tipperary or Belgian are extremely popular. These turbans are small and soft and worn on the side of the head, showing the well dressed hair. The crowns of some are indented, simulating Harry Lauder's Scotch cap. To accentuate this idea many have ribbon bands about the brim, ending in the back with a bow and streamers of various lengths, nine inches being the maximum length, while some have ends which scarcely cover the edge of the back brim. Others are wired, the loops and streamers standing away from the brim. The brims of turbans many times are higher in the front and sides than in the back. This is usually the case when streamers are used. Some of the turbans are made with soft, puffed crowns with no indentation. Sailors are both elongated and round. All hats should be worn well over on the right side and up on the head, showing the hair on the right side and back of the head.

Frequently the upper portion of a hat is of silk or satin in one of the new light shades, such as putty, sand or ray, and the underbrim of a darker color, such as tete de negre, green or blue.

Mallines is much used on hats. It is used either in the making of the entire hat or just for the narrow brim. Sailor shapes are especially attractive with narrow brims, either of shirred or plain mallines, with the edges bound with satin. The crowns are usually of milan or hemp. Lacquered flowers on the order of flat asters are arranged between the layers of mallines. Sailor hats of kid in shades of putty or tan are worn on the underbrim with braids of color.

Ribbons and flowers are used in profusion in trimming. They are placed around the upper edge of the brim about an inch from the top in a wreath effect or are laid stiff and flat against the brim. Grosgrain and velvet ribbons are used in the making of smart little bows or for the banding of the brims of turbans, with streamers in the back. Little cockades of ribbon are used in the trimming of tailored modes. Small bows are used in combination with flowers. Small flowers in attractive colorings are used in combination and give a dainty touch to the light sand and putty shades or to the dark shades. Kid flowers made flat are applied to quills, presenting a novel effect. Lacquered flowers with their shiny surfaces, are in attractive colors, and rubberized flowers are novel. Thistles combined with thorn apples, baby wheat in many colors and tiny apples and berries are all shown.

Keeping Hair Fluffy. With the aid of wavers and other similar simple contrivances some girls are able to impart to their hair a charmingly fluffy appearance—until they go out in the wind or the wind then the tuffness disappears as though by magic, and the hair hangs in dank wisps over their brows. Here is a remedy. Before putting in the wavers damp the strands of hair to be waved with a little slightly diluted eau de cologne. This will serve to keep the wave in for quite a long time. You must dilute the eau de cologne with water, though; otherwise the hair will frizz too stiffly. Just to what extent you will require to dilute it you will find by experience. A teaspoonful of each, however, will usually meet the case.

Fringe as Trimming. Fringes of many sorts are still used. Some of the newest skirts show an edging of fringe at the bottom. There is a silk corded fringe that is often used with faille, and there is a fringe made of strands of beads that is used a good deal on evening frocks.

CLEANING HINTS.

Ribbons that are creased and wrinkled may be renovated by rolling them over a large bottle filled with hot water. To freshen black moire ribbon first brush thoroughly and then sponge with a solution made of a quart of coffee and a teaspoonful of ammonia. Roll the ribbon over a bottle and while still damp press it on the wrong side with a hot iron over a white muslin cloth. To revive chiffon spread a wet cloth over a very hot iron and hold the chiffon over the steam until it is free from wrinkles. Renew both cloth and iron as soon as the steam flows freely. Allow it to dry quickly. To wash use plenty of warm water with a little borax dissolved in it and pure castile soap. Do not rub the soap directly on the material, but make suds and rub the chiffon very softly between the hands until it is absolutely clean. Rinse in clear, cold water and shake out gently. To dry, pin to a sheet on the floor.

One of the strongest points in using PURITY FLOUR is the delicious pastry it makes. Try it.

Canada Has Another Splendid Hotel: G. T. P. Opens "Macdonald" Edmonton

The new Grand Trunk Pacific Hotel, "The Macdonald," Edmonton, will be a notable addition to the Dominion list of palatial hotels.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway announces the opening, on July 1st of another magnificent hotel, a house which will be a source of pride to the city and the community it will serve. This is "The Macdonald," situated in Alberta's capital, Edmonton. It is the third link in the chain of hotels designed by the Grand Trunk in connection with its transcontinental service.

The Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, and The Fort Garry, Winnipeg, are acknowledged to be among the handsomest hotels on the continent. "The Macdonald" has been built to the same high standard. Located on McLeod street, almost at the crossing of Jasper avenue, it combines convenience to the business centre of Edmonton with a wonderful outlook over the valley of the Saskatchewan River.

"The Macdonald" has been planned in the Chateau style of architecture and its massive walls are of Indiana limestone. A quiet elegance of design marks the interior of the house. The dining room, with its barrel ceiling, has walls of panelled oak, while the cafe which opens on a terrace overlooking the river, is also richly panelled. The palm or tea room, also overlooking the river, has a grained ceiling and high dome decoration in wedgewood design. The Rotunda of the hotel is paved with pink Lepanto marble. On the mezzanine floor overlooking the rotunda is a ladies' drawing room, decorated in Adams style, a gentlemen's writing room, a musicians' gallery, and banquet room. Three private dining rooms can be made out of the banquet room, the dimensions of which are 60 x 27 feet. A wainscotted smoking room and luxurious lounge are reached directly from the rotunda.

There are six bedroom floors of 34 bedrooms each, arranged so that they can be used en suite or separate. All have outside light, are exceptionally large, while twenty-two rooms on each floor have private baths which represent the last word in appointments. There are telephones in every room and running water where a private bath is attached. Special consideration has been given to the wants of commercial men and large roomy sample rooms have been provided. The architects of the hotel are Ross & Macdonald, of Montreal, and experts who have been given an opportunity of inspecting the house declare that in the perfection of its fittings "The Macdonald" has no superior. It will provide an excellent stopping off place for Transcontinental travellers and for the army of tourists attracted to a great scenic territory along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in Alberta and British Columbia, a region which includes Jasper and Mount Robson Parks. Mr. Louis Low has been appointed manager under the direction of Mr. D. B. Mulligan, Superintendent of Grand Trunk Pacific Hotels.

ISSIA ABDULLA The Pariah Dog of His Colony. A Brantford Sketch.

He is a local sign post of the path to Inertia now; a cigarette rolling automaton that smiles with the charming ingenuousness of a child and touches a greasy sun hat before he speaks to a white man; has pealish eyes, a dark brown countenance and expressive hands; has fairly good English and is a Turk by birth, an Infidel to Mahomet by choice.

It is nearly eight years ago since he watched the Ottoman fade into the mists of the hot sultry summer that bleaches Britons' white, in the city of odiferous repute, Stamboul of the Orient, Constantinople of the West.

Whatever allegiance he bore the Crescent and Fez cap, he has given up, for his citizenship papers are correct, all in order and assure all it may concern that Issia Abdulla is a British subject since 1908. He has paid for his principles and has been martyred to his love of the light of the world. He has been scourged with rope ends and kicked by Turkish feet, encased in stiff American shoe leather; has lain bleeding in the snow till one who cares for the outcast of the city took him in and brought him back to life, much shaken and with his intelligence weakened and nerves all gone. Issia is simple, willing and quite tractable, his history is a pen-picture of the Turkish Colony in Brantford previous to that cold night the police hustled them into the dungeons, where they lay and smelt, like a breath from the streets of the Prayerful City.

He has worked for "big bosses" in and around local plants, and was generally appreciated. His smile never faded and his back was immune from that "tired feeling." Spiritually, he found little to sooth his westernized soul, when in the evenings he would foregather to throw the dice and play a game, not unlike Ludo, though with different counts, in this country. He heard a big drum heard men and women pray in the open on a Sabbath evening in the sunset of a summer night, and the glow of the western sun gilded their ranks with mystical glamour. He listened, getting only a word here and there, and then followed the flag.

ANOTHER RECRUIT It was with deference, he entered the Citadel, and apologetically he looked at the door-keeper who drew him in and talked, ay, as a brother, not as a Big Boss to a "DAGO"—he smiled and his smile was his master's passport. Then he heard the voices swell in upward chorus, he heard the prayers, saw men and women behave as they do when Mahomet is dispensed and the command is "to rend ones' garments" of soul and let the purifying waters pass through its turbid channels.

By and by he was taken and hailed as a "brother" and his fervent "Hallelujah" would come each time that the prayers pled "for Thy Dear Sake"—and he gained a plane that dictated new thoughts and banned past observers with his kin.

HE SUFFERED. The colony viewed with displeasure his departure from the Valley of Ottoman Roses and the oft quoted beard of the Prophet they communed and finally they gathered of a Sunday night, to await in the boarding house his homecoming from the scene of the Infidel worshippers.

He entered, and he knew he had reached his Gethsemane, they say, while the Patriarch taxed him from Koran and other blasphemy learned in this fair dominion. Abdulla said he was Breeteesh subject same as white man, he would go where they went—among they tell upon him and beat him, and they left him that night on the street.

The adjutant accepted the grisly boarder, put him to bed while Abdulla wept tears of self-pity but submitted hopefully.

PARIAH DOG

He could no longer could go to the colony's boarding houses, he was banned from their intercourses, and until the police raked them in he, lived in the Salvation Army's shelter. The night he was forced to spend amid his fellows nearly cost him his reason. They had cast him forth, and his was the under dog's share, the hardest corner and furthest from the airy spot. They scoffed at him, even assumed him guilty, though they knew him guiltless for the deeds that brought British martial law on their heads.

He showed his papers, but the law was obdurate, he journeyed to Kingstons, and his fellows gave him no rest. Finally he caught the captain of the guards attention, and was returned to Brantford.

"I feel shame, to ask job—no boss take me—me Turk, he say. I show papers—paper be an no get job. Hungarian man get job—he no British, why? and the eternal child wonder of the East illumines his face.

BACK TO THE ARMY AGAIN Back he went to the "captain," that dapper blue tuniced little sociologist who deals in the coin of human material and sifting the dross of times finds some gold, and he got shelter from the rude cold blasts of the winter and little tasks to keep him going.

He had altered, though, he was a little more childish, very timid and had scarcely the nerves of a sparrow to back up his decisions.

He ran into the captain's arms one day and protested the bed mate he had, was paid to kill him, he was a German who had learned of his pro-British ally whose kin were dying for kultur. Reassured, he was induced to view it more reasonably and could be talked in a better idea of behaviour.

So Issia Abdulla is to-day a pariah dog of his colony, a man cursed by the Prophet and no longer an elect of Islam, a curly headed, brown-eyed doggie-like human whose life has held many strange things who was crucified that his faith might suffer, but has arisen from his sores, weaker in will and mind, still happy to get crumbs from his creatures comfort, still hopeful, able to say to your questioning,

"Yes, me Christian now—say hal-lelujah, jist de same as you."

A little pathetic in his way, his fingers rolling interminable cigarettes with the plaint, "he worked for forty till Boss make him stop." "His papers were all right?" "Yes, they are in order, you're British all right, Abdulla. Why not go to farm?"

He looked pained. "Go to farm, get $5 one week, no feed like pig in the barn—no Breeteesh—me want table," and then the sun lit face appears. He is the enigma, the fatalist, the riddle of centuries; the strange child of ages of Mohammedanism.

THE WESTERN FAIR

London, Ontario

The Western Fair, London's popular Agricultural Exhibition, will be held this year from September 19th to the 18th. It is considered by the management that this year, above all others, should be the one when extra efforts must be put forth to make the exhibition a great success; therefore with assistance given by the Government the board of directors have decided to make a cash addition to the prize list of $3,000. Good as it was before this will certainly make London's prize list very attractive. The list is now in the hands of the printer and will soon be ready for distribution. Thousands of advertising cards and hangers have been sent throughout the country during the past week announcing the dates and arrangements are being made as quickly as possible to ensure exhibitors and visitors this year's exhibition will be the best ever held in London. Any information regarding the exhibition will be gladly given on application to the secretary, A. M. Hunt, London, Ont.

The office of the Herald, Sault Ste. Marie, was dynamited in a night against lawless elements locally. John Snell, aged 94, refused to ride and walked six miles from Ontario to Canton, O., just for the sake of it.

The MASQUERADER

By Katherine Cecil Thurston,
Author of "The Circle," Etc.
Copyright, 1904, by Harper & Brothers

The action was not without effect. Her soothing voice, her smile, her almost affectionate gesture, each carried weight. With a swift return of assurance he responded to her tone.
"Right!" he said. "Right! We will enjoy ourselves!" He laughed quickly and again with a conscious movement lifted his hand to his mouth.
"Then we'll postpone the advice?" Lillian laughed too.
"Yes, right! We'll postpone it." The word pleased him, and he caught at it.
"We won't bother about it now, but we won't shelve it altogether. We'll postpone it."
"Exactly." She settled herself more comfortably. "You'll dine with me one night—and we can talk it out then. I see so little of you nowadays," she added in a lower voice.
"My dear girl, you're unfair!" Chilcote's spirits had risen. He spoke rapidly, almost pleasantly. "It isn't I who keep away. It's the stupid affairs of the world that keep me. I'd be with you every hour of the twelve if I had my way."

She looked up at the bare trees. Her expression was a delightful mixture of amusement, satisfaction and skepticism. "Then you will dine?" she said at last.

"Certainly." His reaction to light spirits carried him forward.

"Now nice? Shall we fix a day?"
"A day? Yes; yes—if you like." He hesitated for an instant, then again the impulse of the previous moment dominated his other feeling. "Yes," he said quickly; "yes. After all, why not fix it now?"

With a sudden inclination toward amiability he opened his overcoat, thrust his hand into an inner pocket and drew out his engagement book—the same long, narrow book fitted with two pencils that Loder had scanned so interestedly on his first morning at Grosvenor square. He opened it, turning the pages rapidly. "What day shall it be? Thursday's full—and Friday—and Saturday. What a bore!" He still talked fast.

Lillian leaned across. "What a sweet book!" she said. "But why the blue crosses?" She touched one of the pages with her gloved finger.

Chilcote jerked the book, then laughed, with a touch of embarrassment. "Oh, the crosses! Merely to remind me that certain appointments must be kept. You know my beastly memory! But what about the day? Shall we fix the day?" His voice was in control, but mentally her trivial question had disturbed and jarred him. "What day shall we say?" he repeated. "Monday in next week?"

Lillian glanced up, with a faint exclamation of disappointment. "How horribly far away!" She spoke with engaging petulance and, leaning forward afresh, drew the book from Chilcote's hand. "What about tomorrow?" she exclaimed, turning back a page. "Why not tomorrow? I knew I saw a blank space."

"Tomorrow! Oh, I—I!" He stopped. "Jack!" Her voice dropped it. It was true that she desired Chilcote's opinion on her adventure, for Chilcote's opinion on men and manners had a certain bitter shrewdness, but the exercise of her own power added a point to the desire. If the matter had ended with the gain or loss of a tete-a-tete with him, it is probable that, whatever its utility, she would not have pressed it, but the underlying motive was the stronger. Chilcote had been a satellite for years, and it was unpleasant that any satellite should drop away into space.

"Jack!" she said again in a lower and still more effective tone, and lifting her muff, she buried her face in her flowers. "I suppose I shall have to dine and go to a music hall with Leonard—or stay at home by myself," she murmured, looking out across the trees.

Again Chilcote glanced over the long, thin streamer which he had made the full circuit of the park.

"It's tiresome being by oneself," she murmured.
"For awhile he was irresponsible; then slowly his eyes returned to her face. He watched her for a second, and, leaning quickly toward her, he took his book and scribbled something in the vacant space.
She watched him interestedly. Her face lighted up, and she laid aside her muff.

"Dear Jack!" she said. "How very sweet of you!" Then, as he held the book toward her, her face fell. "Dine 33 Cadogan gardens, 8 o'clock; talk with L—" she read. "Why, you've forgotten the essential thing!"
He looked up. "The essential thing?" She smiled. "The blue cross," she said. "Isn't it worth even a little one?" The tone was very soft. Chilcote yielded.

"You have the blue pencil," he said in sudden response to her mood.

She glanced up in quiet pleasure at her success, and, with a charming affectation of seriousness, marked the engagement with a big cross. At the same moment the car slackened speed, as the chauffeur waited for further orders.

Lillian shut the engagement book and handed it back. "Where can I drop you?" she asked. "At the club?" The question recalled him to a sense of present things. He thrust the book into his pocket and glanced about him. They had passed by Hyde park corner. The crowd of horses and carriages had thinned as the hour of lunch drew near, and the wide roadway of the park had an air of added space. The suggested loneliness affected him. The tall trees, still bereft of leaves, and the colossal gateway incomprehensively stirred the sense of mental panic that sometimes seized him in face of vastness of space or of architecture. In one moment Lillian, the appointment he had just made, the manner of its making, left him. The world was filled with his own personality, his own immediate sensations.

"Don't bother about me!" he said quickly. "I can get out here. You've been very good. It's been a delightful morning." With a hurried pressure of her fingers he rose and stepped from the car.

Reaching the ground, he paused for a moment and raised his hat, then, without a second glance, he turned and walked rapidly away.

Lillian sat watching him meditatively. She saw him pass through the gateway, saw him hail a hansom; then she remembered the waiting chauffeur.

CHAPTER XXI

ON the same day that Chilcote had parted with Lillian—but at 3 o'clock in the afternoon—Loder, dressed in Chilcote's clothes and with Chilcote's heavy overcoat slung over his arm, walked from Fleet street to Grosvenor square. He walked steadily, neither slowly nor fast, his attention on his last journey over the same ground was tempered by feelings he could not satisfactorily bracket even to himself. There was less of vehement elation and more of matured determination in his gait and bearing than there had been on that night, though the incidents of which they were the outcome were very complex.

On reaching Chilcote's house he passed upstairs, but, still following the routine of his previous return, he did not halt at Chilcote's door, but moved onward toward Eve's sitting room and there paused.

In that pause his numberless irregular thoughts tumbled into one.

He had the same undefined sense of standing upon sacred ground that had touched him on the previous occasion, but the outcome of the sensation was different. This time he raised his hand almost immediately and tapped on the door.

He waited, but no voice responded to his knock. With a sense of disappointment he knocked again; then, pressing his determination still further, he turned the handle and entered the room.

No private room is without meaning, whether trivial or the reverse. In a room perhaps more even than in speech, in look or in work does the impress of the individual make itself felt. There on the wax of outer things the inner self imprints its seal, enforces its fleeing claim to separate individuality. This thought, with its cresting interest, made Loder walk slowly, almost seriously, half-way across the room and then pause to study his surroundings.

The room was of medium size—not too large for comfort and not too small for ample space. At a first impression it struck him as unlike any anticipation of a woman's sanctum. The walls paneled in dark wood, the richly bound books, the beautifully designed bronze ornaments, even the flowers, deep crimson and violet blue in tone, had an air of somber harmony that was scarcely feminine. With a strangely pleasant impression he realized this, and, following his habitual impulse, moved slowly forward toward the fireplace and there paused, his elbow resting on the mantelpiece.

He had scarcely settled comfortably into his position, scarcely entered on his second and more comprehensive study of the place, than the arrangement of his mind was altered by the turning of the handle and the opening of the door.

The newcomer was Eve herself. She was dressed in outdoor clothes and walked into the room quickly; then, as Loder had done, she, too, paused.

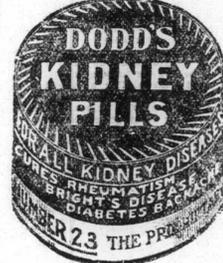

The gesture, so natural and spontaneous, had a peculiar attraction. As she glanced up at him, her face alight with inquiry, she seemed extraordinarily much the owner and designer of her surroundings. She was framed by them as naturally and effectively as her eyes and her face were framed by her black hair. For one moment he forgot that his presence demanded explanation; the next she had made explanation needless. She had been looking at him intently; now she came forward slowly.

"John?" she said, half in appeal, half in question.

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

"Fruit-a-tives" Have Proved Their Value In Thousands of Cases

WONDERFUL RECORD OF A WONDERFUL CURE

Only Remedy That Acts On All Three Of The Organs Responsible For The Formation Of Uric Acid In The Blood.

Many people do not realize that the Skin is one of the three great eliminators of waste matter from the body. As a matter of fact, the Skin rids the system of more Urea (or waste matter) than the Kidneys. When there is Kidney Trouble, Pain In The Back and Acid Urine, it may not be the fault of the kidneys at all, but due to faulty Skin Action, or Constipation of the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures weak, sore, aching Kidneys, not only because it strengthens these organs but also because "Fruit-a-tives" opens the bowels, sweetens the stomach and stimulates the action of the skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.
