The Mother's Struggle.—The Plight continued.

— A dilemma.—The delayed Dinner.—A parlour summons.—Tracking Niggers.—The Dirt Kogd.—Haley's discomfiture.—The noble Kentuckian.-Haley's soliloquy.

Road.—Haley's discomfiture:—The noble Kentuckian.—Haley's soliloquy.

It is impossible to concoive of a human greature more wholly desolate and forlorn than Eliza, when she turned her footsteps from Uncle Tom's cabin.

Her husband's adfering and dangers, and the danger of her child, all blended in her mind, with a confused and attaining sense of the risk she was running, in feaving the only home she had ever known, and cutting lose from the protection of a friend whom she loyed and revered. Then there was the parting from every familiar object,—the place where she had grown up, the trees under which she had played, the groves where she had walked many an evening in happier days, by the side of her young husband,—everything as it lay in the clear, frusty stariight, escende to speak reproachfully to her, and ask her whither could she go from a home like that!

But stronger than all was maternal love, wrought into a paroxysm of frenty by the near approach of a fearful danger. Her boy was old enough to have walked by her side, and, in an indifferent case, she would only have led him by the hand; but now the bare thought of putting him out of her arms made her shudder, and ahe strained him to her bosom with a convulaive grasp, as she went rapidly forward.

The frosty ground creaked beneath her feet, and she trembbed at the sound; every quaking leaf and fluttering shadow seat the blood beckward to her heart, and quickened her footsteps. She wondered within herself at the strength that sectified to be come upon her; for ahe felt the weight of her boy as if it had been a feather, and every flutter of fear seemed to increase the supernatural power that hore her on, while from her pale liga hurst forth, in frequent ejaculations, the prayer to a Friand above, "Lord, help; Lord, save me?"

If it were your Harry, mother, or your Willie, that were going to be torn from you by a brutal prayer to a Friend above, " Lord, help; Lord, save me?"

If it were your Harry, mother, or your Willie, that were going to be torn from you by a brutal trader, to-morrow morning;—if you had seen the mae, and heard that the papers were signed and delivered, and you had only from twelve o'clock till merning to make good your eccape,—thew fast could you walk! How many miles could you make in those few brief hours, with the darling at your bosom,—the little sleepy head on your shoulder,—the small, soft arms trustingly holding on to your neck!

For the child slept. At first the novelty and alarm kept him waking; but his mother so hurriedly repressed every breath or sound, and so assured him, that if he were only still she would certainly save him, that he clung quietly round hencek, only asking as he found himself sinking to sleep—

neck, only asking as he found himself sinking to sleep—
"Mother, I don't need to keep awake, do I ?"
"No, my darling a sleep if you want to."
"But, mother, if I do get a sleep, you won't let him get me!"
"No I so may God help me!" said his mother, with a paler cheek, and a brighter light in her large dark eyes.
"You're sure, an't you, mother?"
"Yes, sure!" said the mother, in a voice that startled herself; for it seemed to her to come from a spirit within, that was no part of her; and the boy dropped his little weary head on her shoulder, and was soon asleep. How the touch of those warm arms, the gentle breathings that came in her pock, seemed to her as if strongth poured into her in electric streams, from every gentle touch and movement of the sleeping, confiding the body, that for a time can make flesh and nerve impregnable, and string the sinewa like steel, so that the weak becomes so mighty.

The bounderies of the farm, the greve, the woodlot passed by her digzily as she waited on; and still she went, leaving one familiar object after another, slacking not, pausing not, till reddning day tight found her many a long mite from all traces of any familiar, objects upon the open highway.

She had often been, with her mistress, to visit some connections in the little villiage of T—not far from the Ohio river, and knew the road well.
To go thither, to escape scross the Ohio river, were the first hurried outlines of the plan of escape; beyond that she could only hope in God.

When horses and vehicles began to move along the highway, with that alert perception peculiar to a state of excitement, and which seems to be a sort, of inspiration, she became aware that her headlong pace and distracted air might bring on her remark and suspicion. She theration put the boy on the ground and adjusting her dress and bonnot she walked on' at as lapid a pace as she thought consistent with the preservation of appearances.
In her little bundle she had provided a story of cakes and apples, which she used as expedients for quickening the speed of the child, rolling the apple some yards before them, when the boy would run with all his might after it; and this ruse, often repeated, carried them over many a half-mile.

After a while they come to a tirick patch of rues, often repeated, carried them over many a half-mile.

After a while they came to a thick patch of woodland, through which murnured a clear brook. As the child complained of hunger and thirst, she climbed over the tence with him; and sitting down behind a large rook which concealed them from he road, ahe gave him a breakfast out of her little package. The boy wondered and grieved that she could not est; and when, putting his arms round her neck, he tried to wedge some of his cake into her mouth, it seemed to her, that the rising in her throat would cheke her.

"No, no, Harry darling! mother can't eat till you are aafe! We must go on -on-mill we come to the river!" And she hurried again into the road, and again constrained herealf to walk regularly and composally forwards.

She was many miles past any neighbourhood where she was personally known. If she should chnee to meet any who knew her, she reflected that the well-known kindness of the family would be of itself a blind to suspiciou, as making it an unlikely supposition, that she could be a fugitive. As she was also so white as not to be known as of colouted lineage without a critical survey, and her child was white also, it was much easier for to pass on unsuspected.

On this presumption she stopped at noon at a neat farmhouse, to rest herself, and buy some dinner for her child and self; for, as the danger decreased with the distance, the supernatural tension of the nervous system lessened, and she found herself both weary and hungry.

The good woman, kindly and gessiping, semed rather pleased than otherwise with having some-body come in to talk with; and accepted, without examination, Eliza's statement that she "was going on a little piece, to spend a week with her friends,"—all which she hoped in her heart might prove strictly true.

An hour before sunset she entered the village of T—, by the Ohio river, weary and foot-zore, but still strong in heart. Her first glance was at the river, which lay like Jordan between her and the Canaan of liberty on the other side.

It was now early spring, and the river swollen and turbulent; great cakes of floating ice were swinging heavily to and fro in the turbid, waters.

Owing to the peculiar form of the shore on the Kentucky side, the land bending far out into the water, the ice had been lodged and detained in great quantities, and the narrow channel which swept round the bend was full of ice, piled one cake over another, thus forming a temporary barrier to the descending ilee, which lodged, and formed a great undulating raft, filling up the whols river, and extending almost to the Kentucky shore.

Eliza stood for a moment contemplating this unfavourable aspect of things, which she asw at once must prevent the usual ferry-boat from running, and then turned into a small publishouse on t bank to make a few inquiries.

The hostess, who was busy in various fizzing and stewing operations over the fire, preparatory to the evening meal, stopped, with a fork in her hand, as Eliza's sweet and plaintive voice arrested her.

"What is it?" she said.

"Isn't there any ferry or boat that takes people over to B——, now?" she said.

"No, indeed!" said the woman; "the boat has stopped running."

Eliza's look of dismay and disappointment struck the woman, and she said, inquiringly—

"Maybe you're wanting to get over!—anybody sick! Xe seem mighty anxious."

"I've got a child that's very daugerous," said Eliza. "I never heard of it till last night, and I've walked quite a piece to-day, in hopes to get to the ferry."

"Well, now, that's onlucky," said the woman, whose motherly sympathies were much aroused; "I'm re'lly consarned for ye. Solomon!" she called from the window towards a small back building. A man is leather apron and very dirty hands appeared at the door.

"I say, Sol," gaid the woman, "is that ar man going to tote them bar'ls over to might!"

"He said he should try, if 'twas anyway prudent," said the man.

"There's a man a piece down here that's going over with some truck this evening, if he durn' to; he'll be in here to supper to-night, so you'd better set down and wait. That's a sweet little fellow," added the woman, offering him a cake.

But the child, wholly exhausted, cried with weariness.

set down and wait. That's a sweet little fellow, sided the woman, offering him a cake.

But the child, wholly exhausted, cried with weariness.

"Poor fellow! he isn't used to walking, and Pv hurried him on so," said Eliza.

"Well, take him into this roon," said the woman, opening into a small bedroom, where stood a comfortable bed. Eliza laid the weary boy upon it, and held his hands in bern till he was fast usleep. For her there was a rorst. As a fire in her bones, the thought of the pursuer urged her on; and stegard with longing eyes on the sulfer, surging the state is between her and liberry.

"So'd I a heap," said Jake. "Lor, shouldn't we cotch it, Andy!"
Andy shrugged his shoulders, and gave an acquiescent whistle.

The bell here rang, and Tom was summoned to the parlour.

"Thank you, mas'r," said Tom.

"And mind yerself," said the trader, "and don't come it over your master with any o' yer sigger tricks; for I'll take every cent out of him, if you an't thar. If he'd hear to me, he wouldn't trust any on ye—slippery as eels:"

And now I jist ask you, mas'r, have I ever broke word to you, or gone contrary to you, 'specially since I was a Christian!"

Mr. Shelby was fairly overcome, and the tears rose to his eyes.

horses up to the posts, upparently greatly refreshed and invigorated by the scamper of the moraling.

Sam was there, now oiled from dinner, with an abundance of sealous and ready officiousness. As Haley approached, he was boasting, in fourishing style, to Andy, of the evident and eminent success of the operation, now that he had "farly come to it, "had all head and he prepared to mount.

"Your master, I s'pose, don't keep no dogs!" said Haley, atmaghtfully, as he prepared to mount.

"Heaps on 'em," said Sam, triumphantly; than's Bramo-he's a restree! and, besides that, bout every nigger of us keeps a pup of some nature or uther.

"You that Bramo-he's a restree! and he said something class, too, with regard to the said dogs, at which Sam muttered.

"I don't see no use cussin on 'em noway."

"But your master don't keep no dogs, I pretty much know he don't, for trackin out niggers !!"

Sam know exactly what he meant, but he kept on a look of camest and desparents simplicity.

lying, on second thoughts, as being unwilling to implicate Eliza.

When, therefore, Sam indicated the road, Haley plunged briskly into it, followed by Sam and Andy.

Now, the road, in fact, was an old one that had formerly been a thoroughfare to the river, but abandoned for many years after the laying of the new pike. It was open for about an hour's ride, and after that it was cut across by various farms and fences. Sam knew this fact perfectly well; indeed, the rord had heen so long closed up that Andy had never heard of it. He therefore rode along with an air of dutiful submission, only groaning and vociferating eccasionally that "twas desp't rough, and bad for Jerry's foot."

"Now, I jest give yer warning," said Haley, "I know yer; yer won't get me to turn off this yer road, with all yer fussin'—so you shet up!" "Mas'r will go his own way!" said Sam, with rueful submission, at the same time winking most portentously to Andy, whose delight was now very near the explosive point.

Sam was in wonderful spirits; professed to keep a very brisk look out—at one time exclaiming that he saw "a gal's bonnet!" on the top of some distant eminence, or calling to Andy, "if that ther was not likely down the the hollow"—always making these exclamations in some rough or eragy part of the road, where the sudden quickening of speed was a special inconvenience to all parties concerned, and thus keeping Haley in a state of constant commotion.

After riding about an hour in his way the whole party made a precipitate and tunultuous descent into a harn-yard belonging to a large farming establishment. Not a soul was in sight, all the hands being employed in the fields; but, as the barn stood conspicuously and plainly square across the road, it was evident, that their journey in that direction had reached a decided finale.

"Wan't dat ar what tell'd mas r!" said Sam with an air of misred direction that feached. How

"Wan't dat ar what I tell'd maa':!" said Sam, with an air of injured innocence. "How does strange gestlemen 'spect to know more about a country dan de natives horn and raised!"

"Didn't I tell yer I know'd and yer would'nt believe me! I tell'd mas'r it was all shet up, and fenced up, and I didn't 'spect we could get through.—Andy heard me."

It was all too true to be disputed, and the unlucky man had to poeket his wrath with the best grace he was able, and all three faced to the right about, and took up their line of march for the highway.

In consequence of all the various delays, it was about three quarters of an hour after Eliza had laid her child to sleep in the village tavern, that the party came riding into the same place. Eliza was standing by the window, looking out in another direction, when Sam's quick eye caught a glimpse of her. Haley and Andy were two yards behind. At this crisis Sam contrived to have his hat blown off, and uttered a loud and characteristic ejaculation, which startled her at once; she drew suddenly back; the whole train swept by the window, round to the front door.

A thousand lives seemed to be concentrated

The woman folded her child to her bosom, and walked firmly and awiftly away. The man stood and looked after her.

"Shelby, now, mebbe won't think this yer the most neighbourly thing in the world; but what's a feller to do! If he catches one of my gals in the same fix, he's welcome to pay back. Somehow I never could see no kind o' critter a starvin' and pantin,' and trying to clar theirselves, with the dogs arter' em, and go agin' em. Besides, I don't see no kind of 'casion for me to be hunter and catcher for other folks, neither."

Sospoke this poor, heathenish Kentuckian, who had not been instructed in his constitutional relations and, consequently, was betrayed into acting in a sort of Christianized manier, which, if he had been better situated and more enlightened, he would not have been left to do.

Haley had stood a perfectly smazed spectator of the acone, till Eliza had disappeared up the bank, when he turned a blank, inquiring look on Sam and Andy.

"That ar was a tolerable fair stroke of business," said Sam.

"The gal's got even devils in her, I believe," and Haley. "Hew tike a wildent she jumped!" and Haley. "Hew tike a wildent she jumped!" and Haley. "Hew tike a wildent she jumped!" "" Wal, now," said Sam, scratching his head, "I hope mas'r 'll "locase us tryin' dat ar road. Don't think 'f feel spry enough for dat ar, no way!" and Sam gave a hourse chuckle.

"You hungh !" said the trader, with a growl. "Lord! bless you, mas'r, a couldn't help it, now," and Sam gave a hourse chuckle.

"I'll make ye laugh te their side yer mouths!" and the trader, whyng about their heads with his riding-whip!" her though their heads with his riding-whip!" her heads hours their heads with his riding-whip!"

said the trader, hayleg about their heads with his riding-whips has been about in the heads with his riding-whips has been an abouting up the bank, and were on their horses before he was up-adiacy. "I dery much spect missire be anxious, bout Jerry. Maa'r Halay won't want us no longer. Missis wouldn't hear of our ridin'the critters over Limy's bridge to raight;" and, with a facetious poke into Andy's ribe, he started off, followed by the latter, at 'full speed, their shouts of laughter coming faintly on the wind.

LOUIS NAPOLEON AND THE FRENCH.

It required but little political sagacity to foresce, that he difficulties of Lonis Napoleon would by no means be brought to a termination by his success in the great object of his ambition. It required tact, prudence, courage, and good fortune for such a man to change the temporary President-ship of an unpopular Republic, into the hereditary dignity of Emperorship; but all these high qualities, admirably well as they may have been displayed, will need to be exerted in a far greater degree, together with many others equally essential—if he expect to secure his own happiness, and that of the country, which he has called himself to govern. Many as were his difficulties while merely President—they are all increased a hundred fold now that he is Emperor. Unriosity is sated—he has reached the goal; his foes and his friends know the best and the worst of him: his foes take the measure of his life, and weigh their chances against it; while his friends chamour for the reward of their exertions in his behalf, and for the most part reckon their services at values impossible to admit, and inconvenient, if not dangerous, to deny. And these are, perhaps, the least of the evils he has to confront. Individual foes may possibly be conciliated, and importunate friends may be put off with instalments; but nothing will satisfy the great bulle of the nation but the realization of hopes which the ablest and most honest of men would find it difficult to fulfil. Finance, that prosaic monster, is greater than Emperors, and more insatiable than their ambition. A fair balance-sheet—the income equal to the expenditure—a well-fed and a well-employed multitude, these are the matters which no Cassar, however haughty, can despise or neglect without the usual penalty—liability to civil strife and impending revolution.

Already these difficulties have commenced. A commercial crisis, staved off from day to day by incredible shifts, maneouvers, and sacrifices on the part of the Government, threatens to burst over the country. The public securiti

TOWN MEETING.

Proposition to procure an Act to enable the Inhabitants of Charlottetown to assess themselves, for objects of local improvement.

Ix accordance with a notification, published in the newspapers, a meeting of the Inhabitants of Charlottetown, took place on Thursday last, for the purpose of taking into consideration the propriety of endeavouring to procure an Act of Incorporation for Charlottetown. The representatives of Charlottetown, the Hon. Edward Palmer and Francis Loxoworm, Esq. presided. The meeting was a large one, and several questions, arising out of the main one, were discussed with sufficient warmth and freedom—mingled, perhaps, occasionally with too much of the spirit of party and personal prejudice.

The majority of the meeting, we are sorry to say, appeared to be decidedly opposed to an Act of Incorporation, and the original Resolution for the incorporation, and the original Resolution for the incorporation of the town was superseded by the following amendment, viz:—

"That application be made to the Legislature, for an Act to enable the Inhabitants to assess themselves, for objects of local improvement, and that a Committee be appointed to draw up a Bill, to be approved of at a General Meeting of the Town, before it is submitted to the Legislature; and that it be an instruction to such Committee, that all officers employed in the expenditure of such assessments should be elected by the rate-payers, by ballot.

"That the Town to be divided into wards, and each ward to elect an Assessor."

Committee to prepare the Bill.—Mr. John Longworth, John Williams, D. Brenan, L. W. Gall, R. Hutchinson, J. Gainsford, G. Beer, H. Haszard, J. N. Harris.

By means of such an Act as that contemplated by the above Resolution, many very desirable improvements and advantages, shaterial, moral and judicial, what might by secured to the people of Charlottetown by an Act of Incorporation.

The extension and preservation of good order, greater security to life and property, summary very extense for outrast, people of Charlottetown by an Act of Incorporation.

The extension and preservation of good order, greater security to life and property, summary redress for outrage, the immediate removal of nuisances, the suppression of nurseries or hotbeds for the growth and encouragement of every species of infamy and villany, together with many other social and moral improvements, either necessarily implied in the above, or which, it is obvious, would naturally arise out of them, are, we take it, the grand objects to be obtained by an Act of Incorporation, and in fact, through its agency, by all, we believe, who most eagerly desire its accomplishment.

It is very true, that an Act of Incorporation would not be productive of unmixed good. It would here, as well as elsewhere, have its attendant evils; but they would be found light in comparison with its many substantially beneficial results.

Amongst many of "the friends of order," as was too prevalent, but he thought the petitioner, in this instance, was only demanding his just rights.

After some further conversation, it was agreed that the petition should be referred to a Committee of three members, to examine the same and report thereon, viz: Messrs. Lord, Yeo and Wightman.

The Free Education (amendment) Bill was read a second time, and committed to a Committee of the whole House—Mr. Wightman in the chair.

This Bill supplies an omission made in the Free Education Act, in the Gård section so much thereof as enabled the Lieutenant Governor to appoint Assessors for Charlottetown and Common thereunder being left out. It also provides against two schools established under the old Education Act, being mearer together than three miles, receiving Government allowance at the same time, and enables the Board of Education to take conveyances to themselves of the sites of School Houses. It also enacts that Teachers under the old Act whose period of service, under an agreement to teach, may not have expired when the new Act goes into force, shall receive a proportion of their salary up to that time.

The Bill to improve the administration of Criminal Justice, was read a second time, and thereupon committeed to a Committee of the whole

PUBLIC DEMONSTRATION.—On Wednesday afternoon the Sons of Temperance Brass Band arrived from Charlottoews; and the weather being exceedingly propitious for such a display, it was resolved to have a Pablic Procession, or Demonstration. Accordingly, at Four p. m., the Brethren assembled at the Division Room, and having clothed themselves in Regalla, from thence proceeded, in good marching order, through the principal streets, headed by the Band, who caused the welkin to resound with their spirit-stirring and enlivening strains. The Banner of Crystal Stream (Vernon River) Division led the van. Having in this way sufficiently prepared the lieges of Georgetown for the subsequent proceedings, at about Five o'clock the procession returned to the Hall, and dispersed.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLANDERS IN AUSTRALIA.—
Messrs. Wallace Mackieson and Robert Haslard, who left Liverpool, England, on the 17th June last, in the ship Hibernia, 1500 tons, arrived at Melbourne, on the 5th Oct. Letters have been received from them both. They state that they had a long, but pleasant, passage of 104 days, that they were struck with the beautiful appearance of the Town of Melbourne, situated on the Yarva Yarva River, and of the surrounding country; that Carpenters, Blacksmiths, &c. were getting from 15s. to 25s. per day, but every thing was extravagantly high in proportion; that 200 vessels were lying in the harbour deserted by their grews; and that, while on board the Hibernia, they went with a respectable company, bound for "the diggings" with whom they had joined, and were, when they wrote, on the point of setting out for Forest Creek, about 80 miles from Melbourne.

Mr. John MACDONNELL, of Donaldston, who left Halifax in the Chebucto arrived in Melbourne on the 9th October.

Astonishing efficacy of the Oxygenated Bitters,

18 A CASE OF EIGHTERN YEARS' STANDING.
From Fitzhenry Homer, Eq., of Boston, Mass.
Boston, September 28, 1848.

DEAR SIR—It is now eighteen years since I was first troubled with the water-brash and derangement of the stomach. I have taken selvice of the best Physicians in this city and New York, in London, Paris, Germany, and Italy, followed their prescriptions, and visited the several salphur and other springs in this country, the watering places of Germany, and elsewhere in Europe, and had found no relief. Since taking the Bitters I have never had a return of the Water-brash, which daily troubled me of late years to a very great degree. My appetite has returned; the extreme flattlence, severe constipation of the bowels, general debility, and sleepless nights under which I suffered, have entirely left me. Having found so great relief from this most discouraging disorder. I have recommended a trial of your medicine to many of my friends, who are now using it to great dwantage. And I cannot refrain from writing to you in its favour and praise, for the good you have bestowed upon the community; and trust that what little is in my scope to offer in extending the circulation of your "Oxygenated Bitters," will be done with grateful pleasure at all times.

Charlottetown, February 14, 1853. 6w Improvement of HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

TWICE A WEEK! IMPORTANT TO TOWN and COUNTRY SUBSCRIBERS

THE management of the Newspaper which, for the last 30 years, has been successfully conducted by J. D. Haszard, Esq., is now transferred to the Subscriber, who will assume all the responsibilities thereof after the publication of the present number.

The circulation of Hazzard's Gazette is, at present, and has always been, greater than that of any other newspaper in this Colony; and-availing himself of some of the greatest recent improvements which have been made in the art and machinery of the Printer,—its new proprietor and publisher hopes he shall be able still to secure for it the first place in the public estimation.

still to secure for it the first place in the public estimation.

To this end, he has, at a considerable outlay, purchased a Power Press; and, on his premises, made the alterations and additions which were requisite for its proper erection. About the beginning of February, he expects to have it in perfect working order; and—that being accomplished—he will, afterwards, issue Hussard's Gazette TWICE a week, of the same size as that in which it is at present published, and, to Subscribers, at the same price. The advantages which, from this Lindral. Aleasurers, will accrue to Subscribers and Advertisers, are so apparent, that they require no comment, and a due appreciation of it, by the public, will, it is hoped, appear in the increased patronage bestowed upon the Paper.

The Editorial Department will be entrusted to the management of a gentleman, whose ability and experience as a writer for the newspaper press, combined with the liberality and moderation of his political sentiments, are such as to afford a good guarantee for the future utility and popularity of the Paper.

By copious extracts from Englass Parens; by approved and well-written Tales; by articles on Americana and Gazerra, an earnest matter, free from sectarian bias; and by comprehensive notices of Social and Political Reformations, now happily in progress amongst all the civilized nations of the earth, there will always be manifest in the management of Hazzara's Gazerra, an earnest desire to provide valuable and acceptable instruction and entertainment for all classes amongst its readers.

And, further,—that the patrons of Hazzard's Gazette may be duly apprised of all Punic. Norces proceeding from the Government,—they will regularly appear in it—granitously published—under one general head.

For the transmission of Europeans, the subscriber has also made arrangements with Commercer in the remaining of the community, will always be thankfully received. To this end, he has, at a considerable outlay,

I applied Doctor Johnson's Anodyne Liniment, or Liquid Opodeldoc, and several other remedies, without any relief. After suffering in this way about a week, I purchased a bottle of Cramp and Pain Killer, prepared by Curtis & Prankins, Bangor, and after three applications was entirely relieved and free from pain, and am now entirely well. I also cured a friend of mine, who had been suffering for a long time with a lame side, with the same bottle. Although these works are distinguished by the political shades above indicated, yet but a small portion of their contents is devoted to political subjects. It is their literary character which gives them their chief value, and in that they stand confessedly far above all other journals of their class. Blackwood, still under the masterly guidance of Christopher North, maintains its ancient celebrity, and is, at this time, unusually attractive, from the serial works of Bulwer and other literary aptables, written for that magazine, and first appearing in its columns, both in Great Britain and in the United States. Such works as "The Caxtons" and "My New Novel," (both by Bulwer), "My Pennisular Medal," "The Green Hand," and other serials, of which numerous rival editions are issued by the leading publishers in this country, have to be reprinted by those publishers from the pages of Blackwood, after it has been issued by Messra, Scott and Co., so that Subscribers to the Reprint of that Magazine may always rely on having the earliest reading of these fascinating tales.

THE MORMONS.

A letter from a Mormon citizen to an American paper states:—"Ten thousand saints have been added to the settlement during the season. Merchandise is plenty, and held at high rates; leather and some other manufactories have been established: a full set of beet sugar machinery, direct from France, had arrived, accompanied by practical operatives; many new buildings had been constructed, harvests had been very productive and abundant. So far for mere temporal matters. The theological or spiritual news is far more important. A new era seems to be dawning upon mannew era seems to be dawning upon man-kind, or perhaps, we should say woman-kind. Lieut. Gunnison, in his work upon Mormons, which should be read by every body, told us that in 1843, Joseph Smith, the prophet, had a revelation in reference to the Mormon system of plurality of wives, or " marriage for time and eternity." This revelation was made to the prophet Joseph, but its publication was interdicted, until another revelation should be given to the chief seer of the Mormon church. That interdict, it seems, has been taken off; for Governor Brigham Young, in the presence of 2,500 saints and suners, in the great tabernacle of the "chosen people," proclaimed the law of marriage; and then, with that vigor which has characterized the Mormon conquest at Salt Lake, sent out to the heathen lands of Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, the West Indies, the Pacific Islands, and the old United States, one branded missionstrick Professor Organical Professor Organ hundred missionaries. "HE superiority and advantages of Gas over every other method yet discovered for lighting Towns are so self-swident and so universally acknowledged, that it, would be superfluous to dilate on the subject; and it is only surprising that, while every Town and considerable Village in Great Britain, as also many Towns in the neighbouring Provinces, are lighted by Gas, this, the Capital of Prince Edward Island, should be still in darkness.

To supply this desideratum, it is now proposed to form a Joint Stock Company—to be Incorporated by an Act of the Legislature—with a subscribed Capital of £6000, in 1200 Shares, of £5 each, to be managed by a body of Directors, annually chosen by the Shareholders.

of £6000, in 1200 Shares, of £5 each, to be managed by a body of Directors, annually chosen by the Shareholders.

As many of the inhabitants of Charlottetown may be comparatively unacquainted with the practical results of Gas Companies, it may be proper to observe, that a Joint Stock Company for the surpose of lighting the Town with Gas, can hardly be called a speculation; because it is now ascertained, by reference to the annual Reports and Dividends of the Gas Companies of Great Britain, and some of the neighbouring Colonies, that wherever they have been managed with ordinary prudence and economy, they have yielded a certain and steady return of annual interest on the capital invested.

Previous to bringing the scheine before the public, the Provisional Committee had been in correspondence with competent partice, both in the neighboring Provinces and in Great Britain, and from the information thus obtained, and the estimates they have received, they are of opinion that the Land, Buildings, Apparatus, Machinery and Pipes requisite to enable the Company to goilly into operation, may be acquired and completed for and with the proposed capital.

To enable the Company to commence operations at suce, and on the most advantageous terms, it has been resolved that a deposit of £1 5s. per share be paid on the allocation of shares, and that no further call be made, till the Act of Incorporation be obtained; and that such further calls shall be payable by such instillments, and at such intervals, at the Directors may fudge most convenient for the Shareholders and the requirements of the Company.

Although certain spirited individuals were prepared to subscribe the whole of the requisite Capital, it is deemed but fair te give the public an opportunity of participating in the advantages of the undertaking; and for this purpose the Subscription List will remain open at the Office of Mr. Lawson, interim Secretary to the Committee,—more than one-half of the Shares being already subscribed.
