FIRE AT PROVIDENCE, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 9. A fire breaking out and spreading with terrific speed through a mass of buildings along and near the waterfront at Dyer and Dorrance Streets, shortly after noon today, developed into what promised to be the most disastrous conflagration in the city's history, for almost within twenty-five minutes it brought all the apparatus in the city into action and the blaze was prevented from spreading. The loss is estimated at about three hundred thousand dollars.

MACKENZIE KING AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

LONDON, Oct. 9. King George to-day received Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, at Buckingham Palace. His Majesty displayed keenest interest in matters pertaining to Canada and the Dominion's position in world affairs. The conversation, in the most friendly manner, covered a wide range of public affairs. The invitation to Buckingham Palace was received by Premier King almost immediately after the King's arrival from Scotland, where he paid his annual visit to the highland games at Braemar.

Mammoth Show at the Crescent Yesterday

BIG SINGING ACT GOES OVER WITH A SWING.

A big show from every angle, was presented at the Crescent Theatre yesterday. The singing act by Pat Harrington and Robert Shields was indeed an attraction worth hearing and received a hearty ovation. Mr. Shields' rich baritone voice was in excellent trim and the selections rendered by him were well delivered. The duet by Messrs. Harrington and Shields was the feature of the program. The whole bill was well up to the standard of perfection.

The film entitled "Down to the Sea in Ships" contained all the entertainment one could possibly desire, as it was thrilling from start to finish, with no fake scenes. It's a beautiful tale in which a young couple overcome apparently insurmountable obstacles for the sake of a great love. A breath-taking picture of the most hazardous pursuit in the world, the great hunt for whales on the coast of New Bedford.

A great Amateur Contest takes place on Friday night. It may be noted that last Friday's affair was the biggest so far as quite a number of novel items appeared, some of the same attractions are appearing this week, and also new contestants have signified their intention to appear. Make no other "date" for Friday night.

GEDDES RETURNS TO WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. The British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, will return to Washington early in December, according to official announcement, in spite of the widely published reports that he would not return to the United States as Ambassador.

BRITISH STEAMER ASHORE.

SEATTLE, Oct. 9. The British steamer Sunland went ashore this morning at Meadow Pt., near Seattle, in a heavy fog. She is expected to float at high tide.

FLOODS IN FLORIDA.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 9. Moore Haven residents reported late this afternoon that water was flooding the houses, and outside communications might be cut off any time.

STRABLING WILL FIGHT BURNS.

MACON, Georgia, Oct. 9. Strabling, father and manager of W. L. Young Strabling, who fought the sensational battle with Mike McTigue, world's light-heavyweight champion last week with even honors, announced last night that the 18-year-old pugilist will fight Tommy Burns in Detroit on October 15th, twelve rounds, no decision.

ALASKA'S FIGHT.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 9. Alaska is going to make a great fight before Congress, when that body next convenes, to have Prince Rupert made its principal port by the deletion of the so-called Alaska clause from the Jones Coastwise Shipping Bill. This is the statement of John Rungtard, of Juneau, Attorney General for Alaska, who is in Vancouver on his way to Washington, where he will direct the fight on behalf of the great American Northern territory.

B.C. LONGSHOREMEN STRIKE.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 9. The longshoremen of Vancouver and the lower mainland of British Columbia, including the lumber loading points on the Fraser River, struck last night to enforce their demands for an increase from eighty cents an hour straight and a dollar and a quarter overtime to ninety cents and a dollar thirty-five respectively. They also ask for special rates on various commodities and that checkers come under the control of the union.

NEW ITALIAN DELEGATION AT JANINA.

ALBANIA, Oct. 9. The new Italian Boundary Delegation to replace those murdered at Janina has arrived to take their places on the Greco-Albania Boundary Commission and continue the work of their murdered predecessors. The party proceeded at once to Janina, the scene of the assassinations.

CRIGUI A GOOD SPORT.

PARIS, Oct. 9. Eugene Crigui fractured his left hand in winning a decision over Henri Hebrans, Belgian, last Saturday night and will be unable to fight for months. It is estimated Crigui has sacrificed purses totalling a million francs in order to keep his engagements to fight for charity.

Largest Oil Tank Covers

TWENTY ACRES.

Covering an area of 20 acres and with a capacity of 1,750,000 barrels, the world's largest oil storage tank is nearing completion at Wilmington, Calif. The concrete tank rises only eight feet above the ground, half of it being below the surface. The roof will be supported by wooden poles set in concrete blocks in the bottom of the tank, also of concrete.

Despite the vast quantity of oil that will be held in the tank, the sides and bottom will be only four inches thick. This feature is made possible by the careful preparation of the earth under the tank, by the methods of reinforcing the concrete and by the nature of the concrete. All soil around the excavation for the tank is removed and repacked until it is much more dense than at first. This is accomplished by tractors treaded with iron attachments, resembling a sheep's hoof. The sides of the excavation are packed beyond the limits to which the side of the tank will extend. These sides are then cut through so that at all places the texture of the soil will be constant.

This mammoth tank is the only large concrete project of its kind built of poured concrete; usually they are constructed of steel.

Winnipeg's Crime Record

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—A total of 1,074 men and women were committed by the courts of Manitoba to the custody of the provincial jail during the 12 month period which ended August 31 this year, according to the annual report issued by C. J. Dowdle, governor of the institution. Increases for the number of prisoners committed for immoral conduct, assault, drunk and disorderly, contempt of court, theft, and false pretences were recorded. Breaches of the Temperance Act, Narcotic Drugs Act, driving a car while drunk, and burglary increased. The report recommends the installation of a "locked" hospital for the care of drug addicts, so that friends of the prisoners may be prevented from smuggling dope to them. It recommends also that prisoners suffering from social diseases be retained in the jail until they are cured, even though their terms expire while they are undergoing treatment.

Ship Uses Suction to Catch Fish

Now being fitted out in New York is a ship equipped with a recently invented mechanical fishing device, whereby the catching of large quantities of fish in record time and at a minimum expense can be accomplished.

How The Catcher Operates.
The mechanical fish catcher consists essentially of a tube extending from the bow to the stern of the boat, emptying into a trap. An adjustable telescopic net is situated at the bow of the boat. This net leads to open pipes that are connected with the tube at either side of the bow. Within the tube an artificial current carries the fish and water into the trap. The current is created by an eight-inch centrifugal pump driven by a motor, causing a suction force at the forward end that helps pull in the fish. The equipment delivers approximately 66,000 pounds of fish and water a minute into the trap. Of this amount from 10 to 20 per cent should be fish, according to the inventor. Assuming a mean of 15 per cent, the tube will deliver 9,900 pounds of fish a minute when in a school. The water flows overboard, while the fish are retained in the netting of the trap. Going through a school with the equipment working, a tremendous amount of fish can be caught in a short time, its inventors say. The matter of getting into a school is considered simple, as the fish are not easily stampeded when travelling in very large numbers.

Big Increase in Welland Canal Tonnage

An increase of 116,444 tons of freight during the month of June over June, 1922, is recorded in the statistical report of navigation through the Welland Canal from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Ottawa. On the season's navigation a decrease of 26,520 tons to June 30 is shown over last year, but navigation opened this year on April 25, whereas it opened on April 17, 1922.

During the month the total tonnage of vessels passing through the canal was 560,471, an increase of 115,928 over June last year. Of this tonnage 449,768 tons was represented by Canadian steam vessels, an increase of 188,874 over last year. Canadian sailing vessels represented 66,640 tons, a decrease of 14,279 tons over last year. United States steam vessels using the canal had a tonnage of 59,756, while United States sailing vessels had a tonnage of only 4,866.

The Barqt. "Clutha" And Other Ships

owned by the Great Firm of John Munn & Co., Harbor Grace.

(H. F. SHORTIS.)

By the loss of the splendid barqt. "Clutha" some months ago, the last of our famous mercantile marine, of her class, passed away. The "Clutha" was built in 1831, and is therefore 43 years old. It is a fine ship as long as that these days, and the "Clutha" was built in the good old days when everything was done to make them staunch and seaworthy. They were remarkable for their sailing qualities. She was undoubtedly the most fortunate vessel in the Newfoundland trade for many years. She was the last of the famous fleet belonging to the great firm of John Munn & Co., of Harbour Grace, when she was by far the largest fish-merchant in this country. It will not be out of place in this brief article to give some particulars of the magnificent fleet of foreign going vessels at this firm had from the time the late John Munn started business in Harbor Grace in 1830, until the Bank failed in 1884, when the old firm had to cease their extensive operations. It will also endeavor to give the names of the Captains, where the ships were built, and where they were lost, etc. It is a difficult task, but if I may have mention that he is a competent person will kindly verify it, more especially some older men in Harbor Grace.

The "Clutha" was brought to this country by Capt. Henry Bailey in 1831, and I may here mention that he had on board that ship in Brazil in 1834. He made some very quick passages in her, and so did Capt. Joyce, who sailed her in 1836, and ran her with Capt. & Monroe until 1915 when she was purchased by Crosbie & Co., who were the owners up to the time when she was lost. She will always be associated with Capt. Joyce, who sailed her for 30 years without a mishap or any damage to her cargo. Capt. Joyce was a most popular commander, and a greater proof of this can be given than the fact that he had a man, as was his crew, without a break, for over 21 years. This forms a record in the mercantile marine, and perhaps he like his never occurred in any part of the world. Although I knew Munn & Co., was for several years employed in the office of Baine Johnston & Co., previous to his starting business with Captain Panton in 1830, and the two firms still sport the house-flag of the "blue" and "white," and long may it float at the masthead of the ships of the two firms. I think the next vessel Panton & Munn had was the "British Queen," to commemorate the year Queen Victoria ascended the throne of Great Britain.

MUNN'S FLEET OF FOREIGN-GOING VESSELS.

1831, William Johnston (called after senior partner in Baine Johnston & Co.), 1837, British Queen, built at Aberdeen, 1838, Noctval, Aberdeen, lost 1848 at Orkney Islds, Scotland, 1844, William Panton, Capt. Pitt, Aberdeen, sold in Liverpool, 1845, Naomi, Capt. Cunningham, built at Hr. Grace, 1847, Arabella Tarbet, Kearney, Hr. Grace, lost in 1854, 1847, Clutha, Cunningham, built on Beach, Hr. Grace, 1854, Rothesay, Capt. W. E. Taylor, Hr. Grace, went ashore at Western Bay, Bay de Verde, was got off, repaired, and made a brig, called the Terra Nova, and was lost in Indian Tickle in the great gale of 9th October, 1857, under command of Capt. John Kehoe, The Naomi, Arabella Tarbet, and Rothesay were built by the great builder, Michael Kearney, at the junction of Victoria and Water Streets, Harbor Grace, and were launched across the street into the waters of the harbor. The Arabella Tarbet made the run from New York to Harbor Grace in 7 days with a cargo of flour. She was commanded by the famous veteran, Capt. Richard Kearney, brother of the builder and father of Mr. Richard Kearney, cooper of this city. The Rothesay was launched at Harbor Grace on January 21st, 1852, and the Naomi was lost at Outer Cove, on January 18th, 1853, one body was recovered. The Esther Ann, Captain Smith, England, lost 1858; Topsy, Capt. Duncan Munn, Nova Scotia, 1855; Darling, Capt. Gowans, called after Governor Darling, whose niece married Harrison Ridley, lost at Cape St. Francis, Queen, Capt. John Munn, condemned at Gibraltar 1858; Eliza, Capt. Tucker, P.E.I., lost at Petty Harbor, 1860; Baccalieu, Capt. Wm. Gordon, built at Bell Isld, Conception Bay, by Kent, as were the Belinda, Bonavista, and Princess—the latter I remember being repaired on Point of Beach in Hr. Grace, lost at Labrador 1867; Terra Nova (formerly barqt. Rothesay), Capt. Kehoe, lost at Labrador 1867; brig Scotia, Capt. Bursell, Nova Scotia, lost with all hands 1868; Glangarry, Capt. Hanrahan, Nova Scotia, lost at Joe 1874; Capt. John Keefe was master. One year in early seventies the Glangarry (brig), Capt. Hanrahan, was one of the few vessels that arrived safely from the Mediterranean. She was 110 days from Cagliari, Sicily, and she had one of the hardest crew that ever manned a ship, otherwise she would never have seen Newfoundland, brig Belle, Capt. Wm. Hennessey, Nova Scotia, lost 1873; Capt. Hennessey once made the run to Oporto in 8 days, and had to run over the bar during a gale, to the amazement of the Portuguese, who expected her to be swamped. It was a wonderful escape, but Capt. Hennessey could do nothing else, and the escape was miraculous; 1860 barque Fleetwing, Capt. Bailey, Green Bay, condemned 1873; Java, Capt. Alex Parsons, Nova Scotia, lost at West Indies, 1872; 1872, brig Trinity, Capt. Kehoe, Bridport, England, sold 1885; Charles W. Oulton, Capt. Layton, Nova Scotia, lost at St. Mary's Bay, 1889; 1876, Arctic, Capt. Foote, New Perlican, lost at West Indies, 1882; 1877, Bonita, Capt. Hutchings, Nova Scotia, lost 1882; Pet, Capt. Michael Collins, lost 1883; Gipsy, Capt. T. Alcock, lost 1880; Highflyer, Capt. Pike, lost 1882; Flora, Capt. Jos. Pike, lost at St. Pierre, 1906 (Capt. Pike was not master when she was lost, I think); 1881, Clutha, Capt. Joyce, Ardrossan, lost 1882; Keatrel, Joseph Taylor, English, still afloat; Roseyear, Capt. M. Parsons, English, lost.

Of course this list does not include the hundreds of vessels that prosecuted the Labrador and sealfisheries during the long business career of the great firm of Panton & Munn, afterwards John Munn & Co., and I know, I have missed many of the foreign-going vessels in the list. To give some idea of the extensive business carried on by the firm, from 1871 to 1884 (the year of the crash), the average amount of codfish shipped from Labrador alone by the above firm was 178,000 quintals, besides thousands of barrels of herring.

Says Bellew Lied About the Labrador

NEWFOUNDLAND MINING ENGINEER ALSO CHARGES THAT GOLD SAMPLES WERE "SALTED."

(Canadian Mining Journal.)

Last winter the Labrador stock-jobbing campaign was preceded by preparatory paragraphs in the daily papers, making the public ready for the coming advertisements that were to follow. Immediately these paragraphs appeared, the Canadian Mining Journal got in touch with a well-known mining engineer in Newfoundland, and on the basis of the information he supplied exposed the whole infamous plot. Recently, we asked this same authority for the facts as determined during the past summer, and he has replied as follows:

"While I did not go to Labrador myself, I have interviewed all the returned prospectors, with the result that there is no question that the whole thing was one of the most barefaced swindles in my experience of mining.

"The original discovery by Bellew was a fake.

"The reported discovery of the Stanley May party was due to the salting of the samples taken. The opinion of Capt. Jeffreys is that the salting was done after the samples reached Montreal.

"Mr. Cassin, who accompanied the Jeffreys party this summer, coming from California to do so, stated that in his opinion there was not a colour of gold within fifty miles of Big Brook, Stag Bay, where the supposed discoverer was located. Mr. Wilson, of Timmins, said the same, as did also Captain Thompson, of Liverpool, England.

"Capt. Jeffreys is firmly convinced there is no alluvial gold on the Labrador. Fred Chambers, who is a prospector of many years' experience and who took a party from St. John's, made the same statement.

"Furthermore, all these men stated the coast for many miles and consisted entirely of detritus from granite; that the formation was all glacial on that the reported black sand was ground-up horn-blende; that for thirty miles back from the coast no other formation but granite was encountered. All these men were very indignant over the whole thing.

"In my opinion, responsibility for the hoax rests primarily upon Bellew, who unquestionably lied. In the second place it rests upon the Stanley May party, who, in spite of having an experienced engineer with them, allowed their samples to be salted. I believe no blame attaches to Mr. May, who was convinced that gold was there, probably in paying quantities. In the third place, the Newfoundland Government should be severely censured for not sending a competent man to investigate the alleged discovery as soon as it was reported."

"How do you manage to remember everything I tell you so well, Mary?" inquired her employer the other day. "I'll tell you, ma'am," Mary replied. "All me life never a lie I've told. And when ye don't have to be taxin' yer memory to be rememberin' what ye told this one or that one, or how ye explained this or that, ye don't over-work it and it lasts ye good as new, for ever."

A Startling Screen Production

"RICH MEN'S WIVES" A NEW TYPE PLAY.

"Rich Men's Wives," a Preferred Picture, has been selected by the Nickel Theatre for its principal attraction to be shown soon. Advance information declares that this play, a new type of drama, turns the calcium on the social butterfly in much the same manner a scientist would use a microscope on the winged species. When H. P. Schulberg, president of Preferred Pictures, Inc., decided to produce this story—inspired, it is said, by the unhappy revelations recently in one of America's leading families—he chose Gasnier, maker of "Kismet" and other big pictures, to direct it. Then, having obtained Gasnier, he went seeking for a cast capable and popular. For his principals, he selected House Peters, Claire Windsor, the reigning beauty of the screen to-day, Baby Richard Head, rich, the unforgettable child artist; Rosemary Theby, Gaston Glass, Myrtle Stedman, Charles Clay, Mildred June, Carol Holloway, William Austin and Martha Mattar.

"Rich Men's Wives" is an original story, written by Frank Dasey and Ames Christine Johnston. It was adapted to the screen by Lois Zellner and is being distributed by the newly-formed Al Lichtman Corporation.

New Cod Fishing Bank of Labrador

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—The discovery of a new fishing bank, 200 by 90 miles off the coast of Labrador, is reported at the Department of Marine and Fisheries. This fishing ground, which it is stated abounds in cod and halibut, is expected to prove a valuable addition to the already known fishing banks. The depth of the water is 35 fathoms, and the same soundings, varying but little, were prevalent over a large part of the bank. The exact location has not yet been made known.

Springfield Republican: Although the surrender is unconditional, Germany expects and has been given reason to expect that abandonment of passive resistance will clear the way for negotiations, and in the event of undue delay it might be difficult to guarantee continued good order, particularly of the delay were to be accompanied by a continuation of the propaganda for a separate Rhenish republic which has been greatly intensified of late. Not War But Peace.

Nothing is more significant of the trend of thought today than the tenor of the discussions at the Imperial Conference. In the old days there was held in Scotland the gathering of the clans—each a unit in itself, but owing allegiance to their sovereign lord the King. They met to discuss a war of aggression, or to decide upon a plan of defence, and any suggestion to settle their quarrel by peaceful methods would have received but scant consideration, and the originator of the idea would have been dubbed a coward and expelled from the council.

At the Imperial Conference the clans have again assembled. They come to the capital of the Empire at the command of their King from the uttermost parts of the earth. The purpose of the gathering is not to decide how to conduct a campaign of war successfully, but how to prevent war. To that end a closer union between the Mother Country and the dependencies is necessary, a union which will make the Empire a solid entity, but at the same time will enable each constituent part to develop along its own lines.

The Great War brought about many remarkable changes in the relationship of Great Britain to the dependencies and vice versa. Never to the same extent had British statesmen realized the importance of the Empire; and the great might of Britain was revealed for the first time to the Empire when her mantle of peace was thrown aside. She showed nothing of that decadence so frequently referred to in certain sections of the foreign press; and to the British peoples, many of whom felt that the Empire was a more of a responsibility than a source of strength, the armies which they assembled and the wealth which they expended unstintingly revealed them in a new light.

Traditions die hard, but the reference in yesterday's message to the discussion of Britain's foreign policy by the Empire statesmen marks an epoch in our history. This has always been a subject which the Mother Parliament has dealt with exclusively, and in which the Dominions were not consulted. No whisper of those momentous events that from time to time threatened the safety of Europe ever penetrated the portals of Downing Street. It was not until suggestions, communicated through the channels of diplomacy, had been agreed to and the danger averted, that the world in general learnt that a storm had been brooding. Recently Lord Curzon outlined Britain's policy to the Empire statesmen, and they in turn have criticised it, thereby, with the approval of their colleagues in Britain, taking their full share in the responsibility of Government.

Last night at a banquet in Ottawa Mr. Lloyd George outlined clearly the right of the people in the overseas Dominions to express their opinions in such matters. He declared, "You have a right to a voice in the settlement in Europe and I hope you will assert it, because it is your right, because it is in your interest, and because it is in the interest of the world."

This last sentence indicates what the object aimed at is. Possibly certain nations may view this gathering with suspicion, but the world for the most part, and America in particular, sees no such danger as the result of the Conference. The development of the Empire depends upon peace. It is as much dependent upon the other countries as it is upon its integral parts for its trade and commerce. Better commercial arrangements within the Empire will not be made to affect adversely the trade of outside countries. On the contrary such a policy would be harmful and directly opposed to the principles of free trade and fair competition which Britain has ever maintained and which have been the secret of her success.

Boy Life

As a result of the visit of Mr. Taylor Statten, the Executive Secretary of the Toronto Boy Life Council, to St. John's, a meeting has been arranged to take place in the Board of Trade Rooms on Friday, the 12th inst., at noon. The meeting will be presided over by His Excellency the Governor, and it is understood that the Leaders of the various religious denominations, the Minister of Education, the Principals of the various Colleges and Schools, Rotarians, the heads of Brigades, Associations, etc., as well as many others interested in Boy Welfare, have been asked to be present. Mr. Statten will address the meeting on the aims and objects of the Boy Life Movement as carried on in Canada and show what has been done there.

- (1) to assist in co-ordinating the work of the various agencies and organizations; (2) to prevent overlapping and duplication; (3) to foster greater interest in boys' work; (4) to assist in creating new phases of boys' work not covered by existing organizations.

It is hoped that as a result of Mr. Statten's visit an incentive will be given to the work which has already been performed by those who have taken an active part in the welfare of the Boy Life of St. John's.

A Successful Test

CONDUCTED BY HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR.

This morning an interesting display of promptness and efficiency on the part of the Fire Department was illustrated in a very practical manner. His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by several gentlemen proceeded to the Cross Roads in the West End of the city and sent in an alarm. In exactly 2 minutes and 5 seconds the West End Firemen were on the scene. The Central Firemen arrived in 3 minutes and 50 seconds, and the ladder truck in 4 minutes and 32 seconds. The distance from the Central to the Cross Roads is about a mile and a half, and as the answer to the alarm was carried out as it is in all cases, the speed made constitutes a record. The Governor expressed himself as highly pleased with the high state of efficiency of the Brigade and the excellence of the system generally.

REAL LEAGUE OF NATIONS SAYS WALL STREET JOURNAL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The Wall Street Journal to-day declares that the Imperial Conference is a "real League of Nations" and remarks that the topic of the Premier of the British Commonwealths is business, "but business conducted under the highest conditions of peace and freedom."

The paper declares it is noteworthy that the British Premier is not debating the solidarity of the British Empire, adding "The Great War demonstrated that in a most extraordinary way."

"Those of us who do our own thinking are coming to revise our conception of the British Empire and its commonwealths," continues the Wall Street Journal. "The Irish question is no longer a dominant factor in opinion here. Do we realize what an influence for perversion of truth it was in the past? For thirty years the London correspondent of one of the principal New York daily papers was an Irish land leaser and Sinn Feiner who, even on matters where Ireland was not concerned, never succeeded once in stating the English case fairly in his news. England was always wrong and the Mahdior anybody else who could do her damage was always right. Any irresponsible clique in England, Labor or Socialist, was more important to him than the Government majority in the House of Commons, and quoted here as representatives of English opinion."

"The Irish Premier is a member of the Conference in London. He is concerned about the chief market for Irish agricultural produce. He is beginning to understand what the British problems of Government in Ireland were. He is carrying on the Government financing in Dublin on a basis of 8 per cent. notes sold at a discount of 12 1-2 per cent. after collecting his principal revenue from Guinness' stout and the arrears of income tax. He is no longer talking the Fenian claptrap which was taken so seriously here. He is thanking Heaven from the bottom of his heart, that if the worst comes to the worst the Irish Free State is still a commonwealth of the British Empire."

Mae Edwards' Players Coming

OPEN ENGAGEMENT AT CASINO THEATRE NEXT MONDAY.

Mae Edwards and her popular Company will open a week's engagement next Monday at the Casino Theatre with the big New York success, "Why Wives Go Wrong," also they carry high class vaudeville which will be seen between the acts, and as a special feature an eight-piece novelty orchestra.

What the papers say about this Company: "Why Wives Go Wrong," an exceedingly bright and entertaining comedy drama, delights big audience. With a company far exceeding that of last year in every way and a repertoire of bright new dramatic successes and vaudeville of top-notch variety and plenty of it, and a lively jazz band of eight pieces which rendered decidedly captivating music, the Mae Edwards Company carried all before them so far as entertainment triumphs go.

Miss Edwards certainly has succeeded this time in getting a first class aggregation of players, and in this breezy little drama which was devoid of all the questionable features of the modern problem play, the audience were as fully satisfied and it is safe to say far better pleased than they would have been had the play been of the other class named. A play which will furnish a large order of clean merriment is the kind which the public appreciate, and the audience of last night certainly had their share of this, for Miss Edwards in "Why Wives Go Wrong," furnished more laughs to the square yard than any play yet seen here for some time. Her acting was excellent and vivacious, and she was portrayed in her every word and action. The vaudeville and music by the orchestra was a big feature and there were absolutely no dull moments. Complete change of play and vaudeville Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Secure your seats in advance and avoid standing in line. Now on sale at Hutton's Music Store.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

LOYD GEORGE EMPHASIZED THE RIGHT OF THE EMPIRE TO A VOICE IN FOREIGN POLICY.

OTTAWA, Oct. 10. "You have a right to a voice in the settlement of Europe and I hope you will assert it because it is your right, because it is in your interest, and because it is in the interest of the world." So declared David Lloyd George to the Canadian people last night at the banquet tendered him by the Dominion Government.

BRITAIN OFFERS PREFERENTIAL TARIFF ON SEVERAL EMPIRE PRODUCTS.

LONDON, Oct. 10. A special cable to Canadian Press by George Hamilton, Staff Correspondent, on behalf of the British Government Sir Philip Lloyd George, President Board of Trade made the Dominion delegates to the Economic Conference yesterday a definite offer of increased and stabilized preferences in British markets. The offer covers dried and preserved fruits, including canned fruits, also sugar and tobacco.

Hon. H. Burton, Minister of Finance for South Africa, declared that the Union Government was prepared to change their avowal to a specific duty to help the trade in Great Britain. The British offer was received by all the Dominion representatives with words of appreciation. Among the Canadian delegates the comment heard was that while it was unlikely to be of great material assistance to Canada, it was welcomed for the spirit in which it was made.

The inclusion of canned fruits it is thought is the most important feature so far as Canada is concerned. Hon. Geo. F. Graham stressed the point that Canada was not at the Conference to impose any fiscal views on Great Britain. On the other hand Canada would gratefully accept Britain's offer. He observed that Canada differed from the other dominions in that she was becoming an industrial country.

Cairnes of the Indian delegation said India stood to gain very little by the preference as her exports went to foreign countries and her imports were from Britain. He could not commit the Government of India to a policy of preference. Col. W. G. Ormsby Gore, Under Secretary for the Colonies, argued that under the proposals Mauritius and West Indies would have no hope. During the discussion on Overseas settlement, Col. L. C. Amery, First Lord of the Admiralty, said that the Empire had seven million square miles of territory full of all kinds of resources, yet three-fourths of the population was huddled on one-fiftieth part of that area.

The result did not make for efficiency in development. He intimated that it would later have to be pointed out to the Dominions the enormous burden of the defense of the Empire was imposing on Great Britain. He argued that if the population was more evenly distributed the problem of defence could be met more effectively.

LOYD GEORGE AFTER 6 HOURS IN OTTAWA LEAVES FOR TORONTO.

OTTAWA, Oct. 10. After less than six hours spent in Ottawa, Right Hon. David Lloyd George left at 11.35 last night by special train for Toronto. He was attended at the station by Hon. W. S. Fielding and other Cabinet Ministers and given a splendid farewell.

Have Women Any Excuse?

It is only a question of time when all women who suffer from red, roughened hands will be convinced that they have no excuse to offer.

They will realize that their household soap is much to blame for this condition of their hands.

To these women we offer this suggestion: Ask your grocer for a cake of Kirkman's Soap. Use it for all household and laundry purposes, and at the end of the day notice how fine your hands feel.

Notice how soft, smooth and free from the slightest irritation your skin is.

BECAUSE only the finest ingredients are used; because these ingredients are perfectly blended by nine different boilings—and because it is free from lye to harm your hands, you are assured that you can always use Kirkman's Soap with absolute safety.

Kirkman's make only one grade of soap, and for over 86 years have consistently followed the policy of offering thinking women nothing but the best.

Without Question or Argument
Kirkman's Soap is sold to you with the distinct understanding that it satisfies YOU in every way. Your grocer will return your money without question or argument, if you are not pleased with results. You alone are the judge.

Grenfell Work Made Progress

CHIEF OF LABRADOR MISSION AND PARTY ARRIVE HERE ON S.S. KYLE.

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell and party arrived in North St. John's recently on the S.S. Kyle from Labrador en route to the United States. Dr. and Mrs. Grenfell will spend the winter at their home in Brookline, Mass., and the other members will go to various parts to their homes; except eight young men, natives of Labrador, who are going to the United States to take university courses.

Dr. Grenfell said the mission had experienced a very successful season and particularly good developments had been made along industrial lines. The chief expansions had been in basket-weaving, and in canning fruit and salmon. The production is disposed of in the home market, the various institutions of the mission taking the major part of the output. Conditions in the country generally were improved by the opening of lumber operations at White Bay by Mr. Harry Crowe, where a large number of men will be employed.

The industry would in part relieve the distress caused by the disappearing markets for salt fish; but the fishermen are in a very bad way owing to the heavy taxation on fish. The doctor pointed out that he was always criticised for his propaganda against this heavy taxation, but that the handicap imposed upon the fishermen by it had created a very critical situation along the Labrador coast and was causing much distress.

Speaking of the humanitarian work of the mission, Dr. Grenfell said he was highly pleased with what had been accomplished by the various institutions during the season. The hospital work had been particularly valuable on account of the hardships, which the long last winter had imposed upon the country and the increased number of accidents on account of abnormal storm and ice conditions. He expressed particular pleasure over the success of the new orphanages, one in the north and the other in the south of the Labrador. Sixty children had been given homes in these institutions and were making remarkable advancement in various branches of study.

Volunteer nurses and general staff had been left in the Labrador to carry on the work during the winter and the doctor is taking eight young men of the country to the United States, where they will take university courses and specialize in branches which will enable them to carry on the work of the mission at various points in their native land when their studies are completed.—North Sydney Herald.

The Japanese Disaster

It is probable that every marine insurance company in the world will lose something in the Japanese disaster. It is also likely that a year or more may elapse before satisfactory proof of loss can be presented to the respective companies. To the foreign company the difficulties of language are well nigh insurmountable, as but few of the foreign staffs in Japan are able to do more than speak a few words of the Japanese language, and it is almost unheard of for anyone to read it.

Cable advices to the "Nippu Ji Ji," a Japanese newspaper in Honolulu, say that the entire insurance losses in the earthquake zone will reach $1,100,000,000. Of this sum 80 per cent. will be paid by the government and 20 per cent. by the insurance companies.

It was announced in Tokio that the heads of the various Japanese insurance companies have decided to pay their full insurance losses, not availing themselves of the earthquake clauses in their policies. This relates primarily to fire insurance.

Following the Japanese disaster London quoted 10 per cent. per annum on specified marine risks in that country.

Swindlers From Spain

As any policeman can tell you there are certain individuals, criminals who stick to one particular form of crime. These are thieves who steal coats; others who confine themselves to books, and a few who peddle in pictures.

More recently it has become clear that each country tends to produce a very peculiar class of swindler. In Paris and New York, where the population is cosmopolitan, the police find that the most cunning swindlers are Spanish and Russian.

Crimes of violence, especially cases of kidnaping, are perpetrated by Italians, Mexicans and Germans. The German is frequently prosecuted for false frauds, such as selling goods under false descriptions, or goods that have been adulterated.

The Chinese, usually a law-abiding race, produce most of the dope-smugglers. We have had several examples of that sort of thing lately in Japan.

From Hungary come the cleverest beggars, and their dodges for exciting the pity of the benevolent are alike. The most cunning street thieves, so say the Philistine police, are British, and the smartest burglars hail from America.

Just opened a small shipment of the latest New York styles, in Red and Blue Kid Shoes. See the new strap effect. Parker & Monroe, Ltd.

Old Windjammers on British Registry

NUMBER ONLY TWELVE.

Ten years ago there was one hundred square-rigged sailing vessels upon the British register. The last hundred has dwindled by now to a remnant of a dozen or so, nearly all of which belong to the undistinguished type of large carrier popular in the brief revival of sailing shipbuilding in the early Nineties. The older and more notable ships went long ago. The few examples of the Seventies, which remain in active service, ships like the one-time Aberdeen clipper Sophocles, and the Canterbury, the last of six notable vessels built by Robert Duncan at Port Glasgow in 1874 for the Colonial emigrant trade, have sailed for many years under alien flags. Among the survivors the Mount Stewart, a full-rigged ship, built in 1881 by Barclay, Curle and Co., whose ships were of good repute in the closing days of sail, had the distinction of being the last vessel to be built specially for the Colonial wool trade, which, even in her early years, was passing into the hands of steam.

She is also made noteworthy in contrast with nearly all her contemporaries by having lived out her days under her original Aberdeen house flag, and has, I believe, had only two masters during her career. A contemporary vessel is the Tamar, a steel full-rigged ship, built at Southampton in 1889, also for the Colonial trade, in which, however, she never made a name. About ten years later the Tamar was sold to her present Liverpool owners, under whose flag she has made some excellent passages, notably one record run out from the Channel to Callao in 89 days.

The unfortunate sailor fared badly during the war years, since, as a rule, she could neither fight nor run. The London four-masted barque Medway was an exception. In the early days of hostilities the Medway was making her homeward passage round the Horn under low canvas, when a steamer was sighted, which presently showed German colors, and signalled the barque to heave to. Instead of doing so, Captain Jackson of the Medway crowded on the three top-gallant sails, and soon left his pursuer standing still. One would back an able four-masted barque against any steamboat in a stern chase in these latitudes. Another once well known four-masted, Clink's old Pimoro, was a less fortunate victim of something very like fratricide. Upon her last voyage from Buenos Aires to the Azores for orders, the Pimoro fell in with an apparent harmless stranger which closed herself when within range of the raider Seadler. At one time the Seadler had been the Glasgow-owned ship Pass of Balmaha. She latterly sailed under the American flag and, having been seized and taken into Hamburg in the early months of the war, had been fitted with auxiliary power, and sent to sea in the guise of a harmless sifter, to prey upon her kind. Naturally, the victims of the Seadler made loud protest at the time against the deceitfulness of her inoffensive exterior.

After the first year of war those old stagers which had been fitted with steam in their time from all their strongholds, began to experience a revival of usefulness. Veterans, that had been relegated, finally as one thought, to service as hulks, were fitted out again and put into position. The little barques Mennock and the Troncade, dating from the Seventies, had swung at moorings in Chilean ports for fifteen years, when they put to sea again and, for all I know, may still be picking up a livelihood along the South American seaboard. The old Antiope, a well known clipper, built by Reid of Port Glasgow in '66, had been in her time a notable vessel in the Eastern and Colonial trades. She had then descended, as befell most of these old ships, to lumber carrying in the North Pacific, until reduced to still more humble service as a hulk in Australian waters. But the war brought the Antiope out again. After some further years of service which formed an interesting pendant to her variegated career, she returned to retirement as a sugar hulk at Chinde, and received honorable mention quite recently in Lloyd's List for riding out a cyclone at her moorings there.

An interesting conversion of the same period was that of the Pacific Mail Company's iron steamship City of Sydney, built in 1895, into a four-masted schooner. She took 83 days upon her maiden voyage under canvas, at the age of forty years, from San Francisco to Sydney, N.S.W. Such conversions were not uncommon in the old days. The early type of steamer, long, narrow, and deep, like a plank on edge, did good work under sail power. The London four-master Lancing, built as a steamboat, in 1856 was, until a few years ago, a notable vessel for smart passages, and still figures upon the active Norwegian list. As the last I heard of her was that she was loading lumber in the St. Lawrence. I hope that the Lancing will complete her 60 years of continuous usefulness.

In spite of these instances of rejuvenescence, the war years played havoc with sail. By 1917 the fleet of 1814 had been halved by war losses, marine casualties, and transfer to foreign flags. The case of the one-time notable Glasgow Ship is typical. In 1914 they numbered seven able vessels. The Dumfriesshire, a characteristic four-masted barque of the Nineties, was torpedoed off the Smalls in 1915, and went down in five minutes. In the same year the Invernesshire was dismantled off Hobart and sold foreign in her damaged state. In 1821, as the Svartskog, she went missing on a voyage from Norfolk, Virginia, to Buenos Aires. Her consort, the Kinrosshire, was also posted as missing in the same year. The Kirkcubrightshire is now a hulk at Fremantle, the Clackmannshire sold to shipbreakers and with the sale foreign of the Elginshire early this year, another sailing fleet has been dispersed. Threatened so long with destruction, one cannot but admire the running fight which the obsolescent sailer has put up against steam. But it can only be a matter of a year or two now before the last dozen follow into oblivion the great fleet of which they are the rearguard. The survivors are old and not worth the cost of repair upon the occurrence of any of the maritime misadventures to which age makes them increasingly liable. There is only one market now for the sailing vessel. Relieved of her topmasts, she requires a little alteration to make a serviceable hulk. In that unadventurous capacity the last of the type are fated to eke out their days.

Removed Four of Raleigh's Big Guns

STRANDHILL'S SUCCESSFUL SALVAGE WORK AT WRECK OF WARSHIP.

Four of the large guns of his Majesty's ship Raleigh, which went ashore in the Straits of Belle Isle, in August of 1922, were salvaged recently by the wrecking steamer Strandhill of the Halifax Dredging Company, of which Hon. R. G. Beasley, of Halifax, is the head. There were seven guns of 7.65 calibre on board the Raleigh, and it is expected that the other three will be salvaged within a very short time if the weather remains such as to enable their removal. The guns are valued at 20,000 each.

The Halifax Dredging Company received the contract for saving these guns about two months ago. They specially purchased the steamer Strandhill for the purpose. The Strandhill is a boat of about 2900 tons gross, or 1641 tons net, is broad beamed, has a long boom for lifting purposes and is specially adapted for such work as raising guns of seven-ton dead weight. Six weeks were spent in preparing the Strandhill for the work. She has been two weeks at the wreck, but until a few days ago the weather was so bad that she could approach close enough to the Raleigh as to lift the guns. In the meantime, however, her men had been aboard the warship, and made the guns ready for transfer as soon as the weather permitted. Such conditions came within a short while and in the little time they had to work the Strandhill's men had transferred four of the cannon. The men are at work on the warship only when the seas are not running otherwise they break high over the ship.

Captain Smeltzer of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine command of the Strandhill is in command of the salvage operations, and Captain Ford of the La Canadienne is other of the Halifax Dredging Company's steamers, is superintendent of work of salvage.

Besides the guns there are anchors and four chains to be salvaged.

Chamberlain Notes Give Anecdote of Former King

LONDON.—(A.P.)—Some interesting letters written by Austen Chamberlain to his family when, in 1887, young man he visited Germany complete his education, are published in the September issue of the "Pit Review."

Among other anecdotes they give the following story of King Wilhelm, now the occupant of the throne in Holland, and often referred to as plain William Hohenzollern. "Prince Wilhelm, going one day to the Turkish Army, was serving in the Turkish Army, and three orders on his breast, when he was asked to lift the guns. In what service he got them. The next after a moment's hesitation, he said: 'The first I got for flattery, the second for stealing, and the third for being a scoundrel! I must have answered the princes, 'the Sultan sent me all three, and in danger

WHEN SOMEONE REMEMBERS.

A neighbor of mine has a very gracious little custom which she observes every year. She has a dear friend who was absolutely devoted to her mother, gave up marriage, and lavished upon her the luxuries which her generous salary as a super private secretary would buy. When her mother died she was heartbroken over her loss, though she picked herself up and led her life over to fit the new order. She has always missed her mother far more than the average other does.

She has not forgotten. Her neighbor, who knew both her and daughter, realized this and all the daughter's friends she did could help at the time of her death. And unlike most of them she did not entirely forget. Every year on the anniversary of her death, she sends flowers a little note of sympathy and to her friend.

"It would be difficult to overestimate how much this means to that man."

"It makes me feel a little less to know that someone remembers," she said one year, when she sent me the flowers.

Sweden Spends $30,000,000

IN CONSTRUCTIVE RELIEF WORK.

STOCKHOLM.—(A.P.)—The balancing of accounts, at the end of the worst period of unemployment which Sweden has ever weathered, shows the following debit and credit: A total public outlay of $30,000,000 to provide work for the jobless, about 1,500 miles of new and improved roads, many new bridges, new telephone lines, forty-six new athletic fields, new aviation fields, new barracks, extensive forest improvements, reforestation and opening up of large new tracts of farmable land.

This information is the result of researches made by two leading Stockholm newspapers on the occasion of reporting the lowest amount of unemployment during two and a half years, the figures now being only 20,000 as against 163,000 in February, 1922. Practically all the large funds expended have been for constructive relief work, while steadily decreasing sums have been set aside for direct subsistence. At present only about 150 persons are receiving unemployment doles.

Why Sarah Bernhardt Had no Fire Insurance

While Sarah Bernhardt was a wonderful actress, she was evidently not much of a business woman, as notwithstanding her long and successful stage career, she possessed little beyond her personal belongings when she died. It was her peculiar temperament that led her to postpone the first payment for fire insurance on her apartment and its contents, or she might have left a small fortune. "I was advised," she recorded "that the policy would be presented for my signature on Wednesday the 15th. A gentleman called on the day indicated about 2 o'clock, but I was in an extremely nervous condition. 'No, leave me alone to-day, I cannot see anyone.' I shut myself in my room in a state of deep depression."

Two days later the apartment burned and everything was destroyed. In addition, Madame Bernhardt had to pay an indemnity of 40,000 francs to the landlord for damage done to the building.

Divining Metals

A very delicate piece of apparatus which can be used for divining the presence of metals under the ground has recently been invented. It shows to the scientist the way in which gravity varies from point to point, at or near the earth's surface.

A mass of heavy ore, even if buried in the ground, affects the pull of gravity on the instrument if this is placed near it, and affects two plumb bobs differently. One of these is at a lower level than the other. The two are connected and the system is hung up by a long, fine metal wire. The whole arrangement forms what is known as a torsion balance.

The twist in the wire measures the irregularity in the action of gravity caused by the ore bed, by a neighboring hill, a cave beneath the surface, and so forth. By a careful study of the readings of the instrument it is possible to find the best position for sinking a mine shaft to tap the ore bed.

A Pernicious Doctrine

Daily Express: Birth control does not exist among colored races. Therefore, if the cult of race suicide should race unchecked, the British Empire would cease to be predominantly white in character and in governance. Dr. Cornish advocates the family of four as the ideal which we ought to uphold. The plain truth is that birth control will place the British Empire in the category of the dying races. Therefore, this fatal doctrine ought to be resolutely extirpated by the power of public opinion.

Wonderful Georges

WHY I THINK CARPENTIER IS A GREAT BOXER.

By EUGENT CORRI (the famous referee.)

Georges Carpentier has had more admirers than any ring champion in history, and perhaps it is equally true to say that no champion has had more detractors.

The cautious critics particularly enjoyed themselves when Carpentier was disposed by the Senegalese boxer, Battling Siki, and for my part I was just bored stiff by the tedious arguments advanced by Carpentier's detractors in their attempt to prove that he has ever been a real champion.

One certainly cannot explain away the defeat of Carpentier at the hands of Battling Siki. That was the result of foolhardiness, and Carpentier has paid the penalty. How dearly he has paid nobody will ever know, because it was a blow to the pride of the proudest man that ever donned a boxing glove. Carpentier admits right away that he was a fool in thinking Siki so easy for him, that for the first time in his life he neglected to train.

I am not making excuses for the Frenchman, but let me say that it is as easy to blame Carpentier for making such a tragic error as it is hard for a champion who stands so hard in his class to resist this sort of temptation.

The fact that nearly every champion in history has a blot on his record brought about through neglecting to train for what he thought was an easy opponent is enough to show how great is the temptation to take things easy just for once in a while.

That once is usually enough to drive the lesson home. Carpentier has learnt his lesson, and that is why he boxed with unusual caution against Marcel Nilles and took eight rounds to finish his opponent off. It may be the longest fight that Carpentier has had for some time, but it is also the quickest time in which Nilles has been beaten in all his fights.

Just look a moment at Carpentier's wonderful record. Standing at the age of thirty-two, he won the fly-weight championship of France; after this he defeated all our best youngsters one after the other; and we had quite a host of good lads about twelve years ago, certainly more than we have now. From this he went on to win the bantam championship, then the lightweight, welterweight, middleweight and lightweight championships of France.

This record alone is unprecedented, for no man has ever before won the championship of his country at every weight. But in addition to this Carpentier won four European titles, the welterweight, middle, light-heavy and heavyweight, while he won the world's light-heavyweight title by defeating Battling Levinsky.

In my opinion Carpentier is by no means finished. He will give us a number of great fights before he ultimately decides to retire from the ring. His recent victory over Beckett in one round adds one more crown to his already overlaiden brow.

The League's Test

The Fargo Forum: The failure of the League of Nations to take a firm and decisive step in the handling of the Greco-Italian imbroglio has proven beyond all reasonable doubt that the League cannot function, as it was supposed by its chief proponents that it would function in times of great international stress. The League is built on theory and on a hope for the prevention of war, which is held by great masses of people everywhere. But nations do not stop to consider the good results from permanent peace when self-interest is at stake. When self-interest predominates, a situation, the League may give counsel, but it is powerless to enforce a mandate.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to cure it, and you have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? When you do, you will understand why thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly sleep without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will quickly earn it a permanent place in your home.

In a 10-oz. bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the bottle. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you 16 ounces of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50.

It is hardly wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, get the genuine Pinex for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A New Wheat Route Via Newfoundland

UNDER CONSIDERATION.

The movement of grain from the Great Lakes and Western Canada to the great markets across the Atlantic and in South America has been the subject of a great deal of concern to the people of the neighbouring provinces and during recent years Newfoundland has been spoken of as a suitable terminal of the present St. Lawrence route. It is learned that within the recent months a project to create a route via Newfoundland instead of via the Great Lakes and New York, has received considerable attention by a group of Canadian and English promoters. According to those interested the congestion and delays in the shipment of grain heretofore experienced cannot longer be tolerated, hence it is that a new route has been mapped out. During the past few days a gentleman has been in the city ascertaining data that the promoters of the Newfoundland route require for the perfection of their plans. From what we have been told one can but conjecture that the new scheme which has been mooted at the suggestion of bankers and those interested in wheat transportation will be of great benefit to Newfoundland.

2,400 Immigrants From Newfoundland During September

North Sydney—Over 2,400 passengers arrived at this port from Newfoundland during the month of September, as compared with 2,219 arrivals during the month of August, according to figures furnished by A. G. Christie, Immigration officer for the port of North Sydney. Out of 2,483 passengers, 630 were immigrants leaving their native country to settle in Canada and the United States. One thousand eight hundred and forty-one were tourists returning from Newfoundland, while two passengers were rejected and sent back as undesirable, which show the class of immigrant arriving here from the ancient colony are of the best.

My Appreciation

FOR DR. W. M. H. MACPHERSON'S SERVICE.

I desire to speak a word of praise for chiropractic as it has proved so beneficial to me. For about eight months I was nothing better than a cripple—my right arm being drawn so much that I could scarcely do anything. Together with that, I suffered severely with my throat. I went to different doctors, but the only thing they could advise me to, was an operation both for my throat and arm. Naturally I was feeling much discouraged as my health was in such a condition that I could not work and life was only a misery. A friend told me about chiropractic one day, and I decided to see Dr. MacPherson the chiropractor, and give it a trial. After a few adjustments I felt somewhat better, and now after four months treatment, I am completely well. Thanks to Dr. MacPherson and chiropractic, I cannot speak too highly of this health service and only wish everyone who suffers, would give it a fair trial. MRS. E. M. BURRY, 70 Brazil's Square. Reds Here and There

Curious sidelights appear at times at the various meetings of our "Red" friends. At a recent Red tournament in the Labor Temple, Toronto, one Joe Knight went on to say that of all the ruthless, bloodthirsty Empires that encumber the earth, the British Empire is the worst. The next was the United States with its loathsome, despotic capitalist system. The workers must learn the lesson that force is powder, and they must use that powder to establish a dictatorship of the proletariat in Canada.

It so happens that at this same meeting there was a "Red" Ella Reeves Bloor by name, a native of the United States. In the course of the latter's remarks she declared from the platform that had she spoken half so disparagingly of the United States as a Knight had of the British and Canadian governments she would have been promptly arrested and sent down for life.

Could any greater compliment be paid a nation than that tendered by "Mother Bloor"? Where else in the world would such language be permitted, not in Russia that is sure. And still Knight and his ilk do not appreciate this lack of attention. Some people are hard to please.

A poor loaf is better than no loaf, but a good loaf is the best of all. Ring 2093. CENTRAL BAKERY, for the best loaf. oct4.25i

The Pursuit of Truth

Washington Post: His definition of the goal of education is the cultivation and development of our mental powers, to the end that we may know truth and conform to it, will be accepted as correct enough by those who have given the matter some thought. On the other hand, it must have seemed a hard and somewhat obscure and incomprehensible saying to undergraduates to whom it was addressed. What is truth? was a question that puzzled uncounted millions before and since his time. The distinction drawn by Dr. Hopkins between education and training has its roots deep sound pedagogical principles, although it will make but scant appeal to a generation which in the main seeks knowledge not for its own sake and for the sake of the culture it confers, but in an altruistic sense, for the good can do, but because it is a common handmaid in the house of life. Fashions and sharpen the tools that must be used in carving out a career.

FIRE PREVENTION.

Address by Mr. T. V. Hartnett Before the Rotary Club Yesterday.

The weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club, on October 9, 1923, was given by Mr. T. V. Hartnett, Chairman of the Fire Prevention Committee, and Rotary Club, who acted as Chairman. His address was given at the Taylor Station, of Toronto, in a well-attended hall, with a contemplated boys' campaign.

The guests were Messrs. R. P. E. O'Connell and Mr. J. St. John, N.B. The address was given by Mr. T. V. Hartnett, Chairman of the Fire Prevention Committee, and Rotary Club, who acted as Chairman. His address was given at the Taylor Station, of Toronto, in a well-attended hall, with a contemplated boys' campaign.

The worst feature of the fire waste is that statistics show that most of our outbreaks of fire are readily preventable, and the loss which they entail avoidable with the exercise of common common sense. Most fires start from surprisingly simple and easily preventable causes. Careless smokers and the use of matches is one of the principal fire causes. Defective chimneys and flues are listed as another major fire cause, and fire from this source can readily be prevented by a few timely repairs to defective equipment. Electricity is responsible for fires, principally because of the misuse of electric equipment, overloading wiring, leaving electric iron with the current on, etc. All these may be eliminated as fire causes if proper care is taken.

The principle of personal responsibility for fire is in force in European law, and is perhaps the main reason why European per capita fire losses are about one-tenth of those for the United States and Canada. For example, in France, the property owner is not so much concerned about his own possible losses, but must carry insurance to cover his liability in case a fire originating on his premises should spread to surrounding property. And furthermore, the property owner or tenant is held to be responsible for the fire, unless he can definitely prove otherwise. In China they have adopted a far more drastic method. The man whose house is burning is held responsible in case the conflagration spreads. His suffering neighbours each has the right to pour a bucket of water on him, and to compel him giving them a feast. Also they finally dump into his yard whatever debris the spreading fire may have caused upon their land.

There is an erroneous impression that fire losses are borne directly by insurance companies. After a fire the average person asks if it is covered by insurance? and if he finds the loss is covered, he dismisses the subject from his mind. He does not realize that the insurance companies are merely collectors and distributors of the Fire Tax; that they are able to pay fire losses only by reason of the premiums they collect. We all pay this fire tax directly or indirectly, it is added to everything we buy, everything we use, and with a reduction in this fire losses a corresponding reduction should take place in the tax rate.

A review of the activities of Municipal Fire Prevention engineers, should not be without interest. Usually the first step taken in fire prevention work is an inspection by a committee of highly qualified engineers whose work is divided into three headings. Elimination of the causes of fire. Limitation of the spreading of fire. Extinguishment of fires.

The water supply being of primary importance is studied in respect to its size, source, its reservoirs, flow, pressure, size and arrangement of the mains, the position of the hydrants, and every other essential matter. For example, in New York, it was found that the water supply was inadequate to cope with the skyscraper situation, and likewise the conflagration hazard. In view of this they provided an unlimited high pressure water system with the result that the City authorities installed a 72 inch salt water main in the congested part of the city, having as its source of supply the Hudson River. Several high powered pumping stations were placed along the water front, and it enables the authorities to work a high pressure of no less than 200 lbs. at all times.

Next, they consider the question of inadequate fire apparatus. Thanks to our Inspector General, the city of St. John can now be said to possess a thoroughly modern and effective apparatus for fighting fires. Just what this apparatus has saved the city in fire losses is not known, but it is interesting to learn that in five cities in the Eastern States, the purchase of automobile fire apparatus resulted in the extinguishment of fires in buildings which would have been thoroughly destroyed, and a fair estimate of the value and contents is far in excess of eight hundred thousand dollars. Attention is then given to the conspicuous fire hazards. Old buildings are rendered safe for occupancy, dilapidated buildings are removed. In the city of Boston 1124 of these buildings have been removed during the past few years, and a rigid inspection is made of all industrial plants, departmental stores and mercantile establishments.

Thus far I have considered only the financial losses, and have not referred to another and far less excusable kind of waste; I mean the waste of life. Fortunately in this city our fires have been attended with small losses of life, but it behoves us as good citizens to see that our schools, factories and mercantile establishments afford ample protection to their occupants. I can only touch on the activities of the committee in this field of service and briefly their recommendations might be summarized as follows:

- (a) Order and neatness, commonly called "good housekeeping."
- (b) Self-closing metal cans for oily waste, and other dangerous materials.
- (c) Metal receptacles with tight metal covers for the safe keeping of sweepings, rubbish, accumulation, ashes, etc., pending removal from premises.
- (d) Non-combustible or metal lined rooms, and tins for the storage of excelsior, straw, waste, paper, and other ready inflammable materials used for packing purposes, etc.
- (e) Installation of electric wiring, fuses, etc., strictly in accordance with the rules of the National electric code.
- (f) Proper safe guards for electrical apparatus, used for heating, etc.

The importance of fire drills for school children, and factory employees is considered a vital necessity. Installation of fire doors between departments and elevator shafts so that the fire may be confined to the smallest possible area, is also advised, and now that the holiday season is approaching, special emphasis is laid on the danger of using inflammable materials for decoration purposes. The Committee strongly advocates the adoption of the automatic sprinkler system, and in this connection it is interesting to note that out of a total of 4577 fires in buildings protected by sprinkler systems, 1143 fires, or 25 per cent, were practically extinguished by the sprinklers, and 330 fires or 35 per cent, were held in check.

What can we do in St. John's? First of all it will require both individual and collective efforts. Individually, we can make start by developing in ourselves a fire consciousness. We can make carefulness with fire not only a habit, but an instinct. Let us correct those conditions in our premises, home or business which breed fire, such as the rubbish heap, the carelessly disposed match or cigarette, the electric iron thoughtlessly left burning on the defective chimney of fuel, the open fire left unattended.

"Nero" Now Running at the Majestic

MAMMOTH PRODUCTION MADE IN ITALY BY FOX IS MAGNIFICENT HISTORICAL SPECTACLE.

The production may have been made abroad and have a group of local talent in the cast, but its inspiration was American and it was produced by an American, J. Gordon Edwards, who deserves the plaudits of the multitude. Edwards took a corps of technical assistants to Italy and one American actress, who, by the way, is one of the captivating features of the picture, and made "Nero" on what might be called his own ground. The result of his endeavours is a huge historical spectacle that is pictorially gratifying to an unusual extent and full of life and spirit, and real drama. It is not by any means just a series of beautiful or astounding scenes. It's got something behind it. And back of that, pushing everything forward, are the brains of the producer. The scenes of mobilization and attack of the rebellious Roman troops are some of the outstanding things in a production that has many features that might be singled out for separate praise. The excitement toward the close of the picture during the scene of Nero's final orgy and his ultimate fall is intense and built up with dramatic construction.

Tales of a Toastmaster

More Good Stories by Mr. Knight-Smith (The best-known toastmaster in the World.)
Dealing with sudden emergencies sometimes leads one into making other quite amusing little blunders. A chairman, committee-man, secretary, or some other official, will rush up to me with the request that I will make some announcement or other, adding usually, "you know how to word it—I leave it to you."
It often happens that in the hurry of the moment the poor toastmaster may not phrase the announcement in quite the happiest way.
For instance, at a recent reception in London, I was asked to announce a change in the arrangement for the ushering out of the guests. The Prince of Wales had just arrived and I called out: "Your Royal Highness and guests at the top will please come this way. Gentlemen will go out of the other door."
This announcement was greeted with loud laughter, in which the Prince joined heartily, but I think that everyone present realized how the mistake had arisen.

Amusing Mannerisms.

The mannerisms of various well known speakers are always interesting.
The American Ambassador, Mr. Harvey, likes to moisten his lips with mineral waters every minute or two, and often gets through several bottles of this kind of refreshment in the course of a single speech.
Earl Balfour is a speaker who requires plenty of room when "on his feet." He invariably steps backwards and forwards while speaking, and I always take the precaution of moving his chair when he rises, so as to allow him the freedom he needs.

Mixing Up Their Names.

For example, on one occasion, at a banquet at the Royal Automobile Club, in announcing Field-Marshal Lord Roberts, I inadvertently mixed up the famous soldier's name with that of Lord Charles Bessford, who was also present, with the result that I called out, "Field-Marshal Lord Charles Roberts!"
The Field-Marshal went up to the great Admiral, and holding out his hand, said, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "Pleased to meet you, brother Charles."
A more recent instance occurred at a Guildhall banquet. On the official list of guests was printed, among other famous names, "Field-Marshal Lord Bessford," obviously a mis-spell for Field-Marshal Lord Haig of Bessford.

Called Haig an Admiral.

As it happened, the blank space was opposite the name of a famous admiral, and in due course I read out to the astonished company, as the famous soldier entered, "Admiral of the Fleet, Lord Haig!"
As soon as the words had left my lips I realized the blunder I had made. Of course, I apologized, and immediately read the name again, this time correctly.
Shortly after this I was present at another ceremony at which Earl Haig was a guest. Taking advantage of a moment when he was disengaged, I went up to him and asked to be pardoned for making such a foolish mistake.
Earl Haig laughed as he recalled the incident, and then thanked me for thinking him worthy of being promoted, as he expressed it, "to the senior service!"

Household Notes.

Serve curried cream fish with steamed rice.
Most fruits are much more wholesome uncooked.
Chicken fat makes an excellent cake shortening.
Bake chipped beef and macaroni together in white sauce.
Sweet-breads are delicious sauted and served on fresh toast.

A chairman, committee-man, secretary, or some other official, will rush up to me with the request that I will make some announcement or other, adding usually, "you know how to word it—I leave it to you."
It often happens that in the hurry of the moment the poor toastmaster may not phrase the announcement in quite the happiest way.
For instance, at a recent reception in London, I was asked to announce a change in the arrangement for the ushering out of the guests. The Prince of Wales had just arrived and I called out: "Your Royal Highness and guests at the top will please come this way. Gentlemen will go out of the other door."
This announcement was greeted with loud laughter, in which the Prince joined heartily, but I think that everyone present realized how the mistake had arisen.

Amusing Mannerisms.

The mannerisms of various well known speakers are always interesting.
The American Ambassador, Mr. Harvey, likes to moisten his lips with mineral waters every minute or two, and often gets through several bottles of this kind of refreshment in the course of a single speech.
Earl Balfour is a speaker who requires plenty of room when "on his feet." He invariably steps backwards and forwards while speaking, and I always take the precaution of moving his chair when he rises, so as to allow him the freedom he needs.

Mixing Up Their Names.

For example, on one occasion, at a banquet at the Royal Automobile Club, in announcing Field-Marshal Lord Roberts, I inadvertently mixed up the famous soldier's name with that of Lord Charles Bessford, who was also present, with the result that I called out, "Field-Marshal Lord Charles Roberts!"
The Field-Marshal went up to the great Admiral, and holding out his hand, said, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "Pleased to meet you, brother Charles."
A more recent instance occurred at a Guildhall banquet. On the official list of guests was printed, among other famous names, "Field-Marshal Lord Bessford," obviously a mis-spell for Field-Marshal Lord Haig of Bessford.

Called Haig an Admiral.

As it happened, the blank space was opposite the name of a famous admiral, and in due course I read out to the astonished company, as the famous soldier entered, "Admiral of the Fleet, Lord Haig!"
As soon as the words had left my lips I realized the blunder I had made. Of course, I apologized, and immediately read the name again, this time correctly.
Shortly after this I was present at another ceremony at which Earl Haig was a guest. Taking advantage of a moment when he was disengaged, I went up to him and asked to be pardoned for making such a foolish mistake.
Earl Haig laughed as he recalled the incident, and then thanked me for thinking him worthy of being promoted, as he expressed it, "to the senior service!"
